LOCAL CLERGY AT CONSECRATION

Rev. Father Spratt; New Archbishop at Kingston

Rev. Father McColl and Rev. Dr. O'Brien returned to the city last evening from Kingston, where they attended the ceremony of consecration of Rev. Father Michael Joseph Spratt, of Belleville, as Archbishop of Kingston. The consecrator was the Apostolic Delegate, Mgr. Stagni, of Ottawa, and Bishop O'Connor was one of the two assisting bishops. An address, following the ceremony, was read to the new archbishop on behalf of the clergy, and a presentation of a purse containing about $2,000, was made. Bishop Fallon preached the sermon. Bishop O'Connor is remaining in Kingston till to-morrow.

CHAIRMAN TO SETTLE CLAIMS

Damages Asked for by D. Belleghem and Jas. Akey

Previous to the Property committee meeting last night the Legal committee were in session.

The claims of Mrs. Malibarrow and J. R. Scott and the matter of the Rapid Tool Co were discussed, but no action taken.

On motion the matter of the accounts of D. Belleghem and James Akey were left with the chairman with power to act. The city treasurer was authorized to pay the amounts when ordered by the chairman. These claims arose out of a runaway on the part of one of the city's horses on Hunter street.

Chairman Ald. Graham presided, and the Mayor, Ald. Kerneghan and Ald. Bradburn were also present.

On September 29th Mayor Morrow was served with a notice given by the holders of the $1,600 mortgage on the Rapid Tool Co., Messrs. G. L. Hay and W. G. Ferguson, stating that if the amount due on it was not paid, the land would be sold.

On the 4th October, Solicitor Hall wrote Mr. Morris, assignee of the company, notifying him of this notice and suggesting that he should notify Messrs. Ferguson and Hay of the fact that in their deed to the company they covenanted that the land was free from incumbrances, and that under the by-law conditions and the agreement, on the of the terms of the by-law the city was entitled to the land, buildings and plant, which should become the property of the city, unless the company paid the city $1,200.

"I would request," wrote Mr. Hall, "that authority be given to the mayor, chairman of the Legal committee, or the Legal committee to take such action as may be necessary to protect the city's interests in the event of the attempted disposal of the property of the company without the consent of the city.

THREE YEARS

Railway Promoter Sentenced to Kingston—Had Nothing to Say

Special to the Review.

Lindsay, Dec. 1.—Harry Malcolm Graham, the fake promoter of the electric railway line, between Port Hope and Orillia, who was arrested last Saturday, appeared in court this morning, and was sentenced to Kingston penetentiary for a term of three years.

There were four charges against the prisoner, the sentence of the court being three years for each offence, the same to run concurrently.

Graham was dressed in his surveyor's clothes and hung his head throughout the proceedings, never looking in the direction of any of his numerous victims, who were in attendance. Not one of these will get any of their money back. His wife was not in court and she had nothing to say for herself. His counsel, however put up a strong plea for leniency, pointing out the youth of the prisoner, whose downfall he partly attributed to the use of drugs.

"How I helped to build an electric railway," formed the subject for a chat with Mr. Frank Pearson and a Review reporter this afternoon.

Mr Pearson is visiting friends in the city, and incidentally recovering from the shock. He was one of the numerous employes of Harry Malcolm Graham, and was in Lindsay police court this morning, when Graham was sentenced to three years in the Kingston Penitentiary.

All Mr. Pearson got for his week's work was the pleasure of assisting Chief of Police, Chilton, in the arrest of Graham last Saturday, and the return of a pair of cuff links and a match box which will be carefully treasured as momentos of the defunct engineering scheme, and its incidents.

Mr. Pearson told the reporter that Graham was a prince of good fellows (with other people's money) and nothing was too good for the prospective employe, who would be taken in hand for a couple of days by young Graham, who would then negotiate for a loan. No sum was too small, neither was it too large. Like the widow they gave as they could.

"He told us," said Mr. Pearson that he had a gang in Peterboro, but one day when I remarked that I intended to join the Peterboro gang, he would hear nothing further. Another time, when we were near Jackson's Park, I told him I was going to Peterboro and this didn't suit him.

"He always met demands for money, with the request to wait, "till the old man came," meaning his father.

In connection with the railway, he said that the fare between Lindsay and Peterborough, would be but 1 1-2 cents per mile; that the poles would be of concrete and everything else of the most elaborate description. One man he hired at $3 after borrowing $80. Another fellow, also relieved, had to borrow money to get out of town.

Graham is said to have remarked to his counsel this morning after being sentenced to Kingston that "he would finish his engineering course." His wife expressed herself recently as being confident that he would be acquitted. She now intends to go to Kingston and seek employment, so as to be near her incarcerated husband.

FOWL SUPPER BY LADIES' AID WAS GRAND SUCCESS

Attendance at Market Hall Went up to 1000 Mark

If ever there was a pleased organization of women, it was the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Luke's church last night, when between 800 and 900 people attended the annual fowl supper in the market hall The enormous amount of work entailed in serving meals to this huge gathering was done by the members and the young ladies of the church Curiously enough too, the ladies had to call into commission the services of several men, who "made good" as carvers.

The meal provided was a good old-fashioned one. There was plenty for all and every item on the bill-of-fare was prepared as only the ladies can do things. Provision was made for the seating of 140 people at one time and the rush started shortly before six o'clock The Ladies' Aid are to be congratulated on the success of their supper, which will net a handsome sum.

Following the supper the following program was given;

Chairman's address—Rev. F. J. Sawers.
Piano selection—Mrs. Rehill.
Vocal solo—Mrs. Read.
Recitation—Mrs. Allen.
Vocal solo—Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald.
Address—Rev. R. Pogue.
Reading—Mr. J. John.

JUNIORS ENTHUSIASTIC FOR TRAINING CLASSES

That the youngsters are enthusiastic over the hockey prospects was evidenced during the meeting of the executive last night, when about fifteen candidates for the junior O.H.A. team called and were presented with tickets, entitling them to enter the Y.M.C.A. training classes, which commence to-night.

The notice that five dollar bills were to be given away would not have brought the Colts around with more promptness. The class to-night will meet between 7.30 and 8.30, while on succeeding Mondays and Wednesdays the hour is from 7 to 8.

The list of names includes some splendid material, and with careful management the results should this season be highly satisfactory.

Mr. Ed. Dillon was on hand and accepted the position of trainer of the club. He has in mind an assistant, who is satisfactory to the executive.

Smoking in the dressing room will be strictly prohibited, says Trainer Dillon, and there will be "nothing doing" for those not officers of the club.

The sweaters to be ordered are of blue and white, with vertical two inch stripes. This will be something new for the local club. The stocking will be plain black.

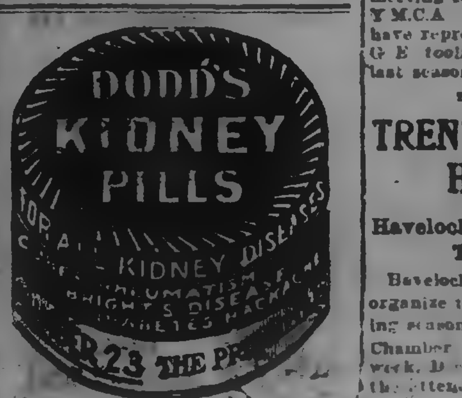
Among the intermediates who will also be on hand for the class to-night are Park, Denison, Coughlin, Bearss, Giroux, Kelly, Anderson, Bond.

Belleville will play intermediate and junior hockey this season, good material being available for both teams. C. R. Burrows is secretary of the intermediate and Al. Moore occupies the same position for the juniors.

Secretary Fred Heaslip, of the Mercantile Hockey League, has called a meeting for Monday night next at the Y.M.C.A. All teams interested should have representatives on hand. The C. G. E. toolroom won the championship last season.



TRENT VALLEY HOCKEY LEAGUE

Havelock Likely to Have Strong Team This Season

Havelock, Dec. 1.—A meeting to re-organize the Hockey Club for the coming season will be held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday night of next week, Dec. 5th, at 8 o'clock, at which the attendance of all those interested in hockey is requested. Prospects for a good team in Havelock are said to be particularly bright, and the matter of forming an additional district in the Trent Valley League from teams from Campbellford, Norwood, Hastings and other places in this vicinity, will come up for discussion.

DAMAGES FOR FALSE ARREST

David Viener Has Taken Action Against Local Merchant

Toronto Dec. 1.—David Viener, of Peterborough, under 21 years of age, is suing, with Jacob Viener, of Toronto, acting as guardian and next friend, Frank White, of Peterborough, for unstated damages for alleged false arrest, and malicious prosecution and trespass.

The case was heard in the local police court a short time ago when Viener was charged with false pretences, the charge arising out of a deal in hay. Viener was alleged to have secured $115.57 through false representation.

Magistrate Dumble dismissed the case, he holding that there was no evidence of false pretences.

REPORT ON LOCAL LABOR

Industrial Accidents for Canada In October Were 344

Arthur J. Sharp, correspondent to the Labor Gazette, reports conditions of labor for Peterborough during the month of October as follows:

While there has been no unusual activity in any department, during the month, the situation was steady. There was a noticeable demand for unskilled labor, good wages being offered. The building trades continued active, favored by mild and weather. The Board of Education are making arrangements to build two new schools, at a cost of $85,000, and the city council is considering the building of a new city hall. The new power dam, at Auburn, is well on its way to completion; it is expected to be in running order before the end of the year. It will supply power for the Auburn woollen mills and the Peterborough Light & Power company. The George Matthews company is in a big packing merger, and the new company announces that it is its intention to extend its plants, and to enlarge both its domestic and export business. Business, both wholesale and retail, has been very active. There were no changes in the rates of wages or hours of labor during the month.

CONDITION OF LOCAL INDUSTRIES

Agriculture.—Farmers have been very busy, and fall ploughing was well advanced, the weather having been generally favorable. Milk dealers have advanced the price of milk, beginning with November 1, owing to the increased price of feed. The retail price will be 7 cents per quart for loose milk, and 8 cents for bottled milk.

eltport on Take TWo

Lumbering—Large gangs of men are leaving for the lumber camps. There are about 700 men in the wood, north of here, and the demand for more is keen. The wages this winter are from $25 to $32 per month.

Manufacturing — Manufacturers were generally active during the month.

Railroad Construction — The Canadian Pacific Railway Company has the entire steel laid on its new line from Coldwater to the Toronto-Ottawa line at Bethany. It will take two months or more to complete the ballasting of this new line.

CONDITION OF PARTICULAR TRADES

The building trades were also busy. Iron moulders were busy up to the latter part of the month. Machinists, engineers and electric workers were active. Linemen were in demand. Metal polishers and brassworkers were busy. The wood working trades were well employed. Printing and allied trades had an active month. Journeymen tailors and garment workers were busy. Bakers and confectioners were active. Butchers and meat cutters had plenty of work. Leather workers were fairly well employed. Carpet weavers reported trade quiet. Railway and street railway employes were active. Teamsters, express men steamboat men and freight handlers had active employment. Unskilled labour was in active demand at good wages.

ACCIDENT LIST

Industrial accidents occuring to 344 individual work people in Canada during the month of October, 1911, were reported to the Department of Labour. Of these, 101 were fatal and 234, resulted in serious injuries. In addition seven fatal accidents were reported as having taken place prior to the beginning of the month, information not having been received by the Department before October, 1911.

CROSSED RICE LAKE

A remarkable event took place Saturday morning when two Hiawatha Indians skated across Rice Lake. STRUGGLES OF GENIUS.

Professor Who Addressed Envelopes at 60 Cent Per Thousand.

In the annals of literature are to be found many poignant stories of struggles for existence on the part of men whose writings ultimately made their names household words, but it is doubtful if any author had a more uphill fight than the late Prof. John Churton Collins, who was professor of Literature in Birmingham University in 1908, when he met with a tragic death in a ditch on a farm at Lowestoft. The professor had been [illegible] latives to ease pain, and was supposed to have slipped into the water when unconscious.

A striking description of the professor's hard life is contained in the story of his career, written by his son, L. G. Collins, and published by John Lane.

When he was leaving Oxford, the professor wandered into St. Giles' Church and went up to the Bible lying on the lectern, opened it, and put his finger at random on a passage on the page. It read: "Arise, go into the city and it shall be told thee what thou must do." Shortly afterwards he came penniless to London, where, for a time he addressed envelopes at 60 cents per thousand.

When he obtained a recognized position as journalist, lecturer and professor, he was always haunted with the thought of his health or his work failing. He toiled for fourteen hours a day, and seemed never able to take a rest.

Depression was his bane; all his life he suffered from this mysterious malady, which, it is said, was purely physical, and was no doubt due to the excessive mental strain. His tragic end may have been due indirectly to the wearing out of his nervous force.

The story of his life is full of interesting gossip. His son tells how Princess May (the present Queen), listened to the professor's lectures at Richmond, and how the late Duchess of Teck was much taken by a well-known couplet from Spenser, he quoted:

Sleep after toyle, port after stormie seas,
Ease after warre, death after life does greatly please.

The Queen, in a letter, says she "well remembers the incident of the quotation."

An Army Sculptor.

Captain Adrian Jones, the well-known sculptor, whose great bronze quadriga, weighing about 38 tons, is shortly to surmount the Wellington Arch at the top of Constitution Hill, in London, was for many years in the army as a veterinary surgeon.

Captain Jones has given years of work to this chariot group, which London will owe to the munificence of Lord Michelham. He is probably the only living sculptor who understands the horse from tail-tip to nostrils. Of his capacity as a sculptor, the late General Sir Redvers Buller—whose famous Exeter statue was the work of Captain Jones—had the highest opinion. When asked by the Devonians if he could suggest any sculptor to whom his equestrian statue should be entrusted he at once replied emphatically, "Yes, Adrian Jones, for he is only sculptor I know of who understands a horse, and is likely to model one properly."

Captain Jones served many years in the army before he had sufficient confidence in himself to discard the sabre for the clay. Throughout his career in the service he practiced assiduously at both painting and sculpture, and still wore spurs when, in 1883, he made a modified sensation at the Royal Academy with his first exhibit.

In Wildest India.

Lord Hindlip, who is one of Britain's richest peers, has compressed a good deal of adventure into the thirty-four years which he completed recently. He has traveled pretty nearly all over the world, made some notable sporting tours in Abyssinia and the White Nile country, has done exploration work in Central Africa, and has been after big game in some of the wildest jungles of India.

While Lord Brassey was Governor of Victoria, Australia, he acted as his aide-de-camp and took part in the South African war, during which he was present at the relief of Mafeking. Lady Hindlip was Miss Agatha Thynne, a kinswoman of Lord Bath, and since her marriage she has inherited a very large fortune from the late Mr. Charles Ellis. Lady Hindlip has won much praise as an amateur actress, and, like her husband, she is devoted to big game hunting. She is said to be the only lady in society who has shot a giraffe.—Ideas.

Tees Transporter Bridge.

Prince Arthur of Connaught opened the great transporter bridge which has been constructed by the Middlesbrough County Borough to facilitate traffic across the Tees between the city and the adjoining county of Durham.

The total length of the bridge and approach span is 850 feet, the span across the water between the centre of the towers being 570 feet, while the extreme height of the bridge from high water to the top of the main posts of the cantilever girders is 225 feet. The traveling car will complete the journey from shore to shore under two minutes and can accommodate between 500 and 600 passengers and six vehicles. It is the third transporter bridge in Great Britain.

Murdering Shakespeare.

What, we wonder, would happen to the London manager nowadays who should dare to put on the stage such a version of a Shakespearean tragedy as was played in Ireland over a hundred years ago? Mrs. Earle in her book, "Memoirs and Memories," gives a Dublin playbill of 1793 which is well worth quoting.

The play was "the tragedy of 'Hamlet,' originally written and composed by the celebrated Dan Hayes of Limerick and inserted in Shakespeare's works." The title role is taken by a gentleman "who between the acts will perform several solos on the patent bagpipes which performs two tunes at the same time."

CRITICISM UNFOUNDED

Toronto Saturday Night Takes Back Statements

The Independent Real Estate Company in which Mr. H. P. Kennedy and other Peterborough people are interested, was criticized in the Saturday Night of a week ago, for making a mis-statement in an advertisement in reference to an Edmonton sub-division. This week Saturday Night acknowledges its mistake, the company having shown its statement to be entirely correct, and there being no misrepresentation whatever.

The Saturday Night makes this correction;

MIXED BABIES UP.

The name Industrial Centre originally utilized by the Independent Real Estate Company of 46 Victoria street, Toronto, in advertising its Edmonton sub-division (this corporation has since assumed the title Industrial Heights), no doubt led the Land Commissioner of the Grand Trunk Pacific to reply to a query from Saturday Night as he did respecting the Independent Company's proposition, and quoted in last week's issue, which was in substance that the Grand Trunk Pacific did not intend building a station on "Industrial Centre." This statement is no doubt correct, but the original assumption of the name "Central" the Independent Real Estate Company confounded the latter company and their Industrial Heights proposition with Industrial Centre, which is one and one-half miles to the north-west.

So it turns out that the G. U. Ryley, Land Commissioner of the Grand Grand Trunk Pacific, and Saturday Night, both unwittingly did the Independent Real Estate Company an injustice. As a matter of fact, the Industrial Heights subdivision already has a railway ticket office on its property and the G.T.P. has promised increased shipping facilities as soon as development warrants.

Too many claimants for one name has its disadvantages, even in the real estate business.

Norwood Wants it!

The Dominion Government has acceded to the request of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario and the municipalities of the Trent valley for the leasing to the commission for power purposes of dams four and eight on the Peterborough and Lakefield and Rice Lake divisions of the Trent Canal. Most of the municipalities mentioned as parties to the request were down along the lake front. Lakefield and Peterborough were the only places included on this side of the river. Is it not about time for Norwood and other neighboring municipalities who have a right to share in the benefits of this power, to get busy. The question is at least worth looking into.—Norwood Register.

TO SHOW THE WORKINGMEN

Harvesters Co. in Chicago Adopts Educative Plan

Relation of Parts to the Whole Machine Demonstrated

Out of a desire of the corporation to assist its employes to a more intelligent understanding of their work, by demonstrating the relation of the certain part on which each employe works to the completed machine, the International Harvester Company, at the Deering Works, Chicago, Ill., is conducting this week an industrial exhibition.

The exhibition which was opened on Monday night, has met with considerable favor on the part of the employes 3,000 workers and their families having attended each night.

The exhibition is located on the third floor of the new building. Admission to the show is by a card given to each employe of the Harvester company. The card entitles the holder, besides admission to enter a guessing contest, for which cash prizes are offered and to refreshments.

Along either side of the large factory-room in which the exhibition is being held are ranged various implements which are manufactured by the company. In charge of each instrument there is an instructor who explains in detail the various parts and their workings. The exhibition extends from a demonstration of the manufacture of twine to models of the large harvesting machine.

The idea which encouraged officials of the company to try the experiment of the unique exhibition is the psychological principle which says that the relating of the pieces on which the person works to the completed machine changes the habit cells of the mind to thinking cells and increases the efficiency as well as the pleasure of the work.

Together with the educational features of the exhibition the company has provided liberally for the entertainment of the employes who are the company's guests for the evening. There is a vaudeville entertainment and a continuous motion-picture show.

The safety devices which have been installed throughout the factories of the Harvester company are demonstrated and their workings and efficacy also are shown.

BUILDING A MODEL FACTORY

The new building at the Deering works, which was formally opened with the industrial exhibition, has been pronounced by experts to be most improved factory building possible of construction at the present time. It was erected at a cost of $180 000.

Particular attention has been devoted toward the welfare of the employes. No combustible materials have been used in its construction and it is said to be proof against fire and explosion.

In the tests of the building made by the city inspection department the floor above the basement showed a carrying capacity of 500 pounds per square foot.

A system of forced ventilation and heating, such as is used on a smaller scale in the public schools of Chicago has been installed. The lighting and sanitary features are also of the most improved types.

The exhibition will close to-morrow night.

ROWELL AT WATERFORD.

Liberal Leader Discusses Power and 'Phones.

Waterford, Ont., Dec. 1.—At his meeting held in the Town Hall here last evening, N. W. Rowell devoted the greater portion of a long speech to the discussion of the public ownership of telephones. Evidently he had selected a subject which appealed most intimately to the farmers of North Norfolk, for his remarks were received with continued applause.

This was a progressive proposal, he said, a proposal in line with the general trend of progress on this matter throughout the world. Ontario, which once led all the other provinces, could not afford to come up at the end of the procession on a matter of such importance. It was time for her to take her old place in the van, and not permit every province in the Dominion to move ahead of her.

Already Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan have proved the wisdom of such a policy. It is a policy which every European country of importance adopted long ago by taking over the trunk lines, and one which is giving the utmost satisfaction in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

"Let me give you some figures from the western provinces which enjoy the operation of telephones under Government control." He said, "In 1906 there were in Manitoba 5,600 telephones, all bell instruments, in 1911, under Government control and at lessened cost to the subscribers there were 35,000 in use; in 1905, when Alberta decided to take over the management of her telephones, there were 850 in operation in the province. To-day there are 12,000. Saskatchewan had only 350 in 1905, and 3,500 in 1908 when the change was made there. By 1911 she had 15,000. There should be no cost to the Government and the people of Ontario should save the big profits now being made by the Bell Co."

WALK OUT IN BODY.

Unionists Resent Government Methods of Closure.

London, Dec. 1.—There was a remarkable scene in the House of Commons last night, when the Government applied the guillotine to 470 amendments in the report stage of the insurance bill.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, heatedly accused the Ministers of acting in obedience to the Redmondites in thus flouting Parliament in order to clear the road for home rule for Ireland. David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, as hotly replied that the Government was only following the example set by Unionist Governments.

The excitement was intense and the members faced the prospect of a division on each amendment when, on the Speaker putting the first amendment, the entire Opposition rose and made a dramatic exit from the chamber pursued by derisive Ministerial cheering. Then in a dreary montone the Speaker began formally putting the amendments and when he became fatigued the Deputy Speaker relieved him. The entire 470 amendments were adopted and in only a single case was the division challenged by the Laborites.

This concluded part one of the bill. The remaining parts will be guillotined to-day.

Sir William Grantham Dead.

London, Dec. 1.—Sir William Grantham, judge of the High Court of Justice, died yesterday of pneumonia. He was born in 1835, and after studying at King's College School, entered the legal profession. In 1874 he was returned to Parliament as Conservative member for the County of East Surrey which he represented until 1885. In the same year he was elected member for East Croydon, but was obliged to retire from political life in January, 1886, on his appointment as judge. He was then created a knight. Sir William visited Canada last year year and delivered public addresses in several cities including Toronto.

Opium Conference.

The Hague, Dec. 1.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Twelve nations will be represented by delegates at the international opium conference, which meets here to-day. These are the United States, Great Britain, China, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Persia, Portugal, Russia and Siam.

Bishop Charles H. Brent of the Episcopal Church in the Philippine Islands will preside over the discussions.

The conference is an outcome of the opium commission which assembled at Shanghai in February, 1909.

Port Huron Y.M.C.A. Fired.

Port Huron, Mich., Dec. 1.—Geo. Walker, aged 26 years is under arrest here charged with attempted arson in connection with fires at the railroad Y.M.C.A. building here on Nov. 20. Six fires have been started at the Y.M.C.A. building since last May, and five have occurred at the Evanston (Ill.) Y.M.C.A. building during the same period.

The police claim that Walker, who is a Grand Trunk Railway fireman, running between this city and Chicago, and who resides in Battle Creek, was in the respective cities at the time of the several fires. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned in the police court, and was held for examination in $1,000 bonds.

Want Right to Strike.

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—Railway conductors will ask Parliament to amend the industrial disputes act by removing what the men regard as oppressive provisions, notably the clause which deprives the men of the right to strike where an investigation is in prospect.

The conductors also want legislation calling for better equipment of trains, and limiting the length of trains.

The Legislative Committee of the conductors' organisation have elected J. Harvey Hall of Toronto as their legislative representative.

TEA WITH "HER MAJESTY."

It's the Least Formal of All Royal Entertainments, But Then—

Taking afternoon tea with Queen Mary is no joke, though those who are used to it say that one soon gets used to the little acts of formality which, in spite of its sociable origin, make this function a decided strain on the nerves of the uninitiated.

Guests are invited as a rule to come at 4.30 in the afternoon and they are expected to be punctual, for her Majesty likes all whom she has invited to be assembled when she enters the room. Tea is served usually in the beautiful boudoir in the Queen's personal apartment at Buckingham, though during the summer season the guests sometimes gather for refreshments in the gardens and then the function assumes a somewhat elaborate character.

When only a few friends of the Queen are present her Majesty sometimes presides at the tea-table and pours tea herself, but it is more usual for this to be done by a lady in waiting, while two other members of the household hand round the teacups, cakes and sandwiches. The palace servants are never called upon to wait during afternoon tea.

Sometimes the King joins the gathering, with one or two members of his household. The guests rise when the King enters, but do not remain standing until his Majesty is seated, as is strict etiquette at all other royal entertainments. The guests at afternoon tea after rising to greet the King at once seat themselves again.

At these exclusive entertainments the King and Queen and any other members of the royal family talk quite freely about the doings of the court and their own affairs. Often a guest at afternoon tea learns of a coming visit from a foreign monarch, or possibly the news is made public. Of course all such information is imparted in the strictest confidence.

No guest can take his or her departure while the King or Queen is present. Guests of royalty never bid their host or hostess good-bye in the ordinary manner. When the entertainment is over the Queen rises and bids good-bye to her guests.

When there are not many present their Majesties shake hands with each, and then the King and Queen leave the room, the guests standing while they do so. At the conclusion of a royal entertainment, by the way, a guest when taking his leave never thanks his host or hostess. If the King or Queen shakes hands with him he simply says "Good-bye, sir," or "madam."

Deceived the G. O. M.

One of the most interesting events of the theatrical season has been the return of Sir John Hare to the London stage. He played the part of an old man, as he has done so many times in the course of his career.

Sir John is sixty-seven years of age, but to most play-goers he has seemed to be a middle-aged man these 30 years or more. One of his earliest successes was the part of the old man in "Society." A friend met him one day and advised him to go and see the play, "for," said he "there's a clever old fellow named Hare playing in it."

Another time a young fellow, who called upon him and was granted an interview, went away and complained that "the old man was in bed and had sent his son to see him." It is recorded that Sir John's wonderful make-up in "A Pair of Spectacles" imposed upon Mr. Gladstone. The great statesman visiting at a friend's house soon after his visit to the play, became interested in a clean-shaven youthful-looking guest. In reply to his question, the host said that this was Mr. John Hare. "Indeed," said Mr. Gladstone, "was it his father I saw act in 'A Pair of Spectacles' the other night?"

Some Misers.

The recent case of an old woman at Reading, England, who slept against her front door to prevent its being opened at night, never had a fire even in the coldest weather, accepted food from her pitying neighbors, saying she had not a penny to bless herself with, while all the time she had gold and jewelry galore in jam jars, tea pots, cigar boxes, biscuit tins and odd corners of her dirty rooms, is not by any means a unique one. It has often had its counterpart both in fiction and in fact.

A short time ago, for instance, a woman was found dead at her home in Bath. She was 75 years old, had long lived alone, and had evidently died of starvation, for her body was in a most emaciated condition, yet her bank book showed that she had $500 to her credit.

No Trouble to Him.

Sir Reginald Wingate, who has returned to Egypt, has had one of the most interesting and picturesque careers in the British army. As a young man he possessed and profited by the gift of tongues. He is a most wonderful linguist, and has been known to say that there was no language to which he applied himself that he could not master in three months.

Having had staff employment in Egypt during Lord Wolseley's campaign, he was one of the little knot of youthful officers who banded themselves round Sir Evelyn Wood when he organized the Egyptian army. Nearly every one of these officers was destined to become famous. Lord Kitchener, Sir Archibald Hunter, and Sir Leslie Rundle are among the group.

The First Wheels.

Although it seems difficult to realize a world without wheels, these useful spheres, which have now become necessities was not used in England until comparatively recent times. It was not till the year 1568 that the very first carriage with wheels attached was made. This was built for and by the orders of Queen Elizabeth. The first public conveyance that plied for hire as a cab was not in use until 1625, while the ancestor of our dear old horse buses, the stagecoach, did not arrive on the streets till 1659. Who can tell how many years it will be before we can dispense with wheels altogether?—London Mail.

BIG OIL CO. DISSOLVED

Subsidiary Oil Firms Are Now Operating Singly.

New York, Dec. 1.—The career of the "oil trust" officially came to an end yesterday. The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, some times called the father of the trusts, and perhaps the most celebrated corporation in the world, will no longer control the affairs, as the holding company, of more than thirty corporations in various branches of the oil business.

Beginning this morning, these subsidiaries, which under the decree of the United States Supreme Court must conduct independently the various enterprises, will assume entire management of their own affairs.

The task of effecting dissolution was made less difficult by the fact that the subsidiary companies never lost their identity. They have retained their separate officers and board of directors, and to a large extent have conducted their own affairs from their home offices in whatever states they were. These companies, however, have had representation at 26 Broadway, the home of the New Jersey corporation, which exercised general direction over all their affairs. It is this connection which will be severed. The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey will continue to exist as it owns several large plants.

To each stockholder will be forwarded to-day his proportionate share of stock in each of the subsidiaries, so that in place of one issue of stock, he will have more than thirty.

The subsidiaries will continue to exist as heretofore, except that in cases where the same men have acted as officers or directors of more than one company, changes will be made which will avoid such duplication.

THE HORSE LAUGHED

Passersby at the G.T.R. station this morning were much amused at the spectacle of a man very much bespattered with molasses. In making a turn, the delivery truck of T. Kinnear Co. was overturned and the load of merchandise, including two barrels of molasses, flew in all directions. One of the barrels was broken and considerable of the contents went the direction of the luckless driver. The horse did not frighten but remained to join in the laughter.

RUTHERFORD BROS. ACCOUNT OF $300 NOT YET SETTLED

Property Committee Makes Double Barrelled Proposition to Contractors

Chairman Ald. Duncan introduced the matter of securing some needed supplies and fittings for the Public Library at the Property committee meeting last night. There is a balance left of the Carnegie fund, and it was moved that the accounts of the public library, up to date, be paid by the library board. Any balance that is left, after paying the accounts, will be used for purchasing the fittings desired at the library.

The matter of the library columns was reported on by City Solicitor Hall. Mr. Hall claims that all Rutherford Bros. asked was $300. Mr. Rutherford sent a letter through his solicitor saying they will sue the city unless the account is settled. Mr. Thomas Rutherford was present himself, and asked why the matter had dragged along for two years without being settled. He was of the opinion that the reason the account was not paid was owing to spite amongst the aldermen.

Ald. Graham wanted to know who was being hinted at, when the question of spite was brought up. Ald. Graham laid all the blame on Architect Blackwell and Belcher.

Mr. Chris. Kidd, who was also present, said he had done his best when building the pillars with the facilities at his disposal.

"The four columns are straight now, if you look at them from the sides. "It is only when you look at them from an angle that the lean is noticed," remarked Mr. Kidd.

Ald. Bradburn wanted to know why different brick had not been used by the contractors, as they stated that the brick they had used was unsatisfactory.

Mr. Kidd said that if the defect had not been pointed out by some person it would never have been noticed.

"I certainly won't take them down," said Mr. Kidd. "You can't make a decent job of them unless you take ten or twelve different radiuses of brick.

After considerable more haggling, the committee offered to Rutherford Bros. the $300 that had been held back, on condition that they cover the columns with Roman stone, or $150 in full payment of their account, they to take no further action in remedying the condition of the pillars.

This did not meet with the approval of Rutherford Bros., who figured that it would cost at least $150 to cover the pillars, and $150 is still due Mr. Bogue pending the settlement of the question.

No further action was taken and Rutherford Bros. will have a few days to think over the committee's proposition.

WEDDING BELLS

BILLINGS—PORTER

A quiet wedding was celebrated at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon at Dovercourt Road Presbyterian Church, in the presence of their immediate friends, when Miss Lillian Victoria Porter, youngest daughter of Mrs. John Porter, 377 Brock avenue, was united in marriage to Mr. Gresswell A. Billings, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Billings of Peterboro.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jas. Wilson, the young couple being unattended. The bride was attired in a travelling suit of gray, and wore a black picture hat.

MORAL REFORM AT NORWOOD

Mr. A. B. Cunningham to Speak at Methodist Church

Special Correspondence

Norwood, Nov. 30—Next Sunday, special services will be held in the Methodist church here in the interests of temperance and moral reform. Both services, morning and evening will be conducted by laymen of the church. Mr. A. B. Cunningham of Peterboro will conduct the morning service and Mr. Winters of Campbellford, will preach in the evening. The collections during the day will be devoted to the interests of the work throughout the country.

Mr. David Andrews of Asphodel, Independent candidate in the election campaign is working hard

Miss Evelyn Moffatt left on Saturday for Cuba, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Roy Pickens.

Mrs A. Armiston and Miss Bessie Rose of Havelock were in town on Monday.

Miss Chas. J. and Bruce Puffer, visited in Warkworth on Sunday.

SHOT RED FOX

Village Constable Jas. T. Johnston shot a fine specimen of red fox on Tuesday morning of this week, while out hunting a short distance west of the village.

Mr McBride of the sales department of the Peter Hamilton Company, Peterborough, is in Norwood, this week, assisting the local agent Mr. E. J. Laing.

The Norwood curling and skating rink is nearing completion and will be in good shape for the advent of the frost King.

The youth of the village have been enjoying skating on the small mill pond east of the village, for the past few days.

Mrs M. Nichol spent one day last week in Peterborough.

Mrs. Cuthbertson (nee Rosalie Jones) of Lethbridge, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Squire.

The members of the junior mission band of the Presbyterian church intend holding their annual bazaar in Miss Chandler's rooms, over Mr. Duffield's store, on Saturday, Dec. 9. Tea will be served from 4 o'clock.

Mr. W. Andrews, of Havelock, was in town on Tuesday.

Mrs. and Miss Butterfield went to Toronto last week, where they intend spending the winter.

Mrs. Wm. Spence visited friends in Warsaw last week.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Mills visited Havelock on Sunday.

Mr. C. W. Waters has returned from Toronto.

Up to the present time very little has been said in regard to the probable village council for 1912. The majority of the ratepayers of the village appear to be well pleased with the work of the council for the present year.

During the recent Dominion election campaign the village of Norwood added to its funds in the bank one hundred dollars derived from rent of hall to the two political parties. The revenue this year from the rent of the hall has been considerably in excess of the amount of the yearly payment on the debenture.

The patrons of the public library will welcome the news that several new volumes have been added and will be ready for distribution in a days. The volumes added to the library have been carefully selected and will be much appreciated by the members. Now would be a good time for new members to join and help along the good work being done by the board of management.

LINDSAY POLICE GET BAD MAN

Says He is Cousin of Jesse James' Murderer

There was a particularly bad man before His Worship P. M. Jackson this morning. The offender was captured at the G.T.R. station about 8 o'clock last evening. A phone message to Chief Chilton that a drunken rough was in the ladies' waiting room, brought the officer and his assistant to the station.

It is stated that the offender was none other than a cousin of the notorious Bob Ford, who shot Frank James a brother to the noted outlaw, Jesse. It took the united efforts of the two constables to land their charge underneath the fire hall. The services of a dray man was required upon which the desperado was loaded and held down by the police officials until landed behind the bars.

During his trip down Williams st., oaths and imprecations were hurled against Chief Chilton, and a threat that he would kill the chief if he had to remain around for one year to do so was made.

It may be in the memory of many citizens the doings of this man about four months ago, and of his imprisonment on a charge of drunkenness. Through the humane feeling of a philanthropic gentleman of this town, who paid his fine, and for which he gave in return ingratitude he was granted his freedom, after lingering in jail for some days. Now he returns again and prepares to sweep everything high wide and crooked until apprehended.

This morning he was led from the cell by Chief Chilton with a handcuff on one wrist to the police office. He was asked to pay a fine of $50 or remain six months in the central prison. He will go to the latter place, and our chief may call his life his own for the next six months so far as this outlaw is concerned.

NO SALE OF ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Big Edifice at Montreal to be Held by Methodists

Montreal Witness

St. James' Methodist church will not be sold. Although no final official decision has been made upon the question of the proposed sale to Mr. J. C. McGreevy, it is the growing conviction of almost every official and member of that congregation, that St. James' will not be disposed of.

Even those who were most anxious to accept the $2,000,000 offer when it was made, doubt the wisdom of doing so since the conditions of the offer have become public. A prominent official of the church informed a 'Witness' reporter this morning that the congregation would never accept a few hundred thousand dollars on the purchase price, and a mortgage securing the balance.

A $2,000,000 cash offer might be accepted, but that was the only one that would be considered favorable. Then too, there was a feeling in many quarters that only an exceptional offer would justify the sale of the property after the efforts the whole denomination and many of other communions had made a few years ago to save St. James'. He did not think, he said, that there was any prospect of the big church being sold.

Q. What is Astigmatism of the eye?
A. Astigmatism is an uneven curvature of the eye and causes double focus. As the eye always strives for clear vision this double focus annoys the brain and causes headache and nervousness. We make lenses called cylinders to correct astigmatism.

Q. What causes double vision?
A. Double vision is caused by the eyes not being in line, that is, one may turn up or have a tendency to do so, or both may turn in; a weak muscular system is back of it all.

We would be pleased to ave you call and let us explain how such conditions can be relieved with glasses.

JAMES M'NAMARA CONFESSES TO BLOWING UP THE BUILDING

Sensational Denouement to the Famous Trial in Los Angeles—End of Labor Unionism is Claimed.

Los Angeles, Dec. 2.—James B. McNamara pleaded guilty last evening of murder in the first degree in connection with the death of Charles J. Haggerty, a victim of The Los Angeles Times' explosion and fire.

They will be sentenced next Tuesday, Dec. 5.

James B. McNamara probably will get life imprisonment. John J. McNamara, it was rumored, will get 14 years. Each pleaded guilty of the charge on which he was extradited from Indianapolis.

Within 15 minutes after court opened yesterday afternoon one of the greatest criminal trials of modern times had ended so abruptly that many of those supposedly in the heart of the matter did not know it was going to happen.

The prisoners were taken back to jail, Judge Walter Bordwell retired to his chambers and opposing counsel went to their rooms.

"The McNamaras have pleaded guilty because they are guilty," was District Attorney John D. Fredericks' crisp comment.

"If I had seen any way out of it, we would not have done it," said Attorney Clarence S. Darrow after court. "We have had it under consideration since a week ago Monday."

So far as has been learned less than a dozen men knew when court opened what was going to happen.

Judge Bordwell did not betray his information, but chatted with the reporters about the possibility of night sessions. Malcolm McLaren, representative of the detective agency which brought about the arrests, was denying a report that McManigal had refused to confess.

Fredericks brought his wife to court, and G. Ray Horton, W. Joseph Ford and S. L. Vermilya, his deputies, knew what was coming, as did counsel for the defence and for the prisoners. Samuel L. Brown, chief of the investigation for the state, and Larry M. Sullivan, an investigator for the defence. The jury was discharged at 3.10 p.m.

The eight sworn jurors and two talesmen passed for cause were brought to the courtroom at 3.05 to be discharged.

"The case," said Judge Bordwell, addressing them, "which you will not try, has come to an end. The defendant has pleaded guilty, so your valuable services will not be required."

The judge smiled, and some members of the jury applauded.

"I want to tell you that I am absolutely confident that you men would have given this man a fair and impartial trial."

John J. McNamara entered court unhandcuffed and took a seat a few feet away from his brother. Attorney James Scott sat with his arms around the prisoner. John J. was smiling and chewing gum.

Attorney Davis of the defence began: "After long consideration, your honor, we have concluded to withdraw the plea of guilty against James B. and would like to have John J. tried."

District Attorney Fredericks rose and the prisoner did likewise.

"You have been arraigned, Mr. Jas. B. McNamara," said Fredericks, "and have heretofore entered a plea of not guilty."

"Did you answer guilty?"

"Yes," answered James B. McNamara.

"Do you wish now to plead against this indictment charging you with murder?"

"Yes."

"Guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty."

"Does the court now take up the other case against John J."

"Yes," replied the court.

The date for John J. McNamara's trial was placed at Dec. 5, and District Attorney Fredericks asked John J. to plead.

He did not plead with reference to the indictment against him in connection with The Los Angeles Times' explosion, but pleaded guilty to the indictment charging him with the explosion of the Llewellyn Iron Works.

Attorney Darrow stood around the room after court adjourned and newspapermen crowded around him.

"I am glad it's over with," said Darrow with a sigh. "We have been working on this for two weeks, and it has been the greatest strain of my life."

"The Times building was blown up by James B. McNamara with nitroglycerine to be sure, but the bomb touched off the gas, and gas really did it," said Mr. Darrow.

"Did you have to wrestle hard with the McNamara brothers to get that admission?" he was asked.

"Somewhat, but the facts have been overwhelming. Every loophole was gathered in by the state. As far as I am concerned, I felt that sooner or later it had to come. Things were happening in which big people were interested. The movement was impelling. They wanted the matter cleared up and feared further bloodshed unless we obliterated the incident from Los Angeles at once.

"Of course, I feel I have helped the McNamaras by getting them to plead

BILLY MACLEAN TAKES THE WARPATH ON CORPORATIONS

Assails the Railway and Express Companies, and Urges Action—Nationalization of Utilities to be Investigated

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—"It is the grievances of the people and the rectification of those grievances within the limitations of the powers of this Parliament to which we should be directing our attention."

In these words W. F. Maclean (South York) criticized the debate on the address.

The great grievances of east as well as west, he said, were the excessive express rates, freight and passenger rates to which the people of Canada were subjected, as well as the urgent need of lower cable and telegraph rates and the control of the capitalization of companies.

The remedy for excessive express charges was the establishment of a parcel post system by the Postmaster-General following the lead set by the most progressive European countries.

State competition, he declared, was the only way to give relief where great private corporations exercised public functions.

Canada, he argued, should establish a state-owned cable to England. It was sound Imperial policy and would bring the cable monopoly to its knees and cut rates in two. Control of land telegraph lines by the Postoffice Department would follow as a necessary completion of the system.

Quite a brisk discussion took place on the announcement of the intention of the Government to transfer the annuities service to the Postoffice Department and dispense with lecturers.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster argued that it would mean a more widespread and efficient service at a minimum of cost.

The House passed the remaining estimates for 1911-12, and a supply bill was put through, all three readings, and passed.

Announcement was made that the House would adjourn on Dec. 7 (Thursday), and meet again on Jan. 9, but Mr. Borden agreed to consider the request of several members to postpone the latter date to Jan. 10.

Joseph Armstrong of East Lambton has given notice of a resolution calling for the appointment of a commission "to investigate the systems of national telegraphs and telephones, wireless telegraphs and cable, also postal conditions, laws and regulations, parcel post, means of collecting and distributing mails, with a view to submitting such data and information to the Postoffice Department as would help to improve existing conditions in all the above, and to further enquire into postal facilities in rural districts in other countries, in order that a better system of free rural mail delivery may be inaugurated."

PREMIER AT LINDSAY TELLS HIS CRITICS PLAIN TRUTHS

Sir James Very Emphatic on the Questions of the Day—Says He Doesn't Dodge Issues.

Lindsay, Dec. 2.—Sir James Whitney struck out right and left at his political opponents last night with sarcasm, and incidentally reviewed the Government's record, and its attitude on the present political issues.

"I have come to the conclusion definitely," said Sir James, "that a public man who hesitates to give his opinion on public questions in a public fool. A man who attempts to hoodwink the people of Ontario to-day will not succeed, and he ought not to succeed."

The chair was occupied by Wm. Shannon, president of the West Victoria Liberal-Conservative Association. Dr. A. E. Vrooman, the candidate from West Victoria for the Legislature, was one of the speakers.

Sir James, in his opening remarks referred to the loss the whole province has sustained in the death of the late member for West Victoria, S. J. Fox.

With regard to the attitude of his opponents the Premier said: "I'll say something about the Opposition and will say it sympathetically." (Laughter.) Charging Mr. Rowell with having supported iniquities backed by the Ross Government Sir James said: "Why did he do it? The good outstanding citizen that he is. If he does not answer that, I guarantee I'll ask it of him anyhow. Even now I am prepared to answer it for him, but I say 'sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof'."

As to Mr. Rowell's suggestion that the Dominion and Provincial Governments should not be of the same political party, he said: "The present Government has had a wonderful record, and the Government at Ottawa has not had time yet to have any record, so there's no harm done."

"The leader of the Opposition is a good citizen, there is no doubt of that, but he has a lot to learn."

Dr. Vrooman said he was proud to be a supporter of the present Government. The reason Sir James Whitney had such a big majority was because his Government was a good Government.

Urges Sir Edward Grey in Telegram to Russian Government

Special to the Review.

London, Dec. 2.—Sir Edward Grey, sent a long telegram to-day to the Russian government, urging a modification of the ultimatum to Persia.

MR. ROWELL IS ON DEFENSIVE

Says That Sir James is Catering to Extremes.

Quotes Ottawa Paper on Tax Reform.

Stratford, Dec. 2.—Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., spoke here last night in exposition of his platform, and in the interests of the Liberal candidate in this riding of North Perth, Mayor John Brown of Stratford. His address aroused great enthusiasm, and the hall was crowded.

"Do you want an ostrich for your Prime Minister?" asked Mr. Rowell, after quoting the editorial comment of The Ottawa Citizen, "the most influential Conservatve paper in eastern Ontario," on Sir James Whitney's attitude on tax reform. He asked whether they did not think it time to turn out the "ostrich," as Sir James had shown himself, on not only tax reform, but on education, the development of New Ontario, and other matters affecting the welfare of the province, and to put in somebody who would walk with head erect, and eyes open to see what the people want and give it to them. He earnestly urged the electors to place Ontario alongside the progressive western provinces, which had stopped the iniquitous taxation system that discouraged the improvement of property.

Mr. Rowell declared strongly for freeing the liquor license administration from political interference. The audience cheered when he claimed he was not side-stepping any of these issues, as a local paper charged.

Alluding to Hon. Mr. Hanna's intended visit here to-night, Mr. Rowell referred to articles in The Toronto News and The Mail and Empire about the time his policy for a Central Licensing Board was announced, saying the Government was going shortly to do that very thing, and then told how Sir James had said he did not authorize any such statement.

"Sir James is catering to two extremes," declared Mr. Rowell, with reference to the bilingual school question and the divergent views expressed by his Cabinet. Sir James is seeking to secure the votes of both, and he dare not make a clean-cut statement on the questions I have asked."

SOME FURTHER LIGHT

It is to be regretted that Hon. Adam Beck was unable to arrange a meeting for Peterborough before the provincial elections, in order to convince everyone beyond the possibility of a doubt, that "power for the people at cost" is a reality, and no myth. A public meeting addressed by Mr. Beck would do considerable to clear up the situation, and to lay low the strenuous efforts of Mr. Hall and his satellite organ to distort the facts and prejudice the public mind against the hydro-electric, even before the real plans of the commission are known.

We have this one authoritative statement on which Peterborough can bank: That the hydro-electric commission proposes to enter into the power business in the Trent valley, and that it proposes to spend about a million dollars, or perhaps more, to accomplish this end.

We have the knowledge that the hydro-electic system provides power and lighting to the people "at cost." That is, "the cost" consists of the cost of the generation and distribution of power, as borne by the commission, without fat profits to anyone. The people will pay for power and lighting enough to recoup the commission and the city for what charges there are in connection with the production and the delivering of the power, and no more. This is where the "power at cost" expression originates.

It is truly a system that is designed to take advantage of natural conditions for the benefit of the public alone. Of course, it might be that the cost of the scheme would be high, and the price for power would consequently be higher than if the original cost of production were lower. But of that, no one can judge until the estimates of the hydro-electric schemes are laid on the table, so to speak, for the consideration of the people. If the terms which the commission is able to make, are satisfactory—in that they provide a lower price than the one now charged by the private corporation, should not the city of Peterborough undertake to secure the advantage of that lower price? Not to do so would be ironical folly.

The Review desires to repeat what it said yesterday, and that is, in this power discussion, we believe that a good enough proposition can be advanced by the hydro-electric that it can be discussed purely on its business merits. Most workingmen are in favor of the idea of the public ownership and operation of utilities and especially of the "white coal," on which the industries of the land so much depend to-day. We are not figuring for to-day alone in this matter. We are not calculating alone on what benefit there may accrue to ourselves this year or next year, but we must regard the promise of public ownership at cost as a bridge to future prosperity.

Shall we want it said twenty-five years from now, when Peterborough is perhaps twice its present size, and with many times its present capacity for power consumption, that we turned down the only chance we ever had to get competition in power matters? Surely the people will not be so short-sighted as to wish to turn down, unheard and unexamined, the public spirited effort to help us; to make sure that we have the opportunity to regulate the prices for power and lighting, based on the cost of production.

Mr. Hall and the Examiner have started right in to distort and befog the situation as much as possible. They have an axe to grind, both political and financial. They are not out to benefit the people. Mr. Hall, who pretends to love the workingman so much—when it comes to a question of merely drawing up acts on paper—does not extend his love so far that he would like to help to introduce power competition into Peterborough, to give to the workingmen who have electric lighting in their homes, cheaper prices. Neither is he willing that the boon of cheaper power shall be extended through the hydro-electric to manufacturers who may locate here, and thus benefit the workingmen of the city and the city's business at large.

"Oh no," says Mr. Hall, "if they want their electric power, they must go to the corporation in which I am financially interested to get it. That is good business for ME. The workmen be hanged, when it costs me some money to help them."

The hydro-electric commission has a message and a mission for Peterborough. Peterborough has complained long enough and consistently enough that it could get no relief in power matters. Now that some is quickly approaching there are cliques in Peterborough actively working to head it off. Mr. Hall is one. A vote for Hall is a vote for obstruction to the hydro-electric at every turn. A vote for Peck is a vote for the encouragement of the hydro-electric commission to do its best for Peterborough in the way of advancing a proposition for power at cost for us to consider.

Should Peck or Hall get the vote of the loyal Peterborough man, who wants to end monopoly in such so important matter as power and lighting?

CONNAUGHT AT HAMILTON

Governor General Gets Enthusiastic Welcome

Civic Banquet is Held at the Royal Hotel

Hamilton, Dec. 2—The visit of Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught was brought to a brilliant close last evening by the public reception at the court house.

About 1,500 invitations had been issued for the function, and the large court room was completely filled by Hamilton citizens. Only about 500 people chose to be presented to the royal couple, however, and these made their bows and curtesies in 57 varieties in less than half an hour.

Her Royal Highness was evidently fatigued by the day's activities, but the duke bowed and smiled, while the presentations were being made as if he enjoyed the proceedings.

The military formed a large portion of the assemblage, and the reception was largely a dress affair. All classes were present, however, and it may be said those who were presented to the royal couple were representative people. The civic banquet at the Royal Hotel early in the evening was attended by 200 guests, and was a brilliant success.

The various functions in connection with the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught were carried off smoothly, and no trouble of any kind was experienced. The police under the direction of Chief Smith and Deputy Chief Whatley handled the crowd in a most satisfactory manner.

Ald. Dr. Davey and the reception committee carried out the program, which had been arranged for the entertainment of the royal visitors, without a hitch, and deserve a great deal of credit for the thorough manner in which the details of the entertainment were looked after. The royal couple left the city at 11.30 last night on their return trip to Ottawa.

Princess Pat Sails.

London, Dec. 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—An interested crowd, mostly of ladies, witnessed the departure of Princess Patricia of Connaught at Euston station yesterday. Prince Arthur and Princess Marie Louise, Earl Grey and the Hon. Dudley Ward, representing the Colonial Office, Lord Strathcona Countess Wemyess and Lady Muriel Page were there.

The princess is taking many Christmas presents and a bob sleigh for her own use.

Liverpool, Dec. 2.—Countess Derby and the Lady Mayoress met the Princess Patricia here and conducted her to the boat.

Germany's Big Naval Plans.

Berlin, Dec. 2.—A news agency, which is sometimes well informed, states that an increase of the German navy has been decided upon.

It says that the Government is determined to spend $90,000,000 on the augmentation of its fleet, which will be spread over six years.

Official circles maintain silence.

TUESDAY NIGHT

The first big Mass Meeting of the campaign will be held on Tuesday night in the Opera House. Hon. A. B. Morine, Mr. Peck and others will address the electors on the issues of the campaign. Ladies invited.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

MR. PECK'S REPLY

To the Editor of the Review.

My attention has been directed to three letters, which have appeared in the Examiner during the present week. As they contain personal reference to myself may I ask you to publish this brief reply, a copy of which has been forwarded to the Examiner:

1—"Anxious Parent," suggests that I have a financial interest in a brewery, meaning, I presume, the Calcutt Brewing company. This is not correct. I am solicitor for the company, and am holder of one share of stock (value $100), but I hold this merely as a trustee for another party, and I have no personal financial interest in the company.

2—"E.W.H." refers to my acting as arbitrator between the printers and employers some years ago. The other arbitrators were Mr. Robert McGregor and Mr T. F. Matthews. We then went into the matter thoroughly, collecting information as to rates of wages in other localities, and finally agreed upon a basis of settlement, giving substantial increase in wages to the printers. The award, if it is available, should establish this. We all, including Mr. McGregor, who represented the printers, signed the award, and I had the impression until quite recently, that Mr. McGregor was satisfied that it was a fair one. If he were not satisfied with it why did he sign it?

3.—"Consistency" endeavors to stir up a feeling of the Sons of England against me, because I am not now a member of the order. I was a member of the order for many years. I held the office of secretary for some time and was afterwards president, but of late years demands upon my time have prevented me from attending the meetings or assisting to further its objects, and having no need for the benefits I concluded to sever my connection as a financial member. These are the only reasons why I am not now a member. The Society is a very worthy one, and I shall always feel interested in its progress.

Yours, truly,

E. A. PECK.

WELCOMED AT BOMBAY

King and Queen Are Accorded Splendid Reception

Special to the Review.

Bombay, Dec. 2.—The King and Queen landed from the Medina to-day amid thunderous salutes from the forts and warships. After being welcomed by the Governor of Bombay and a host of brilliantly uniformed officers, their majesties drove through the city and their reception by the native populace was very gratifying.

NOMINATIONS MAY BE MADE

Liberals May Get Material for Some Vacant Seats

Special To The Review.

Toronto, Dec. 2—Fred. C. Inwood, the Liberal organiser, stated to-day that opposition candidates would be nominated on Monday, in perhaps half of the twenty-eight constituencies, in which as yet no Liberals have been named.

PROBABILITIES

Fresh northwestly winds fair with a little lower temperature to-day and on Sunday.

St. John's Notices

The officers of St. John's church announce that after the present and until further notice the large bell will be rung on Sundays from 10.50 to 11 a.m., and from 6.50 to 7 p.m.. In both cases the bell ringing is to be preceded by about ten minutes chiming. The bell will also be rung an hour before both services.

EDUCATIONAL TEST FOR THEM

Plan of Dealing With Oriental Question

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—The British Columbia members are advocating that the Government adopt the Natal act as the best method of handling the Oriental problem. The Natal act provides for an educational test; and calls for the immigrant to be able to read or write in any European language. The act was passed once by British Columbia Legislature, but was disallowed as outside of its province.

The deputation of Hindus who are in Ottawa asking that their wives be admitted to Canada and that the present restrictions be abolished, will hold their final conference with the Minister of Interior to-day. It is understood that the Minister of the Interior takes the stand that it is only human they should be allowed to have their wives and children enter. Particularly as the Sikhs are British subjects and old British soldiers. They will be permitted to enter under strict regulations. The present restrictions as to immigration, however, will not be changed. The Government will likely take the whole question up with the Imperial authorities.

LUNG TROUBLE

Mrs. Biny Brown, of Tatamagouche, N.S., Was Cured by Catarrhozone of Lung Trouble and Catarrh, After Hundreds of Other Remedies Failed

If your lungs are weak; if there is consumption in your family; if Colds, Catarrh, and Bronchitis bother you, be sure to use Catarrhozone. It is especially adapted for these diseases and cures every time.

Mrs. Brown took cough mixtures, but they made her sick. Then she used an atomizer but after resorting without benefit to poultices, she tried Catarrhozone.

"I used Catarrhozone Inhaler," writes Mrs. Brown, "five minutes every hour, and soon recognized that it was going to cure me. I could feel the soothing medicated air spreading through the air passages of the throat, and it touched the sore spots in the lungs that other remedies failed to reach. Catarrhozone seemed to go just where it was needed most, and soon put a stop to my cough. It restored me to perfect health, and I am convinced that no cough, cold, or catarrh can exist if Catarrhozone is used."

No treatment is so clean, so pleasant, so certain to cure as Catarrhozone. By means of the Inhaler, the local symptoms, such as coughing, inflammation and congestion are speedily corrected. Ferrozone tablets which are taken after each meal purify and cleanse the blood of all poisons and build up and strengthen the system.

This local and constitutional treatment is always effective, and cures cases that have been given up as hopeless. Money can't buy or produce anything better, and to get cured it is absolutely necessary to use Catarrhozone.

EDUCATIONAL REFORMS

The educational reforms that the Whitney government has carried out in its seven years of office have been very notable. Those who say that the government has existed seven years without doing anything, are wilfully ignoring the record of the administration, which contains more useful and practical legislation in the various departments in seven years than the Ross government put through in seventeen.

When the Whitney government went into power, it was pledged to two or three reforms. One of these was to secure efficiency in the public schools, whereat about ninety per cent of the children of the province begin and end their school education. Another pledge was to break up the school book ring that had control and a monopoly of the publishing of the school books of the province. And Whitney was pledged to place the provincial university on a sound basis financially, and to secure for teachers higher salaries and a better training, and a right to have a voice on educational matters, with the government.

How have these pledges been carried out? Everyone has been kept. The course of the study in both public and high schools has been brought up to date, and carefully adapted to the necessities of the various arts of the province. The schools have been greatly improved, through stricter departmental regulations, in efficiency and equipment. The school book ring has gone, as everyone knows.

The provincial university is now prosperous to the highest degree. Its board of governors has been chosen irrespective of politics, from the ranks of Conservatives and Reformers alike, and it to-day has one of the largest student rolls on the continent. The faculty has been encouraged and strengthened, until the university is one of which the province may justly feel proud as a provincial institution.

But while higher education has received considerable attention, with gratifying results, the primary schools have not been at all neglected. In fact, the primary schools where the great mass of Canadians receive their education, are the most potent educational force in the Dominion, and it is absolutely essential that they be kept at as high a standard as possible.

In 1905 the legislative grant for the primary schools amounted to $[illegible], and in 1911 it amounted to $493,800. Surely this tremendous increase is not to be regarded as evidence of neglect of the interest of the rural schools?

And the Whitney government has assisted in supplementing the salaries of the teachers in some of the poorer districts, thus raising the standard of education materially. The increase in the school grants cannot be more emphatically demonstrated than by this table—

Rural schools	$128,000	$484,000
Urban schools	$80,000	$190,000
Assisted schools	$5,000	$3,800
Districts schools ..	45,000	91,200

ONTARIO'S TIMBER CUT

Ontario's timber cut for the past year totalled one-third the whole cut of the Dominion. Eighty-five per cent of the red was ours, along with about fifty per cent of the hemlock cut. The value of the total cut was over thirty millions.

It is splendid to know that this province is so wealthy in timber resources, but it may easily be to our great disadvantage to get the information in this particular way. Only if we are conserving sufficiently to make up for the loss of each annual cut is the information stated above something worth boasting about.

The Whitney government has done considerable in this direction and to-day Ontario's forest wealth is much better protected than ever before, but all has not been done that should or must be done to make the margin of absolute safety what it should be. In this connection it is pleasing to know that Premier Whitney has selected as successor to Hon. Frank Cochrane a gentleman so well acquainted with the needs of the north and and so capable to plan for those needs. May the time never come when it shall be said of Ontario that she cut herself out of her boundless heritage of forest lands.—Hamilton Spectator.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Peck and people's power at cost.

Mr. Hall shows some versatility in his efforts to mislead the public.

Peck, Whitney, and seven years without a scandal, and seven years of progressive, forward policy in every department.

Will the people of Peterborough listen to the voice of the cheap power obstructors, or will they vote for the Whitney government and a million dollars on the Trent canal system.

Go to the big Conservative rally to-night, and hear the interesting story of the Whitney government's fine administration. It may be that something extra interesting of a local nature, will be sprung.

The constructive program of the Whitney government has been so continuous and extensive that one naturally imagines that the people at large must acquainted with it. The people are well satisfied with Whitney and his work. There is no doubt of that.

Mr. Hall should tell the electors that there are about thirty Liberal seats going by acclamation to the Conservatives in this election. What does that indicate? There were only seven acclamations in the election of 1908, when Whitney got his 68 majority.

Power for the people at cost is no myth. Let that be clear. There is no profit for anyone in the hydro-electric scheme except for the public. It is run by the hydro-electric commission for the benefit of the public, first, last and always. Whatever it costs the commission to generate and deliver, will be the price which the people will be asked to pay for it.

One of Peterborough's greatest assets should be its proximity to a magnificent waterway, that yields or is capable of yielding 43,000 horse power of electrical energy. And what does Peterborough get out of this? Merely the pleasure of being served with power by a corporation that practically has had a monopoly of all these valuable public rights.

THEY MUST "KEEP UP"

This is the Lot of Most Women in Spite of Aching Backs, Dizzy Spells, Etc.

Mr. Edward Calwood of 123 S. Harold Street, Fort William, Ont., says—"I suffered with dull, miserable pains, soreness across my back and in my sides for months. They would catch me so badly at times that I could scarcely move around. I would have dizzy spells, and altogether felt generally run down. After using a number of remedies without finding relief, I learned of Booth's Kidney Pills, and found them an excellent remedy. They not only relieved me of the miserable pains and soreness in my back but cured me of my kidney trouble."

Booth's Kidney Pills are the best friend a woman has: guaranteed by the proprietors they are a safe remedy. Sold by all druggists and dealers 50c. If you know of a sufferer who should try these pills, advise them to send to the R. T. Booth Co. Ltd. Fort Erie, Ont., for a free box.

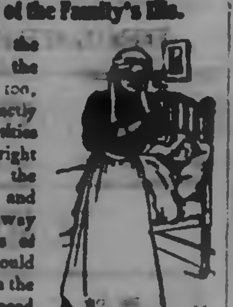
Lieut. Montagu "Cashiered."

London, Dec. 2.—The commission of Herbert Montagu as a second lieutenant of the Fifth Battalion of the Royal Fusiliers, was cancelled in last night's issue of The London Gazette, his action in joining the Turkish forces in Tripoli being adjudged a breach of neutrality.

Lieut. Montagu sent a report to the English newspapers that the Italian soldiers had been guilty of horrible atrocities toward native women and children, of whom he declared many hundreds had been mutilated beyond recognition.

THE HOME PHYSICIAN

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cure Most of the Family's Ills.



This Little One is Mother's Stand-by.

Perhaps if the children, and the "grown-ups" too, always ate exactly the right quantities of exactly the right things, at just the proper times, and in every other way obeyed the rules of health, there would be no sickness in the family, and no need of medicine.

But they never have and probably never will, so in every family there are sure to be more or less frequent attacks of sick headache, biliousness, indigestion, constipation, and kidney and liver troubles, and occasionally some one is "sick in bed".

It is worth a good deal to the mother, then, to have on hand that perfectly safe and reliable remedy for these ills —

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

They invigorate those organs which cleanse the body of waste and impurities, regulating the bowels, stimulating the kidneys and opening the pores of the skin.

These Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cure the common ailments and keep the family healthy. This they have been doing for over half a century in every part of the world.

Maine Explosion External.

Havana, Dec 2.—The board of survey which has been engaged with the raising of the battleship Maine has finished its inspection of the ill-fated vessel.

There is scant doubt that the results of the investigation will prove fully corroborative of the finding of the Sampson board of inquiry that the destruction of the Maine was due primarily to an extraneous explosion, succeeded by partial explosions of the forward magazine.

Tried to Emulate Wallingford.

Lindsay, Dec. 2.—Harry Malcolm Graham, the promoter of a fake electric trolley line from Port Hope to Orillia, who secured the earnings of several of the young men under his employ and married a young lady here was yesterday morning sentenced to Kingston Penitentiary by Magistrate Jackson for a term of three years.

CURED HIS WIFE SO HE TRIED THEM

Leon Sergent Found New Health in Dodd's Kidney Pills

Suffered With His Kidneys and Was very feeble, but now he is Feeling Fine.

Saint Walburg, Sask., Dec. 1 (Special)—One healthy, happy family in this neighborhood are always ready to speak a good word for Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are Mr. and Mrs. Leon Sergent, and here is the reason in Mr Sergent's own words.

"I suffered with my Kidneys and I was very feeble. My urine was thick and had a brick-dust sediment. As Dodd's Kidney Pills had already cured my wife I brought three boxes. Now my urine is normal and I feel fine.

It is statements such as these that give Dodd's Kidney Pills their popularity. They are no cure-all. They simply cure diseased kidneys and the ills that come from diseased Kidneys. But no matter what neighborhood you visit you find some man or woman who has been sick and in pain and has been cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. For a score of years this work has been going on and to-day in every part of Canada Dodd's Kidney Pills are known as the one sure cure for Kidney Disease, Urinary Troubles Backache, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Diabetes and Bright's Disease.

Wingham Was Flooded.

London, Dec. 2.—Much damage to property was caused at Wingham yesterday morning when tons of ice, jamming at the gateway that had been closed in the race-way and electric light station, made a dam, flooding the lower part of the town.

The first intimation the citizens had that anything was wrong came about three o'clock, when the lights went out. A general alarm was given and people got up to find water pouring into their cellars. The streets were filled with chickens and vegetables from the fields and all sorts of produce.

As soon as possible the ice was freed and the water diverted into the river again. Many actions for damages are threatened against the town.

Strikebreakers Poisoned?

New York, Dec. 2.—Rumors that striking garbage men from the New York street cleaning department are attempting to poison the food served to strikebreakers by the city, started a panic among the men employed in one of the up-town stations yesterday. The rumors found some foundation in the sudden death, at Bellevue hospital, of one of the strikebreakers.

Several other strikebreakers are said to be suffering from stomach trouble of unusual character.

Is U. S. Steel a Law-Breaker?

New York, Dec. 2.—The U. S. Steel Corporation joins with Attorney-General Wickersham in a desire to know if it is violating or has violated the anti-Sherman trust law and to that end will aid in expediting the Government's dissolution suit against it.

A leading official of the U. S. Steel Corporation so declared yesterday afternoon while discussing the next step in the case, which will be taken.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—With the world's wheat crop estimated at 104,000,000 bushels less than last year, the market for the cereal to-day took a decided upward twist. Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 1.—There continues to be a good demand from the continent for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat and the prices bid in some instances showed a further advance of 1½d per quarter. There was also an improved demand from the United Kingdom and bids from London for No. 3 northern showed a profit of 1c per bushel. The volume of business done was fair.

The local market for coarse grains was without any change, prices being steady with a fair trade passing. There was some enquiry from European sources for spring wheat flour, but as the prices bid in some cases were 6d per sack lower, no business was done. A fair local trade is being done at steady prices. Mill feed is active.

Demand for cheese from English buyers is increasing and the tone of the market is firm. Butter is strong and fairly active. A TENDERFOOT'S WOOING

—BY—

CLIVE PHILLIPPS WOLLEY

(AUTHOR OF "GOLD, GOLD IN CARIBOO," ETC.)

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

"Keep your head low till we're in the timber. Now come, and we'll beat them yet," and stooping as he ran the old frontiersman led his companion along the creek bottom under the shelter of its banks, into the heavy pine timber. There they threw themselves on the ground, soaked to the bone and panting heavily.

"What now? Are we going to fight them here?" asked Rolt at last, standing up to let some of the water drain out of him.

"Fight Injuns in timber? Not much. We've another five minutes before they'll miss us, but the light's coming. They're getting impatient. Hear that?"

"That" was another volley poured into the hollow.

"Hain't missed us yet, anyways. Are you good for another burst, Boss?"

"If it's not too far." Rolt's running days were over, and he was a heavy man, used to riding.

"No, it ain't far," and the old man began to run again as if he had been five and twenty, Toma and the other Indian loping along as easily as wolves, whilst Dan the big-footed, sobbed wearily far behind.

At last on the extreme edge of the pine belt, Al paused. Beyond the timber the open country rolled down towards the Fraser and the dawn had come.

"It's our only chance and a slim one. It's got to be that cherry patch." Al said, pointing out to the open. "There ain't another place in sight as would give us a show," and he set off running again at top speed for a little four-cornered patch of wild cherry bush, about a thousand yards from the timber.

It looked about as bad a place to hold against an enemy as you could imagine, lying as it did in a hollow and containing no timber big enough to serve as a shield against rifle bullets; but there was nothing better in sight, and it had just one thing in its favor.

For seven or eight hundred yards at least on one side, and for seven or eight miles on every other side, there was no cover of any kind larger than the thin bushes of sage brush and the patches of bunch grass. A coyote might have crawled through that unseen. It seemed impossible that anything else should.

Realizing that at any moment their enemies might reach the edge of the timber, Rolt and his companions raced over the space intervening between the pines and the cherry bush at headlong speed. When Rolt crashed into the edge of the cherry patch he had not another yard of running power left in him. With a feeling that he had not known since he had won the quarter at Rugby, he dropped where he was and lay still.

"Euchred them so far," panted Al cheerfully, "and now I guess we'll take some killing. Out with your jack knives, boys, and I'll show you a trick as I learned of the Crees," and he began to hack down the boughs and young trees all round him, building with them a kind of "wicky up," or small circular bothy, such as Indians use for bath houses. Over the top of this he threw his blanket, which he had carried strapped to his back until then, and over that again he piled loose soil and soda, keeping a nervous eye all the time on the edge of the timber.

"Chuck your coat over your sticks if you haven't got a blanket," be said to Rolt, "and then fix it this way," and he went down on his knees and began to scratch with his knife like a dog who is going to bury a bone.

All the earth he took out he piled upon the blanket, throwing with it moss and leaves and small boughs, until when he had finished with it it looked like a great ant heap just sufficiently within the cover of the brush to save it from detection.

Then he lent Rolt a hand with his mound, ordering the boys to do the same at their respective corners, and "Shove boys; shove like hell, if you ever want to eat bull beef any more. They ain't here yet, but they can't be long now."

When men are working for their lives it is marvellous how much can be done in a minute, and these men, knowing how much depended upon their speed, had their shelters finished, when a low "hist" from Al sent them all into their holes like rabbits into their borrows.

There was no sign of Indians that Rolt could see, but as Al lay motionless he imitated him, and for a full fifteen minutes almost held his breath in his burrow.

At the end of that time he heard a voice behind him, and turning, saw Al lying at full length in the scrub, calmly whittling a pipeful of tobacco.

"They can't see me here," he said. "I'm too far back in the scrub. Have you got your bury good and deep. Keep a whittling of it out so as you can lie low and the bullets'll go over you. Savvy? I'm agoin' out now to take a pasear and see if them fortifications look natural."

"Don't be such a fool," commanded the Boss.

"I ain't no fool, Boss. No Injun ever hit a man at a thousand yards, and I've got to know how our little show will strike the gallery. Likewise I'm anxious to know if we have a full house," and so saying, he struck a match and wandered out into the open.

"In the most unconcerned way in the world the old fellow strolled along straight towards the timber, smoking as he went, and looking back occasionally at his handiwork, and for about three hundred yards he went unmolested.

Then a shot was fired, the dry earth was kicked up a hundred yards in front of him, and his hat fell on the ground whilst his rifle went to his shoulder, and his own shot was echoed by two more from the cherry patch, under the cover of which tiny volley he dashed back to his lair.

"All right," he said, as he crawled under his mound, "the seats is all took and the currtain's up. It's just three hundred yards to where I dropped my cap, and now I'm goin' to put in time diggin'. If I was you I'd do the same. It's goin' to be safer underground than up a tree by and by," and after that for a long time the Boss saw no more of Al.

CHAPTER XX.

The Chinook wind which had been blowing before midnight had dropped, and in the last hours of darkness had been succeeded by a crisp clear air with more than a suspicion of frost in it, so that when the dawn came, it spread through skies of such rare lucidity as are never seen except in high northern lands.

Along the horizon the light grew gradually, until in the east the heavens were of a pale lemon color, so clear, so utterly fine and transparent, that the gloom of the rigid barrier of pines hurt the eye with its contrast of stiff solidity.

Even the pine belt itself was not quite proof against the dawn. The tops of it were touched with a pale glory and, though the gloom of the black boughs swallowed up the light that struck them, a bole here and there was caught by it and brightened with a wash of tenderest golden grey.

But the prairie welcomed the dawn, which flooded its frost-touched sage brush, so that it rolled in sheets of sparkling silver, from the pines to the cherry patch and away beyond as far as the eye could see towards the still shadowy bed of the Fraser.

The dawn had made all things plain, had emphasized every outline: the peace of it called attention to every least sound which might break the holy stillness of the waking day, and yet Rolt, listening in his barrow, could not hear so much as the breaking of a twig, or see a sign of life in the direction from which he had fled.

Most of the events to which we look forward in life (and probably in death), either with desire or dread, are curiously unlike our forecasts of them. A battle upon either a large or small scale is no exception to this rule. Men laugh in the crisis of a life and death struggle, and in the last South African war a volunteer, told off as one of the escort of a big gun, remembers only of Spion Kop that it was fought on a "jolly" day, that the weather and the smooth grass slopes suggested pink parasols and picnic hampers; that there were funny little balloon-like puffs rising at intervals from the ridge opposite to that on which he lay; that the sun was warm and comforting, and that some confounded fellow woke him up with the toe of a service boot when the battle was over and it was time to take the gun home.

It was with Rolt as it was with that yeoman.

After Al's departure he worked feverishly at the making of his burrow, expecting every moment to hear the hum of bullets through the scrub over head, but no bullets came, and at last, even with his jack knife, he had managed to scrape out a hollow ample enough to contain his body.

Then he lay in it and watched, until the minutes grew into an hour, and the dawn into young day, without any sign of life showing itself upon the landscape, except a coyote, shadowy and utterly noiseless, who came stealing down from the hills, until he was nearly midway between the pines and the cherry patch.

There he checked sharply, his nose went up and his brush dropped, and wheeling in his tracks, he went back at a lope to the nearest rising ground, on which he stood awhile reconnoitring.

Something in the country displeased him, for after a prolonged survey he loped back the way he had come.

The coyote's behavior was suggestive of suspicion, but a little broad-winged hawk which poised in the clear air or swung noiselessly overhead with a keen eye for mice or beetles, contradicted the habitually suspicious vagabond.

Rolt found it impossible to remain strung up to concert pitch for ever in such an atmosphere of peaceful beauty, just as the half alarmed buck does, when pitted against the everlasting patience of his hunter, and was actually dozing when a voice behind him asked:

"Have you got your Holland along with you to-day, Boss?"

Rolt started, but though only half awake, had sense enough to lie still.

"Yes," he said, without turning.

"It's good for long shooting, ain't it?"

"It's sighted for five hundred yards."

"I guess that's good enough. Do you see that yallerish looking bunch of sage brush, the biggest in sight, away there to the right? Jest perforate it, will you?"

Huge Loss of Fuel.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—American railroads lose $50,000,000 worth of fuel a year and consume $200,000,000 worth of coal to obtain $80,000,000 worth of efficiency, according to figures prepared by Chief Engineer E. C. Fitch, of the Chicago Great Western Railroad.

In ten years, says the report, American railroads have increased the cost of their fuel supply from $104,926,000 to $213,528,000.

Prtchard Also Drowned.

Port Colborne, Dec. 2.—The body of Wm. Pritichard of Cleveland, engineer of the Raleigh, was washed ashore a short distance from where the steamer was wrecked. He was last seen on the stern of the boat and at intervals gave signals to the watchers on shore, when the stern disappeared he was lost in the heavy seas. The shore in and around Abino Point is strewn with the wreckage and the cargo of pulpwood.

NO AMBITION ALL TIRED OUT.

QUEBEC, P. Q., June 17, 1911.

"For about a year or more my health was poor—my ambition gone—nerves unstrung—and it was perfect drudgery to work, and I was quite alarmed about myself. I happened to get hold of one of your pamphlets, which I read very carefully, and was impressed with the idea to try your No. 14 Blood Remedy. As soon as I started taking your medicine I began to improve, and kept steadily improving with the use of the medicine. I used several boxes and now am perfectly well, and in fact, never felt better in my life. Previous to taking your remedy I had been trying a lot of others, but they did me no good. For the sake of other sufferers who may be in the same condition I was you may publish this letter, and I hope it will influence them to give this wonderful prescription a trial."

L. Charbonneau.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

CATFISH FURNISHED POWER.

Music Was Necessary to Get Them in Motion.

They got to telling fish stories on the ship on which Billy Morgan was a passenger across the Atlantic. Booth Tarkington, the Indiana novelist, got off a pretty good one about a shark which a captain fed and petted and which finally saved the captain's life by keeping other sharks away from him when he was shipwrecked.

It was a good story until Billy Morgan smiled his way into the little bunch and began to talk about the Bowersock herd of dehorned catfish up at the Lawrence dam. It is an old story in Kansas, of course, but it was a long way from home, and Billy had to go into details to make the bunch believe it. And so this is what be told 'em:

"Some years ago Mr. Bowersock, who owns the dam that furnishes power for the mill and other factories, conceived the idea that the big Kaw river catfish going through the mill race and on to the water wheel added much to the power generated. Then he read that fish are very sensitive to music. So be hired a man with an accordeon to stand over the mill race and play. The catfish came from up and down stream to hear the music and almost inevitably drifted through the race on to the wheel and increased the power.

"The fishes' horns used to get entangled in the wheel and injure the fish, so Mr. Bowersock, who is a kind hearted man and very persistent, had a lot of the fish caught and dehorned, and in a year or two he had a large herd of hornless catfish. These fish not only turn out to hear the music, but they have learned to enjoy the trip through the mill race and over the wheel, so that every Sunday or oftener whole families of catfish—and they have large families—come to Bowersock's dam to shoot the chutes, something like people go out to ride on the scenic railway.

"Whenever the water in the river gets low Mr. Bowersock has the band play, and the catfish gather and go round and round over the wheel, furnishing power for the Bowersock mill when every other wheel on the river is idle from lack of water."—Kansas City Journal.

"No," replied the young man. "I am going to ask you for something much more important than that. I wish to ask for your daughter's hand in marriage."

"Um! You consider her more important than a raise of salary, do you?"

"Yes, sir, far more important."

"Then you can't have her. I should be ashamed to have such a bobb as you in my family."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Plain Hunger.

"Doctor, what disease is the most prevalent among the poor?"

BIFOCALS
OR—
DOUBLE VISION GLASSES

Most people think, when buying Bifocal Glasses, that a large segment or reading area is required. With very few exceptions this is not so, as most bifocals are required for constant use, and the successful fitting of these lenses depends not so much on furnishing the largest reading portion possible, but on placing a minimum disk or wafer in exactly the correct position. A smal wafer accurately placed will afford ample field for reading, writing and sewing, and will overcome the tendency to make mis-steps in going up and down stairs, an experience not uncommon to wearers of bifocals with too large reading segments.

Cause and Cure of Headache

The cause of headache as you know, is the stoppage of the circulation resulting in pressure on the delicate nerves of the head. In time nature will start the blood going again, but meanwhile we suffer and are unfit for duty.

Assisted by two ZUTOO Tablets, which by the way are as harmless as the soda they contain, nature will remove the pressure and stop the headache in twenty minutes. Why continue to suffer? Why be unfit?

It is really remarkable how many people now use ZUTOO to cure their headaches. Do you? If not, why not?

City Not Responsible for Maintenence of County Lunatics

A very large number of accounts were passed at a meeting of the Finance Committee last evening. There were present, Ald. Bradburn, chairman; Mayor Morrow, Ald. Metheral and Duncan.

A report was read from Constable Newhall, regarding Harry Wright, who was committed as a lunatic, and from Chief Constable Thompson, regarding Arthur Tooley and Sarah Burns lunatics.

On motion the clerk was instructed to write the Inspector of Prisons and Asylums that this city is responsible for Harry Wright and Arthur Tooey, but that Sarah Burns resided in the country and her maintenance should not be charged to the city.

It was also moved that the selectors of jurors be paid $15 in accordance with the certificate of the clerk of the peace.

WARM DEBATE ON WOMENS RIGHTS

At Charlotte Street Lecture Hall Affirmatives Won

One of the most warmly contested debates that has occurred locally for some time, kept a big crowd on edge last evening, when representatives of the Y.M.C.A. and the Men's Bible Class of Charlotte street church clashed at the latter place, and argued on women's rights. The subject of the debate was, "Resolved, that women are better as they are, without the franchise." After about one hour of the cleverest and most thoughtful discussion, the affirmatives were declared the winners and votes for women went down to defeat, despite the fact that their cause was championed by such authorities as Messrs. H. M. Gilchrist and Mr. Ellis, for the Y.M.C.A. Their opponents on such a board question were Messrs. C. C. Nixon and Ira D Moore representing the Bible Class who went down to defeat although they fought learnedly and well.

The judges were Messrs. Rev. I. Couch, Rev. J. B. Webb and J. E. L. Goodwill.

When awarding the decision the judges complimented the contestants on their skilful handling of such a prominent question and on the masterly presentation of their arguments.

A good musical program was given.

An exhibition of pyramid building by the junior leaders of the Y.M.C.A. was also given under the direction of the director, J. J. Thompson.

Unique, Novel and Artistic Window Display

Coleman Bros.' window display this week reflects great credit on this most up-to-date and enterprising firm. Not only does it display some most delicious and appetizing plum pudding, mince meat and Christmas cake; the novel feature being a fine display of the material used by this firm in the manufacture of their goods.

Showing, as it does, butter, eggs, all kinds of fruit, spices and flour, which will be used in the mixing for their monster Christmas cake, which will be on show about the 13th of Dec. and for which special notice will be given in the ad. The reason for this beautiful show is to let the public see on themselves what kind of goods are used by Coleman Bros.

Nomination Law

As the last Monday in December is Christmas Day, the nominations of candidates for municipal councils will be held on Friday, the 22nd of December next, as provided by section 124 of the Consolidated Municipal Act. The Councils of towns, townships and villages are required to meet on the 25th day of December and to immediately threafter publish detailed statements of their respective municipalities. This statement is intended to be in the hands of the ratepayers before Nomination Day.

NUMBER OF VOTERS

The total number of names on the voters' list for Peterborough city of those entitled to exercise their franchise in the approaching provincial elections is 5,284.

THEFT CHARGE

Lakefield Man Faces Charge of Stealing $115.

A young man named Gilbert Horton accused of two charges of theft, one of $115 and another of a quantity of butter from the Lakefield Dairy Company, was arraigned before County Magistrate Edmison this morning. The case was enlarged until Friday morning, Dec. 8th, at 10 o'clock, as the witnesses were not ready.

If sufficient bail can be secured he will be allowed his liberty.

HELP THE HEALTH ASSOCIATION

Christmas Stamps and Calendars on Sale at Drug Stores

Are you going to help in the fight against tuberculosis in Peterborough?

The foregoing question is addressed to each individual citizen, and the Peterborough Health Association, in the next three weeks, will afford everyone a splendid opportunity to do something for this work. It is the intention of the association in the near future to employ a district nurse, who will visit homes where her services are required, advising as to the care and treatment of the disease. In order to carry out this enterprise, considerable funds will be required, and for this purpose from now until Christmas, the association is placing on sale Christmas stamps and calendars. The stamps are similar to those that are sold annually in aid of the Muskoka Free Hospital. The calendars are attractively gotten up in pretty color designs, and inscribed with appropriate mottoes and verses that everyone should heed. These sell at twenty-five cents and are most suitable as well as useful Christmas remembrances. The stamps are to be one cent each.

The druggists of the city have very kindly given permission to have these sold in their stores, and commencing Tuesday next, until the close of the holiday season, these can be obtained at the above places. The object is a worthy one and it is hoped that the people of Peterborough will respond liberally, giving aid to the local movement, by purchasing freely of the stamps and calendars. Every one can help if only by taking a few stamps and thus encourage the efforts of the association in a noble cause.

Stamps and calendars will be on sale Tuesday morning at the drug stores.

CANVASS IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH BRINGS SUCCESS

The Response to Appeal From the General Assembly

Rev. D. A. MacDonald, Corean Missionary to Preach To-morrow

Some time ago the local Presbyterians set out to increase the amount of their missionary givings. The effort was undertaken in response to an appeal from the General Assembly to the whole Presbyterian church in Canada to raise for the year 1912 the sum of one million dollars as its missionary budget. St. Paul's church church was asked to aim at $5,000. A canvass of the entire congregation was made by the elders and managers of the church. The congregation was divided into districts and an elder and manager went together and called upon all in the district assigned them. The actual amount subscribed to date is over $4,600. There are a few to hear from yet, and this, with the amount which the Sunday school and Bible classes will contribute, will raise the total giving even beyond $5,000. In addition to this the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will give over $1,000. So that the members of St. Paul's church are pledged to give about $6,000 a year to all missionary purposes. Part of this amount is to be applied to the support of their own missionary. The Rev D. A. Macdonald, B.A., who is about to go to Corea, has been assigned to St. Paul's. He is to spend the next week in the city visiting the congregation and addressing a number of meetings. He will preach at both services on Sabbath and address the Sunday school. He will address the different young people's organizations and mission bands on Monday night. On Tuesday evening the ladies are preparing a banquet for the men of the church. Mr. Macdonald and Mr. E. A. Armstrong, of Toronto, and others, will address the meeting. Mr. Macdonald will also address the Wednesday evening prayer meeting, and the Women's Missionary Society on Friday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

Bear in mind the entertainment by Mr. J. W. Bengough, cartoonist and lecturer, of Toronto, on Wednesday night, Dec. 6, in the Conservatory of Music, under the auspices of the Women's Guild of All Saint's Church.

LAID TO REST

All that was mortal of the late William Hinchliffe was laid away in the Little Lake cemetery yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a large number of friends and acquaintances. The Rev. Canon Davidson conducted the services at the home, church and cemetery and many were the expressions of regret at the passing away of him who had always been a firm friend to the many who gained his acquaintance.

Beautiful floral tributes were received from the Altar Society, St John's church, Armature Department, C.G.E. Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, I.O.O.F., Masonic lodge, Canadian Order Foresters, Court 29; Mrs. H. Hinchliffe and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. G. Long, Mr. and Mrs J. D. Tully, Mr. and Mrs. Clegg. Mrs. Albert Long and family Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Hawes and Mrs. Wainwright, Mr. and Mrs. James Long.

The funeral was conducted under the auspices of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, Peterboro Lodge, No. 111, and the pall-bearers were Messrs H. Rush, R. Fair, W. Green, W. Hill H. Campbell and H. Jeffrey.

Sincere sympathy will be extended to the bereaved widow, his nephew, Mr. H. Hinchliffe.

SOCIAL BY ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY

At a committee meeting held last evening, it was decided to hold a social on Friday evening, December 15 similar to previous ones. This will be in the Sons of England Hall, and will be open to all English people of the city, who may be sure of a good time. The musical program will be of the best. Refreshments will be served during the evening and everything will be free. Gifts of cake, etc., will be very much appreciated by the committee who will be glad of any assistance.

A collection will be taken up during the evening to provide a Christmas tree for children under fourteen years of age. It is hoped this will be well supported so that the children may get their share of Christmas pleasure.

Any information will be gladly given by members of the committee, who appeal for the help of everyone interested in the welfare of the society.

Joseph Akitt will be the Liberal candidate in West Simcoe against Hon. James Duff.

Meet the Increased Cost of Living By Increasing the Yield of Your Capital

When investing money—if you insist on theoretically perfect security, you must be satisfied with very small interest.

The increased cost of living has caused many to seek investments which while perfectly sound, and proven to be practically absolutely safe, yet yield a much larger return on the capital.

In investing in this latter class of security, close investigation should precede the purchase of any securities, the points to be covered more especially being,
Stability of the enterprise,
Stability of the management.

Granted satisfactory replies on these points, such securities are just as safe as the best mortgages or other so-called "gilt-edge" values, while they offer most tempting returns in the way of interest.

We have secured a block of stock in an enterprise which has been most closely looked into and we are able to offer in lots of one share or more a limited quantity of its 7% preference stock which carries with it profit sharing with issues of common stock, making very probable an even larger return than 7%.

This enterprise has been in actual operation for over 20 years.

It has been uniformly successful during this period.

It has been under the same management or group of managers, for practically this entire period, and has shown, and still shows constantly increased earnings and profits and its resources owing to increasing values of the raw material, which it controls, show very considerable increase every year.

In a word this investment is one which deserves the attention of any investor seeking to increase the earning power of his capital.

Enquiries will be cheerfully answered and fullest information given Address, as soon as possible;

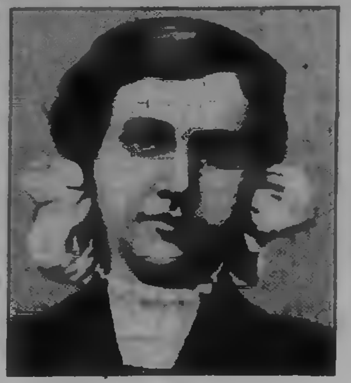
SAVED FROM THE SURGEON'S KNIFE

"Fruit-a-tives" cured Appendicitis

NEWBURGH, Ont., Feb. 12th. 1910.

"Just about a year ago, our daughter Ella (fourteen years) was taken with terrible pains in the right side. We at once put her under the care of a first-class doctor, who pronounced it a case of Appendicitis and advised an operation. We took her to a Hospital in Kingston where she was again immediately examined by an eminent specialist. He said she had Appendicitis and must be operated on at once, if we wanted to save her life.



"Luckily for us and for her, an uncle came in with some 'Fruit-a-tives' and insisted on Ella taking them. Good results were apparent almost from the first dose, and the treatment cured her. 'Fruit-a-tives' saved our daughter from the surgeon's knife and to-day she is enjoying the best of health".

Vill T.A.S. Get Berth in the Trent Valley League

Present indications point to a big ockey bill of fare this season for the ocal fans and bonnie Jawhu will like- have his hands full. The manag-ial end of the T.A.S., A.C., it is said, re endeavoring to land in one of e Trent Valley League groupings d it is just possible that the team ill be accomodated. A district ade up of Peterboro, Havelock and orwood would be a dream.

And it will be more than first dis-ict honors, for the O.H.A. represent-tives. Both teams promise to be rong in all departments and it sure ould be some revenge to educate t seven which would make James T. utherland of the Canadian Junior hampions arrive at the conclusion at there were other burgs, who uld "make them just as fast as they e taken away.

The Trenton youths it is said, will coached by Lawson Whitehead, but at won't save them from what will rightly their's—a good trimming their own ice lot. Trenton had no ounce to win the district last year d with any kind of luck this season e result won't necessitate a play-off t Belleville.

The Church League is apparently its last legs on account of an in-bility to secure sufficient teams to ry on the organization successfully t the Mercantile League is due for nother run. Secretary Heaslip has alled the annual meeting for the Y. I.C.A. next Monday night.

The senior City League hangs in the balance. President Oldham, who has trotted out several good teams for the West Ends league to send another deputation to Brock street rink T.A.S. sports have the same proposition and there is some talk of a team from Lakefield, and another from the Quaker Oats Co. Such a quartet would make things lively.

Local Steppers Being Prepared for Ice Races

The Horse World has the following:

Dr. Thomas Johnstone, V. S., of Peterboro, Ont., is preparing several crack steppers for the ice races this winter, including Queen's Baron, 2.18 4-4. A Rountree, secretary of the Turf Club, says that Peterboro will follow Lindsay in the ice racing carnival again this winter with a banner meeting, the third week in January F. J. Daly, a retired business man; Robert Monroe, of the Monroe House; T. H. Kendry, W. Whitton, A. Juby, Dr. Pufkinghorn and other prominent citizens are having their racers put in condition for the winter ice-racing sport. Great times over in Canada a few weeks hence.

The Port Hope Driving Club announce a two days' ice meet about the end of January, immediately following the Peterboro races. A good program is being arranged and the purses will be attractive.

Hoppe Retains Title of World's Champion Billiardist

Willie Hoppe is still the champion billiardist of the world. This week he defended his title and defeated Geo. Sutton in a 18.2 balkline game. Hoppe's mastery of the ivories is little short of marvelous. He executes the most difficult shots with great skill and apparent ease. At one stage of the game Hoppe clicked off 80 points without a miss.

NEW DAY FOR OLD MEN.

"Too Young at 60!" the Slogan Now in London.

"Too young at 60!" is the slogan that sent a rejuvenating thrill through the elderly men of London. The words stood out in stalwart letters in the bill of contents of a morning paper, the editorial page of which presented a "middle-aged philosopher" assuring the world that the recent rule of young men is passing and that the "old man triumphant" is returning to his ancient mastery of the earth.

"The new Lord Mayor of London," says the philosopher, "is 81. The winner of a swimming race in the frigid waters of the Serpentine the other day was an athlete of 75. Dorchester is rehearsing a new play by Thomas Hardy, who is nearly 72. The man chosen to save the Unionist party, the Earl of Halsbury, is 86.

"The young man who is dreaming in his fool's paradise must bestir himself or he will awake with a shock to find himself struggling among the debris of the flimsy throne on which he has perched since the closing years of the last century.

"To some of us who are neither exactly young nor definitely old, the question whether youth or old age shall possess the twentieth century is only of philosophic interest. If youth wins we have only to do a few bathroom exercises, part our hair in the middle and be as young as one may safely be without being considered callow; if age wins we have only to wait patiently a few years to have our place among the victors.

"What gave the old men of the latter day a setback? The typewriter, the telephone and the motor car wrought wonderful changes. The old men, conscious of their great power, pooh-poohed these inventions. The young men seized them and flew past the graybeards. 'Too old at 40!' they cried. 'Get on or get out.' The young men in their arrogance thought that they and not their machines had conquered. Now the old men are climbing back into the sea of power. Young men no longer monopolise the machinists; the old men have them, too, and put more force behind them.

"Ten years ago the automobile was associated with extreme youth. To-day witness the gray old boys swishing along the highways. The increasing age of the taxicab drivers is one of the most marked phenomena in the street of London. In every line of life the aged one is resuming his rightful pre-eminence."

Lady Teacher Goes to Jail.

Brockville, Dec. 2.—Weeping bitterly, Miss Nora McCrea, a young school teacher, whose home is in Merrickville, yesterday afternoon received a sentence of one week in the local jail, from Judge McDonald, senior judge of Leeds and Grenville, for having last October unlawfully punished Helen McCoubrie, one of her pupils, in the school which she taught near Frankville.

The child was in the first instance severely punished for dropping a water bottle and when subsequently she brought to school a note of protest from her father by adoption, the school teacher punished her again. Mr. McCoubrie was subsequently paid $500 by Miss McCrea in settlement of the case and to avoid parental prosecution, but Mr. Trail, agent of the local Children's Aid Society, brought the matter to trial.

Miss McCrea testified that the child was unruly. Judge McDonald, however, found the defendant guilty.

Miss McCrea, who comes of a highly respected family, feels her position very keenly.

REFUSED TO WRITE A LIE.

Incident in the Rise in Life of Rockefeller's Confidential Man.

An incident is related of the rise in life of Frederick T. Gates, the confidential adviser, almoner and private business manager of John D. Rockefeller. Gates' first employment was that of letter writer or secretary for a banker. One day the banker dictated a letter to him in which he sought to evade a certain responsibility by making his communication appear to have been written some days previous. He instructed the boy to antedate the letter, and the latter respectfully requested that he do it himself. The banker bade him do as he was told, declaring that he (the banker) was responsible for the letter and for its date as well. But young Gates refused, although he felt that it would cost him his position. "I can't make my hand perform a lie just because you are responsible, sir," he said. "As well ask me to steal from a safe for the same reason." To his surprise, he was not discharged. Instead, on the first of the month following, his wages were doubled, and the banker ever after trusted him as he had never before trusted any one in a matter of business. Thus truthfulness was the foundation stone of what has turned out to be a successful business career.—Christian Herald.

Banks Without Books.

Postmaster General Frank Hitchcock has done what England failed to do—obviated the necessity of thousands of bookkeepers for the new postal savings banks. He was put up against the task of opening 40,000 small banks throughout the country. The bookkeeping problem was a staggering one. He went to England to study conditions, finding 15,000 savings offices, with a staff of 2,000 clerks in London to look after the general bookkeeping. Returning home, he solved the difficulty by abolishing the English system of passbooks and issuing drafts or certificates of deposits, following the plan used by banks and express companies. By this simple method the postmaster keeps no books.—Argonaut.

Irrigation in Spain.

During the four months from June to September practically no rain falls in the province of Andalusia, Spain. As a result a large area of fertile soil which should be highly productive is almost idle, the frequency of droughts and the small annual rainfall discouraging agriculture. To remedy this condition the government has started work on irrigation plans calling for the expenditure of $8,156,000. Work has already been begun on a long irrigation canal which will ultimately have ten branches, the aggregate length of the main artery and branches being 153 miles. The main canal will have a length of fifty-three miles and will be completed in six years.—Exporter's Review.

U. S. Tariff Changes.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 2.—Representative Underwood, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, announced yesterday that he would call a meeting of the committee as soon as Congress convened to sound the sentiments of the members as to the tariff revisions program.

"The President," said Mr. Underwood, "will be given a reasonable time in which to submit the reports of the tariff board. If these are withheld too long, the committee will proceed without them. We are certain to submit bills on wool, cotton and iron and steel. The sugar schedule may come later."

ENGLAND'S "DRAM DRINKERS."

Public Houses Patronized by Wives of Professional and Business Men.

The increase of tippling among women of the middle classes in England has become an acknowledged fact but only of late has the attention of the temperance folk been called to the appalling growth of the drinking habit among society women.

Samuel Manger, one time postmaster-general of Australia, while deploring the fact that the society woman drinks, says that as a rule she is careful not from any particular morality; but as a matter of expediency and to preserve her looks—and that, moreover, she usually confines herself to choice wines and liquors. He says it is the middle class woman who has become the "dram drinker."

Quoting the vicar of a select residential London suburb, Mr. Manger declares that reverend gentleman said: "If only you could see into the drawing-rooms of my well-to-do parishioners you would find in 75 per cent. of them women, in many cases young girls, sitting round playing bridge, smoking and drinking whisky and soda."

As if this were not sufficiently shocking, the announcement is made that "the most remarkable development of all is the way in which middle class women patronize public houses." In London we are told the womenkind of even professional and business men make free use of the "pubs," while 30 years ago the upper middle class woman rarely touched wines, and spirits not at all, and would have been ashamed of herself if seen in a public house.

According to the reformers, this remarkable change in the customs and tastes of the middles class women is the outgrowth of the practice of dining at restaurants.

After declaring that drunkenness in a woman is much harder to cure than in a man, Mr. Manger announces that of 3,031 persons admitted to inebriate reformatories during the last few years no fewer than 2,548 were women

Minister and Judge.

Judge Rentoul, who made a rapid recovery from his alarming illness in the City of London County Court the other day, has had a peculiarly varied experience of public life. He has been minister, barrister, and member of Parliament, and achieved success in all three robes. For some years he was a Presbyterian minister at Woolwich, and, according to the rules of his Church, is still a minister as well as a judge. While at Woolwich he found leisure to study for the Bar, and for a time he practiced as a barrister and carried out his ministerial duties contemporarily. Possessed of a fine, rich Irish brogue, Judge Rentoul is a welcome and humorous after-dinner speaker.

Among the many anecdotes which Judge Rentoul retails is one which has reference to the acoustic properties of the Central Criminal Court. These are not so perfect as they might be, and there is a decided echo from the walls. Some time ago, Judge Rentoul sentenced a prisoner to six months' hard labor. When the judgment was passed "six months' hard labor" was echoed from the back of the court. Taken aback, the prisoner turned to the warder by his side and enquired anxiously, "Are these 'ere sentences to run concurrently?"

No Words Wasted.

A couple of Quakers hold the record for brief letters. One of them, wishing to learn if a correspondent in a distant town had any news to communicate, posted to him a sheet of paper on which only a note of interrogation was written. The reply came in the form of a blank sheet, indicating that there was nothing at all to communicate.

Actors seem to carry off the palm for brevity in letter writing. Quin had a misunderstanding with Rich, the manager of Covent Garden, which resulted in Quin's leaving in an unceremonious manner. He soon regretted the hasty action, and wrote to the manager: "I am at Bath.—Quin." Rich did not think this a sufficient apology, and accordingly replied: "Stay there, and be hanged."

Everybody remembers the letters that passed between Samuel Foote and his mother. "Dear Sam," wrote the lady, "I am in prison for debt.—Your loving Mother." Foote's answer was even shorter: "Dear Mother,—So am I."

Smoke and Business

A paper on smoke abatement was read before the British Association for the Advancement of Science, whose annual meeting was held recently in Portsmouth. The paper advocated a new standard of smoke emission for factory chimneys. The existing standard permitted the pouring forth of smoke that polluted the air, injured health, disfigured buildings, and cut off sunshine.

Commenting on this, Sir William White agreed that there should be a proper standard. However, there was a feeling in manufacturing districts that the more smoke there was in the atmosphere the better the business was. The people there got accustomed to smoke, and did not take as much notice of it as others.

How Thackeray Regarded Scott.

Though Thackeray thought Dumas greater than Scott, yet for the latter he felt much admiration and even reverence. When a popular novelist one day justified himself for something he had written by urging that Scott had written it also Thackeray replied: "I do not think that it becomes either you or me to speak of Sir Walter Scott as if we were his equals. Such men as you or I should take off our hats at the very mention of his name."—"Some Aspects of Thackeray," Louis Melville.

Appreciated.

An Irish provincial newspaper, in referring to a local concert, mentioned several amateurs who had contributed to the evening's enjoyment. Continuing, the report said:—

"Mr. Kelly was specially appreciated by the vast assembly. Owing to a severe chill, he was unavoidably absent."

Racehorse for Fifty Cents

One has often heard of horses being sold for what is termed a "mere song" and afterwards turning out useful (says a writer in "Horse and Hound"), but it is certain that no animal to win a race ever changed hands for so little as Sugar Loaf. She was actually some weeks since sold to Mr. Arthur Evans for 48 cents, but after the daughter of Wolf's Crag had easily won the Monument Plate at Great Yarmouth (England) recently, Mr. Evans bought her in for $750 The filly was virtually a gift to Mr Evans, and the two "bob" paid was more or less a joke, but there it stands, as another record for a low-priced racer!

OVER-WORKED KIDNEYS

Cause Rush of Blood, Fullness, Dizziness.

J. T. Chetland, the well-known railway engineer of Hamilton, found the strain always resting upon men of his occupation vastly intensified by a tendency of the blood to rush to his head, and often at times when clearness of vision and great steadiness were demanded. Finding some difficulty in bending—a stiffness with pain having settled in his back, it occurred to him that his kidneys might be at fault. "This was a happy idea for by it I not only got rid of the pain but many other troubles as well. I took a full dose of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and was glad to note that some obstruction of the kidneys, which I had lately noticed, was at once relieved. The flushed appearance of my face gave way to a more rational color and there was a perceptible improvement in my appetite. Dr. Hamilton's Pills certainly act splendidly upon the blood, removing heat and fulness and that sort of dizziness that makes a man at the throttle wish when it siezes him that he were elsewhere."

No medicine gives such unquestionably good results for stomach, liver, and blood troubles as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild, certain, and always curative. Refuse any substitute. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Popular Bishop.

When Bishop Taylor-Smith, Chaplain-General to the Forces, attended the quincentenary celebrations at St. Andrew's University recently he was accorded the honorary degree of D.D.

Bishop Taylor-Smith is a powerful and striking preacher, admirably suited to the taste of Tommy Atkins. "Wot I like about old Smith," a Tommy is reported to have said on one occasion, "is that he doesn't care a pinch of snuff who he goes for."

During the Ashanti expedition, in 1896, the column to which Bishop Taylor-Smith was attached as chaplain arrived at the place where the late Prince Henry of Battenberg was lying very ill. His Royal Highness had a presentiment that his end was near, and sent for Mr. Taylor-Smith, to whom he entrusted messages to his wife and to Queen Victoria.

When the prince died at sea the chaplain immediately visited the two royal ladies, who were then staying at Cimiez, and Queen Victoria asked him to Windsor. Later on her Majesty appointed him bishop of Sierra Leone, and after her death he became Chaplain-General.

SKIN TROUBLES GROW WORSE

Eczema, Psoriasis, and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Unless these germs are promptly destroyed they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years and years of misery.

Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

We have had experience with many remedies for skin troubles but have never—never seen such remarkable cures as those from D.D.D. Prescription. Instant relief from the very first application.

If you have skin trouble of any kind, we certainly advise you to drop in and investigate the merits of D.D.D. or why not drop a line to the D.D.D. —Laboratories Department, P. W., 49 Colborne St., Toronto.

Sleep Due to Poisoning.

Considerable discussion has arisen in scientific circles over the experiments of MM. Legendre and Pieron in Paris, who have discovered that the real reason why we go to sleep is because our brain has been actually poisoned. Sleep, they declare, is produced through a morbid change in the cells of the frontal lobe of the brain. They discovered a dog that died of insomnia, and injected some of the serum of its brain into another dog, thereby causing it to fall into a deep sleep from which it subsequently awakened in a perfectly healthy condition. From this and similar experiments they assert that sleep is due to a natural poison. The poison of sleep, they contend, is, in fact, an antidote for the poisons that are the by-products of every mental and physical action of our lives, and we awake from sleep when it has cleansed our higher nervous centres of the poisons that our daily toil has produced.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost if the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thin and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorater, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. LOCATING A MOUNTAIN.

It Took Dr. Merzbacher Two Years to Find the Base of Khantengri.

For two years a curious sort of game was played in that little known region of Chinese Turkestan among the great mountain ranges of Tian Shan. The chief participants of the game, which was of the scientific sort, were Dr. Merzbacher, an Alpinist, and Khantengri, the highest peak of the country.

This part of the world was long enveloped in obscurity, and until Dr. Merzbacher's survey no good maps of it existed. The mountains are wild and picturesque and cover ground four or five times as great as the Alps.

Many of the peaks measure over 20,000 feet in height. Khantengri, the highest of all, exceeds the rest by some 4,000 feet. The region is regarded as very difficult of access, and old Chinese travelers have left many thrilling stories of its dangers.

Khantengri never having been definitely located, Merzbacher undertook the task. For nearly two years he searched before he could pin the elusive mountain down to topographical accuracy. It was a veritable game of hide and seek between a man and a mountain, and the curious and interesting part of it all was that often and again the mountain was in plain sight. The route to it, however, was most difficult to trace, and the seeker realized that until he was actually at the mountain's base he could not show its relation to the rest of the range. After months of toil and disappointment the mountain was finally trapped and the riddle solved.—Exchange.

HIGH UP IN A BALLOON.

Effects of the Intense Cold, Rarefied Air and Strong Sunshine.

Drs. Steyrer and Fleming, who made a prolonged ascent in the balloon Berlin, conducted a series of experiments at great altitudes with special reference to the physiological effects of exposure to intense cold and to hot sun rays in extremely rarefied air.

Both professors were equipped with oxygen masks. At a height of 16,500 feet they were obliged to inhale oxygen at intervals of from one to two minutes; otherwise they suffered from headache, heart palpitations and defective respiration. As they reached greater heights these symptoms increased and oxygen had to be more frequently inhaled. At a height of between 25,000 and 27,000 feet Fleming fainted on removing the mask for an instant.

The effects of strong sunshine, intense cold and insufficiency of air gave the face a terrifying aspect, but the aeronauts felt apathy rather than any severe pains. Another effect was a feeling of cramp in the muscles.

The sun's rays acting in the rarefied air produced a swelling and reddening of the skin, accompanied by fever, and these symptoms reached their height forty-eight hours after the descent.

Among the experiments made was a test for the presence of micro-organisms. Of three tests, the highest, made at 15,000 feet, showed micro-organisms in the small proportion of from 0.2 to 0.5 a liter (1.76 pints) of air. The fourth test was made at an elevation of nearly 27,000 feet and revealed no germs.—Harper's Weekly.

Tubular Coiled Springs.

Tubular coiled springs have been made by a French engineer, Francois Ernoult, and have given quite astonishing results. A Paris laboratory tested two steel springs of exactly the same appearance, one of solid wire and the other of tubing with a wall a twenty-fifth of an inch thick. A pull of 660 pounds stretched the tubular spring nearly three inches, the solid spring yielding less than one and one-half inches, and the permanent deformation of the tubular spring was only one-twenty-fifth of an inch, while a stretch of two and one-half inches left the solid spring permanently lengthened one-quarter of an inch. Besides being more flexible, the tubular spring is much stronger for like weight.

Manufactured Milk.

Cows are not numerous in Japan, but the Japanese are fond of milk, and to meet this demand in the face of a natural shortage they long ago put their wits to work and evolved a product that the average person cannot distinguish from the regular dairy article. The artificial milk is derived from the soja bean. The beans are first soaked, then boiled in water. Presently the liquid turns white; sugar and phosphate of potash in proper quantities are added and the boiling continued until a substance the thickness of molasses is obtained. This fluid corresponds very accurately with ordinary condensed milk and when water is added cannot be told from fresh.—Exchange.

London's Old Clothes Lady.

London has an old clothes lady who comes and goes to the houses of the rich and those in moderate circumstances. She takes garments from the homes of the rich and sells them to others. She does not solicit, but is so well known that her services are requested and appointments may be made with her. She looks at the goods offered her and makes but one offer. If it is not accepted Mme. Chose bows herself out and the incident is closed as far as she is concerned.—Milwaukee Journal.

Inducements Offered.

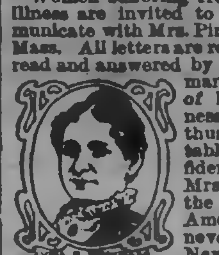
Wife—Why did you refuse to give that man the rooms?

Husband—He looked so ill tempered I was afraid I should never summon up courage to raise his rent later on.—Leslie's Weekly.

A bowl of hot soup fell over the head of the 18 months old son of Wm. Hardridge, West London.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN

Women suffering from any form of illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.



LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

in so far as they probably will not be sentenced to death. Life imprisonment will be meted out to James B., and John J. will get off with a light sentence."

A Personal Vindication.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—"I consider the outcome a great personal vindication for me," said Wm. J. Burns here yesterday when told by The Associated Press of the sensational developments in the McNamara case at Los Angeles. "Especially," he added, "after men occupying such exalted positions as Samuel Gompers and others have repeatedly charged me with 'planting' the dynamite at Los Angeles. Following them every Socialist paper in the country and every labor paper have so often printed stories of 'frame-ups' in the case that some good people were beginning to think that the prosecution was not 'on the square'."

Mother's Faith Unshaken.

Cincinnati, Dec. 2.—Had a bolt descended from a clear sky it could not have cast a greater shadow of gloom over the home of John J. and James B. McNamara in Cincinnati, than did the news of their pleas of guilty yesterday.

"I know my boys are innocent," wailed Mrs. Mary McNamara, their grief-stricken mother. "I am forced to believe that they have pleaded, but I know they are innocent."

REBELS AT GATES.

Imperial Tenure on Nanking Is Becoming Uncertain.

Shanghai, Dec. 2.—While Nanking early this morning still remains in the possession of the Imperial forces under command of Lieut.-Gen. Feng Kwoh Chang, the revolutionists are engaged in bombarding the city and knocking at its four gates, demanding admission. It is believed that much damage to the city has resulted from the bombardment. Large forces of rebel infantry are held in readiness to rush into the city if the guns make breaches in the walls.

Late Friday afternoon a delegation came outside the city and the firing ceased. It is reported that they carried a proposition of surrender, the necessity for which is now believed to be inevitable.

Gen. Feng, notwithstanding the willingness of the viceroy, Chang Jen Chun, and the tartar general to capitulate continues to hold out against such action and practically has made prisoners of them and established a complete military dictatorship.

For the last two weeks Gen. Feng has defied the efforts of the revolutionaries to take the city. The circumference of the walled city is 22 miles. The wall at various places is ninety feet high. It is built of solid masonry and is thirty feet thick. The four main gates to the city are at the principal points of the compass. Tai Ping Mon, the north gate, and Caho Yong Mon, the east gate, are commanded by Purple Hill on the northeast. Purple Hill is fortified and overlooks the entire city.

Gen. Feng inside the city commands 4,000 trained and loyal Shantung troops and some 2,000 old style Imperial troops.

A few foreigners still remain inside Nanking, including members of the Red Cross and the Japanese consul and his guards.

The revolutionaries are continually being reinforced with men and guns. At present their force approximates 15,000 men and there is among them every evidence of an animated determination to take Nanking.

VANDERBILT TRIES TO TRICK GOULD.

The name of Vanderbilt is one of the greatest in the rôle of financial giants that the world has ever seen. America is justly proud of the family of fortune. The "Commodore," who founded the great house, a man of surpassing power in commerce, must have been, one would imagine, a gentleman with a well-balanced mind and, at the height of his success, a man of supreme dignity. Gould is another name to conjure with in finance. The founder of that gigantic fortune, one would think, must have been such another as the founder of the Vanderbilts — dignified, unimaginative, a pillar of the great commercial world. Yet nothing could better illustrate the lighter side of finance than a scene enacted between these two giants, which I will now describe.

One night Vanderbilt and Gould met on most important business in the former's parlour, when both were in the zenith of their fame. In the eyes of the public they were bitter enemies, and matters had come to a climax. No sooner had the great rivals exchanged courtesies, and started their private conversation on a question in relation to which many millions were at stake, than the Ancient Mariner, the Commodore-Vanderbilt the First — apparently overcome by the excitement of the meeting, suddenly fell down in a faint and rolled off his chair on to the floor, where he lay as if dead. Mr. Gould's anxiety may be more easily imagined than described. It is said "that his first impulse was to rush to the door and summon aid; but he found it locked and no key in it. This," continues an authentic account of the historic scene, "increased his alarm, and he became greatly agitated. Vanderbilt lay limp and motionless. Once there was a heavy sigh and a half-suffocated breathing, as if it were the last act of respiration." His rival watched the great financier lying in this condition; every minute seemed hours. What could he do, should his rival die? Great heavens! What a position! It was well known that they were deadly rivals. It was common knowledge that they had publicly denounced each other. Vanderbilt was much the older, the richer, and the greater. Gould had everything to gain by his death. He had sought a private interview, late at night. Now, to find Gould alone in Vanderbilt's parlour, Vanderbilt dead, and Gould bending over him, would have been one of the most tragic events in the history of commerce. But the trick did not work. Yes, reader, the trick! Vanderbilt the Great was acting the whole time so as to rouse Gould's sympathy and induce him to smooth matters over!

Wealthy men if not guilty of trickery, are often suspicious of tricks. The celebrated author, the late Charles Reade was one of this kind. He always suspected he was being robbed and set traps to catch the thieves. When he became lessee of a London Theatre he imagined that his ticket office cheated him by letting in the public for any thing they could get and keeping the money. So Reade turned up his coat collar and shuffling up to the box office he shoved a quarter into the box-office keeper's hand and whispered: "It's all right — that's for you. I don't want a ticket. Pass one through." The clerk ran out, seized Reade by his collar and was handling him roughly when his hat came off.

Reade next suspected the theatre sweepers. Money and valuables must be lost in the theatre: none, however, were brought to him. So he dropped a five-pound note under one of the seats, and waited.

Presently in came a charwoman with the note, which "somebody must have dropped, as she found it under one of the seats."

Reade gave her the five pounds.

Bribery, blackmail, corruption of all kinds frequently illustrate the light side of finance. There is a story of a young man who, late one cold and wintry night, found the door of his college locked against him. The young man outside argued with the doorkeeper inside, cajoled and entreated, but to no avail. Eventually he slipped half a sovereign under the door and was admitted. It was a financial deal wisely thought out on strict business lines. Once inside he informed the janitor (falsely) that unfortunately, after taking the half-sovereign out of his purse, he had dropped the purse itself on the doorstep. The attendant went out to secure it, but once on the chilly, wet doorstep, the door was slammed. Then the deal was repeated, for the shivering mercenary was not allowed into his warm abode until he had slipped the half-sovereign back again.

STEVENSON'S CHRISTMAS SERMON

To be honest, to be kind; to earn a little and to spend a little less; to make upon the whole a family happier for his presence; to renounce when that shall be necessary and not be embittered; to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation — above all, on the same grim condition, to keep friends with himself —here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy. He has an ambitious soul who would ask more; he has a hopeful spirit who should look in such an enterprise to be successful. There is indeed one element in human destiny that not blindness itself can controvert; whatever else we are intended to do, we are not intended to succeed; failure is the fate allotted. It is so in every art and study; it is so above all in the continent art of living well. Here is a pleasant thought for the year's end or for the end of life; only self deception will be satisfied, and there need be — despair for the despairer.

NATIONAL BAD MANNERS.

Must a Polite People Necessarily Be a Decadent One?

A very queer situation involving a question of the great value of bad manners and the important work they perform in the preservation of a nation, and especially the British empire, has arisen in England. King George recently criticised the manners of Englishmen, which, he said, were getting worse and worse, and he suggested that it would be a good thing to include the inculcation of courtesy in the curricula of the schools. And immediately a great many loyal British subjects remade the discovery that Englishmen are not patterns of politeness. They began to deprecate it and say what a pity it is and what could be done to alter it.

The bishop of Worcester made a speech to the boys of Wolverley school in which he recalled a conversation he had with the king on the subject of manners. The king had assured the bishop that Englishmen in point of manners were beginning to compare very badly with distinguished representatives of other nations with whom he came in contact.

And now some of the dignified British journals and periodicals have rushed into the fray with an argument in favor of bad manners. London Truth, for instance, calls attention to the fact that too much courtesy has in all ages accompanied downfall. "Noblesse oblige," it says, "has ruined more people and nations than unwise speculation. France has a name for courtesy; so has Italy; so has Spain. Germany, England and the United States each has a special brand of bad manners. Compare the status of these two groups of countries.

"Bad manners of the national kind are the sign manual of power and have something fibrous in them which does not for a moment excuse them, but which enables the observer to understand them. * * * On the day when George finds himself ruling over a 'polite' nation he will find himself ruling over a decadent nation."

Barring the Smugglers.

As a protection against smugglers the Italian government is erecting a metallic net throughout the length of its Swiss frontier. This net is of steel wire with a fine mesh, about nine feet high and with gateways at suitable points. The border near Menaggio will have no net, but is to be protected by dogs specially trained to catch smugglers.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

THE WEATHER FOR DECEMBER

General Winter Storms Due Next Week Says Hicks

A regular storm period covers the 2nd to the 7th, having its centre on the 4th. The mercury period is central on the 5th, with full moon in perigee. Earth's winter solstice, also bears on this period. Moon being on the celestial equator on the 1st, the barometer will begin to fall, and other storm conditions will appear very early in this period. From the 3rd to the 7th look for general winter storms. Rain will turn to heavy sleet and snow and fierce gales and blizzards will sweep most parts of the sea and land. Many seismic shakes will be reported between the 2nd and the 8th, central on the 4th, 5th and 6th. A great cold wave will rush from the northwest, spreading south and east from the 5th to 10th.

A reactionary storm period is central at the magnetic crisis of winter solstice, on the 11th, 12th and 13th. Look at this time for a spell of continuous threatening, stormy weather. Navigation on the Atlantic ocean will be perilous, and prolonged. Volcanic unrest and outbursts, with earth currents and auroral illuminations, will be at maximum, causing seismic disturbance in many places, outside the limits of the regular seismic periods.

A regular storm period is central on the 15th, extending from the 13th to the 17th. Low barometer, sudden change to warmer, with possible lightning and thunder and rain, will appear to southward about the 13th and on the 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th general winter solstice storms will be natural over seas and land, covering most prats of the northern hemisphere. High barometer, sweeping gales and great cold will bring up the rear of storm areas.

A reactionary storm period will bring change to warmer, with renewed rain and snow, on and touching the 20th, 21st, and 22nd. The disturbances at this time will centre about the new moon on the 20th, this being the centre of another seismic period, extending from the 18th to the 22nd. This period will add to the accumulations of snow and ice, resulting from previous solstice storms, and winter's cold will tighten its grip with the high barometer following the storms. A regular storm period covers the last week of the year, being central on the 27th. Storms will bring rain and probable thunder and lightning on and touching the 28th, but snow and sleet will follow. High barometer northwest gales and cold, fair weather will prevail in most parts of the country as we pass into 1912.

A GOVERNMENT OF ACTION

Under Liberal rule there was a School Book Ring in Ontario, and enormous profits were made by the firms producing them.

These profits came out of the pockets of the parents.

Sir James and his colleagues promised if they attained office they would break said ring and see that books were placed on the market at a fair price, and they have done it.

First of all a commission was appointed, and their findings amazed the province.

They found, among other things.

1. The mechanical production of text-books in Ontario was inferior, and the Department of Education had been remiss in neglecting to provide for adequate supervision of the quality of paper, the method of binding and the general appearance of the books.

2. The system of selecting an author, not necessarily the best qualified, to prepare a text-book, of naming the publisher and the price, so that the publisher planned to make money rather than produce a good book, resulted in unsatisfactory work.

3. Profits were excessive for inferior books, and in the case of the Public School Readers alone, five books, the whole set costing about forty cents to produce, retailed at $1.30, reduced later to $1.15.

4. The loose management of the Department enabled the publishers to secure renewal of contracts by the acquirement of copyrights which should have been controlled by the Department.

5. In the case of the Public School Readers the parents of the children during the existence of the contract, had paid $200,000 more than they ought to have been asked to pay.

6. Too many text-books—as many as three in one subject—were authorized, thus entailing a burden on parents.

A reform was at once commenced, and the tenders asked, with the following result:

Primer................................	10c	4c
First................................	15c	6c
Second Reader................................	20c	9c
Third Reader................................	30c	14c
Fourth Reader................................	40c	16c
Total for the set............	$1.15	49c

Other text-books were reduced in price in the same manner, with the result that the entire cost of books, including readers, is now $2.79, as compared with $4.55.

The saving on the following books during the terms of the contract are:

Public School Readers, a saving of................................	$360,000
Copybooks, a saving of................................	102,000
Arithmetic, a saving of................................	78,000
Grammar, a saving of................................	52,000
Speller, a saving of................................	78,000
Geography, a saving of................................	47,000
Hygiene, a saving of................................	10,000
History, a saving of................................	43,000

High School books have also been reduced in like manner, with the following outcome:

Arithmetic, a saving of over................................	$ 16,000
Algebra, a saving of over................................	21,000
Geometry, a saving of over................................	29,000
Latin, a saving of over................................	28,000
German Grammar, a saving of over................................	5,000
Chemistry, a saving of over................................	3,000
Ancient History, a saving of over................................	9,000
Physical Geography, a saving of over................................	24,000
Bookkeeping, a saving of over................................	6,000

"Without including the total savings on the drawing books, which will certainly exceed $20,000, the savings on public school books during the life of the present contracts will total $770,000; and the savings on high school books during the same period will total over $200,000, without taking into account the savings to arise from the reductions to be made in the prices of the five books to be issued during this year. The total relative savings on all authorized text-books during the year of the new contracts will exceed $1,000,000." (Quoted from an official return laid before the Legislature on March 20th, 1911, and printed for public distribution.)

EARLY MORNING FIRE AT BARN

Horse Was Burned About the Head and Neck

Fire broke out in the barn of Dr. McGrath at the rear of his residence 539 George street, at 2.15 this morning. The brigade responded quickly to a telephone call and soon had the fire under control with two line of hose. The horses and rigs were taken out of the barn, but one of the animals was badly burned about the head and neck and is under the care of Dr. Rogers.

The fire was caused by combustion and the damage done to the building will amount to about $300, and to the contents about $75.

GOOD PROGRAM AT PARK STREET

Young Ladies Missionary Circle Provided Fine Entertainment

A most successful concert and social was held last night in the Park street Baptist church parlors, under the auspices of the young ladies' missionary society.

The program consisted of solos and dialogues which were given in a very able way, by all who took part.

A scripture cake, made up of ingredients found in the Bible, was a feature of the social, and all who ate, wanted more.

The large audience appreciated the efforts of the young ladies, who are to be congratulated upon the success of their undertaking.

The program was as follows—

Devotional—Pastor, Rev. W. C. Riddiford.

Instrumental—Harold Follis.

Chairman's remarks—Mr. W. Moore

Solo—Miss Maud Smith.

Reading—Percy Hill.

Dialogue.

Solo—Mr. Frank Pratt.

Solo—Miss Ethel Hill.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Young People of St. James Church Collected $30

A very successful entertainment was held in St. James' church last evening by the junior league. It was the occasion also of taking in the missionary money collected by the junior Leaguers.

The juniors have been using mite boxes shaped like different kinds of fruit, and last night they had a harvest ingathering, and were able to report a sum slightly over $30, as a result of their efforts.

About fifty boys and girls took part in a program which followed.

Chorus—"Dropping Pennies"— The whole League.

Recitation—Eva Payne.

Piano duet—Miss Tanner and Miss Gillespie.

Solo—Ruby Moss.

Recitation—Bert Jeffries.

Selection on hand bells —Mrs. Braund.

Dialogue—"Honesty the Best Policy"—9 boys.

Piano duet—Misses Smith and Kemp.

Recitation—Mary Wood.

Hoop drill—Twelve girls.

Violin duet—Roy Braund and Baden Greene.

Solo—"Row me over the Tide"—May Gray.

Reading—"The Boy Jesus"—Earl Barrie.

Chorus—"Oh Canada"—The League.

At the conclusion of the concert the League was complimented by the pastor, Rev. J. G. Brown, on their meritorious efforts.

MORE ANSWERS

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q. What is Astigmatism of the eye?

A. Astigmatism is an uneven curvature of the eye and causes double focus. As the eye always strives for clear vision this double focus annoys the brain and causes headache and nervousness. We make lenses called cylinders to correct astigmatism.

Q. What causes double vision?

A. Double vision is caused by the eyes not being in line, that is, one may turn up or have a tendency to do so, or both may turn in; a weak muscular system is back of it all.

We would be pleased to have you call and let us explain how such conditions can be relieved with glasses.

LABOR MEN WANT M'NAMARA HANGED; ARE DETERMINED ON IT

Gompers is Opposed to Capital Punishment--Leaves Matter to Trial Judge---Labor to Investigate the Case.

New York, Dec. 4.—The revelations at Los Angeles as to the dynamite outrages in the United States in connection with labor disputes are shaking the American nation to its very foundations.

Organized labor is involved, and is likely to be still further involved.

The revelations are only beginning. There are many more culprits than the McNamaras, and some of them are higher up.

Outrage after outrage has occurred, and the men mixed up with them are likely to be unearthed.

The money for the outrages came from somewhere. Where? The American people are determined to know. The Federal Government is already investigating the Indianapolis outrages, and they will investigate the others with increased energy after the confessions at Los Angeles.

The manufacturers are severe in their criticism of Samuel Gompers, the head of organized labor.

Should Pay Penalty.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 4.—The Central Labor Union of Spokane, representing 4,500 union men, is shaping plans for a country-wide movement to obtain the maximum penalty for the Los Angeles dynamiters. The program is to have every labor union organisation in the United States telegraph to the California authorities before next Tuesday morning, urging that the limit sentence allowed by the laws of the state be imposed upon the McNamara brothers for the crimes they have confessed.

Want Them Hanged.

Indianapolis, Dec. 3.—That the McNamara brothers should be hanged, not imprisoned, was the conviction expressed Saturday in statements by officials of three national labor organizations that have headquarters in this city.

"The McNamaras took human life, and, just as in any other case, the penalty should be life for life," declared Frank Duffy, national secretary of the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union. "They deluded us, and we went down in our pockets for them. We don't want such men in organized labor."

"It is awful," said J. W. Dougherty, international secretary of the Bookbinders' Union. "As far as I am concerned, they cannot hang them up too high to suit me."

Opposes Hanging.

New York, Dec. 4.—"I am not a hound. I am not a hound. I do not seek human life in punishment for any crime."

This was the angry exclamation of Samuel Gompers last night on his return from Troy, when shown a despatch from Spokane stating that the Central Labor Council of that city is planning a country-wide movement to obtain the maximum punishment for the Los Angeles dynamiters. Mr. Gompers made an impatient gesture as he finished reading the despatch and vigorously shook his head.

"I do not believe in capital punishment under any circumstances," he

ANOTHER DISPUTE SETTLED

Winnipeg, Dec. 3— Another long-standing dispute between the Dominion government and the government of Manitoba has been settled by friendly negotiations. For several years past the Manitoba government has been anxious to exetnd its Parliament Building at Winnipeg by purchasing adjacent property belonging to the Department of Militia and Defence. The property was quite unsuitable for the purpose of barracks but the Laurier Government refused to sell it for less than $1,000,000. By the terms of the present agreement the Militia Department will receive a sum said to be about $200,000, sufficient to erect new barrack on a more suitable site, and the Provincial government will be enabled to improve the Parliament Building and to extend the grounds about it as desired.

REBELS CAPTURE NANKING REVOLUTION IS SPREADING

White Flag Flies Over Centre of Attack—Yuan's Colleagues Resigning and Difficulties Are Increasing in Celestial Land.

Nanking, Dec. 4.—The revolutionary forces took possession of the city on Saturday morning, after a parley with the Imperial Government forces, who were in occupation. At midday the white flag was displayed on Lion Fort, inside the walls to the northwest, indicating that the gunners had joined the revolution.

Gen. Li Yuen Heng, the revolutionary leader, who had captured Tiger Fort a few days ago, occupied Shaikwan, a town on the banks of the river outside the City of Nanking. Thereupon the warships under the command of Admiral Sah, which had hitherto been two miles down the river, cautiously approached and took up a position under the guns of Lion Hill Fort.

Gen. Lin, second in command of the revolutionary forces, took the Taiping gate and then arranged the terms of capitulation of the entire city. Later on the revolutionary troops entered and took possession of the telegraph office. White flags began to appear everywhere, and no fighting occurred when the revolutionaries entered the streets.

Bad For the Throne.

Pekin, Dec. 4.—Late developments are all unfavorable to the Imperialists, whose hopes rise and fall with every change. Yesterday they were dejected because Urga, the capital of Mongolia, which like Lhassa heretofore has been held by force, has now taken occasion to declare its independence and has expelled the Chinese officers.

Various reports reaching Pekin indicate that Manchuria, which up to the present has been only passively rebellious, is likely soon to become an active factor in the revolution. Gen. Chao Erhhsun, viceroy, reports that Japanese are assisting the revolutionaries, that they are importing dynamite for the rebels and even joining the rebel ranks.

The Chinese Foreign Board yesterday called attention to the arrest of four Japanese at Mukden on the charge of throwing bombs. The Chinese officials assert that one of the Japanese has confessed that general rising had been planned for Dec. 5. The Japanese legation, in answer to the protest of the Chinese Government, disclaimed any knowledge of these reports, but added that efforts would be made to prevent individual Japanese from breaking neutrality.

Continued resignations from the Government, including the Viceroy of Honan and the Finance Minister recently appointed to Yua Shi Kai's Cabinet, leave the Premier more than ever a one-man government.

The newspapers are beginning to voice the popular idea that Premier Yuan intends soon to declare himself regent. Evidently the Premier, not being able to bring the rebels to terms which would be acceptable to the Manchus, intends to do further fighting.

Clan Fighting Near Amoy.

Amoy, Dec. 4.—Clan fighting continues in the northwestern quarter of the city. A number of irresponsible bands of men representing themselves to be revolutionists are traversing the country and blackmailing the inhabitants of the villages.

A band of 300 ruffians armed with nondescript weapons have demanded enrollment at Amoy, but the revolutionary leaders have refused to accept them, and the men are now threatening to cause trouble.

Alleged Murderer Arrested.

Lethbridge, Alta., Dec. 4.—Behind iron bars at the police station, with a special guard in charge, is John M. Anderson, who is believed by the Calgary police to be an accomplice in the murder of John Middleton in Calgary a few days ago. His arrest was accomplished Saturday afternoon by Detective Egan of the city police, who has been working in conjunction with Sergt. Lamb, who was acting at the time as a plain clothesman for special purposes. He was picked up on Crabb street, where it appeared he was about to begin his work of peddling jewelry.

WADED INTO THE NIAGARA RAPIDS, WENT OVER FALLS

Suicide of a St. Catharines Man—Was a Premediated Deed.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Dec. 4.—The police believe the man who committed suicide by going over the American falls Saturday night was Hugh J. Adams, 30 years old, a farm hand who have been working near St. Catharines. The description of the suicide tallies with that of Adams in all but one particular. Adams had a moustache when he left St. Catharines for the falls, but the suicide was clean shaven.

About 7 o'clock Saturday night, Reservation Officers John Wilson and Arthur Alexander saw a man standing in the glare of the park electric lights on the river bank, a short distance above the falls, just outside the iron railing that guards the river. They shouted to him to come back, but he paid no attention. The man calmly waded into the rapids above the falls, and while the officers made futile efforts to rescue him, he was carried over the falls. All efforts to locate the body have been unsuccessful.

Chief Thomas Lyons yesterday afternoon received a telephone message from Chief Greene, St. Catharines, to the effect that Adams had left St Catharines with the avowed intention of going over the falls.

Montreal Station Master Dead.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—P. C. Caron, Grand Trunk station master here, died yesterday morning of Bright's disease. He had been ailing for some time. Mr. Caron had been in the employ of the railway for forty years, and had been station master for the last decade.

Special To The Review.

Jersey City, Dec. 4—Night watchman, Ockrey, lost his life and four hundred horses were suffocated in a fire which destroyed the United States Express Company's main building here this morning. All of the records of the company were burned and altogether the loss is estimated at over one million dollars.

NOMINATION DAY HERE

Seven Ridings Without Liberal Candidates

But Contests in Many Ridings Will be Nominal

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—Liberal organizer, Inwood stated to-day at noon that Liberal candidates would be nominated in all but seven Ontario constituencies.

J. S. Carstairs, Conservative organizer, believes there will be nearly twenty Conservatives elected by acclamation and a nominal contest in fifteen other ridings.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—All roads to-day lead to the nomination halls. All over the province the official nominations for the Legislature are being held, and very soon the candidates will be doing their utmost to secure their election.

Sir James P. Whitney, Premier of Ontario, will speak at Winchester Springs, Dundas County, at his own nomination. The leader of the Opposition, N. W. Rowell, K.C., will speak at the North Oxford nomination in Woodstock.

Although thirty seats lacked Liberal candidates a week ago, F. G. Inwood, Liberal organizer for the province, was confident that by to-night every vacancy would be filled.

"I don't believe there will be a single acclamation outside of Toronto in the province,' he said. "The only constituencies where candidates have not yet been secured are: Carleton, East Durham, East Hastings, West Hastings, North Hastings, Lincoln, London and East Victoria.

Conventions are being held in London, East and West Hastings to-day, and candidates secured.

"This only leaves five constituencies on which I have not received the latest advices, but I am not looking for a single acclamation in the province.

"It will not be necessary to hold conventions in many cases," he said, "as the local executives will name candidates."

Twenty-five members of the last Legislature have not been renominated. Of these eighteen are Conservatives out of eighty-seven, and seven are Liberals out of eighteen.

Including Duncan Ross, who was elected in 1908, there are eight Liberals.

A. E. Hacker of the local Liberals refused to state whether the Liberals would put men in the field for the remaining three York constituencies.

The Independent Labor party has candidates in each constituency in the county, and will put up a strong fight.

Telegraph Service Affected.

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—The Department of the naval service has been advised by the National Radio Telegraph service at Berne that wireless messages to Italian coast points are accepted only at sender's risk and must not be written in code. This notice is issued on account of the conditions of war between Turkey and Italy.

Westmount Took Census.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—Discontented with the population with which their thriving suburb was credited by the federal census, the town councillors of Westmount Saturday conducted a census of their own. The final figures will be announced to-morrow, as in some cases the enumerators found no one at home.

Surgeon's Spartan Spirit.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 4.—Dr. Louis S. Booth, 26 years old, an attending physician at a local hospital, was operated upon for appendicitis without taking an aesthetic. He was so placed upon the operating table that he was able to watch the operation from beginning to end, making suggestions as to how it should be done. A rapid recovery is expected.

Canon of Worcester Dead.

London, Dec. 4.—Rev. Thomas T. Shore, canon of Worcester since 1891, and chaplain-in-ordinary to the King, died yesterday. He was born in Dublin in 1841. He was honorary chaplain to Queen Victoria in 1878, chaplain-in-ordinary to King Edward VII. He was religious instructor to the daughters of King Edward.

ITALIAN SOLDIERS SUFFER FROM CHOLERA.

CARRYING CHOLERA PATIENTS TO THE HOSPITAL, TRIPOLI.

The dread cholera has been a hardship on the Italian troops now engaged at war with the Turks in Tripoli. The accompanying pictures show the soldiers carrying the cholera patients to the hospital. Together with this, the sandstorms in that country are very severe and hamper the soliders considerably. War is surely hell.

PERSIANS ARE ANGRY AT SIR EDWARD GREY FOR HIS STAND

Say That They Will Appeal to the United States—Russian Troops are Advancing.

Teheran, Dec. 4.—Ten thousand persons carrying banners with the inscription: "Death or Independence," marched to the American legation yesterday and appealed to the Minister to urge the Government to support the American principles of fair play and love of justice.

The English community here is aroused against Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, and think that Mr. Shuster, the Treasurer-General of Persia, outplayed him by revoking the appointments of Englishmen, to which Sir Edward objected. The British correspondents here are making it very plain in their despatches that they believe that the British Foreign Minister is ruining the prestige of his own countrymen, which might be regarded as "Laughable, if it was not tragic."

Two thousand additional Russian troops have arrived thirty miles south of Resht.

The Cabinet has resigned. A small body of Cossacks have arrived here to protect the Russian legation. Two hundred Cossacks have reached Kasbin. The Russian troops at Resht have disarmed the local Persian militia and occupied the telegraph office. They are acting as though war had been declared.

PROBABILITIES

Moderate winds, fair and cold, but some snow flurries Tuesday, fair with rising temperature.

"FLIP-FLOP" ON THE POWER QUESTION BY THE EXAMINER

The attitude of the Stratton organ on the power question has been rather amusing. Of course it has been doing its level best to offset the hydro-electric proposal to give cheappower to Peterborough, as a political force. It has had to urge many defects and many objections to the hydro-electric system, as a "vote-catching" expedient. As yet the Examiner has not explained to its readers that the reason the hydro-electric commission and the Whitney government could do nothing for Peterborough before was that the Dominion government and Hon George P. Graham held the keys, and refused to unlock the door to any save their political friends like Mr Hall. The Examiner has shown secret hostility to the hydro-electric, instead of welcoming it. For instance, it has been telling the people that Peterborough must not commit itself to the hydro-electric proposal by vote in the present campaign—just as if a vote for Peck and the consequent encouraging of the commission were binding Peterborough to anything.

It might be made quite clear that before Peterborough is bound to accept any proposal whatever, the people will have a chance to vote on the by-law, and its merits and demerits will be explained. But on Saturday the Examiner made what might be regarded as quite a flip-flop. It now announces that it would like to see the hydro-electric come in, if it has a good proposal. That is almost too good to believe. Is the Examiner convinced that power competition would be a good thing? The flip-flop from its previous position of secret hostility to the power-at-cost scheme is remarkable, and a tribute to the strength of public opinion on the question. The Stratton organ was opposed to a scheme that is in the best interests of Peterborough Where does it stand now? Only a mind-reader knows. It has flopped into line, as the following comparison of quotations from it will show, but how long will it stay there?

MONDAY, NOV. 27.

The citizens of Toronto were very much deceived when they thought they were going to get "cheap electric light and power at cost" from the Hydro-Electric Commission. The same game is endeavored to be worked in Peterborough.

FRIDAY, NOV. 24.

Just on the eve of an election the Whitney government is waking up as to power in eastern Ontario—it wants to get votes at cost by giving "power at cost." Will it do more than promise? Will it deliver "the goods?"

FRIDAY, Dec. 1

If Mr. Beck makes such a mistake in boom power possibilities for Peterborough, it shows that—with all his experience, his heart is not in the matter, and leads to the suspicion that he regards the matter as a vote-catching expedient, and the bigger the bait the bigger the catch.

SATURDAY, DEC. 2.

The Examiner is falsely accused of being opposed to the Hydro-Electric policy. It is not opposed to it on its merits, it only insists on its being dealt with on its merits, and not as a political expedient.

The Hydro-Electric power proposal must be dealt with on its merits, and ten or a dozen days is not sufficient to disclose its merits sufficiently to the point of influencing votes and committing ourselves to its adoption. If it is a good proposal, if it is in the interests of Peterborough, by all means let us adopt it.

Peterborough should have light and power, at as low a rate as possible, but we want to be sure of our ground—not buy a pig in a poke.

THE KING AND QUEEN LAN

Their Majesties Warm We come at Bombay.

Natives Much Impressed Their Emperor.

Bombay, Dec. 4.—"King-Empe George, and "Queen-Empress" M as they are officially styled since th arrival in their great eastern empi landed from the steamer Medina Saturday, at the Quay at the Apo Bunder at four o'clock.

They were met by the governor Bombay and a large gathering of hi officials belonging to the civil military service. They at once p ceeded to a huge amphitheatre w had been erected opposite the landi stage and which was filled to its most capacity with many thousan who had come to welcome Their jesties.

The scene was a remarkably b liant one. The handsome levee dr of the officials and the uniforms the naval and military officers, gether with the bright toilettes of women, only served to emphasise gorgeous hues of the ceremonial tire of the Indian chieftains.

Behind these were massed an mense throng composed of Hind Mohammedans, Parsees and Arabs, attired in richly colored festival tumes.

Addresses of welcome were prese ed to the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress, by the municipal and other bodies, to which His jesty replied.

A royal procession was subseque ly formed. It was a mile in le and comprised representatives of branches of the European and na armies in India. It subsequently versed all parts of the gaily decor city.

The native quarters presented quaint appearance, forests of ma along the streets bearing a multi of native religious symbols, repr tative of the various sects.

Enormous crowds everywhere he ily acclaimed Their Majesties, who turned to the Medina at 5.30 in evening.

Badly Burned by Electricity.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—While experim ing with the main electrical swi board at the car barns, corner Frederick and Front streets, late evening, William Lyons was burned about the hands and face. pulled a switch believing it to dead, but through which much po was running. He was taken to General Hospital. He is considered be in a critical condition. No one the accident.

Nurses Threatened.

Guelph, Dec. 4.—Misses Arkell a Ferguson, two nurses in training the General Hospital, were awakened about two o'clock Saturd morning by a man running an under their pillows, evidently feeli for valuables. One of them raised outcry and was warned by the in der to desist or she would death.

With that the intruder made way to a window by which he entered, with the assistance of a l der, and disappeared. Harry Jo night watchman, saw the man ing and notified the police, who w able to follow the tracks in the new fallen snow to Arthur street, whe they arrested a man named Ja O'Connor, who occupies two r with his wife. He came here about week ago from Detroit, he claims. pleaded not guilty and was reman ed. This is the second time in a co ple of months that nurses have similarly disturbed.

Sailor's Death Accidental.

Cornwall, Dec. 4.—The inquest the cause of the death of Robert hoe of Cleveland, Ohio, a sailor the steamer Senator Derbyshire, w was killed at Lock 17 of the Cornw Canal on Nov. 25, resulted in a dict of accidental death. It was parent that Kehoe had his choice a rope ladder or a rope to climb side of the steamer after releasing from the snubbing posts and sail like chose the rope. Either his mi or the rope or both were icy, therefore it was easy for him to down between the boat and the wall, as the boat swung in. No bla was attributed to anyone co with the steamer.

As none of Kehoe's relatives co be located, the remains were inter at Cornwall.

Alleged Murderer Arrested.

Lethbridge, Alta., Dec. 4.—Behind iron bars at the police station, with a special guard in charge, is John M. Anderson, who is believed by the Calgary police to be an accomplice in the murder of John Middleton in Calgary a few days ago. His arrest was accomplished Saturday afternoon by Detective Egan of the city police, who has been working in conjunction with Sergt. Lamb, who was acting at the time as a plain clothesman for special purposes. He was picked up on Crabb street, where it appeared he was about to begin his work of peddling jewelry.

WADED INTO THE NIAGARA RAPIDS, WENT OVER FALLS

Suicide of a St. Catharines Man—Was a Premeditated Deed.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Dec. 4.—The police believe the man who committed suicide by going over the American falls Saturday night was Hugh J. Adams, 30 years old, a farm hand who have been working near St. Cathdrines. The description of the suicide tallies with that of Adams in all but one particular. Adams had a moustache when he left St. Catharines for the falls, but the suicide was clean shaven.

About 7 o'clock Saturday night, Reservation Officers John Wilson and Arthur Alexander saw a man standing in the glare of the park electric lights on the river bank, a short distance above the falls, just outside the iron railing that guards the river. They shouted to him to come back, but he paid no attention. The man calmly waded into the rapids above the falls, and while the officers made futile efforts to rescue him, he was carried over the falls. All efforts to locate the body have been unsuccessful.

Chief Thomas Lyons yesterday afternoon received a telephone message from Chief Greene, St. Catharines, to the effect that Adams had left St Catharines with the avowed intention of going over the falls.

Montreal Station Master Dead.

Montreal, Dec. 4—P. C. Caron, Grand Trunk station master here, died yesterday morning of Bright's disease. He had been ailing for some time. Mr. Caron had been in the employ of the railway for forty years, and had been station master for the last decade.

PAY HOMAGE TO KING AND QUEEN

Indian Princes Appear Before Their Majesties at Bombay

Special To The Review.

Bombay, Dec. 4.— Many native princes in gorgeous apparel, paid their homage to the King and Queen to-day. They knelt and kissed his Majesty's hand. King George distributed many presents.

BIG LOSS TO EXPRESS CO.

Nightwatchman and Four Hundred Horses Lost in Fire

Estimated Loss of $1,000,000—All Records Ware Burned

Special To The Review.

Jersey City, Dec. 4—Night watchman, Ockrey, lost his life and four hundred horses were suffocated in a fire which destroyed the United States Express Company's main building here this morning. All of the records of the company were burned and altogether the loss is estimated at over one million dollars.

NOMINATION DAY HERE

Seven Ridings Without Liberal Candidates

But Contests in Many Ridings Will be Nominal

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—Liberal organizer, Inwood stated to-day at noon that Liberal candidates would be nominated in all but seven Ontario constituencies.

J. S. Carstairs, Conservative organizer, believes there will be nearly twenty Conservatives elected by acclamation and a nominal contest in fifteen other ridings.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—All roads to-day lead to the nomination halls. All over the province the official nominations for the Legislature are being held, and very soon the candidates will be doing their utmost to secure their election.

Sir James P. Whitney, Premier of Ontario, will speak at Winchester Springs, Dundas County, at his own nomination. The leader of the Opposition, N. W. Rowell, K.C., will speak at the North Oxford nomination in Woodstock.

Although thirty seats lacked Liberal candidates a week ago, F. G. Inwood, Liberal organizer for the province, was confident that by to-night every vacancy would be filled.

"I don't believe there will be a single acclamation outside of Toronto in the province,' he said. "The only constituencies where candidates have not yet been secured are: Carleton, East Durham, East Hastings, West Hastings, North Hastings, Lincoln, London and East Victoria.

Conventions are being held in London, East and West Hastings to-day, and candidates secured.

"This only leaves five constituencies on which I have not received the latest advices, but I am not looking for a single acclamation in the province.

"It will not be necessary to hold conventions in many cases," he said, "as the local executives will name candidates."

Twenty-five members of the last Legislature have not been renominated. Of these eighteen are Conservatives out of eighty-seven, and seven are Liberals out of eighteen.

Including Duncan Ross, who was elected in 1908, there are eight Liberals.

A. E. Hacker of the local Liberals refused to state whether the Liberals would put men in the field for the remaining three York constituencies.

The Independent Labor party has candidates in each constituency in the county, and will put up a strong fight.

Telegraph Service Affected.

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—The Department of the naval service has been advised by the National Radio Telegraph service at Berne that wireless messages to Italian coast points are accepted only at sender's risk and must not be written in code. This notice is issued on account of the conditions of war between Turkey and Italy.

Westmount Took Census.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—Discontented with the population with which their thriving suburb was credited by the federal census, the town councillors of Westmount Saturday conducted a census of their own. The final figures will be announced to-morrow, as in some cases the enumerators found no one at home.

Surgeon's Spartan Spirit.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 4.—Dr. Louis S. Booth, 26 years old, an attending physician at a local hospital, was operated upon for appendicitis without taking an aesthetic. He was so placed upon the operating table that he was able to watch the operation from beginning to end, making suggestions as to how it should be done. A rapid recovery is expected.

Canon of Worcester Dead.

London, Dec. 4.—Rev. Thomas T. Shore, canon of Worcester since 1891, and chaplain-in-ordinary to the King, died yesterday. He was born in Dublin in 1841. He was honorary chaplain to Queen Victoria in 1878, chaplain-in-ordinary to King Edward VII. He was religious instructor to the daughters of King Edward.

ITALIAN SOLDIERS SUFFER FROM CHOLERA.

CARRYING CHOLERA PATIENTS TO THE HOSPITAL, TRIPOLI.

The dread cholera has been a hardship on the Italian troops now engaged at war with the Turks in Tripoli. The accompanying pictures show the soldiers carrying the cholera patients to the hospital. Together with this, the sandstorms in that country are very severe and hamper the soldiers considerably. War is surely hell.

PERSIANS ARE ANGRY AT SIR EDWARD GREY FOR HIS STAND

Say That They Will Appeal to the United States—Russian Troops are Advancing.

Teheran, Dec. 4.—Ten thousand persons carrying banners with the inscription: "Death or Independence," marched to the American legation yesterday and appealed to the Minister to urge the Government to support the American principles of fair play and love of justice.

The English community here is aroused against Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, and think that Mr. Shuster, the Treasurer-General of Persia, outplayed him by revoking the appointments of Englishmen, to which Sir Edward objected. The British correspondents here are making it very plain in their despatches that they believe that the British Foreign Minister is ruining the prestige of his own countrymen, which might be regarded as "Laughable, if it was not tragic."

Two thousand additional Russian troops have arrived thirty miles south of Rosht.

The Cabinet has resigned. A small body of Cossacks have arrived here to protect the Russian legation. Two hundred Cossacks have reached Kasbin. The Russian troops at Rosht have disarmed the local Persian militia and occupied the telegraph office. They are acting as though war had been declared.

PROBABILITIES

Moderate winds, fair and cold, but some snow flurries Tuesday, fair with rising temperature.

The attitude of the Stratton organ on the power question has been rather amusing. Of course it has been doing its level best to offset the hydro-electric proposal to give cheap power to Peterborough, as a political force. It has had to urge many defects and many objections to the hydro-electric system, as a "vote-catching" expedient. As yet the Examiner has not explained to its readers that the reason the hydro-electric commission and the Whitney government could do nothing for Peterborough before was that the Dominion government and Hon George P. Graham held the keys, and refused to unlock the door to any save their political friends like Mr. Hall. The Examiner has shown secret hostility to the hydro-electric, instead of welcoming it. For instance, it has been telling the people that Peterborough must not commit itself to the hydro-electric proposal by vote in the present campaign—just as if a vote for Peck and the consequent encouraging of the commission were binding Peterborough to anything.

It might be made quite clear that before Peterborough is bound to accept any proposal whatever, the people will have a chance to vote on the by-law, and its merits and demerits will be explained. But on Saturday the Examiner made what might be regarded as quite a flip-flop. It now announces that it would like to see the hydro-electric come in, if it has a good proposal. That is almost too good to believe. Is the Examiner convinced that power competition would be a good thing? The flip-flop from its previous position of secret hostility to the power-at-cost scheme is remarkable, and a tribute to the strength of public opinion on the question. The Stratton organ was opposed to a scheme that is in the best interests of Peterborough Where does it stand now? Only a mind-reader knows. It has flopped into line, as the following comparison of quotations from it will show, but how long will it stay there?

MONDAY, NOV. 27.

The citizens of Toronto were very much deceived when they thought they were going to get "cheap electric light and power at cost" from the Hydro-Electric Commission. The same game is endeavored to be worked in Peterborough.

FRIDAY, NOV. 24.

Just on the eve of an election the Whitney government is waking up as to power in eastern Ontario—it wants to get votes at cost by giving "power at cost." Will it do more than promise? Will it deliver "the goods?"

FRIDAY, Dec. 1

If Mr. Beck makes such a mistake in boom power possibilities for Peterborough, it shows that—with all his experience, his heart is not in the matter, and leads to the suspicion that he regards the matter as a vote-catching expedient, and the bigger the bait the bigger the catch.

SATURDAY, DEC. 2.

The Examiner is falsely accused of being opposed to the Hydro-Electric policy. It is not opposed to it on its merits, it only insists on its being dealt with on its merits, and not as as a political expedient.

The Hydro-Electric power proposal must be dealt with on its merits, and ten or a dozen days is not sufficient to disclose its merits sufficiently to the point of influencing votes and committing ourselves to its adoption. If it is a good proposal, if it is in the interests of Peterborough, by all means let us adopt it.

• • •

Peterborough should have light and power, at as low a rate as possible, but we want to be sure of our ground—not buy a pig in a poke.

THE KING AND QUEEN LAN

Their Majesties Warm W come at Bombay.

Natives Much Impressed Their Emperor.

They were met by the governor Bombay and a large gathering of hi officials belonging to the civil military service. They at once p ceeded to a huge amphitheatre w had been erected opposite the landi stage and which was filled to its most capacity with many thousan who had come to welcome Their jesties.

The scene was a remarkably b liant one. The handsome levee dr of the officials and the uniforms the naval and military officers, gether with the bright toilettes of women, only served to emphasise gorgeous hues of the ceremonial tire of the Indian chieftains.

Behind these were massed an i mense throng composed of Hind Mohammedans, Parsee and Arabs, attired in richly colored festival tumes.

Addresses of welcome were prese ed to the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress, by the municipal and other bodies, to which His jesty replied.

A royal procession was subseque ly formed. It was a mile in len and comprised representatives of branches of the European and na armies in India. It subsequently versed all parts of the gaily decor city.

The native quarters presented quaint appearance, forests of along the streets bearing a multit of native religious symbols, repres tative of the various sects.

Enormous crowds everywhere he ily acclaimed Their Majesties, who turned to the Medina at 5.30 in evening.

Badly Burned by Electricity.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—While experime ing with the main electrical swi board at the car barns, corner Frederick and Front streets, late evening, William Lyons was burned about the hands and face. pulled a switch believing it to dead, but through which much po was running. He was taken to General Hospital. He is considered be in a critical condition. No one the accident.

Nurses Threatened.

Guelph, Dec. 4.—Misses Arkell Ferguson, two nurses in training the General Hospital, were rud awakened about two o'clock Saturd morning by a man running an under their pillows, evidently feeli for valuables. One of them raised outcry and was warned by the int der to desist or she would death.

With that the intruder made way to a window by which he h entered, with the assistance of a l der, and disappeared. Harry Jon night watchman, saw the man e ing and notified the police, who w able to follow the tracks in the new fallen snow to Arthur street, whe they arrested a man named Ja O'Connor, who occupies two with his wife. He came here about week ago from Detroit, he claims. pleaded not guilty and was rema ed. This is the second time in a co ple of months that nurses have similarly disturbed.

Sailor's Death Accidental.

Cornwall, Dec. 4.—The inquest i the cause of the death of Robert hoe of Cleveland, Ohio, a sailor the steamer Senator Derbyshire, w was killed at Lock 17 of the Cornw Canal on Nov. 26, resulted in a v dict of accidental death. It was parent that Kehoe had his choice a rope ladder or a rope to climb side of the steamer after releasing from the snubbing posts and sail like chose the rope. Either his mi or the rope or both were icy, therefore it was easy for him to sl down between the boat and the wall, as the boat swung in. No bla was attributed to anyone co with the steamer.

As none of Kehoe's relatives co be located, the remains were inte at Cornwall.

RS. PANKHURST IN NEW YORK

Vhen Mrs. Pankhurst, escorted by New York women who are qua ing for suffragette leadership, t to Wall street the other day to n a campaign of "Votes for Wo n" among the serious and high ded brokers of that section, she ped the fruit of the shrieking, o-throwing, face-scratching de nstrations which have constituted propaganda in Great Britain, says Montreal Star.

Vall Street was willing to be am d by Mrs. Pankhurst and her par In fact, insisted on being amused them. Those who might have been ned to listen to a calm and sober ement of the case for female suf e showed no desire to participate ne of Mrs. Pankhurst's pandem ium parties, which left the way r for the messenger-boys, the ju clerks and other youngsters who no reverence, especially for suf ettes, and prefer a mild row to edifying lecture any day in the r.

It is al s better for a popular movement be suppressed by the law than hed off the scenes by unprejudic ut unsympathetic spectators, but police kept out of the way, and default of furnishing excitement, Pankhurst was reluctantly fo d to furnish amusement for a terous, mannerless but by no ns ruffianly crowd. It is to be ed that neither in Canada nor the ted States can the London suf ette movement be transplanted any advantage. MR. HALL'S TACTICS seems to be rather a tireless pro ing to follow the elusive Mr. Hall in campaign statements. He goes and the country producing nobody ere in French, printed in the year when Mr. Whitney had still years of opposition work ahead of and saying "There you are! See t Whitney is allowing in the ot system."

goes around the country, and that Hon. Adam Beck and the ro-electric are bluffing, when he aking in his shoes, lest the hydro- tric expropriate Dam No. 5, and it in to combine it with No. 4, thus ing possibly 4,820 horse-power which to supply electricity to rborough, if Peterborough wants

r. Hall finds on some occasions he can advocate a farm demons or, a sort of General Utility Serv ant to the farmers of the country. Then with the swiftness of an antelope, and the sureness of a deer, he jumps into Labor's Toga, and even though he is out in the country, talking to the farmers still, he begins to roar about the injustices under which [illegible] The sympathy which Robert Richard Hall feels for the oppressed workingmen would draw tears out of a stone Fruit. It is sympathy unparalleled. Mr. Hall is a man who stands ready to say anything, to promise anything, as long as a man will promise him a vote. It is a vote-catching expedition he is on, but no one is in the secret but Mr. Hall. The electors are easy and gullible 'to be sure, thinks Mr. Hall, and he puts his little gun on his shoulder, and forth he meanders.

The Whitney government will be returned with a large majority. The very best evidence of this is the fact that anywhere from a dozen to three dozen ridings will go by acclamation to the Conservatives, the Liberals not having any heart for a fight. Mr. Hall is quite well aware that he is fighting a losing fight, and that he has neither a hold in the country — which will do handsomely for Mr. Peck, nor has he gained in the city.

The bumptious young man, Hon Mackenzie King is being brought to Peterborough to coax more honey out of the Labor flower, but the weather is cold, and the flower has dried up for the busy bee, and next Monday the frost will lay him low.

It must be impressed on everyone, however, that no election is won by wishing. It is not won by prayers, either, as J. Israel Tarte used to say. It is won by the plunk, plunk of the ballots and only by the concentrated effort of the voters of the riding will Mr. Peck get the majority which he deserves as the candidate of honesty and good, progressive politics.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Examiner has jumped in behind the Power Procession.

Have you bought the Christmas stamp yet? Use the Health association stamp on all your correspondence.

We need competition in power. If we turn down the hydro-electric proposition, where shall we be twenty-five years from now? Still tied down fast by a monopoly?

The Whitney government offers to Peterborough in the next year or so, its great opportunity to become free; to come into its own in cheap power. A vote for Peck is an encouragement to the Whitney scheme

So, to be sure, the Stratton organ would like to see Peterborough get cheaper power, no matter where it comes from. Then it must join with the Review in supporting the People's Power At Cost movement.

The McNamara case was certainly surprising. The union men all over the country who so loyally contributed to that million dollar defence fund will get their money back (perhaps) in time to buy the Christmas turkey.

The new provincial law requiring hotels to be closed on Christmas goes into effect this year. The glad day will not be spoiled by a procession home-ward in the evening of the usual collection of hilarious ones. That will be the proper kind of a Christmas for the families at home.

It should be noted that a vote for Peck in this campaign means that Peterborough is willing to have the hydro-electric proceed with its plans to lay a proposition before the people of Peterborough, for a cheap power supply. A vote for Hall is a vote for the obstruction of the efforts of the hydro-electric.

We recollect that some months ago the Stratton organ in referring to something the Review had said about tariffs, quoted the lines:

While the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return."

Bringing this up to date, it might be said that:

While the (hydro) lamp holds out to burn,
The Stratton organ may return.

One of the Wrong Methods

A little girl from the East End of London (Eng.) was invited to a garden party given by a very aristocratic lady to a group of little slum children.

The little girl, as she drank her tea and ate her plum cake on a velvet lawn under a blooming cherry tree said to her hostess—

"Does your husband drink?"

"Why—er—no, not to excess," was the astonished reply.

"How much does he make?"

"He doesn't work," said the lady "He is a capitalist."

"You keep out of debt, I hope?"

"Of course, child. What on earth—"

"Your colour looks natural — I trust you don't paint?"

"Look here," exclaimed the hostess ("what do you mean by all these impudent questions?"

"Impudent?" said the little girl "Why ma'am, mother told me to be sure and behave like a lady, and when ladies call at our room they always question mother like that."

NATIONAL LAWS.

Precious Documents Not Properly Guarded Against Fire.

Statesmen tell us that this is a government of laws and not of men, but if a fire should sweep through the library of the state department on the third floor of the state, war and navy building the United States would not have any laws, so far as the original copies go. All the laws of this country, from the days of George Washington's administration down to the newest of all statutes, are in that room. They are written and printed on parchment and bound in volumes, being numbered in the order in which they reach the state department.

There are no fireproof cases in the library. Neither is there any fireproof vault. These unique documents are stored away in wooden cases which would readily make food for flames. There never has been a fire in the state department library, and no laws have been destroyed. There never was a fire in the capitol at Albany until it was swept by flames almost from top to bottom. While the state, war and navy building itself is considered to be a pretty good piece of fireproof construction, its office furnishings and equipment could readily be burned. Other departments of the government take better care of their documents than the state department does of its precious laws.—Washington Letter to Brooklyn Eagle.

RADIUM EXPERIMENT.

To Treat Disease Without Drugs and Without Surgery.

Although radium is no longer the world's wonder it was a few years ago, the opening in London of the Radium Institute as a public hospital free to the poor merits attention as another mark in the progress of civilization. The institute owes its origin to the initiative and the patronage of the late King Edward VII. and in a measure stands as a monument to commemorate his prompt sympathies with all the news movements of his time. But its essential worth lies in the part it is to play in advancing the science and the art of curing the thousand ills that flesh is heir to.

The new foundation is to treat disease without drugs, without surgery and also without mental suggestion or faith cure. All that can be done there, for awhile at least, will be largely in the nature of experiment. It is said that of the thirty persons who applied on the opening day only a few were given treatment. Evidently the new remedy is not to be rashly ventured. The very fact of caution exercised is, however, a promise of big results in future. The time may be not far distant when the new institute now so tentatively at work may be established among the foremost of the world renowned hospitals of the great city.—New York World.

Magnifying Sound.

The "telacoust," as lately patented in England, is a curious new instrument—a kind of sound telescope that catches a faint noise and magnifies, extending the range of the ear to four times the usual distance. The cup shaped receiver can be pointed to any direction. The sound waves from the distant source are brought to a focus by a parabolic reflector and are passed through a flexible tube to ear pieces. The volume of sound as thus concentrated is claimed to be twelve times as great as would reach the unaided ear. The instrument is expected to be especially valuable at sea, as it will not only pick up foghorn and other sounds, but can be made to show their direction by turning the receiver until the noise is strongest.

The Restored Campanile.

Venice's famous campanile has been restored. It collapsed nine years ago. It was originally a watchtower before the Christian world was yet in its teens. In the work of reconstruction one man has worked for years piecing together the 2,600 fragments of the figure of the Madonna and the Child. The figure of St. John was originally part of the group, but it was shattered to atoms in the fall. Four of the five bells have been recast, and their first peal was recorded by a gramophone, which was sent to Pope Pius X., who expressed his delight at their clear tones.—Argonaut.

The New Postage Stamp

The postmaster general has approved a new design for the two cent foreign single postal card, which will be placed on sale about Jan. 1, 1912. The subject of the stamp is a likeness of General U. S. Grant at the age of forty-seven, about a year after he became president. This portrait has been pronounced by General Frederick D. Grant an excellent likeness of his distinguished father.

Krupp Firm's Progress.

It is often stated that the great Krupp concern is little more than a department of the German government. How much truth there is in this assertion is shown by the announcement that the great ordnance factory recently delivered its fifty-thousandth cannon to the state authorities. Its first order of this sort was for a muzzle loading three pounder, made in 1847.—London Standard.

Smart Gowns in Buenos Aires.

European visitors who do not know South American conditions are surprised at the extravagance of many of the women's toilets in that part of the world. The most extravagant of French confections are often scarcely elaborate enough for Buenos Aires, and firms in Paris create specially expensive fashions for the South American trade.

A TENDERFOOT'S WOOING

— BY —

CLIVE PHILLIPPS WOLLEY

(AUTHOR OF "GOLD, GOLD IN CARIBOO," ETC.)

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

The old man nodded, and Rolt adjusting his sights to the five hundred yards range, cuddled down on his rifle.

"High or low?" he asked.

"I guess it's most solid near the bottom," chuckled Al.

Then Rolt drew a long breath, for a moment there was absolute silence, and then a little puff of dust, fifty yards beyond the sage brush, recorded the fact that the foresight had been taken too full. A few sprigs of the yellow weed fell, but otherwise there was no sign from the bush.

Rolt took the same bead again, but this time he took it upon the very base of his target. At his second shot the bush which he had watched for an hour became alive. A horrid scream followed the impact of his bullet and in place of the little fountain of golden dust, a man's body sprang high into the air and then pitched headlong on the near side of the bush writhing and tying itself into knots amongst the branches of the withered sage brush.

"Must be quite a holler ther; a'most as good as this one of ourn. I seed him coming from the time he started. Holy smoke!"

Al's ejaculation was the result of a perfect blizzard of bullets which suddenly burst upon the cherry patch, cutting the feeble brush into ribbons and tatters and making the defenders crouch in their lairs like frightened rabbits.

"Fire a good many shots for fifteen Injuns," growled Al. "Liker fifty. It's the hull Chilcoten tribe, blank 'em," and then rising recklessly to his knees, he roared, "Turn it loose, boys. Don't let the beggars get away," and he emptied the magazine of his repeater with a rapidity which would have done credit to a machine gun.

Five minutes earlier the Boss had tired of watching the motionless sage brush over which the hawk had swung and from which that coyote had retreated so promptly, and now whilst the rifles rattled and the smell of powder tainted the air, there were a dozen wild figures dashing from it for the pine belt.

Only two of them fell, and one of these got to his feet again and was hauled into cover by his fellows.

"Blanked bad shootin'. Say, Boss, that shot of yours turned on the hull bloomin' orchestra. How many did you git?"

"I'm afraid I did not touch one of them."

"Guess you're better at sitters. Didn't you spot any of 'em before I told you to shoot at that brush? Lord! I've been watching that fellow over there for nigh on to an hour. It's lucky as I didn't wait for him to come in range of my old shootin' iron."

"Why, what difference would it have made?"

"All the difference between living and dying. They'd have rushed us in another ten minutes, and shooting as we did, they would have got in. But I reckon they won't try that game any more for awhile."

Rolt sincerely hoped that they would not, or that if they did old Al's eyes would keep watch for them. In his own eyes he had lost all confidence.

For a long time silence fell again between the pines and the cherry trees. There was no sound, but for the crack of an occasional twig as one of the defenders moved uneasily in his narrow shelter; no movement except from that twisted figure by the sage brush.

It was a long time before that became quite still, and Rolt was thankful when that time came.

Before the attempted rush the sage brush had been equally still, and the memory of that fact so worried Rolt that he now began to imagine enemies in the most ridiculous grass patches. He was beginning to lose his sense of proportion and imagination magnified the most absurd trifles.

It was a relief when a single shot broke the strain of long waiting. The bullet dropped about a couple of hundred yards from the cherry patch and ricochetted through the highest branches of it. There was a slight pause and then a second shot from the same spot in the timber, the bullet dropping this time a hundred yards nearer Al's screen.

"Jest so," muttered Al, who had again crawled to Rolt's side, "and the next will be nearer still. They are getting our range now. Had ought to have done that the first go off. I guess there'll be no room here for two now. Lie low, boys, it's goin' to storm again," and he crawled back to his own position just as it began again to hail bullets.

For a good quarter of an hour the Indians in the timber kept up a steady stream of independent firing, as if they would fill up that little hollow with lead or reap the thin cover in it with their concentrated fire, but though their bullets cut down the standing brush as if it had been slashed, riddled it, and left it in flying tatters, the men under ground remained untouched. Neither did they attempt to reply.

"Don't stir, boys, and don't shoot back," commanded Al. "When they think they've killed every insect in this bloomin' brush patch, they'll maybe try some other racket. Then we'll get our work in."

CHAPTER XXI.

The Indians were very thorough in their work of destruction, and thanks to the looting of Rolt's store-house they had plenty of ammunition to spare, but at last even they were satisfied.

The cherry patch looked like a field after a Manitoban hail storm, and there could have been little doubt in the Chilcoten's minds that anything that had sheltered in it was as dead as Julius Caesar. But being Indians the elected to run no risks. When the firing ceased a sound of chopping began, and Rolt who should have known better, imagined that the cold-blooded brutes were going to feed before picking up their birds, but he misjudged them. An Indian is sufficiently cold-blooded, but not on the hunting trail or the war path. Then he thinks a great deal less of his belly than does a white man under similar circumstances.

Before long a great tree crashed down, and before the sound of its fall had died away, they saw the top of another lean slowly over, hang for a moment, and then disappear in a spray of shattered boughs and pine needles.

Three fell in all, and still the chopping went on. Then for the first time Rolt noticed what looked like a great saw log just outside the line of the pine trees, lying parallel with that line, and as he noticed it two more came to join it.

There was no doubt that they came; he saw them emerge slowly, like some footless monsters, moving sideways down the hill.

"Ah, here they come! They're gettin' down to business at last. That's more like Cree fightin'! I wouldn't have thought that they knowed so much," muttered Al.

But at first Rolt, who had not Al's experience, did not understand, and the sight of those three great pine logs creeping down abreast, apparently by their own volition, was very horrible.

From time to time a rifle spat redly from the timber, but for the most part the slow progress of the logs down the sloping prairie was made in absolute silence. The sun creeping across the heavens seemed to move faster than they did.

"We've got to get them other two over this side," said Al. "We can't stop them," pointing to the logs, "and when they get here there'll be a blanked hot time in the cherry patch."

"Can we spare them? Won't the Indians sneak round from behind?"

"Not likely, and if they do we've got to risk it, I guess they'll wipe us out this time," with which cheering remark he crept away, returning with Toma.

"I've left the other galloot where he was," he explained. "He ain't any account as a rifle shot, but he's so plum scared that he'll make a pretty smart looking man. Hulloh! What's got that log?"

The centre log had reached the spot where Al's hat lay, and as it passed over it, possibly one of the hands which propelled the log reached for the derelict "Stetson" which had been the old man's pride. At the same time the slope of the prairie increased suddenly, and this particular log had been trimmed too fine. By nature it had grown absolutely round, it was a white pine and young, and therefore smooth and heavy, and the men who had trimmed it had taken all the limbs off close to the trunk.

The result was that though it had crawled as slowly as its companions up to this point, as soon as it felt the sharper incline it began to turn over more freely, each revolution giving additional impetus, until it was obviously rolling.

Already it was twenty feet ahead of its companions, and then for a moment a brown hand showed above it. Al's rifle came to his shoulder, but he was too slow; the hand disappeared before he could press the trigger.

"Look out, Rolt," he cried. "They cain't hold it! It's got away with them! If they cain't stop it, they're our meat, sure," and he stood up recklessly to get a better chance with his rifle.

Faster and faster came the log, and again a hand showed, and this time an arm and shoulder with it, and the old man fired, but the arm, broken at the wrist, had fallen behind the log, before his bullet chipped the bark of it.

"Bully for you, Rolt. I take it all back about them sitters." But Rolt did not even smile. His lips were thin now and set, and his eyes were glued to that log, whilst he held his rifle as men hold their guns at the pigeon traps at Hurlingham.

If the covering party in the timber had been able to hit a haystack at seven hundred yards, the fate of Al and Rolt would have been sealed, for in the excitement of the moment both men stood up, every thought intent upon their pray, utterly regardless of the leaden bees which hummed harmlessly past them.

And then the expected happened. Four men however desperate cannot hold a green pine tree from behind when it begins to roll, and realizing this, one of the Indians let go and bolted back towards the timber. He fell with Rolt's bullet between his shoulders and Al's through his thigh before he had gone a dozen paces. The others held on for one more breathing space, and then the log broke clean away from them, rolling merrily down the hill, whilst three miserable devils writhed in the sage brush in the vain hope of hiding from the, white men's withering volley. One wretch ran perhaps for fifty yards with an arm swinging helplessly from his shoulder as he ran, and they saw him wince and stumble as a second bullet touched him.

"Outer to me, Boss," shouted Al, pumping up another cartridge, "bull to you," he added, regretfully, before he could fire again, as his fellow-creature collapsed in a heap and lay still.

Men fighting for their lives have no sentiment, and perhaps Al never had much at any time. The sight of blood had roused all his fighting instincts, and for the moment he was as reckless as he was pitiless.

"Oh shoot, and be blanked!" he cried, as half a dozen bullets hummed past him. "It's our turn now. Pull them other traps, cain't you."

But the other traps were not pulled. Whilst the centre log was betraying its masters, the two outside logs had come to a standstill, and so, in spite of Al's gibes and the bullets with which he made chips of them fly, they remained, great black bars on the prairie, three hundred yards from the cherry patch, whilst the November sun crawled down towards the horizon. Suddenly it dipped into a low lying bar of cloud and the light failed so suddenly that Al noticed it.

"We've got to hurry, Boss," he said, sinking into his place by Rolt's side, and shaking a spray of blood off his hand where a bullet had skinned it. "We cain't let them fellows stay there after dark."

"What are we going to do to prevent it? We have lost our horses."

"That's so; but if we stay here we'll be roasted as soon as it's too dark to shoot. They'll fire the bush on us, sure."

"Well, what is your plan?" asked Rolt, wearily. He was a brave man, but the fight against such odds, as he now realized that they had against them, seemed to him hopeless.

Only the boyish spirits of such a dare-devil as the old frontiersman could remain unbroken under such a strain.

"I ain't got no plan," he drawled, "at least no plan to speak of, but a Scripture saying seems to me to come in mighty handy: 'Do unto others the same as they'd do unto you,' only do it quicker. Now those Johnnies are calculating to rush us as soon as it gets good and dark. We've got to rush them first."

"All right."

"Hold on. 'Tain't time for the last act yet. We've got to play this game according to Hoyle, with all the frills as belongs to it. Fust there's slow music from the orchestra, then the light grows kinder dim and uncertain, then the ghost appears. See?"

Rolt did see, and he never saw a half-hour in his long life so trying as that during which he and the other three men crouched, like sprinters, waiting for the start, whilst the silent logs lay motionless in front of them, and one by one the outlines of the prairie grew indistinct, the separate tree tops merged into each other, and night came.

A LIFE WORK.

A feller came to me one day—
He shore looked thin and seedy—
And got me in his teasin' way
To buy a cyclopeedy
He left me twenty-seven books
That ware most interestin'.
I sartenly did like their looks,
Was proud of my investin'.

He showed me how to get the set
By payin' down a dollar
And then occasionally let
Another dollar foller.
With that first dollar that I paid
I signed a little paper,
And my wife said she was afraid
I'd cut a foolish caper.

I reckon that Elviry knew,
As wimmin knows, by thunder!
It's volume number fifty-two
That now I'm staggerin' under,
For every year he sends a book,
That cyclopeedy seller.
It's twenty-five years since I took
The first ones from the feller.

A "annual supplement," it seems,
I signed to keep a-takin',
And now I see it in my dreams
As well as when I'm wakin'.
I guess when Gabriel blows his trump
To call the rich or needy
He'll say to me, "Here, you old chump,
Is another cyclopeedy!"

Durable.

Now, a certain Emilius Priscus was of the lobby that year. Meeting Brutus one day, he spoke of a pending measure in which he was deeply interested.

"Of course," quoth he with airy confidence, "you will pass the bill!"

"What for?" demanded the noblest Roman of them all, turning upon him fiercely. Emilius perceived at once that the game was up, but he was just sport enough to let fly a Parthian shot. "Why—er—for the usual rates, I suppose!" he made answer.

Too Much of a Risk.

The beautiful girl had fallen into the lake, and, much to the displeasure of the moving picture man, the tried and tested hero refused to go to her aid.

"Skeered I might get drowned," responded the hero nonchalantly.

"But you are wearing your new hero medal?"

"That's just the trouble. The blamed medal weighs so much I'm skeered I'd sink."—Chicago Daily News.

AGE OF CHINA

The age of China is, says a writer, so great that the beginnings are lost in the mists of antiquity. It was probably old when Egypt was young. China was China when Abraham went out from Ur of the Chaldees and became the founder of a new nation. Beyond all questions, China is the oldest living nation, and most homogeneous.

The sages, rather than the kings, have shaped China. The teachings of Confucius, who lived in the sixth century before Christ, expounded a moral philosophy and a scheme of human government which, roughly speaking, made China. His "five relations" have fixed the social order; these are the relations of ruler and his officials, husband and wife, father and son, elder and younger brother, and friend and friend. These account for the formalism and fidelity of social ties in China, and for the complete subordination of the individual. Filial piety is the cardinal virtue. The Emperor, who is the "Son of Heaven," is an absolute autocrat, because the people stand toward him in the relation of children to parent. The system of government is thoroughly patriarchal. Through all storms and stress, this doctrine has held the literati loyal to the throne, and has furnished, down to recent days, sublime instances of devotion. Confucius is the Atlas who has borne the "Middle Kingdom" upon his shoulders. And Confucius kept his own face, and the faces of his people, turned toward the past. The colossal conservatism of China is directly traceable to the sage's teaching concerning the "good old days" and the rights of the dead.

WHAT ARE ACADIANS?

First People, Who Originally Came from France, to Settle in Nova Scotia.

In 1633 Isaac de Rozelly and Choruiavy brought some families from France to Nova Scotia. This was the first successful attempt at colonization in this country. These families were the progenetors of the Acadean race, bruised to the rigors of the severe coast climate, but they were persevering and industrious, and soon reclaimed from the sea a very fertile valley. French exiles from the province of Acades in France, they multiplied until they soon peopled the valley from Port Royal to Pezquie. They spread also around the Bay of Funday. In this race, whose romantic nature furnishes the theme for Longfellow's Evangeline, we find the seat of the French war — a war upon racial lines. The struggles of the Acadeans forms the most striking period of Nova Scotian history.

MISSIONS AND TURKEY

Progress of this Part of Europe Due to Missionary Enterprise.

The first electric telegraph instrument in Turkey was set up by missionaries. They introduced the first sewing-machine, the first printing-press, and the first modern agricultural implements. They brought the tomato and the potato and the other vegetables and fruits that are now staples; they built the first hospitals; they started the first dispensary and the first modern schools. The mighty uplifting force of education came with the mission schools, and is having the tremendous force it has everywhere, in overthrowing old errors and outworn forms of despotism and misrule. The most far-reaching work of the missionaries is educational, which comprehends all races, all religions and all languages. They are of the different races of which the Turkish Empire is composed, regardless of religious faith — Turks, Arabs, Egyptians, Armenians, Kurds, Persians, Macedonians, Bulgars, Druses, Nestorians, Greeks, Russians, Georgians, Circassians, and others too numerous to mention. Their influence is thus extended to every community, because no student leaves an institution without carrying with him the germs of progress which must affect the family and the neighbornood.

IMPERIAL WIRELESS POST

An early announcement may be expected that negotiations have been concluded between the British Post Office and Marconi Company for the erection of a chain of wireless telegraph stations around the world, linking up the British dominions, and giving Great Britain an independent system of telegraphic communication with any part of the globe. Connection with the Western Hemisphere will be affected by means of a station already existing at Glace Bay, and it is proposed to establish another station at Montreal to communicate direct with the West Indies, where all the islands will be connected by short-distance stations. From Glace Bay it will be possible to communicate direct with Vancouver, where a large power station is to be established which will provide direct communication with Hong Kong.

New Life Preserver.

Recent consular reports describe a new form of life preserver, which it is proposed to introduce into the German Navy. It consists of two swimming cushions bound together by straps and arranged to lie upon the breast and back. The novel feature of the apparatus is an electric lamp, which is worn on the forehead. The lamp burns three or four hours, and is provided with a reflector, which throws its light for a distance of several hundred yards at night. The life preserver can be buckled on in five seconds.

A Result Worthy of Consideration

Endowment Policy No. 34022 was issued to a local citizen twenty years ago for which he paid in ten annual instalments to the Company in all premiums, amounting to $688.50. He now receives a single cash payment of $1273.65 which as an investment is over 4% compound interest, or he may accept $750.60 in cash, which is $62.10 more than he paid in, together with a paid up policy for $1000, payable at death which earns profits every year during the balance of his life.

Where can a young man or woman find a better way of saving money as well as providing a protection for those dependent upon them.

The above is the result of a matured policy in the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA, payable on December 1st., 1911.

BIFOCALS
— OR —
DOUBLE VISION GLASSES

Most people think, when buying Bifocal Glasses, that a large segment or reading area is required. With very few exceptions this is not so, as most bifocals are required for constant use, and the successful fitting of these lenses depends not so much on furnishing the largest reading portion possible, but on placing a minimum disk or wafer in exactly the correct position. A smal wafer accurately placed will afford ample field for reading, writing and sewing, and will overcome the tendency to make mis-steps in going up and down stairs, an experience not uncommon to wearers of bifocals with too large reading segments

We make a specialty of filling Bifocal Lenses in VISIBLE, SEMI-INVISIBLE and INVISIBLE.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of the late Mrs. Melville Wilson of London, took place this afternoon.

The Rev. H. J. Keith officiated at a very impressive service at the residence of her father, Mr. J. W. Buyers, 217 Townsend street, at 2.30 after which the funeral cortege proceeded to the Little Lake cemtery for interment.

A very large number of friends assembled at the funeral to show sympathy for the relatives, and a last mark of esteem for the deceased, who was beloved of all those who were fortunate enough to know her. There was a magnificent display of floral tributes, amongst which were wreaths from the following: The B. of L. E. and the B. of L. F. and E., of London, the Independent Order of Foresters, Knox Church, the Novelti Co., (where the deceased was employed prior to her marriage) and from the G.T.R. employes of Peterborough. Following were some of the out of town visitors: Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Woollard of Bobcaygeon; Miss J. Mutch of Toronto, and Mr. Percy Wilson of Toronto.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Roy Lang, Walter Paton, Roy Menzies, J. Brownlee, Cecil Williamson, and Miss J. Mutch.

WEDDING BELLS

NICHOLS—BRANCH.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Branch, Manor Brae, Smith, was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, Nov. 29th, when their youngest daughter, Maria, was united in marriage to Albert Kenneth Nichols, of Bridgenorth. As the bridal party entered the drawing room Miss Cora Bradburn, of Peterborough, played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The ceremony was performed under an artistically draped arch, the Rev. J. R. Bonner, officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, was wearing a lovely gown of Gobelin blue silk, trimmed with embroidered chiffon and long net veil held with a coronet of orange blossoms. The two little flower girls, Mildred and Marion VanSickle, twin nieces of the bride, did their part so well and were in cream lingerie frocks and carried a basket of pink and white carnations. The ceremony was followed by elaborate wedding dinner in which about forty guests took part.

Many very beautiful and valuable presents were received, the gift of the groom being a handsome mink muff and to the flower girls a gold bracelet each.

The bride's going away gown was of brown broadcloth with hat to match. The happy couple will be with friends for a couple of weeks, after which they will reside at Kawartha View, Bridgenorth.

The bride will be at home to her friends, Dec. 20th and 21st.

THEFT CHARGE WAS PROVEN

Jonh A. MacDonald Will be Senenced Next Week

A youth named John A. Macdonald was found guilty at police court this morning of the theft of $35 from a Pole, who was a companion employe on the C.P.R., the stealing having been committed on Nov. 29th. He was remanded till December 11 for sentence.

The prisoner, who is a mere boy elected to be tried summarily by the magistrate, and stated that he had no recollection of taking the money, being under the influence of liquor at the time the stealing occurred.

Out of the proceeds of the theft, the prisoner had laid in a stock of clothing, consisting of a new overcoat, full set of underclothing, new pair of trousers, a gray sweater, green silk neck scarf, a tweed cap, and a gold watch and chain. There was a balance left in the purse of $5.45, the remaining $3 of the stolen money having been squandered in drink.

Detective Newhall, on information of the theft, took the prisoner into custody on George street, finding upon him the above enumerated articles. On being searched, after the first arraignment, by the detective, the prisoner voluntarily related how he had spent the money. He also told the officer that he came from Nova Scotia.

Previous to the day of his arrest, the prisoner was noticed around the street, without the overcoat, and rather shabbily dressed.

H. Goldberry, proprietor of the clothing store, testified to having sold the articles produced in court to the prisoner, the amount of the sales being $26.75.

The Pole will likely be reimbursed, as far as possible, for the loss he sustained through the theft, out of the articles recovered.

MATTHEWS-LAING COMPANY BONDS

No Change in Proprietorship or the Management

Messrs. C. Meredith & Company, Montreal, and R. C. Matthews & Company, will offer $1,200,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. bonds shortly. The issue will be for about 60 per cent of the depreciated fixed assets, situated in Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Hull, Peterborough and Brantford. The average net profits of the constituent companies for a period of years are about four times the interest on the bonds. A sinking fund per cent. will be established to retire the bonds. It is said that most of these bonds have been placed with leading financial institutions, and that the balance will be offered to the public. There will be no preferred or common stock offered. The trustees for the bondholders will be the Royal Trust Company. The constituent companies are the George Matthews Company, Limited, of Hull, Peterborough and Brantford, established in 1868; the Park Blackwell Company, Limited, of Toronto, established in 1864, and the Laing Packing and Provision Company, Limited, established in 1852. The proprietorship and management remain intact.—Toronto Globe.

An addition is to be made to the club in the near future.

CHILD MET AWFUL DEATH

Children Played With Matches When Left Alone in House

A terrible accident occurred at the residence of Geo. Hopkins in North Harvey, Wednesday morning. Mr. Hopkins got up early and went to the woods, and a little later, about six o'clock, Mrs. Hopkins went out to the barn, leaving two children one a girl about six years of age and the other a boy of about four. She had not been away many minutes when she was attracted by the piercing screams of the little girl and rushing out of the stable saw the child in flames. Arriving at the house she was driven almost wild to find the eldest in a sheet of flames, and the youngest on the bed with flames just starting around it. The fire had not got into the mattress or the child and the house would have been burnt. The girl was horribly burnt and lived till six o'clock in the evening when death relieved the little sufferer. The boy was not seriously burned having sat on his clothes as soon as they caught, one leg was a trifle scorched and his head singed. The children were playing with matches. Mr. Dowdney and the neighbors did all they could as soon as they were aware of the occurrence, but the child's injuries were beyond all aid and death was a relief.

MORE MONEY FOR POSTIES

To Assist Their Heavy Delivery of Christmas Mail

The Peterboro mail carriers will each receive $5 to assist them in handling the Christmas mail this season. Last year the amount was $2.50.

This grant is given to the posties to assist them in securing extra help which is absolutely necessary, so great is the Christmas rush.

A deputation of the carriers waited on Mr. Burnham, M. P. some time ago in regard to the matter, with the above result. Fur caps will also be furnished to the mailmen.

There are nine carriers to be benefitted

One of the "posties" told a Review reporter this morning that his Christmas gifts last year amounted to about $50 and that the most successful carrier has been given something over $70.

PETERBORO TO BE DRY

Hotel Bars Must be Closed on Christmas Day This Year

The new provincial law, requiring hotels throughout Ontario to be closed to the public on Christmas, goes into effect for the first time this year and as Christmas Day falls on a Monday, the bars will be closed from seven o'clock the preceding Saturday to Tuesday morning at six o'clock.

The same dry spell will be carried out on New Year's Day, when the municipal elections are held. In past years, the law has allowed the bars being opened on Christmas Day, but called for a holiday on New Year's.

OBITUARY

William Forest

There passed away this morning at seven o'clock, a highly esteemed citizen in the person of Mr. William Forest, who resided at 491 Albert street. He was formerly of Kingston, Ont. His illness extended over a period of only eight weeks. Deceased was fifty-eight years of age, and has lived in Peterborough, but two years.

Surviving him are one son, George, of Peterborough, and three daughters, namely, Mrs. Fred Hillier, of the city; Mrs. Wm. Bearance, of Souris, Man., and Miss Mary, of Uxbridge, Ont.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Mrs. Hillier, 165 Sherbrooke street, on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, to Little Lake cemetery, Rev. H. J. Keith officiating.

Mr. Henry Pearson

The death occurred at seven o'clock yesterday morning at 598 Downie street, of Mr. Henry Pearson, son of Mr. John Pearson, of Kirkcaldy, Scotland. The deceased had been ill for about six months, previous to which he was employed as a laborer in Hamilton's foundry. He was in his 48th year and was born in Kirkcaldy, Scotland. He has been in Canada about four years and in Peterborough for one year. Surviving are a wife and three children, John, Harry and Maggie, of Peterborough, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Pearson, Kirkcaldy, Scotland, three sisters and one brother, Miss Barbara Pearson, Mrs. Lawson, Kirkcaldy, Scotland; Mrs. Balfour, Huddington, Scotland, and Mr. John Pearson, Leeds, England.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from 598 Downie street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

A SHATTERED DREAM
A TRUE CHARITY
A clergyman had saved up for years to accumulate enough to fulfill the dream of his life—A visit to his birth place in Europe. ENTHUSIASTIC RALLY BY MR. PECK'S FOLLOWERS; A MAJORITY OF 900 WANTED Saturday Night's Gathering Promises a Big Majority for Conservative Candidate—Some Hall Canards Exploded—Why Whitney Should be Returned.

"If the city does its duty by Mr. Peck, he ought to win by at least eight or nine hundred majority," said one of the speakers at the Peck rally on Saturday night, and this note of enthusiasm and confidence was the keynote of the whole gathering. The rally was the last Saturday night rally except one, of the campaign and the increasingly large attendance showed that there was enthusiasm interest in the air, and that the Conservatives are confident that the Hall sun will set on December 11, for all time.

The chairman was Mr. W. H. Moore K. C. who opened the meeting with some observations on the campaign.

"I have noticed," said he, "that there is apparent apathy in this campaign, as compared to the one which ended on Sept. 21. There is not the excitement, not the feeling that there are material issues at stake. There is no doubt that Sir James Whitney and his colleagues will be returned to sit at the right hand of Mr. Speaker."

The past seven years, the years of the administration of Sir James Whitney, had been free from even one lone scandal. There had been no suggestion of dishonesty, no spoiling or burning of ballots, no wholesale disenfranchisement of a whole constituency as in the case of the Ross regime. No one could say that Whitney had been dishonest in any particular, and that he had not worked honestly and ably in the interest of the people, to give them what they want.

Mr. Hall had been talking about the Compensation Act. This Act, was the same act as was passed by the Ross government, and acclaimed the most perfect piece of compensation legislation in the world. Now in this election the Liberals had suddenly discovered that it was defective. But the Liberals did not offer recognition of the fact that Sir James Whitney a year and a half ago had taken steps to have a full report on Workmen's Compensation legislation prepared by Sir W. R. Meredith, and a bill framed for the consideration of the legislation.

"Who is the new leader, this man Rowell, anyway?" asked Mr. Moore. Up to three weeks ago he had not been heard of by the people at large. The Liberal leader, Mr. McKay, had been a clever man; he had been cast aside, on entering the campaign, and yet had had a large legislative experience. Borden had had 15 years experience before he was entrusted with power. Laurier had had the same. Whitney had had about fourteen. And yet the Liberals stuck up Mr. Rowell to the next premier, and he had never had any at all? Was this the kind of a man the province could have confidence in, an untried quantity?

Sir James Whitney was blunt, and he was honest. He did not shilly-shally, and dodge. He was frank and open. He said at Guelph and had said at Hamilton that he would do what was right by those municipalities, whether they returned government supporters or not. He refused to descend to the level of bribing constituencies by promises of public buildings or grants.

"Whitney is the man whom we want, and Mr. Peck, is the man whom we want for West Peterborough," said Mr. Moore, concluding amid cheers.

Percival G. S. Webb spoke for a few moments, telling of some of the things that had been done by the Whitney government in educational matters and ridiculing Mr. Hall's attempt to make the workingmen swallow the idea that he was their friend and champion.

MR. BRADBURN

T. E. Braburn, ex. M.P.P. said that although he was not feeling well, he desired to remind the workers of the same old story.

"It is organization, organization" said Mr. Bradburn. "I would like to see each man get others in line, and on Dec 11, elect Mr. Peck by a majority bigger than ever before." In the north part of the riding, which had been visited by himself and Mr. Peck in the week, there had been promises of splendid success. But there should be no let up in Peterborough. Every vote was needed for the proper kind of success.

HALL DESPERATE

James Kendry was called on. He reminded his hearers that as the campaign approached an end, redoubled efforts were necessary. Mr. Peck would be elected by a large majority. R. R. Hall was desperate. The reports from the rural ridings showed that he was going to lose heavily, and it remained only for Peterborough to do its duty.

"I am doing all I can to elect Mr. Peck," said Mr. Kendry, "and I know you will also. If all Mr. Peck's friends come out, there can be no possible chance for R. R. Hall," and Mr. Kendry reminded them of the meeting in the opera house to-morrow night.

Dealing with Mr. Hall's promises to the electorate, Mr. Kendry declared that Mr. Hall would say anything. "He is not particular what he says in the reports he provides for publication. Suppose, for the sake of argument Mr. Hall were elected! What could he do? Nothing. He, the self-constituted workingman's friend, could do nothing."

Mr. Kendry referred to the letters in the Examiner about Mr. Peck, as having evidently been written in the Examiner office, because the Examiner had not dared to come out openly itself. They were a disgrace. If the fight became warmer, Mr. Kendry promised that he would tell more about Mr. Hall than the latter would want to know. He was not afraid to tell what he knew.

"If it gets any hotter, I'll be there," said Mr. Kendry, and the crowd laughed and applauded.

So far, the Whitney record was one deserving of every commendation, and the election of Mr. Peck to support Whitney was only right. Peck and Whitney stood for honest progress, and a return to the people of their money properly and in a businesslike manner.

THE CANDIDATE.

Mr Peck was given a splendid reception. He thanked the previous speakers for the kindly things they had said about him. He had been campaigning hard with Mr. Kendry and Mr. Bradburn, but he felt well in spite of the strain, and he hoped to feel still better on December 11. Mr Peck read a telegram from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., stating that Mr. Burnham would be home Wednesday night.

Mr. Peck reminded the audience of the Tuesday night meeting, when Hon. A. B Morine would address the electors in the opera house. Mr. Morine was a forcible fair-minded speaker of reputation. As for Mr. Hall his heart was continuing to bleed for the workingman. He had suddenly discovered that he had the same feelings as his fellows, and that they were entitled to some consideration. When was Mr. Hall converted? It must have been recently, for his previous record showed anything but a love for the workingman.

Mr. Peck dealt with the Workmen's compensation Act, showing that Mr. Hall had never discovered these defects he drew so much attention to, until he entered the campaign. The Act required amendment in some respects, in Mr. Peck's opinion, and he would be the man who would assist to have it changed (cheers). Mr. Peck referred to the hydro-electric plans of the government, and demonstrated what effect it had had in Western Ontario, benefiting the municipalities. Should not Peterborough endorse the Whitney government and its project for coming to Peterborough's relief? Power should not be monopolised by one company. It must be developed by and for the people. The local companies like the Quaker Oats and the Canadian General, employed a large number of workingmen, and they got their power from this district. If the hydro-electric could provide a lot more cheap power, would it not benefit the workingman?

SAME OLD TACTICS.

"The Liberals must be getting desperate, I think," said Mr. Peck, "because they are going back to their old tactics. My personal record has been microscopically examined, and the Liberals have made three discoveries. One is that I am the solicitor for a brewing company, with no financial interest of my own in it whatever, and the second that I was one of the arbitrators in the printers' trouble, the settlement of which seemed to satisfy everyone, as far as I know, and the third is that I was a member of the Sons of England. That is all they could find after the examination. If St. Peter cannot find anything worse than that I ought to have a good chance to pass his gates, and I ought to have equally as good a chance to be elected as your representative on December 11."

The meeting closed with the usual cheers for the King and the candidate.

EVANGELIZE THE WORLD

$80,000,000 and 40,000 Missionaries Needed for the Big Task

St. Paul's Congregation Heard Their Missionery to Corea

Interest was added to the services at St Paul's Presbyterian church yesterday, the occasion being the fourth anniversary of the Rev. R. Pogue's ministry. The congregation also had as a visitor, the Rev. D. A. Macdonald, B.A., who has been appointed by the Foreign Mission Board, as St. Paul's missionary. He will be stationed at Corea. During the week he will take part in the various meetings of the church.

FOUR YEARS AS PASTOR.

At the morning service yesterday, Rev. Mr. Pogue referred to his four years work at St. Paul's church as the busiest and also the happiest of his ministry.

Rev. Mr. Macdonald in his introductory remarks expressed the pleasure it gave him to be present on such an occasion. He congratulated both the congregation and the pastor on the fourth anniversary. There could be no greater tribute to the pastor than that of the great forward step taken by the congregation on behalf of the mission, and the speaker remarked on the great privilege and high honor it was for him to represent the congregation of St Paul's church as its missionary in Corea.

Rev Mr. Macdonald's sermon was distinctly missionary. He said there were two points to be considered in the foreign missionary scheme of to-day.

ALL DOORS OPEN

One was the present world-wide opportunity in the heathen lands, such was never known before. When the early disciples went out in their early faith, they faced almost impossible obstructions and in the succeeding centuries the church found many hindrances.

"About twenty-five years ago," said the speaker, "the notice boards in Corea, read, 'If you see a foreigner, kill him, if you allow him to pass by you are a traitor to your country.'" But now conditions were changed. Every heathen nation was open and God had given the word to go in, and possess, the land. The world was open for the gospel.

It was for us to forget that these wide open doors not only meet opportunity, but danger as other things beside the gospel were being sent.

CAN IT BE DONE?

The second point brought out was that coincident with opportunity there was a great awakening of the church as a whole. The church was taking up a systematic work to evangelize the world in this generation. Was it reasonable to think that the present generation of Christians could reach the present generation of heathen? Two thousand years ago evangelization had commenced, but only one-third had been converted. The great leaders to-day think the work can be done—that is, give the gospel in an intelligent form to every man and woman.

THE PROBLEM

Statistics given by the speaker were very interesting. Of the 1,500,000,000 people in the world, 500,000,000 had been evangelized, leaving 1,000,000,000 yet to be reached. That was the problem to-day. Was it possible to give the gospel to that number within the next twenty-five years. It might be said that if in 2,000 years only one-third had heard the gospel, the present scheme might as well be given up. Was that true?

Of the 1,000,000,000 the church in Canada and United States was responsible for 600,000,000 and the Presbyterian church in Canada was responsible for 14,000,000. Rev. Mr. Macdonald remarked that in the United States and Canada to day were 50,000,000 people who never went to church, and who were to all practical purposes, heathen. He pointed out that unless the Presbyterian church evangelized the 14,000,000, no other church would. All had their own work to do. That our home mission problem was great the speaker admitted, but he explained that a people twice the population of Canada in the east was totally dependent upon the church for their knowledge of the gospel.

LAST YEAR'S GIVINGS.

The givings of Protestant Christians last year was $27,000,000. United States and Canada giving $12,000,000. Compare that amount with the expenditure on the army and navy, liquor and tobacco, and the amount was insignificant. The missionaries at work last year numbered 15,000.

As to what number of heathen could be reached by one missionary in his lifetime we were told that number was 25,000. The work of one man entailed an average expenditure of $2,000 each year. That sum included his salary, and expenses for native assistants and other necessities. But on the present basis of work, only 375,000,000 would be evangelized in this generation, leaving 625,000,000 to die without having heard the gospel.

HOW IT CAN BE DONE.

To make the task successful 40,000 missionaries were wanted. That meant one missionary out of every 1000 church workers. Was that unreasonable? The amount of money needed was $80,000,000. The wealth of the world to-day was in the hands of Christian men as never before. "I believe God has done that with interest," said the speaker.

Still if every member would give 10c. per week, the amount required to reach the heathen in the next 25 years would be secured. The scheme was not an idle dream, but possible and God was waiting and ready to bless our efforts.

Rev. Mr. Macdonald spoke in the Sunday school in the afternoon and occupied the pulpit in the evening.

SPORT TALK

Port Hope is to have a junior O.H. A team this season, according to the Port Hope Guide, which contains the following:—Capt. Colwill and Mr. G. A. Brown have leased the rink for the season, and will administer the first dose of water Monday next. The managers will enter a team in the Junior O.H.A. and state that they have much valuable material. They have had a number of boys working out in the roller rink for some time past and sprang quite a surprise on the hockey enthusiasts at the opening of the season.

Ice making will likely commence this week at the Brock street rink. The roller season closes on Tuesday night.

Every hockey aspirant who holds a training class ticket should be on hand at the Y.M.C.A. this evening, at seven o'clock sharp. The class will be held for one hour.

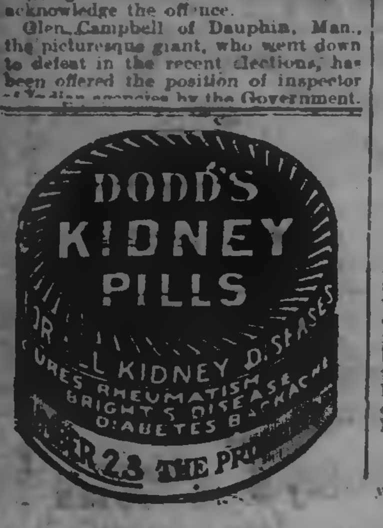
Mr. Rowell, the new Liberal leader, addressed a large meeting of the North Oxford Reform Association at Woodstock on Saturday.

A comet visible in a small telescope has been discovered by Scaumasse, at Kiel, according to a cablegram received at the Harvard College observatory.

Two men were scalded to death Saturday in the power house of the Winnipeg Street Railway Co. The victims were George Donovan and John Fairservity.

Miss Bessie Smart, a Brockville teacher, was assaulted on her way home from school, and John McCallum, aged nineteen, was arrested and acknowledge the offence.

Glen Campbell of Dauphin, Man., the picturesque giant, who went down to defeat in the recent elections, has been offered the position of inspector of Indian agencies by the Government.



LABOR MEN WANT McNAMARA

continued. "I do not believe that the state has a right to take human life. This is a very unwise movement. I am against it. It is like the populace in the Roman arena demanding with its thumbs down that the victorious gladiator plunge the sword into his victim. I do not believe in thumbs down for these or any other men."

"What punishment do you think should be meted out to them?" the labor leader was asked.

"Suppose we let the judge decide that, I am content to leave it with him." was the reply.

"Has the American Federation of Labor any authority over the Central Labor Council of Spokane?"

"They are affiliated with us, but we have no authority over them. They have a right to do as they please as long as they obey the law. I can only say that this is a very unwise movement, a misdirected effort and I am not in sympathy with it."

Mr. Gompers was also shown the despatches stating that the federal investigation at Indianapolis into dynamiting cases would proceed in spite of the fact that the McNamaras had pleaded guilty, and was asked if he thought there was any possibility of officials of the American Federation of Labor being involved.

"Let them go ahead. Let them go as high as they like," he exclaimed. "If there are other men above or below in this case, the federal investigation ought to disclose them. Let the federal investigation go on. If there was anybody behind these men, their identity ought to be known. Personally I cannot conceive of where they got their money to perpetrate their outrages. I cannot dream of who was behind them."

Mr. Gompers was found at a Broadway hotel, where he will make his headquarters until he leaves for Washington, probably Monday night, and plainly showed the effects of the strain.

"I had had little sleep and practically nothing to eat all day," he said. "In due time, when I have the facilities and the opportunity I may make a written statement, but I don't want to discuss the matter any more."

"It has been said that the McNamaras pleaded guilty to protect other persons," Mr. Gompers was told.

"I don't know anything about that. I have received no communication from Los Angeles since the joint telegram from the McNamaras thanking me for the support of the American Federation of Labor. If there is anybody that needs to be protected, I don't know of it."

"Is the American Federation going to take any action in the matter? Will it make any investigation to find out where the money for the McNamaras expenses came from, or who was behind them?" the labor leader was asked.

"It is too early to state yet what we will do. Until we hold our meeting on Jan. 6 I am afraid the public will have to wait."

Must Punish, Says Daly.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 4.—William H. Daly, an official of the Federation of Labor, said on Saturday:

"As they are unionists, we ask only the same justice for the McNamaras now as we did when believed them innocent. If they are guilty, as is evident from their confessions, every laboring man wants the proper punishment meted out to them."

The Sea Not Blue

The poets are always singing of "the sea, the sea, the deep, blue sea," but as a matter of fact the sea is not always blue. Off the coast of California some time ago the waters turned black without any known reason and in the Red Sea the water has a dull red tint, caused by millions of small seaweeds and subaquatic plants. The Yellow Sea of China owes its colour to the floods of muddy water the great river pours into it. The Mediterranean is true blue because very few large fresh-water rivers enter it, and being practically landlocked and exposed to powerful sunlight it has the greatest evaporation of all seas.

Ultimatum Rejected.

Teheran, Persia, Dec. 2.—The National Council has rejected the Russian ultimatum by a big majority. The Foreign Minister has resigned.

A cablegram from British Foreign Minister, Sir Edward Grey, was presented to the Assembly, urgenly advising compliance with the Russian demands, but some of the members pointed out that England's advice had hitherto only led to Persian humiliation. They believed that Sir Edward had been misinformed, and emphatically asserted that Russian injustice had become intolerable.

During the week 96 tons of cheese were shipped from Listowel.

LONELY SABLE ISLAND

VISIT TO CANADA'S GRAVEYARD OF THE ATLANTIC.

On the Approach of the Steamer the Place Presents a Picture of Desolation But When One Lands the Islanders Are Seen to Be Happy and Busy—Many Wild Horses Roam About—Total Population Is 30.

I cannot imagine a more [illegible] picture than that presented by Sable Island from the deck of the steamer, says a writer in The Montreal Standard discussing the "graveyard of the Atlantic." Sand hills, averaging in height about forty feet above the sea level, covered with a heavy coarse brown grass for miles on either side of the main station. Only a few houses were visible—the Marconi and one or two lifeboat stations and the two lighthouses that tower up at the extremities of the island. For the rest one sees nothing more than sand and ever surging waters, that break and toss against the island shore.

But upon landing my first impression of Sable Island were quite dispelled, and in their place came the conviction that "The Graveyard of the Atlantic," was far from being the forsaken spot which it has so often been represented. In fact, I, like those who live there, found it decidedly fascinating, for there is a something, that cannot be explained which charms and delights every visitor to the Island. The climate is perfect, the thermometer registering many degrees higher than it does in Nova Scotia. Flowers of all kinds were growing in the garden that surrounds the superintendent's house, flowers that were as yet untouched by even the lightest frost.

The superintendent's home, a large and modern structure, stands at the west end of a little hollow about the sides of which are to be found the houses of those who live at the main station—the lifeboat crew, the light keeper and the stablemen.

The island is about twenty-eight miles long and one mile wide. The inhabitants number about thirty. Most of these are single men, though some of them are married and have their wives with them. In case of necessity, all the men upon the island are prepared to man the lifeboats and put out to the rescue.

The life-saving men receive the princely renumeration of $200 a year, in addition to board and lodging, and uniforms. I believe that in the case of a married man the amount is increased to $225.

There are four life-saving stations on the island, all of which are connected by telephone with the main station. Should a ship strand on the shoals that run out into the Atlantic for miles at either end of the island, the main station is communicated with, and the large lifeboats (there are also surf boats at each station) with the crew and the rocket guns are rushed to the scene of the disaster drawn by the sturdy Sable ponies that are always in readiness.

Not a tree is to be found throughout the length and breadth of the island. Some years ago no less than eighty-four thousand trees were planted there. To-day not one remains. The fierce winds that sweep over the island have blown them all out of the sand and carried them far out into the broad Atlantic.

The wild horses, of which there are about three hundred, roam from one end of Sable Island to the other, and subsist upon the grass that grows in the sandy soil, if soil it can be called. When horses are wanted on the mainland, about thirty are rounded up, taken to the beach and either carried off in boats, or forced into the water and towed to the ship by the launch. Once alongside the steamer a belt is slipped under them and they are hoisted aboard, or, as more often happens, a noose is caught round their feet, attached to a boom, the donkey engine started and they are swung aboard in this manner and placed in the holds.

Cranberries are the chief agricultural product of the island, and barrels of them are annually shipped to the mainland. Potatoes, also, are raised with considerable success.

The island is governed by Superintendent Boutilier, who for nearly 30 years has administered justice and directed the affairs of this interesting yet dangerous strip of land.

Of course, Sable Island, like all well conducted islands, has its folk lore that has been handed down from father to son and from one boatman to another.

Many have heard of the old man in the lifeboat, the man who mysteriously makes his appearance in the bow seat when the life-saving crew are putting out to the rescue. Some say he is always with them on these occasions. Others say the story is a myth. Some say they have seen him. Others, men who have rowed with the boat for years, disavow the statement. However, whether it be true or false, the story is an interesting one, as are many of the "yarns" that are told.

Maurice Newan, "the father of Sable Island" is a mine of information. For over sixty years he has lived there, and vivid are the stories he can tell regarding the angry nights, and the frightful wrecks that followed with death in the wake. He can tell you how in the days before steamers plied to and fro across the Atlantic, the sailing vessels dashed themselves upon the shoals, and the crews made heroic rescues in boats that in these days of modern life-saving appliances, would be considered unsafe in the lightest winds.

Mr. Newan, if you ask him, will narrate the story of the wreck of the German steamer in 1890, when Mr. Boutilier further demonstrated his bravery. For his heroic rescue he was presented with a gold watch by the German Emperor.

THE BEOTHUKS.

Three Indians, believed to be members of a strange Newfoundland tribe that was supposed to have become extinct as far back as 1829, have just been discovered. This old tribe was known as the Beothuks and the three members of it were found along the Penobscot river. One of them, a woman said to be nearly 100 years old, told the history of the lost tribe. In the opinion of experts the old squaw's information adds an important link which has been missing in anthropological history for nearly a century.

The Beothuks were first discovered in 1497 by the Cabots in Newfoundland. Three of them were captured and taken to London, where, through the fact that their bodies were dyed red, according to an ancient custom of their race, they caused the American Indian to be known as the "redman." For this reason anthropologists have always regarded the Beothuks as exceedingly important to their science.

The last of the Beothuks to be seen alive was Shanandithet. He died in St John's, Nfld., in 1829. About this time, according to Dr. Speck, the ethnologist, a number of expeditions were made into the interior by men of science, with the hope of discovering some of the fast-dwindling tribe, who were noted for their intense hatred and fear of the white man and his civilization. They found some vacated camps, tepees, canoes, implements of warfare, cooking utensils and clothing, but no Beothuks.

"The disappearance of the Beothuks," declares Dr. Speck, "is one of the most remarkable and interesting mysteries in the history of the Indians. After the expeditions in 1829 into Newfoundland many of the Micmacs moved into Newfoundland, and it is possible that a few of the Beothuks, who had become separated from the body of their tribesmen, intermarried with the Micmacs and lost their identity.

"The Beothuks called themselves the Osagannas, and were known by traditions to the other tribes by this name. If you ask any of the other Indians anything about the Osagannas they will shrug their shoulders point to the north and say: 'I don't know. Somewhere up north; heard of them.'

"From what little we have of their language from old records and my own small vocabulary, it seems that the Beothuk was an independent stock and tribe. They were not related to any other Indians about them, either in language or in race.

"The Beothuks had an annual ceremony which was participated in by the whole tribe at Red Lake, and at which they crushed quantities of a kind of red root and dyed their entire bodies. This was never washed off and ordinarily it lasted until the next annual ceremony."

No Summer In 1816.

The year 1816 in Canada was called the year without a summer, says a recent writer.

As the springtime approached nothing in the weather indicated the return of seed time, much less of harvest. Snows, heavy rains and cold winds prevailed incessantly, and during the entire season the sun arose each morning as though in a cloud of smoke, red and rayless, shedding little light or warmth and setting at night as behind a thick cloud of vapor, leaving hardly a trace of its having passed over the face of the earth. The frost never went off the ground until about the last of May. The farmers planted their crops, but the seed would hardly sprout, and when at last it came to the surface there was not warmth enough to cause anything to grow. During the month of June young birds were frozen to death in their nests, and so great was their destruction that for at least three years after very few birds visited the colder parts of the northern States. The woods and forests seemed deserted by them. Small fruit such as the juneberry ripened and rotted on the trees in the forests because of no birds to eat them.

Crops that required warmth, like corn, generally failed to mature, and only here and there in a few places that seemed especially protected did an ear ripen. The people after repeated hopes of a change in the weather settled down in almost despair. Large spots appeared on the face of the sun, as seen through the smoky atmosphere, distinctly visible with the naked eye; frosts prevailed every month of the whole year and almost daily, and in the few places where corn ripened was the only supply of seed for the next year, and it was held at exceedingly high figure with now and then an exception.

Using More Liquor.

The per capita consumption of spirits was .859 gallons, against .815 gallons in 1910; that of beer was 5.434 gallon, as against 5.276 gallons; that of wine .104 gallons, against .097 gallons; while the tobacco used grew from 2.940 pounds per capita to 3.011 pounds.

The total quantity of tobacco smoked was 18,903,322 pounds, against 17,661,279 pounds in 1910, and 17,217,710 pounds in 1909.

The cigarettes smoked reached the enormous total of 585,935,370, against 451,095,138 in 1910, and 356,758,130 in 1909.

The Greatest Missionary.

The warmest compliment paid recently to the Salvation Army was made by Hon. J. M. Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario. He was presiding at a mass meeting of the army in Massey Hall, Toronto, and, introducing Mrs. Bramwell Booth, he said:

"You do missionary work which the Christian Church confesses is not being done so thoroughly by their organizations. Now, I am not disparaging nor minimizing the work of the churches, but I do say that the Salvation Army is doing social work which is not being so effectively or successfully done by church organizations."

Lords Will Obstruct.

London, Dec. 2.—According to The Daily Telegraph the Unionist leaders in the House of Lords have decided to move no amendments to the insurance bill, but to pass it as it stands. The House of Lords, however, will reject the naval prize bill in order to prevent the Government from ratifying the Declaration of London, the international agreement governing prizes in naval warfare, which was approved by the Imperial Conference last June.

This procedure, according to The Daily Telegraph, will delay the passage of the prize bill for two years and the Declaration of London cannot be ratified until the prize bill has received the royal assent.

Six Murderers Sentenced.

Chicago, Dec. 4.—Four men were sentenced Saturday to be hanged on Dec. 22. Their crime was the murder on Oct. 20 of Fred. W. Guezlow, jr., a truck farmer. The four men are Philip Somerling, Ewald and Frank Shiblawski and Thomas Schultz.

Leo Suchomski and Frank Kita, each 16 years old, also stood before the bar and heard sentences of life imprisonment passed upon them for their part in the murder.

Montreal Port Closes.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—With the sailing of the Brayhead for Irish ports shortly after noon Saturday the season of navigation to this port finally closed. Dec. 3 is unusually late for the last sailing, it being some ten years since a boat left on so late a date, while as a rule the port is closed before end of November.

'PILLS LIKE A FYLE

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend, he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache, constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

HANDS ACROSS THE SEA.

This Country and England to Celebrate a Century of Peace.

Preparations have already been begun for what now seems likely to be the greatest international celebration the world has ever seen—the commemoration of 100 years of peace between Great Britain and the United States.

The treaty of Ghent, which ended the war of 1812, was signed on Dec. 24, 1814, and ratified by the United States senate on Feb. 17, 1815.

The emphasis to be placed upon the coming celebration is due to several causes. Between the two countries most interested there undoubtedly exists at present a feeling of even more than ordinary friendliness and cordiality. The leaders of the peace movement throughout the world are keenly alive to the unusual opportunity for doing something impressive for the cause in which they are interested. Moreover, Canada, which stands for Great Britain on this continent, is contiguous, and thus a monument, if one be decided upon, can stand jointly on the territory of both nations. Finally it is agreed that one of the things which has helped to make this long peace possible is the wise provision by treaty that neither nation shall maintain large warships on the great lakes, a potent argument for disarmament.

Two committees, one national, the other international, have already been formed in this country. They contain the names of Theodore Roosevelt, Elihu Root, William J. Bryan, Andrew Carnegie, Albert K. Smiley and others of distinction.—Youth's Companion.

A Tribute to the Mosquito.

Representative Hughes of New Jersey is proud of his native state and neglects no opportunity to voice his pride. One day a friend met him in the street in Washington and said: "Billy, I know you're proud of New Jersey. I like to see such home pride. I want to boost your cause. Use this in your next speech: 'The hum of Jersey's mosquitoes reaches to the Alaskan hills, roars down the Pacific coast, crashes through the Rocky mountains, drones across the Mississippi valley, cracks like a gun against the morasses of the Florida Everglades and titillates the shores of Europe.'"—Washington Star.

Rembrandt's "Mill."

A new theory concerning the origin of the famous landscape known as Rembrandt's "Mill" is put forward in Paris, where the authenticity of the picture continues to be discussed. To put it briefly, the suggestion is that the landscape was originally by the hand of Herkules Segbers, the artist whose signature was discovered when the picture was cleaned, and that Rembrandt beautified and improved it with his own brush work before passing it as his own.

The Cobbler In the Library.

One of the rooms in the New York Public library is a cobbler shop. The trustees have ordered that all the employees in the new library must wear rubber heeled shoes, and since there is a small army of these employees it was decided to establish a shoe repairing shop in the building. The proprietor of this shop says he has plenty to do, for when there are no rubber heels to be renewed he is given odd jobs, principally on leather, in the library.

A Fragment of Ancient Greek Art.

A peasant at Mondragone, in the province of Caserta, Italy, discovered recently in the remains of an ancient Roman building the fragments of a marble statue, which he sold to a dealer. When pieced the fragments revealed a headless and armless Venus which is attributed to the chisel of Praxiteles. It is said that the statue belonged to the temple of Sinuessa. It is now in the Naples museum.

HIS STYLE PEN.

General Booth's Autograph in Queen's Book Was Mussy.

General Booth has been relating some interesting stories about royalty. On one occasion, preparatory to a visit to Copenhagen, he was anxious to enlist the sympathies of the Dowager-Empress of Russia, and addressed a letter to her sister, Queen Alexandra. He was summoned to Buckingham Palace, and while engaged in conversation with her Majesty Princess Victoria entered the room.

The princess placed an album before him with a request for his autograph. "This I consented to do," said the general, "and I pulled out my stylographic pen. But those stylographic pens (and here the general seemed highly amused, as memory recalled the incident) have a wonderful way of letting go their ink before the proper time, and it was so on that visit to Buckingham Palace. The ink was everywhere but in the proper place, and noticing my plight the Queen directed me to a place where I managed to sponge it off." The entry he made in the princess' album below his signature was: "Saved to save." Next day the Queen sent her album, and complying with her command he made a like entry therein.

When visiting the late King Edward, General Booth was asked by his Majesty, "And what do the clergy think of your work?" "I was taken aback as to what answer to make," recounted General Booth, "as I thought the King might repeat my reply to the first archbishop or bishop he met. Eventually I replied, 'They imitate us, your Majesty'."

Blind Stenographer.

Of late years the blind have accomplished many things which have aroused the admiration of the world, and provide striking testimony to the progress of the training of those suffering from that greatest of afflictions, loss of sight. The recent feat, however, of Maurice J Meyers, the blind shorthand writer and typist of the Birmingham Royal Institute for the Blind, stands out as one of the most extraordinary on record. He attended a recent conference on the treatment of the blind at Exeter as official stenographer and recorded all the discussions on the various papers. The conference lasted for five days and, Mr. Meyes' notes, which were recorded on a narrow strip of paper, with which the embossed shorthand typewriter for the blind which Mr. Meyers used was fitted, extended to a length of two and a quarter miles.

Mr. Meyers, who can take notes at a speed of 158 words a minute, himself helped to formulate the Birmingham system of embossed shorthand. One of the most remarkable facts about Mr. Meyers is that he accomplished the difficult task of training himself as a blind shorthand writer after losing his sight, and after acting as a sighted stenographer to a firm of New York solicitors. It was after losing his sight that he returned to Birmingham, his native city, and went to the institute as a day pupil 14 years ago. Five year later he performed a similar feat to the one at Exeter, when he acted as official shorthand writer at the conference, which lasted the six sessions of an average duration of three hours each.

Doyen at St. Stephen's.

Lord Claud Hamilton, M.P., who has recently suffered a bereavement, Lady Claud Hamilton dying after a prolonged illness, is the doyen at St. Stephen's, although not actually the Father of the House of Commons.

He first entered Parliament in 1865 as member for Londonderry, exactly three years before Mr. Henry Chaplin first appeared at Westminster. Lord Claud's Parliamentary service, however, has not been anything like continuous, otherwise he would have been entitled to the appellation of Father of the House, a position now held by Mr. Thomas Burt, who has sat for the Morpeth Division since 1874.

Mr. Balfour first joined the House of Commons in the same year, and would now be entitled to be called its father but for the circumstance that he was out of Parliament two or three weeks between his rejection at Manchester and his re-election for the City of London. On the other hand Mr. Chamberlain has sat continuously since 1876, so that he is in reality the Father-elect of the House of Commons at the present time.

Guarding London's Treasures.

London's art treasures are most jealously protected. The National Gallery, in addition to having a secret system of alarms, is patrolled day and night by twenty-two constables and twenty-five employes. At the British Museum the millions of pounds' worth of treasures are protected by over 200 assistants, including eight keepers of departments, fifty-three assistants, nine second division clerks, twenty-two chief attendants, ninety-six attendants, five boy clerks, twenty-three boy attendants, forty-three commissionaires and fifty-one laborers, while a number of detectives in various disguises keep on eagle eye on things in general.—London Telegraph.

The Parsee.

The Parsee, untrammeled by his surroundings, is seen in Bombay in all his wealth of height and dress. The men are, without exception, tall, finely formed and stately and possess a robustness and beauty quite at contrast with their Hindu neighbors. Their street costume is a peculiar long white cotton gown, wide trousers of the same material and color and a tall miter shaped hat. They have a general reputation for sobriety, frugality and sagacity, and they seem to thoroughly understand the accumulation of fortunes, in this respect resembling the Hebrews. The wealthiest residents of Bombay are Parsees.

The Boomerang.

The boomerang, missile instrument for war, sport or the chase, in use by Australian aborigines, was first made known by being brought before the Royal Irish academy by Prof. McCullagh in 1837.

A bowl of hot soup fell over the head of the 18 months old son of Wm. Hardridge, West London.

FOR $2,000 EACH.

An Insurance Deal That Made Trouble For Awhile.

By C. B. LEWIS.

Young James Harper, farmer, and Sarah Lee, daughter of another farmer, married for love. They had two or three lovers' quarrels, as was quite on the cards and very natural, but for two years after marriage no couple ever lived more happily. This state of affairs might have continued at least two years longer but for Abner Jones, Esq., country justice of the peace and agent for the Farmers' Fire Insurance company, and sewing machines of all makes, bought and sold. He made his appearance at the farmhouse one day.

"Well, Jim," he said, "what do you and Sarah think? I've got the agency for a life insurance company and am going to branch out a little. I want to insure the both of you. I've got Tom Spooner and his wife, Bill Wheeler and his wife, Silas Johnson and his wife and several others, and I'm here to get you. I want you to take $2,000 apiece. If you die, Sarah, Jim has got $2,000 to buy you a monument, pay funeral expenses and go away to Niagara Falls to get over his grief. If you die, Jim, Sarah has got money to bury you decently and carry on the farm without having to rush off and marry again."

The squire went into further explanations. He talked life insurance and stayed to dinner. He talked life insurance and stayed to supper. He talked life insurance and stayed until 9 o'clock in the evening. Then he drank two glasses of cider, ate three fried cakes and a piece of mince pie and went home to make out two policies for $2,000 each.

Jim and Sarah had decided that such insurance was a good thing. Neither wanted to die, but if death must come they would not be selfish about it. It would be a bond to draw them still closer together. In the course of a couple of weeks the policies were delivered, the premiums paid, and Squire Jones stayed to dinner again and said as he finished and wanted to lick his plate, but remembered his dignity in time:

"Now, then, young folks, this is the best thing you have done so far in your lives. Keep on loving, keeping up your premiums as they fall due, and don't worry about the future. With $2,000 coming to the survivor in case of death you needn't either of you begrudge the Astors or Vanderbilts. Sarah, you can dress in the most expensive mourning, and Jim, you can wear patent leather shoes and hear Niagara roar till you get tired of it."

It was Squire Jones who was responsible for the insurance, but it was Aunt Deborah who was responsible for what resulted. The policies had been carefully laid away in the bottom bureau drawer and the subject talked out when Aunt Deborah came visiting one afternoon. She had not been invited, nor was she expected, but she proceeded to make herself at home, and by and by announced:

"Sarah, I have heard that you and James have had your lives insured for each other's benefit, but I told 'em you were not the woman to go into anything like that."

"But we have," replied Sarah. "We were insured two weeks ago."

"Upon my soul! No one could have made me believe it."

"But why? What's the matter?"

"Sarah Harper, do you know that you have the same as doomed yourself to death?" asked Aunt Deborah, in a hoarse whisper.

"What do you mean, aunty?"

"I mean that there isn't a man on the face of this earth who wouldn't kill his wife for the sake of $2,000 in cash. That insurance is a temptation to murder. Hundreds of wives have been killed off every year, and you will be one of them to go before another year rolls over your head."

The young wife laughed merrily at the idea, but Aunt Deborah grew more solemn and serious and said:

"Don't fool yourself, Sarah. Jim is just as good a husband as any of 'em, but you have put temptation in his way. He'll be thinking of them $2,000 all the time, and the longer he thinks the easier it will come for him to murder you. Two thousand dollars in cash and you out of the way so that he can marry again is more'n he can stand up under. I shan't be a bit surprised any day to hear that you have been found murdered. Squire Jones ought to be prosecuted for coaxing you into such a thing, and I'll tell him so before the week is out."

Sarah continued to laugh and make fun at the idea, and it was finally dropped to take up soft soap and carpet rags. When she set about getting supper Aunt Deborah made a sneak outdoors and caught the husband as he came up from the cornfield.

"Well," she began after he greeted her, "you want Sarah to chop you up with the ax or pour melted lead in your ears, I see!"

"What is it, aunty?"

"It's that life insurance, James Harper. I'm astonished at you. Do you know how many wives killed their husbands last year to get the insurance?"

"A million perhaps, but Sarah isn't going to kill me."

"Time will tell, James; time will tell. Sarah is sweet and lovely and innocent, but when there's $2,000 at stake who can tell what a woman will do? With this farm and all that money behind her if she was a widow she can catch a better looking man than you."

The good natured young man continued to laugh, and at the supper table his wife laughed with him as they chaffed Aunt Deborah, but the old lady shook her head and replied:

"Wait till the ax or the melted lead gets to work and then we'll see whether there is anything to laugh at or not."

That night at midnight Sarah woke up with her heart beating rapidly. She was about to nudge James with her elbow, when a sudden thought came to her. Aunt Deborah's gruesome predictions came up, and she wondered if she had been awakened by some move on her husband's part—some move to take her by the throat. She smiled at first, but presently the smile faded away. Wives had been killed that the husband might profit by the insurance. Aunt Deborah was always predicting, but at the same time many of her predictions had come true. She knew that James loved her with a great love, but there was that $2,000. For an hour she lay awake and thought, and the longer she thought the more miserable she became.

Sarah had only fallen into a troubled sleep when the dog barked and James awoke. He did not get up for fear of disturbing his wife, and after listening to the dog for a few minutes the thought of Aunt Deborah's predictions and solemn face came to his mind.

He grinned at the idea of Sarah killing him off for that $2,000, and yet he began to recall cases where wives had done that same thing. She could push him into the well, push him down the cellar stairs or dispose of him in other ways to enable her to escape detection, and with that $2,000 she would be a rich widow, and windmill men, wire fence men, piano agents and men with patent farm gates would tumble over each other to ask for her hand. She might not even put a ten dollar headstone at his grave.

There was constraint between them when the couple woke up next morning. They tried to make out that there wasn't, but realized that there was. Sarah claimed to have a headache, and James said he had a touch of rheumatism.

At noon when the husband came up from the field he had been thinking things over and almost wished he had turned Aunt Deborah out of the house. She was a meddlesome, gossipy old thing, and he would let nothing she had said annoy him in the least. Sarah had also been thinking and about the same thoughts, and so there was a return of love and confidence.

It did not last thirty-six hours, however. James had to sharpen his ax, and Sarah saw him at it and felt that he was contemplating a crime. Sarah asked if the handle of a table knife could not be made fast by a little melted lead, and James said to himself after answering her question:

"Ah, ha! Got melted lead on her mind, has she? Well, I've got to look out for my ears."

For the next four weeks the pair were hypocrites toward each other. They dissembled and deceived. They thought black thoughts of each other. James wanted to sleep in the barn o' nights, and Sarah wanted to go home and tell her mother all about it. Things were hastening on toward a separation when, as they sat on the veranda one night after supper, saying little, but thinking a great deal, Farmer Joe Collins came driving along and halted to say:

"Say, you folks heard the news?"

"No. What is it?"

"It'll take your breath away."

"But let's have it."

"Waal, that life insurance company you are insured in has busted higher'n Gilroy's kite!"

"Oh, James!"

"Oh, Sarah!"

And as they went dancing around the veranda in each other's arms Mr. Collins looked at them in astonishment and said to himself:

"By George, but they seem to be durned glad of it!"

And so they were.

Mount Forest carried a by-law to loan $14,000 more to the carriage factory.

How Buttons Are Made.

To this day a native of Birmingham is spoken of colloquially as a "Brummagem Button." "Button mooles"—that is, "button molds"—occur in very early inventories. These were disks or rings of any suitable material for covering with cloth, thread, silk or the like. In the days of our grandmothers a ring of wire with threads drawn over and over it, to be afterward gathered in the center, was a familiar household article used on underwear until superseded by the "threefold linen button," invented by Humphreys Jeffries about 1841 and introduced to the public by John Aston of Birmingham. It was formed of a ring of metal covered with separate fibers of linen and produced quite flat. Other makers improved upon it, and in some shape or form this is the most familiar fastener on our underclothing to this day. One Birmingham firm alone used to consume in a year for such buttons 63,000 yards of cloth and thirty-four tons of metal, thus giving employment to 250 workers.—London Standard.

Burglars' Tools His Hobby.

Canon Horsley has a strange hobby. It consists in the collection of burglars' implements, most of which passed into the canon's possession when he was chaplain of Clerkenwell prison. The collection includes jimmies, skeleton keys, picklocks and life preservers. One of the jimmies was presented to him by an eminent and unusually successful burglar, who feelingly remarked, "I think it will be safer with you, sir, than with me."—London Chronicle.

Wreck on a Wreck.

The French steam trawler Magdeleine ran ashore in the dark near Hope Cove, Bolt Tail, South Devon, about twenty miles east of Plymouth, England, exactly at the spot where the Elder-Dempster liner Jebba went ashore in March, 1907. Local fishermen, in fact, declare that the Magdeleine rests on the Jebba's boilers.

The trawler's crew of sixteen had an exciting escape. Her bow was within a dozen yards of the rocks at the cliff foot, and the crew managed to work their boat between the wreck and the rocks. Though it was dark they struck the path used by the Jebba passengers and without any guidance clambered to the top of the 300 feet cliff.

Then after wandering about fields, they reached the village of Hope and themselves conveyed the first intelligence of the wreck.

Pensions.

The first pensions were granted to distinguished individuals for great services rendered the state, as to the Dukes of Grafton, Richmond, Marlborough and others, in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. So early as 1781 England had a fixed pension list of many names and involving an expenditure of over $500,000. In ancient times the idea of providing for those who had suffered for the state or who had contributed to its welfare was practically unknown, it being then an accepted doctrine that the individual belonged to the state, served her by right and had no claim against her for the simple thing of doing of his manifest duty.

Shifting Ministers.

One of Wesley's reason for shifting his preachers every three years was avowedly that they might be able to preach the same sermon over again to different congregations. He knew by experience the difficulty of sermon making. After a few weeks, he said, a preacher cannot find matter for preaching every morning and evening, "nor will the people come to hear him, whereas if he never stays more than a fortnight in one place he will find plenty of matter, and the people will hear him gladly. I know that were I to preach one whole year in one place I should preach both myself and my congregation to sleep."—London Chronicle.

Waste In Steel Pens.

Great Britain manufactures $80,000,000 worth of steel pens annually. It is calculated that over 4,000,000 pens are destroyed daily.

Rancher Ended Life.

Okotosk, Alberta, Dec. 4.—Edward W. Meiladow, a well-known rancher of Millarville, committed suicide yesterday morning in the Grand Central Hotel by blowing off the top of his head with a shotgun. He discharged both barrels and death was instantaneous. He had been acting strangely of late, and it is believed he was insane.

A Capital Dodger

Carol's grandfather had served in the war, and Carol liked to hear of the many battles in which he had fought. One day, after listening to the vivid recital of many heroic deeds, Carol said:

"Grandpapa, [illegible] all those battles?"

"Yes."

"And the shot and [illegible] all around you?"

"Yes."

"And soldiers [illegible] falling and dying everywhere?"

"Yes."

"Well, grandfather, what a fine dodger you must have been!"

The Sultan of Turkey has seventy-one titles, and on the [illegible] [illegible] number [illegible] the Turkeys, and Shadow of God on Earth."

The Triumph of the Horse.

It is a curious thing that all the dismal prophecies about the [illegible] tion of the horse after the [illegible] tion of motor-traction [illegible] tion of the [illegible] have not only been falsified, but the [illegible] noblest friend of man, has [illegible] ed a new position of favor. The truth is that after the first wild enthusiasm for mechanical traction people have realized that for pleasure as well as for many kinds of work the horse is still the greatest servant of man. The army is not yet mounted on flying-machines, and needs more horses than are easily obtained. The old Shire horses are still supreme in the fields, and the first attempts to supersede them by heavy traction engines have failed ignominiously.

The Art of Listening

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

You are safe in rejecting the article offered as "just as good."

MAIL AND EXPRESS HINTS FOR XMAS.

For Those Sending Christmas Cheer to the Old Country.

Mail your letters early and express your parcels in time, is an injunction that should be heeded, just as thoroughly this Christmas season, as in past years, by the general public. Don't leave it to the last possible moment, and maybe incur the risk of missing delivery through your neglect. Don't work the post-office employes or the express clerks to their very limit in despatching the usual tremendous budget of mail and parcels. It will be very much to the mutual benefit of all to mail whatever is intended early, and then you can rest easy.

For the benefit, therefore, of intending shippers, the following facts will be of value, if heeded:

Parcels to be delivered in England for Christmas must be mailed two days before the date of sailing of steamers to the Old Land, the date of such sailings being Dec. 12th, 13th, 14th and 16th. If your parcels are in the local post-office two days ahead of any of these days, they will be delivered going via both Halifax and New York City.

The postage on letters to Great Britain and all parts of the British empire will be 2 cents per ounce, or fraction thereof.

Money letters should always be registered.

Every article intended for registration must be handed in at the wicket and a receipt obtained therefor.

The fee on all classes of articles addressed to countries to which matter may be registered is 5 cents. Canadian postal notes are payable only in Canada and the United States.

It is particularly important that every letter or parcel should bear the name, street and number of the party for whom intended, no matter how well known the name may be.

COURT BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

At a closed session of police court this morning a local man was charged with assaulting his wife while he was intoxicated. The assault consisted of his striking her with his fists. His wife lodged the complaint.

The accused pleaded not guilty, but the evidence was sufficient for his worship to convict him, but judgment was reserved.

CANON ELLEGOOD DEAD.

Aged Montreal Clergyman Is Victim of His Zeal.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—Rev. Canon Ellegood, rector of the Church of St James the Apostle, one of the oldest clergymen in the Dominion, passed away at his residence at eight o'clock yesterday morning.

He had been in very feeble health for some time, and during the past few days the end had been expected at any minute.

Canon Ellegood's career was one of enthusiastic work in the ministry right up to the time of his last illness.

Born near Fredericton, N.B., March 1, 1824, he received his early education at King's College, where he graduated with the degree of B.A., in 1849. Upon his ordination, first as a deacon in 1848, and as a priest in the following year, he was appointed junior assistant at Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal.

His first charge was St. Ann's Chapel, Griffintown, and there he remained during the year of the immigrant ship fever and as a consequence suffered for years from the poisonous virus with which his system had become infected. A year later he aided in the fight against the pestilential outbreak of cholera, which followed the ship fever.

His church was burned to the ground shortly after, but was rebuilt through an appeal to the people of wealthier parishes and renamed St. Stephens.

In 1864 St James the Apostle Church was built, and he became the first rector, and has since remained with that church.

He was the oldest clergyman in the diocese of Montreal, and the only one left who saw the birth of its synod in 1859. He was also the oldest military chaplain in the British service, having been appointed chaplain of the Victoria Rifles when that regiment was organized over fifty years ago.

Richard Clement, of Chesterville, choked to death while at dinner.

TO FORM AN AD. CLUB HERE

Meeting in National Hotel This Evening at 6.15 O'clock

For the purpose of organizing a Peterborough Ad. Club, three Toronto gentlemen are in the city to-day, registered at the National. They will address a meeting to-night in the hotel parlor, to which are invited all local business men and others interested in advertising. A dinner will be given first, and the meeting will immediately follow. It is billed to commence at 6.15 sharp, and be over early, so as not to interfere with any other engagements of those who attend. The organization of five similar clubs is taking place in Ontario this week, and the establishment of such a department here should meet with general approval

The clubs are all organized by the Toronto Ad. Club. Its objects will be to discuss advertising, and have addresses by leading outside advertising authorities, and if a club is formed to include it in the Ontario Advertising Club, to be formed next spring.

Three addresses, brief, but to the point will be given to-night as follows:

"Some retailers' problems and how they may be solved," by C. S. Acton.

"The objects of a publicity club," by W. A. Lydiatt; and "The national convention of advertising clubs," by W. R. Rook.

Every phase of advertising will be considered and it is to be hoped that the attendance to-night will indicate a desire for the formation of such a club in Peterborough

MORE ANSWERS
By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q. What is Astigmatism of the eye?
A. Astigmatism is an uneven curvature of the eye and causes double focus. As the eye always strives for clear vision this double focus annoys the brain and causes headache and nervousness. We make lenses called cylinders to correct astigmatism.

Q. What causes double vision?
A. Double vision is caused by the eyes not being in line, that is, one may turn up or have a tendency to do so, or both may turn in; a weak muscular system is back of it all.

We would be pleased to ave you call and let us explain how such conditions can be relieved with glasses.

SEVENTEEN ALREADY! WATCH THE WHITNEY RANKS FILL UP

In Six Seats the Contestants Are a Conservative and Some Other Than a Liberal—Four Ministers Are Returned Without a Fight—Toronto Man Bobs Up to Fight Whitney In Dundas.

Toronto, Dec. 5.—Seventeen Conservatives elected by acclamation and no Liberals appear for five of the Toronto seats and Dufferin. This is the net result of the nominations for the Legislature which took place throughout Ontario on Monday. There are 106 seats in the Legislature.

Of the eight seats in Toronto, Labor candidates are contesting seven and only three Liberals are making the run. The Liberals are Joseph Oliver in North Toronto (B), Dr. John Hunter in West Toronto (A), and E. Fielding in South Toronto (B).

Four Cabinet Minister are re-elected without a contest, namely: Hon. Adam Beck, London; Hon. A. J. Matheson, South Lanark; Hon. W. H. Hearst, Sault Ste. Marie; and Hon. James Duff, West Simcoe.

Sir James Whitney, the Prime Minister, does not win his seat without a fight. At the last minute, R. S. Muir, a Toronto lawyer, bobbed up at Winchester Springs, and entered the contest.

The Opposition leader, N. W. Rowell, K.C., who is running in North Oxford, is opposed by Robert Lockhart. In West Kent, George Sulman is opposed by E. Hea, who is called an Independent Liberal.

Here and there in the list will be found a Socialist candidate who perhaps regards the opportunity as favorable for the spread of the society's propaganda.

The following Conservatives are elected by acclamation: Addington, W. D. Black; Carleton, R. McElroy; East Durham, J. J. Preston; Grenville, G. Ferguson; East Hastings, Sandy Grant; North Hastings, Robt. Cook; West Hastings, W. Johnston; Kingston, Dr. Ross; North Lanark, Dr. Preston; South Lanark, Hon. FLEET OF WAR AIRSHIPS

London, Dec. 4.—A despatch from Berlin to the London Standard says that the German War Office is considering plans for the building of a fleet of huge airships, capable of carrying large quantities of explosives and big crews of fighting men. The airships, it is said, will be of the Zeppelin type, and will each have a gas capacity of 3,500,000 cubic feet and be capable of carrying 300 men.

FRANK CONFESSION ASKED FROM McNAMARA BROTHERS

Walter Drew of New York Sends a Letter to State Attorney Fredericks Declaring That McNamaras Are Only Tools and Urging a Complete Probe Into Explosions—A Hundred Mysteries.

New York, Dec. 5.—In behalf of the National Erectors' Association, which employed Wm. J. Burns to run down the McNamaras in the dynamite outrages, Walter Drew, as counsel, issued a statement here last night urging that the prisoners "make a frank and full confession." Mr. Drew says among other things that he doubts the sincerity of labor's demands in urging extreme punishment in the name of justice, and indicates rather that those who take that attitude have an ulterior motive. Mr. Drew issued the statement in the form of a telegram to J. B. Fredericks, district attorney at Los Angeles. The telegram is as follows:

"Captain J. D. Fredericks, district attorney, Los Angeles:—

"I note the many statements from labor leaders repudiating the McNamaras and demanding the infliction upon them of the extreme penalty of the law. As you know, I am counsel for a group of employers who have been among the chief sufferers at the hands of these men and am, perhaps, as familiar as anyone with the series of dynamite outrages in which they took part. I deem it my duty to say to you, in order that in your discretion you may advise the court:

"First—No human life has been destroyed by any other explosion traceable to these men, nor do I know of any such explosion which was apparently planned with the purpose of taking life, though in some instances a disregard of such possible consequences was shown.

"Second—The National Erectors' Association does not join in the demand for the death penalty for the younger McNamara, believing him the weak, paid tool of others and his actions the natural consequence of the doctrines taught by men who now repudiate him. We believe the punishment of both these brothers secondary in importance to the conviction of the men behind them and we sincerely hope they will take advantage of the opportunity now presented to perform a signal service for society by making full and frank confession.

"Third—Inasmuch as some of the demands for extreme punishment come from men who must have known of the guilt of the McNamaras and one of them at least, I know to be implicated in several outrages with them. I sincerely doubt that such demands are being made with the sole desire of aiding the ends of full and complete justice.

(Signed) "Walter Drew."

Mr. Drew reiterated last evening that he believed that between twenty and thirty labor leaders would be indicted as the result of the federal investigation now under way at Indianapolis, and that the ramifications of the inquiry would extend from Boston to the Pacific Coast. As to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, he would say nothing other than to repeat what he had said during the day—that, so far as he knew, Mr. Gompers had no knowledge of the dynamiting and no advance information that the McNamaras were to plead guilty.

100 Explosions to Probe.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 5.—"Some persons that have apparently been so astounded by the pleas of guilty of the McNamara brothers at Los Angeles may soon be still further amazed," said a representative of one of the employers' organizations watching the federal probe here into the alleged nation-wide dynamiting conspiracy yesterday.

"No one at all informed believed the McNamaras were alone in operations that covered one hundred explosions from coast to coast and cost an enormous sum of money."

Accountants and stenographers that proceeded yesterday with examinations of records and correspondence of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, in the federal grand jury chambers, were seeking evidence, it was learned, as to the exact disposition of certain funds of the association. According to the information compiled by the National Erectors' Association one hundred explosions directed against employers of non-union iron

G. T. R. Wreck Near Brentwood.

Barrie, Dec. 5.—Sixteen freight cars of the northern division of the Grand Trunk Railway are to-day piled up in the ditch about one mile south of Brentwood, on the Collingwood and Meaford branch, as a result of a wreck which took place early Sunday morning. Twisted iron, splintered lumber, corn, peas and other rough freight lies scattered all about the track. The freight train was a double-header, and was in charge of Conductor McNeil and Engineers Edwards and Ambach.

James Armstrong, a married man, residing in Allandale and employed on the G. T. R., received serious internal injuries while engaged with the wrecking crew.

Portsmouth, Dec. 5.—Accused of making maps of the dockyards and harbor, Captain Henrich, a German army officer, was placed under arrest to-day and remanded for one week, bail being refused.

CHINESE PREMIER'S TROUBLES OVER THE NEW FOREIGN LOAN

Chinese Prime Minister Has a Bad Tangle to Deal With.

Pekin, Dec. 5.—Premier Yuan Shi Kai is having great difficulty with the board of finance. He appointed a president to the board, who declined to serve. The vice-president left Pekin after informing his friends that the situation was hopeless. The acting president has now asked for a leave of absence on the ground of illness, but really because he was summoned before the National Assembly.

Considerable of a sensation has been caused by the discovery that the National Assembly, the Chinese Foreign Board and the board of finance hold three different texts of the $30,000,000 loan agreement, negotiated by Baron Cottu in behalf of a Franco-Belgian syndicate. This was discovered, it was said, when a representative of the Chinese Foreign Board appeared before the National Assembly in secret session. It is on this loan that China's future form of government practically depends.

A despatch from Tien Tsin says that the Chilli provincial assembly has telegraphed to the French Government protesting against the Cottu loan and declaring that the National Assembly's action with respect to this loan is illegal.

A message has also been sent to Pekin declaring that the Chilli assembly had decided to withdraw its representatives from the National Assembly which now musters few beyond the appointees of the throne. Sessions of the National House are being held with about one-third the total members in attendance.

Consular advices say that the three days' armistice at Wuchang terminates to-morrow morning, but that it probably will be renewed. Delegates from the rebel provinces are arriving at Wuchang and Yuan Shi Kai's representatives are already there.

Killed by Falling Wall.

Toronto, Dec. 5.—A man believed to be G. W. Taylor, but of whom little else is known, was instantly killed beneath the walls of a frame building opposite the Gayety Theatre yesterday noon. A wooden wall was being brought down, and all others had got to a place of safety.

Germany's Naval Plans.

PROTECTING THE KING AND QUEEN

Suspicious Characters Are Being Arrested at Bombay

Special to the Review.

Bombay, Dec. 5.—Although no untoward incidents have occurred to indicate the existence of a plot against the life of the King and Queen, many arrests of suspicious characters were made to-day. The native press warmly praises the King for his generous contributions to the charitable institutions.

BORDEN MUM ON BOUNDARY

Says That the Bargain Will be Announced Later.

Opposition Criticizes Holding Up of H. B. Ry Work.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—Hon. R. L. Borden and several members of his Cabinet very skilfully skated around the thin ice of the Manitoba boundary question on which they were urged to disport themselves by the request of E. M. MacDonald (Pictou).

Mr. MacDonald wanted to know what about the financial settlement, what about the control of the newly-annexed lands, what about the Manitoba school question as regarded the new territory?

The Premier declared that Mr. MacDonald would find out when the Government brought down its measures. He did not intend to discuss the question till then.

Hon. Robert Rogers said that Mr. Borden would give Manitoba the justice for which she had vainly besought the Laurier Government for seven long years. They only wanted fair play. The settlement arrived at would satisfy everybody.

The afternoon session was almost entirely devoted to a discussion of the Hudson Bay Railway.

D. B. Neely (Humboldt) in connection with a motion for all papers, etc., in the case made a vigorous attack on Hon. Frank Cochrane for the suspension of work on the contracts awarded by the late Government for the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway. He claimed that it was a violation of the pledge given by Mr. Borden during his western tour to speedily complete the railway.

James MacKay (Prince Albert) said that Laurier in 1908 promised to have trains running to Hudson Bay in four or five years, yet the first contractor only arrived on the grounds two weeks before polling day in 1911. There would be practically no delay under the present administration.

J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) declared it was absolutely necessary to get supplies in as soon as possible if the right of way was to be cut out this winter.

Hon. Frank Cochrane affirmed that the new Government would carry out all its promises made before it came into power, and particularly this one in regard to the Hudson Bay Railway. Representations had been made to the Government that the road did not start in the right spot, that the surveys were not right, and that the first 100 miles included a deep swamp. There would be no delay more than was necessary to check up these matters. The original estimates for surveys of the N.T.R. had been more than doubled. What reason was there to suppose that this might not prove the case in regard to the Hudson Bay Railway?

Hon. Frank Oliver thought Mr. Cochrane's statement revealed a serious situation, which would mean a delay not of a month or so, but of one, two or more years.

WHEN THE STRATTON ORGAN STRADDLES THE POWER FENCE

The Stratton organ has flopped into line, in a sense, but it still is wearing the uniform of the enemy. It was opposed to the hydro-electric, showed every mark of hostility, most of it secret, but none the less noticeable, but now it has been seeing the light to such an extent that it says it wants the cheapest power possible for Peterborough, and if the hydro-electric will submit a good proposition, Peterborough ought to accept it. That is talking some. So say we all.

But lest the Examiner continue to suffer under one or two strange delusions with regard to the hydro-electric power proposal, let us enlighten it still further, and complete the conversion if possible. The Review would like to see the Examiner come out for the hydro-electric, good and strong, before this week is ended. We believe that if it has the interest of Peterborough at heart, and actually wants a good, cheap supply of power, no matter where it comes from, that it might be persuaded to throw politics and Mr. Hall to the winds and lend its beaming countenance to the effort to get the hydro-electric to Peterborough on acceptable terms.

Mr. Stratton says that he has not a dollar in any water power site on the Trent canal system. The Review never said that he had, but the Review understands he made a trip to Ottawa in company with Mr. Hall not so very long ago—around September, we believe—with reference to a water power site, that we would like to know more about. Why did they not succeed in their mission? Mr. Stratton will please many curious people if he will explain what he was doing in that instance, and then we may judge if he has any interest in power matters in this district.

Having come to the point where it is "almost persuaded" the Stratton organ cannot, of course, openly and full-heartedly endorse the hydro-electric—that would be too much for the weak-hearted people of Peterborough—but it might at least refra from conveying to the people suc tantalising ideas as it proposed las night

Let us quote a couple of its utterances bearing on this point:

> "The Hydro-Electric proposal must be considered and dealt with on its merits, and its merits or demerits are not, and cannot be, sufficiently canvassed to enable the people to vote intelligently on the subject next week.
> "The people should not be carried away by newspaper bluster that denounces as hostile to cheap power for Peterborough, everybody that does not fall down and worship a proposal that has all the marks of a bid for votes—that was only thought of in the heat of an election campaign, and is yet, and cannot be, before Dec. 11th, understood by the people, who are asked to pronounce upon it."

The considerate and sympatheti reader will kindly notice that th Stratton organ says the people don know enough about the propositi to vote on it next week. Well, Well! Who on earth has said th the people are voting directly on th introduction of the hydro-elect when they go to the polls next day? The time when they will called on to vote, as will be see from the city council proceedi last night, will be on January The vote on Monday is a vote, not binding the city to take th hydro-electric proposition, but vote merely to show our confide in the good faith of Whitney an the commission; merely a pat on th back through Mr. Peck, as if say, "Good for you, old boy. I you will be able to formulate a position that we can take, and ta gladly."

A vote for Hall on Monday wou be different. It would be a vote putting up a direct obstruction the whole scheme. It would be vote of no-confidence in the hyd electric, before the commission shown its hand, in its desire to he Peterborough out of the power ho The Examiner rather plaintiv pleads with the people not to pr nounce upon the scheme on Monda Is that to be construed as mean that they ought to vote for Mr. Ha and thus vote for the placing of boulder in the pathway of the mission? Surely not. The Strat organ, with its new found desire have Peterborough adopt the hyd electric if it has a good propositi ought to tell the people to vote Peck, and thus help the good w along. They never will help it al by voting for Hall—that is une sure!

We hope that by Saturday t Stratton organ will not straddle t fence in such a tantalising Let it come out boldly for the hyd electric, and shout Peck and Pow for the People At Cost, with rig hearty good will. This is the w the procession leads.

THE McNAMARA CONFESSIONS.

The confessions of the McNamaras were, in themselves, an explosion. They demolished the whole cleverly constructed fabric of supposition, imputation and suggestion which was intended to place the accused on the pedestal of the persecuted, and, possibly, the martyred. They dissipated the sincere and honest belief of hundreds of thousands of skilled, intelligent workingmen in not so much the innocence of individuals as the impossibility of such a plot involving men high in the confidence and esteem of of organized labor; they cracked the conventional, superficial polish which has become the coating of most discussions of economic relationships. They did not fundamentally effect Organized Labor, because Organized Labor, as a movement, cannot be held responsible for the acts of such adherents as the McNamaras showed themselves to be, says the Montreal Star.

"Over against all this however, we may set one item which compensates for the total of the contra entries,—the confessions have cleared away the rubbish of unthinking sentiment and dangerous sentimentality, which from the beginning impeded the course of justice. The barriers of false statement, buttressed and bound together with all the skill of a famous criminal lawyer, have been breached and shattered and at least a portion of the truth is disclosed. Had the trial been allowed to proceed with all its possibilities of bitterness and class hatred, it would have required more than a conviction to persuade those who had been led to believe in the innocence of the prisoners that they were not the persecuted victims of some mysterious, invisible, maleficent power which would seek and could find other victims when it needed them. Organized labor, the continent over, has been deceived, duped and mulcted by the attorneys for the defence. Disillusionment comes in time to permit a united, unprejudiced effort to discover the truth about a situation which equally concerns all classes of law-abiding citizens.

The confessions by no means end the McNamara trial, although they eliminate the question of the innocence or guilt of the two men who have been the only tangible figures the prosecution could materialize out of the midst of rumor and gossip. The McNamaras did not act for themselves, of their own volition and for their personal benefit. What was the organization which financed the dynamiting of factories, who were its officials and why was it active? These are the questions which have been opened up for investigation by the collapse of the McNamara defence. Until they are answered the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times will remain, for all practical purposes, as much a mystery as ever.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Hall says he is a workingman's friend, but he wasn't at the time of the King case, which perhaps many people remember.

A man may take many steps, but the more steps he takes the more he is likely to put his foot into it, sooner or later, metaphorically, of course.

"The Liberal party is out of power only temporarily," says J. J. Hartley. In Ontario, at least that "temporarily" seems to stretch itself out rather indefinitely.

Only eighteen or twenty seats won by the Conservatives in Ontario already. That does not point to a Liberal success in even making an opposition worth while.

Watch for an election extra from the Examiner, announcing that it is getting into the power procession and supporting Mr. Peck and the hydro-electric.

The people vote on the hydro-electric proposition on Jan 1st, and not on Monday. On Monday they vote for Peck and a slap on the back for Beck, just as if to say, "We are with you, old man. What can you do for us?"

The Attorney-General of Ontario has been accused to sleeping on the job. Perhaps that supposed habit might come in handy when the Cordage company affair is brought to his notice, if it is.

SAFE FROM TYPHOID

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" THE BEST PREVENTATIVE

There is practically no danger of Typhoid Fever as long as you keep the bowels regular with "Fruit-a-tives."

Typhoid is an inflammation of the bowels, due to a germ. This germ enters the body in milk, water or food. If the bowels are constipated, the germ remains in the body long enough to attack the delicate lining and thus Typhoid begins.

"Fruit-a-tives" acts directly on the liver, kidneys and skin, and cleans the system of all impurities. "Fruit-a-tives" will not cure Typhoid—but it will cure Constipation, assist Digestion and tone up the system—thus preventing Typhoid.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

E. A. Peck has no financial interest in the Calcutt Brewery. He holds one share, as a trustee, in his legal capacity, but he is not financially interested himself.

Perhaps when the Attorney-General commences his investigation into the affairs of the Cordage works, there will be another election handy at which the people can express their opinions.

Mr. Stratton may promise to give a thousand dollars to any charity in the city, but that won't convince many people that he hasn't financial relations with the men who have financial relations with the power corporation which is opposed to the hydro-electric.

Mr. Stratton warns the electors to watch out for hydro-electric clap-trap from the Review. That is all very well, but people at least know where the Review stands. It is in the same place on power every business day. The Stratton organ one day is out bitterly against the hydro; next day it swallows itself almost, and thinks that perhaps Peterborough might consent to accept the power-at-cost, if the cost is low enough. When the organ flip-flops so much, who knows but that it will be actively supporting Peck next? This is hard on the nervous system.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—The foreign demand for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat was very heavy, there being orders in the market for over 1,000,000 bushels, but owing to the limited amount of ocean grain now offering from all ports, the volume of business accomplished was not large. Cables from the United Kingdom were easier. There was an increased demand for oats, a number of orders being received from the lower provinces for car lots. The trade in other coarse grains was quiet. A steady feeling prevails in flour, with a fair amount of business passing. Demand for millfeed and rolled oats is good. Cheese is quiet but firm. Demand for butter and eggs good, with prices tending upward. Dressed hogs advanced 25c. Trade fair.

Corn—American No. 3 yellow, 83½c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 49½c to 49¾c; western No. 3, 47c to 47½c; extra No. 1 feed, 46½c to 47c; No 2 local white, 47½c; No 3 local white, 46½c; No. 4 local white, 45½c.

Buckwheat—No. 2, 65c to 66c.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.60; do., seconds, $5.10; do., strong bakers, $4.90; winter patents, choice, $4.75 to $5; straight rollers, $4.35 to $4.40; do., bags, $1.95 to $2.05.

Rolled oats—Barrels, $5.35; bags, 90 lbs., $2.50.

Hay—No. 2, per ton, car lots, $14.50 to $15.

Cheese—Finest westerns, 14¼c to 14⅝c; finest easterns, 13⅞c to 14¼c.

Butter—Choicest creamery, 29½c to 30c; seconds, 27½c to 29c.

Potatoes—Per bag, car lots, $1.20 to $1.25.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 85 carloads, comprising 1518 cattle, 524 hogs, 1482 sheep and lambs and 46 calves.

Exporters.

Alexander McIntosh bought 27 export steers, 1285 lbs. each, at $6.00, and 10 bulls, at $5 to $5.50. These were the only cattle reported as being bought for export. E. L. Woodward bought 50 good steers of export weight and quality, at $6.40, for the Swift Canadian Company, to be slaughtered for the local trade.

Butchers

Prime picked lots of butchers' cattle sold at $5.85 to $6 and one lot at $6.10; loads of good, at $5.60 to $5.80, medium, $5.20 to $5.45; common to medium, $4.25 to $5.10; cows, $3 to $5.25; canners, $2 to $3; bulls were bought for butcher purposes from $3.65 to $5.75.

Stockers and Feeders.

Feeders, from 900 to 1100 lbs. each, were quoted at $4.50 to $5.25; stockers, at $3.90 to $4.50.

Milkers and Springers.

A moderate supply of milkers and springers, sold at prices ranging from $40 to $75 each.

Veal Calves.

Veal calves were quoted and sales made at $3.50 to $8.50. But only choice new milk fed calves brought the latter figure.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep sold at about steady prices, but lambs were 10c to 15c per cwt. lower. Sheep, ewes, sold at $3.25 to $3.75; rams, $3, lambs, $5 to $5.25; with a few picked ewes and wethers reported at $5.60. The bulk of lambs sold from $5.25 to $5.35.

Hogs.

Selected hogs, fed and watered, sold at $6.50. This would mean $6.15, f.o.b., cars, at country points, and $6 to the farmer.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 2 were 1500 cattle, 1700 sheep and lambs, 1700 hogs and 200 calves. The offerings on the market this morning amounted to 775 cattle, 1000 sheep and lambs, 600 hogs and 125 calves.

The tone of the market for good butchers' cattle was much stronger than a week ago, and prices show an advance of 10c to 25c per 100 pounds on account of the fact that the supply was much less than half, of which the percentage of common and inferior grades was much smaller than it has been of late, which all tended to create a better feeling in the trade.

The top price paid for picked lots of choice steers was $6.10 per 100 pounds, and sales of full loads of good, useful stock were made at from $5.50 to $5.75.

In the small meat trade the feature was the strength in the market for lambs, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds. The demand was good, and sales of a few choice lots were made as high as $6 per 100 pounds, but the bulk of trading was done at $5.75 to $5.85. The market for sheep was firm under a fair demand, and small supplies. Calves were scarce, for which the demand was good at firm prices.

The tone of the market for hogs was stronger, and prices advanced 25c per 100 pounds, owing to smaller offerings, and the keen competition between some buyers for supplies. A few sales were made at $6.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars, but the bulk of the business was done at $6.50 to $6.65. The prospects now are that the tendency of prices will be to go higher, as the crop has been pretty well marketed, consequently receipts from now on will be smaller.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6 to $6.10; butchers' cattle medium, $4.75 to $5.50; butchers' cattle, common, $3.50 to $3.75; canners, $2 to $3; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; butchers' cattle, medium, $4.50 to $5; butchers' cattle, bulls, $3.75 to $4.25; milkers, choice, each, $75, milkers, common and medium, each, $50 to $60; springers, $30 to $40.

Sheep, ewes, $3.75 to $4, bucks and culls, $3.25 to $3.50; Lambs, $5.75 to $6.

Hogs, f.o.b., $6.50 to $6.75.

Calves, $3 to $10.

—they might try to get back to the timber," whispered Al, "and come on all together later on. If they do, that'll be our time to rush them. Do you mind the scarlet pine?"

"That big one like a Scotch fir beyond their camp?"

"All by its lone on a bluff. Yes, that's it. We've got to make for that."

"But we should have to go through the whole lot of them to get to it."

"That's so, but it's the only way as they won't expect us, and it's the short cut to supper. Are you scared to try it? Maybe the folk at the ranch want us as bad as I want my tucker."

"You choose your time and I'll follow."

"'Twon't do to bunch up, that's the trouble. We'll have to split like a band of prairie chicken, and I'm scared as you'll lose your way."

Rolt knew that in the darkness this was only too probable, but there were other lives to be considered, more precious to him than his own.

"Do you think I am a kid or a tcheechako, Al?" he said, angrily.

"All right; I guess you ain't, it it comes to that; but keep your hair on as long as they'll let you. Mine fel's almighty loose, I can tell you," and then silence fell upon them as they waited, whilst the dark came quickly, as it does in northern lands. First the bar of brown cloud turned to fiery crimson, then the crimson died to orange, that faded, and for a space the pines came out hard and clear cut against a pale green sky, and then the light faded and an owl hooted.

"That's the signal. They're going back," whispered Al. "Are you ready?" and his voice had a shake in it. Even he was excited at last.

Before Rolt could reply the old man was on his feet.

"Come on," he cried, and then, as he told them afterwards at the ranch, "I'm blessed if I didn't think I was standing still."

"Though he had grown too heavy for running long distances, Rolt had in his time been a famous university sprinter, and the long strain of waiting had worked upon his nerves, until they were like coiled springs. When the release came he bounded forward as he had done when he was the first string for his alma mater, and passed Al as a motor-car passes a bus.

"To 'em, boys," screamed Al. "Sock it to 'em! Give 'em hell!" and, yelling like a fiend or an old Cree brave, he dashed after his leader.

To their credit, in spite of his pace, Toma and Al were not much farther behind Rolt when he sprang at the log, than the second and third strings are behind the winner in the quarter.

As Rolt reached the log a group of figures rose from the sage brush. They had already wormed their way through it for some fifty yards unseen, but concealment being no longer possible, they rose now and ran.

"Fleet as an Indian," men say who do not know Indians. Those who know them would back Oxford or Harvard, Cambridge or Yale, to beat any Indian who ever drew the breath of the prairies into his lungs. The trouble is that most of the men who take back these stories of Indian prowess don't know anything about first-class athletes; don't know what it means to come to London the wonder of your country and find yourself a very moderate second-class in town; and, moreover, the raconteurs, being for the most part authorities on whiskey, have no personal standard to judge by. They themselves think themselves men. The boys would call them obsolete machines past forty and fit only for wasting good fuel.

But Rolt's muscles had been kept hard by an out-door life, and he was still five years on the right side of forty, so that his feet seemed to devour the distance, and in spite of their efforts the shadowy figures of the Indians grew plainer, until one turned to face the terror panting at his shoulder. He had hardly time to see the fierce white face. The earth itself seemed to rise up and strike him, and he knew no more.

Years after he was known as Billy Brokenjaw. He was more lucky than the big Chilcoten just ahead of him. The hand which struck the senses out of Billy, gripped and clawed at the nape of the next man's neck. For a dozen paces it seemed doubtful whether white rage or red terror would win in that race for life, but the clawing fingers bent at last, and the Indians shock of black hair, being coarse and strong as a horse's mane, the grip of those fingers held, and the two men rolled over together, like fox and hound in the final worry.

There is a particular scent to-day, not unlike the smell of dying sage brush, which makes old man Rolt turn squeamish. When he smells it, he sees the whites of an Indian's eyes, and feels a neck bending back until it snicks.

CHAPTER XXII.

"Come on," the old man insisted, and though the remaining Chilcotens had secured too good a start to be caught up now, the two white men pressed as closely upon their heels as they could. Before the pursuers had covered half the distance the pursued had vanished into the timber, but Al held on steadily, straight into the Indians' lines.

Through the first rank of the pines master and man passed unmolested, running swiftly but silently, until Rolt saw indistinctly a mob of men on his right, uncertain, it seemed, whether to run to him or away from him, until Al called to them in the strange clucking gutterals of their own language.

The meaning of what Al said Rolt could not catch, but he saw the mob disperse, running apparently in the same general direction as himself, and he wondered even then at the marvellously true accent and ready wit which had for the moment deceived the Indians.

For twenty yards the two tore through the impending brush or blundered in the dark amongst logs and windfalls, then they emerged upon the main trail which led to Khelowna's camp. If they had had time to think, the smooth firmness of it would have suggested to them the numbers of an enemy who could wear such a trail in so short a time.

As they ran past what looked in the dark like a brush lean to, a man leapt out upon the path, and Al, who was now leading, repeated his cry. But the man was too near to be deceived, and though Al was past him, the Indian tried boldly to block Rolt's way. To Rolt he was the full back of his boyhood's days. Without decreasing his pace he pretended to swerve, and then, as the man closed on him, turned and ran right at him, tilted the Indian's chin up with the butt of his open hand so that his head was shoved almost off his shoulders, and so passed amongst the great dim pines which stood for goal posts, through a line of smouldering fires, seeing only the tall thin figure of the tireless runner in front.

As they ran a horse whinnied, and Al, checking for a minute, branched off the main trail.

"Holy smoke!" he panted, as Rolt overhauled him. "That's their horse camp. Let's chance it, Boss. It's worth the risk," and he stole swiftly along through the bushes until they opened out into a narrow swamp, not an acre in extent all told.

In it twenty or thirty horses had been picketted, and as luck would have it not a man was in sight.

"Cut the ropes or pull the pegs," gasped Al, and his own jack knife snicked and slashed about the horses, reckless of their heels or of any who might be on the trail.

"Now jump on and git," he added, "I'll finish 'em. Jump, blank it, jump!" he screamed, as the Boss hesitated, and a crashing of brush in the direction of the fires warned him that the minutes of grace had all but expired.

Rolt obeyed him as the last rope was severed, and Al, losing his head at last, cried in his triumph, "Now, catch us, you swine!" as he swung himself on to the back of the last horse and galloped into the bush.

As if in answer to his taunt, a dozen Indians dashed into the opening, and four or five rifles were fired point blank at the retreating figure.

Luckily his horse was not hit, but for a moment the old man swayed and all but toppled from his seat, but though he rode bare-backed, he got his grip again, and in spite of the deadly sickness which took him and the warm trickle from the numbed shoulder, he managed to stick on, whilst the loose horses, frightened by the shooting, thundered past, jostling him as they went, into the darkness in which Rolt had vanished.

For a mile, perhaps, he let his horse gallop, almost lying on its neck to avoid overhanging boughs, maintaining a precarious position by holding on to the horse's mane with his uninjured hand.

Sorely against his will he had to let his rifle go. If his enemies caught him the rifle would be useless now, and he had all that he could do for the one good arm left him.

When at last he came out upon the prairie he reduced his pace to a lope and sat up, muttering as he guided his horse with his knees and tried to hold up his wounded arm with his left hand.

"Winged, blank them, but not bagged yet, nor goin' to be by any measly Chilcoten," but though his words were brave his sleeve was very sodden with a warm sticky fluid which still continued to ooze into it, and he was growing so dim of sight and dizzy that he would have ridden right into Rolt, had not his horse shied.

Then for the first time since he had grown to man's estate, the old man cut a voluntary, but even then he held on to the halter rope, and managed to murmur:

"All right, Colonel. Don't shoot. I'm comin' down," but he had only a hazy idea that Rolt was blocking the way, his rifle resting across his horse's back, and of what happened for a while after he spoke he knew nothing.

His disgust was immense, and his scorn withering, when he sat up again with a curious bandage tied tightly around his upper arm, and heard the Boss ask whether he thought he could sit on his horse if it were led for him.

"Sit on? Who, the blank, said I couldn't sit on! I'm only barked a bit. Must have knocked this fool head of mine agen a bough, I reckon, or I shouldn't have fell off." But for all that he couldn't remount without assistance, which he accepted only under protest, and with a perfect string of oaths, such as in ordinary times no man ever heard him use.

But once in the saddle again, he seemed to recover. It is true that he never spoke a word after the first five minutes, which was unlike Al, but he remained on his horse's back whilst the endless miles went by in the dark. Only once Rolt heard him muttering to himself, "Guess I can go on three legs as well as a buck. I never seed a buck as would stop because I tinkered it."

CALLING THE MOOSE.

This is the Season for the Big Game—Their Life History.

The life history of the moose is interesting. When snow leaves the ground in April or early May the moose leave their winter haunts in eastern Quebec and New Brunswick and approach marshes, ponds and rivers to search for summer food, consisting of aquatic plants. Their favorite diet is the water lily, upon which they browse as soon as it makes it appearance on the surface of the water, always wading deep and dragging up the plant by its root. When they cannot obtain the water lily they feed upon the rushes.

About the same time or a little later the females go apart, seeking the most impenetrable thickets, near or bordering on the water, and there bring forth their young. As the season advances the moose visit the water more and more, often remaining in it for hours at a time in the heat of midsummer, not only to enjoy its cooling effect, but also to escape the plague of flies, from which they are great sufferers. Thunderstorms seem to afford the acme of enjoyment.

The female during her visit to the water hides her young with great care to protect them from the ferocity of the old males. The mother generally selects a very dense clump of large bushes or a spruce thicket.

The horns of the bull begin to sprout in April and grow very rapidly. Generally by September they have lost their glossy covering, or, in other words, are out of the velvet. At this period the males are frequently very fat, and generally fierce and savage. In the course of a few weeks the bulls grow thin and poor, because of continual roaming and combats and the fact that at this time they also refuse food.

At this period the loud bellow of the male is frequently heard and distinguished by the sportsman for two or three miles in the stillness of the night. The bulls make another noise, which, from the nature of its sound, the hunters call chopping. It is produced by forcibly bringing together and separating the jaws.

The call of a cow, which the gunner imitates usually through a horn or trumpet made of birch bark, is a series of grunts and groans, winding up with a prolonged dismal and rather unearthly roar, which in calm weather can be heard distinctly two or three miles. One peculiarity of the moose is that he can go straight to the point whence the call proceeds, even after a considerable time. Thus, after calling unsuccessfully in the evening sportsmen have known a moose to come straight to the place on the following morning.

From late September till the middle of November is the season for moose calling and the full of the moon is the best time, for the bulls seldom come up to the call before sunset and if the night be dark the gunner often fails to see the game that has come to his call sufficiently well to be able to take aim. Most of the success in hunting moose by call is had in the half hour between sundown and dark.

The most successful callers are Indians, and it is an education to hear their low, half-suppressed call, which is sometimes needed to bring a wary old bull within range. These low calls, uttered when the moose is pausing, uncertain whether to come or go, close to the caller, yet not within shot, require the greatest skill; a false note and all is lost.

A MEDIAEVAL CEREMONY.

Seigneurial Investiture Smacks of Ancient Chivalry.

A most interesting ceremony took place on the banks of the Chateauguay River, a little over 40 miles from Montreal, on Sunday the 16th of July. It was the feudal investiture of the descendants of Louis Hebert, the first Seigneur of Canada (1626); of Couillard, Seigneur de L'Espinay, of Louis Jolliet, Seigneur of Anticosti (who discovered the sources of the Mississippi, and of Godin, Seigneur de Beausejour de Bellefontaine, with the Dorchester Decoration of the Empire and with the Sword, Sash and Button (octofoil) of rank in the Aryan and Seigneurial Order of the Empire in America and College of Arms of Canada.

These descendants were accompanied by over 150 members of their respective families and guests from Montreal to participate with the Herald Marshal and the Commissioners of the College of Arms of Canada in the ceremonies.

In the temporary building, erected on an island of the Chateauguay, a throne was decorated at one end with the yellow colors of the Order with the black two-headed eagle displayed thereon. From a side entrance into the large hall the procession of those who took part entered to the music of The Imperial Mass. At that part where is written the Imperial Hymn it was sung in Latin by some little girl descendants of the above Seigneurs of New France, their clear, sweet and thrilling tones recalled the days of old Norman Chivalry.

There marched first in this procession the bearer of the Sword of State, he was followed by one carrying the Sceptre of Dominion, then came the Banner of the Order of the Empire carried high and emblazoned on its yellow field with the black two-headed eagle of the Emperor Charles V., who founded this Order in 1540. Under a canopy, on a litter borne by four beautiful girls, reposed the Crown of Empire with the Scroll of Laws tied with the yellow, blue, red and green ribbons of the various degrees of the College of Arms.

Then marched in twos, with their sashes, swords and octofoils as marks of distinction, fifty members of the Seigneurial and banneret families.

When they had all arrived at their places the Crown, Sceptre and Scroll were deposited in the great seat of the throne. The officers and commissioners of the College of Arms arranged themselves about it. The audience stood while "God Save the Empire" was sung in Latin. At this all drew their swords and gave the first, second and third movements of the Seigneurs' Imperal Salute, and at the close of the hymn, by the fourth movement, the swords were returned to the scabbards. After further interesting and instructive historical ceremonies, those who were to receive the Sword, Sash, Octofoil and Decoration of the Order of the Empire stood in line facing the throne. One of the Commissioners of the College of Arms put on the Sword and Sash, another pinned the Octofoil while the Herald Marshall affixed the Decoration.

Among the officers of this Order, besides the Duke of Veragua, who has the first fief of the Empire in America, is the Baron de Longueuil, Chancellor and President of the Seigneurial Council of Canada; the Viscount de Fronsac, Herald Marshal, the Hon. Thomas Scott Forsyth, Registrar-General; Sir John Calder Gordon, Solicitor-General; Dr. Joseph Gaston Baillie Bulloch, Presuyvant; William Armstrong Crosier, F.R.S., Deputy Commissioner; Rev. John Burke Pyke, M.A., 1st Commissioner; Henry Black Stuart, C.E., 2nd Commissioner; the Marquis de Puvigny, representative in London; Louis Denys de Bonaventure, representative in France.

The estate at Huntingdon on the Chateauguay, where these ceremonies had taken place, was once the property of Laird Anderson of Scotland, and had been honored in 1860 by a visit from H. R. H. the Prince of Wales (late King Edward VII.) when he was in Canada, and one of the ladies present—Madam Bertram Pinel de L'Espinay, had visited the present King George V., by Royal Appointment in September, 1910.

Who's Fault?

What is the matter with Canadian Museum men? The American Museum of Natural History in New York has just stolen a march on them.

For two seasons, Prof. Henry F. Osborne, president of the New York institution, has led parties of distinguished geologists and ethynologists into the valley of the Red Deer River, Alberta.

These men have made big finds according to report. They have shipped an early world monster's remains—sixty feet in length—to their museum.

It is rumored that they have got their hands on a dinosaur, one of the earliest and most valuable historically of the big animal life, which used to run loose before men made his bow to the world.

These Americans, who are taking specimens from Canada to place in the New York Museum, have the permission of the Canadian Government to carry on their work along the Red Deer.

Canadian scholars know of the existence of the prehistoric remains in the Alberta valley. Lawrence M. Lambe, the paleontologist of the Canadian Geological Survey, was up in the Red Deer country in 1897, 1898 and 1901.

He told the Royal Society of Canada about the vertebrate remains in Alberta. He has published monographs on the subject.

Why?

Here is a chance evidently for a Canadian with some spare cash to investigate the Red Deer country, send up an expedition to rival the American one, and save what dinosaurs, etc., there are up there for the museums of Canada.—Canadian Courier.

A Result Worthy of Consideration

Endowment Policy No. 34022 was issued to a local citizen twenty years ago for which he paid in ten annual instalments to the Company in all premiums, amounting to $688.50. He now receives a single cash payment of $1273.65 which as an investment is over 4% compound interest, or he may accept $750.60 in cash, which is $62.10 more than he paid in, together with a paid up policy for $1000, payable at death which earns profits every year during the balance of his life.

Where can a young man or woman find a better way of saving money as well as providing a protection for those dependent upon them.

The above is the result of a matured policy in the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA, payable on December 1st., 1911.

BIFOCALS
— OR —
DOUBLE VISION GLASSES

Most people think, when buying Bifocal Glasses, that a large segment or reading area is required. With very few exceptions this is not so, as most bifocals are required for constant use, and the successful fitting of these lenses depends not so much on furnishing the largest reading portion possible, but on placing a minimum disk or wafer in exactly the correct position. A small wafer accurately placed will afford ample field for reading, writing and sewing, and will overcome the tendency to make mis-steps in going up and down stairs, an experience not uncommon to wearers of bifocals with too large reading segments.

We make a specialty of filling Bifocal Lenses in VISIBLE, SEMI-INVISIBLE and INVISIBLE.

HYDRO POWER

Probability of By-law to The People

A communication from the Hon. Adam Beck relative to the passage of a by-law, for hydro-electric power was discussed by the city council last night, and in all probability a vote will be taken on the day of the municipal elections.

It was deemed advisable to secure further information regarding the cost of this new electrical venture and the City Clerk and City Solicitor were delegated to go to Toronto and clear up several items which are not altogether clear to the council. The cost is one of the big items. It was further decided that if possible, Mr. Beck should be asked to come to Peterborough to speak on the project before the by-law if passed by council, is submitted to the people.

Another meeting of the council will be held on Thursday night, when the by-law will again be considered.

REPRESENTATIVE IN THE SENATE

City Council Pass Resolution Naming Mr. Jas. Kendry

Moved by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald Metheral,—That whereas the City of Peterborough has never had a representative in the Senate of Canada, and whereas this city is a very important commercial and manufacturing centre, is the largest city between Toronto and Ottawa or Montreal, and is the centre of a large and populous district

This Council desires to impress upon the Government of the Dominion the strong claims which this city has to representation in the Senate, and to respectfully urge that a representative from this city should be appointed to that body at the earliest opportunity. And that the appointment of Mr. James Kendry, ex-M.P., who was for five years Mayor of the city, would meet with the general approval of the people.

Also that a copy of this resolution be sent to Hon. R. L. Borden, Premier of Canada, and to the Cabinet Ministers from Ontario.—Carried.

The above resolution was unanimously carried by the city council last night.

COURT LANGTON C. O. F.

Regular meeting, Monday, Dec. 8th, at 8 p.m. Business of importance. W. J. Tranter, C R. W. Stevens, Cor. Sec. 2d

FOR BETTER ADVERTISING

Ad. Club is Formed and Strong Committee Appointed

Eighteen of the representative business men of the city organized themselves into a body last evening whose proposed efforts if consummated, may serve a two-fold purpose, one of which is to boom advertising in Peterborough and the other, the possibility of putting some fire and energy into the Board of Trade.

What is the organisation? Well in future it will answer to the name of the Peterborough Ad Club and will be one of several that are being formed throughout Ontario, and be included in the Associated Ad Clubs of America.

The meeting at the National Hotel last evening was attended by about twenty, among whom were Messrs. R. J. Kidd, O. R. Nixon, Charles Hardy, H. B. Cowan, Walter Stocker, Reg Turner, F. H. Dobbin, R. M. Glover, J. Picard, A. A. Fowler, W. Cochrane, C. Banks, J. McNicholl, A. Rogers and others.

A committee of five, namely, Messrs. A. A. Fowler, W. Cochrane, C. R. Nixon, R. Turner and F. H. Dobbin were appointed to draft out a constitution and suggest officers to be presented at the next meeting of the club.

The gentlemen responsible for this innovation to Peterborough are Messrs. C. Acton, W. A. Lydiatt and W. J. Rock.

The meeting last evening was addressed by W. A. Lydiatt alone, who outlined very thoroughly the objects of the proposed organization and of the decided boon that it would undoubtedly prove to be to the city generally, and to the advertising individually.

The motion for the formation of the club was moved by Walter Stocker and seconded by A. A. Fowler, who with others heartily endorsed the proposition.

As noted in last night's issue, the club has for its objects the promotion of advertising, the elimination of flagrant frauds in advertising, and the conservation of public confidence in advertisers.

The matter was thoroughly delved into last evening and the club by all appearances, has ample prospects for being put to a thorough test in Peterborough. Prominent advertising men of conceded ability and experience will be brought here free to discuss the outstanding problems of advertising to which the business men of the city are cordially invited.

The progress of the club will be followed with interest.

FOR ROADWAY AT AUBURN

Would Cost City in the Neighborhood of $19000

Power Company Expect Fixed Assessment for Right of Way

Prospects for a roadway for the city across the new dam of the Auburn Power Company are not of the brightest.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth, for the company, appeared before the council last night at request and gave an estimate on the cost of providing a roadway for the city, to be in the neighborhood of $19,000.

Mr. Larmonth pointed out that the present plans of the company as to the piers would have to be changed if the roadway was to be provided for and a decision of the council would be necessary within the next several weeks. To give the city the right of way Mr. Larmonth held that fixed assessment was due the company.

Ald Morgan asked Mr. Larmonth if the street railway extension to East City would be a reality if electricity entered into an agreement for the bridge.

Mr Larmonth answered that the extensions would be made just as soon as the company could get across Hunter street.

Ald Bradburn—"If we have to spend the money, put the bridge where it is required."

Ald Duncan—"Put the Hunter street bridge at Sherbrooke street and build a new bridge at Hunter street."

Ald Kerneghen held that a bridge at Auburn was necessary if it could be secured at a reasonable sum.

Ald Brown was in favor of no action being taken and Ald Edgar seconded.

Ald Anderson was opposed to the Auburn scheme. He held the money should be spent at Hunter street.

On motion fo Ald. Morgan and Andereen, the matter was referred to the Board of Works to report at the Thursday night meeting of the Council.

LAST SESSION OF COUNCIL

Business Transacted at the Last Regular Meeting for 1911

Considering that the meeting was the last of the year, the City Council had a light session last night.

Six by-laws were passed as follows

1633 An agreement with the Bell Telephone Company for an alarm system of the pumping station, the same to cost $40 per annum.

1635 A contract for snow plowing for 1911-12.

1638 To repeal by-law 1616, the milk by-law, in which the bottling clause is repealed.

The request of the chairman of the Board of Works for another snow plow was granted.

GRANT FOR POULTRY SHOW

Secretary Kelly of the Peterboro Poultry Association was heard in regard to a communication from President Laing regarding a grant to the Society. Secretary Kelly asked the annual grant be given before the show in January was held.

The council as a whole, favored the grant being given but the council of 1912 will have to consider it. The amount is $75.

Ald. Graham wanted to know what was being done regarding the Birdsall property, as a site for the City Hall. It was decided to ask the city Trust Commission to explain the situation.

A. E. Dixon, wrote for a client, John Dixon, offering a strip of property to be added to Victoria Avenue. Received.

Willis Chipman, engineer on sewer work, asked for $800 on account. He reported Romaine street sewer to be satisfactorily progressing.

The request from the National Sanitarium for assistance from the city, re the care of a local patient, was referred to the Finance Committee.

Moved by Ald. Buller seconded by Ald Duncan—That Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., be asked to support the provision of Bill No 5, now before the Dominion Parliament that a municipality shall not be ordered to pay any of the expense of protecting rail level crossings where the railway has been constructed before the passing of the act, and to use his influence to have it passed.—Carried.

THE ANSWER SHOCKED HIM

How is this? A certain young man a member of a local sporting organization, when on a trip several months ago, was introduced by all proper ceremony to a young lady, and both for some time corresponded. Finally however, the post office revenue failed to be increased.

A few days ago, the young man undertook to spend the evening at home and occupied the time in writing letters, and was directed to his fair acquaintance.

To-day he received a reply to the effect that the Miss was now a Mrs was the proud possessor of a home, a young daughter, and was, she said, very happy.

A branch of the Suffragettes League was organized in Brantford, with Mrs. S. W. Secord as president.

HAS GREAT FAITH IN EDMONTON

A reporter of the Review, had occasion to interview Mr. D. B. Mullen of Edmonton, Alberta, on yesterday, who with his wife is here for a few weeks visit. Mr. Mullen expressed great faith in the future of Edmonton He is inclined to think however, that values on suburban property in Edmonton are speculative and not a conservative investment at this time. When asked by the reporter what he was selling, Mr. Mullen stated that none of his own property was for sale at this time, and that he was offering no property in particular.

"There is no doubt in my mind," said Mr. Mullen, "but what close in property in Edmonton is a safe and conservative investment, and one that will yield quick and substantial profits." In reply to our query as to his business Mr. Mullen stated that he was financial agent for several parties, some of whom are in Peterboro, for whom he had handled large investments during the past year, and that he was seeing them on his visit east "Every investment I have made for my clients has been profitable," said Mr Mullen, "and my best friends are those for whom I have invested." Mr Mullen is heavily interested in building operations in Edmonton and has completed within the last few months nine new fully modern residences These were sold almost without exception before they were completed the demand for this class of property being so heavy. Mr. Mullen will greatly enlarge his building operations next year and would be glad to have an interview with any one intending to go west seeking conservative investments. He desires also to contract with some good mechanics for the coming year.

CALENDARS ARE NOW ON SALE

Buy at Drug Stores and Help the Health Association

Have you secured one of the pretty Christmas calendars in aid of the Peterborough Health Association? They were placed on sale this morning in the drug stores. When you are down town, step into one of these shops, and ask to see them. Everybody has one or more fancy calendars among their collection of Christmas gifts. Then in making your selections this year, don't forget the Health Association. Remember that in purchasing one of these calendars, you will perform a two fold act. In addition to having a suitable gift for your friends you will help along the noble cause of this local organization, namely, that of fighting the tuberculosis in this city. Already a number of these have been sold by interested workers, but there are still several hundred to be disposed of, before the amount of money that the association is endeavoring to raise through this medium is secured.

The Christmas stamps are also now available. In sending parcels and letters put a few of these stamps on them As was stated in Saturday's issue, the object of this sale is to raise funds in order to engage a district nurse for tubercular cases in Peterborough.

LAWYERS AND COMPENSATION

To The Editor of The Review:

Mr. Hall in this election is trying to catch the workingman's vote by promising to support certain measures for their protection. Now what the workingmen really want, and need as much as Mr. Hall's help is a law that will save them from the lawyers. Now, when a man enters an action against a wealthy corporation and gets a verdict for a few hundred dollars, there is nothing left for him after the lawyers, like Mr. Hall, get through. He might as well decide to stay out of court because he doesn't get compensation if he wins — the lawyer gets it. If Mr. Hall would take notice of this, the workingmen might realize that he means something by his grand stand for the workingman.

Mr. Hall can talk himself blue in the face about helping the workingman, but when four-fifths of the amount won in a suit goes to fatten the legal pocket—and Mr. Hall is a fine sample—it doesn't cut much ice.

LAD HAD HIS FOOT CAUGHT IN RAILWAY FROG

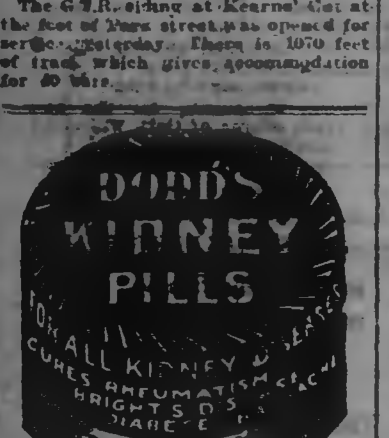
Was Not Seen in Time for Train to be Stopped

Engineer Pilling, of the Lakefield and Port Hope train, had an experience yesterday near Millbrook, which he will not soon forget.

A young Barnardo Home lad, named Scalding, while on his way to school, had his foot caught in the frog of the railway track and his plight was not noticed in time to bring the train to a stop before striking him. The youngster was thrown a considerable distance and sustained injuries to his heel and leg. The injured youth was taken on the train to Millbrook, where Dr. Turner attended to the injuries.

SIDING COMPLETED

The G.T.R. siding at Kearns' Cut at the foot of Mary street was opened for service yesterday. There is 1070 feet of track which gives accommodation for 40 cars.



THE CHATEAU LAURIER

In connection with the "Chateau Laurier," the new $2,000,000 Grand Trunk Hotel at Ottawa, it has been decided to establish an ice freezing plant, and the Forbes system of sterilization. This means that every drop of water that comes into the hotel for any purpose is first filtered twice, then sterilized and cooled, rendering it not only absolutely pure from all sanitary standpoints, but clear and free from any coloration.

As regards ice, the water from which it is made will be first filtered twice, then converted into steam, then condensed and frozen, rendering the ice not only absolutely pure, but a beautiful clear, transparent crystal.

Commission to Meet.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—T. Chase Casgrain, K.C., C. A. McGrath and H. A. Powell, K.C., the three Canadian members of the International Waterways Commission, are in Ottawa, and will hold a conference here to-day with Rt. Hon James Bryce on matters relating to organization. This will be the first meeting of the Canadian commissioners since their appointment by the Imperial Government.

It is understood that the International Commission will not only deal with disputes relating to frontier waters, but is constituted a permanent court for the settlement of any disputes between the Governments of Canada and the United States, or between the Government of one country and any citizen or citizens of the other country.

Ottawa's Water Troubles.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—To carry out the $2,400,000 plan to supply Ottawa with water from McGregor Lake a dam would have to be built at the Blanche River, in Quebec. Yesterday, Dr. H. Amy of the Geological Survey, one of the most eminent geoligtss in Canada, says it would not be safe to do this, that the ground formation at McGregor Lake is of clay, and that both the landslides at the Blanche River and at Notre Dame de la Salle, where 32 lost their lives some years ago, were caused by damming up waters, thus causing the land to slide.

Four Millions In Berlin.

Berlin, Dec. 5.—The council of the "Four million" city of Greater Berlin, whose formation was approved by the Prussian Diet on May 16 last, held its first meeting yesterday. Plans were discussed for the future development of the city, which now includes all the suburban municipalities, making Berlin the third largest city of the world, ranking after London and New York. The names of candidates for the post of director of the council were also considered. He will be the executive head, with the direction of all municipal affairs.

Lethbridge, Alta., Dec. 4.—Behind iron bars at the police station, with a special guard in charge, is John M. Anderson, who is believed by the Calgary police to be an accomplice in the murder of John Middleton in Calgary a few days ago. His arrest was accomplished Saturday afternoon by Detective Egan of the city police, who has been working in conjunction with Sergt. Lamb, who was acting at the time as a plain clothesman for special purposes. He was picked up on Crabb street, where it appeared he was about to begin his work of peddling jewelry.

NO SECRET COMMISSIONS.

New Zealand Forbids Them by Newly Enacted Law.

An act for the prohibition of secret commissions, which came into effect in New Zealand this year, has proved effective in eliminating an abuse that had cost companies in this country large sums of money every year in the payment of gratuities or commissions for business turned their way through the influence of officials of local concerns from which trade was solicited.

The practice of giving gratuities or commissions had grown to such an extent that almost every company felt obliged to follow it, or else see business diverted to other companies willing to conform to the usage. The expenses of securing business in this way were usually added to the prices quoted.

The new law prescribes fines up to $5,000, or imprisonment up to two years, for either giving or receiving secret commissions. Most of the business firms were apparently very glad to drop the practice, which not only had become very costly, but from which there was no real advantage, as nearly all companies competing for the same trade were ready to pay commissions and charge them up as necessary expenses.

The manager of a coal company in Wellington stated that as the result of the operation of this law his company had already saved enough money to increase its dividend, the saving amounting to about twelve cents on every ton of coal sold. Persons accustomed to receiving secret commissions naturally dislike to lose such an income, but as as they know the penalties prescribed for disobeying the law, they can naturally find no true ground for resentment against the companies declining to give them the customary "presents."

Every corporation doing business in New Zealand must have its accounts audited by chartered accountants, who would render themselves liable to severe punishment for passing, or permitting to be covered up, any illegal item, such as for secret commissions rendered illegal by the new law. It would, therefore, seem impossible for any corporation to pay secret commissions in New Zealand without the offence being discovered and severely punished, although private individuals whose accounts may not be audited could possibly evade the law. However, the best business sentiment in New Zealand supports the new measure, and dealers are glad to be rid of any necessity for conforming to the pernicious practice of giving "presents" to secure business.

Aristocratic Actors.

Viscount Dangan, eldest son of Earl Cowley, who has adopted the stage as a profession, and is at present playing in "Peggy" at the Gaiety Theatre, London, is not the first member of the peerage to become a professional actor.

There is the Earl of Rosslyn, for instance, perhaps the best-known of actor-peers, who, under the stage name of James Erskine, has in years past appeared with considerable success behind the footlights, both in America and in England. His lordship, it might be mentioned, has also played many parts in real life, and like Lord Lyveden, who played in Frank Hill's "Diplomacy" in 1887, and was also at the Haymarket under the Bancrofts, has tried his hand at many things.

Amongst other occupations these two peers have tried war-correspondent, journalistic work, and soldiering, which reminds one that the Earl of Yarmouth sought fortune first as a press reporter, and afterwards on the stage under the name of Eric Hope. It was the Earl of Yarmouth who appeared in a play of his own production, a musical comedy, entitled "The Pigeon House," which, however, scarcely met with the success it deserved.

Another peer who played in one of his own productions, although not in a professional sense, was the late Marquess of Anglesey, who in a treble bill which he staged in 1901 in the "Gaiety Theatre," Anglesey Castle, enjoyed the distinction of being at once actor-manager and author. It may be remembered that it was the Marquess who also startled the world some years ago by appearing in a blaze of jewels as principal boy in a pantomime in his own castle.

Edwin Reddel, of Preston, 12 years old, broke through the ice while skating and was drowned.

PITY THE POOR ACTOR!

When one hears of So-and-So's brilliant theatrical success a good many longing eyes turn enviously towards the stage as an easy and somewhat romantic way of earning a livelihood, says a London magazine.

The glamor which hovers over the footlights has an attractive influence compared to which the moth and the candle, the magnet and the needle, might really be non-existent. This article concerns itself principally with that branch of the business, numbering roughly some six thousand actors and actresses, who never rise above the mediocre—practically nine-tenths of the total number who adopt the stage as a calling.

The struggling clerk—the mechanic, who finds it difficult to make both ends meet on from $6.50 to $10 a week, lives in an earthly paradise and is a modern Croesus compared to the average actor and actress of to-day. Undoubtedly, the great majority of theatrical companies touring the tank towns at the present time are, to put it mildly, mediocre. Moderate in the ability of the artists engaged; worse than moderate is the twaddle that is submitted to the public and by courtesy called a play, one is scarcely surprised that the financial "returns" at the end of each week is invariably bad, and as a result the "Ghost refuses to walk," i.e., salaries are not met. Worse even than this, the manager of the company finds he has not sufficient funds in hand to pay the traveling expenses of the crowd to the next town. The artistes have now to be contented with a few dollars each—just enough to clear them out of the town, whilst a request is forwarded to the local manager to advance a sufficient sum to cover the expenses of the journey. Having to choose between agreeing to this demand or closing his theatre for the week, it is invariably forthcoming, so that the following week is begun with a heavy mortgage on the week's receipts. The railway company, the printer, and every local item must be paid for the sake of the reputation of the management. Only the unfortunate actors and actresses have to bear the inconvenience and oftentimes misery of going short.

The usual number of people engaged in a touring dramatic company is from ten to fifteen. Average them all at $12.50 per week each—and this is a very generous average. Deduct from this fares to be paid by each artist to join the tour, and a fortnight's rehearsal without payment, not to mention a considerable outlay in wigs and wardrobe for the particular part played. Make these reductions, and the $12.50 is already considerably diminished. Then there are odd weeks out through the inability of the touring manager to book a suitable date; vacation of a few weeks between the finish of one tour and the starting of another, which brings the general number of working weeks in the year to about 35 out of 52. Reference to one of the leading theatrical papers and a perusal of the correspondence on this subject and "A minimum salary for actors," will verify every statement made here.

Actors and actresses usually speak of their calling as a profession. Why this is so is not easily understood, as most professions require educational attainments beyond the ordinary individual. A large number of them would derive considerable benefit from a course of continuation classes in such subjects as grammar, elocution, and a nodding acquaintance with the King's English. Given a good personal appearance, with the ability to "dress" a part well, and nothing else seems requisite to the touring theatrical manager of to-day beyond a big "sensation" scene.

By sheer pluck the more intelligent fight their way upwards, and with the aid of a good deal of assurance, succeed in reaching the average maximum salary of $10, or may be $15 for about thirty to thirty-five weeks in the year. Make the deductions aforementioned, and the salary resolves itself into the magnificent sum of about $5.50 a week less all the charm of home life.

Winter's Sunblind.

It will come as a surprise to the average householder to know that in the ordinary domestic grate four-fifths of the heat goes up the chimney. For four hundredweights of coal out of five he gets nothing for his money.

The city analyst of Manchester stated some time ago that out of every hundred tons of coal burnt in the factories of the Midlands, one ton remains in the air as soot. In every thousand pounds of coal there are, on the average, about eight pounds of sulphur, which escapes into the air and forms sulphuric acid gas. Soot is said to encourage the growth of cancer; the acids in the smoke injure the lungs and brain.

London loses, through her smoke-cloud, fifty per cent. of the winter sunlight, and the annual cost of the output of coal smoke from domestic chimneys in London is estimated to be about $120,000,000. Smoke, in spite of many opinions to the contrary, does not act as a disinfectant.—London Answers.

"The Pluckiest Man."

It was Field Marshal Sir George White who once referred to General Hunter as "the pluckiest man he had ever met." During the siege of Ladysmith Hunter was entrusted to take a force from the besieged city to silence a Boer gun which had been shelling Ladysmith disastrously. Stealthily, in the small hours, he and his men groped their way up the great hill. "Who goes there?" shouted a Boer sentry. "Half of old England, old chap," was the commanding officer's response, as he felled the speaker and rushed on to conquest. General Hunter admits that was the most thrilling experience of his career—so far.

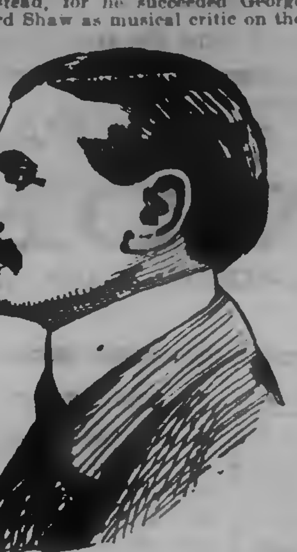
ARAB POET TAUGHT HIM

ROBERT HICHENS FOUND HIMSELF IN THE DESERT.

Author of the Garden of Allah Is an Englishman Who Left Oxford to Become a Musician — Went Into Journalism Then Into Literature—Wrote His First Novel at Seventeen and Made His Name at 41.

Like many other famous authors, the originally intended career of Robert Smythe Hichens was not that of a writer. Hichens was born at Speldhurst, Kent, England, on Nov. 14, 1864. After leaving Clifton College, Bristol, he abandoned an Oxford career in order to study music, but he soon decided that he would never be famous as a musician, so he abandoned music for journalism and studied press work in London.

His musical training stood him in good stead, for he succeeded George Bernard Shaw as musical critic on the London World, which place he held for several years. Finally he abandoned newspaper work for literature.



ROBERT SMYTHE HICHENS.

Hichens' first published novel was written when he was only seventeen. The reviewers were kindly, and the prediction was made that the boy writer would make a name for himself. His subsequent novels were well received, but it was not until 1905, when "The Garden of Allah" appeared, that his success was finally assured.

There is an interesting story attached to "The Garden of Allah." On an occasion when the author went to the north of Africa he visited a Trappist monastery in Algeria. Hichens lived for three weeks with the monks.

From the monastery he went into the desert with an Arab poet for a guide. One evening as they stood gazing across the wonderful waste of sand toward the sunset a chance phrase of the poet's supplied Hichens with the first thought of the story.

"This is the garden of oblivion," the poet said. "In the desert one forgets everything, even the desire of one's soul."

Hichens thought of the monastery and its devotees to prayers, and with the thought came the fancy to bring one of its silent tenants out into the desert and in this garden of oblivion, let him forget his vows, his hopes and be willing to lose his soul for the love of a woman.

Five years later he began the story, and it took him two years to complete it.

Financing a Show.

Probably no calling is so easy to enter for the totally unfitted as the stage. By the aid of a few pounds an engagement can be obtained. Week after week, in the columns of an English theatrical paper, can be seen advertisements similar to the following: "Wanted: Ladies and Gentlemen for the Stage. Experience not necessary, but good appearance essential. Small premium, to be returned in salary. In nine cases out of ten the advertiser has little or no capital until the aspirant for histrionic honors joyfully parts with his or her premium.

With the money extracted from these deluded stage-struck individuals, the enterprising manager books a few halls in fit-up towns, hires a little weather-beaten scenery, engages one or two experienced actors, secures a piece for which there are no copyright fees, and commences his tour. The crash is not long in coming—the scenery and "properties" being seized by the hall-keeper for rent, whilst the manager promptly absconds with as much as he can lay his hands on. Warned by parents and friends at the outset to have nothing to do with the stage, the disillusioned debutantes are ashamed to write home, and now begins the drifting process—drifting God knows where. In the case of young girls, the end does not bear thinking of.

Free as Air?

One of the everyday expressions we shall have to drop in a short time is "Free as air." For with the coming of aviation the question of the ownership of the air arises.

You can buy land with all mineral rights, which means you own the earth to any depth below your particular plot. But how much of the air above that land is yours? And, more particularly, how far up is the air above Britain purely British air?

A thousand knotty points will arise on this question in the future, and legal minds are already discussing the pros and cons of the matter. Some assert that 1,000 feet is as much as the owner can claim; above that is a kind of No Man's Land, where the aviator can play as he likes. Others suggest 5,000 feet as the safer figure, while those who talk internationally assert that 38,000 feet above the ground should be fixed, as that is the range of the new type of gun to be used against hostile air-craft.

Her Retort.

An Ontario girl who has grown tired of hearing the ways of women ridiculed, made a neat and fitting retort recently to some metrical prose that was shown to her.

Here is what was submitted to her:

Backward, turn backward, O Time in your flight, and give us a maiden dressed proper and right. We are so weary of switches and rats, Billie Burke clusters and peach-basket hats. Wads of jute hair in a horrible pile, stacked on their heads to the height of a mile. Something is wrong with the maidens, we fear. Give us the girls as they used to appear. Give us the girlies we once knew of yore, whose curls didn't come from a hair-dressing store. Maidens who dressed with a sensible view. And just as Dame Nature intended them to. Give us a girl with a figure her own and fashioned divinely by Nature alone. Feminine style's getting fiercer each year—oh, give us the girls as they used to appear.—Sterling Journal.

Backward, turn backword, O Time in your speed. Grant us, in turning, the men that we need. We are so weary of heartaches and tears; they are not worthy our love through the years. Where are the men who were constant and true—ashes of mem'ry—so rare and so few. Give us men who will stay home three nights out of seven—our cares never cease till they're safely in Heaven. Off to the races, the ball games and clubs, and, yes—other women—that's just where it rubs. The noble, the loving are relics of yore. Our smiles mask our hearts which are bleeding and sore. Backward, turn slowly, and show, if you can, that long-mourned-for treasure—a man, just a MAN.

Open Channel All Winter?

At a recent Canadian Club luncheon in Montreal Dr. Howard T. Barnes, professor of physics at McGill University, who gave an illustrated address on the ice conditions in the St. Lawrence River, said that, after giving many years to the study of the ice conditions in the St. Lawrence, he believed that with modern icebreakers of the Russian type the channel could be kept open from Montreal to Quebec all winter.

"I believe," said Dr. Barnes, "the present Government should be encouraged by public opinion to keep the river open from Quebec to Montreal. This will prevent flood in the spring and will prolong the season for navigation, and will also carry away the waste of the city, which is lodged not many miles from the city all winter."

ETTING RICH BORROWING

ow Loan Sharks Bleed the Innocent Victim

Enormous sums of money are exrted annually from the poor— exrtec from the poverty stricken class at can least afford to pay. Mutu- loan societies, philanthropic organtions, employers associations and dividual have warred against the ploitation. But despite many de- mined crusades, success has only rted with the struggle. The loan ark has continued to flourish and system of usury has become more moresome. To-day the poor man ys twenty times as much for borwed money as the business man. o wonder righteous indignation is oused when a person is victimised circumstances over which he has tle control, and someone else pro- s by his misfortune.

Perhaps the greatest evil done by ese plunderers lurks in their prace of salary grabbing. The salary signment business thrives upon serecy Much of it is secured through isleading advertisements.

When the salary grabbers are occaonally brought into court on charges usury, they find a legal defense the loophole that they are not oning money on salaries, but are uying salaries in advance just as broker deals in futures in the grain arket. So people continue steadily pay their toll through the barred indows of loan offices.

Perhaps no better illustration of he relentless grip of the loan shark, hen a victim is once in his power, an be cited than the case of Harry . Tower of Chicago. Tower signed $15 note (for a friend in 1900), and the ten years that followed paid interest to the amount of $2,152. Here his own story—

"About ten years ago, just after had married, I signed a note for a riend and assigned my salary as security," he said "I was a clothing alesman and my salary was only $11 week—not very much for a married man.

"The friend failed to pay the note when it came due, and I was forced o borrow money to pay the interest. After I had paid $16.50 I fell behind and had to borrow $29.50 to get started again. I had paid most of this when I was forced to increase the loan until it amounted to over $100.

"Then my baby was born and I was unable to pay the loan. I was sent from one loan shark to another, all of them apparently in collusion with each other. When my note fell due with one of those fellows, he would give me twenty-four hours to borrow enough money to pay the indebtedness and, recommend a certain loan shark for me to visit. They always charged me $10 for making out the papers and loaning me enough money to pay my old debt.

"Then my second baby came and died within a few days. The funeral cost me a lot of money and my wife was sick for months. They kept after me until I was deeper in debt each month. In all I paid $2,152 and interest, besides the principal. I was about to give up and would have lost hope years before had it not been for my family."

Tower was rescued by the Legal Aid Society of Chicago. When he went to the Society he was indebted to three loan sharks. Of one he had borrowed $50, paid $72.75, and still owed $42.75. The other two notes were for $50 each for which he had agreed to pay fifty per cent interest. He is now a railroad clerk living a peaceful, contented life of freedom. — From "Borrowing Ruin." December Technical World Magazine.

Berlin's customs returns in November were $[illegible], an increase of $5,879.12 over the same month last year.

FRANK CONFESSION ASKED FROM

[illegible] occurred between August, 1905, and December, 1910, in many states and it is the details of the organization and the financing arrangements involved that the United States authorities seek to uncover.

Specifically, the federal inquiry is as to whether or not the statute governing inter-state transportation of dynamite has been violated, but since the visit to this city yesterday of Detective William J. Burns, it is intimated that prosecutions on more serious charges may follow if the federal grand jury returns indictments against men alleged to have been "higher up" in the McNamara conspiracy.

Plans further to disclose the identity of these persons were formulated by Mr. Burns and U. S. District Attorney Charles W. Miller yesterday, and to-day operatives in the employ of Burns and the National Erectors' Association are active in several quarters of the investigation here.

Tell Their Stories To-day.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 5.—James B. and John J. McNamara will appear before the federal grand jury here today and tell their stories. They will go before that body immediately after having been sentenced by Judge Walter Bordwell. This declaration was made late last night on unimpeachable authority.

The moment sentence is pronounced, according to plans completed last night, the brothers will be served with a summons to appear before the federal inquisitorial body.

The decision reached by the McNamaras is regarded here as of vast importance. If there is a gigantic dynamiting conspiracy, which is what the grand jury wants to know about, the state last night was convinced that to-day's developments will place on record the name of every man connected with it. With this information, it is believed, the work of federal grand juries here and in Indianapolis will be comparatively simple.

BIG CONCERT AT FOWLER'S CORNERS

Local Talent Took Part in Successful Program

The town hall at Fowlers' Corners fairly swarmed with people last evening, who congregated to celebrate the annual tea meeting given under the auspices of the Presbyterian church. Scores of people drove to the place of entertainment from miles around the country, and Peterborough was represented by a large and jolly contingent. Two 'bus loads from here were in attendance, and many went out also in single cutters and rigs.

The event was one that is hailed with delight by the people in the vicinity of Fowlers' Corners, and those who attended from here, are loud in their praises of the jolly evening they spent.

A big fowl supper was given previous to the entertainment, and the good things to eat vanished in an incredibly short time. The tables were so heavily patronized that timid folk lost their backwardness and hustled for what they got.

A program of some length and no small measure of merit, in which the Charlotte street male quartet, of this city, and Mr. J. John, the popular local entertainer, assisted, was as follows:

Selection—Charlotte street male quartet—Messrs. Lee, Fleming, Downey and Skitch.
Reading—J. John.
Duet—R. F. Downey and D. Fleming.
Solo—H. Lee.
Quartet selection.

The local people arrived home early this morning.

QUICK RELIEF FROM THAT PERSISTENT, HACKING COUGH

We mean the kind of cough it gives one a cold shiver just to hear—the dry, deep-seated hack—hack—hack—that seems as if it were tearing the very vitals. That's the kind of cough that means business.

Fortunately, though, that is also one of the kinds of cough for which Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne was first prescribed, and which it has been relieving with great promptness and regularity ever since.

Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne is absolutely free from harmful drugs of any kind, and is safe even for children. It is pleasant to take, and acts quickly, relieving the irritation, loosening the phlegm, promoting expectoration, and so stopping the cough. Thousands declare it to be the best cough syrup they have ever tried.

Your Druggist will gladly recommend it, and will supply you with either a 25c. or 50c. bottle. The National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited. 116

BIG OPERATIONS IN THRESHING

Mr. Jas. Scott Gets Figures From Saskatoon Man

Mr. W. J. Wells, of Saskatoon, Sask., and well known in Peterborough, has sent the following letter to Mr. James Scott, Weller street, who was out west himself last summer, and who was much impressed by the extensive threshing operations that he witnessed in the vicinity of Saskatoon:

Saskatoon, Sask.

Mr. James Scott,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—As per your request, I am enclosing you copies of threshing bills of a number of people for whom I threshed this fall, said people being old residents of Kinmount vicinity. These are exact copies of bills presented to customers, and are correct. Owing to cold weather setting in so early, there is considerable threshing still to be done, and some of it will not be done spring. Hope you had good trip down and that you and John McMahon had good hunt. Was out to Kieley last week. All people are O.K. there. Chas. McMahon and Mrs. McMahon expect to go east early in December. Hoping to see you all again next season.

I am, yours truly,
W. J. WELLS,
116 4th avenue, north.

The statements of grain threshed referred to in the letter, in an area of about three sections, or 1920 acres of land, with the net proceeds therefrom is as follows:

For Edward McMahon—
Wheat—3,787 bushels...	$349.02
Oats—2,597 bushels...	155.62
Total	$504.64
For Wm. Ross—
Wheat—8,824 bushels...	$794.16
Oats—2,348 bushels...	140.88
Total	$435.04
For John Beckett—
Wheat—4,805 bushels...	$432.45
Oats—1,122 bushels...	67.32
Total	$499.77
For Albert McMahon—
Wheat—3,561 bushels...	$320.49
Oats—2,066 bushels...	123.96
total	$444.45
For H. S. Scott—
Wheat—5,236 bushels...	$471.24
Oats—2,350 bushels...	141.00
Total	$612.24
For James Beckett—
Wheat—5,771 bushels...	$519.39
Oats—3,396 bushels...	203.76
Total	$723.15
For Charles McMahon—
Wheat—11,426 bushels...	$938.34
Oats—2,660 bushels...	159.60
Total	$1,097.94
Grand total	$4,317.23

Mr Wells threshed the wheat and oats referred to, receiving for his work the amount named. The people for whom he did the threshing are former Kinmount residents, who have succeeded in the west, and are now each owners of several hundreds of acres of land.

THE MAGISTRATE'S STORY

What He Owes to Zam-Buk

Mr C. E. Sandford, of Weston, Kings Co., N.S., a Justice of the Peace for the county, and a deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick, says: "I have used Zam-Buk for piles and found it a splendid remedy. It cured me."

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes: "I must thank you for the benefit I have received from the use of Zam-Buk. Last summer I had a fever, which left me with piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me great relief, so I continued with it. After using three or four boxes it effected a complete cure."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, eczema, blood-poison, varicose sores, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. You are warned against harmful imitations and substitutes. TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

Wm. Coleman, formerly of Halifax, died from injuries sustained when accidentally struck with a rock while working for the C.N.R. on Perth road.

Suit was filed at Cincinnati yesterday against the National Cash Register Co. of Dayton, Ohio, charging that the company is in a conspiracy in restrait of trade.

The Kingston (Jamaica) newspapers publish reports of summary executions outside of Port au Prince, Hayti. It is added that section of the country is in a state of great excitement.

A bomb was thrown yesterday in a mosque at Istib, in the vilayet of Kossoxo, European Turkey, killing 12 persons and wounding 20. This is the fourth outrage in Macedonia within a few days.

The International opium conference has decided that its sessions shall not be open to the public. Queen Wilhelmina has telegraphed her hopes for the success of the humanitarian work of the conference.

Rev. J. T. Corby Morris, pastor of Park street Methodist Church, Chatham, fell down his basement steps Sunday morning and broke four ribs. The reverend gentleman is still in quite a critical condition.

After serving eight days in the St. Catharines' jail upon summary conviction by J. L. Heaslip, on a charge of horse stealing, George Rogers, a 17-year-old lad, was yesterday legally released by Crown Attorney Brennan, so soon as he learned of the magistrate's act.

Chicago Packers Ask Stay.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The Supreme Court of the United States yesterday took under consideration the application of counsel for the Chicago beef packers for a stay of their trial, in the U. S. District Court at Chicago, on charges of criminally violating the Sherman anti-trust law. A stay and bail was asked until the court could pass on the constitutionality of the Sherman anti-trust law as a criminal statute.

300 Horses Burned.

Jersey City, N.Y., Dec. 5.—Fire early yesterday swept the plant of the United States Express Co. here. Stables and other buildings occupying nearly a full city block were burned, 200 wagons and auto trucks were destroyed and 300 horses perished. Two firemen were seriously injured before the blaze was under control at 4.45 o'clock. The loss will probably reach $400,000.

OPERATIONS OF THE C.P.R.

Representatives of the C.P.R. waited on the council last night in connection with a communication received by the council from the Peterborough Canoe company.

The situation is that the C.P.R. wants the use of a laneway, the property of the Canoe company, so that the new freight sheds can be constructed the proper length. To accommodate the railway people the Canoe company would have to move part of their buildings, and for this purpose property is wanted from the city.

Work on the freight sheds is being held back awaiting a settlement of the situation.

The question was referred to the Property committee to deal with.

NEW BRIDGE.

It is generally understood that in connection with their operations along the river front the C.P.R. will erect a new railway bridge across the Otonabee. The present one would not be adequate for the increased traffic which would come with the Georgian Bay and Seaboard line, which is practically completed. A double track is the logical outcome and a swing bridge will also be necessary.

CITY TAXES

The city tax collector reported to the council last night that the amount of taxes paid and deposited during the month of October to be $3,343.57, total on roll Oct. 31st, $223.218.01: deposited $168,802.89, balance $54,615.12, discount allowed on first payment $3,343.87, balance $51,271.25.

FISH MARKET

New Establishment on Charlotte Street Makes Good Start

The new sanitary fish market of Spencley Bros. on Charlotte street, two doors east of Aylmer street, is now open to the public, and since the opening date the business has been very brisk, and on Saturday the store was cleared of everything but a few pounds of fresh fish. A complete line of sea and lake fish, also oysters and clams is carried, and the new establishment promises to enjoy a very successful patronage. The proprietors have gone to considerable expense to give their premises a model appearance, and an invitation to the store is extended to the public.

MORE ANSWERS

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q. What is Astigmatism of the eye?

A. Astigmatism is an uneven curvature of the eye and causes double focus. As the eye always strives for clear vision this double focus annoys the brain and causes headache and nervousness. We make lenses called cylinders to correct astigmatism.

Q. What causes double vision?

A. Double vision is caused by the eyes not being in line, that is, one may turn up or have a tendency to do so, or both may turn in; a weak muscular system is back of it all.

We would be pleased to have you call and let us explain how such conditions can be relieved with glasses.

TENSE SCENE IN COURT WHEN McNAMARAS ARE SENTENCED

Prosecuting Attorney Fredericks Asks Clemency For Men Who Confessed to Dynamiting Outrages and Judge Consents — Brothers Have Given Information That May Lead to Arrests Further Up.

Los Angeles, Dec. 6.—James B. McNamara, confessed murderer, was sentenced to life imprisonment here yesterday by Judge Bordwell.

His brother, John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, who confessed to the dynamiting of the Llewellyn Iron Works, was sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary.

Twenty-one persons lost their lives in The Times' disaster. No one was killed in the Llewellyn Iron Works affair.

Imprisonment will be in San Quentin penitentiary.

For both men District Attorney Fredericks desired clemency—life imprisonment for James and a sentence of between fourteen and twenty years for John.

With the announcement of the proposed plea for clemency came the information that the brothers had furnished information of great value in the investigation of an alleged far-reaching dynamiting conspiracy, and that the plan was to serve them immediately after sentence with summonses to appear before the federal grand jury.

Two hours before court opened several hundred curious men and women assembled about the corridors of the hall of records to get a last glance of the prisoners.

The McNamara brothers faced the prospects of sentence with more than equanimity. They rose in good spirits and made rapid work of a big breakfast. James smilingly met the greetings of his guards, while John appeared to be more concerned about his personal appearance than usual.

Oscar Lawler, formerly assistant attorney-general, and a prominent figure in the Ballinger-Pincher investigation, yesterday received word of his appointment by Attorney-General Wickersham as special prosecutor in the grand jury enquiry into the alleged dynamiting conspiracy. Lawler has been assisting Attorney Fredericks for the last two months.

In a dead silence Mr. Fredericks read the following confession of Jas. McNamara:

"I, James B. McNamara, defendant in the case of the people, having heretofore pleaded guilty to the crime of murder, desire to make this statement and this is the truth:

"On the night of Sept. 30, 1910, at 5.45 p. m., I placed in Ink Alley, a portion of The Times building ,a suitcase containing 16 sticks of 80 per cent. dynamite, set to explode at one o'clock the next morning.

"It was my intention to injure the building and scare the owners. I did not intend to take the life of anyone. I sincerely regret that those unfortunate men lost their lives. If the giving of my life would bring them back, I would gladly give it. In fact, in pleading guilty to murder in the first degree, I have placed my life in the hands of the state.

(Signed) "James B. McNamara."

Judge Bordwell commented upon McNamara's declaration that he did not intend to destroy life.

"The circumstances are against that statement," he said. "A man who will place sixteen sticks of dynamite in a place where you, as a printer, knew gas was burning in many places, where many were toiling, must have no regard for life; must have been a murderer at heart and undeserving of clemency."

For reasons other than such a plea of non-intent, Judge Bordwell declared he would impose the penalty of imprisonment for life.

John J. McNamara came next. The Llewellyn Iron Works indictment was read to him by the judge.

He said he had nothing to say.

District Attorney Fredericks, however, said that as in the other case, the plea of guilty permitted consideration, but pleaded that the defendant, John J. McNamara be given a "few years of freedom at the end of his life."

Judge Bordwell declared that the strictures against Jas. B. McNamara would also apply to him. Clemency, he declared, was not because of merit as to intent.

The McNamaras were taken from the court room back to the jail. Their counsel left the room almost immediately, and the crowd filed out laughing and chatting.

Gompers Well Pleased.

New York, Dec. 6.—"I am glad a death sentence was not imposed. I am opposed to capital punishment under any circumstances. I think the sentences received by both men were appropriate to the crime."

This was the comment of Samuel Gompers last night when asked if he was satisfied with the punishment meted out to the McNamara brothers in Los Angeles yesterday. Mr. Gompers and Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, expected to return to Washington last night after a conference with A. B. Parker, their counsel in the Bucks Stove and Range case, for which both men will have to answer to the court several days hence.

"I would like to make one statement," continued Mr. Gompers, "concerning the strictures made by District Attorney Miller of Indianapolis, as to the wisdom of my leadership of the American Federation of Labor. I want to say that if Miller has a case to prosecute against me or anybody else, let him go ahead and prosecute, but it is not for him to say whether my leadership is wise or not. I consider his criticism a gratuitous and unwarranted impertinence. Miller has no right to set himself up as my guide. I propose to stand true to the men of labor."

If such a compact was entered into, it was without the knowledge or consent of the Government.

ITALIAN ATROCITIES DENIED BY PRESS CORRESPONDENTS

Dispatch is Published by Italian Newspaper From Tripoli.

New York, Dec. 6.—Il Giornale Italiano of this city has received a cablegram from Tripoli, that has a bearing on the allegations of Italian atrocities at that place. The message is dated Dec. 5, it is signed by the correspondents of two English and two French newspapers and is as follows:

"The correspondents whose signatures follow witnessed the events in Tripoli from Oct. 23 to Oct. 30, and they affirm that the Italian soldiers have not been guilty of the atrocities they have been accused of by some newspapers; also that the executions ordered have been but the necessary repression of a pre-arranged revolt among the Arabs, who had previously submitted to the Italians. The undersigned affirm further that Moslems perpetrated on Christian prisoners and wounded atrocious tortures and mutilations.

LIBERALS STILL HARPING ON THE OLD TUNE RECIPROCITY

Hon. Frank Oliver and Dr. Neely of Humbolt Talk of Outrages on the Farmers of the West, But Major Currie Reminds Them That Ontario Is Also a Farmers' Province, Bigger Than All the West.

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—Reciprocity's requiem was sung in the debate on the address. Yesterday's session developed largely into an "in memorium" service, in honor of the fiscal corpse.

Hon. Frank Oliver again talked of the "tyrannical burden of trusts, mergers and combines," and Dr. Neely raved of a conspiracy on the part of the manufacturers of the east. The latter champion of the "embattled farmers of the west" brandished an argument that vividly recalled the "chops and tomato sauce" incident in the famous Bardell-Pickwick case in Pickwith. He read a circular sent out by the Massey-Harris Co., accompanying a catalogue and another cancelling the former.

"Now, Mr. Speaker," said the member for Humboldt, "there is no mention of elections here, but we can read between the lines."

"There were interests in this country," he declared, "that have no friend, no patriotism, no citizenship, and no country."

The royal assent was given yesterday afternoon to the supply bill and to two bills extending the term of completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which has almost expired, the term to be fixed by order-in-council, and permitting the Government to make a new contract with the G.T.P. company.

W. M. Martin (Regina) called the attention of the Government to the serious car shortage in the west. It was said that grain had even had to be dumped and was rotting beside the tracks. Something should be done.

In reply to a question by an Opposition member, Hon. F. D. Monk stated that the only delay in the prosecution of public works was where complaints had been made, which seemed to be well founded, that the works were unnecessary.

In some of these cases, though money had been voted to begin them and it would require a considerable sum to complete them. They were, therefore, held up till the Government was fortified by further information.

W. F. Cockshutt (Brantford) resented as an attempt to set the farmer of the west against the manufacturer the statement of Hon. Frank Oliver, that while the Cockshutt Plow Co. sold a steam gang plow in Peoria, Ill., for $525, and in Minneapolis for $502, after paying 15 per cent. duty and freight, while in Western Canada it cost the farmer over $600. He was deing what was done during the election, attempting palpably to mislead the public by quoting the wholesale against the retail price.

"If he is prepared to buy as many plows as our one customer in the United States, he will probably get the same rates," said the member for Brantford.

Outside of the United States, said Mr. Cockshutt, there was no country in the world in which implements were sold as cheaply as in Canada. The Wilkinson Plow Co. of Toronto had been driven out of business by the fierce home competition and the last straw had been the threat of reciprocity.

Mr. Oliver declared that a protest was only to be expected when a large number of eastern manufacturers lined up their employes before election and told them how to vote. This was an act of tyranny.

D. B. Neely (Hambolt) declared that the retail price of the Cockshutt plow gave the Minnesota farmer the advantage.

Mr. Neely complained bitterly of the Manufacturers' Association passing a resolution that the time was not ripe for an increase in the British preference. These were the men who talked of loyalty in the late election.

Major Currie warned the Liberals that so long as they went on attacking Ontario, they would remain in Opposition. They talked about the farmers of the west, but they seemed to forget that Ontario was an agricultural country. It produced $47,000,000 more field products than the whole of the west combined, and these farmers of Ontario had voted almost to a man against reciprocity.

Fear for King's Safety.

London, Dec. 6.—Much anxiety is reflected in official circles in London over the coming Durbar ceremonies. Before the King left England there were many people in whose opinion the King's visit to India did not seem advisable, owing to the many outrages which have occurred recently in that country. This feeling has been revived by the news of fires in Delhi, although there is no proof yet that the outbreaks were of incendiary origin.

Delhi, India, Dec. 6.—During a rehearsal of the King's state entry yesterday, still another fire occurred. A large store on the banks of the River Jumna, filled with fireworks, was completely destroyed.

Montreal's Labor Party.

Montreal, Dec. 6.—The abolition of the property qualification for aldermanic candidates will be the principal plank in the platform of the local Independent Labor party which is preparing to contest five city wards in the forthcoming municipal elections.

HOURLY BULLETINS AT HOME OFFICE

All London is Anxious for Safety of Their Majesties

Special To The Review.

London, Dec. 6.—So great is the anxiety for the safety of the King and Queen, that hourly bulletins are being received at the Home Office as to the progress of the Royal train between Bombay and Delhi.

POSITIONS ANNOUNCED

Number of Changes in the Canal Office and Customs

Special to the Review

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—A number of new appointments for Peterborough and the Trent canal office have been announced. They are as follows;

Ex-Ald. Phelan succeeds William Rudkins, collector of inland revenue.

J. R. Davis succeeds James Swanston, second assistant lock master of the Trent Canal.

Benjamin McGill succeeds William Taylor, caretaker of the Customs House.

TAFT ON THE TRUST EVIL

Third Annual Message is Devoted to Sherman Act Discussion.

Washington, Dec. 6.—President Taft's third annual message to Congress, devoted exclusively to the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and the trust question in general, was read in Congress yesterday.

The feature of the message is the recommendation for the establishment of a federal corporation commission, and after noting that the drafting of the recent decrees in the dissolution of trusts, with a view to their reorganization into legitimate corporations, has made it especially apparent that the courts are not provided with the administrative machinery to make the necessary enquiries preparatory to reorganization. The President says:

"I do not set forth in detail the terms and sections of a statute which might supply the constructive legislation permitting and aiding the formation of combinations of capital into federal corporations. They should be subject to rigid rules as to their organization and procedure, including effective publicity, and to the closest supervision as to the issue of stock and bonds by an executive bureau or commission in the Department of Commerce and Labor, to which in times of doubt they might well submit their proposed plans for future business.

"It must be distinctly understood that incorporation under a federal law could not exempt the company thus formed and its incorporators and managers from prosecution under the Anti-Trust Law for subsequent illegal conduct, but the publicity of its procedure and the opportunity for frequent consultation with the bureau or commission in charge of the incorporation as to legitimate purpose of its transactions would offer it as great security against successful prosecutions for violations of the law as would be practical or wise."

IMPORTANT REDUCTIONS IN THE CABLE RATES ANNOUNCED

Half Price for Press Messages is Conceded by Three Companies—Lord Strathcona is Responsible for the Reduction.

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—Important reductions in press cable rates were announced last night in a cable to Premier Borden from the Canadian High Commissioner in London. The announcement was communicated to Lord Strathcona by the British Postmaster-General and transmitted at once to Ottawa.

"His Majesty's Government are in cordial sympathy regarding the easy communication of information of common interest as of prime importance in strengthening the cohesion of the Empire. I have been in correspondence with the Western Union Telegraph Co. of the United States in connection with the leasing by that company of the cables of the Anglo-American Telegraph Co.," he cabled. "The cables of the Atlantic companies are fully employed during a few hours of the day, but less fully during the remaining hours.

"I am glad to be able to announce that, in view of this fact, the three companies referred to have consented to accept press messages which are not of urgent character and which may be postponed for more urgent traffic, at one-half of the present rates. For the present the deferment may be less, but will not be more than nineteen hours, reckoned from the time of acceptance in the country of origin to clock time of delivery in the country of destination, except that, where cables are congested, some further delay may be unavoidable. I have also obtained the consent of the Pacific Cable Board and of the Australian Government to a similar reduction of their charges for press messages of this class.

"The tariff of the New Zealand Government is already very low and a further diminuition is not asked. The effect will be that the rates on these deferred press telegrams between the United Kingdom on the one hand and Canada as well as the United States on the other, will be twopence halfpenny a word, instead of fivepence as now. And between the United Kingdom and Australia and New Zealand the rate will be fourpence halfpenny a word, instead of ninepence.

"I am in communication with the Commercial Cable Co. also on this question, but I regret I have not yet been able to arrange for a similar reduction in cablegrams to and from India and South Africa, but the Eastern Telegraph Co. has consented to carry Australiasian cablegrams at the reduced rate in the event of interruption to the Pacific cable. The service will come into full operation on the 15th inst., but the W. U. Anglo and direct United States companies will be prepared to accept press telegrams at the reduced rates at their own offices on and from to-morrow.

Lord Strathcona goes on to explain the new arrangement of the W. U. Telegraph Co., in regard to night and weed-end letters.

"I am glad to say that negotiations which have been proceeding for some time with the cable companies for reducing by one half the rates for plain language on urgent cablegrams between the United Kingdom, India, the Dominion, the crown colonies and the United States, have proved successful, and the new arrangements will take effect on January 1 next."

Other Rates Cut Down.

London, Dec. 6.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In addition to his announcement that the cable rate to Canada would be twopence halfpenny a word, instead of fivepence, Postmaster Samuel stated that the Australian rate would be between the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand fourpence halfpenny instead of ninepence. The new rates would come into full operation on Dec. 15.

The Western Union intend instituting a system of night letters and week-end letters to Canada and the United States for delivery on the morning of the second day after being handed in at quarter the usual rates. A minimum charge of six shillings would be accepted Saturday for delivery at one-fifth the present rate.

STEAMERS CAUGHT IN SEA HURRICANE

Cannot be Located Despite Their Wireless Equipment

Special to the Review.

New Orleans, Dec 6.—Three United States steamers having on board six hundred members of the American Bankers' Association and their families have been caught in a hurricane which swept the Carribean Sea last night. While all the vessels are equipped with wireless, not one of the three can be located.

MR. ROWELL AT BRANTFORD

Brantford, Dec. 6.—The Liberals of South Brant were addressed here last night by N. W. Rowell, Liberal leader, at a meeting in the Grand Opera House. Mr. Rowell did not supplement his previous addresses with anything new, dealing with what he regarded as main issues of the campaign, including New Ontario developments, reconstruction of educational system by re-establishing county model schools, taxation reform and the bilingual school question.

Other addresses were delivered by Charles B. Heyd, Lloyd Harris, ex-M.P., and the candidate, Ald. Harris. John Muir was chairman. The attendance at the meeting was good and the speakers were well received.

LIVER LAZINESS

Those Who Lack Energy and are Unsuccessful Should Read This Closely

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night and in the morning feel so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should soon be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicine and mixtures Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged up system. My spirits rose, I felt much better, the sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color, and ambition to work returned and have remained. I am like a new man and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well-known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys, and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. THE LIBERAL WRECK

In Kingston no Liberal candidate was nominated and the seat goes by acclamation, along with sixteen others to the Conservative column. Someone has asked the Kingston Whig, the Liberal newspaper of Kingston, and a thick-and-thin supporter of the Liberal party, why the Liberals of Kingston have not put up a candidate, to at least have a contest. And the Whig, which supported the rotten Ross administration, including the provincial secretary, and the malodorous Laurier aggregation of political tricksters, has replied in a melancholy vein. It says that years of power have spoiled the party, that it will have a new birth, and then under the regeneration blossom forth as a power in the land again. Here is what the Whig says:

> Thirty odd years in office at Toronto, and fifteen years at Ottawa have spoiled the party. They have been too long at ease. The old heads are gone or become quiet in office. Those that remain have been too long in the sun shine of power. They have become unfit for the strenuous life. Hence when a serious reverse comes they are content to rest and glorify the past.
> So the liberal party in Kingston in London, and elsewhere, will have to abide the time—which may not be long—when the younger men, under Mr. Rowell, Mr. King, Mr. Graham and others, as young men, will rise in their might, and with an enthusiasm born of new conditions—a new birth politically—redeem the party and again exalt its name.

This is what is happening in other parts of the province. Seventeen acclamations do not tell the proper story. There were about two dozen candidates nominated merely to prevent acclamations, to put up a semblance of a fight—without any prospect of making headway. They were nominated merely to save the face of the Liberal party on nomination day. The utter wreck of the Liberal party in Ontario was never more complete, never more decided than to-day. Seventeen acclamations was the record of nomination day, but as far as practical contests go, it might well have been forty.

In circumstances such as these, would it not be folly for Peterborough not to return Mr. Peck? True he will swell Whitney's big majority, and it is true that the opposition could stand strengthening. But should Peterborough, which wants a government supporter in the house, which wants a first-class representative, be on the side of the wrecked and forlorn hope? It is not good business.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Vote for Peck and keep West Peterborough in the right place

If the attorney-general were to receive a petition to make an investigation into the Cordage company affairs, wouldn't it be of some interest to Peterborough people!

If Mr. Hall was as successful as a critic of the Whitney government as he has been successful in handling some [illegible] government of the "seven sleepers" could go right on snoring.

Mr. Hall says that "All the people we import from England and Europe can never make up for the loss of our own bred-in-the-bone Ontario sons." Isn't that rather a contemptuous way of expressing his opinion of the "British-born?"

Mr. Hall and Mr. Rowell are not able to lay a finger on any graft or scandal in the Whitney administration record. The affairs of the province are conducted cleanly, honestly and fairly, and with business acumen. Vote for Peck.

The Stratton organ had not a word to say about the power question yesterday for itself. What's wrong? After the flip-flops, and then the straddle of the fence, has the Examiner decided to hide in the bushes? It has got out of sight temporarily!

R. R. Hall's bluff that he is a workman's friend is belied by many cases. One need not go as far back as the King case to find evidence that he is truly the friend of the workingman, and the poor man. There have been some recent cases which should be generally known.

Vote for E. A. Peck, the clean, able, fair-minded man, who will support the cheap power movement until it gets into the hands of the people for decision, who will make it his business to get the necessary changes made to the Compensation Act, who will support the Whitney policy of progress and prosperity for all.

Those who did not hear the exposition of the issues of the provincial campaign by Hon. A. B. Morine last night missed a treat. It was a clear, logical, unanswerable argument, devoid of all clap-trap and pawky sentiment, and roused great enthusiasm. Mr. Morine is a polished and most effective speaker.

THE MARRIAGE QUESTION.

Sir,—Permit me to ask you to publish the following Hansard report of the Borden government's view of the marriage question:

"THE MARRIAGE QUESTION.

Mr. Boivin—Has the Dominion government power to legalize or validate any or every marriage solemnized in Canada?

Mr. Borden—This question is, strictly speaking, a question of law, and, therefore, not usual under the practice of the House of Commons. For the information of the hon. gentleman I may say that the Dominion government has no legislative power whatever in such matters. So far as the Dominion parliament is concerned—and perhaps the question was directed to the power of parliament rather than to the power of the government—the jurisdiction of of parliament is fixed by section 91, sub-section 26 of the British North America Act, which confers upon it the right to legislate with reference to marriage and divorce. The jurisdiction of the provincial legislatures in such matters is conferred by section 92, sub-section 12, of the British North America Act, which confers upon the provincial legislatures jurisdiction with respect to the solemnization of marriage in the province.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—That is safe.

Mr. Borden—It is not only safe, but accurate."

The Laurier government said that it knew nothing about the matter. Borden speaks clearly on that point and says that parliament HAS the power to legislate in marriage and divorce by virtue of the B.N.A.

TO ECZEMA SUFFERERS

We would not recommend any remedy for Eczema, Psoriasis, or any other trouble with the skin, unless we knew that it was scientifically compounded, that its ingredients could not possibly harm the most delicate skin, and that it would give instant relief.

We have many remedies in our store and make it a point to handle only those that can be relied upon, but we especially recommend the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema to all our patrons who have any form of skin trouble, because we know what it will do. We can vouch personally for the merits of the D.D.D. Prescription.

If you want instant relief from that torturing itchy Eczema or would like to have your face freed from unsightly blotches and pimples let us tell you about this D.D.D. Prescription, and the wonderful D.D.D. Soap that is used with it.

Remember, we know the D.D.D. Prescription will give you instant relief.

Better call to-day and let us tell you more about this wonderful remedy.

Martin and the Niche.

London, Dec. 6.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In reply to a question of Joseph Martin in the House of Commons, Hon. Winston Churchill said the previous service of Lieut. White and Lieut. Grehame had been excellent. The strict rule of naval service had inflicted on them the punishments awarded by the court-martial. "I would have thought that under the circumstances the questioner would not desire to aggravate the consequences of their mistake by further publicity."

Martin—"May I ask whether the Admiralty did not consider their social position rather than professional competence?"

Churchill—"That question didn't arise either with the Admiralty or the Canadian Government." (Cheers.)

An Ill-Fated Home.

Toronto, Dec. 6.—Since Thursday three children from the Dovey home, 3 Manchester avenue, have been buried. Diphtheria has been the trouble. On Thursday Muriel, aged 4 years, was buried in the Necropolis; on the following day Minnie, aged 7 years, died in the Isolation Hospital, and yesterday Norman, aged 18 months, passed away and will be buried to-day. The father, Albert Dovey, is a carpenter.

Job Harriman Routed.

Los Angeles, Dec. 6.—Alexander, good Government candidate for mayor, was re-elected yesterday by an overwhelming majority over Job Harriman, Socialist. The count of ballots at 8.30 o'clock in 76 precincts out of a total of 317 gave Alexander 27,909, and Harriman 10,554.

This shows a gain for Alexander of about 3 to 1, compared with the primary vote.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 5.—Cables from the United Kingdom and the continent on Manitoba spring wheat came weaker, and the prices bid showed a decline of 1d to 3d per quarter, but at this reduction the demand was good, and, as prices in Winnipeg closed lower, a fair amount of business was worked. The demand from foreign buyers for oats is increasing, but the bids are out of line. In sympathy with the weakness in Winnipeg during the past two days, prices on spot have declined ½c to ½c, but at this reduction the demand was fair.

A fair business continues to be done in flour for city account, but the demand from outside and foreign sources is limited. Some of the millers advanced prices for bran and shorts $1 per ton. The export demand for bran is good. Cheese is quiet. Butter is fairly active and strong at a further advance in prices of ½c per pound. Potatoes scarce and in good demand at 2½c to 5c per bag advance.

A TENDERFOOT'S WOOING

—BY—

CLIVE PHILLIPPS WOLLEY

(AUTHOR OF "GOLD, GOLD IN CARIBOO," ETC.)

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

That was the spirit in which he, and for the matter of that, Rolt, too, rode all that night. To the rough riders of our plains, pain or discomfort are not things to be moaned over or made much of. Like the beasts of the field in this, unless a wound is bad enough to stop the working of their machinery, they go on as if unhurt. When they lie down, it is with them, and with their rivals, the Indians, to die, and that, too, they do quietly.

Rolt and Al would willingly have given in. Their bodies cried to them for mercy, for leave to slide out of the saddle into the sweet-smelling sage brush and lie still, but though both were utterly spent, though neither had tasted food for twenty-four hours, and one was badly wounded, the thought of the lonely ranch with the two women in it was always before their eyes, and kept them plodding on, trying hard to abstract their minds from the painful present, which had to be lived through. The night waxed and waned for them, riding in this fashion, whilst the unseen troop of Indian horses pattered behind them, now stopping to graze, now galloping after them in alarm lest they should lose sight of their mates.

With the first streak of dawn they debouched upon the edge of the home pasture, powdered by a thin fall of snow.

"Rufus, and Old Regent," muttered Rolt, as he paused for a moment by two snow-sprinkled carcases. "What accursed butchery!"

"There's more of the same kind," replied Al feebly, pointing to other similar mounds. "They've rounded up and killed all the stock they could come near; but thank God for that!" and he held his one hand out towards the ranch house which came in sight as he spoke.

It still stood untouched as far as they could see, nor was there an Indian in sight in all the country which surrounded it.

Rolt made an inarticulate sound. His lips seemed for the moment unable to move, and then, pointing to the house, he managed to say, "Can you—"

"Of course I can, blank it!" replied the old man, with a sudden flash fo energy. "You'd have ridden on an hour ago if you hadn't been such an unmitigated idiot!" but as the Boss spurred his horse over the rise and down the long meadow which led to all he loved, Al suddenly collapsed, and murmuring: "Your white, pretty blanked white, Rolt," slid easily out of his saddle, rolled over, and lay still, whilst his horse, after one snort of surprise, began to feed slowly away from his prostrate form.

Al had drawn upon his endurance to the very last ounce, and when, a quarter of an hour later, Jim Combe came to bring him in, he found the old man still unconscious where he had fallen.

CHAPTER XXIII.

In the absence of Rolt, Jim Combe took command of the party at the ranch, and military law was declared: that is to say, Jim insisted upon looking on the house as in a state of siege, though, as Anstruther protested, there was not an Indian in sight nor, he averred, ever likely to be again.

The men were divided into watches, so that there was not an hour of the day or night when some of them were not on guard, whilst no work was undertaken which could lead the defenders to any distance from their base.

On the first day after the departure of the posse, shots were heard over the hog's back, and Jim, who made a reconnaissance in person, reported that a band of Chilcotens was killing cattle, but though the loss inflicted would be serious, he would not listen to Anstruther's suggestion that an attempt should be made to drive off the marauders.

He was determined that the story of the burning stacks should not be repeated. It was better to lose anything than to expose the women to the danger of a rush upon the house.

On the second day there was not even the sound of a shot to keep up the vigilance of the defenders, and the scouting party sent out by Jim reported all clear to the sky line.

"Our people have driven the Indians clear out of the country," asserted Anstruther. "Arson at night is the limit of their daring. It is not likely that such miserable devils would make a stand against armed white men."

But Jim thought otherwise, and decreed the destruction of certain barns and outhouses beyond the corrals, as affording dangerous cover for an attacking force.

They are valuable buildings in a country where lumber is not as plentiful as it is at the coast, and Mrs. Rolt watched the destruction of them with a sore heart.

"It seems a pity, doesn't it?" she said, as she and Kitty, with Anstruther, watched Jim and his men at work, "but I suppose Jim is right."

"He must be," asserted Anstruther, but his tone belied his words.

"It would be a terrible sell if the Indians really had gone for good, as Mr. Anstruther thinks."

"We could put up with that, Kitty, don't you think, although I confess that I don't like seeing my buildings go."

"Why don't you tell Jim to let them stand till Mr. Rolt comes back? You tell him, Mr. Anstruther."

"I? Scarcely, Miss Kitty. Jim is commander-in-chief. I am only the invalid. I am not even honored with a place on guard."

"Jim does not think you are fit for duty yet, and you know that you are not."

"I know that I am fit for very little, but I should like to try to be of some use if the admirable Jim would let me," said Mr. Anstruther.

"He gives you the place of honor as our special guard, sir."

"Yes, he is good enough to consider me fit to be left with—in charge of the ladies."

Mrs. Rolt smiled. She understood what he would have said, and did not make allowances either for the irratability of an invalid, or the impatience of a man put at a disadvantage in the eyes of the woman he loved.

"Try to put up with us yet a little while," she said. "Dick will be back soon, now."

Kitty said nothing until he had left the room, then she turned to her friend:

"I think Jim treats Mr. Anstruther pretty badly."

"Badly? What do you mean, Kitty? He sees that he has the best of everything, and never asks him to do a hand's turn. What more can Mr. Anstruther expect?"

"I think he would rather have less consideration as an invalid and more work as a man."

"But he can't do anything."

"Jim might let him try."

"At any other time, yes, and so no doubt he would, and do his work for him after he had made a mess of it, but Jim can't afford to think of people's feelings just now, and to be candid, I don't think your friend is showing to advantage. We have done all we can for him, and now he sulks."

Kitty flushed to the temples. She knew that there was more than a shadow of truth in Mrs. Rolt's charge, but her sympathies were with Frank, though even to her he had been curiously cold and distant since Jim's return.

Never in her life had Kitty's bright temper been more sorely tried than during those days of seige. She had been used all her life to have men for her playmates. Now she had no playmates; she had not even a lover. Since his return to the ranch Jim had watched over her and Mrs. Rolt with the most unfailing courtesy; had forgotten nothing; had forestalled every wish; and even to Anstruther had been courtesy itself; but avoiding any outward demonstration, he had kept Kitty at a distance.

So had her patient. Everything that a man could do to show his gratitude Frank had done, but in some undefinable way he had drawn himself further away from her every day, until to the poor little woman, the love that had been so nearly spoken seemed now but a dream of her own imagining.

Each of the men seemed bent on leaving her to the other. She detested Jim for his many perfections, and could not love Frank because he simply would not let her.

To this uncomfortable state of things Dick Rolt returned, acquiescing in all the arrangements which Combe had made.

"I did not tear down the stables until you came, but they ought to go along with the other buildings if you think that the Indians are still likely to make trouble."

"They may be here any minute. They are too strong to sit down under the dressing we gave them. There must be fifty armed men at least, and they know that there are only four of us, and one of us wounded. How is Al now?"

"Oh, he will do all right. It was only a flesh wound. He has lost a lot of blood, but the old chap says that he has plenty more. But if we tear down the stables what are we going to do about the horses?"

"Turn them loose to rustle for themselves, and take their chance of being shot. We can do nothing else."

"It won't do to leave ourselves without horses. We might have to ride for our lives, after all."

"It can't come to that."

"It might, Rolt. Think of the women."

Rolt groaned. "I'm never thinking of anything else, Jim. What do you advise?"

"Well, if you ask me, I should knock out a partition or two, and make the dining-room and one of the others into a stable. It will play the devil with the house, but we can fix that up again when the trouble is over. If you say the word I'll have feed brought in, and horses for the ladies and half the men."

"Why half?"

"We can't manage more, and we shouldn't want them. If it comes to a show down some of us will have to stay to hold the Indians whilst the others get through."

"Which horses shall we bring in?"

"Mrs. Rolt's, Miss Kitty's, your own, that stallion (he will have mended by now), and two more. The two sorrels I should think are best."

"What about Mr. Anstruther's hunter?"

"His looks won't pay for his keep. He ain't the horse for this job. We aren't going fox hunting or hurdle jumping, and he'd play out before he got half way. The country breds are the only ones that could stay the distance."

"I think you underrate my horse's staying powers."

Anstruther had come in unobserved and heard the last remark, and though very calm in speech, he was very white and his eyes glittered angrily.

"Maybe, but I wouldn't have thought him any more good for this job than them things you was hauling out of your trunk for Miss Kitty to look at. All right in the shires, no doubt, horses and pink coat, and patent leather pumps, but not built for business," retorted Combe coldly.

Anstruther flushed and bit his lips.

To pass the time during the siege he had been overhauling his trunk, and at the moment when Jim came upon them he had been showing Kitty Clifford a red coat which he had brought with him at her request, for the fancy-dress ball at Victoria.

But he left Combe's remark unanswered. Instead of a direct reply he asked Rolt if, as no Indians were in sight, he did not think someone might get through to Soda Creek to send down the road for help.

"I was thinking of it, and mean to send some one as soon as it grows dark if the coast is still clear."

"Then, sir, if you will allow me, I can save stable room for Ruddy-gore. I will take myself to Soda Creek tonight."

"Nonsense, Anstruther. You could not ride half the distance. Your accident—"

"Oh, d—n my accident! I beg your pardon, Mr. Rolt, but I cannot be an invalid forever. I am perfectly able to ride if I cannot do anything else, and I would rather ride my horse to Soda Creek than abandon him."

For a moment Rolt's handsome face clouded. He was himself a hot-tempered man, but he had learned since his marriage to hold himself in check, beside which the antagonism between the two men, whilst it annoyed him, was intelligible enough.

"Very well, Anstruther. I'll consider what you say. We shall not be sending anyone for an hour or two. Let Mr. Anstruther's horse be brought in instead of mine, Jim," and with that he turned his back on the pair of them and went upstairs to the ladies.

What transpired there is not recorded, but whilst Anstruther was making his preparations, the fog began to close in around the ranch, Ruddy-gore was led into the dismantled dining-room, and two figures, those of old Toms and the elder Fairclough, rode quietly away, the one towards Soda Creek, and the other towards the Franklyn Ranch, to bring help, if possible.

"We are in a serious position, and they were the best men to send," was the explanation which Rolt vouchsafed, and thereafter, for twenty-four hours, Anstruther barely opened his mouth to anyone.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A sullen gloom settled upon the house and on the prairie outside the house. Jim and Anstruther barely spoke to one another, and both of them did their best to avoid Kitty, whilst the pines in the brule stood waist deep in the fog and long columns of mist rose from amongst the trees like vapors from a witch's cauldron.

But for two whole days no Indians appeared, and Rolt was beginning to hope that, when the help sent for arrived, there would be no work for the helpers to do.

Mrs. Rolt was the life of the party, but though she rallied the men on their silence and insisted upon songs in the drawing-room at night, and though Dr. Protheroe and her husband did all that they could to aid and abet her, her attempts were not crowned with success.

Every night, at least three different inmates of the ranch stole out to go over the defences. There was always some one missing from the group around the piano, trying the doors and re-arranging the barricades whilst no one was looking.

The blow fell in the third night.

The whole prairie land had been swallowed up in gloom in which no star showed, no wind moved, when Mrs. Rolt woke her husband with a gentle pressure of his arm.

BLEEDING CATARRH MUST LEAVE

When Treated with Morriscy's "No. 26."

HOULTON, MAINE, Sept. 9, 1910.
"I was suffering terribly from Bleeding Catarrh for a long time, and had tried everything without success. My doctor could not help me, and so I decided to undergo treatment with Father Morriscy, whose fame had extended clear down here. It was a wise decision for me, because I soon began to feel better, and it was but a short while until the bleeding stopped—but I was obliged to use the Ointment No. 26 for sometime, because I had had the Catarrh so long that it would not yield to treatment very fast. I am now entirely free from Catarrh—thanks to "No. 26", and cannot let an opportunity pass to recommend it to all because it cured me, and I give it all the credit."
Miss Mamie Travers.
The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

Disappointed.

An intoxicated individual wearing a badly battered hat boarded an elevator in the Putnam building yesterday afternoon to ride down from the fourth floor. The moment he stepped aboard he extended his hand to a flashily dressed young man.

"'Lo, there!" said the inebriated one. "Glad t' shee ya."

The other took the proffered hand stiffly, but said he couldn't recall ever having met its owner.

"I met you down on Fourteent' street," said the man with the bun.

"Never go down there," said the other.

The happy one pondered a moment. Then he said, "Shay, are you an actor?"

"I am."

A look of keen disappointment spread over the inebriated one's face.

"Pshaw!" he said. "I wus goin' to ask ya for a dime."—New York Telegraph.

THE GIRL WITH THE AUBURN HAIR

The phenomenal success of Parisian Sage has led to many attempts to substitute and imitate. We therefore ask you to insist on being supplied with the genuine Parisian Sage. PARISIAN SAGE RELIEVES ITCHING SCALP.

"Aha!" And he laughed fiendishly as he read from the morning paper: "The burglar shot at the man, whose life was saved by the bullet striking against a button of his clothes."

"Well," snapped his wife, "what of that?"

"What of that!" said he as he felt his collar going up steadily to the nape of his neck. "Oh, nothing, except that the button must have been on!"—Pearson's Weekly.

STRANGE HAPPENINGS.

Man Convicted For Crime Committed While Asleep.

"Many more crimes are enacted during a state of profound somnambulism than is generally known."

Dr. Forbes Winslow, the mental expert, who is vice-president of the Psycho-Therapeutical Society, expressed this opinion on the connection between sleep and crime to an "Express" representative recently.

He was able to supplement the view reported in The Express of Dr. T. B. Hyslop, until recently superintendent of the Royal Bethlem Hospital for the Insane, that many crimes are committed in a state analagous to somnambulism. Some interesting examples were given by Dr. Forbes Winslow from his own personal experience.

"There was the case," he said, "of a man who suddenly awoke at midnight. At the moment of waking he imagined he saw a fearful spectre. He called out 'Who is that?' and receiving no answer, imagined that the phantom was advancing on him, and having altogether lost his self-possession, he raised a hatchet and attacked the spectre. He found later he had murdered his wife.

"Another case was that of a pedlar who was in the habit of walking about the country with an armed stick. He was awakened one evening while lying on the high road, asleep by a man, who suddenly seized him by the shoulders. This was done for a joke.

"The pedlar suddenly awoke and stabbed the man, who died. He was tried for manslaughter, and his irresponsibility was urged by counsel on the ground that in his semi-wakening condition he could not be held responsible. Medical witnesses were called to prove this, but the pedlar was found guilty, and, in my opinion, very unjustly punished.

"Numerous cases of suicide are reported under similar circumstances. Many a person who has retired to bed in comparative sanity, without manifesting any symptoms of mental disorder, on being aroused from a frightful dream, has destroyed himself.

"I have known many cases of somnambulism in which the people have walked about apparently conscious all the time in this state, but really not responsible for their actions.

"The divisions of sleep and somnambulism may be divided as follows:

"1. Profound sleep associated with unconsciousness.

"2. Dreaming. Conscious memory, fancy and imagination.

"3. Acted dreams.

"4. True somnambulism, during which the individual knows nothing of any act committed by him while in this state. Neither can he in the waking state recall any act of his.

"It is a curious, but significant fact, perhaps contrary to the belief of some persons, that insensibility produced by direct hypnotism is not followed by any criminal instinct. This does not, however, apply to those who have never exhibited any criminal intent.

"One curious thing connected with sleep-walking is the fact that all danger is usually avoided. The sleep-walked will go to the edge of the cliff and then stop and retrace his steps. This is due to the power of the subjective mind.

"No doubt, as in the case of Lady Macbeth, a guilty and uneasy mind acts as an exciting cause in producing general insomnia and restlessness, and often somnambulism. An actual confession of crime, however, as here depicted in Shakespeare, is of rare occurrence.

"Regarding the question of the responsibility of any one committing a crime during a condition of somnambulism, there is no possible doubt that such a person should be held irresponsible; but we must, however, guard against the simulation of somnambulism as an excuse for crime. Feigners of somnambulism, as in the case of feigners of insanity, generally betray themselves by some trivial want of thought."

London's New Mayor.

It was Lord Avebury who, in 1898, proposed Sir Thomas Crosby, London's new Lord Mayor, as alderman for Langbourn Ward, remarking that he had known Sir Thomas longer than he cared to remember, and the longer he had known him the more convinced he had become that he would prove an ideal alderman. The words have not been belied. Sir Thomas, who will be the first medical man to occupy the Mansion House during the 700 years of the City's municipal existence, is exceedingly popular in the City. He is a self-made man. He was the youngest of a large family, his father being a Lincolnshire farmer, and was early called upon to leave home and seek his fortune in London. Sir Thomas is a great lover of children, and has worked hard to introduce a little brightness into the lives of the tiny tots of slumland.

Expert Antiquarian.

A museum of exceptional interest to Londoners—it is to be called the London Museum—is at present being established at Kensington Palace, under the direction of Mr. Guy Francis Laking, the only son of Sir Francis Laking, the King's physician. There are few men who have a wider knowledge of antiquities than Mr. Laking, and, although the task of establishing the new museum has been a gigantic one—there will be over 8,000 exhibits—the latter have been arranged and catalogued in such a manner that it will be quite an easy matter for people to study the growth and history of London from the very earliest periods. Mr. Laking, who studied with the idea of becoming an artist, is Keeper of the King's Armor at Windsor Castle, and is also an authority on all matters connected with the stage.

Kaiser Admires "Bobs."

One of Lord Roberts' warmest admirers is the German Emperor, proof of which was given some few years ago by the bestowal of the Order of the Red Eagle upon him, his lordship being the first non-German officer to receive this distinction.

A Result Worthy of Consideration
Endowment Policy No. 34022 was issued to a local citizen twenty years ago for which he paid in ten annual instalments to the Company in all premiums, amounting to $688.50. He now receives a single cash payment of $1273.65 which as an investment is over 4% compound interest, or he may accept $750.60 in cash, which is $62.10 more than he paid in, together with a paid up policy for $1000, payable at death which earns profits every year during the balance of his life.
Where can a young man or woman find a better way of saving money as well as providing a protection for those dependent upon them.
The above is the result of a matured policy in the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA, payable on December 1st., 1911.

BIFOCALS
OR —
DOUBLE VISION GLASSES

Most people think, when buying Bifocal Glasses, that a large segment or reading area is required. With very few exceptions this is not so, as most bifocals are required for constant use, and the successful fitting of these lenses depends not so much on furnishing the largest reading portion possible, but on placing a minimum disk or wafer in exactly the correct position. A smal wafer accurately placed will afford ample field for reading, writing and sewing, and will overcome the tendency to make mis-steps in going up and down stairs, an experience not uncommon to wearers of bifocals with too large reading segments.

We make a specialty of filling Bifocal Lenses in VISIBLE, SEMI-INVISIBLE and INVISIBLE.

LAYMEN HELD BIG BANQUET

Presbyterians Gather at St. Pauls in Missionary Work

Addresses by Rev. D. MacDonald and Rev. Mr. Armstrong

The Laymen's Missionary banquet last night in St. Paul's church to give the members of St. Paul's and other churches of the city an opportunity to meet Rev. D. A. Macdonald, B.A. the missionary who is going to Corea as the special foreign missionary of St. Paul's church was a great success. About one hundred and fifty or two hundred of the business men of the city were gathered together in the school room, where daintily set tables were in charge of the young ladies of the church. The tables were graced with the most appetising of dishes, and the culinary feature of the banquet was by no means the least of its merits.

The hungry man found just as much enjoyment as the man who ate because he thought it looked as if he appreciated the efforts of the ladies—and this is no mean compliment, for it bespeaks the generosity of the ladies, and the substantial nature of the repast, as well as testifying to the fact that there was just enough "pink tea" flavor about the spread to make a man realise that he was absorbing something out of the ordinary. Probably some of the young, unmarried men who were present thought to themselves, "Mercy! Isn't this fine. I guess I'd better get a Presbyterian girl for a wife. I'd have a jewel."

Mr. H. B. Cowen was in the chair and with him were the pastor of the church, Rev. Robert Pogue, and the other Presbyterian ministers of the city, and Rev. Mr. Armstrong of Toronto, one of the general mission officials of the church. Mr. Cowan in introducing the subject matter for the evening, took occasion to refer to the growing efforts of the Christian church toward furthering and extending mission work.

He thought that not only would St. Paul's be paying the salary of this its foreign missionary, but all his expenses soon. All in the congregation had been anxious to know what manner of man the new missionary was to be, and the gathering was the opportunity for him to become acquainted.

After the toast to the King had been honored, Sheriff Hall in a few well chosen remarks proposed the health of Rev. Mr Macdonald, the new missionary.

REV. MR. MACDONALD

Rev. Mr. Macdonald spoke for about haf an hour on the opportunities and the conditions in Corea, and among the people with whom his lot for the next six or seven years would be cast. He thought it was significant of the signs of the times, when men of the calibre of those who were present last evening, were gathered together to hear addresses on missionary work. He esteemed it a privilege to represent St. Paul's, though the thought that he was going as a missionary was not one to be light-hearted over. But with such a body as these men behind him, he felt he could set out feeling that there was sympathy and support behind him.

The Presbyterian church of Canada was responsible for the evangelization of fourteen million of the heathen, this being its apportionment of the masses of heathen to be Christianized in the next generation by the Christian church of the world. The east was awakening from its sleep of the centuries, and even now the Japanese were esteemd a world power, and the countless millions of China were now in a turmoil trying to get rid of the old order of things.

Mr. Macdonald dwelt on the geographical features, the habits and customs, the opportunities in Corea where he is going. He described how eager the Coreans became in their Christianizing efforts after being converted, and how they spread the gospel rapidly, undergoing many sacrifices that Canadians woud shrink from. Corea was the key to Asia, the pivot on which the evangelisation of the Oriental countries would turn.

Rev Mr. Armstrong, of Toronto, assistant secretary of the Foreign Mission Work, spoke on mission work generally, urging a more forcible policy of spreading the gospel among the heathen.

Toasts to some of the city ministers followed. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

57TH CONCERT

Large Attendance and Good Program at the Armories

The first open concert of the 57th Regiment was held last night in the recreation room of the Armories and proved a great success as there was a large crowd present, many of whom were accompanied by lady friends. The program, which was arranged by Sergts. Succee, Robts and Q.M.S. Edwards, was much enjoyed.

The chairman made a few remarks thanking those who took part in the program, he said he was sorry to see so few of the N.C.O. present, but hoped there would be a better turnout next night.

The regular monthly meeting of the Garrison Sergeants Mess will be held to-night. The proposition of holding a grand ball in the Armouries in the near future is being discussed.

OBITUARY

Mrs. George Campbell

A well-known and respected citizen was lost to Peterborough yesterday afternoon when Elizabeth Cox, wife of Mr. George Campbell, of 159 Stewart street, passed away at the age of 73 years. The late Mrs. Campbell had been ailing for several years and for the last month had been unable to leave her room. She had been an active member of the Knox Presbyterian church and previous to her illness gave her services to the various organizations willing and cheerfully. All her family was present when she passed away. Besides her husband, three daughters and one son survive. The daughters are Misses Emma and Mattie, of Toronto, and Mrs. Ed. Dillon, of this city, and the son is Mr. Charles Campbell, of Preston. The late Mrs. Campbell was born in Colborne.

The funeral will take place Thursday morning to the G.T.R. station when the remains will be taken to Colborne on the 8.30 train for interment. Service at the house Wednesday evening.

PRUDENTIALS ENTERTAINED

Pleasant Evening at Home of Superintendent John I. Allen

Mr. John I. Allen, superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Company of the Peterboro District, entertained his Assistant Superintendents and agents of the Peterboro office proper, last night, at his residence 583 Homewood Avenue, in honour of their exceeding their record of 1910, by a very large margin, and also in honor of the departure of Agent R.E. Sherry, who leaves in the near future to take up his residence in New York city, having accepted a very responsible position in that place.

The following were present—Assistant, J. Leadbetter, assistant R. F. Sedgwick, agents C. R. Banks, A. H. Wells, H. Solmes, C. Robinson, C. H. Patterson, J. Malane and H. Dudley also Mr. and Mrs. Joy of Schnectady, New York; also Dr. J. B. Mann, who has lately taken up practice in the city; Dr. A. W. McPherson, Mr. Wilfred Fitzgerald of the office staff, of the C. G. E. Co., and Miss Susie Burroughs of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., who assisted Mrs. Allen in entertaining their guests.

Instrumental selections were rendered by Mr. Sherry and vocal solos by Mr. C. R. Banks, who has recently taken up a position, having lately moved to Peterboro from Sheffield, England. Solos were also rendered by Mr. H. Dudley of Peterboro. Euchre was played until eleven o'clock and agents Solmes and Patterson were the winners of the prizes after which refreshments were served and dancing was indulged in until an early morning hour.

The guests when departing tendered a vote of thanks for the generous hospitality which they had received.

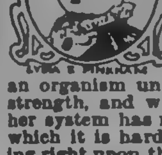
Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.



LYDIA E. PINKHAM

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Any woman who would like special advice in regard to this matter is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her letter will be held in strict confidence.

FIVE NAMES WERE STRUCK OFF LIST

Board of Appeal Had to Deal with 22 Names

It occupied just two sittings of the Court of Appeal to dispose of the twenty-two registration appeals that were filed. The members of the court were Judge Huycke, D. W. Dumble, and George Sherry, and W. J. Johnston, (clerk)

Five names were struck off.

In No. 1 ward, William H. Croft traveller, was struck off, also the name of Bert C. Mason, 121 Park st., a brass finisher.

In No. 2 ward, just one name was struck off, in No. 3, none, and in No. 4, the name of Wm. F. Faulkner, 567 George street, a student, was obliterated and John C. Hawley, 567 George street.

Several Italian names were appealed, but they were allowed to remain on the list.

Messrs. G. N. Gordon and W. Davidson acted in the interests of Mr. Hall, and R. Ruddy for the Conservative candidate, E. A. Peck.

WEDDING BELLS

SHARON—SCOTT.

A pretty wedding took place in the Broadway Baptist church, at Winnipeg on Monday afternoon, when Miss Sara Violet Scott, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott, of Smith township, was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas Herbert Sharon, the Rev. J. C. Bowen officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharon will visit in Winnipeg and Redners, Sask., before going to their home in Kinley, Sask. On the preceding Tuesday night a large number of the friends of the bride met at the home of Mrs. Chas. Moore, in Smith, and gave a miscellaneous shower. Other presents valuable and useful were received by the bride, and many friends will extend best wishes for a happy and prosperous life in the west.

DON'T BE DECEIVED; LIBERALS' COMPENSATION ACT IS A GOLD BRICK TO THE WORKINGMEN

Hon. A. B. Morine

Conservative Candidate Receives Splendid Reception by Electors at Grand Opera House Meeting—Workingman Can Trust Him to Further Their Interests With the Whitney Government.

The big meeting in the Opera House last-night in the interest of the Conservative candidate, Mr E. A. Peck was successful from several viewpoints The attendance was large and the number included many ladies. The meeting was interesting throughout. Mr. Peck made a short and pointed address on behalf of the government and himself and Hon. A. B. Morine K. C., was heard in what was considered to be one of the finest political addresses ever given in Peterboro.

Mr Jas. Kendry ably filled the duties of chairman and with him on the platform were, Hon. A. B. Morine, Mr. Peck, T. E. Bradburn, Ald., Bradburn, Ald. Buller, Ald. Edgar, R. M Waddell, J. T. C. Laing, Robt. Studdy K. C., W. H. Moore, K.C., ex-Ald H Phelan, W. H. Hill, R. J. Sodden, L. M. Hayes, K.C., Robt. Fair, T. F. Matthews and others.

GLAD TO BE PRESENT.

Mr. James Kendry in commencing the meeting said he was glad to be present in the interests of one who would be the next representative for West Peterborough and he was glad also to be present as a supporter of the government which would be returned. It was an honest government. So far as Sir James Whitney was concerned, it was the duty of the citizens of Peterborough to support that government. This he was sure the people would do. He was proud of Mr. Peck. As for Mr. Hall, the speaker did not know why he had started, for assuredly he would be beaten. A great deal had been heard from Mr. Hall on the Workmen's Compensation Act. Mr. Kendry pointed out that the Whitney government had brought in the Scaffolding bill at the last session. The Liberal candidate had always got "compensation" when he had to do with anything, and the speaker couldn't see how he should be able to look after the workingmen.

THE CANDIDATE.

Mr Peck was given a rousing reception on responding to the introduction by Mr. Kendry. "I have occupied a position on the platform of this Opera House on many occasions," said Mr. Peck, "but this is a new departure to stand on this platform on behalf of such a humble person as myself. I have been requested to accept the nomination as candidate of the Liberal Conservative Association. I have accepted that nomination and new appeal for your support on December 11th."

Mr. Peck expressed his pleasure at seeing so many ladies present. While it was true, he remarked, the ladies did not handle the ballots, it was due to the quiet and gentle influence they exercised upon the electors that Peterborough had been regarded for so many years as being a good Conservative town.

Taking up the Workmen's Compensation Act, the speaker explained that the act had been placed upon the statute in the year 1885 and had continued with the Liberals in power for 19 years no changes being made. Then in February of 1905, the Whitney government commenced and the matter of amendment taken up. The appointment of a commission was made by Whitney with the object of making inquiries in other countries and to make a report, with a bill which would be deemed suitable for the Province of Ontario.

This work was still being continued and at the next session of the House a full report and a good bill would be presented.

A WORKINGMAN'S FRIEND!

Mr Hall had represented himself to be a friend of the workingmen. He had said so on the platform and had got his friends to say so. He had put it in print on the bill boards of the city. But how should he be styled a friend of the workingmen? What [illegible] done in or out of Parliament for the cause of the workingmen? A man should be judged not by what he said, but by what he did. What had Mr. done regarding the act since Mr Whitney came in power, or what had Mr Rowell done? Now at the last minute after every reasonable step had been taken by the Whitney government to secure its passage, the Liberals were waking up and Mr. Hall professed that he was the man who could help the workingmen.

"I don't believe the people are going to take away from Whitney and myself the privilege of making that act a workingman's act," remarked the speaker.

The present measure, he admitted, was not all it should be. Sir James Whitney was not satisfied himself and the candidate stated that he would do all in his power to procure the passing of an act that would give fair and adequate relief.

"I have had dealings with a great many workingmen; they have trusted me with the management of their affairs and I have given them a square deal. I believe that in this larger and more important matter, they can safely trust me to give them a satisfactory measure of relief," concluded Mr Peck, in regard to the act.

GRANT TO UNIVERSITY

As to the expenditure of the province, he said, the Liberals complained that it was too large. But not one item could be picked out and said to be improper. Mr. Hall complained of the payment to the University of Toronto, but his leader, Mr. Rowell, did not question the expenditure. Mr. Ross had not questioned the payment of a substantial grant. That item was the only one complained of and that was by Mr. Hall alone.

The university was the ward of the province, which had established it years ago. If the grant was withdrawn what would be the position of the students who wanted advanced education? Mr Hall posed as the friend of the workingmen, but what would their sons do if the grant was withheld. The university was not only for the rich man's son, but the poor man's son as well. Where would he get his education?

Passing on from the university question the speaker showed that while the Liberals said Whitney was opposed to the workingmen and a friend of the capitalists, the Premier had been working in their interests. The Scaffolding Act had been passed and inspectors appointed for the inspection of factories. He should certainly be considered a friend of the workingmen

The question before the electors was quite simple. It was whether Mr. Hall or the speaker was the better man to represent West Peterborough Mr. Peck believed he could give good service and he assured his audience that he would do all in his power to promote the interests of the riding and province.

BILINGUALISM.

As Mr. Peck concluded and took his seat one of the audience asked for his position on the bilingual school question, and in reply the candidate cited the law which he said was very clear, it being that the English language should be used in instruction in the public and separate schools unless it was impracticable by reason of the pupils not understanding English. That law is reasonable, and should be enforced, he said. Every effort was being made to assure the scholars, instruction in English Whitney had appointed Dr. Merchant to make a thorough investigation and his report would be made at the next session The people had Whitney's assurance that the law would be enforced, and he will do his part to see that it is carried out, said the speaker in conclusion. He was loudly cheered.

HON. A. B. MORINE, K.C.

Hon. A. B. Morine, K.C., of Toronto, next introduced as a former member of the Newfoundland Legislature, made a clever address. He presented his arguments in favor of the Whitney administration in a manner that held the big audience in close attention for the hour he occupied. What A. B. Morine had to say, and he said a lot, was well said. He impressed his auditors as a man perfectly sincere, and who was thoroughly conversant with the subject he had in mind. He regretted the lack of fire in the present election and jocularly remarked that perhaps all had been spent on the last election. It was perfectly clear, he said, that the Whitney government was going to be returned to power, and after the election Mr. Hall would, if elected, sit in the cold shades of opposition, while Mr. Peck, if elected, would occupy the warm side of the House. Mr. Rowell, the Liberal leader, never contended for a moment that he could defeat the government. What he had in mind was to secure an opposition by which he could concoct a plan of action for the next election.

In these times when everything was progressing in the province it was important that a place like Peterborough should have a representative on the right side of the House. Of the character and quality of the two candidates, he contended, the people of West Peterborough were better able to judge. As to the candidates, who should know better than their neighbors? The question was, which had shown in the past who was the most deserving of the electors' confidence.

THE TWO LEADERS.

As to the character, capacity and qualification of the two leaders, the speaker eulogized both Whitney and Rowell He knew Mr. Rowell personally, and he was a very estimable man. Both were entitled to the confidence of the electors; they were two men of whom the province should be proud. But Mr. Morine pointed out that Whitney had had the experience, and never had there been a man more deserving of confidence than Sir James Whitney. His enemies said he was a bear, so gruff and honest that he was unpleasant. It had been contended that Rowell, who was a temperance man, would make the party toe the mark. But where was all his temperance in his platform? What he says was that if given four years he would then come out and tell what he thought of temperance. He had subordinated himself to his party.

The record of the government was one of good, honest administration. In the manifestos of the Liberals not one item had been pointed to as being corrupt or not honest. Whitney's work had entitled him to the position of premier so long as he would consent to be the leader of the province. Such an administration was unique in the Dominion of Canada, and absolutely unique in the history of the province. The revenue had increased and the cost of education had decreased. The books had been taken out of the hands of contractors and the money had been put into the hands of the people in the reduction of school books.

Leader Rowell asked for support on the grounds that he favored the abolition of the three-fifths clause. But past experience had shown that when a strong public sentiment was lacking in regard to local option, the law was not satisfactory and was followed by repeal. Rowell said it should be a straight majority, but this was not an ordinary question. It was a question in which men's appetites, prejudices and passions were wrapped up, and it was better to keep the present policy, by which the law was respected and obeyed.

As to bilingualism, the question was rather one of administration than of policy. Neither party would commit themselves to any other policy, but it could be said that Whitney would administer the law properly. The speaker said that for the sake of all the children ought to learn the English language, and should get the opportunity. The schools were not merely for individuals, but for the benefit of the province. It was important, he held, that all should learn English.

Rowell, so the French, didn't say that he was going to insist on the teaching of language, but tried to convey the impression that someone was trying to take away their right to use French.

The speaker held that it was a question for experts to deal with, and not one for the average elector to decide. A true patriot or statesman would go slowly. It should not be used as political capital by some candidates to get into the House.

Speaking of the University of Toronto expenditure, he pointed out that the boys from the villages, towns and cities of Ontario were given the opportunity to prepare themselves for the battle of life. How would they do this without the University, he asked

COMPENSATION ACT

Why was it that Hon. Mackenzie King as Minister of Labor, had never taken up the question for the improvement of the law? He would be in Peterboro in the interests of Mr. Hall on Thursday. This would be a good question to ask him. He had never thought of doing it until now, that his power was gone. What had Mr. Hall done while in the House in regard to the Act?

The speaker remarked that he had got a settlement of compensation for $3700 for a client and his bill was $150. He questioned if Mr. Hall would take so small an amount. Some of Mr Hall's statements were either for the purpose of deceiving, or else he didn't know what he was talking about.

The present English law he said, was the most advanced of Compensation Acts, and yet it has given rise to more law suits than any other piece of legislation. The English law gave compensation to the workingman only when injured, otherwise than by his own negligence. If he was himself negligent, he could not get compensation. How easy was it then for the employer to say he was negligent, and the result was a case in the courts.

The United States with its great labor organizations was going slowly in regard to a Compensation Act.

Mr. Hall thought that he would make the employer pay. "Don't be deceived," advised the speaker. Whatever the boss pays he takes it from you or somebody else.

The policy of the Liberal, he held was a gold brick for the workingmen. The Liberals were using the question as a political football. It should not have been brought into party politics

Mr. Morine concluded after pointing out that the working men of today were educated and not gullible to anything that King or Hall might say, and that their interests would be protected by the return of the Whitney administration on December 12.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Morine and the meeting closed with cheers.

The authorities of Westmount, near Montreal, took a census of their own, as they were dissatisfied with the Dominion census.

TO MAKE LIBRARY AT OMEMEE FREE

People Will Vote on This Question at New Years

Special Correspondence

Omemee, Dec. 4.—A meeting of the Public Library Board was held on Friday evening, when a resolution was passed that the present status of the library be changed to that of a free public library. A committee was appointed to present the matter to the municipal council, and to ask them to submit a by-law to the people for endorsation at the coming municipal elections. There were many reasons given in support of the change, and in fact, the Board was unanimous when the vote was taken. It is in the interests of every citizen to inquire into the change of this important factor of our educational life, and to be prepared to vote intelligently on the issue.

The village is quieter since the collapse of the Graham fake electric railroad scheme, the employes having disappeared from the scene as if by magic. However, there is a large force of telephone men moving about. They are putting in a new line straight north from Mount Pleasant to Henderson's corner, and then direct west to Omemee. The old main line, which entered town via the quarter line, or about to be to a company that will use it in connection with a rural line to Mount Pleasant.

It is current talk that Mr. W. H. Beatty, owner of the Commercial House, has decided to close up this well known and well conducted hostelry, about the first of the year 1912.

YOUNG MEN ARRESTED

Youths Charged in Connection With Express Robbery.

Douglas Chilman and Joseph Acheson, Aged 22 Years, Are Arrested Early in the Morning and Taken Before Police Court, Where $18,000 Bail is Fixed — Detectives Have Little to Announce.

Hamilton, Dec. 6.—Two further arrests were made yesterday in the mysterious Canadian Express robbery, when Douglas Chilman, 140 Bold street, was taken into custody at his home at seven o'clock yesterday morning, by Plain Clothesman Goodman, while at about the same hour, Joseph Acheson, a friend of Chilman, living at 124 Duke street, was arrested by Constable McKay.

Both men were in bed when arrested, and as soon as they could dress, were taken to the central police station. They appeared before Magistrate Jelfs in the police court a few hours later, and were remanded for eight days, at the request of Crown Attorney Washington, who stated that the police were not quite ready to go on with the case.

Bail in the sum of $16,000 was set in the case of each prisoner.

Chilman was at one time a clerk in the Canadian Express Co.'s offices, and was employed there temporarily a short time before the robbery was committed. He has been under surveillance for several weeks, by a Thiel detective, brought into the case at the instance of Deputy Chief of Police Whatley, who has been quietly working on the case ever since the charges against Hughes and Kennough fell through.

Acheson has also been closely watched by the Thiel operative, and two women detectives are also said to be engaged in trying to trap the two suspects. Monday afternoon the deputy chief decided that he was in possession of sufficient evidence to justify the arrest of the suspected men, and warrants were accordingly sworn out.

The police are extremely reticent about the evidence they have against Chilman and Acheson, and will say but little about the case.

The accused men are each twenty-two years old, and both are well known in the city. Chilman is the proprietor of the Regal confectionery on King street west, which he bought soon after severing his connection with the express company. Acheson recently resigned a position as traveler with the Simmons Fuel Co., to engage in the electrical supply business, but a few weeks ago disposed of this business, and at the time of his arrest was employed with the Canadian Reflector Co. Chilman was also a friend of Constable Goodman, who arrested him yesterday.

The prisoners were unable to raise the heavy bail named by the crown, and spent the night in the central police station cells. C. W. Bell represented the accused men in the Police Court yesterday, and he and Geo. Lynch-Staunton, will defend them when their cases came to trial.

The crime in question was committed on the morning of Sept. 28 last and consists of the theft of more than $8,000 from the vault in the local office of the Canadian Express Co. When one of the drivers arrived at the office on the morning of that day, he discovered George Kennough, night clerk for the company, bound and gagged, lying on the floor in the vault.

To the police Kennough said that while sitting at his desk he had suddenly been seized by three masked men, and that after the men secured the package containing the money, he was bound, gagged and thrown into the vault. He could give no satisfactory description of the alleged robbers, and certain discrepancies in his story led to his arrest, for complicity in the theft. John W. Hughes, another ex-employe of the company, was also arrested on a nominal charge of vagrancy, in connection with the case. After two remands, both men were discharged for want of evidence against them, but Kennough was convicted on another charge of stealing $15 from the company, and sentenced to three months in jail.

C.N.O. to Change Line.

Toronto, Dec. 6.—Negotiations are now underway between the C.P.R. and the Canadian Northern, in which the latter company are endeavoring to acquire further running rights on the C.P.R. tracks at Orillia, which would enable them to travel around the north end of the town where they wish to branch off and run a line north connecting with their main line at a point near Sparrow Lake. The C.N.O. have already had a route map of this line approved of, and it is almost certain that when this section is completed it will become a part of the Toronto-Parry Sound line. The section from Udney to the point which the new line intersects will in all probability be used only for freight traffic.

Kingston's Four Bylaws.

Kingston, Dec. 6.—At municipal elections Kingston ratepayers will have four bylaws to vote upon. There is a bylaw to cut liquor licenses from 25 to 15, to grant locomotive works a fixed assessment of $100,000, to grant certain concessions to the Box & Envelope Co., and one to give council authority to open negotiations with Hydro-electric commission.

During the season of navigation just closed, 16,040,262 bushels of grain passed through Kingston en route for Montreal.

Another Durbar Fire.

Delhi, India, Dec. 6.—The magnificent pavilion in the Durbar camp, with its massive silver supports and brilliant decorations, in which the King-Emperor was to be received by the Indian princes on his arrival here, was burned down yesterday.

This is the second disastrous fire of unknown origin in the Durbar camp within a week, and the occurrence has caused a sensation.

George Donovan, and John Fairservis, two employes of the Winnipeg Street Railway, scalded to death in the power house.

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of so-called remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know many families where no other medicine but Nerviline is kept—it is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colds, lumbago, and sciatica. "BUNG" HALPIN WON ROLLER RACE

Grover Halpin won the one mile race at the roller rink last night, Benny Clute took second place, while Mark Keneally as scratch man, captured third. Both first and second man had handicaps. A big crowd of skaters and spectators was on hand.

For Friday night another race is billed, with last night's winners debarred from handicaps. This will likely be the last night of the roller rink.

WHEN AILING ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS

That's How Magnus Johnson Got Relief From Kidney Troubles

They told him to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.—He did and his Backache and other sickness speedily vanished.

Lac La Nonne, Alta., Dec. 5. (Special.)—If you have Kidney trouble of any kind, from Backache to Bright's Disease, and don't know how to cure it, ask your neighbors. They'll tell you to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Such is the experience of Magnus Johnson, a well-known farmer residing near here. In an interview Mr. Johnson says:

"In the year 1907 I took a pain in my back, due to a strain and hard work. I kept getting worse. In the fall of 1908 I was unable to do any hard work, and began to suffer a great deal. I did not know what to do, and told one of my neighbors. He handed me a Dodd's Almanac. After reading it I concluded to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and after using five boxes I feel fine and able to do any kind of hard work. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured my Kidneys, and I cannot praise them too much."

You don't experiment when you use Dodd's Kidney Pills. They have cured the Kidney ills of thousands of people all over Canada. If you have Kidney Disease in any form they will cure you.

Bob McCullough, of Hamilton, 60 years old, was found dead in bed. He was smothered while intoxicated.

THE FOUR HENRYS

One of the Most Dramatic of the Legends of France.

A MEETING AND A WARNING.

The Dire Prediction That Was Hurled at Them After a Duel in the Dark and the Way the Fateful Prophecy Became a Matter of History.

Of all the French historical legends there is none more dramatic than that pertaining to "the four Henrys." The tradition is that on a wintry night as the rain fell in torrents an old woman who passed in the country for a witch and who inhabited a miserable cabin in the forest of St. Germain was aroused by a loud knocking at her door. She opened it and saw a cavalier, who requested hospitality. A scrap of cheese and a morsel of black bread were all she set before him.

"I have nothing more," said she. "See, here is all that tithes, taxes, subsidies and other extortions have left me to offer distressed travelers, besides which my neighbors call me a witch and rob me of the produce of my little farm."

"'Tis a cruel situation," said the young man, "and were I king of France I would suppress the taxes."

"God hears you," answered the old woman.

The cavalier was about to commence his repast when a fresh knock at the door restrained him. Again a gentleman, drenched with rain, demanded shelter.

"Is that you, Henry?" said the one.

"It is, Henry," replied the other.

The old woman discovered from their conversation that they belonged to a numerous hunting party led by King Charles IX. and that they had been dispersed by a storm.

"My good woman," said the second comer, "have you naught else to offer us?"

"Nothing," was the reply.

"Well, then," said the other, "we must divide it."

The first Henry gave signs of refusal; but, observing the resolute eye and haughty bearing of the second, he replied in a tone of chagrin:

"Let us divide it, then."

They sat down opposite each other, and one had already commenced cutting the bread with his dagger when a third blow was struck at the door. Again a young nobleman entered—again a Henry. The meeting was most singular.

The first Henry endeavored to hide the bread and cheese. The second replaced it on the table and set his sword by his side. The third Henry smiled.

"What! Will you spare me none of your supper, then?" said he.

"The supper," said the first Henry, "rightly belongs to the first comer."

"The supper," said the second Henry, "belongs of right to him who knows best how to defend it."

The third Henry colored and said haughtily, "Perhaps it rather belongs to him who knows best how to win it."

At these words the first Henry drew his dagger, the two others their swords. They had scarce made a few passes when a fourth blow was heard at the door. The portal opened. A fourth Henry appeared.

The old woman, frightened, hid herself, and it was well that she did, for the swords dashed to pieces everything that came in their way. The lamp fell, was extinguished, and all four fought in the dark. The noise of the swords lasted for some time, but gradually died away. Then the old woman crept out of her hiding place, relit the lamp and beheld the four combatants stretched on the floor. She examined them. Fatigue had overpowered them more than loss of blood.

They rose up one after another, ashamed of what they had done. "Come," said one; "let us now sup with good humor and without quarreling."

But on looking for the supper they perceived it lying on the floor, soiled with their feet and stained with blood.

The old woman, sitting in a corner, fixed her dark eyes on the authors of the mischief.

"Why do you look at us in that manner" demanded the first Henry.

"I see your destinies written in your foreheads," answered the injured woman.

With outstretched arms the old woman replied: "As you all four have been united in this cabin, you will all be reunited in one and the same destiny. As you have trodden underfoot and soiled with blood the bread of hospitality, you will trample underfoot and soil with blood the power of which you will partake. As you have impoverished and devastated this dwelling, you will devastate and impoverish France. As you have all four been wounded in the dark, you will all perish by treason and a violent death."

These four Henrys were the four heroes of the league—two as its chiefs and two as its enemies—Henry of Conde, poisoned at St. Jean d'Angely by his wife; Henry of Guise, assassinated at Blois by the Forty-five; Henry of Valois (Henry III.), assassinated by Jacques Clement at St. Cloud; Henry of Bourbon (Henry IV.), assassinated at Paris by Ravaillac.—New York Press.

Nothing is politically right which is morally wrong.—O'Connell.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

HALL AND COMPENSATION.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—We have heard a good deal of the pros and cons of R. R. Hall's Compensation Act and his own epistle regarding same, in an obtuse gathering together of a few words. What is his act anyhow? Then comes his abuse of the Whitney government, but still the people will approve of it, stranger than ever.

Let us look over Mr. R. R. Hall's record of what he has done for the workingmen. When at Ottawa did you ever hear him peep on their behalf?

What is his record at home? Repute sayeth much but quoth the Raven "it will be nevermore." How many of our factories have suffered? he has not been a builder. Weigh all these and other matters before voting. He encloses in his circulars one man's tribute, whilst Mr. Peck could obtain three parts of the riding as a tribute to his worthiness. Undoubtedly the Whitney government will submit a compensation act shortly, that will be approved by all classes in general.

Place your votes for the man who promises little but will perform much. Vote for Peck.

Open Channel All Winter?

At a recent Canadian Club luncheon in Montreal Dr. Howard T. Barnes, professor of physics at McGill University, who gave an illustrated address on the ice conditions in the St. Lawrence River, said that, after giving many years to the study of the ice conditions in the St. Lawrence, he believed that with modern icebreakers of the Russian type the channel could be kept open from Montreal to Quebec all winter.

"I believe," said Dr. Barnes, "the present Government should be encouraged by public opinion to keep the river open from Quebec to Montreal. This will prevent flood in the spring and will prolong the season for navigation, and will also carry away the waste of the city, which is lodged not many miles from the city all winter."

THE ENGLISH DERBY'S LURE OF AMERICAN TURFMEN

IN the breast of every man who maintains race horses in any part of the world there exists the feeling that to win the Epsom Derby many sacrifices, pecuniary and otherwise, would be made without regret.

More than fifty years ago Richard Ten Broeck, an American turfman, whose silent partners were the late Messrs. Francis and John A. Morris, who later founded Morris Park, began a campaign in England with a stable of race horses, the ultimate aim being the winning of the Derby with a Yankee bred colt. Mr. Ten Broeck for a term of years had great success with his horses, winning many races, earning the admiration and good will of all England and its aristocratic patrons of the turf, but he never won the Derby.

About fifteen years later the same motive prompted the late Milton H. Sanford, then America's most successful turfman, and with the veteran racer Preakness and a stable of other horses Newmarket was reached and the campaign begun. But though the stable was recruited year after year for several seasons Mr. Sanford's dark blue jacket was never in front in the Derby, and in due course he came back to America and gradually relinquished his racing enterprises.

Inspired to some extent by publication in the New York Sportsman of that period of a series of articles under the title of "Fifty Derby Winners," from the pen of Charles J. Foster, a gifted writer of that day and a personal friend and at times adviser of the late Pierre Lorillard, that famous turfman began an English campaign in 1879, and with the veteran Parole he woke up the English turf to the fact that good horses were bred in America. Then followed Mr. Lorillard's purchase of all the Leamington yearlings bred at Chestnut Hill, near Philadelphia, and though he divided the lot each year with his brother George, who raced exclusively in America, the owner of Parole had the great good fortune to keep that brown colt which in 1881 was destined to shed lustre on the name of Lorillard and to blason forth anew the fact that America could produce good horses as well as good men. He was trained by Jacob Pincus.

Other noted American turfmen have tried for the world's greatest turf prize, some successfully, others in vain. Mr. James R. Keene has failed after many efforts. So has Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt. Mr. H. B. Duryea tried with Aceful, which ran badly. The late Mr. William C. Whitney sent Nasturtium over the year after he had won with the leased colt Volodyovski, but the colt never recovered from a sickness thought to have been first contracted at Westbury that disastrous year when the entire Whitney stable was rendered helpless by some mysterious malady. Sir Martin fell when running well in the race won by Minoru, and this was the nearest of late years that an American bred colt came to landing the prize.

Just thirty years ago an American colt won the Derby, the fixture then being more than a hundred years old. It was twenty years later when Volodyovski won for Mr. Whitney. The young racer was English bred, however. Six years after that Richard Croker's Orby won the famous classic. He was half English, half American, Mr. Croker having bought his dam as a weanling in America and in due time having mated her with Orme, the result being Orby.

These are the only three instances in 130 years when an American turfman captured this famous turf classic, a race sought after in vain by kings and commoners from all parts of the world. Many years ago Benjamin Disraeli, in sympathizing with Lord George Bentinck upon the failure of the latter to win the prize, characterized it as the "Blue Riband of the Turf," and that has helped to immortalize the stake. Upon its outcome millions of men and women are sentimentally interested all over the world. In English colonies a "Derby dinner," especially if the royal colors have been successful, is a natural sequel. The late King Edward won the race three times—twice as Prince of Wales and later as King of England—and it is safe to say that nothing could have given him more pleasure. His son, King George, is carrying on the stud, and hopes in due time to lead in the winner, in accordance with custom.

Mr. James R. Keene was congratulated by a friend at the close of the year 1907 upon having had his most successful year upon the turf, his horses, all bred by him, having won $400,000, a world's record.

"Yes," answered the veteran, "but you must remember that I have not yet won the Derby, and Richard Croker has."

Hope for the 1913 Derby.

It is within the bounds of probability that a colt bred by Mr. Keene may win the race in 1913, though not in the name of his breeder. The cataclysm which shook racing in New York to its foundation may have had one regrettable outcome in the cessation of Mr. Keene's efforts to add this great prize to the many which he had already won. But the same blood which was so dominant in his victorious racers for the last ten years is concentrated in the veins and physiques of more than half a hundred yearlings bred at the same noted farm in Kentucky, and these for three months have been undergoing the necessary preliminaries at Brookdale, N. J., under the experienced eyes of James Rowe, Mr. Keene's former "Master of the Horse."

In one transaction Mr. Henry Payne Whitney purchased the entire yearly output of the Castleton Stud, chiefly with a view of trying for the Derby of 1913. Added to this number are forty-two of Mr. Whitney's own breeding, and to this is added a yearling by Watercress out of Hamburg Belle, purchased in England when Mr. J. B. Haggin sold his yearlings there a few months since.

Just one hundred yearlings, therefore, comprise Mr. Whitney's possessions, and they are the best-bred ones that America could produce. For many weeks these have been gradually broken to bridle and accustomed to the discipline of a training stable, so that in the latter part of October their owner was able to entertain his friends and daily and hourly view the youngsters as they displayed their speed and fitness for the task of worthily upholding the prestige of the colors abroad.

Entries for the Derby closed in July, however, and it was necessary at that time to make selections, based, of course, on their relationship to tried performers and upon their individualities. It is possible, of course, that some of these may be disappointments when the crucial time arrives, but so far as appearances go no youngsters that ever left Castleton had superior claim to greatness. This upon the testimony of Major Daingerfield, Mr. Keene's able superintendent.

As for the forty-two Brookdale bred colts and fillies, they can stand comparison with their rivals from Kentucky. But for the change in conditions in this country, in the course of a season these forty-two would, according to the experience of previous seasons, have been most formidable opponents to Mr. Keene's youngsters. Under existing circumstances all are now stable mates, awaiting the final tests upon which will depend selections for the English turf classics. Some will fail to withstand the test and will be retained for the local market, for Mr. Whitney has never ceased to race a stable in this country, even though his operations on the English turf have been very extensive.

In Canada, at Baltimore, in Kentucky and next year at other points on this continent there will be a great demand for young thoroughbreds, as it is a fact that the number of available ones are now down to so low a figure as to cause apprehension upon the part of men in control of race courses, they fearing that racing will be seriously hampered even at existing points unless breeders are induced to remain in the business.

This year's entries to the Derby of 1913 (entries always close to classes two years ahead) number 328. Of these Mr. Whitney named nineteen, eleven of which were bred at Castleton by Mr. Keene and the remainder at Brookdale by Mr. Whitney. In the Castleton bred division are several the get of the renowned Peter Pan, the first of his parentage to be trained. Others are by Voter, Disguise, Delhi and Ben Brush. In the Brookdale lot are colts by Broomstick, Hamburg and Burgomaster. The dams of these are all well known, either as producers or upon the turf.

It arouses profound sentiment in the hearts of old racegoers to run over these pedigrees. There is, for instance, a full brother to Maskette. In the best days of the turf he could not have been purchased for any money while Mr. Keene was on the turf, and would surely have realized at least $25,000 if put upon the market any time in 1907, when the turf was at the height of its popularity and Mr. Keene's racers were winning all before them. That was the year of Colin, of Celt, of Peter Pan, of Ballot, of Superman, of Restigouche, of a dozen others of less renown, who contributed to the great total won that season—$400,000.

Disguise was pronounced not much inferior as a race horse to Diamond Jubilee, the winner of the Derby in 1900. Voter is sire of Ballot, one of our best horses, and recently was sold to the German government for a very large price. Delhi was a first class racer, winner of the Withers and Belmont, of 1904. His chief opponent that year in those races would have been his near relative, Broomstick, then owned by Captain Sam Brown, but he was sick when the stakes were run. However, in the Brighton Handicap, a few weeks later, he won a phenomenal race from the game Irish Lad, who broke down in it, and achieved a record which still holds. Broomstick is highly esteemed by careful students of the thoroughbred. It is predicted that he will achieve great success at the stud. He has in England three very fast sons, Whisk Broom, Sweeper II. and Kempion, and in this country another son, Meridian, has become a first class colt, having won, among other races, the Kentucky Derby.

Mr. Whitney's Entries.

Burgomaster was the best son of Hamburg, and won the Belmont Stakes of 1906, defeating The Quail and Accountant. Hamburg, himself a high class racer, hero of sensational sales, is responsible for a colt out of Eugenia Burch, herself the best filly of her year, though very unlucky.

Such are the Derby entries. In the Oaks, a race for fillies and of almost equal fame as the Derby, Mr. Whitney has named fifteen, the get of Peter Pan, Disguise, Voter, Hippodrome, Broomstick, Hamburg and Burgomaster. Some of these fillies are daughters of such famous mares as Artful, Pastorella (dam of Colin), Pope Joan, Optime (dam of Sysonby) and Sallie of Navarre (dam of Salvidere). One of the colts is by Peter Pan out of Half Crown, which is the only mare by Cyllene in the United States, though Joseph E. Segram has one at his Waterloo (Canada) breeding stud. Cyllene became celebrated at the stud, begot Derby winners and was then sold to an Argentine breeder for $125,000. Recently his get at public auction in that country realized tremendous prices.

Another colt entered is full brother to Runnymede and half brother to Cataract, both now racing and winning in England for Mr. Keene. Running Stream, the dam of these colts, did a wonderful thing as a two-year-old in England. She defeated a famous sprinter called Eager, he being six years old. This race was run in July, which made it all the more meritorious for the youngster.

The best mares at Brookdale, except one or two, are represented in the home bred yearlings. The present stud was formed in Kentucky by the late Mr. Whitney, who, like his son in his polo exploits, opened wide his purse in order to obtain the most desirable equines. After his death the stud was removed to Brookdale.

If America has really made progress in developing the thoroughbred in the last thirty years, since Iroquois won the Derby and St. Leger, now is the time to demonstrate it, breeders think. Such a combination as the best of the Castleton and Brookdale studs was never before possible for the purpose. Arrayed heretofore against each other, they are now brought together for the patriotic purpose of showing that it is possible to breed derby winners in Kentucky or New Jersey, as was done in Pennsylvania thirty years ago. It is the most powerful combination ever formed.

Brookdale, as is well known, was once the beloved home of the late D. D. Withers, for many years the leading spirit of the American turf up to about 1893, when legislative complications in New Jersey crippled racing in that State and broke the heart of the man who built new Monmouth Park. After his death it became the property of Colonel W. P. Thompson, and when he died it passed on to his sons. It was in Colonel Thompson's lifetime that James Rowe first went to Brookdale as trainer and from there sent out Requital as a three-year-old, and had other successes, not only for Colonel Thompson, but for his sons, who continued to race in the name of the Brookdale Stud.

Here it was that L'Allouette, winner of the Futurity of 1897, was trained, as well as others. It was under these circumstances that Mr. Rowe imbibed a deep affection for the place, and when opportunity offered he induced Mr. Keene to lease it for his racing stud. This lasted some years. Then it was taken up by the present Mr. Whitney, and the Kentucky stud as well was moved there. Here and at Sheepshead Bay the late John W. Rogers trained for Mr. Whitney.

It is within an hour and a half's journey of New York, and its accessibility renders it all the more desirable. Fertile to a degree, the place strikes the observer as an earthly paradise. There are no mosquitoes, strange to say, when speaking of a New Jersey town. Many other advantages are there, appreciated to the fullest extent by Mr. Rowe. There are eight hundred acres, all of which will be devoted to pasturage for the constantly growing stud. More than a million dollars is represented in the land and horses there. More than a hundred souls owe their bread and butter to its existence. In yearlings, weanlings, brood mares and stallions there are about two hundred head upon the farm. To reach its various outlying portions Mr. Rowe has an automobile. He was one of the first among the horsemen to master its mechanism.

The development of the hundred yearlings is carried on in a covered circular training stable, which has fifty boxes and is six laps to a mile. There are also a half mile track and a full mile track. This last is where all the important work is done in fair weather. The ground seldom freezes and is declared ideal for training purposes. The track is sheltered by a growth of trees nearly ten feet high. The idea of Mr. Withers was to keep the [illegible] horses out of sight of the mares and stallions.

In Mr. Rowe, an up to date horseman of many years' experience, the five score employes have a sharp, keen manager to deal with and the results are excellent. He says that the idea of purchasing all of Mr. Keene's yearlings a few months ago was suggested by him.

Weeding Out the Youngsters.

"Mr. Whitney desired some young mares to breed from," said he, "and I knew in that lot there must be at least a few who could win good races. If any one of them could win the Derby, so much the better. Those not up to the standard can be disposed of. Possibly we have not entered the best youngsters in the Derby. It sometimes happens that the real good horses are slow to develop. That is, yearling trials are not always conclusive. Added to that, we had to make the entries so long ago that we had no chance to try the youngsters. In fact, they were only then being broken. We have no set time to try them because the trials must come at times most favorable to the yearlings. Some are backward, as I said, and they must be waited with. Others are precocious."

Actual work in the racing stable begins as early as four o'clock in summer, later as the season advances. The string is so large that it must be handled in sets and the day is well advanced before the morning's work is through. The feed, with measured quantities of oats, some youngsters requiring more than others, is for the trainer to watch carefully. If a colt refuses his feed, as shown later, he at once becomes an object of close scrutiny. The temperature is closely watched and sometimes serious trouble is averted by quickly summoning a veterinarian. Three months is not too short a time, in Rowe's opinion, for colts to be broken, gradually worked along, and then tried. Even first trials are not conclusive, however, as history is full of instances where youngsters beaten in trials became the best in the stable.

While Mr. Whitney's horses have not done very well this year in England, there is some excuse in the illness of some of the chief members. For instance, a year ago the Middle Park Plate, one of the classics for two-year-olds, was won by his racer Borrow, son of Hamburg and Forget. Usually a Middle Park Plate winner looms up as favorite for the following year's Derby, but in this instance Borrow did not, because, being a gelding, he was not eligible, in accordance with a ruling made a few years ago that none but entire colts can take part in the Derby. A lung illness during the early spring crippled him as a racer.

As to the chance of any one of Mr. Whitney's yearlings being good enough to win the Derby, the opinion of a man like John Huggins, who for years trained with great success in England, is worth quoting:—

"A good horse here is a good horse abroad," he said. "If you have colts like Sysonby or Colin or Celt or Peter Pan or Commando or Burgomaster, or any one of a score of such horses, their chances to win the Derby are as good as any in that country."

Mr. Huggins won many races abroad with horses bred at Rancocas, which is within a few miles of Brookdale. Jacob Pincus is of the same opinion as Mr. Huggins.

Iroquois, winner in 1881, was bred in Pennsylvania, not an hour's journey from Brookdale. Hundreds of good horses were bred in the vicinity. Foxhall was good enough to have won the Derby of 1881, but was not entered. He won many of England's classics, however, besides the Grand Prix de Paris. He was bred in Kentucky.

Shipment of yearlings to England is comparatively free from danger. Mortality is at a very low percentage, and it is rare nowadays to hear of the death of a horse in transit, though a few years ago Mr. Keene lost Tommy Atkins in that way, and away back in 1870 he lost the Derby winner Blue Gown, purchased by him after being some years at the stud. The horse died en route to America.

"I would rather send a horse across the ocean than across the continent," said Dr. McCally.

Such are some of the features of Mr. Whitney's efforts to win the Derby. Let us turn to an equally sportsmanlike attempt made this year by a young Englishman, Raymond M. Dale, resident in Canada for the last few years and an ardent lover of horses. As a small boy Mr. Dale often declared that some day he would win the Derby. Since he has had to take care of himself and make his own living his great aim has been to breed a really good horse and win the great race to prove its worth. Should he ever succeed with a colt by his horse Kelston his chief pleasure would be derived from the fact that once again the line of Longfellow (sire of Kelston) would be brought to the front, corroborating his claim that Longfellow was one of the greatest horses that ever lived. This actuated him in sending his colt Kel d'Or to run in the Derby.

Mr. Dale believes that his sire Kelston would be suited by Stockwell mares. Kel d'Or has not justified his hopes, but there is some excuse for this, as the colt met with a setback when very young. Like all of Longfellow's strain, Kel d'Or was a big, growthy colt and could not recover a setback as a smaller colt might have done. Mr. Dale fed him personally after this, and as the horse never stopped growing his constitution may have been impaired. Mr. Dale himself broke Kel d'Or and trained him also until he placed him under the care of "Sam" Darling, at Beckhampton, England. Darling considered him very backward in all but growth. Mr. Dale tried to impress upon the great English trainer that all of Kel d'Or's strain were backward, so that the trainer would not be easily discouraged.

The young horseman shipped Kel d'Or from his home in Saskatchewan, Canada, in the summer of 1910 to Beckhampton in person. The journey required twenty-one days. They stopped three days in Montreal, and were overrun with [illegible] friends, so much attention had been attracted to Mr. Dale's efforts. The trip across the ocean was [illegible] and uneventful. A Marconigram was sent to Darling, but when the vessel arrived there was no one to meet the visitors, so Mr. Dale himself [illegible] Derby candidate to Beckhampton, [illegible] miles. At Darling's all were in bed, but some of the lads were quickly aroused and the colt was made comfortable.

Ill Luck of Kel D'Or.

Next morning Sam Darling complimented Mr. Dale upon owning such a good looking colt, saying that he compared favorably with the best English youngsters, and said further that he looked like a four year old. Mr. Dale did not see his colt again until the following February (1911). He was taken unawares, [illegible] a stall, and to his great pleasure Kel d'Or recognized him and evinced all his old playful habits. Darling, however, was not satisfied with the colt's progress, and his owner sent him to Mr. Peebles, as Mr. Dale thought that trainer's methods, both in and out of the stable, would just suit Kel d'Or, he being a very sensitive, high strung colt. Peebles was greatly impressed with Kel d'Or's resemblance in many respects to a great handicap horse called Velocity, but soon ascertained that the colt was backward and could not be made to stay over seven furlongs with good horses, though it was not want of stamina, he thought.

Imperative business called Mr. Dale to Canada, and he was unable to get back in time to see the colt run in the Derby. He knew that Kel d'Or was far from being fit to race, but cabled to Peebles to start him notwithstanding. Though Mr. Dale did not know it Kel d'Or had "buckled" his shins only two weeks before the Derby. One month before the race he was at 33 to 1; three days before it he was 1,000 to 1, showing what a forlorn hope it was. Nevertheless, a small bet was cabled over by Mr. Dale. The colt ran creditably for a mile to the top of the hill, and then his tender shins found the hard going too much and the colt was eased up. After this Peebles had doubts of getting Kel d'Or to a race this year, and with great regret Mr. Dale found it necessary to sell his colt.

Though not successful this time Mr. Dale is not discouraged and will keep on breeding with a view to producing in Canada a winner of the Epsom Derby. In this respect he is following out the aims of the Messrs. Segram, Hendrie, Dyment, Campbell and other Canadian lovers of the horse.

SCHOOL NUISANCES.

Robert Fair called the attention of the Board to the disgraceful condition oondition of affairs at the Queen Alexandra school in the way of depredations alleged to have been committed by boys or young men. Some of the windows of the East side have been peppered with stones and the windows broken and the lavatories have come into for special abuse having been stuffed with toilet and other kinds of paper literally blocking it up in the outflow pipes. The attention of the Chief of Poice has been drawn to the offences but the perpetrators have so far escaped being apprehended.

Mr. Fair therefore made a motion which carried, that the Property committee offer a reward of $25 for the apprehension of the guilty parties.

Mr. W. H. Hill considered that it was the duty of the janitor of the school to keep a strict watch for the offenders and that he be stationed there during the noon hour.

Dr. Morrison moved in conclusion that the Board adjourn to be called again at the order of the chairman. in reference to the new sites for the schools

MORE ANSWERS

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q. What is Astigmatism of the eye?

A. Astigmatism is an uneven curvature of the eye and causes double focus. As the eye always strives for clear vision this double focus annoys the brain and causes headache and nervousness. We make lenses called cylinders to correct astigmatism.

Q. What causes double vision?

A. Double vision is caused by the eyes not being in line, that is, one may turn up or have a tendency to do so, or both may turn in; a weak muscular system is back of it all.

We would be pleased to ave you call and let us explain how such conditions can be relieved with glasses.

VOL. LXIII., No. 133. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1911 TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

A vote for Peck is a vote for the best interests of Peterborough; for a man whose personal record is beyond reproach; for a government that has an unparalleled record for honest administration, business ability, and strength of purpose. Whitney is due for another lease of power, and Peterborough needs a Peck to support him.

EARL GREY DEFENDS BRYCE FOR HIS RECIPROCITY ACTS

Says That Ambassador Could Not Have Refused to Comply With Wishes of Laurier Government.

London, Dec. 7.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At the Canadian Club last night, Earl Grey was the chief guest, Lord Strathcona presiding. Earl Grey responding to the toast of the Dominion, humorously remarked that for seven years he had to balance himself on the tight-rope of platitudinous generalities, but the success which friends were kind enough to say he achieved was only a fraction of the success which the Duke of Connaught would achieve. Canada was the belle-ball of the Empire, and there was plenty of evidence she was now receiving all the bouquets. After seven years residence, he returned, convinced that Canada, like her wheat, was number one hard.

Speaking of her juxtaposition to the United States, Earl Grey eulogized the Canadian clubs of the Dominion, declaring the directors were only too glad to let the clubs be pulpits for good American preachers. He was vain enough to say that the United States obtained equally as much advantage from its juxtaposition, and Canada hope more and more every year to set an example of high living which might have good results on her powerful neighbor.

He continued: "I hear the British Ambassador has been attacked for the part he played in the reciprocity arrangements. The people who criticise the ambassador don't know what they're talking about. Ambassador Bryce has no more to do with reciprocity than you. The British Ambassador is the unpaid ambassador of the Canadian people. Have you ever reflected what a note of indignation there would have been if he had refused to represent the views of the Canadian Government in his official capacity? You would very soon have had a demand on the part of Canadians for an ambassador of their own.

Alluding to the emigration of Americans to the western provinces, Earl Grey said in his opinion it had only just begun. Canada was getting the pick of Americans who became as loyal citizens of Britain as they had been of the United States. His opinion had always been that only the complete union with the other side would be when Canada absorbed the United States.

Canada must believe in herself. Had she done so a little earlier, she would not have allowed the buying of Alaska by the U. S., or the Imperial Parliament giving a mail contract to line steamers going to New York, when Canada had a port miles nearer Liverpool. He hoped Lord Strathcona would live to see the accomplishment of the all red route.

U. S. Packers Steal March.

London, Eng., Dec. 7.—(C. A. P. LIBERAL OPPOSITION ON THE DISMISSALS OF EMPLOYES Charge That Spoils System is Being Introduced—Warmest Tilt in House Yet Produced—Borden Explains Government Attitude.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—"No one is more averse to dismissing an official than I, but when an official is guilty of wilful infraction of a rule laid down by this House, what other alternative would a Government have in a case of that kind?"

In these words Hon. R. L. Borden dealt with the charges of wholesale application of the spoils system brought against the Government by A. K. McLean (Halifax). The debate which was precipitated, was one of the liveliest of the present session. Mr. Borden expressed the hope that the civil service act would soon be extended to a considerable portion of the outside service.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in his reply, criticised the action of the Government in superseding his nominee for the International Boundary Commission. He was answered by Mr. Foster, who held that the confidential nature of the commission's work made it absurd to have three political opponents of the Government in power composing it.

The Postoffice and Public Works Departments were chiefly under fire. In the former, said F. B. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.), the spoils system was in full swing, but when one came to the Department of Public Works it was carried almost to the extent of petty larceny.

A. E. Lancaster (Lincoln), declared that it was not a question of spoils, but of restitution. The action of the Laurier administration in dismissing 180 Welland Canal employes in 1896, was worse than petty larceny; it was grand larceny.

Hon. L. P. Pelletier came valiantly to the championship of his Department, and announced his intention of righting some of the wrongs which he said were wrought by the late Government.

"Every man, who has been cut off by my friends on the other side of the House, if he comes to me for relief, he will get it," he declared.

"I have had to dismiss quite a few postmasters and I will dismiss more, but I will do so with a due regard to justice and along the lines of the rule laid down by this Parliament."

When asked by Mr. Carvell, if when the papers were brought down, he found he had made an error in the case of the postmistress of Bath, N.B., he would not sanction her dismissal, he said: "Most decidedly. I shall not be a party to injustice."

Shortly after the commencement of yesterday's session, the House went into committee to consider the following resolution, proposed by Hon. George E. Foster:

"Resolved, that it is expedient to consolidate and revise the Manitoba Grain Act, chapter 83 of the revised statutes, 1906, and part II. of the Inspection and Sale Act, chapter 85 of of the revised statutes, 1906, to establish a board of commissioners to administer the grain trade of Canada, and to provide for expenses in connection therewith, and to charge the board with the operation and management of such terminal elevators as may be constructed, leased or acquired by the Government of Canada."

Mr. Foster explained that the bill which it was proposed to introduce, founded on the resolution, was practically the same as one passed by the Senate at last session, but which did not go through the House. To this the Government itself intended to introduce some amendments. The resolution was passed and the bill introduced.

The adoption of the plan of under secretaries as followed in England is being seriously considered by the Government. At present it is practically impossible for the Ministers to give the necessary attention to details. As the country expands the work has kept increasing until it means now that a conscientious Minister, to keep pace with his Departmental duties, must labor day and night.

It is felt that the appointment of under secretaries would relieve the Ministers, and would lend general efficiency. The under secretaries as in

HEBERT CASE MUST GO ON UNTIL JUDGE RULES ON LAW

Opposition in the Case Not Satisfied to Win by Default—Want a Set Judgment.

Montreal, Dec. 7.—The Hebert marriage annulment case entered upon a new phrase Tuesday afternoon, when Mr. George V. Cousins, acting in the interests of Mrs. Hebert, entered an inscription for final judgment ex parte on the opposition entered against the ruling of Mr. Justice Laurendeau some months ago. The opposition asks that the judgment be definitely nullified and set aside; that the marriage contracted before Rev. Mr. Timberlake be declared legal and valid, and that the court ruling annulling it be adjudged unfounded in law.

It is promised that other developments will follow closely upon the presentation of the inscription, it being stated unofficially that the next step in the proceedings will take the form of an attack on the validity of the ecclesiastical decree itself, whereby the marriage was declared null and of no effect, whilst an action for damages against the ecclesiastical court, which promulgated the decree, is also spoken of as a possibility.

Madame Hebert's counsel says:

"We claim that the desistment of the husband has not the effect of annulling the judgment in so far as that judgment denied the status of wife to Dame Hebert. This can be brought about only by a final judgment on the opposition now asked for, and which should prove once and for all the validity of the marriage."

Los Angeles, Dec. 7—Clarence Darrow, counsel for the McNamaras, stated to-day that John McNamara would refuse to answer questions to assist the government probing of the the dynamiting cases, even if his information could be traded for favors.

Sheldon in Good Spirits.

Montreal, Dec. 7.—Chas. D. Sheldon, the financial wizard, who is doing time in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, for doing the public out of a million or so, was called as a witness yesterday in the case taken by the curators to recover money he paid in dividends the last day the office was open.

He was the same old Sheldon with the ministerial air, the smile and the out-stretched hand. His health is good, "as," he said, with a laugh, "prison has its good points as well as its bad ones."

He was asked what his plans were for the future. "Well, if the people of Montreal will only have a little more faith in me when I get out I could pay back——" and then the guards took a hand in the conversation.

Denial By Belcourt.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—Senator N. A. Belcourt writes to The Ottawa Journal as follows:

"My attention has been called to the statement made by J. U. Vincent at the Conservative meeting held in St. Ann's Hall, that the French-Canadian Educational Association, its officers, Liberals, had laid down the principle that the French should always vote for one of their own.

"As president of the association, I deny categorically and emphatically that the association has ever laid down such a principle, and I may add that the association has never preached or practiced such a narrow, bigoted and foolish course."

ARE ASKING MR. FOY TO INVESTIGATE IT

Petition Circulated for Provincial Probe Into Affairs of Canadian Cordage Co.---Eighty-seven Names Are Attached to Peterborough Petition ---Durham and Victoria Moving.

The Attorney-General of Ontario, Hon. J. J. Foy, will be asked by a number of the shareholders of the Canadian Cordage Company to institute an investigation into the affairs of the company, and the manner in which it came to an untimely end. Some of the shareholders lately have had the idea that it might be well to have the matter probed in the public interest, and a petition was circulated among the shareholders, or rather some of them, worded as follows:—

"To the Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General of the Province of Ontario:—

"We, the undersigned shareholders of the Canadian Cordage Company, Limited, Peterborough, believing that there has been some irregularity in the affairs of this company hereby petition the Government for an investigation."

This petition has been signed by eighty-seven shareholders, many of them Liberals and many Conservatives, indicating that politics has nothing to do with the case.

It is understood that there is a petition circulating in Durham county, which has thirty-seven names attached, and that a petition is circulating in Victoria county.

CHINESE REGENT RESIGNS TO STOP RISING TIDE OF REVOLT

Repentance Has Come Too Late to Save the Throne for the Youngster Emperor—Rebels Pleased With Affairs

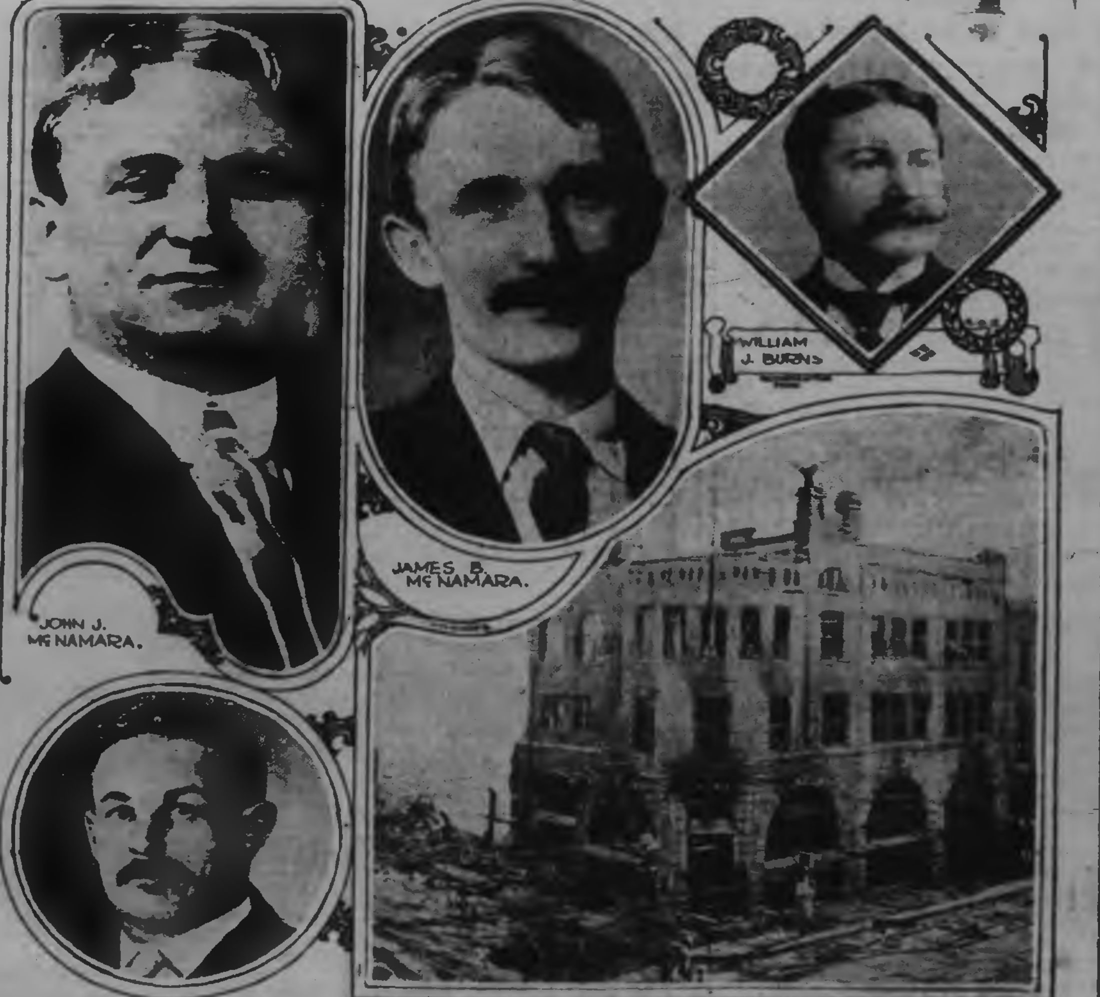
Pekin, Dec. 7.—An edict announcing the resignation of the Regent, Prince Chun, was issued yesterday by the Empress Dowager. It is signed by the members of the Cabinet, and points out that the administration has been unpopular and that a constitutional government has not yet been established, explaining this by the fact that complications arose, the people's hearts were broken and the country was thrown into turmoil. The Regent regrets that his repentance came too late and feels that if he continued in power his commands would soon be disregarded.

The Regent has been granted 50,000 taels annually from the Imperial household allowances.

The Regent sacrificed himself in a last effort to save the throne for his son, but unless all evidences fail, it is too late. Premier Yuan Shi Kai has let Pekin know that he has taken the British Minister, Sir John Jordan, into his confidence. He has told the Minister his plans, and says that he hopes much from the Minister's mediation.

On the other hand, the rebels last night confidently stated that Yuan Shi Kai is their man. They describe him as a master statesman, because he is accomplishing the transition from the Manchu dynasty to a Republican without a massacre or an attack on the legations.

PRINCIPALS AND SCENES IN THE SENSATIONAL M'NAMARA CASE



JOHN J. McNAMARA.

WILLIAM J. BURNS

ORTIE E. McMANIGAL. LOS ANGELES TIMES BUILDING AFTER EXPLOSION.

The trial of the McNamara brothers reached a startling climax when both men entered a confession of guilt. James B. McNamara pleaded guilty to the charge of murder in connection with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times Building, and John J. of destroying the Llewellyn Iron Works. Ortie McManigal, former friend of the McNamara brothers, gave considerable assistance to the prosecution. William J. Burns, detective, obtained the evidence that resulted in the arrests.

McNAMARAS ARE BLAMED

Philadelphia and Denver Blame McNamaras For Outrages.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—The McNamara brothers were responsible for explosions in this city which damaged structural iron works on several building operations, according to Wm. J. Burns, the detective, who yesterday arrived from Cleveland.

"Yes," he said, "I am positive that both of them were responsible for all the explosions in this city on structural iron work during the last few years, and others are implicated."

"Will the future arrests include any past or present members of the structural ironworkers union?" he was asked.

"I do not care to say, but I will say this—the National Board of the association appropriated certain sums to John J. McNamara, and in my opinion they knew the money was to be used for dynamiting purposes."

Burns Agents In Denver.

Denver, Col., Dec. 7.—Hoping to clear up some of the mysterious dynamitings in Colorado in recent years, agents of Wm. J. Burns arrived yesterday to conduct the investigation. It is said that the detectives will base their inquiries on the confession of Harry Orchard, now serving a life sentence for slaying Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, and evidence given in his confession.

The investigation is said to be a part of the federal inquiry conducted by Special Assistant Attorney-General Oscar Lawlor, now in Los Angeles in connection with the McNamara case.

POSTAL MEN MAY STRIKE

Britain Threatened With Mail Tie-up at Busy Time

Special To The Review.

London, Dec. 8.—Britain is now threatened with a general strike of postal servants during the height of the Christmas mail season.

Mutually Pleased.

Washington, Dec. 7.—On the introduction of a night lettergram service on the cables between Great Britain and the United States yesterday, Postmaster-General Hitchcock exchanged felicitations with Postmaster-General Samuel at London. To the U. S. official was granted the distinction of sending the first message, which was merely a conveyance of good wishes. Mr. Samuel, in reply, said he welcomed the new service because "each new facility for communication between the two countries, by increasing mutual knowledge, will strengthen mutual good will."

Passengers All Safe.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 7.—Wireless communication has at last been established with the United Fruit Co.'s vessels for the safety of whose 600 passengers much alarm was felt.

The report states that the vessels weathered the storm safely and that all are well.

Tremendous damage is reported to the banana crop, some estimates placing the injury done at sixty per cent. of the growth.

Ottawa Official Dead.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—Geo. W. Seguin, tax collector for the city of Ottawa for a number of years, and one of the most popular officials in the civic employ, died yesterday at his residence, succumbing to an attack of pneumonia, after an illness of only a few days. He was at the time secretary-treasurer of the Ottawa Electric Railway, and of the Hull electric line, afterwards accountant on the contract for the lift lock at Peterboro, and several years ago became tax collector for Ottawa.

SWINDLER GETS EIGHTEEN MONTHS

Posed as Nephew of Sir Frederick Borden

Special To The Review.

Toronto, Dec. 8.—Joseph Riepel, a young man with a long record as a swindler in the west, was sentenced this morning to eighteen months' imprisonment for passing useless cheques. Many people in Brandon were "stung" Riepel posing as Sir Frederick Borden's son-in-law, with a contract to build a provincial asylum.

FELL INTO SLIP AND WAS DROWNED

Kingston Navigator on Prince Rupert Met Death

Special To The Review.

Kingston, Dec. 7—Fred. Rush, wheelsman on the steamer "Prince Rupert," fell into a slip at the foot of Princess Street, during the night and was drowned.

A vote for Hall is a vote against the people's cheap power scheme; a vote for a man whose record might be improved; for a leader who is without experience in handling provincial affairs; for a party that can only say "me too" to the progressive policies, the business administration of the Whitney government.

THE NEW ALLY

What's the matter with hydro-electric power?

It's all right!

At least one is led to believe this to be true, for hasn't the Stratton organ, the former enemy of the hydro-electric, later its quondam friend, refused to notice the hydro-electric in its editorial discussion of campaign issues, for two whole days? They say silence gives consent. It does in the case of ladies quite often, but the Examiner isn't a lady, or it would not have used such awful language in the Dominion election, and used such long dashes. So what can its refusal to say another word on the hydro-electric proposal mean?

It can only be concluded that, having decided to flop over to the support of the cheap power movement, in company with the Review, the organ feels that it cannot with conscience free and true, say another word word against the hydro-electric proposal, and Mr. Hall won't let it come out with a declaration for Peck and cheap power—until after next Monday, anyway. So it has decided that having flip-flopped so far, it had better say nothing rather than land into the puddle altogether. This is rather to be regretted, in a way, since the Examiner's many attempts to educate the people of Peterborough as to what the power proposal really means, has helped some in stirring up interest in this popular question.

Hydro-electric power for Peterborough! To be or not to be is the question of to-day, and yesterday and the day before, but silence sometimes is mute testimony. Isn't that correct?

Really, though, Hon. Adam Beck must be rather busy, since he has not had time to sail around at Peterborough to congratulate his new found ally. Up to date the Review has not by the use of a telescope of considerable power, been able to find the explanation of what visit by Messrs. Stratton and Hall to Ottawa in September, about the time the crack o' doom cracked for the Laurier government—in reference to some dam sites on the Trent canal. We have not observed Mr. Hall making any explanation of how it was he expected to get more out of Hon. George P. Graham than he had already got, or how it was that the advent of the Borden government saved the day, in the nick of time, for Peterborough.

"If you don't see what you want, just grab at anything in sight," seems to have been the working motto of some people with hungry appetites for water-power sites. Now that the hydro-electric is on the scene, however, backed by the Whitney government with its progressive policies, and backed by the solid sentiment of Peterborough, let us arise and take notice. The first [illegible] which strikes us is the fact that R. R. Hall has been endeavoring to side-track the discussion of the hydro-electric power policy in Peterborough of late—finding the iron a little too hot to hold, perhaps. Mr. Hall has been handicapped from the very start, because he has been allied with the private corporations which are delaying the introduction of power at cost for the people. If Mr. Hall happened to be elected—which is not very likely—he would be an obstruction in the way of the hydro-electric cheap power policy. A vote for Peck is necessary in order to properly encourage the scheme along.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Less than three weeks—not the Eleanor Glyn kind—to Christmas. Have you finished shopping yet?

Only two more days remain for the campaigning. Already the shouts of the victors fill the air. Seventeen Conservatives elected already in Ontario.

With seventeen Conservatives already members-elect of the legislatures, and joke contests in two dozen other ridings, it becomes a question of what the majority will be. What will Mr. Peck's majority be?

Mr. Hall has worked hard. He has played the game to the limit, he has pulled every string that fertile genius can discover, but, after all, what is there to-day against the Whitney government? The Whitney government stands as securely entrenched in the esteem and affections of Ontario as it did three or five years ago. Nothing of any importance has been brought out in the campaign. Mr. Rowell promises to carry on the work that Sir James Whitney is doing, but he promises to do it a little better. That he, a horse pitch-forked into the race, an added starter, would be able to do this is open to grave doubt. No: Mr. Peck is needed at Toronto by Peterborough, and Mr. Hall is not.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Wheat sank today under liquidating sales by high priced holders. One local capitalist alone cut loose from a line estimated at 1,600,000 bushels. It was a nervous close, varying from the same as last night to 3-8c down. Latest trading left corn unchanged to 1-4c up, oats at a decline of 1-8c to 3-8c, and hog products within 2 1-2c either way, from 24 hours before.

The Liverpool market closed to-day ¼d lower than yesterday on wheat and ⅛d to ¼d lower on corn. Berlin closed ⅞c lower on wheat, Budapest ⅛c lower, Paris ⅛c to ⅜c lower, and Antwerp ⅜c lower.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—There continues to be a good demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat, and a fair amount of business was done, notwithstanding the fact that prices bid showed a further decline of ¾d to 3d per quarter. Exporters state that if it were not for the scarcity of nearby ocean grain room considerably more sales could be made.

American corn is weaker and 1c per bushel lower, with sales of new No. 3 yellow to arrive at 71c track. Demand for oats is fair. Flour is steady, with a fair trade passing, but the demand from other sources is limited. A good business is reported in all lines of millfeed. Cheese is firm. Butter fairly active. Eggs in good demand. Potatoes strong and tending higher.

Corn—American, No. 3 yellow, 84c.

Oats—Canadian western, No. 2, 48c to 48½c; Canadian western, No. 3, 46½c to 47c; extra No. 1 feed, 46c to 46½c; No. 2 local white, 47c; No. 3 local white, 46c; No. 4 local white, 45c.

Barley—Manitoba feed, 64c; malting, 96c to $1.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.60; do., seconds, $5.10; do., strong bakers, $4.90; winter patents, choice, $4.75 to $5; straight rollers, $4.35 to $4.70; do., bags, $1.95 to $2.05.

Rolled oats—Barrels, $5.25; bags, 90 lbs., $2.50.

Millfeed—Bran, $23; shorts, $25; middlings, $27 to $28; moullie, $29 to $34.

Hay—No. 2, per ton, car lots, $14.50 to $15.

Cheese—Finest westerns, 14¼c to 14⅝c; finest easterns, 13⅞c to 14⅛c.

Butter—Choicest creamery, 30½c to 31c; seconds, 29c to 30c.

Potatoes—Car lots, per bag, $1.25 to $1.27½.

Dressed hogs—Abattoir killed, $9 to $9.25; country, $8.25 to $8.75.

Pork—Heavy Canada short cut mess, barrels, 35 to 45 pieces, $24; Canada short cut backs, barrels, 45 to 55 pieces, $23; Canada clear, barrels, 35 to 35 pieces, $22.50.

Lard—Compound tierces, 375 lbs., 9⅝c; wood pails, 20 lbs. net, 9¾c; pure, tierces, 375 lbs., 12c; pure, wood pails, 20 lbs. net, 12½c.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 6.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the offerings to-day were 250 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 1250 hogs and 100 calves. The tone of the market for cattle was steady, but, as there were no choice steers offered, the top price realized was $5.75 per 100 pounds.

The supply was ample to fill all requirements, as butchers and packers in cases have still large stocks on hand, and, as the weather has turned mild again, they do not care to increase their stocks any more at the present. Consequently the demand for top grades was only fair, while the trade in common and inferior cattle was slow, and the market on the whole was quiet.

A good trade was done in sheep and lambs, and, as the supply was not in excess of the demand, a firm feeling prevailed in the market. The demand was principally for lambs, and some choice lots sold as high as $6 per 100 pounds. The demand for calves was good, and prices for good to choice stock were higher.

At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the offerings of live stock were 800 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 1100 hogs and 100 calves. The trade in cattle was quiet, but the demand for other lines was fair, and prices show no change, selected lots of hogs selling at $6.50 to $6.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6 to $6.10; do., medium, $4.50 to $5.50; do., common, $3.75 to $3.50; canners, $2 to $3.25; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; do., medium, $4.50 to $5; do., bulls, $3.75 to $4.25; milkers, choice, each, $75; do., common and medium, each, $60 to $60; springers, $30 to $40.

Sheep, ewes, $3.75 to $4; do., bucks and culls, $3 to $3.50; lambs, $5.75 to $6.

Hogs, f.o.b., $6.20 to $6.25.

Calves—$6 to $12.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

Veals—Receipts, 1100 head, active and 25c higher, $5 to $9.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 6000; market, slow and 5c to 10c lower; heavy, $6.40 to $6.45; a few at $6.50; mixed, $6.20 to $6.40; yorkers, $5.85 to $6.30; pigs, $5.70 to $5.75; dairies, $6.00 to $6.30.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 8000; sheep, slow and 25c lower; lambs, active and steady; wethers, $3.50 to $3.75; ewes, $3 to $3.25; sheep, mixed, $1.50 to $3.50.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Beeves—Receipts, 3200; market, irregular; steers, $4.40 to $8.75; bulls, $3 to $4.50; cows, $2 to $4.25.

Calves—Receipts, 1100; steady to 25c higher; veals, $6.50 to $10; a few choice at $10.25; culls, $5 to $6; barnyard calves, $3 to $4.25; no westerns.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 10,500; sheep, $3 to $4; culls, $1.50 to $1.75; lambs, $4.75 to $6.37½; one car at $6.40; culls, $4 to $4.50; yearlings, $4 to $4.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 6700. Market, at $6.25 to $6.50, pigs, $6 to $6.25.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Cattle—Receipts, 22,000; market, strong for good; others weak. Beeves, $4.60 to $9.25; Texas steers, $4.10 to $5.75; western steers, $4.60 to $7.25; stockers and feeders, $3 to $5.75; cows and heifers, $2 to $5.90; calves, $5.50 to $8.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 38,000; market, slow at opening prices; light, $5.60 to $6.10; mixed, $5.70 to $6.25; heavy, $5.80 to $6.25; rough, $5.80 to $5.95; good to choice hogs, $5.95 to $6.25; pigs, $4 to $5.60; bulk of sales, $5.85 to $6.10.

Sheep—Receipts, 45,000; market, 10c to 15c lower; native, $2.50 to $4; western, $2.75 to $4; yearlings, $4 to $5.30; lambs, native, $3.75 to $6; western, $4 to $6.

A TENDERFOOT'S WOOING

— BY —

CLIVE PHILLIPPS WOLLEY

(AUTHOR OF "GOLD, GOLD IN CARIBOO," ETC.)

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

"Don't make a noise, dear," she whispered, "but listen. I suppose it is only a rat."

"Not even that, Polly. It must have been your fancy. Go to sleep, little woman, and don't worry."

But at that moment a low knock sounded on the bed-room door. Instantly Rolt rose and opened it. Jim Combe was there with his rifle in his hand.

"Bring your gun along, Rolt. They are trying to fire the house."

In silence the two crept down the stairs, at the foot of which stood Anstruther, Old Al and Jack Fairclough, with their Winchesters in their hands.

The doctor was not there, but Jim led the way into a small room which jutted out from the face of the house, a room which they had laughingly christened the excrescence. Rolt had built it on as a conservatory for his wife, to connect with his own study.

Both sides of it, as well as the top, being of glass, it was the weakest point in their defences, and in it, therefore, had been piled more than its share of furniture barricades. It formed the foot of a letter L, of which the main front of the house was the stem.

This room was in absolute darkness when the men entered it, but it seemed to Rolt that something stirred feebly in the corner of it.

Presently a voice, barely audible even to their straining ears, whispered:

"Are you there, Jim?"

Combe moved silently across towards the voice.

"Put that in your pocket for me, will you, old chap, until we've played this hand? Are you ready, now? Has each man picked his panel? Never mind the glass. Ready!"

There followed a faint scratching, and then a feeble blue flame appeared for a second, after which a great and lurid red light lit the whole conservatory, and flooded the front of the house, showing up with the utmost distinctness the piled furniture, the crowded and broken limbs of Mrs. Rolt's favorites, and the figure of the doctor behind a soup plate filled with some stuff to which he had set fire.

But the five men had no eyes for these things. In front of them, all along the face of the ranch house, they saw bundles of faggots piled, and amongst them a score of figures momentarily arrested in their work by the sudden illumination.

The Chilcotens had seen this Chinese fire the Christmas before, but it had been lighted then to amuse them; now it clung to their crouching figures, bathing them in its hideous glow, and betraying them to the rifles, which suddenly opened fire upon them.

When the roar of the Winchesters and the crashing of the glass had subsided, and the Chinese fire had died down to a dull red glow, which hung for a time on the face of the fog, there were a dozen of the Chilcotens who could not have crawled away to save themselves from the conflagration which they had come to kindle.

"Let's get out of this quick, for heaven's sake!" cried Combe, coughing from the fumes of the chemicals. "Lend a hand to clear away these faggots. We can't leave them there."

Following his example, they all scrambled out, and swiftly and in silence removed the faggots to a distance.

The fog shrouded them and no one molested them.

"Now get back, and don't pull up the barricade till I come."

As the others obeyed Jim went on his knees and laid a fire with more rapidity than he had ever laid one in his life.

Another man might have struck match after match and trusted to chance, but even then Jim was methodical, breaking the little twigs and laying them in closed packed bundles, so that when the small star of light appeared it grew steadily, and still the watchers could see Jim feeding his fire and making sure that the flames had made good their hold.

Then a shot was fired from the fog, the faggots rattled and flew in all directions, and Combe came running, almost on his hands and knees, to the barricade. But the fire had caught hold, and as soon as the men in the excrescence replaced the furniture and made good the gaps, great tongues of flame roared as they climbed upwards.

"We can't help that. They can see to shoot now as well as we can, but they won't come close whilst we have that light. Tell the women to keep away from the windows, and let each man watch from behind something solid. Don't spare the cartridges. Al?"

"I'm here."

"Get round to the back and watch out there. I guess you can see in the dark better than most. Where's the doctor?"

No one answered.

"Doc! Ho! Doc!" Jim cried, but there was no reply.

"Did any of you see him outside? We haven't left him out, have we?"

"He wasn't outside. Perhaps he knew enough to keep in out of the rain," sneered Fairclough, who detested the doctor, whose butt he had always been.

"He knows a good deal now, 'mongst other things, what a blanked fool you are! Poor old chap!"

There was a curious choking sound in Jim's savage voice, as he groped about in the dark and turned something over on the floor.

"Thank you, Anstruther. Will you take his feet? Here, Rolt, strike a light. We've got to chance their shooting."

Rolt struck one, and in the short gleam of it the others saw Jim and Anstruther lift the body from the floor and put it upon the table where the red fire had been.

"That's the first to go," muttered Jim. "Always wanted the lead and would have it. Shot through the head from behind. Some of the devils must have been behind when he lit his fire."

"I heard no shot."

"Not likely to with the noise we were making. What's wrong with your neck, Anstruther? Cut it?"

"Just touched, I fancy. I got it when they hit him. Shall we take him into the house?"

"Better not, and better say nothing about it to them upstairs. We can't do any more for him now, Boss," and Jim drew a large worked table-cover over the dead man's face and turned to see that the barricades were as strong as they could be made.

When he was at his post again he drew from his pocket that which the doctor had given him. It was a common playing-card and on it was written in pencil a London address. Beneath this the doctor had written in big letters which wandered uncertainly over the blank space: "So long, Jim. See you again some day."

"So he knew it was coming, did he?" mused Jim, "and he took it all back at the last, all his tall talk about science and annihilation of matter. Well, I guess the Handicapper knew the Doc's handicap, and will be the best judge of his running."

And then, as he looked out in the reddened gloom, whilst his eyes tried to pierce through the fog, his mind tried to peer into that Next Room where the doctor now was, and if he failed to place the doctor, he at least managed to place himself. He saw the triviality of the things which had so embittered him for the last few days, and even confessed to himself that when it came to fighting, his rival was not much of a muff after all. If that which had made the scratch on Anstruther's neck had been an inch or two to the left Jim Combe felt that his memory of the last few days would have been a load for him to carry all the rest of his life. But the first grey light of the morning brought Jim back from the Unknown to the present with a shock. As the mists rolled away the temporary absence of the Indians was explained. They had withdrawn to gather force for their real attack. Whatever answers to the fiery cross amongst the red men had been flying around the country in the last two days, and Jim Combe had never known until that moment how many Indians there were scattered through the timber of British Columbia.

The hog's back was dotted with their camp fires and tents; a line of them stretched across the big meadow; another body of them held the road to Soda Creek. The ranch was as regularly invested as if its foes had been European troops instead of mere redskins. With infinitely more cunning than even Combe had given them credit for, the Chilcotens had allowed the white men to return unmolested to their lair, only to find themselves in a trap from which there appeared to be no escape unless Toma or Fairclough had won through and could bring help.

Until this last morning Jim had felt certain that one or other would succeed in getting through; but now, seeing the methodical way in which the Indians had conducted the campaign, he not only doubted, he disbelieved it, and when he met Kitty a little later, her pretty face pale and troubled, a great wave of pity and remorse almost unmanned him.

In his anguish of mind he tried to speak to his little friend in the old way that had been so dear to both of them, but his tongue failed him, and she, not realising that it was the old Jim, treated him with the coldness he had been at such trouble to teach her.

CHAPTER XXV.

You cannot hide death any more than you can escape it. There is a subtle influence which spreads from a dead man so that even the dumb beasts feel and acknowledge it, and this atmosphere of horror had spread through the ranch house in spite of the men's reticence.

The women knew, though they asked no questions. Their eyes counted the men as they gathered for their morning meal; but if they guessed they said nothing.

Indeed, scarcely a word passed between them until the men gathered in the long room after the meal, and even then for a while no one spoke. Though for the moment the besieged were unmolested, everyone knew that the ring which surrounded them was intact, and their destruction but a question of hours.

"The men had better sleep in watches during the day, Jim. We shall want all hands on guard to-night, if Toma does not bring help before then. Horsely and his posse could hardly get through by daylight if they came."

Jim made no reply.

"Don't you think that they will get here to-day?"

In spite of his courage there was a shake in Rolt's voice which he could not hide. For himself he cared little, but the thought of the sweet woman who was all the world to him broke the strong man's nerve.

"It's no good fooling ourselves, Rolt, any longer. No, I don't think any of our messengers are alive to-day."

The younger Fairclough turned very white, but he pulled himself together, and laughed bravely.

"You don't know my brother, Combe. There's no fear that any pack of niggers will wipe him out."

"I hope not. He is a good man and I daresay that you are right, in which case we shall have help before nightfall, but we must not calculate upon that. We've calculated too much on such things already. We've got to do somethings for ourselves now, right away."

"That's talking," assented Al, "and there's only one thing as we can do."

"What is that?"

15 YEARS A DYSPEPTIC

Forced to Live on Stale Bread and Porridge.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HIM

AVONDALE, N. B., October, 15th.
"I have been a great sufferer from Indigestion for fifteen years. I was forced to deny myself all such hearty foods as beans, meats, potatoes and could not drink tea or coffee. For the past two years, I lived on porridge, stale bread, etc. I had treatment from two doctors, and tried nearly every kind of medicine, but got worse.

"Finally I saw a testimonial of "Fruit-a-tives" and concluded to give them a trial. I took nearly four boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and they have made me feel like a new man. I can eat all kinds of hearty foods without suffering, and am no longer constipated."

LEMUEL A. W. BROWN.

Many people look on "Fruit-a-tives" as a miraculous medicine. It has indeed performed what have seemed like miraculous cures in hundreds of cases of chronic Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation and Biliousness.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fresh fruit juices and valuable tonics. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Men Go Back.

Berlin, Dec. 7.—The lockout of metal workers which began on Nov. 30 and affected between 50,000 and 60,000 men ceased yesterday. A majority of the strikers were opposed to a compromise between the masters and men, which was drawn up on Tuesday, but as a technical ruling of the trade unions requires a two-thirds' majority to reject compromise proposals and to refuse to return to work, and this majority was not obtained, the lockout has come to an end.

Turks Attack Bulgarians.

Constantinople, Dec. 7.—Serious rioting has taken place at Istib, a town in European Turkey, about 90 miles north of Saloniki, consequent on the bomb outrage in a mosque there on Dec. 4, when 12 persons were killed and 20 wounded.

The Turks in revenge attacked the Bulgarians, whom they accused of being the perpetrators of the outrage, killing 14 and wounding 157 of them in the affray.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL FOR
The Hospital for Sick Children

Dear Mr. Editor,—

Thanks for your kindness in allowing me the privilege of appealing at this Christmas time on behalf of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

I make this direct appeal to the people of Ontario, for the fathers and mothers of Ontario, outside the City of Toronto, have precisely the same claim for their sick children as regards the privileges of the Hospital, as parents who reside in this city.

In brief the sick children from any place in Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay, is, on certificate from a municipal officer of any city, town, village or township, treated free.

This is a privilege not granted by any Hospital in the Dominion, or on this Continent.

Let me, in a few words, state that in the last 20 years, since 1891, there have been 4,731 patients from 450 places outside of this city treated free, as the parents were unable to pay for treatment. Last year 384 patients from 234 places outside Toronto were so treated.

The Hospital is not a city but a Provincial institution. The Corporation of Toronto grants $18,000, not only for city children, but towards the maintenance of every patient in the Hospital, and the citizens of Toronto donate an average of $10,000 to the maintenance fund of the Hospital.

It would take more space than you can spare to tell of the good work done for the sick and deformed children of this Province.

Why, in the Orthopedic department in 20 years, nearly 700 children, boys and girls, have been treated for club feet, and about 600 were corrected. Two-thirds of these came from places outside of Toronto, from parents who could not afford to pay.

Surely we have a fair claim for help from the people of this Province.

Every day is Christmas to the child whose little life is saved, or whose crippled limb is straightened with the might of money—your money—and the mercy of the Hospital.

Will you, the reader of this letter, think of what your dollar will do? It helps to restore health and strength, and gives sound limbs and straight feet to crippled boys and girls.

You give wealth to the Hospital, and the Hospital gives health to the children.

Yes, your money can put golden hinges on the door of the Hospital's mercy.

Will you, kind reader, help us and send a spare dollar to Douglas Davidson, the secretary-treasurer of the Hospital, or

J ROSS ROBERTSON.

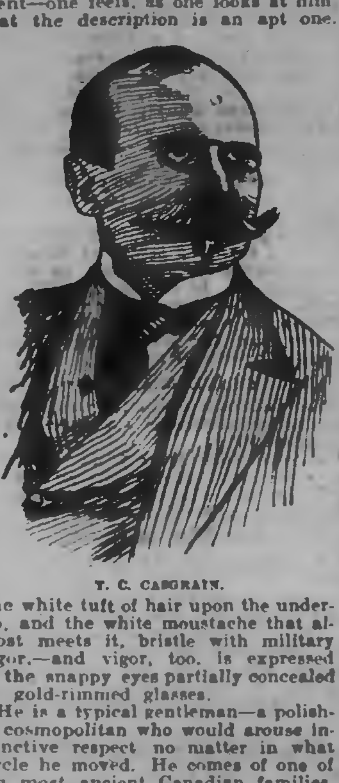
EXCELS AS AN ORATOR

T. CHASE CASGRAIN HAS THE GIFT OF HIS PEOPLE.

Montreal Politician Looms Up Large In His Native Province and With a Love of the Traditions of His Race He Combines a Keen Devotion to the Union Jack—A Thorough Cosmopolitan In Manner.

One of the most outstanding figures in the Province of Quebec is the Hon. Thomas Chase Casgrain. He was in the thick of the fight during the recent election, and, with Mr. L. T. Marechal, K.C., put up a stiff battle in behalf of the present Government.

There is much of the military manner in the quick, decisive action and speech of Mr. Casgrain. His appearance has been likened to that of Lord Roberts. Upstanding, dignified and alert, with self-command and determination expressed in every movement—one feels, as one looks at him that the description is an apt one.



T. C. CASGRAIN.

The white tuft of hair upon the underlip, and the white moustache that almost meets it, bristle with military vigor,—and vigor, too, is expressed in the snappy eyes partially concealed by gold-rimmed glasses.

He is a typical gentleman—a polished cosmopolitan who would arouse instinctive respect no matter in what circle he moved. He comes of one of the most ancient Canadian families. He is well-born, well-educated, well-traveled, and well-cultivated.

As a platform speaker, he ranks among the greatest orators of the country. In his own native language he is eloquence personified, and he is scarcely less magnetic in English. The sentences pour from him like a flood—humorous, compelling and at times extraordinarily ironical. Pride of race is his as it should be, but to the genius of the French blood he adds a keen devotion for the Union Jack, and an exulting pride in the freedom of his British citizenship.

Dr. "Games"—Specialist.

The report from Blackpool of a dumb lady who had her speech restored to her as the result of a motor-car accident recalls the similar miracle performed by football some five years ago. On losing his speech, a Gloucester man continued to be a warm enthusiast of the local football club, and when, during a very important match, his favorite team cleverly scored, his joy was so great that he shouted and cheered, to the great amazement of his friends. He has since been able to converse freely.

The veteran wicket-keeper of a cricket club in the Lancashire League had suffered from a rather mysterious deafness in his left ear for some years, when, in endeavoring to make a catch off a hard stroke to leg, the ball bounced up and struck him violently in the region of the ear.

Immediately he was conscious of some change in the structure of that organ—"Something had snapped," he said—and, despite the swelling caused by the blow, he heard for the first time for years, and is now quite cured. The method, however, is not recommended for general adoption by deaf people.—Answers.

Regrets Dreadnoughts.

After fifty-eight years in the service, Admiral Sir Edward Seymour hauled down his flag last year and retired into private life, and we have recently been reminded of the energy of this gallant sailor by the publication of his reminiscences. Some of his remarks when interview on his retirement are particularly interesting at the moment. "Nations," he said, "do not go to war to please their enemy; they go to war to smash him. War is now such a desperate, such a costly thing that a nation is perfectly justified in taking every opportunity to ensure the destruction of her enemy. I think it would have been better if Dreadnoughts had never been built. Ships go out of fashion almost as quickly as ladies' hats. It is a mistake to belittle the pre-Dreadnoughts of the Edward VII. class. If I were offered a ship to fight, I would prefer a Dreadnought; but if that were impossible, one of the other class—and of those we have plenty."

He Knows His Job.

For the seventieth successive year a member of the choir named Christopher Stokes took part in the harvest festival service at Hose, Leicestershire, England.

Will In Ledger.

The will of Edmund Hunt, of Manor Farm, Lower Clatford, Hants, Eng., disposing of £41,926, was written on a page in a ledger, from which it had to be torn by order of the registrar.

Forget the Match.

It has been found in Warwickshire, Eng., that the development of allotment gardening is seriously affecting the attendance at football matches.

Montreal artillery fired a royal salute yesterday in honor of Queen Mother Alexandra's birthday.

An Interesting Letter
Zam-Buk has proved a great comfort to me, as it is now something like two months since it cured my little girl of eczema from which she suffered for a year.

THIS is but a fragment of a very interesting letter received by the Zam-Buk Co. from Mrs. E. Cossett, of Joggin Bridge, Digby Co., N.S. The letter continues:

"When the sores first broke out I called in a doctor; but his treatment did no good. I tried salves and lotions and washes of all kinds, but the sores still spread. The disease finally became so bad that the child's face and shoulder were completely covered with sores. Imagine the pain the poor child (not a year old) had to suffer!

"One day a friend advised me to try Zam-Buk. I did not have much faith at that time that Zam-Buk would be able to work a cure, but as there could be no harm in trying it, I obtained a supply. At that time the disease had defied all remedies I had tried for over a year. By the time I had tried one box of Zam-Buk there was a marked improvement. I continued the Zam-Buk treatment and day by day the sores showed signs of improvement, until the eczema was confined to the child's shoulder, one sore on which had been particularly deep. By degrees this, also, was healed, and finally Zam-Buk banished every trace of the disease.

"I have waited several months before mentioning this case to you, in order to see if there was any return of the eczema. There has not been any return; the cure being permanent, and there is no scar or trace of the disease from which the child suffered so long. You may publish this information if you wish, so that every mother may know the value of Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk is just as good for cold sores, chapped hands, piles, blood-poison, ulcers, bad leg, varicose ulcers, scalp sores, frost bite, baby's chafed places, etc. Also as an embrocation for rheumatism, sciatica, etc. All Druggists and Stores, 50c box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

The Queen City Oil Company, Limited

The dry kiln at the Keenan Woodenware plant, Owen Sound, burned yesterday; loss $15,000. Tramps are blamed.

Montreal postal revenue for November was $168,578.91, an increase of $7,584.25 over the same month last year.

A Result Worthy of Consideration

Endowment Policy No. 34022 was issued to a local citizen twenty years ago for which he paid in ten annual instalments to the Company in all premiums, amounting to $688.50. He now receives a single cash payment of $1273.65 which as an investment is over 4% compound interest, or he may accept $750.60 in cash, which is $62.10 more than he paid in, together with a paid up policy for $1000, payable at death which earns profits every year during the balance of his life.

Where can a young man or woman find a better way of saving money as well as providing a protection for those dependent upon them.

The above is the result of a matured policy in the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA, payable on December 1st., 1911.

BIFOCALS

OR —

DOUBLE VISION GLASSES

Most people think, when buying Bifocal Glasses, that a large segment or reading area is required. With very few exceptions this is not so, as most bifocals are required for constant use, and the successful fitting of these lenses depends not so much on furnishing the largest reading portion possible, but on placing a minimum disk or wafer in exactly the correct position. A smal wafer accurately placed will afford ample field for reading, writing and sewing, and will overcome the tendency to make mis-steps in going up and down stairs, an experience not uncommon to wearers of bifocals with too large reading segments.

We make a specialty of filling Bifocal Lenses in VISIBLE, SEMI-INVISIBLE and INVISIBLE.

COST TOO HIGH FOR ROADWAY

Board of Works Favor a Lesser Expenditure at Auburn

At the Board of Works meeting last evening, J. H. Larmonth, was present in reference to the matter of a roadway for the city over the new Auburn dam. Regarding this question, the city engineer, T. A. S. Hay, reported that the roadway shown on the blue print for the proposed extension of the dam was not wide enough to permit two vehicles to pass a car.

The city engineer estimated that the cost of the proposed road would be about $1800.00 as the piers would have to be extended also. Mr. Larmonth stated that unless the dam was extended beyond the original plans, there would not be width enough for even a twelve-foot drive-way.

The Board suggested that Mr Larmonth figure on a 12 foot or 16 foot roadway over the dam, as in their opinion, an outlay of $1800.00 or thereabouts was considerably more than they felt justified in expending. Mr. Larmonth agreed to the proposal.

There were present at last night's meeting, Ald. Metheral (chairman) and Aldermen Duncan, Brown, Bradburn, Anderson, Graham, Mayor Morrow, and street commissioner, Evans.

The Bell Telephone Company's application for permission to erect telephone poles was granted.

With good weather, the chairman reported that the sewer at Romaine street would be completed in about three weeks. In connection with the work, Willis Chipman's request, for $800 on this account as consulting engineer and for Mr. Perdue, was granted by the Board.

STONE WANTED

The chairman was authorized to advertise for tenders for stone for street purposes.

In reply to a letter from the Hastings Granite Company, the city clerk was instructed to write them and secure their prices for stone.

FOR 1912 COUNCIL

The Peterboro Radial Railway asked permission to erect a shelter house, where their line crosses Lock street It was granted.

STOP FAST TRAFFIC

Ald. Duncan remarked that something should be done to prevent fast driving across Hunter street bridge The attention of the authorities will be directed to the matter.

Don't forget the Charlotte St Choir Concert to be given in the lecture room on Thursday evening, Dec. 7th. at 8 p. m Admission 25 cents.

CALENDARS ARE NOW ON SALE

Buy at Drug Stores and Help the Health Association

Have you secured one of the pretty Christmas calendars in aid of the Peterborough Health Association? They are placed on sale in the drug stores. When you are down town, step into one of these shops, and ask to see them. Everybody has one or more fancy calendars among their collection of Christmas gifts. Then in making your selections this year, don't forget the Health Association. Remember that in purchasing one of these calendars, you will perform a two fold act In addition to having a suitable gift for your friends you will help along the noble cause of this local organization, namely, that of fighting the tuberculosis in this city. Already a number of these have been sold by interested workers, but there are still several hundred to be disposed of, before the amount of money that the association is endeavering to raise through this medium is secured.

The Christmas stamps are also now available. In sending parcels and letters put a few of these stamps on them. As was stated in Saturday's issue, the object of this sale is to raise funds in order to engage a district nurse for tubercular cases in Peterborough.

HOT WORDS OVER CUP OF TEA

Police Court Case Arises But Charge is Dismissed

Mr Robert W. Jackson, proprietor of the Crown Hotel, appeared in police court this morning, charged with having used gross and insulting language to a guest named Edward Billings, district inspector officer of Armories for Eastern Ontario. The case was dismissed after the taking of considerable evidence on both sides, his Worship feeling that the circumstances of the case indicated a lack of decorum and discretion on the part of both parties, and that strictly polite behaviour had not been observed by either party.

Briefly the facts are as follows, judging by the evidence. On Tuesday evening, Sergeant Billing, a guest for a day at the Crown Hotel, complained about the tea served to him, for supper not being hot, and referred to it in ungentlemanly terms to Mrs. Jackson, who served him, not knowing at the time that it was the proprietor's wife. Mrs Jackson felt insulted and informed her husband, as the tea was as hot as is customary to have it.

Billing went out the same evening to the Armories, and in about an hour came back, accompanied by Mr. Metheral He packed his traps and when leaving some hot words were exchanged between Mr. Jackson and Sergeant Billings, in which some language not found in the etiquette book, was used

Morris Montgomery, waiter and bartender at the Crown, gave some strong evidence, which was against Billing.

J. Ozias de LaPlante acted for Mr. Jackson.

BEST METHODS OF TEACHING

Thoroughly Discussed by Professor Coleman in George Street Church School Room

The attendance of Sunday school teachers and workers at the big rally in the lecture hall of George street Methodist church last evening to hear Prof. Coleman's lecture, was exceedingly gratifying. An intimate and thorough acquaintance with his subject namely, 'The Best Methods of Teaching' enabled him to treat it in a most masterly and instructive manner. A University graduate and an earnest student of Sunday school topics and problems, Prof Coleman possesses the rather rare knack of imparting information on such matters in such matters in such an entertaining way that the possibility of tedium is effectually barred.

Last night he went after some of the generally considered problems of the Sunday school, figuratively speaking, tooth and nail. Every phase of the religious instruction of the young in the Sunday school was discussed and many erroneous ideas were cleared away.

His opening remark was to the effect that he believed that the Sunday schools could do ten fold better than they are doing to meet the responsibility that the twentieth century had placed upon them. The movement of such organizations was commenced primarily with the object of meeting the requirements of the boys and girls who had little opportunity for religious education. They were at first supported by private philanthropy.

In later years however, the church came to realize that it was responsible for such organizations. The recognition of this fact resulted in the world wide establishment of Sunday schools which are exerting a splendid and far reaching influence.

Prof. Coleman went on to describe some limitations or defects however in these institutions. "Too often we trust too much to committees to do work for which we should feel ourselves individually responsible for." This fact he said, he was sorry to say often held good in the Sunday schools. Too much stress is apt to be placed upon organization and not upon individual efforts and the moment this has taken place then the centre of gravitation so to speak, has been lost.

In regard to teaching the lesson, the speaker thought that the plan of having a uniformity of lessons was bad. The Sunday schools he was glad to note were breaking away from this uniformity and were introducing graded lessons. The Sunday school was not just progressing in this respect, however, as much as it might.

Neither should classes of instruction be all in one room where the racket that unavoidably occurs is deleterious to interrupted teaching. The most precious half hour in the week should be the half hour in the Sunday school.

Prof. Coleman also objected to the piece meal study of the Bible so often adopted by teachers.

The inculcation of the worshipping spirit into the children of the Sunday schools was very important.

The address was of an extremely uplifting character and held the attention of the large audience throughout.

Previous to it, a duet by Miss Josie Callander and Mr. Thornton was very sweetly given, the voices harmonizing beautifully. Mrs. J. H. Renwick also gave a solo in good voice.

OUT-GENERALED

A Side splitting, Rip-roaring Comedy of the Briny Deep—Written and Produced by FRANCIS BOGGS

Bert Howe is in love with Bessie Darrow, who returns his love, but whose over-ambitious father has promised her marriage to the Count de Grilhelin.

Bert receives a letter from Bessie telling him of her father's intention to take her on a cruise in their yacht. She begs him to save her from having to marry the Count.

He thinks hard, and finally hits upon a plan, which, with the help of the Captain of Darrow's yacht, is carried out. Disguised as a sailor, Bert obtains work on the yacht.

The Count is terribly sea-sick, and begs to be put ashore. Bert launches a boat, and rows him to land. Darrow unaware that the Count is not on board, orders the Captain to weigh anchor.

Later the Count is picked up by the steamer "Ontario," and immediately sends a wireless message to Darrow. Darrow is frantic, and when the Count identifies Bert as the man who left him on shore, his fury is boundless and he forwith discharges Bert, who gets his bag and prepares to leave the yacht.

Bessie gets into the boat with Bert who tears off his disguise. Both Darrow and the Count are confounded, but it is too late, and one week later Bert and Bessie, now married, return home, to be forgiven.

THE SUPREME COURT OF ONTARIO ALLOWS APPEAL

Shareholders' Rights are Definitely Defined—An Important Decision.

BENNETT VS. HAVELOCK.

A decision of the utmost importance to shareholders and effecting the rights of every shareholder in Ontario was handed down by the Court of Appeal for Ontario this morning at Toronto, when the appeal of the Havelock Electric Light and Power Company was allowed with costs.

The case has been before the courts in one form or another for over three years and has been closely watched by the legal fraternity, both here and in the United States, as well as by people with money invested in the stock of incorporated companies in this province.

The question being as to the judiciary relationship of a director, the extent of fact and obligation of his position and the power of a majority of shareholders to contrain and approve of the management and direction of the corporate affairs.

At the trial judgment was given dismissing the action but without costs. From this judgment the plaintiffs appealed, and their apeal was allowed, the defendant directors were ordered to pay $4,700.00, and to pay all costs of the litigation and the findings of the trial judge practically reversed.

The highest court in the province has now settled the law in the matter, at least it is said that is the effect of the judgment handed out today, the court defining the right of the majority of shareholders to conduct and run their affairs as they see fit, after proper consideration of all the circumstances, the Court of Appeal reinstates the judgment at the trial ordering the plaintiffs to pay the costs of the appeals to the Divisional Court at Toronto, and of the defendant's successful appeal to the Court of Appeal.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Greer

There passed away at Bailieboro last week a widely known and highly respected resident in the person of Mrs. John Greer. Her death has occasioned general sorrow and regret to her many friends and acquaintances, who esteemed her most highly for her many estimable qualities she had possessed and put into practical demonstration during her life. She was the second daughter of John W. Lucas, and is survived besides her parents, by her bereaved husband one young daughter, two sisters and one brother. The sisters are Miss Miss Minnie Lucas and Mrs. Ed. Dawson, of Bailieboro. The brother, William resides in British Columbia. The late Mrs. Greer was a devout member of the Anglican church, at which place an impressive service was held in connection with the funeral on Saturday, when a large number of friends, many of whom were from outside points, attended to pay their last respects.

CUT IN THE CABLE RATES

our Reductions by the Commercial Cable Company

Special to the Review.

New York, Dec. 7.—Geo. C. Warde, e-president and general manager of e Commercial Cable Company being ked in regard to the cut in cable tes announced by the Western Un- Telegraph Co., said, "There are ur reductions involved as follows:—

1. A week-end letter to be received turday and delivered the following esday. This will involve Sunday rk. We prefer to give our cable rators a rest on Sunday. We con- e our Sunday business to public ne- ssity like Sunday railroad trains. We all not adopt it. There is no demand r a service of this kind.

2. A newspaper rate of five cents a ord This is a heavy cut of fifty r cent. The purpose is obvious. We ink the spectre at Washington is re- onsible for it. We shall make the m cut.

3. A deferred cable letter. This is be delivered two days after it is nded in. We shall not adopt it, so ng as it remains deferred. Ours is a deferred company ninety-nine t cent cablegrams oal. for immediate ivery here too there is public de- and for such service.

4. Plain language cablegrams at half tes. This is not a Western Union ove. It was proposed by the Post- aster General of Great Britain, over o years ago. He communicated ith the Commercial Cable Co. in re- rd to it at that time. We shall opt in accordance with our under- standing with the Postmaster Gen- al of Great Britain, entered into long o. That was before the Bell Tele- one Co. acquired the Western Tele- aph Co.

The Western Union now seeks to ve the impression that it originated is plain word cablegram at half tes. The fact that it is not to go to effect until Jan. 1st, while the re- ctions go into effect at once, shows o originated it."

OUTDOOR RINK IS PROPOSED

The officials of the law bowling club are considering the advisability of making an outdoor skating rink out of the bowling green for this winter. The club has the lights, the water and all other accessories to provide a very select outdoor rink, and the idea is meeting with a great deal of favor. No decision has yet been reached on the matter, but if there seems to be a strong enough demand for a central outdoor rink, it is quite probable that preparations will be made for this purpose.

WARSAW NEWS

Special Correspondence.

Dear Mr. Editor,—I noticed in the last issue of the Weekly Review a paper written on the aims and organization of the Woman's Institute, and I may say if the farmers' wives are the only ones in mind of the writer who need social intercourse, intellectual development and educating in domestic economy, then I say in the Warsaw Woman's Institute she is truly an object of pity, where no one would recognize in the unsociability, the total lack of power to impart knowledge of any kind, the pandering to the opinion of the few, and the exclusiveness in appointing committees, the smallest semblance to the broad-minded, life elevating ideal of the original Institute, of which the writer speaks, and I do think that surely the farmers' wives, whose everyday life brings them in constant contact with the pure, beautiful, soul-ennobling influences of nature, whose mind is fitted to grasp the requirements of the rising generation and the important questions in connection with the welfare of our country, and who produce the brain and muscle of our nation. Surely, I say, they require no education from the narrow-minded, self-concentrated and unjust ability of the Warsaw Woman's Institute. The writer speaks of "reform," and I think the day of reformation is at hand, and the farmers' wives are both able and willing to lead the van in the reformation of the Warsaw Woman's Institute.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your time and trouble.

I am, yours etc.,
A FARMER'S WIFE.

BENSFORT NEWS

Former Boxing Champion Will Have to be Careful

Bensfort, Dec. 7.—Villages are springing up so rapidly in our community that we can hardly keep pace with the times. A few weeks ago it was stated in our items that one of our former boxing champions was in the employ of Mr. James Whittington. He was in the employ of Mr. Whittington but a short time, and we next heard of him from the suburb, of Watkinsville, from which centre much criticism of our local sports was indulged in, in last week's issue. We had formerly claimed this champion but if it is his wish to sever his connection with us, we are not disposed to accept any insults from himself or managers. While he may on past occasions have exhibited much science and fondness, in the art of boxing it must be remembered, that his last battle here was counted against him and before pouring forth any "hot air" the past should be redeemed and now with the close of navigation when some of our local talent has more time at their disposal would be an opportune time to settle past grievances and then decide that which remains in doubt.

Mr. Richmond Morrison had a valuable horse kicked by another a short time ago, and we are pleased to hear that it is recovering.

Mr. Samuel Clark, M.P.P. in company with Mr. Louis Byers, was calling on Liberal supporters during the past week. Their conveyance was an automobile.

Mr. McCullough the Conservative standard bearer for West Northumberland, will address the electors of the township in the Sunday school hall at South Monaghan on Friday, 8th.

The Bensfort Union S.S. purpose holding their annual entertainment on Dec. 22nd. Great preparations are being made and a choice mixed program is being prepared by our local talent.

Mr. David Chambers, of Peterborough, formerly a local blacksmith, was renewing acquaintances during the past week.

The annual meeting of the cheese factory took place on Thursday, Nov. 30th, when the usual business was transacted. Mr. Hector Jewison purchased the whey for the coming season. The manager of the Bank of Toronto of Millbrook was present in the interests of the bank and had the honor of acting as auctioneer in the selling of the whey. Mr. John Riddell, salesman, and Mr. Cameron, instructor both of Peterborough, were also present.

Mr. James Whittington has purchased some thoroughbred pigs from Silrton Bros., of Bonnie Brae farm. Pedigreed stock is becoming quite common in our community and we wish Mr. Whittington much success in his new enterprise.

Mr. Samuel Clarke had a rather unpleasant experience during the past week, while canvassing in our community. His automobile played out while in the eastern division and he had to be driven to Baillieboro' at night to meet with some of his faithful workers.

The rumors referred to by the Watkinsville writer re a missing wheel from Mr. James Thompson's sulky plow is the subject of much comment in this section and anxious listeners are waiting silently to try and locate the fiendish workers of iniquity.

Mr. Harold Wood spent Sunday at Mr. Lancelot Nicholson.

Mr. Wm. Dawson of the John Tutherford estate has recently vacated the property and is now with his father, Mr. Welford Dawson. The change has come as a surprise to the community and with the assistance of his son, Mr. Dawson may abandon the idea of erecting a windmill on his barn as had intended doing. Mr. Thos. Wesley Bradshaw, the next probable successor to the Rutherford estate.

LIBERAL OPPOSITION

England, would be members of Parliament, but not members of the Cabinet.

It is suggested for the present there be under secretaries to the Ministers of Interior, Militia, Marine and Fisheries, Public Works, Railways and Canals, and Agriculture.

While it is doubtful if anything will be done this session, when the general reorganization of the Departments take place the plan will be thoroughly discussed and investigated and enquiries will be made as to how the English plan works.

Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, has just concluded new parcel post arrangements, the general outline of which is as follows:

Under the parcel post in existence at present all parcel post parcels from France come to Canada via England. Canada had no direct arrangement with France, but made arrangements through England, and when parcels left France and reached London they became, in so far as Canada was concerned, British parcels and the charges were settled on this basis. Under the new arrangements parcels will come direct from France to Canada and go direct from Canada to France, Canada using the Allan Line steamers, which now carry on a service from Canada to Cherbourg and is a line subsidized by Canada.

W. A. Dube Suspended.

Quebec, Dec. 7.—The Minister of Railways has suspended Mr. W. A. Dube, superintendent of the Montreal-Ste. Flavie section of the Intercolonial, and has ordered an inquiry into his political conduct anterior to the 21st of September last.

Coughs, Colds
Bronchitis

If there is an ailment in the throat or chest, it is surely essential that the remedy be conveyed direct to the affected part. It's because the healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed into the sore, irritated throat and bronchial tubes, because its balsamic fumes kill the germs and destroy the cause of the trouble. These are the reasons Catarrhozone never yet failed to cure a genuine case of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis or Throat Trouble.

The wonderfully soothing vapor of Catarrhozone instantly reaches the furthest recesses of the lungs, produces a healing, curative effect that is impossible with a tablet or liquid which goes merely to the stomach, and fails entirely to help the throat or lungs.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhozone. But beware of the substitutor and imitator. Look for Catarrhozone only, 50c and $1, at all dealers. 10

ANOTHER FOR MAKEENZIE KING

Sir,—Leader Rowell asked for support on the grounds that he favored the abolition of the three-fifths clause.

Rowell said it should be a straight majority. Please notice the Liberal sleight-of-hand trick once again.

There are about two to three hundred voters in Peterborough (besides thousands throughout Ontario) who are affected by the above.

We are simply boarders, etc., many of us being in Peterborough for several years.

We are entitled to vote for the Dominion and Provincial elections, but not for local option (as it is a by-law), and only ratepayers are allowed to do so, including the ladies, but not the poll tax brigade.

Still, I and many others, have received letters from R. R. Hall asking to support the Liberal candidate, etc. Is it not absurd for the Liberals to ask us to support them, providing we do not want local option.

The Whitney government has a three-fifths clause, and we are protected to a great extent by it. No doubt the above was taken into consideration at the time it was passed by them, knowing that a great many (not ratepayers), are not allowed to vote for, or against local option.

At present we have to depend on others to pull us through, whether we want local option or not. This is one, or supposed to be one of the safe planks Rowell is standing on, but just see how rotten it is underneath.

It strikes me very forcibly, that the Liberals are falling out of the frying pan into the fire, with the hydro-electric shock.

Yours sincerely,
H.M.S. "THUNDERBOLT."

To The Editor of The Review:—

There is in the county jail, a woman, a member of a large family, in the township of Dummer. She is a little unbalanced in mind, and somewhat troublesome, but apparently harmless.

The Reeve of Dummer committed her to the county poor-house, but the surgeon of the institution positively refused to accept her or permit her to be received, the regulations governing the poorhouse apparently giving him authority to so act.

She drifted into town, and must now be either committed to jail as a vagrant, or be sent to the asylum as an insane person.

There is no hope of curing her, and the asylum authorities decline to receive cases of her kind, owing to the hundreds of applications for entry to the asylum; cases which are probably curable and ware waiting for a chance to be received.

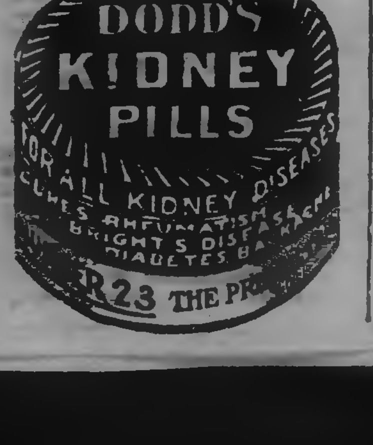
What is to be done with this woman?

There is no reason why a town or city should care for the county poor, and they refuse her admission to the poor-houses. Surely such a rich city as Peterboro cannot be justified in turning such a person to die in the fields or wander homeless and uncared for.

The province does not appear to have provided for imbeciles of her kind. If there is no remedy one should be provided.

If this poor woman was found in the fields there would be an outcry. She is not one of the city's unfortunates. It is to be hoped that the county will provide for such cases.

Yours truly,
CARE FOR THE AGED.



PLUCKY PITCHING.

Vedder Sitton's Feat That Landed a Championship Pennant.

In the greatest finish that ever marked a minor league race New Orleans and Nashville, Southern league contenders, had come to the wire neck and neck. On Sept. 19, 1908, they met in the final and decisive game of the year upon exactly even terms. The entire fighting of the past five months had centered in that lone contest, five months packed into two hours of play, with the result to tell the story of the year's success or failure. Manager Frank of New Orleans, unwilling to run any needless risk, selected the veteran Theodore Breitenstein of St. Louis and Cincinnati fame to battle for his people in the box. Manager Bernhard of Nashville, passing by his veterans, selected young Vedder Sitton, an ex-collegian, to face the $10,000 wonder of another day.

For six innings so perfect was the defensive play of both nines that neither team was able to score. In the seventh inning Nashville scored one run, and in the play involved young Sitton slid headforemost into the plate and fell over unconscious from the blow received just above the eyes. With the situation as tightly drawn as it was, disaster looked to be imminent. Bernhard immediately rushed his entire remaining staff back of the clubhouse to be ready for the call, while two physicians worked above the unconscious Sitton. He came to life again just as the Nashville team was taking the field for the eighth inning with another in his place.

Staggering to his feet, Sitton insisted upon finishing the contest, and Bernhard, against his better judgment, gave way. The heavy batting end of the New Orleans team was up in order. With bandaged head, his face still white and drawn from the shock, in no condition to stand, still less to lead a desperate charge, Sitton electrified the crowd by striking out two of the first three men that faced him. In the ninth he added two more victims to the list in bringing home the victory by the score of 1 to 0, winning the pennant by the margin of one point. And then he collapsed. It was over two weeks before he recovered sufficiently to be up and about, and yet New Orleans batsmen relate that in those last two innings he had shown more "stuff" by a wide margin than at any other stage of the battle.—American Magazine.

First American Letter Box.

A little more than a half century ago the letter box was unknown. The inventor was Joseph William Briggs, nephew of a former governor of Massachusetts, who, as head clerk in the Cleveland postoffice, studied the needs of patrons and after correspondence with Postmaster General Dennison upon the subject took a train for Washington, bearing a pasteboard model of the letter box under his arm. The postmaster general saw the merits of the plan and appointed Mr. Briggs as special agent to establish the letter box and letter carrier system. The first letter box was attached by clamps to a lamppost that stood in front of a Cleveland drug store, and not a year had passed before fifty-two different cities had adopted the system. —National Magazine.

Where Miners Lose Their Nerve.

Men accustomed to working in mines cannot stand great heights. It is almost an invariable rule that a miner will get dizzy and uneasy if you take him to a high place, such as a monument or the top of a house, and will try to get back to earth as soon as possible. And yet he can stand underground on the edge of a 500 foot shaft, look down into the black abyss and never feel a tremor. He can climb up the face of a shaft, knowing that there is a straight drop of a thousand feet under him, and feel perfectly at home.—Popular Magazine.

Scanty Ammunition.

Colonel Stark's regiment just prior to the battle of Bunker Hill was quartered at Milford, some four miles distant, and was destitute of ammunition. About 10 o'clock on the morning he received orders to march, however, each man received a gill cupful of powder, fifteen balls and one flint. As the muskets were of varying caliber it was necessary to reduce the size of the balls for many of them.—Magazine of American History.

CORDUROY and VELVETEEN COSTUMES for the SCHOOL GIRL

A PAGE FOR MISSES

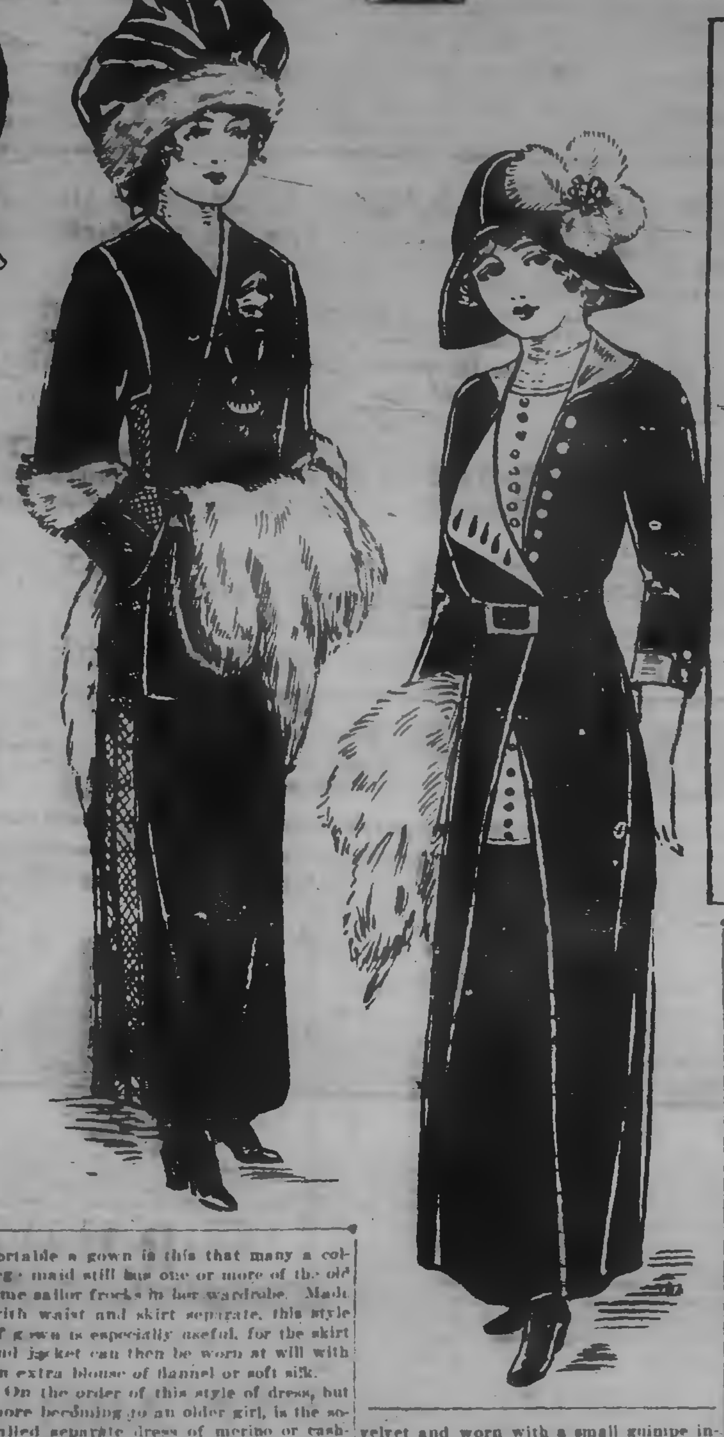
As the American woman is known the world over for the smartness of her tailor costumes, so is the American schoolgirl rapidly becoming far famed for her equally trim appearance in street attire. Even when she is sixteen close attention is paid to the good fit and line of cloth or velvet coat and skirt costume, while even little girls must have strict care given to their outdoor garments, though their frocks and jackets are not yet fitted in to the figure nor fashioned to carry out the very latest of Dame Fashion's exaggerated fancies.

Since the coat and skirt costume receive more constant use than any other dress in the outfit it is necessary that at least two smart tailor gowns be provided in the wardrobe of every school child, the one extremely simple and of rough, serviceable fabric for morning, the second of prettier texture and elaborated slightly with trimmings of braid or velvet to be in keeping for afternoon.

The suit for "every day" is still of rough material, ratine, cheviot, coarse serge, tweed, camel's-hair or a smart plaid or mixture, sombre in tone, relieved if desired by a lining of bright, warm color. For afternoon, on the other hand, corduroy, velveteen, smooth finished cloth, and for older girls velvet, in becoming shades of sapphire, garnet, emerald and rich golden brown, are all seen among the smartest of the French frocks.

Fashions for young people are always a modified reproduction of the prevailing fashions of the season, and this year the results are exceptionally happy, for there is none of the exaggeration visible, and the straight short jackets and fairly wide skirts, with sensible long sleeves in the coat and just enough trimming on the skirt not to cut the lines of the figure, make the girl appear more than usually attractive.

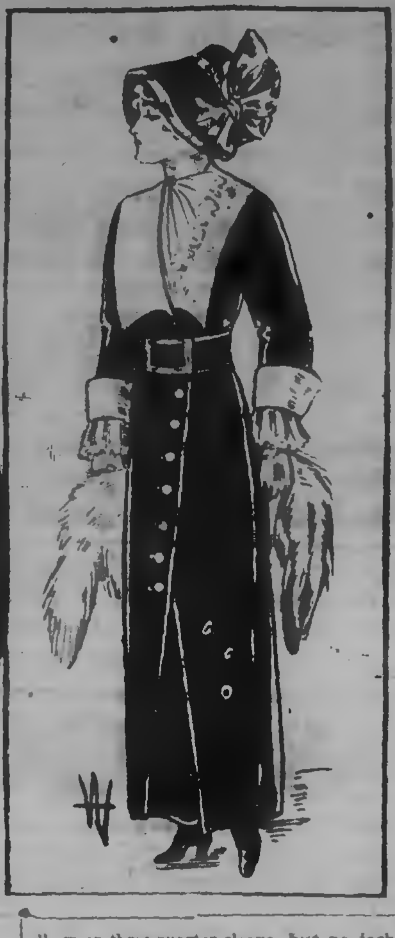
Among the newest models are many cutaway jackets in velvet or corduroy, to be worn with a cloth gown. For a tall girl, old enough to have abandoned braids and hair ribbons, this style of coat is often exceedingly becoming, but is not to be advocated for any girl under sixteen, and not then unless she is more than ordinarily tall and slender for her years.



FOR school wear, a sailor gown with a short reefer coat, made up in rough serge or cheviot, is still the smartest as well as the most appropriate costume possible for younger girls, and so comfortable a gown is this that many a college maid still has one or more of the old time sailor frocks in her wardrobe. Made with waist and skirt separate, this style of gown is especially useful, for the skirt and jacket can then be worn at will with an extra blouse of flannel or soft silk.

On the order of this style of dress, but more becoming to an older girl, is the so-called separate dress of merino or cashmere, made very simply and relieved only by detachable collar and cuffs of embroidered lawn or batiste. This gown is for wear beneath the heavy ulster or fur cloak for the coldest days. The same kind of dress is also extremely pretty in a bright plaid trimmed simply with black velvet and worn with a small guimpe instead of the linen collar, which must be sewed on fresh each day.

Collarless frocks are still popular in the schoolroom, especially for the smallest girls, but short sleeves are not seen among the smarter frocks—that is, for morning. The gown for afternoon may have an elbow or three-quarter sleeve, but no jackets for young girls this winter are made with any save full length sleeves. There must be a bit of lace or embroidery about the throat always, and many jackets and even a number of the newest ulsters have deep collars of Irish lace or else white plush or fur, that the dark color may not come directly against the face.



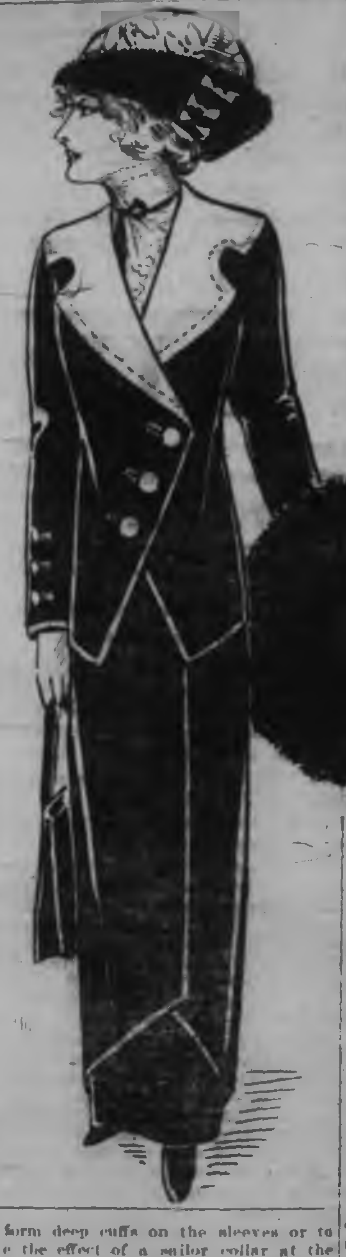
THE simpler the style of the jacket and the plainer the lines the more appropriate and at once the smarter will the street suit be. At the moment coats for young girls are somewhat short and hang almost straight from the shoulders, with just a suggestion of fitting in to the figure. Some are absolutely plain, with a deep, square sailor collar and wide cuffs of some material different from that of which the coat is fashioned—satin, ratine or smooth cloth on a coat of serge or any other rough finished fabric, with satin, velvet or plush on the packet of lady's cloth or corduroy.

Fur collar and cuffs make the garment delightfully warm and are as smart this winter as was the case a year ago, and there are now in vogue so many of the less costly furs that this trimming is no longer an insurmountable item even for the most limited allowance. 'Possum, moleskin and the numerous other inexpensive furs that so suddenly sprang into popularity are all appropriate for schoolgirls, and among the somewhat finer skins gray and silver fox are once again favorite furs of the season for young girls not yet out, while even the débutante prefers this soft, becoming fur to any other.

CORDUROY is unquestionably the most popular of all materials for afternoon. There is no color that is not to be seen in corduroy, while for very small girls white is delightfully smart.

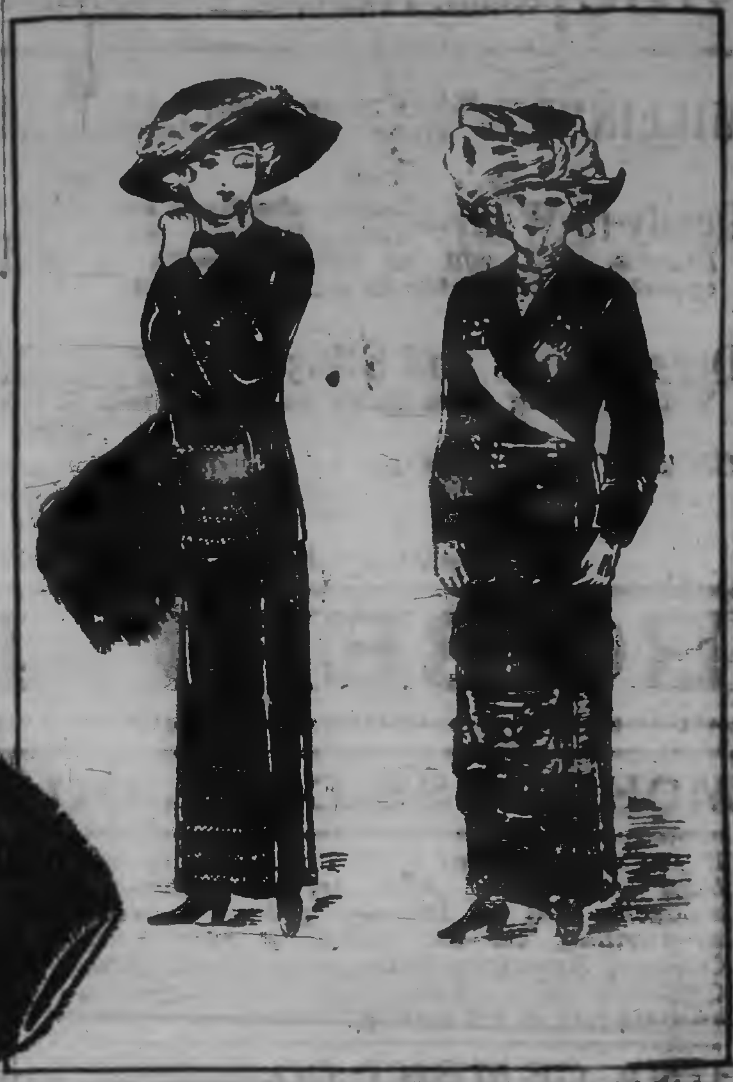
Light colors for the street are confined, however, to younger girls, and as a girl grows older she keeps the pale colors for her hat and for the trimming on her gown and for her frock for dancing school and party, but wears in the street shades almost as sombre as those worn by her mother.

WHEN braiding is employed it is of the color of the material of the dress rather than black, a favorite this year being a half inch silk braid. Flat bands of silk and of the material itself are frequently seen used in the patterns generally worked out in braiding. There is also used—and extremely smart it is, too—a very wide silk braid, wide enough to form deep cuffs on the sleeves or to give the effect of a sailor collar at the top of a jacket, although, of course, stitched down flat to the material and not loose as the sailor collar formed of a material possessing greater body or natural stiffness than this braid.



While the sailor collars are not so much in evidence on "grown up" models, the fashion is still extremely popular on all styles of dress for young people, and is to be seen on their gowns as well as on their smart little coats and wraps. These collars are often rounded over the shoulders and again are cut in long points in the centre, back and front, which, though strictly speaking, not sailor collars at all, nevertheless carry out the original intention of this fashion—that of giving breadth across the shoulders.

A note of contrasting color on a gown or jacket of sombre hue is decidedly in vogue at the moment, and for young girls this is a good fashion to work out, for frequently a practical dress is too dull in tone to be suitable, yet can at once be rendered youthful by a bit of cerise or turquoise chiffon close to the face and at the wrist. There are many charming color combinations worked out this season, but for girls, of course, the less eccentric effects must be kept to. On a costume of deep blue velveteen a note of American Beauty red trimming the bodice and seen again in the revers in the jacket and in the feathers in the hat will be sure to be becoming.



BRIGHT colored linings are somewhat smarter than the white this winter, the shade carrying out the color combination of the rest of the costume. If a jacket has revers of red or blue the chances are that when the coat is opened the same color will show up prettily inside. In many cases also the skirt lining or silk petticoat is of corresponding bright hue. Bright colors will not be suitable always, and if Dame Fashion demands that even young people shall wear dark gowns out of doors, then at least color should be placed as trimming wherever possible; that the gowns for girls may have some distinction from the costumes that their mothers and grandmothers are forced to wear.

It is said that the first spring importations will show skirts a good four yards wide about the ankles, and since there is no question that wider skirts are coming into vogue, it would be well to have the new winter dresses for the schoolgirl made with considerably greater width about the hem than has been seen among the late autumn models. Already many skirts are made with plaited side pieces, while overskirts of which the upper part is by no means narrow are already on view. The overskirt has made its appearance in the newest velveteen and corduroy costumes for girls, satin being combined with the heavier material.

SOFA PILLOWS.

NEW pillows for couches which are attracting quite a lot of attention are made to represent the old fashioned tapestries and furniture covering which most of us have seen in some old fashioned mansions. The foundation of the pillow cover is close black canvas. This does not sound very cheerful, but the bright worsted wreaths embroidered on the pillow gain much of their effect from the sombreness of the background. The wreaths and bouquets are of the brightest hues—rose, red, several shades of green, deep blue, &c. They are quite large and showy, but the colors are so skilfully mingled that no one is dominant and the effect is exactly that of the old furniture coverings. In the old times these coverings were very much in vogue for foot stools, [illegible]

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL

IF a young girl would once stop for a few minutes in conversation and listen to the way her friends recklessly use the English language, she would realize the truth of the remark of older women who sigh and say that the rising generation hasn't even time to talk correctly nowadays. Good English is sacrificed to the rush and tear of modern life, and there is no time to stop and think of grammar. Girls feel that if they have to waste precious moments in considering whether what they say is correct there will not be time to say all they wish to say, so for this reason sentences are slurred and one word is made to suffice where years ago it would have taken two or three to convey the meaning intended.

How frequently is heard, "My dear, I haven't seen you in months, but I can only stay a moment!" So the gossip of an entire season must be told in ten minutes, and in order to do this every word that is not actually necessary is left out. As a result the art of conversation has been forgotten. Many times when a girl is telling an anecdote one hears, "Oh, please spare the details and get to the point!" In order to do this the narrator cuts and shortens as much as possible, since her audience has not time to listen if the tale is to be long, and the girl loses every chance of being able to enlarge her vocabulary or to tell a good story.

Another fault of the modern girl which results from her shortened sentences is the use of exaggeration and the abuse of superlatives. Take, for instance, the much tried words "awful" and "terrible," which the dictionary tells us mean to "fill with awe or terror." How seldom are they correctly used? They are the most common words in a schoolgirl's vocabulary, and yet they are meant to express great emotions. If employed in correct form they would sound flat and tame and be utterly inadequate to express what is meant, simply because they are constantly misused. In order to make herself understood she must resort to superlatives or adjectives. Were the words not so abused they would be quite sufficient in themselves. This is a habit of which a girl should try to break herself.

One of many misfortunes that must be endured by the girl who has acquired this habit of exaggeration lies in the fact that her fault is soon widely known, and no matter how true the story she tells it will be grudgingly accepted, if credited at all. Yet were that girl told that she was not telling the truth she would be indignant and hotly deny the accusation. She should stop and think a minute before making an exaggerated statement and see how ridiculous it sounds.

When a girl says, "It was the most wonderful thing I have ever seen!" in describing a trivial incident the listener may well be sceptical. Again is this exaggeration foolish, because it leaves nothing left to be said when there is something really remarkable to be related. Yet how many girls use that expression "Wonderful!" not once, but ten times a day.

Slang is another bad habit unfortunately acquired by the modern girl, and it must seem that she cannot realize how vulgar it is or she would not use it to such an extent. "Bully!" "Ripping!" "Corking!" &c., are used so frequently that they have almost ceased to be considered slang, although in our grandmothers' time girls would have been shocked had their brothers made use of such words in polite converse. Some girls think slang boyish and smart, but while slang terms on a girl's lips may be amusing at the moment in the long run they cheapen her and detract from her feminine charms.

Attractive Gifts for Christmas.

PIN cases of the most complex and ornamental sort are among the easiest to fashion of the various inexpensive trifles which make acceptable gifts at Christmas time. The foundation of the square, oblong, round, heart or diamond shaped pin case is cardboard cut into two layers of the desired size and [illegible] cotton wadding.

Having joined the edges of these three layers by means of an over and over stitch in heavy linen thread, the foundation thus prepared should be neatly covered with white lawn or batiste and over that with outer covering of satin delicately embroidered in contrasting colors or monogrammed with tinsel thread or pearl beading, while the edges of the case are finished with fancy headed pins stuck closely together and forming a substantial frame.

BANDS for holding together several pieces of lingerie that are to be hung up instead of placed over the back of a chair are another easily fashioned convenience. Take a half yard long and quarter yard wide strip of any pretty satin or fancy silk, double it widthwise, hand run both edges an inch from their tops, then run a third of a yard strip of silk elastic through the pocket be stretched to go about a good sized bundle of lingerie and hung up near a window by a ribbon loop attached to the joined portion of the band.

If it is desired to make this band elaborate, the three ends of the ribbon hanger may be punctuated with big bows of satin ribbon and a trail of silk flowers thus formed, draw up the threads to make a shirring and join the ends of the elastic and pocket into a band which may be caught along the centre of the band for its entire length.

EMBROIDERED pouches for rubbers or sandals will appeal to every woman or girl who realizes that in deference [illegible] to carry about the ordinary [illegible] case provided for them. The specially constructed pouch, however, is a charming affair, quite as sightly as any of the new hand bags or [illegible] and like them may be made in legal envelope size and shape but with a deep flap of embroidered satin, fancy taffeta or brocade and carried by means of a heavy silk cord wrapped around and around the [illegible].

Unless the feet are of abnormal dimensions rubbers to fit them will go into a medium sized legal envelope, and by separating the points of one of these receptacles it will provide exactly the pattern needed for the purposed pouch. Having cut the lining of sheet rubber or vulcanized silk or any fabric which resists dampness, attach to it the outer layer of satin, taffeta or brocade, overcast the edges all round and bind them with narrow ribbon of tinsel or silk.

Next the lower and the two side points may be caught together under a fancy metal button, which holds down the substantial cordage loop attached to the point of the flap. No girl need object to carrying her rubbers in this manner, as the case is exceedingly light, ornamental and of the same shape and dimensions as many of the fashionable purse bags.

A smaller pouch of envelope shape and made of the same materials and in the same manner as is the rubber receptacle can be carried in company with the ordinary hand bag or put inside of it if desired. This pouch is known as the "always tidy," and belongs in the class with the vanity cases, for it contains a washcloth and two towels of fabric paper, a folding comb of celluloid and a wafer of soap—the four public articles which a girl hesitates to use when tidying herself in the dressing room of a restaurant, hotel, railway station or country club.

DAINTY WORKBAGS.

AN exquisitely dainty workbag for holding fine bits of white needlework is made of pink satin and has a large straw flat used for the bottom. The flat is a pink lace and satin finished straw. This is lined with the satin to make it more durable. The satin is made into a full bag and gathered around the edges of the flat. The bag is drawn up with wide satin ribbon. Such a bag, of course, is suitable for only the daintiest work and not for taking out of the house, as the more sturdy workbags are.

Satin workbags, round, oval and square, are trimmed with bands of gold embroidery circling the bag in the middle or carried diagonally across it. Gold fringe finishes the bag around the lower edge and also around the top.

Beautiful shades of taffeta of the fine heavy qualities are much used in the new workbags. Many persons think the heavy taffeta more suitable than the satin for these bags. There is one shade of deep pink in the handsome taffetas, almost a rose, and yet more vivid than a rose, which is very attractive for workbags and looks its best when decorated with the gold braid, lace or fringe.

There are also deep blues and interesting old fashioned flame colors which are exquisite for workbags, and these are to be found in the Ottoman and moire silk as well as in the taffeta.

Brocade workbags also are most fascinating and are quite as fashionable as, perhaps, even more so than, the taffeta bags. Magnificent bits of fabric may be used in this fashion and if the pieces are too small to form the entire bag they are used with the satin or silk. There are an infinite number of ways in which they may be used in this manner and even the smallest pieces are perfectly possible for the decoration of the bag.

If there is enough of the brocade it is sometimes used in a deep band with the silk or satin shirred on the lower or upper part of it. If the pieces are smaller the brocade is made into medallions and set into the sides of the bag. These medallions may be bordered with gold lace or gold braid or with fine shirrings of satin. A bag of rose colored silk had medallions of gold and blue brocade set in the sides. These were bordered with narrow gold fringe. In a bag of Empire green satin, white and gold brocade medallion were most attractive in color. Bags made of brocade which has a dark or black background on which there are bright flowers in small bouquets are fascinating to look at and more useful than the light bags, which cannot be handled more than a few times without losing a good deal of their original charm.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY THE APRIL GRANDMOTHER

"MISS DIANA GREENWAYS has just had her face peeled! That young girl!" The April Grandmother's tones expressed a mingling of surprise, distaste and a keen sense of the ridiculous. "And simply because her complexion did not promptly recover from the effects of five months devoted chiefly to tennis, golf and hunting.

"Now, my dear child, do you remember a single occasion during the last summer and autumn when Miss Diana wore a veil? And did she not tell you that she never wore a hat if it were possible to go without one because both of those articles are such a bother to put on? She did not realize then how her spotted dark face would look above an evening gown."

The April Grandmother repeated her youngest granddaughter's apologetic remark and continued: "The mischief being done, she resorted to the get-bleached-quickly method, and now her features are swollen beyond recognition and she fears blood poisoning. Well, it is not likely that any serious results will ensue—though there's always a certain risk about peeling the face—because Miss Diana is a perfectly healthy girl, but she might have saved herself no end of mental and physical pain had she been content to gradually bleach her complexion.

"I certainly do remember those freckles," replied the April Grandmother with a shudder. "They were big and brown and disfiguring, but they were not of the permanent sort. Lemon juice would have vanquished them—not by eating round holes in her face, but by gradually fading their color. And while the lemon juice was working upon the sun kisses it would have been doing as much for the tan coating which had made her face yellow-brown wherever it was not brown red.

"Yes, lemon is drying to most skins," admitted the April Grandmother, "if the juice is allowed to dry on and nothing is done to counteract its effect. But to prevent the cuticle from getting unduly dry, and also to aid in the gradual bleaching process, there is a lotion made of glycerine diluted with enough rosewater to prevent the skin from smarting. And I may remark in passing that any complexion preparation which cause pain to the face should promptly be discontinued, for, no matter how beneficial it may have been in the case of some other person, skin textures differ so radically that what is sauce for the cuticle of one little goose of a girl is not sauce for the complexion of her dearest friend.

"Strained fresh honey diluted with orange flower water is a face bleach which might safely be used on an infant. Sweet thick cream recently skimmed from a pan of pure milk is also a good bleach and a softener of the skin roughened by autumn winds, and so is the paste which can be made of white almonds. Any of these [illegible] may be used every day, [illegible] because they do not pull the skin off of the face, whereas peroxide of hydrogen—one of the quickest of known bleachers—is harmless if sufficiently diluted and is used [illegible] will take off the cuticle if used in too strong a condition and applied too frequently. While a face is peeling or recovering from a peeling brought about by unnatural means, there is always danger of a break occurring in the true skin and affording a lodgment for malignant germs, and it would be difficult to imagine," concluded the April Grandmother, "a more complete wreck than a face so needlessly poisoned."

For the Girl Who Sews.

WOMEN who are particularly skilful in turning out the charming trifles which form a necessary part of every woman's boudoir will find one of the most attractive Christmas novelties for home manufacture the manicure bag, which is new this year and is to be had ready made only from one or two of the most exclusive shops. The bag is of bronze leather lined with heavy ottoman silk, also in a bronze shade. It is drawn up at the top by narrow strings of the bronze leather.

The bottom of the bag is shaped exactly like a large nail polisher. A piece of cardboard or some other stiff material is cut in this shape and a little larger than the polisher that is to be fitted into it. This stiffened piece is covered on the outside with the leather and on the inside with the Ottoman silk. This bottom piece must be as large as a very good sized polisher or the bag will not be large enough. The leather for the outside is gathered to the edge of this bottom piece. As it is very soft and thin it can be put on fairly full without much difficulty.

The inside of the bag is fitted with pockets, three on each side. On one side are the pockets for the different size scissors. These tiny pockets are lined with thin chamois, so that they will not cut through. On the other side is a pocket for a little gilt box, which holds the nail paste, another pocket for the flask which holds the nail powder and a third pocket for the little bundle of [illegible] or emery board. Two rows of stitching around the top of the bag make a place for the drawing cord of leather, which comes out in two places at the sides, the long ends being fastened together.

COBOURG FAILED TO SEE THE POINT

Cobourg Post

The parties who were desirous of establishing a tack factory in Cobourg with a loan of $65,000 from the town, will altogether likely seek some other locality. The amount was considered too high, and at a joint meeting of the Town Council and Board of Trade a committee was appointed to investigate the standing of the company doing business at Morrisburg and if found satisfactory, to lay a proposition before the promoters. The committee, while seeking information, wished to look over the company's books with a view to ascertain the extent of the business at present being done, but that privilege was denied them, and of course further negotiations became unnecessary.

HORSES INJURED IN RUNAWAYS

Milk Wagon Was Badly Damaged in the Mixups

Special Correspondence

Warsaw, Dec. 7th—Mrs. Sarah McIntosh and Mrs. Marion Clements, returned from the west last week where Mrs. McIntosh has been visiting her son

The boy scouts and boys club gave a splendid concert in the Town Hall Saturday night. An excellent program was furnished which the audience enjoyed to immensity. A number of young men from Peterboro assisted in the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cuffe entertained about one hundred of their friends and relatives on Friday evening. They tripped the light fantastic toe, until small hours of the morning.

We are sorry to record that Mr. Loyd Tighe, who was stricken about a week ago with paralysis of the brain, is not recovering very rapidly

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tedford, on Tuesday last, a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Bullock, on Saturday night, a daughter.

As the service in the Methodist church was ended Sunday night, Mr. Charlie Peters' horse broke loose, and ran through the village. It was caught at Mr. Fred. Calder's corner without any damage being done.

Monday morning, as Mr. Henry Batten was bringing in his load of milk when about half a mile from the factory, his horses became detached from the waggon pulling their driver to the ground. They ran to the village one of them running in around the factory yard and frightening a team belonging to Mr. Allan Edwards causing them to run away. They ran over a milk rig belonging to Mr. Paddy Fitzpatrick, breaking it all to pieces. On leaving the factory yard they jumped over a sleigh belonging to Allan Payne, then struck for the village where they ran astride a lamp post and were caught. Batten's team was caught before further damage was done. Both teams were badly bruised and cut up.

Mr. Tucker has returned from his visit in Peterboro.

MORE ANSWERS

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q. What is Astigmatism of the eye?

A. Astigmatism is an uneven curvature of the eye and causes double focus. As the eye always strives for clear vision this double focus annoys the brain and causes headache and nervousness. We make lenses called cylinders to correct astigmatism.

Q. What causes double vision?

A. Double vision is caused by the eyes not being in line, that is, one may turn up or have a tendency to do so, or both may turn in; a weak muscular system is back of it all.

We would be pleased to have you call and let us explain how such conditions can be relieved with glasses.

THE DAILY REVIEW

COAL

VOL. LXIII., No. 134. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA. FRIDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1911 TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

A vote for Peck is a vote for the best interests of Peterborough; for a man whose personal record is beyond reproach; for a government that has an unparalleled record for honest administration, business ability, and strength of purpose. Whitney is due for another lease of power, and Peterborough needs a Peck to support him.

HOUSE OF COMMONS TAKES RECESS UNTIL JANUARY 10

Spoils System Debate is Continued, and Mix-up Occurs Again — Cut in Cable Rates.

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—"This House stands adjourned till February, January 10."

Speaker Sproule corrected himself before it was too late, and the Parliamentary advocates of the vaster vacation heaved a sigh as they realized that their aspirations which had not dared look beyond January 17, had trembled on the brink of being more than realized.

The concluding instalment of the debate on the "spoils system" yesterday degenerated largely into a frequent repetition of the "you're another" style of argument. Orators declaimed of the swing of the axe and the fall of the razor edge blade of the guillotine, and J. H. Sinclair of Guysboro even traced its gory trail back into the mythical age of Tory iniquity "before 96."

Hon. Wm. Pugsley again brought up the case of the boundary water commission. The late Government's recommendations, he said, had been approved by the British Government. The commission was a tribunal, not to act for either Government, but to do justice as between the Governments of Canada and the United States.

When the House met the Premier read a letter from Lord Strathcona telling of the proposed cut in cable rates, and Hon. L. P. Pelletier read a cable from Postmaster Samuels informing him that the cut would go into effect on January 1, 1912.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemiuex congratulated his successor on reaping where he himself had sown. It was only the first instalment, he said. There was a movement on foot in Britain for a bolder step.

"We should have a Government-owned cable. I think the time has come when the cable monopoly should be restrained by the construction by the Government of a state-owned cable."

In answer to a question by C. A. Wilson (Laval) as to whether the Canadian Copyright Bill would be founded on the bill just passed by the Imperial Parliament, Hon. Martin Burrell said that the latter bill had not been received, but when it was, it would be given careful consideration.

Hon. J. D. Hazen, in answer to a question of J. H. Sinclair (Guysboro), said he believed the outside fisheries service might be reorganized with benefit to the service. For instance there were defects in the present method of appointing fisheries inspectors. He was collecting information with a view to action.

Hon. R. L. Borden announced that the Government intended to introduce the measure to establish a tariff commission at the present session.

Hon. Jacques Bureau raised a laugh by asking whether the Minister of Justice was aware that, according to newspaper report, the notorious Bill Miner was in the vicinity of Ottawa and whether steps would be taken towards his capture.

The House agreed to refund the fees, less cost of printing and translation, of private bills undisposed of at the last session, owing to the sudden dissolution.

A bill of Robert Bickerdick (Montreal-St. Lawrence), to amend the Juvenile Delinquents Act, received its second reading, with an amendment. The bill provides for the same protection to the children of other religious denominations as to the children of Roman Catholics and Protestants, the Jews being the class aimed at. The amendment gives the court discretion as to the suitability of the committee of three of the same race and religion as to the child appointed under the act. In the discussion the committee (H. B. Ames, Montreal, St. Antoine) objected that the terms of the measure were too wide. There were a great many religious denominations. What about Armenians, Chinese or Hindus. Mr. Bickerdike thought the wider the measure the better.

PROBABILITIES

Southerly and southerly winds fair and mild to-day. Showers in many localities during the night and on Saturday.

HAREM LADIES SEE THE KING

Unveiling of Statue in Honor of King Edward

Special To The Review.

Delhi, Dec. 8—At the unveiling of a huge equestrian statue of King Edwards to-day, arrangements were made that the high caste veiled ladies from the princely harems, might secure a glimpse of the King and Queen from the curtained litters.

AEROPLANE, WITH SEARCHLIGHTS, IN NOCTURNAL FLIGHTS.

NIGHT FLIGHT AT BUC

So that an aviator may be able to make reconnoitring flights at night Mr. Maurice Farman is making experiments at Buc with an aeroplane fitted with two electric searchlights, one on each side of the pilot's seat. The electricity is provided by a dynamo which uses the power of the motor. A battery of accumulators is carried on the biplane, so that light will not fail in case the dynamo gets out of working order

McMANIGAL TAKES THE STAND IN McNAMARA INVESTIGATION

Persists in His Story That More People Than the McNamaras Were Implicated in the Dynamiting.

Los Angeles, Dec. 8.—"I've got hundreds of thousands of dollars and the American Federation of Labor back of me. It took only $30,000 to clear Vincent Altman of Chicago, and if they could not convict him they can't convict me."

This boast, attributed yesterday by Detective Malcolm McLaren to James B. McNamara as the latter was being taken on a train from Detroit to Chicago on the night of April 12 last, caused Ortie E. McManigal, then also under arrest, to become angered with McNamara for his independent statement and was the first circumstance that led McManigal to break from his companion, and eventually to confess his connection with various dynamiting explosions throughout the country.

The federal grand jury heard McManigal's story all day and will hear more of it to-day, laying the foundation for the probe into the alleged dynamiting conspiracies that extend from coast to coast in the last three years. The McNamaras were not brought before the federal grand jury yesterday, and it may be that McManigal's story will be regarded as sufficient and the other two will be taken to San Quentin without interrogation here.

Details of what McManigal knows of the alleged conspiracies was given to the grand jury yesterday. That his story implicates other men in the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers became known through various sources.

McManigal alleges that persons other than John J. McNamara, the secretary and treasurer, paid him for the twenty "jobs" of dynamiting which he says he accomplished in 1907.

The story of McManigal will be of great value to the Government's investigators, and the state will not try him on the indictments against him until the federal authorities are through. Even then, it was stated last night on good authority, District Attorney Fredericks will recommend his discharge on account of signal service rendered.

Malcolm McLaren, the detective who arrested J. B. McNamara and McManigal, stayed outside the grand jury chamber yesterday waiting for McManigal. While thus waiting, McLaren gave a new version, new in important details, of the evidence and circumstances which led up to the arrest of McManigal and McNamara in Detroit.

A. F. of L. Statement.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Organized labor in America has no desire to condone the crimes of the McNamaras, according to a statement authorized last night by the American Federation of Labor. The statement, which was issued at the close of three-hour meeting behind closed doors, denounces the McNamaras and continues:

"It is cruelly unjust to hold the men of the labor movement either legally or morally responsible for the crimes of an individual member. Insofar as we have the right to speak, we welcome any investigation which either federal or state courts may undertake. The American labor movements and its friends are loyal Americans and seek to obtain the abolition of wrongs and the attainment of their rights within the law."

Watching Gompers.

Indianapolis, Dec. 8.—That the Federal Government has been watching closely the movements of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was made known here Wednesday night, when U. S. Attorney Miller told of a secret Washington conference held between the labor head and Prosecutor Baker of the county about six weeks ago.

The visit was made about the time the county officials were attempting to prevent the federal authorities from gaining possession of the books and records obtained in the offices of the International Ironworkers, when McNamara was arrested. Baker says he will see Gompers again in January.

Gompers Attacks Burns.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Sampel Gompers has issued a formal statement saying:

"Detective Burns evidently believes that if he repeats a falsehood often enough, it may become truth. On no other theory would he repeat the falsehood that I knew that the McNamaras were guilty."

KING AND QUEEN ARRIVE AT DELHI WITH ORIENTAL POMP

Delhi, India, Dec. 8.—The roar of an Imperial salute of 101 guns welcomed the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress on their arrival here yesterday.

Equipages passed along the roads crowded with Indian princes, military officers and Government officials, and streams of natives went the same way.

After a series of presentations, Their Majesties proceeded to a pavilion within a wall of the fort, where 150 ruling chiefs were introduced. Meanwhile the provincial legislators had gathered on the ridge by the durbar camp to greet the royal party.

Then began the great procession to the camp four miles away. Throughout India a holiday had been decreed, and hordes of natives had gathered.

As Their Majesties approached, the command to present arms was passed along the line of troops. European spectators took off their hats and the natives bent deep towards the ground. The King, the Queen and the Viceroy bowed right and left in acknowledgment.

The bodyguard of Indian princes, who followed immediately after, outshone in splendor all that had passed.

Their Majesties entered the city through the Ging's gate, now opened for the first time since 1857, when the King of Delhi went to public worship.

All along the route the impression seemed to be profound, and the reception was a cordial one. On arrival at the camp the troops filed past the Imperial carriage, receptions followed, and the King was presented with a brief address of welcome, to which he replied.

Their Majesties and the viceregal party then repaired to their camp, of which Circuit House, built by Lord Curzon in 1903, is the centre.

The vast camp stretches along the great trunk road in long symmetrical rows of white tents, almost blinding in the vertical Indian sun, while the whole place when Their Majesties entered blazed with the bright hues of the east.

About a quarter of a million persons have taken up their quarters, in the canvas city, which is broken up by green lawns, polo grounds, fountains and avenues of trees.

The great day of course will be on Tuesday, Dec. 12, when the most notable ceremony of all will take place. As a unit the vast multitude will head toward the two amphitheatres that have been erected on the spot where in 1877 Lord Lytton formally announced to the Indian Empire Queen Victoria's assumption of the title of "Empress of India."

Thus probably a hundred thousand people will be enabled to witness the proclamation of his Imperial Majesty as King-Emperor of India.

Brantford's New P.O.

Brantford, Dec. 8.—George Ross, postoffice superintendent, and C. H. Hunter, Public Works Department, were here yesterday looking over sites for Brantford's proposed new postoffice. An official report will be submitted and it is confidently expected this city will secure the new Government buildings. The late Government offered to provide a new building if the city provided a site, but nothing materialized. The Borden Government is being urged to expropriate a building site for that purpose.

SIR JAMES ON THE RAILWAY

Says That Spur Lines Will be Built on T. & N.O.

Orillia, Dec. 8.—That the spur line which the T. & N.O. Railway intends to build to Elk Lake next summer, as announced Wednesday by J. L. Englehart, chairman of the commission, is only the initial step in a series of spur lines reaching right and left along the whole route of the main line of the T. & N. O., and tapping that part of the province with a chain of Government railway extensions was definitely stated by Sir James Whitney last night. "The plans contemplated would," said the Premier, "go a long way towards opening up the entire northern part of the province for settlement."

The opera house was jammed to the doors, and dozens of people crowded into the aisles and stood on the backs of seats to get a view of the platform.

Sir James was particularly emphatic in commending the investigations that were being made previous to formulating the Ontario act for compensating injured workmen. "I have no doubt that we will get the best compensation for injured workmen act of any country in the world," said Sir James, after explaining that Chief Justice Meredith was investigating similar acts of compensation in different countries.

Sir James referred to the T. & N. O. Railway as the living link that connects the transcontinental Grand Trunk Pacific with the railways of old Ontario going to the tide waters and thence to the Old Land.

The Premier then referred to the numerous spur lines which were contemplated and of which the one which would be run to Elk Lake next summer was the first.

STARVATION IN RUSSIA

People are Eating Dogs and Bark From Trees

Special To The Review.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 8—Famine conditions in the Ufa and Samara provinces are so terrible that the people are eating dogs and the bark trees. Thousands have been living on acorns and the supply is almost exhausted. Besides refusing to send aid, the government prohibits the organisation of private relief measures.

Must Pay Italian $1,500.

Belleville, Dec. 8.—An Italian named Youne, employed on the Trent Valley Canal, received a verdict for $1,500 for the loss of a thumb and a broken arm from the premature blast of dynamite. It was alleged the contractors, Dennon & Rogers, were negligent in the matter.

TAFT FRIEND OF GERMANY

Would Like to Have an Arbitration Treaty.

Berlin, Dec. 8.—The Tageblatt publishes under a Washington date what purports to be an interview with President Taft on the subjects of international arbitration, armaments, Mr. Shuster and the trusts.

According to the correspondent, the President is most anxious for an arbitration treaty with Germany, of whose love of peace he is firmly convinced. He foresees that all nations which sign arbitration treaties with the U. S. will duplicate these among themselves. An international tribunal, he thinks, can be based on this structure, with the necessary executive power to enforce its decisions. The first decision of such a tribunal would give the signal for a successive limitation of armaments, for which there is no other prospect.

President Taft, says the correspondent, believes that the Panama Canal by bringing the nations commercially closer together will work for peace. The canal will be open to all nations, with a natural limitation in the case of war.

After giving the opinion of the President in regard to the trusts which covered much the same ground as the recent message, the correspondent says that the President is convinced that reorganization is necessary, and that this should be effected without the disturbance of commercial progress.

The President recognized in the course of an interview that a tariff which was too high favored the building up of monopolies and was a continual temptation to form small trusts, which were often more oppressive to the consumer than the big ones. He was, says the correspondent, conscious that he was elected upon the expectation of an honorable tariff commission.

President Taft suggested that the law courts offer a remedy to German importers who are protesting that Canadian paper arrangements constitute discrimination.

Referring to the position of W. Morgan Shuster, the American, who is acting as treasurer-general in Persia, President Taft said that he went to Persia in his private capacity and that intervention by the U. S. was excluded.

President Taft throughout the interview showed unmistakably that his sympathies were with Germany.

Must Protect Falls.

Washington, Dec. 8.—"Vandalism will continue until checked, unless a national reservation is established at Niagara Falls," declares a report which President Taft yesterday sent to Congress from the committee for regulation and control of the waters of the Niagara River and the preservation of Niagara Falls. The report tells of many improvements accomplished, but declares that the committee has been powerless to cope with deplorable conditions on the American side, north of the falls.

"Apparently," it is asserted, "the situation is beyond control, except through the creation of the national reservation recommended in the 65th Congress."

"ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF A SUPPLY OF HYDRO POWER?"

Yesterday was the third day in which the Stratton organ was silent on the question of hydro-electric power. This silence is rather awesome, after the attempts of the organ to knife the hydro-electric scheme by using all sorts of objections to it—many of them conceived in prejudice and born in political antipathy. The history of the power discussion has been this, as far as the organ's attitude has been concerned:

Three weeks ago—very hostile. The hydro-electric was a fake and a bunco game for vote-catching purposes.

Two weeks ago—The hydro-electric commission had helped Western Ontario a great deal by its cheap power. Why should Peterborough be left out in the cold?

One week ago—The hydro-electric should be adopted by Peterborough, if it was a good proposition.

Last three days—0 0 0.

Now that the city council has passed a resolution to have submitted at the municipal elections this question to the ratepayers: "Are you in favor of a supply of power from the hydro-electric commission?" This habit of saying 0 0 0 should not be prolonged too late in the season. Let the organ join with the Review in supporting the movement, up to the stage where the people are called on to vote for the actual contract with the hydro-electric, with all the facts and figures before them. Hon. Adam Beck would like to have an ally in the Liberal organ. He is working for the interests of the municipality, and surely the organ would like to play in the same chorus.

Now it should be explained what the object of this question which will be put to the electors at the municipal election is. The hydro-electric has certain proposals to carry out in regard to the development of the dams which it has secured and with others it may secure. But would it not be very foolish for the hydro-electric commission to go ahead with its plans, erect generating stations, transmission lines, and spend a lot of money, without knowledge to some degree of the sentiment of the people of Peterborough on the broad principle of whether they would like hydro-electric power or not? Suppose that the commission spent a million dollars in developing these water powers so as to be able to deliver power to Peterborough, and when the matter came to a vote by the people, it was turned down good and hard! Would that not be a foolish position for the commission to be in?

The only business like procedure for both commission and Peterborough, is the one which has been adopted. The people must be asked whether they would like to have hydro-electric power or not. They are asked, not to ratify any contract, not to make any binding deal with the commission, but merely to indicate by a popular vote that they want hydro-electric power, and then later on, there will be another vote on the actual concrete proposition;

Is not this a fair proposition? Peterborough does not want to buy a "pig in a poke," as the Stratton organ says. Neither does the commission want to spend a lot of money, only to find that popular sentiment in Peterborough would not consider any proposition from the commission, whether it be bad or good. The commission will not be able to provide the estimate for the cost of development and the other figures in connection with the scheme until later on. In the meantime it asks merely for the voicing of the popular approval of its efforts, so that it may go ahead with the formulation of a concrete proposition for submission to the people.

The elections will be over on Monday, Whitney will be returned, as Mackenzie King prophesied last night, and Peck will be elected. R. R. Hall has worked hard, but he cannot escape from the odium which attaches to many of his efforts in Peterborough. Mr. Hall has not yet made any explanation of that September trip to Ottawa to try to snatch from the Laurier government on its deathbed the lease of a dam on the Trent valley system. If the hydro electric wants some expression of its approval from Peterborough, the citizens of this growing city can do no better than to elect Peck, the champion of that policy, by a handsome majority. R. R. Hall is an active enemy of the cheap power movement. He is financially tied up in the private corporations, and would be a big obstruction in the way of the accomplishment of the scheme. Peterborough must vote for Peck, if it wants to make sure that it will get what is rightly coming to it from the Whitney government.

In the meantime, it is hoped that the one-time enemy of the hydro-electric, later the bearer of a flag of truce, will be able to change its uniform, and march in the hydro procession to a sure and certain triumph. The cause of the people first, and that of monopolies second.

RECORD OF THE WHITNEY GOVERNMENT

1. Imposed taxation upon the railways—one half of which goes to the municipalities.
2. Put an end to the granting of subsidies to railways.
3. Honestly and successfully enforced the Liquor License Laws.
4. Largely increased the Good Roads Grants.
5. Abolished the Numbered Ballot.
6. Created the Railway and Municipal Board.
7. Reduced the price of School Books by one-half, and destroyed the School Book Ring.
8. Revised the Mining Laws, and secured a much larger return from mines for the people.
9. Reconstructed the administration and financial resources of the Provincial University.
10. Revised the Public School System, and gave School Teachers a voice in matters of Education.
11. Conserved the natural resources of the Province.
12. Put the Temiskaming Government Railway on a paying basis.
13. Largely increased the Grants for Schools and School Teachers.
14. Gave the Municipalities a fairer share of the Liquor License Fees.
15. Increased the grants to Hospitals and Charities.
16. Established Agricultural Schools.
17. Put the Provincial Finances on a sound and stable footing, and doubled the Provincial Revenue.
18. Put an Export Duty on Pulp Wood cut on Provincial Crown Lands.
19. Enacted that no Municipal franchise can be granted except on a vote of the Ratepayers.
20. Practically repealed the obnoxious "Conmee Bill."
21. Abolished the competition of prison labor with commercial concerns, and established a central prison farm instead.
22. Established the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and gave cheap power and electric light.

NE TEMERE TO BE PRODUCED

Hebert Case Will be Followed to Finish.

Montreal, Dec. 8.—A Protestant minister and a Roman Catholic priest will be the principal witnesses on Monday when hearing takes place on the formal inscription for judgment following the desistment of Eugene Hebert from defending the judgment originally annulling the marriage of himself and Emma Marie Cloustre under the provisions of the ne temere decree.

Rev. Mr. Timberlake, the Methodist pastor, who married the Roman Catholic pair will be the Protestant minister and Rev. Father Callaghan, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese, will represent his church, producing as a portion of his evidence a copy of the famous decree under which the wedding was declared null and void.

Both ministers were present at court yesterday morning when the case was adjourned until Monday. They are expected to make proof of the marriage and the stand of the defendant, based upon the decree.

Not content with getting judgment formally, following the desistment of the husband, who retired from the fight because of lack of funds to fight his wife's opposition, George V. Cousins, the attorney for Mrs. Hebert, wants the testimony taken, owing to the principle at stake.

Infanta is Contrite.

Madrid, Dec. 9.—King Alfonso has received a letter from the Infanta Eulalia asking him to pardon her, and saying that she had acted in a moment of forgetfulness. "She had," she said, "no intention of wounding the royal family nor from a political motive. She begs to have an opportunity of showing that she is an affectionate aunt and a true and loyal Spaniard."

The trouble arose from the publication of a book relating her experience of court life, which the King forbade her to publish.

A vote for Hall is a vote against the people's cheap power scheme; a vote for a man whose record might be improved; for a leader who is without experience in handling provincial affairs: for a party that can only say "me too" to the progressive policies, the business administration of the Whitney government.

ANOTHER MANIFESTO

Three days ago the Guelph Mercury said: "There is nothing gained by making predictions, but no well informed observer would be surprised if the government were defeated this day week." There is certainly nothing to be gained making predictions of that kind. The Liberal party's failure to find candidates in twenty-three constituencies must have opened the Mercury's eyes by this time. The Toronto Globe thinks that "the province needs the steadying influence of Liberal strength," but does not suggest where such strength is to be found. Nor do Mr. Rowell's manifestos assist much in the search. They are too general and too obviously designed to catch the votes of opposing classes in the community to carry much weight with thoughtful electors.

The leader's latest paper pellet will work no more damage to the Whitney government than did its predecessors. It promises too many reforms which the Ministry has already accomplished, is accomplishing or has under way. What is the use of saying that the Liberal policy is to give the people cheap electric power when Mr. Beck, already elected by acclamation, is doing that very thing as fast as possible. Great sections of the province are already served and before long the whole province from the Ottawa river to Lake Huron will have public-owned light, heat and power at its doors. Mr. Rowell thinks that Northern Ontario should not be neglected, but Mr. Hearst's election by acclamation shows that the north country does not regard itself as slighted. The Ministry has accomplished much in New Ontario, and the co-operation of the Whitney and Borden Cabinets in developing and peopling that part of the province and in furnishing it with increased transportation facilities is certain to bring immensely happy results.

Mr Rowell talks of what he would do for education and for Public school teachers if he ever got a chance—which he will not for a long time to come. The teachers were never half so well off under Liberal governments as they are to-day. The present government has gone some distance towards recognizing their worth by forcing their salaries upwards, and it is turning out a much larger number of well qualified teachers than did the succeeding Ministry. Any shortage of teachers is due to the parsimony of school boards, to the high salaries paid in Western Canada, and to the greater rewards offered in other occupations. Mr. Rowell's fresh deliverance on the bi-lingual school question will not arouse much enthusiasm throughout Ontario when his close alliance with Senator Belcourt and the French-Canadian Educational Association is recalled.

The fact that nobody could be procured to run against the Minister of Agriculture rather takes the force out of the leader's assault on that department. He has the temerity to raise the Farmers' Bank ghost, but everyone knows that in the face of repeated warnings a Liberal Minister of Finance at Ottawa at Ottawa allowed that unsound institution to begin business. The widespread losses that resulted are laid in large measure at Mr. Fielding's door. Mr. Rowell decries mergers and trusts, but a few weeks ago he worked with The Globe and The Star to turn the whole of Canada over to the American combines and monopolies which are the most powerful and the most oppressive the world has ever seen. The administration of the liquor license laws is criticised by Mr. Rowell, but his temperance friends will tell him that never before have the regulations been so well enforced.

Mr. Rowell must feel qualms of conscience when he speaks of the "spoils system" in connection with the Whitney Ministry. Having himself for many years defended the corrupt machines at Toronto and Ottawa his championship of civil service reform sounds rather hollow much as all may agree upon the desirability of an improvement in the status of government employes. The leader rebukes Sir James Whitney's curtness, apparently oblivious of the fact that the public prefers even that fault to the sidestepping methods of some politicians. Mr. Rowell advocates legislation for injured workmen, but he fails to support Mr. Mackenzie King's attack on the Chief Justice who is drawing up a workmen's compensation bill that, it is hoped, will safeguard the interests of wage-earners more effectively than the English or any other Act is doing. The Opposition is right in attacking campaign contributions from corporations, and in advocating the appointment of a public prosecutor to deal with electoral frauds, but the proposal comes ill from the consistent defender of two Governments that stole more constituencies and corrupted a greater number of counties than any of their predecessors.

SOME FACTS

Following are some facts and figures comparing the status of affairs in the province as at 1905 when the Whitney government came into power, and in 1910. Is there not a wonderful improvement shown in every item? Let those who talk about the Whitney administration not being progressive and business-like examine these figures:

EDITORIAL NOTES

A vote for E. A. Peck is a vote for a clean, able, upright candidate against whom not a word can be said.

Messrs. Stratton and Hall are a great combination. What they cannot think of, by putting their heads together, isn't worth very much.

Even Mackenzie King had to admit that Whitney would be returned. Why should not Peck represent Peterborough and support the government!

Mackenzie King lived up to his reputation last night as a man very careless in what he had to say. Its accuracy was a question that did not trouble him in the least.

The remarks of Mr. Hall on the power question last night were less than candid. He dodged the real power question. He did not say a word as to his trip to Ottawa in September to get a lease of Dam No. 4 from the Laurier government on its death bed. Not one word. And it is a very interesting subject.

Four Die In Fire.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—Four bodies, a man, two women and a child, have been taken from the ruins of the Marie apartment house. They have not been identified, but it is believed they are the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Balfour, their child, and Miss Baker, who were first reported to have escaped. About twenty persons, several of them women prominent in society, were in danger.

The burned building was a four-storey stone residence, which had been converted into an apartment house. Most of the occupants, a majority of whom are women, had retired for the night when the flames were discovered on the second floor.

Several women received injuries by jumping from windows, and four firemen were overcome by smoke. The loss was $100,000.

Rats Dined on His $2,565.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 7—The life's savings of Jack Simpson of Aitken, Minn., amounting to $2,565, securely hidden from burglars, were reduced to pulp by hungry rats and mice, and in a letter received by President Taft he appeals for the redemption of the pulverized fragments by the federal treasury.

His wealth, accumulated to buy a farm, Simpson explained, was placed in a box and deposited between the "upstairs floor and ceiling." No human being disturbed it, but when he took it from its hiding place, he found it reduced to dust by the ravages of rodents. The President has referred the matter to the Treasury Department for investigation.

"Plain Warning," 'Tis Said.

Paris, Dec. 7.—The Paris newspapers give great prominence to the German Chancellor's speech in the Reichstag on Tuesday. While they greet his utterances with satisfaction as marking a welcome close to the long series of negotiations and conversations, which at times threatened the peace of Europe, they are of the opinion that the Chancellor's speech does not altogether dissipate "the nightmare of an impending European cataclysm" in view of the plain warning to any who may venture to stand in the way of the policy of German expansion, which the Chancellor proclaims for the future.

Will Force It Through.

London, Dec. 7.—Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon that the Government would use all the constitutional means at its disposal to pass a home rule bill for Ireland during the lifetime of the present Parliament.

Mr. Asquith declared this in reply to a question from William O'Brien, member for Cork city, who expressed concern at a recent report that Mr. Asquith was trying to get the House of Lords to throw out the home rule bill when it reaches the Upper House.

The Premier by his announcement yesterday means that he undertakes to force the home rule bill through three consecutive sessions if necessary, thus making it become effective in spite of the opposition of the peers.

Three Blacks Lynched.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 7.—Two negroes and one young negress were burned to death by a mob of white land tenants, who object to the occupancy of land by negroes, near Savannah, Tenn., Tuesday, according to meagre reports received here yesterday. The lynching is said to have occurred ten miles from Clifton, Tenn.

The three negroes were traveling to a gin with a load of seed cotton. They were waylaid and tied to the wagon load of cotton, it is said, and the mob, after making a fire of the wagon, stood guard until the negroes were cremated.

Fire In Toronto.

Toronto, Dec. 7.—Fire, and the attendant flood from twenty lays of hose, through which the streams were held at high pressure by several engines, damaged W. A. Dunn's lumber yard and planing mill, 108 Davenport road, the Old Woman's Home, 53 Belmont street, and surrounding buildings to the extent of $60,000. The fire was a stubborn one to fight, owing to the exceedingly inflammable nature of the materials at hand, and to a defect in the roof construction of the home building, and the insufficient water pressure at the start.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—After wavering between strength and weakness, the wheat market to-day was steadied by covering to anticipate a possible surprise in the government crop report, due just at the closing minute of the session. The surprise came all right—an official estimate that the United States has planted 2,272,000 acres less winter wheat than a year ago.

The Liverpool market closed to-day unchanged to ⅛d lower on wheat, and ⅝d higher on corn. Antwerp closed unchanged to 1¼c higher on wheat, Berlin ½c lower, Buda Pest ¼c higher.

shoot the women, and die fighting, or save them."

It was brutally said, but it had the advantage of bringing the issue plainly before every one.

"How can we save them?"

"There's only one way. The Indians are all here now. If a man could get through that ring he'd have a clear course to Sody. There's five horses in the kitchen."

"But we cain't leave the place unguarded."

"No, of course not. It's got to be one at a time till we do get thruogh, and if no one gets through—well, then, Boss, we'd most as well take a turn at praying."

For a moment there was silence, and then someone asked:

"Is it to be by day-light, or at night?"

"I guess it don't make no odds," replied Al. "We should have had a good show last night, but the fog has all gone. They won't do much attacking in broad daylight, our people shoot too straight, and the Injuns know it, but they'll do mighty little sleeping at night. I'd leave that to the man as goes. Kin I have that roan as Jim rode for a first shot, Boss?"

It was said so quietly, that no one ignorant of the circumstances, would have guessed that the rough and grizzled old rider was offering his life, but the color came to the Boss's eyes as he answered:

"The stakes are mine, Al, and I play them."

"Pardon, sir, I think you forget," said Anstruther, courteously, "the stakes are not all yours. Volunteers for a forlorn hope should be unmarried men. The captain's duty is to stay by his ship to the last. Al and Combe have had their turn. You will let me go."

"Nonsense, boy, you couldn't sit a horse now."

"Nor couldn't find his way if he did get through. See here, Rolt. It's Al or me for this job, and Al's wounded, so it's me," and Combe turned to leave the room.

But Anstruther caught him by the arm.

"No, by heaven, you don't, Combe! It is for Mr. Rolt to decide. You are not master here. What do you say, sir? Will you shame me? Is it not my right? Combe went for me. The whole trouble is my fault. I can never hold up my head again if you don't let me go."

There was such a genuine ring of entreaty in the young fellow's voice that Rolt, looking at him, wavered.

He understood that, to a man like Anstruther, there might be worse things than death.

"Couldn't we settle it by drawing lots? That's what they always do in books."

It was Fairclough who spoke, and in the impasse to which they had come the suggestion met with some favor.

"If I agree to Mr. Fairclough's suggestion," said Rolt, seeing that the feeling of the meeting was with the last speaker, "it will only be on the understanding that all draw. I will waive my right to go first if you will all agree to that. Otherwise I go."

For a few minutes Combe and Anstruther tried to argue with him, but though the easiest-going man in British Columbia as a rule, Rolt could be sufficiently resolute upon occasion.

"It ain't no use argufying," said Al, irritably. "Seems to me we had ought to know the Boss by now. He's that blanked contrary that if every one else was keeping Christmas, he'd put in the day hauling gravel. May as well cut for the deal if he says so."

This settled it, and Rolt, turning to Anstruther, asked him to get a pack of cards from Mrs. Rolt.

"Is it any good keeping this from the ladies? They might prevent his going if the lot should fall to him. Nothing else will, and I don't believe that he could sit a horse for a mile. His ribs can't be knit yet."

"Don't you worry about that colt, Boss. He ain't used to our range yet, but he's a bit of good stuff and harder nor you think. Let him be and give him a fair show. It's five to one against his getting the deal anyway. But you kin tell the ladies. They aren't the sort to holler."

"Thank you, Al, old friend. I knew we might come in."

It was Mary Rolt herself who spoke, having come in quietly while the men were talking, with Kitty by her side, whose young beauty was woefully marred by the strain of the last few days.

If any one had had time to notice such things then, he might have been struck by the contract between the two women. A face is after all only the window which a soul looks through, so that whereas the pink and white had died from Kitty's soft cheek, the pretty curls lost their soft coquetry, the dimple become almost a hollow, and she herself a very worn and wistful shadow of the spoiled darling of the ranch; in the other woman the strain had only emphasized every brave line in her clear-cut face made firmer the curve of her sweet lips, and given depth to her fearless eyes.

Rolt looked at her, and in his eyes was the pride without which love is not perfect.

"You know what we are going to do, Mary, and you know that I am cutting with the rest?"

"Of course. You could do nothing else. I will cut first for you, Dick. Lowest deals, of course?"

She had cast the cards on the table, and now stood facing the men, a tall, slight figure, as calm to all outward seeming as if this were but the beginning of a game of bridge.

"Yes, ma'am. Lowest deals, as you say," replied Al, with a great smile in his deep wrinkles, and under his breath muttered:

"Holy smoke, ain't she a peach?"

"Ace high?"

"Ace high it is."

"Then I cut for my husband. Whoever cuts the lowest card makes the first attempt."

For a moment her eyes rested on Dick Rolt, and perhaps her lips trembled—they are the only part of the face which no one can control—but if they did, it was so slightly that no one in the room could have seen it, and if she sat down somewhat suddenly when she had turned up the knave of diamonds, she had reason enough to be tired, and the room was hot. At once Jim, Al, and Anstruther went to the table together, but Mrs. Rolt held up her hand.

"In order of precedence, please, gentlemen." And then with a little curl about her lips: "Our guest comes first," and young Fairclough came from his corner with somewhat overdone nonchalance and turned a card quickly.

"No luck," he said, as he turned up a nine.

"You don't know yet, Mr. Fairclough," she said sweetly. "The foreman next."

Jim Combe hesitated a moment, and a queer smile spread over his face. He remembered that if a pack of cards is shot over a smooth surface it is not impossible to guess where the low cards will be, the least painted offering the least resistance, and he picked his card carefully.

His rule was justified. The card he chose had only one pip on it, but for a moment his face clouded. Then he smiled again.

"Ace low, you said, Mrs. Rolt?"

"I thought that Jim Combe was a square player," she said, but there was no censure in her tones. "You know the rule, Jim. Stand back. Your turn, Al."

"Give me a little 'un, ma'am."

She hesitated. It is not pleasant to send an old friend to his death, and the cards which had been cut were all high.

"You want me to cut for you, Al?"

"If the Boss don't mind, ma'am."

Rolt nodded to her to humor the old man, but her hand shook as she turned up a five of spades.

"Oh, Al, I'm so sorry."

"Then you ain't got no call to be. It's what I asked for, ain't it, and I mostly asks for what I want," and he swung gaily round on his heels to leave the room.

"Hold on, Al!" said a quiet voice at his elbow, "there is one more to cut yet."

"'Tain't no use, Mr. Anstruther. You ain't fit to go, and there ain't anything there no lower than a five."

"There are three lower, Al. If you please, Mrs. Rolt."

Mrs. Rolt looked up into the quiet smiling face, and saw a light in it which she had never seen before. It was as if Anstruther knew what lay in store for him, and the knowledge made him hold his head more proudly.

"He is right, Al. You pledged yourselves that all should cut. Take your card, Frank."

As she spoke Kitty Clifford moved from her friend's side uncertainly towards Anstruther, and then stood hesitating, her lips trembling and her sweet eyes full of unshed tears.

"What is it, Kitty? Do you want to cut for him?"

She tried to answer, but no sound came from her parted lips.

"Shall she cut for you, Frank?"

"Will you, Miss Clifford—Kitty?" and he held out his hand to her. For a moment the boy and girl stood there hand in hand before that altar of chance, forgetful of the world and reckless of the betrayal of their secret.

It was a strange betrothal, but such it seemed to all who saw them. In a silence which could be felt, the girl's white hand began to move uncertainly over the pack, touching a card here and another there, as if afraid to choose.

The others had drawn their lots at once. To them it seemed that minutes elapsed whilst that little hand wandered over the table, and each man prayed in his own fashion that she might choose aright.

At last, like a child who fears to see the knife, she shut her eyes, and clutching a card, held it up to Anstruther, over whose face a proud smile spread as bright and genuine as daylight.

"Thank you, dear. You have saved my honor. You don't mind if I spoil your pack, Mrs. Rolt. I shall want this card by and by more than you will," and kissing it, he put it into his breast pocket.

But Kitty caught at his hand and cried to him to show it to her.

"Another time, dear. It is the best card in the world for me."

"What was it, Frank? Show it to me, oh, show it to me!"

"Not now, Kitty," and bending down, he kissed her white brow before them all, and with his arm round her waist, half led, half carried, her to Mrs. Rolt.

"Take her away now. For God's sake take her away!" he said, and Mrs. Rolt led Kitty sobbing from the room.

"Oh, Mary! Mary! I have killed him. Frank—"

THIS ANARCHIST A MILLIONAIRE

(A True Detective Story).

Scotland Yard differs on many subjects amongst itself, but it is agreed upon one point, and that is that the most dangerous, slippery, and remarkable "crook" it ever had to deal with was George Ferdinand Springmulh von Weissenfeld.

They nicknamed him the Anarchist millionaire, partly because he devoted a considerable proportion of the money he acquired by a life of crime to furthering the Anarchist cause, and also because many of his chosen associates, both men and women, were revolutionary Anarchists of a pronounced type.

He came of a good family, and was exceedingly well educated, having graduated with high honors in science, medicine, and literature at one of the principal German universities. But he was a born criminal, and a dangerous one; a throw-back to the aboriginal savage.

A little matter of forgery and attempted murder made his native land too hot to hold him, and he fled to England. This was in 1880, and it did not take him long to blossom forth into a professional blackmailer and swindler of a peculiarly odious type.

He'd Never Be Taken Alive

Once he found himself in the clutches of the law, and received a well-merited sentence at the Old Bailey of twelve months imprisonment with hard labor. His temper was not improved by this one taste of oakum-picking, and he vowed that he would never do another "stretch" (year's imprisonment), no matter what came. After this he always went armed.

His specialty about this time was bogus company promoting, and he did remarkably well out of it from his point of view. From one concern alone he netted $300,000. Another yielded him $225,000 in six weeks. He opened more than one hundred different banking accounts in as many different names, and he kept an album in which he entered his different aliases side by side with his own proper signature. This album is now preserved as a curiosity at Scotland Yard.

As has been intimated, he swore that he would never be taken alive, and although as a result of his colossal frauds half the detectives in Europe were presently searching for him, it looked as if he would beat them all.

His cunning was almost superhuman, and he took no chances. He employed a small army of private detectives to shadow the Scotland Yard detectives who were trying to shadow him. He rented a fine house—in an assumed name, of course—near Wembley Park, and spent thousands of pounds in constructing subterranean passages leading to secret exits, through which he could escape, if need be, when hard pressed.

Scotland Yard heard of the existence of this den, and raided it, but the bird had flown. Next he was heard of at another place near London, where he was engaged in printing and issuing vast numbers of books of a kind about which the less said the better.

Secret Chambers and Dark Tunnels

This house also was raided, but once more the wanted man had disappeared. The detectives found, however, evidence of his many-sided enterprises in the shape of six of the newest and most expensive kinds of linotype machines, together with many thousands of objectionable books, all newly printed. These were destroyed on a magistrate's order.

The search for the master criminal was continued, and at last he was located in a large mansion in Cambridgeshire, known as "Edenfield." This house, which stood in its own grounds, had been chosen for its seclusion, like the one at Wembley Park, and, like it, too, it had been fitted with an elaborate system of sliding panels, secret chambers, and subterranean passages.

All this was known to the Yard, and it was known, too, that an armed and desperate man lurked within. Consequently, it was determined to send three of the best men available to enter the house and effect the actual arrest, while other plain-clothes officers were detailed to watch the various exits in the grounds outside.

The officers told off for the dangerous part of the job were Chief-Inspector Arrow (afterwards appointed Chief of the Barcelona Police), Detective-Inspector Sweeny, and Sergeant-Inspector (afterwards Inspector) Badcock.

These were experienced men, and they laid their plans well. One went up to the door, disguised as a tradesman's assistant, and knocked. The other two were in hiding in the shrubbery near by.

At the knock the door was opened ever so little, and before it could be closed again the three detectives were inside. Instantly a shrill whistle was sounded from within, and when the house was searched the Anarchist millionaire was apparently nowhere within it.

There were plenty of servants about, of both sexes, but they one and all professed to know nothing. The detectives searched high and low for nearly two hours, but their search was in vain. Yet that the wanted man was somewhere within the building was certain. Every exit was being watched by their colleagues outside, and these had made no sign.

Bearding the Lion in His Den

At length, just when they were on the verge of despair, a secret panel was discovered, and this, on being forced open, revealed a passage just broad enough to admit one man. It was pitch dark within, but out of the darkness came the sound of suppressed breathing.

Here, then, was their quarry. But which one of the three detectives was going to risk almost certain death by bearding him in his den now he was at bay?

The question in reality admitted but of one answer. It is an unwritten law of Scotland Yard that the post of danger shall be given to the junior, for that way lies promotion, and promotion is, of course, the most ardently to be desired thing amongst all branches of the Police service.

So to Sergeant-Inspector Badcock was assigned the duty of entering the secret passage so luckily discovered, and dragging thence into the light of day the worse than wild beast that lurked within.

Quietly, without the least trace of bravado, he accepted the mission. Stepping from the room into the cavern-like passage—being a tall man he was compelled to adopt a stooping posture—he called to the wanted man, telling him that he was a police officer, that the game was up, and that he had better surrender himself quietly.

The Fight for Life

No verbal answer was returned, but out of the darkness came the sharp click of a revolver being cocked. Badcock felt that life or death was a matter of moments only, and bounded swiftly forward, still keeping bent nearly double, both because the height of the passage did not admit of a perfectly erect posture being maintained and also because by so doing he stood a better chance of not being shot if his assailant aimed high, as men firing when greatly excited usually do.

The passage ended in a door, and Badcock could hear his man fumbling at the handle inside. But he could not get out that way, for it had been locked from the outside by Inspector Arrow's orders prior to the raid.

Realising this, the hunted man faced about, pointed his revolver at his pursuer, and tried to pull the trigger. But Badcock gripped his wrist with fingers of steel, and the weapon dropped with a clang on the stone floor.

It was a pitiful figure of a man that was dragged out into the light of day a few seconds later. His face was livid, his features were working convulsively.

"Water!" he gasped. "Give me water!"

A servant ran and fetched some, but the glass slipped from his nerveless fingers, his jaw dropped, and a moment later he fell dying to the ground.

A coroner's jury said it was apoplexy. But was it?

The Anarchist millionaire, who was also, it must be remembered, a doctor, and a skilful chemist, had long had in his possession a gold signet ring in which was hidden a powerful poison.

When he was arrested this ring was on his hand, but the secret receptacle behind the seal which had contained the poison was empty.

Anyway, he was dead, and the world was well rid of him.

Had he stood his trial, there would have been revealed the most remarkable criminal romance of modern times.

The Home Office, London, received hourly reports as to the King's journey between Bombay and Delhi.

ALL THE DIFFERENCE

"Patience, my dear, patience!" reproved Mr. Bounce complacently. "I'm quite sure Jim didn't mean to upset his cup of tea; and it will be easy to get out a fresh table-cloth. Accidents will happen, you know, in the best regulated families—mind your glass, Willie—and it's no good crying over— Careful, Willie! I always think—

"Great Scott!" he shouted. "There goes Willie's milk all over my trousers—and a new pair, too! Get a cloth, somebody! I'm dripping! Heavens! a man can't sit down at his own table nowadays, it seems, without being peppered from his children's plates, and bespattered from his children's cups. Just look at these trousers, Mary! Ruined! Ah, don't tell me he didn't do it on purpose! I'll teach him to behave himself—

"Willie," he roared, as he left the room, "follow me into the study!"

THE WAY OF A REFORMER

He was one of those sad-faced men who delight in becoming railway-carriage bores, and when he saw a happy-looking stranger smoking contentedly near by he felt compelled to ask a few questions.

"Sir," he began, "will you allow your boy to smoke cigarettes when he grows up?"

"I have never given the question a moment's thought," replied the stranger.

The sad-faced man sighed.

"And," he went on faintly, "I suppose you have never thought about stopping his drinking?"

"I never have," admitted the man.

The sad-faced man positively gasped.

"Can it be true," he muttered, "that there are such monsters living; such hardened, callous—"

"But I think you ought to know," interrupted the stranger, "that I have been a confirmed bachelor all my life."

IT WAS CURIOUS

"Come in."

The door opened to admit a shabby-looking individual, the shine on whose coat would have done credit to the hardest-working shoeblack.

"Are you the gentleman," he began, "who found a purse and advertised the fact in the papers to-day?"

"I am."

"It contained money?"

"Yes, it contained a very large sum of money."

"You mentioned that the owner could recover the purse by giving you a description of it?"

"That is so. But you will have to give an accurate account of the purse, its contents, and how you came to lose it."

"I haven't lost a purse."

"Eh? Then why do you come here and make these inquiries?"

"I called out of curiosity to see what a man looks like who finds a large sum of money and advertises it in the papers instead of having a good time. Good morning, sir!"

GOOD IDEA

Jones was at the theatre, and behind him sat a lady with a child on her lap, which was crying unceasingly.

Unable to stand it any longer, Jones turned smilingly to the lady and asked: "Has that infant of yours been christened yet, ma'am?"

"No, sir," replied the lady.

"If I were you I would call it 'Good Idea,'" said Jones.

"And why 'Good Idea'?" said the lady indignantly.

"Because," said Jones, "it should be carried out." It was Jones who had to be carried out.

DOUBLE VISION GLASSES

Most people think, when buying Bifocal Glasses, that a large segment or reading area is required. With very few exceptions this is not so, as most bifocals are required for constant use, and the successful fitting of these lenses depends not so much on furnishing the largest reading portion possible, but on placing a minimum disk or wafer in exactly the correct position. A small wafer accurately placed will afford ample field for reading, writing and sewing, and will overcome the tendency to make mis-steps in going up and down stairs, an experience not uncommon to wearers of bifocals with too large reading segments.

We make a specialty of filling Bifocal Lenses in VISIBLE, SEMI-INVISIBLE and INVISIBLE.

NO ACTION IN REQUEST FROM CANOE COMPANY

Property Committee Not in Favor of Giving Property

The Property Committee of the City Council held a short session last night. There were present, Chairman Duncan, Mayor Morrow, Ald. Brown and Graham.

The strip of land belonging to John Dixon was accepted by the committee. It can be added to Victoria avenue. The strip is but one foot in depth and at present the owner is liable to frontage tax which he does not feel inclined to pay.

CANOE CO. AND C. P. R.

"It means that the Peterborough Canoe Co. wants us to buy the laneway for the C.P.R.," remarked Ald. Duncan. "I wouldn't do it," said Mayor Morrow.

"Either would I," added the chairman.

On motion no action was taken.

This matter had to do with a request from the Canadian Canoe Co. for property from the city, so that they might give certain property to the C.P.R., whereby this railway company could extend their freight sheds to the length desired along the river front.

RUTHERFORD'S ACCOUNT.

It was the opinion of the committee that as the proposition had been made to Rutherford Bros. in regard to their account, it was up to the contractors to move next.

The report was passed at the council meeting which followed.

ELECTION TALK FROM HAVELOCK

Reeve Knox Will Not be Candidate for Next Year

Havelock, Dec. 8.—The municipal pot is beginning to show signs of bubbling and we venture to forecast a "boil over" before election day. Messrs. S. S. Joyce, Ed. Fennell and W. T. Curtis are probable aspirants for the reeveship, the former having already announced himself. For the council, Councillors Phillips and Weese will seek another term. Mr. Jno. Howe is in the field and the names of Dr. Kindred, H. Wing, Well, Weise, Wm. Jones, C. Donnelly and A. C. Denike are mentioned as probable candidates. For the school board, Trustees Walker and Fennell may run again, while John Coon, Jno. Garratt and Dr. Holdcroft are being urged to come out.

Wm. Hawtrey Coming

At the Grand on Thursday, Dec. 14th, A. G. Delamater will present the eminent English character actor, William Hawtrey and his company of London players in what is reputed to be the funniest farce in America in many years. The title of the piece is "Dear Old Billy." It is in three acts and from the pen fo a well-known English farce writer, W. H. Pisque. The English seem to excel in writing and playing farces, which is borne out by the unqualified success of such pieces as "Charley's Aunt" and "Jane," and the critics of Chicago, where "Dear Old Billy" has recently closed an engagement lasting nearly four months, are unanimous in praise of its laughter-producing qualities. Special comment has also been made by the critics on the excellence of the company assembled by Mr. Delamater in the support of Mr. Hawtrey.

RESIGNATION AT LIBRARY

Miss H. M. Cahill to be Succeeded by Miss Dorothy Aylmer

At the regular meeting of the Public Library Board last night, the resignation of Miss H. M. Cahill as assistant librarian was received and accepted. The secretary was instructed to convey to Miss Cahill the Board's appreciation of her services and regret that she feels obliged to sever her connection with the work of the library.

Miss Dorothy Aylmer communicated her application for the position, and this was accepted, Miss Aylmer to commence her duties 1st January, 1912.

Mr. Dela Fosse reported on the cost of mending books and the number repaired to date.

The matter of appointing a second assistant librarian was referred to the committee to consider and report to the Board, and a letter from the Peterborough Lumber Company with reference to the disposal of discarded books, was referred to the librarian, with power to act.

The report of the Finance committee was read by Mr. Corkery and adopted, recommending the payment of the following accounts:

Bell Telephone Co.	$3.65
Cassels Co.	15.79
White Bros.	85
Otonabee Power Co.	15.90
H. Edmonston	1.60
Trebilcock Bros.	25.10
Review Co.	10.75
Virtue & Co.	25.00
R. Fair & Co.	1.06
F. M. Dela Fosse	9.95
Peterborough Hardware Co.	8.70

Mr. Walker, chairman of the Library committee, submitted the following:

Gentlemen,—Your Library Committee would report as follows:

1. That the contract for supplying magazines and newspapers for the year 1912 has been awarded to R. J. Soden. The amount required for this purpose will be $193.50.

2. That at the request of the committee appointed to select books for the juvenile department an order has been placed with McClelland & Goodchild for books amounting to $38.00.

3. That your committee has endeavored to keep the expenditure for books for the present year within the sum of $1,000, which the council was good enough to award us out of the special fun obtained from the sale of the building handed over for library purposes by the Nicholls estate. This year the books have, therefore, really cost the city nothing, and it has been found that this sum of $1,000 is barely sufficient to keep the library in a satisfactory condition.

Moved by Mr. Walker, seconded by Ritchie,—That the report of the Library Committee be adopted.—Carried.

Mr. Matthews, chairman of the Property committee, made a verbal report on several matters in connection with the library fixtures.

Moved by Mr. Corkery, seconded by Dr. McNulty,—That Mr. Matthews be ordered to order a card catalogizing cabinet and have the repairs made as reported by him.—carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

The members present were Messrs. E. H. D. Hall, chairman, H. R. H. Kenner, D. Walker, A. Mowat, T. F. Matthews, J. Corkery, H. Ritchie and Dr. McNulty.

ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF SUPPLY OF HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER ?

This Question Will be Submitted to Rate Payers on January 1st - Its Passage Does Not Bind City to the Commission -Money By-law Would Come Later

Are you in favor of a supply of power from the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario?

This question, the ratepayers who vote on money by-laws, will be asked to answer on January 1, the day of the Municipal Elections, the Council passing a by-law to this effect at a special meeting last night.

The above question is the big item of the by-law, the remainder being incidental to the law regarding the taking of a vote.

Its passage does not bind the city whatever to the Hydro-Electric Commission nor does it block the city from taking up any other power proposition. If the by-law is successful, then the Commission will at once proceed to estimate the cost of the power to the city and then if the council so decides a by-law embodying the amount will be presented to the people. The by-law was introduced by Ald W. H. Bradburn.

A communication was received from the Peterboro Lumber Company asking the city to construct a bridge the Otonabee for the convenience of its 120 employes and the public generally. It was pointed out that as the C.P.R. had prohibited pedestrians from crossing their railway bridge, great inconvenience was caused. The matter was referred to the Board of Works.

Ald. W. H. Bradburn's resignation from the City Council was read by the secretary and accepted. "The reason please?" asked Ald. Morgan.

As announced before Ald. Bradburn will be a candidate for the Mayoralty.

Ald. Anderson was appointed chairman of the Finance Committee, a position which as his predecessor, Ald. Bradburn, has very ably filled.

CONCERT BY THE CHARLOTTE ST. CHURCH CHOIR

Large Audience Pleased With the Splendid Program

Assisted by popular local talent, the choir of Charlotte street Methodist church gave a most successful and high class concert last evening, in the lecture hall, which was largely and most gratifyingly attended. The lengthy program necessitated its division into two parts, and every number was warmly and most appreciatively received. Sufficient variation of selections was introduced to make the program unusually interesting, and the entertainment was one of the best in the history of the church

The opening chorus by the entire choir was given with vigor and precision and revealed careful training. The solo part was taken by Mr. Harold Lee. The quartet selections were as popular as ever, and the quartet added more popularity to its already enviable record, "Lucky Jim" was given as an encore by the quartet in answer to determined applause.

R. J. Soden was as popular as ever in his readings from Dr. Drummond in the French Canadian dialect. Dr. York on the violin was at his best, his numbers being very sympathetically and correctly interpreted, He was given enthusiastic encores at every appearance.

The musical sketch called "The Old Homestead," given in costume by five ladies and four male members of the choir was undoubtedly the most popular and heartily applauded number on the program. The effect was distinctly good, and was a popular variation.

The other artists on the program, who performed individually were Miss Edna Pringle, soprano soloist, Mr. Fred. Skitch, Miss Jackson, Mr. Harold Lee and R. F. Downey.

Miss Clarry, the energetic choir leader was the recipient of a large and beautiful bouquet of flowers, presented by charming little Greta Le Bar. Afterwards Miss Clarry entertained the choir in the guild room, by a delightful informal luncheon.

Library Meeting

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Thomas Allen, of Millbrook, for the presentation to the library of a copy of Liddell and Scott's Greek Lexicon.

New York Tailoring
at Canadian Prices

"The Mark of High Degree."

LAST year we sold a great many New Yorkers and other American tourists Semi-ready Suits in the latest New York style at from $15.00 to $20.00 less than they could buy them at home.

The price-saving is obvious. The American tariff on fine woollens is 100 per cent; and yet they must have the best English woollens, for their domestic worsteds are inferior.

A Semi-ready Suit such as we sell for $20.00 costs $35.00 in the United States. And no tailor in New York can produce better work than Semi-ready.

PETE CAMPBELL ELECTED CAPTAIN OF VARSITY TEAM

Peterboro athletes and other numerous friends will congratulate Gor- Campbell on the honor bestowed on him, in his election to the captaincy of the Varsity Rugby team, Dominion champions. The Toronto Star, has the following to say—

To-day, at noon, the Varsity Rugby club elected Pete Campbell, the greatest quarter back in Canadian football in years, as captain of the team for 1912. No better selection could possibly have been made. Campbell is brainy, aggressive, fast, and a player of excellent judgment. He knows the varsity system of play perfectly, and should make an ideal captain for next year's team.

Art Ross has come forward with his signature, the same being affixed to a contract which makes him a fixture with the Wanderers of the N.H.A.

Tom Longboat failed to go the route with Fred Cameron at Halifax, the Indian dropping out at the ninth round of a ten mile race.

Los Angeles, December 7— Frank Chance, manager of the Chicago Cubs has no inclination to lead the team, and, judging from words he has dropped here this winter, will resign the managership at the expiration of his present contract, at the end of next season. Chance owns a valuable fruit ranch near Los Angeles, and he would rather oversee it then engage in a hot baseball fight.

Herb. Callaghan, the former Quaker goaltender, now attending Ottawa will be given a chance between the nets for the College seven.

Hockey players are reminded of the training class at the Y.M.C.A. to-night. The hour is from 7 to 8.

PROFITABLE PHILANTHROPY

Clarence S. Darrow, attorney for the McNamara brothers, said Tuesday:

"All my life I have tried to be on the side of those who lose in the unequal fight between the rich and poor. Here was a man who, whether in the right or wrong, tried in his own grim way to be a soldier on the same side, the side of the poor. I couldn't see him go down without giving what help I could.

"But I know there are many Americans who will not understand what I have done, who will be unable to analyze the spirit in which I did it. I know that I took the only possible chance there was of saving the McNamara's lives."

Frank B. Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, said yesterday:

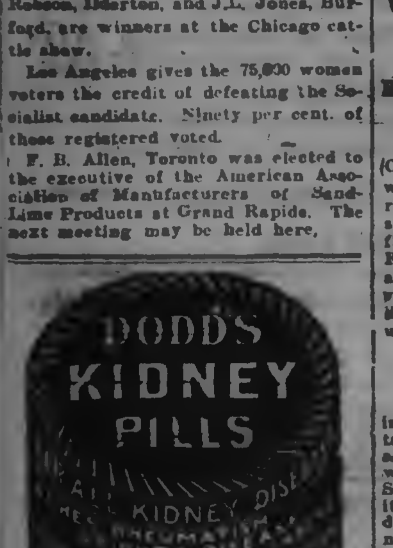
"Attorney Darrow's retainer was $50,000, with an additional fee for every day he spent in court."

It was learned yesterday that Mr. Darrow's agreement with the labor leaders called for a minimum fee of $100,000. Mr. Darrow took charge of the case last March. This accounts for one-half of the $200,000 fund subscribed, chiefly by members of the American Federation of Labor.

J. A. Watt, Salem, Ont., T. and H. Robson, Ilderton, and J.L. Jones, Burford, are winners at the Chicago cattle show.

Los Angeles gives the 75,000 women voters the credit of defeating the Socialist candidate. Ninety per cent. of those registered voted.

F. B. Allen, Toronto was elected to the executive of the American Association of Manufacturers of Sand-Lime Products at Grand Rapids. The next meeting may be held here.



WARNING TO BE CONSIDERED

Be Careful in Arranging Christmas Decorations and Displays

At this season of the year Fire Chief Howard sounds the note of warning in regard to Christmas decorations and displays. Great care should be exercised in the use of inflammable materials. The Canadian Fire Underwriters' Associations has also sent out the annual circular, advising care in this regard, when the decorations are used in connection with electricity.

ROWELL AT ST. THOMAS.

He Says Premier Whitney Is Evading School Question.

St. Thomas, Dec. 8.—N. W. Rowell spoke here last night. The audience filled the Grand Opera House, many persons standing, and the hearing given the provincial Liberal leader was keenly appreciative.

"Sir James Whitney has mistaken his own bluster for courage; he is evasive in the face of a difficult question, declared Mr. Rowell, in the course of his address last night in the Grand Opera House here, when dealing with the bilingual school question.

"What is the condition," he asked, "with reference to bilingual schools Sir James says there are none. Mr. Hanna, at his nomination meeting the other day, said there are 380 bilingual schools in Ontario. Mr. Foy says that under the law there can be no such thing, and if there are any they must cease to exist. Dr Resume says Mr. Foy speaks only for himself, while he professes to give Sir James Whitney's own opinion in saying there are bilingual schools in Ontario in which the teachers are entitled to use the French language for purposes of instruction, if need be, and when parents and trustees desire it to teach French as one of the school subjects. If Sir James sides with Mr. Foy he thinks Dr. Resume will lose the French-Canadian vote, which is influential in some places; while if he sides with Dr. Resume he knows it will lose Mr. Foy several vote in a strong Orange and Protestant constituency. Is that honest? Is that straightforward dealing? Is that fair and honorable conduct for the Prime Minister of this province? Some of his Conservative friends have told me they were shocked at his utterances. They say he must have known that there are such schools."

Ship Broker a Spy?

Leipsic, Saxony, Dec. 8.—The trial of the English ship broker, Max Schultz, and his four German associates, who were arrested at Hamburg on March 18, on a charge of espionage, began here yesterday before the imperial court.

Max Schultz is accused of having used his profession as a cover for corrupting shipyard workmen to betray naval secrets. He was kept under close observation for a considerable time by Government detectives while passing between Hamburg and Bremen, where at the time ten warships of different types were under construction.

It is said that the incriminating material found in his possession at the time of his arrest was not of a grave character, but it is believed that he succeeded in communicating a number of documents to the people by whom he was employed. He is regarded by the naval authorities as a most dangerous espionage agent.

The proceedings are taking place in secret.

Hydro Bylaw In Paris.

Paris, Dec. 8.—At a general meeting of the Board of Trade yesterday, the advisability of securing Hydro-electric service for Paris was discussed. Harry Acres, Government engineer, was present and gave an estimate of some $13,000 to install the system in Paris. It is probable a bylaw will be submitted to the ratepayers in the near future.

Princess Reaches Halifax.

Halifax, Dec. 8.—The steamer Empress of Ireland arrived in the harbor at 1.15 this morning and docked at 1.30. The Princess Patricia, daughter of the Duke of Connaught, is a passenger. The princess proceeded to Ottawa by the regular train at eight o'clock this morning.

Graham Fund Availed Not.

Brockville, Dec. 8.—The publication of the election returns of the two candidates of the Brockville riding in the recent Dominion campaign shows that the Hon. G. P. Graham's exceeded those of John Webster, nearly three to one, and yet he was defeated. The ex-Minister of Railways and Canals spent $2,186 and his successful opponent only $304

Building Collapse Kills Four.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 7.—Under the glare of searchlights, police and firemen last night searched for the bodies of four persons caught in the wreckage of a three-storey concrete building, which collapsed yesterday at noon, killing four workmen and injuring 21. The building was being erected for the Presto-Lite Co. and the contractor believes that owing to the recent cold weather the concrete had not set properly.

A Chance to Reply.

Washington, Dec. 7.—J. D. Rockefeller and Rev. Fred D. Gates, manager of Mr Rockefeller's charities, were yesterday invited by Chairman Stanley of the House Steel Trust Investigating Committee to appear before the committee next Monday, if they care to do so, to reply to the charges by the Merritt brothers, of Minnesota, concerning the $20,000,000 Mesaba ore properties in Minnesota.

Nearly a Tragedy.

Kingston, Dec. 7.—In a fire early yesterday morning the home of Mrs. Margaret O'Neil, Sydenham street, was destroyed, while Mrs. O'Neil's daughter, Kate, and her son, Joseph, had narrow escapes from death.

Appeal to Taft.

Geneva, Switzerland, Dec. 7.—The Persian students resident in Switzerland have cabled an appeal to President Taft asking him, in the name of humanity and liberty, to protect Persia against foreign aggression.

Montreal 'Phone Users Satisfied?

Montreal, Dec. 8.—According to City Attorney Archambault, little interest is being taken by users of telephones in the civic petition now before the Board of Railway Commissioners to order telephone rates lowered. Only fifteen complaints have been filed, and in view of the thousands of telephones in use in the city, the attorney hardly thinks that the board will act on such meagre evidence.

IS A MUSICAL PIONEER

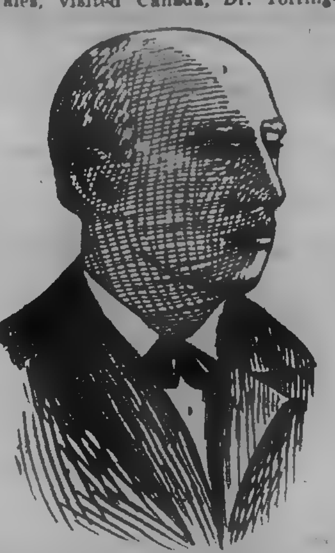
DR. TORRINGTON OF TORONTO TO RETIRE NEXT SPRING.

Celebrated Conductor Who Has Labored So Faithfully In the Cause of Better Music In Canada — Has Spent Half a Century as Organist and Teacher and Directed Musical Festival For Edward VII.

The announcement that Dr. F. H. Torrington will make his farewell appearance as an oratorio conductor when he presents "The Messiah" and "Elijah" in Massey Hall, Toronto, next March, brings up a flood of reminiscences concerning the career of "the father of choral music in Toronto," and one of the hardest working pioneers in behalf of music in Canada.

Dr. Torrington came here from England more than fifty years ago. For thirty-four years he was organist and choirmaster of the Metropolitan Church. That great church had many famous pastors in his time—Potts, Briggs, Withrow, and others known throughout the country. But long before Dr. Torrington gave up the organ there, in May, 1907, many people had formed the habit of calling the Metropolitan "Torrington's Church."

When King Edward, then Prince of Wales, visited Canada, Dr. Torrington conducted the musical festival given in his honor; and on many other notable occasions he acted as Canada's representative musician. Before he took the organ at the Metropolitan, in 1873, he was for some time an organist and choral leader in Boston where his recitals were popular in Henry Ward Beecher's Church and in the Boston Music Hall.



DR. F. H. TORRINGTON.

Soon after coming to Toronto, Dr. Torrington organized the famous old Philharmonic Society, which under his direction gave "The Messiah," "Creation," and other famous works. He organized his Festival Chorus and Orchestra in 1886, and at the opening of Massey Hall in 1894, he conducted "The Messiah," by request of Mr. Hart Massey, the donor of the building as a city institution.

Every musician in Canada admires the educational work done by Dr. Torrington during his remarkable career, and some of them have been heard to say that he deserves to be honored by the King for his long service in the cause of good music in Canada. The University of Toronto gave him the degree of Doctor of Music some years ago.

Postmen—Past and Present.

The past few weeks have seen the first aeroplane post. Now, before the world has had time to get used to a few of its letters being carried through the air, a daily paper devotes two whole columns to the invention by which, in the future, our mails will be carried underground!

This new development, which we are assured will certainly come, will consist of pneumatic tubes and electric subways. These, it is thought, would lessen the street traffic of London by one-third.

Whilst all these postal alarums and excursions are—literally—in the air, it is interesting to recall the early days of postal history.

The first postal service consisted of an organization of relays. These relays were first instituted in the year 1481. A single horseman was appointed for every twenty miles. By traveling at top speed, it was possible for a letter to be sent 200 miles within two days.

The first coach to carry mails ran on Aug. 2, 1771, from Bristol to London. The journey occupied seventeen hours.

Many people think that the recent aerial post was the first ever started. They will be surprised to learn that they are mistaken. So far back as 1860, the G. P. O. made several experiments with a postal balloon at the Crystal Palace, which were pronounced quite successful.

Had a Start.

A writer named George Hoddle went to Douglas Jerrold one day to tell him of the difficulties into which he had fallen.

"I want your help," he said. "The Morning Gazette has dismissed me."

"You don't say, my dear George, they've had a gleam of intelligence at last?" said Jerrold.

"Don't joke!" replied Hoddle. "I really want your advice. I'm thinking of going into the coal trade."

"Capital!" exclaimed Jerrold. "You've got the sack to begin with!"

Missed Last Smoke.

When the body of Elizabeth Tooth, an elderly woman, was recovered from a canal at Longton (Staffs.), a pipe filled with tobacco was found in one of her hands and an unstruck match in the other. Accidental death was the verdict at the inquest.

The report that Hon. G. P. Graham will be opposed in South Renfrew is repeated at Ottawa.

The third reading of the naval prize bill was carried in the British House of Commons.

There was a glut of poultry at Brockville Fair and several farmers took their loads home again.

Mr. Arthur Hawkes met the New Ontario settlers at Englehart and heard their complaints regarding lack of roads and land held by speculators.

Some surprise is evinced at the extent of the estate left by the late Canon Ellegood. The estate consists of about $150,000. Charitable institutions get numerous bequests, $20,000 in all.

Will Dynamite Pekin.

Pekin, Dec. 8.—The rebels are levying tribute on and obtaining subscriptions from Pekin officials who draw Imperial salaries, but fear to sympathise openly with the revolution. The rebels freely state that they intend to dynamite and attack Pekin. Some arrests have been made, but the Government is practically powerless owing to the timidity of the official class. The student class is powerful in China and is forcing extreme demands because of the racial timidity of the elders, who would be content with the limitations the members of the court have already imposed upon themselves. Precautions are being taken to prevent a rising of the Manchu troops because of dissatisfaction over the Regent's seemingly compulsory retirement and the prospect of all the Manchus, in consequence of this, losing their pensions.

Wuchang, Dec. 8.—While absolutely oppposed to the retention of the Manchu dynasty and personally favoring a republic, Gen. Li Yuen Heng and the other revolutionary leaders have decided to accept a constitutional monarchy, with Yuan Shi Kai, or some other satisfactory Chinese, as ruler, under a constitution and Parliament, if a majority of the people prefer this settlement.

Fight To a Finish.

London, Dec. 8.—At the opening at Bootle, Lancashire, last night of the Unionist campaign against home rule, the Opposition leader, Andrew Bonar Law, said that his party had determined to fight the proposal to the last gasp. Many people, he said, favored home rule because they were tired to death of the Irish problem and glad to see it out of the way. The duty of the Unionists was to convince them that it would bring Ireland no peace, but the sword. Ireland wanted less politics and more industry. Mr. Redmond and his friends were promising Ireland more politics and less industry.

They were wise in trying to get home rule while they could, continued the speaker. This was their last chance, as every year the demand for it was diminishing in Ireland. Another ten years and the agitation will have died out. He declared that it was utterably impossible to pass the bill in this Parliament.

Father Carson Appointed.

Kingston, Dec. 8.—Archbishop Spratt has appointed Father Carson, Merrickville, to Picton, to succeed Father Killen, who was appointed to the archbishop's old charge at Belleville. Father Wm. McDonagh, Merrickville, has been appointed to Father Carson's place at Merrickville.

The body of Frederick Ruch, aged 45, was pulled out of the slip at the foot of Princess street yesterday. He was a deckhand on the steamer Prince Rupert and was walking along the wharf to his boat late Wednesday night and fell in. His wife lives in Toronto.

United States Banks Help Germany.

Vienna, Dec. 8.—The Berlin correspondent of Die Zeit says that during the height of the Anglo-German crisis, the French and English banks having withdrawn their credits from the German banks, the latter appealed to American banks for aid. This was forthcoming, adds the correspondent, after the American bankers were assured that there would be no war. This assurance, the Germans were able to give after consultation with the Government.

Traps For Fresh Members.

It is a serious Parliamentary breach to pass between the Speaker and the Chair, and the loud cries of "Order!" greatly confuse the new member who makes this mistake for the first time.

Then, no member may put up both legs at the same time. A front-bench man may loll on the small of his back and plant his legs on the table without remonstrance; but his humble brethren to the rear are sharply pulled up by the Sergeant-at-Arms if they venture to follow his example.

A member must not ostentatiously read a book or newspaper, neither may he open letters or read his speech, and if he indulges in tedious repetition he may be admonished by the Speaker if any common informer puts the law in motion.

No eating is permitted from the benches, though much hilarity was caused by a member, during an all-night sitting some years ago, being discovered by the chairman feeding himself with jam-puffs out of a paper bag.

When he was informed of the irregularity, he replied: "I thought that we were on a Committee of Supply!"

Keeps Up Old Custom.

The Duke of Sutherland has five pipers at Dunrobin Castle, and these men always announce dinner on the pipes, and on conclusion of the repast, according to Highland fashion, march round the dinner-table playing various airs and strathspeys.

MACKENZIE KING ADMITS WHITNEY WILL BE RETURNED

Usual Arguments Used by Liberal Speaker at Mr. Hall's Meeting.

Beyond casually remarking that the audience at the Grand last evening that attended the much heralded Liberal rally, was of fair size, there is little more of news value to report, save the fact perhaps, that many ladies availed themselves of the chance to hear the former Minister of Labor. The attendance of the latter was really a noticeable feature of the rally indicating that the gentler sex are beginning to exercise a keener interest in the political questions of the day. Hon. Mackenzie King, who was prophesied by some leading Liberals as one who would undoubtedly have something very startling and of vital consequence to say, somewhat disappointed the crowd in their expectations. Admitting the oratorical abilities of Mr. King, it was practically impossible for any fair minded and well informed citizen to justify himself in giving credence to many, very many of his opinions.

The following clear statement however uttered by Mr. King when near the end of his address redeemed to some extent the effect of many of his previous, rather rash assertions. It was, "there is no question but that the Whitney government will be returned to power," adding his own conviction "that their majority would be dearcased."

Mr J. R. Stratton occupied the position of chairman at the gathering of the vanquished. His bosom friend R. R. Hall was the big potato in the eyes of his supporters last night for a change.

"I feel that the issues at stake in this election are so important" said the chairman "that every line of Mr. Hall's premises in his address to the electors will be carried out to the letter." He furthermore hoped that no elector would allow any red herring like the hydro-electric proposition to cross the trail." The Review he continued, "has been endeavoring to create trouble for Mr. Hall No elector in Peterborough should have anything to do with the hydro-electric in this election," said Mr. Stratton, "it will come up at the proper time."

MR. HALL

Mr. Hall dealt with the school question, the compensation act, and other questions of the campaign, attacking the Review for its "buncombe" on the power question. He spoke for an hour, along the lines of his previous speeches.

HON. MACKENZIE KING

After prefacing his address with a few remarks of little material consequence Mr. King launched into a tirade against the present premier, James Whitney. "Matters have reached such a stage in the province," he said, "that other factors do not count; nothing save the will of Sir James Whitney." This eulogy coming from an opponent of Sir James was really most encouraging.

"Measures may be brought in to the government without the Opposition as it now stands, being able to grasp their significance, so overwhelming is the majority in power at present. The Conservative press is trusting that Sir James Whitney will have a stronger majority than ever," continued the speaker. "Could any greater calamity happen than that?" he asked dramatically. Mr. King did not say however whether he would consider it such a calamity if conditions were changed and the Liberal party was in the majority.

"This is the most important question before the electors," he added. "Are you going to make this group under the leadership of one man in such a position that they can ignore the legislature, or are you going to send men like Mr. Hall there, who will see that nothing is done without proper discussion and treatment?"

The audience didn't seem to get the point of this!

Mr. King's remarks were directed into channels of abuse of Sir James Whitney and he occupied considerable space in enlarging on the terrible inefficiency and misgovernment of the Whitney administration. For lack of fuel his arguments fell flat very often and ended up in tame ineffective attacks.

CALENDARS ARE NOW ON SALE

Buy at Drug Stores and Help the Health Association

Have you secured one of the pretty Christmas calendars in aid of the Peterborough Health Association? They are placed on sale in the drug stores. When you are down town, step into one of these shops, and ask to see them. Everybody has one or more fancy calendars among their collection of Christmas gifts. Then in making your selections this year, don't forget the Health Association. Remember that in purchasing one of these calendars, you will perform a two fold act. In addition to having a suitable gift for your friends you will help along the noble cause of this local organization, namely, that of fighting the tuberculosis in this city. Already a number of these have been sold by interested workers, but there are still several hundred to be disposed of, before the amount of money that the association is endeavoring to raise through this medium is secured.

The Christmas stamps are also now available. In sending parcels and letters put a few of these stamps on them. As was stated in Saturday's issue, the object of this sale is to raise funds in order to engage a district nurse for tubercular cases in Peterborough.

Good Friday Rescue and a Medal Involved

Will anyone who saw the rescue of a lad named McKee, by J. C. Ellis, on Friday last, from a death by drowning in the river, be good enough to communicate with this office, or with Mr. John Carlisle?

LEG FRACTURED

Parnell Street Lady Fell off the Sidewalk

A young woman named Mrs. Jordan, who lives at 510 Parnell street, suffered a fracture of the right leg this morning by slipping off the edge of the sidewalk, and falling to the ground. The break occurred just the knee, and was attended to by Dr. McNulty. She is at present at her home on Parnell street, and while the injury is painful, her condition is as satisfactory as possible.

DAMAGE DONE DURING HOLIDAYS

Culprits Were Not Pupils of Queen Alexandra School

The published reports of the breaking of windows in the Queen Alexandra school conveyed the impression that these breakages were done during the present school term.

This was not the idea intended to be conveyed. The breaking of the windows referred to in the report occurred during the summer vacation, and at the same time windows in the Central and King Edward schools were broken, as well as those in the Queen Alexandra. In some cases the culprits were discovered and punished, and they proved not to be pupils of the schools, in all cases.

The tampering with and obstructing of the Queen Alexandra sewer did occur this term, and this, following upon the depredations of the midsummer term, the Property committee felt that some action must be taken to discover and punish the guilty parties.

WEDDING BELLS

SANDERSON—CANN.

Yesterday afternoon at three o'clock a very pretty wedding was solemnized at "The Elms," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cann, Smith township, when their daughter Jennie Vera, was united in marriage to Francis H. Sanderson, son of Mr. Frank Sanderson, Communication road.

The bride leaning on the arm of her father, entered the drawing room to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by her cousin, Miss Kathleen Thorndyke, of Millbrook. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jas. Rollins, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Peterborough, under an arch of smilax and narcissus. The bride, carrying a sheaf of cream roses looked charming in a gown of Paris de soie with trimmings of seed pearl and duchesse lace.

Dejeuner was served in the dining room, which was beautifully decorated in white and gold. The presents were handsome and of great variety, the groom's gift to the bride being a set of Persian lamb furs. There were a large number of guests present, many being from out-of-town.

The happy couple amid showers of rice and confetti, left on their wedding trip, which will include Toronto and Port Elgin.

REV. G.A. WOODSIDE FOR BRANTFORD

Will be the New Pastor of Zion Church

Brantford, Dec. 7.—Rev. G. A. Woodside, pastor of Division street church, Owen Sound, will be the new pastor of Zion church, in this city, succeeding the late Rev. Dr. Martin. Officials of the church returned to-day from Owen Sound, where the call had been successfully prosecuted. Mr. Woodside will come here in January, remaining in Owen Sound to participate in the local option campaign, in which he is prominent. He will receive in Brantford a stipend of $1,000 per annum.

Rev. G. A. Woodside, it will be remembered, conducted a mission at Knox church during the early part of this year.

CLERK OF THE HOUSE.

Duties of the Man Who Compiles "Votes and Proceedings."

The two most important officers of the House of Commons who are not members of that body, like the Speaker, but employes, or servants only, are the Clerk of the House and the Sergeant-at-Arms.

The former keeps the records of the House; the other keeps order, particularly in those extremely rare cases in which order can only be preserved by employing force. The Clerk's position is more peaceful but more onerous. He has to do a large amount of work, and of a kind that must be done well and with absolute correctness, or it would be practically useless.

The first essential qualification in a Clerk of the House is thorough knowledge of the rules of Parliamentary practice and procedure. That complex but exceedingly interesting subject he must know from A to Z. The rules governing every form and ceremony, and every step of procedure must be known to him, so that should others falter or stray from the prescribed path—even the leader of the House, who is usually the Prime Minister, or the Speaker himself—the Clerk can assist them over the rough spot, or direct their feet into the way they should go.

For many a year that position in the Canadian House of Commons has been ably filled by men, who not only discharged faithfully and well their important and onerous duties, but who were also ornaments to the House and credits to our National Legislature. For many years the post was filled by that student and experienced Parliamentarian, the late Sir John Bourinot, whose work on Parliamentary Procedure is a Canadian authority.

The Clerk is appointed, and in reality by the Cabinet, the position being one of the plums a Government have to distribute, provided, of course, a vacancy occurs during their tenure of office. The present Clerk was appointed during the earlier years of the Laurier regime, the vacancy having been created by the death of Sir John Bourinot.

Speaking technically, or theoretically, the Clerk is appointed by Commission under the great seal of Canada, and holds his office during pleasure—virtually until his health or age no longer permit him to perform his duties.

He is the recording officer of the House. He takes notes of the proceedings, of the acts performed by the House; or to use the words of an old English rule, he is "to make true entries, remembrances, and journals of the things done and passed in the House of Commons; but it is without warrant that he should make minutes of particular men's speeches."

The old English journals contained short reports of debates, but this ancient rule relieved the Clerk of this difficult task. To-day, both in the British and in the Canadian House, the reports of the debates, commonly known as "Hansard" are made by the official reporters — staffs of the most expert shorthand writers to be found anywhere.

The Clerk's minutes are made up every day in brief and convenient form, are then printed, and are known as the "Votes and Proceedings." They comprise a record of all the proceedings, but omit many of the Parliamentary forms, which are given in full only in the journals, which are extended after the close of a session.

The Clerk has an assistant, who takes minutes of the proceedings in Committee of the Whole, and calls off the names of members on a division, while the Clerk checks the names on the roll, and at the end of the division announces the number of yeas and nays. The Assistant Clerk also reads in English and French the titles of all bills.

Looked Too Honest.

Sir John Macdonald, speaking of the late Sir John Carling, used to say that no man could be as honest as John Carling looked. His wealth doubtless gave him many advantages, but he was always possessed of an urbanity of manner and kindness of heart that won him a host of friends, not only in his home city, but indeed, with all with whom he came in contact, wherever he went. Physically, he was tall and erect, with a bearing that marked him as a man of culture and wide outlook.

Hon. George E. Foster, who sat for years in Cabinet councils with him under various Premiers, said, on hearing of his death: "He was an able man, with great pertinacity of character, he was a genial man, loved by all, and did a great work in both Ontario and the Dominion in the line of encouraging agriculture. He was the founder of the experimental farms."

A fact not generally known in connection with Sir John Carling's life is that he was to a large extent responsible for the confederation of the Canadian provinces. On one occasion Sir John A. Macdonald and Hon. Geo. Brown, who were at loggerheads over the question of welding the provinces into one nation, happened to be on the same train and Sir John Carling was present also. He got the two statesmen to discuss the question and smoothed over their differences to such an extent that they finally agreed on the policy that resulted in the formation of this great Dominion.

The Customs Man Got Him.

"You won't catch me again." This little threat was hurled at a Customs officer on board the return C.P.R. train from Buffalo at 7.30 o'clock recently by a young economist of Toronto who had taken advantage of the cheap rates on Thanksgiving Day to journey to Buffalo for a new pair of shoes. As the train pulled into Niagara the officer boarded it. The Toronto youth opened his suit case with an air of "I'll show you," and there in full view was a pair of old shoes. "Did you buy anything in Buffalo?" asked the officer. "Yes, I bought a pair of shoes, but I'm wearing them." "How much did you pay for them?" queried the officer. "$4.50," replied the man. "Then you can just pay me $1.30," said the officer very politely. He did.—Toronto Globe.

THE REVIEW

Beaten by U. S. Sheep.

Chicago, Dec. 8.—Canadian success in capturing first honors in sheep judging at the International Stock Show, came to an end yesterday after years of triumph, and American sheep raisers garnered most of the blue ribbons.

Victor, the world's champion steer, owned by the Iowa Agricultural College, was sold at auction yesterday to a department store for ninety cents a pound. Only once has this price been passed. The first year of the exposition, a Pittsburg company paid $1.25 a pound for Advance, the prize winner of that year.

Rowell at Sarnia.

Sarnia, Dec. 7.—N. W. Rowell spoke to a large audience in the Boys' Brigade Hall last night. He declared that the Liberal party was in no way discouraged by the 17 Conservative acclamations, but would bend every energy on the other 89.

Other speakers were F. F. Pardee, M.P., Dr. Henderson, Liberal candidate in West Lambton, and J. Ross Geddes of Sarnia. Dr. Coulter was chairman.

Princess Pat at Halifax.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 7.—The steamer, Empress of Ireland, aboard of which is the Princess Patricia, is not likely to reach Halifax before seven o'clock to-night. In order to reach port at this hour the steamship must make 18 miles per hour, which she is likely to do. The Princess Patricia will leave by the eight o'clock train Friday morning. The car Cornwall will be reserved for the princess' use.

Fire In Gas Works.

Woodstock, Ont., Dec. 7.—Fire broke out in the gas works last night. Before it was extinguished by the fire department several hundred dollars' damage was done. There was danger from explosion for a time, and many barrels of oil in a woodyard nearby narrowly escaped burning.

Four Killed In Wreck.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 7.—Four men were killed and a score injured, a number of them seriously, shortly before eight o'clock yesterday morning in a wreck of two freights and an express train on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Devil's Bend, one-half mile east of Manor, Pa.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION BOOSTER FOR PETERBORO

Annual Show to be Held on January 9, 10 and 11 in Market Hall

Hats off to the Peterborough Poultry Association with its hard working officers and members, who are building up what promises to be the premier association of its kind in Canada. The fourth annual show will be held in the market hall on January 9th, 10th and 11th, and the prize list is open to all comers. Entries from all parts of Canada are welcomed and it is pleasing to state these are being received. Secretary Kelly was on hand at the regular meeting last night with a big budget of correspondence, communications being received from as far east as Nova Scotia.

For the coming exhibition, the association is forced to provide more coops despite the fact that 1,500 can at present be put in commission. Some thirty or more coops are necessary for the increased entry in banties.

Besides the regular attractive prize list special prizes to the number of seventy are hung up for competition. Such progress as this speaks volumes of the association. Co-operation has been freely given in the matter of cups and money prizes as it can easily be seen that the Poultry Association is booming Peterborough as is probably no other organization. The confidence of the people has been secured and what the officers and members ask for is the hearty patronage at the show next month.

LORENZ ITEMS

The Mystery of the Theft From the Sulky Plow

Special Correspondence.

Lorenz, Dec. 7—Mr. Welford Dawson is busy making preparations for the erection of a windmill on his barn. Mr. Dawson has been at much inconvenience in the past, and much valuable time has been lost through not having the proper power for the various kinds of farm work.

Mrs. James Jackson who has been so unfortunate during her visit in the northwest in having her shoulder dislocated is recovering and is soon expected home.

Mr. Edmund Dawson purchased a valuable cow at Mrs. Thomas Sisson's sale on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moncrief spent Thursday evening at Mr John Gainer's.

Mr. James Bullock has purchased the property of Mr. William Bateson of Bailieboro and his son-in-law, Mr. William O'Heir, one of our respected residents is moving into the property.

Mr. James Taylor was the guest of *Mr. John Poe of Bensfort on Thurs*day night.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Bradshaw entertained Mr. O'Hara, the proprietor of our local cheese factory on Thursday last.

Watkinsville Smithbank and Bensfort did not state in what class their amateur boxers were, whether heavy, middle or lightweight. If in the latter class we have a promising youth who will be open to receive challenges from any of them.

The Lorenz cheese factory held its annual meeting on Thursday last. Mr. Charles Wicks occupied the chair After deducting the season's expenses there was found to be considerable surplus on hand to be distributed amongst the patrons, and prospects are brighter for next year's season than the past has been. Mr. Hector Jewison purchased the whey for next season at one dollar a standard.

Miss O'Hara of Millbrook was the guest of Mr. Herbert Perrin last week.

The Watkinsville writer in last week's issue made reference to an alleged theft which was supposed to have taken place on Hallowe'en when it was alleged that a wheel had been removed from Mr. James Thompson's sulky plow. The culprits must have come from the eastern village, else the writer would not have learned of such a deed and no pains on the part of the Lorenz community will be spared in locating such culprit or culprits and in having them suffer the extreme penalty of the law.

W. J. JOHNSTON FOR THE COUNCIL

May Run for 1912 Term, in the North Ward

Ex-Ald. W. J. Johnston may again enter the aldermanic field. To a Review reporter this morning Mr. Johnston admitted having been approached by a number of his friends with the request that he again offer himself as a candidate. His decision will largely depend on the action of Ald Kernaghan, who is said to be considering the Centre Ward as next year's battle ground. Should he decide to run in Centre Ward, it is probable that ex-Ald Johnston will make an effort to land the North Ward chair. He will not, however, take the field so long as Ald. Kerneghan is a candidate for the North Ward as the present alderman, is in his opinion, competent and efficient.

R. W. TRAVERS PRESIDENT

Elected for Children's Aid Society at Annual Meeting

Mr. R. W. Travers, manager of the Bank of Montreal, was elected president of the Children's Aid Society at the annual meeting held yesterday afternoon in the city council chamber, at which there was an attendance of about twenty ladies and gentlemen, all enthusiasts in the work of the local society.

President Matthews occupied the chair. Mr. Travers, in the absence of Secretary Goodwill, on account of illness read the report, which showed good work having been accomplished during the year. This report and that of the secretary-treasurer, Mr. Peter Campbell, were adopted.

The meeting passed a vote of thanks to the Peterborough Street Radial company for their kindness in allowing the Tag Day workers to ride free on the cars during the day

Mr. George Cochrane, agent of the society, gave a verbal report, in which he explained the work that had been done in the eastern part of the county, as well as in other localities. Mr. Cochrane also had warm praise for the Woman's Auxiliary, of which Mrs. Gibbs is the president

A committee was appointed to determine as to what reimbursement should be made to Superintendent Henry for his services, in which he supervised the work of the septic tank at the Shelter.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Hon President—Mayor Morrow.
President—Mr. R. W. Travers.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. Burdsall.
2nd Vice-President—Mr. A. Mowat.
Secretary and Honorary Solicitor—Mr J. E. L. Goodwill.
Treasurer—Mr. Peter Campbell.
Agent—Mr. George Cochrane.
Hon Physician—Dr. C. H. Amys.
Board of Management—The clergymen of the city, officers of the Society and the members of the Auxiliary to the Shelter.

The reports are held over till tomorrow.

In the last six months, 1,419 immigrants have come from France, and 865 from Belgium.

MORE ANSWERS

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q. What is Astigmatism of the eye?

A. Astigmatism is an uneven curvature of the eye and causes double focus. As the eye always strives for clear vision this double focus annoys the brain and causes headache and nervousness. We make lenses cut od cylinders to correct astigmatism.

Q. What causes double vision?

A. Double vision is caused by the eyes not being in line, that is, one may turn up or have a tendency to do so, or both may turn in; a weak muscular system is back of it all.

We would be pleased to have you call and let us explain how such conditions can be relieved with glasses.

HOW MR. HALL HELPED

The Workingman's Wife

On the opera house platform on Thursday night, and on nearly every other platform on which he has spoken in the campaign, R. R. Hall has stated that he, and he only, is the great and true and tried friend of the workingman. Some of his protestations have been so blatant, so obviously designed with vote-catching purposes, that it will be a matter for great wonder if the workingmen of Peterborough can be caught with such gaudy tinsel. The workingmen of Peterborough are not gullible; neither are they unable to look behind the spoken word, to compare it with the action.

Robert Richard Hall is a fluent speaker. He does his best to pull the wool over the eyes of the voters, to endeavor to throw a veil over the record which stamps him as a friend, not to the workingman, but to R. R. Hall. Mr. Hall has seen that his only chance to win the election in Peterborough was to stampede the hard-headed workers in the factories—the men who think, and who digest the public qnestions. But he has under-calculated the mentality of the people whom he is trying to hypnotise into believing that he is the man for them. There are dozens of instances which belie every word which R. R. Hall utters regarding his new born friendship for the toiler. Many of them are known to the people of Peterborough, and it is not necessary to refer to them. It is quite true that Mr. Hall may assert his regard for and interest in the workingman without imperilling his splendid reputation for veracity, because no one doubts his interests in them for the present. It is HIS OWN interests that leads him to attempt such a hypocritical display.

Those who have been in Peterborough for the last eight or ten years will be thoroughly familiar with Mr. Hall and his record. They will remember the King case, and other cases, which are absolute proof that Mr. Hall's declaration of sympathy for the man who is injured, and who starts a lawsuit for damages, resembles the crocodile tears that one hears so much about. The REVIEW has taken the trouble to go back to its 1904 file, and to find the published statement of the King case. Mr. Hall was a candidate at that time, but this King statement will shed considerable light on the methods of that great and generous philanthropist. It might be explained that Mrs. King had been awarded judgment in a damage suit, her legal work having been conducted by the firm of which Mr. Hall was a member. Following is the financial statement in disposing of the King case:

Mrs. Elizabeth King

In account with

STRATTON & HALL and R. R. HALL,

June 11.	By cash from Smith, Rae & Greer, account of judgment		$1,200.00
	On account of interest on judgment		102.50
	On account of costs		694.68
Jan. 9.	Paid Watson, Smoke & Smith, on account Colville cost, action dismissed with cost	$ 166.19
	To amount of annexed account	1,712.78
	To balance	118.21

Tobacco War Over.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 9.—It was announced here yesterday that the American Tobacco Co. had purchased from the Burley Tobacco Society, at sixteen and a half cents a pound, all the tobacco remaining in the 1909 pool, about eight million pounds. This closes out all the pool holdings, and marks the end of one of the most novel industrial wars ever waged.

RECORD OF THE WHITNEY GOVERNMENT

17 Put the Provincial Finances on a sound and stable footing, and doubled the Provincial Revenue.
18. Put an Export Duty on Pulp Wood cut on Provincial Crown Lands.
19. Enacted that no Municipal franchise can be granted except on a vote of the Ratepayers.
20 Practically repealed the obnoxious "Conmee Bill."
21. Abolished the competition of prison labor with commercial concerns, and established a central prison farm instead.
22. Established the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and gave cheap power and electric light.

WHITNEY AT HAMILTON

Hamilton, Dec. 9.—Into the constituency Sir James Whitney came last night and by a whirlwind summary of the Government's record sought to throw the sentiment of the electors in favor of Controller Cooper, the candidate of the Conservative party.

Sir James did not in any way attack Allan Studholme as a man, or as a politician. The Premier admitted that he could not and did not want to say anything against Mr. Studholme.

"But in the interests of good government," said Sir James, "I would urge you to support my colleague, the Hon. Col. Hendrie, and to support Mr. Cooper that you listened to a few minutes ago, whom no sane man will ever excuse you people for refusing to elect as your representative."

It was a big meeting. The large rink of Britannia Park was crowded with upwards of 3,000 people, and the galleries were also filled.

Sir James got a cordial reception.

"I must refer to Mr. Studholme," was the Premier's remark, "but I do not want to say anything against him. And, indeed, I hear that Mr. Studholme is saying kind things about the Government and myself. A good many people are saying the same thing, in fact nearly everybody in the province, being sensible men and women; are saying kind things about the present Government." (Laughter.)

"I merely want to say that I never received any help from Mr. Studholme in the Legislature as regards labor matters. I thought when he was elected by the intelligent and clear-thinking mechanics and artisans of East Hamilton that he would be able to give the Government valuable assistance with regard to the interests of labor. He didn't do it and at last I stopped expecting him to do it."

Sir James has splendid visions of what the Ontario act for compensation to injured workingmen may develop into. "I am looking forward," said he, "to the time when workmen will be compensated for injury no matter how the injury is caused, and when this expenditure for compensation will be regarded as part and parcel of the expenditure of the enterprise where the men are employed, just as the expenditures for coal, lighting, taxes, etc., are regarded."

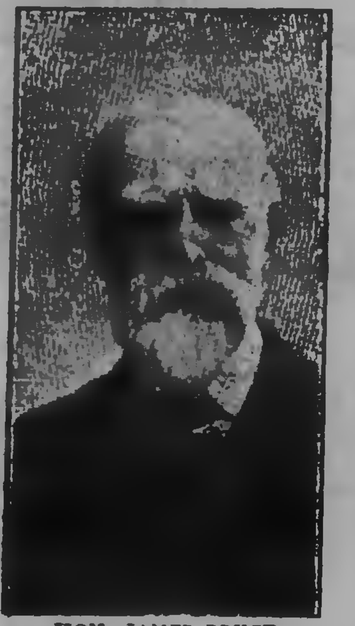
It is only fifteen days till Christmas. Do your shopping early.

CANADA WILL STAY IN EMPIRE SAYS MR. BRYCE

Brilliant Gathering Assembles In New New York at Canadian Club Dinner — Hon. Mr. Borden Discusses Natural Resources — Canada Not Unfriendly In Rejecting Reciprocity —Bryce As Our Agent.

New York, Dec. 9.—Hon. Robert L. Borden, Premier of Canada, and Hon. James Bryce, the British Ambassador to the United States, were the leading speakers at the fifteenth annual banquet of the Canadian Society of New York at Delmonico's, last night. In addition to these two, Governor John A. Dix of New York, R. C. Smith, K.C., of Montreal, and Rev. C. A. Eaton, D.D., of New York, third vice-president of the society, spoke. Dr. A. C. Humphries, president, was chairman of the dinner, while about 400 guests assembled.

Among the old members of the society present were Dr. Wilfred Nelson, and Dr. J. J. McPhee, former presidents. At the guest's table besides the speakers were: Justice W. R. Riddell of Toronto, Maj.-Gen. F. D. Grant, Rear-Admiral Leutze, U.S.N.; Courtenay Walter Bennett, British consul-general; Recorder Weir of Montreal, Justice John J. Delaney, Bishop Courtney, formerly of Halifax; Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the New York Life; while among others at the tables were D. Lorne McGibbon, Montreal; Frank W. McLaughlin, treasurer of the society; Julius M. Mayer, former attorney-general of New York; Wm. Loeb, jr., collector of the port of New York; Senator Howard R. Bayne and many other men distinguished in the business world of New York.



HON. JAMES BRYCE.

The banquet hall was bountifully decorated with British and American flags with the Canadian ensign, an occasional Irish and Scotch flag adding variety to the scene. While no provision had been made in advance for the presence of ladies, it developed that a number of fair Canadians wished to be present and among those in the gallery were: Mrs. R. L. Borden, Ottawa; Mrs. W. R. Riddell, Toronto; Mrs. R. C. Smith and Miss Smith, Montreal; Mrs. Wilfred Nelson, Mrs. J. J. McPhee, Mrs. Frank W. McLaughlin, Mrs. Courtenay Walter Bennett, Mrs. Alfred Downing and several others.

Hon. R. L. Borden received a right royal welcome as the leading citizen of the home land of the great majority of those present. His declarations of friendship for this country, and his explanation of Canada's attitude to the late election were well received.

Hon. Mr. Borden, after a declaration that the constitution of Canada was as democratic as that of the United States, pointed out that the powers of self-government conferred upon Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa were so extensive that the Parliament of the United Kingdom had in one sense ceased to be an Imperial Parliament and the chief tie which bound together the Motherland and the great dominions was a common allegiance to the same sovereign. The strength of that tie had increased with its importance and Canada yielded not even to Britain in her attachment to the crown.

"I have the opportunity," he said, "merely to hint at problems that are common to the English-speaking democracies. There are others which may be regarded as in some sense peculiar to the United States and Canada. I do not pretend to deal with these, but merely to suggest them. Both countries are endowed with enormous and abundant resources. The tendency is naturally toward wastefulness and prodigality. On the other hand the vast accumulation of wealth in the hands of a few men confronts us with the possibility that great national resources may pass into the hands of an oligarchy of wealth and may be used for the oppression rather than for the benefit of the people. We, in Canada, are not insensible to this danger and in this as in other respects we hope to profit by your experience. Our natural resources have not been very appreciably diminished by waste but we are approaching the danger line and already we have taken precautions."

Referring to the defeat of reciprocity as in no sense a manifestation in Canada, of an unfriendly spirit towards the United States, he pointed out that from 1878 to 1897 Canada had kept open an offer to exchange natural products but the United States, as it had a perfect right to do, had declined to accept. He continued: "For thirty years and more we have followed certain national ideals and policies which we firmly intend to pursue and con-

Two Hundred Workmen Entombed Following Heavy Explosion

Special to the Review.

Pittsburg, Dec. 9.—Two hundred miners are entombed at Briceville, Tenn., by the heavy explosion in a coal mine this morning.

NOTHING FOR GRAND JURY

Both McNamaras Have Decided on Policy of Silence

Los Angeles, Dec. 9.—The scope of the investigation undertaken by the federal grand jury here and the one in Indianapolis, Ind., so far as could be learned last night, has not been sharply defined. Government officials, it is thought, will be able to determine only after the testimony of witnesses has practically been finished, whether to return indictments here or in Indianapolis against those persons alleged to have been implicated in a conspiracy unlawfully to transport explosives from one state to another.

Both James B. and John J. McNamara remained in their cells yesterday, reiterating that they would tell nothing even if called before the grand jury. Oscar Lawlor, the Government's special prosecutor, saw them but obtained little satisfaction. It was suggested that perhaps after the McNamaras had a taste of prison life and are visited by labor leaders who are anxious to cleanse organized labor of alleged charges of lawlessness, they might be prevailed upon to give the desired information.

Ortie E. McManigal, confessed dynamiter, continued to tell the grand jury his experinece, and he was followed by William Kaiser of Muncie, Ind., a nitro-glycerine manufacturer, who says he sold explosives to J. B. and J. J. McNamara, as well as to McManigal. The latter corroborates Kaiser's story. Though the proceedings of the grand-jury are kept secret, it is assumed that Kaiser, who identified J. J. McNamara in the courtroom recently, told of the persons to whom he sold explosives.

Ironworkers' Books Seized.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Dec. 9.—The books of the Ironworkers' Local Union here, seized by U. S. deputy marshals and held by them yesterday to await instructions from federal officials in Los Angeles, are wanted, it is said, on high authority, to trace to their ultimate disposition large sums of money sent by the secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union (J. J. McNamara), in the local union, ostensibly for "organization in the west."

WHEN R. R. HALL BAMBOOZLED THE CITY ON A POWER DEAL

An Interesting Story of How Peterboro Got a Raw Deal From the Man Who Asks For the Electors' Support—The Great Betrayal

In his speech in the opera house on Thursday night, and on the platform during the campaign, R. R. Hall has refrained from making any explanation regarding his trip to Ottawa, in company with Mr Stratton—in September, about the time the Laurier government head was chopped off—in reference to procuring Dam No 4. Neither the Examiner, Mr Stratton or Mr. Hall have seen fit to make any explanation of this trip, though it has been referred to by the Review several times Why?

R. R. Hall as the chief spring in the Otonabee Power company clockworks, wanted Dam No 4, and took advantage of the fact that the Laurier government was doomed, to try to get from the boodle crowd at Ottawa the lease of this dam without which Dam No 5, which the Otonabee power company has, is of comparatively little use

There was a distinct breach of faith with the city by Mr Hall involved in the history of the negotiations which the city carried on with the Otonabee company. It is a long story, and one which shows Mr Hall in anything but a favorable light, when it comes to the welfare of the city of Peterborough The plot opens with the Otonabee company in possession of Dam No 5, and wanting Dam No. 4, to combine the two under one head, so as greatly to increase the capacity for development, over the capacity of each singly.

While the men behind the Otonabee company had been anxious to get Dam No 4 from the government, there was one thing in the way. The city of Peterborough had been promised that Dam No. 4 would not be leased to anyone without the city's consent Mr. Hall desperately endeavored to get No 4, but couldn't, because the city would not consent The Otonabee company offered the bait of 500 horse power at $15 a horse power, and a supplementary 250 horse power at $17.50, if the city would give its consent, but it wouldn't

Now, last spring there were some negotiations on between representatives of the city and the Otonabee company for the purchase of the plant at Dam No. 5 and system At the time Industrial Commissioner Duggan was here, a semi-offer to sell for $225,000 was obtained from the Otonabee power company This was not, strictly speaking, an option, but was a promise to sell the Otonabee plant to the city When the city got to business Mr Hall refused to sell at any price; But at the same time, members of the city council have reason to believe, Mr Hall was negotiating with the Seymour Power company to sell the Otonabee company to it When city representatives went to Ottawa on some power matters, they discovered that it was known at Ottawa that the Electric Power company interests were acquiring the Otonabee company. Mr. Hall refused to let the city acquire the Otonabee system, but sold it to the private interests in preference The fact of the passing of the control into the hands of the Electric power company was publicly announced for the first time by the solicitor for the Seymour company, Mr Strachan Johnson, of Toronto, at the time the power deputation met Hon Frank Cochrane. Did R. R. Hall have the interests of the city of Peterborough at heart when he repudiated the offer to sell for $225,000 to the city and turned the Otonabee company over to the monopoly? Was this some of his fine sympathy for the workingmen of Peterborough, proving himself a man of his word, and deserving to be accorded electoral support by the people of Peterborough?

Now, in spite of the fact that the Otonabee company was supposed to be in the hands of the monopoly at the time of the defeat of the Laurier government, Mr. Hall and Mr. Stratton went to Ottawa to make a final effort to secure Dam No. 4 for the power ring. They did not succeed as it happened, but this did not alter the fact that it was their intention to do the city out of Dam No. 4 if it was possible.

This is the sort of friend R. R. Hall is to the city, and to the people of Peterborough. This is how much he has the interests of the city at heart, he who would do so much for the workingman at election time. It was not the fault of R. R. Hall that the city to-day is going to have an opportunity of voting on a hydro-electric power proposition. He would have kept Peterborough chained forever to the wheels of a $4,000,000 power ring

As it is, Mr. Hall has shown great hostility to the introduction of competitive power in Peterborough. This city has wanted cheaper power for some years. It has complained at the lack of new industries, at the lack of industrial progress. This lack has been blamed on the lack of power facilities that equal those in the Western Ontario places, where there is hydro-electric power and competition?

Will Peterborough stand for a man who would thus deliberately try to block the city in its effort to throw off the shackles that hold it down? Will Peterborough vote on Monday for the man who is the king-pin of the interests that are ready for fight against cheap power for the building up of Peterborough—the interests that are arming for the fray against the Whitney government's cheap power scheme? We refuse to believe that the voters of Peterborough who want to have Peterborough go ahead, will listen for a moment to the siren voice that lures into the pit. R. R. Hall is ready to promise anything, and everything, to get a vote, but he cannot throw a veil over his record—a record which thrusts itself in the face of everyone who has eyes to see, and ears to hear, and a mind to understand.

Hallism is a first cousin of Strattonism.
The one should follow the other.

EIGHT THOUSAND MANCHUS SLAIN AND MUCH LOOTING

Pekin, Dec. 9.—The first direct and uncensored news received from Sianfu since the recent outbreak there was brought here yesterday by messenger. It consists of letters to the British and American legations and the director of posts. The letters say that 8,000 Manchus were slain by the Chinese, and that there was much looting. Several mission houses in the province were destroyed and eight foreigners, some of them children, were killed. Four of the dead were Americans.

According to the letters most of the foreigners in the Province of Shensi, of whch Sianful is the capital, numbering 75, 17 of them being Americans. A majority of these are now in Sianfu, the others having fled to the Province of Kansu, where trouble is expected.

"We apparently are safe now," says one of the letters, "but the lawless reign. He had hoped to escape down the Han River, but the road is dangerous. The Kansu missionaries may have a hard time. Twenty-two of them, including children, are Americans. Money cannot be sent them as all the mails have been stopped, and the banks were robbed and burned."

This letter is signed by V. J. Plymire of the Christian and Missionary Alliance at Taochow, Province of Kansu. It is dated Nov. 26.

The terms which the imperial delegates will take to Shanghai or Nanking in an endeavor to settle the question in dispute between the Government and the revolutionists are believed to provide, first, that the Emperor shall be retained, though he will be entirely without power; second, that a president and cabinet shall be elected by the nation and the president shall possess the same authority as the president of the republic, and, third, if the foregoing conditions are accepted, the Government will grant provincial autonomy.

These terms are considered largely a bluff. Yuan Shi Kai still controls a substantial army, but is unable to pay the soldiers, and, desiring to save the nation, he must accept the republican demands.

Chest Inflammation

Suffered From a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side—Constant Coughing.

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my side and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy and enjoy perfect health."

Nerviline CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large bottles, 50c, trial size 25c. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

SATURDAY, DEC. 9, 1911.

MONDAY'S DUTY

On Monday the electors of Peterborough and district will be asked to exercise their right to have a say in the government of the province, of which we all are so proud. The campaign conducted by Mr. Hall and Mr. Peck has been very quiet, one of the quietest on record. But that does not mean that there are not issues which must be considered, and on which a man may have strong opinions.

In the first place the personal record and character of the two candidates must be considered. On one hand we have Mr. Peck, a gentleman of large ability, who has the esteem of everyone in the riding, whose personal honor and whose character are unimpeachable. Mr. Peck has had a wide experience that will fit him admirably to be the representative of West Peterborough under Sir James Whitney. Mr. Hall is a gentleman of great ability. He has had previous parliament experience, and his energy has enabled him to make out of what may be termed miserable material, at least the semblance of a case against the government, and its almost unassailable record. Mr. Hall's energy, however, has led him into mistakes and deals which may easily be classed as dubious.

As for his platform, what he proposes to do if elected, does not materially differ from what is proposed by the Whitney government, and by Mr. Peck. There is no wide gap separating the Hall and Rowell platforms from the Whitney and Peck policies. Mr. Rowell and Mr. Hall have freely criticized the Whitney government on such things as the scarcity of teachers, but they have failed utterly to propose what may be regarded as a cure for the evil. In fact they know that until conditions of labor and the westward exodus alter considerably, there is very little hope for a change for the better under any government.

As for the hydro-electric Mr. Rowell has promised to extend it. But Sir James Whitney has put into actual operation the hydro-electric policy. It is in operation in Ottawa, in Western Ontario. Meetings are being held daily in the far western towns of Ontario like Seaforth and Owen Sound about hydro-electric power. Sir James Whitney is prepared to give it to eastern and Central Ontario, in spite of the fierce opposition of the strongly entrenched private companies. Mr. Hall is silent as to whether he would support and extend the hydro-electric. He says it is buncombe; it is designed to deceive and mislead. But is it? Have the municipalities in Western Ontario that want to get their power at Niagara Falls, in some cases two hundred miles away, found it to be such? Mr. Hall, as is well known in Peterborough, is opposed to the hydro-electric for personal reasons. He is identified with the private companies which will be hurt by the introduction of cheap power. Here then, is one line of cleavage between the two candidates. Mr. Peck is a supporter of the Whitney policy. Mr. Hall is not. Mr. Rowell, the Liberal leader, merely says he will carry on the hydro-electric policy if returned, so that Mr. Hall and his leader would be at logger-heads distinctly.

On the school question, Mr. Rowell has failed to get clear of the fence. He is content with that vague and pleasing generality that every child in Ontario should get a thorough English education, but he neglects to say that no language but the English shall be allowed in instruction in the schools. Mr. Hall has criticised the Whitney government for an apparent neglect to stop the use of French in the public schools in French speaking sections, but Mr. Hall has not been able to point to utterances that place his party—which controls its policy, after all, and not Mr. Hall—in the right place in its attitude as to bi-lingualism. This problem is a difficult one, and while technically and legally speaking, there are no such things as bi-lingual schools, yet there are matters which may require readjustment. When Dr. Merchant's report is ready and it is presented to the legislature at its next session, the question will be firmly handled. Sir James Whitney has said that whatever the abuses are, under the present system, will be remedied at once. They are abuses of administration, not of law. So that those who have opinions on this subject have certainly much more to hope from Mr. Peck—who has come out flatly against the use of French for instructional purposes—and Whitney, than they have from the shilly-shallying Mr. Rowell, and his equally evasive Mr. Hall.

We do not think that there are other questions which enter materially into the campaign as far as Peterborough is concerned. Ontario has progressed wonderfully, has developed amazingly in the last six or seven years. The Whitney administration has given clean, honest government, without scandal and without graft, and Sir James Whitney is likely to be returned with as large a majority as he had before. Mr. Hall has very little excuse to offer for his candidature beyond the fact that the Liberal bakers' dozen in opposition at Toronto need his extremely valuable services to give them a lift. He says that they have not the numbers, or the ability to properly criticise the government—therefore Peterborough should remedy that condition of affairs by electing him. Peterborough, which seemingly had enough of Strattonism on Sept. 21, surely has had enough of the bosom friend of Strattonism, that is to day Hallism, and on Monday will do its plain and honest duty to itself and to the province by giving Sir James Whitney the support which he needs in this section—especially in view of the fact that Peterborough will need a friend at court when the government is moving to benefit this city with its cheap power project.

Vote for Peck on Monday, and be in the procession.

GUARD THEIR HEALTH!

Children Who Grow Very Fast Need Careful Watching.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills would make her healthy and happy.

Next to infancy, the years between ten or twelve and eighteen are the most critical in life, especially for the boys and girls who grow too fast. Rapid growth and the physical changes that are taking place render them particularly liable to weakness and disorders of the digestive system, kidneys or lungs that very frequently, when allowed to run on, condemn them to a lifetime of suffering.

It is most important that at this period of life those organs which carry off the body's waste and impurities—the bowels, the kidneys and the skin—should be kept active and vigorous.

Nothing will do this more effectively than that good old-fashioned remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. It acts directly on each of these organs, enabling them to do their work properly, and thus keeps the whole system pure and healthy.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are still made from precisely the same formula as when our grandparents used them, for nothing better has ever been devised.

A TENDERFOOT'S WOOING

—BY—

CLIVE PHILLIPPS WOLLEY

(AUTHOR OF "GOLD, GOLD IN CARIBOO," ETC.)

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

But Frank Anstruther stood back from the weak pleading hands, and as the two women left the room, his was the only face left in it on which there was no sign of sorrow.

"When the door closed, he sat down on the edge of the table and began to roll a cigarette.

"Let's see that card, pardner. You ain't putting up a job on us?"

"No, Al. There it is," and he showed him the two of hearts.

"Holy smoke! The two-spot! She couldn't have drawed a lower if she'd tried to!"

"Or better. Luck is for the young, Al," and this curiously-minded young man from Piccadilly began to hum a light air to himself, the words of which were:—

> "He ain't no good about the house
> He cain't cut wood."

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"You said, Combe, that I should not be able to find my way to Soda Creek?"

Anstruther was still sitting on the table rolling his cigarette.

"In the dark. It would not be light all the time you were on the road. But you don't have to. It is not likely we are going to let you suicide after that."

Anstruther smiled a little superciliously.

"That has nothing to do with the question. Would you mind coming here for a moment?" and he went to the window.

"That is the road to Soda Creek; the way we came?"

Combe nodded.

"But that is the direct way, as the crow flies?"

"Yes, only there's a bit of a canyon in the way."

"I know. But after?"

"There wouldn't be any after. There's no way across the canyon until you come to the place where the road crosses it. It's four hundred feet deep with sides like the walls of a house."

"If there was a bridge across it, it would shorten the distance by a mile, wouldn't it?"

"Yes, by two, I should think. But there isn't any bridge and the Indians ain't going to wait whilst we build one."

"Could one be built? How wide is the canyon?"

"Not more than twenty or thirty feet at the Buck's Jump. It could be bridged there easily enough; but what's the good of talking. It aint bridged."

"Where is the Buck's Jump. There, isn't it?"

"Yes, right against that big lone pine with the broken top."

"Very nearly in a direct line for Soda Creek?"

"In a plumb straight line. That pine might have been put there for a surveyor's post."

"So I thought," said Anstruther, and he stood there measuring the distance with his eye, and noting the land marks.

Combe watched him, and at last, with an obvious effort, he said:—

"Forgive me, Anstruther. Perhaps you don't think it is my business, but I've got to speak. I know just how you feel, and it's the way a man ought to feel, but you know you can't go now. It wouldn't be a square deal to Miss Clifford."

"Leave Miss Clifford's name out of the question, please. I'm very much obliged to you for what you suggest, but there are some things you don't understand. I'm going, and there's an end of it."

"When?"

"When I am ready," Anstruther answered, and left the room.

"Pretty rough on them kiddies, ain't it, Jim?" said Al, when Anstruther had left the room, "and she's dead stuck on him. But I guess he's right."

"Right?" snorted Combe. "Right? Just to think of himself? No, I don't think he's right, and I'll take blanked good care as he doesn't do it."

Whatever Al was going to say was lost, for at that moment the call sounded from the upper story. The rifles were wanted at the windows. With a rush the two men went to their places, and for the next twenty minutes they had their whole attention occupied by what they saw from their posts.

A cloud of dust was coming towards them at railroad speed, and at first they flattered themselves that Horseley and his specials had broken the cordon and were coming to their relief. But the riders who emerged from the cloud were Chilcotens, reckless whooping devils, painted as none of the white men had ever before seen Indians painted in British Columbia, their greasy locks powdered with swansdown, and eagle's plumes drooping from their heads to half way between their shoulders.

At break-neck gallop they rode to within a hundred yards of the house, and then like a flight of starlings they diverged, following their leader in single file in a wild circuit round the building, brandishing their weapons and discharging them in mid career.

In spite of the pace at which they came several bullets struck the house, and one was so well-aimed that it smashed through a chest of drawers behind which Rolt was kneeling; but one of the Indians' horses pitched on its head, and before its rider could extricate himself, several bullets found him.

"Only the canter past, I fancy, Al," said Rolt, coolly, blowing the smoke out of his barrels. "Where is Anstruther?"

"I seed him go into his room as we came upstairs. He hasn't been up here to see the show. He's up to his neck in them trunks of his, I reckon."

"What?"

"Kinder sortin' out his duds and gettin' good and ready for his passear."

Jim glanced quickly through the window and saw that the Indians were already loping back to their lines. Then he put his rifle up against the wall and left the room quietly.

Al noticed him and seemed about to follow him, but thought better of it, and muttering "Let 'em settle it themselves. It ain't my funeral," kept his place at the window.

Anstruther's door was wide open, but from where he stood Jim could not see into the room, neither could he hear anyone moving in it, but to prevent accidents he sat down and took off his boots, and then with them in his hand, stole quietly along the passage and peeped through between the door and the jamb.

Anstruther had gone, but the room could not be said to be empty, for the floor of it was covered with mountains of clothes, as Jim had never dreamed of, piled pell mell in a great heap, whilst, as he said afterwards, there were "boots enough for a battalion, and coats like blankets at a potlatch."

As he looked he heard the horses stamping in the kitchen.

"Going, is he? I blanked if he shall!" he muttered, and without stopping to think, he ran down into the kitchen.

But the sight which met him there staggered Jim Combe, so that he stood gaping with his boots still in his hand.

Anstruther in full hunting costume—pink coat, immaculate leathers, top hat, and gloves—turned and faced him. His horse, looking enormous alongside the weedy country-breds, was standing as still as a sheep in the middle of the room, facing the window, from which Anstruther had contrived to take the sashes.

"What in—"

"Going to bed, Jim?" asked Anstruther easily, interrupting him and looking with a grin at Combe's boots. "Sorry to bother you, but before you turn in you might put those up again for me," and he pointed to the sashes.

"But—"

"Say I'll be back soon. So long!" and, before Combe had realized what was happening, Anstruther swung cleverly into his saddle and put his horse at the window.

Combe saw Anstruther touch the great horse with his heel, heard his "Up, boy," as they came to the low window sill, and then the beast's great quarters were gathered beneath it and like a cat or, to be more exact, a well-broken Heythrop hunter, Ruddy-gore reared and popped over into space.

The little cramped jump would have done more to unseat Combe than the worst buck, but the man from Piccadilly sat as if he was in a rocking-chair.

So quietly had Anstruther made his preparations, and the Indians' feint had served him so well, that, with the single exception of Jim Combe, no one had any idea until they saw him from the windows, trotting quietly towards the Indians, who had just returned to their lines, their horses a trifle pumped by the wild gallop they had indulged in.

For a hundred yards he trotted quietly, and then stopping unconcernedly, as if he had been at a meet in his own country, he turned and uncovered to the ladies, smiling and calling a message to them, the words of which they could not catch.

Considering the probability of a volley, it was very gallant fooling, and worthy of the good sportsman he looked, and at any rate it was better and more merciful to Kitty than a tearful leave-taking.

Perhaps he meant it so, but Anstruther was never one of those who parade their good intentions.

Replacing his hat and waving his hand to them, he turned in his saddle, and at a quiet trot rode steadily towards the Indian lines, the great horse reaching at his bit and showing plainly how good the turf felt under his feet after so many days on a boarded floor.

"Great heavens! The boy has gone mad!" cried Rolt. "Can no one stop him?"

"Best let him play his own hand now, Boss," growled Al, whose eyes were beginning to glitter with excitement and understanding. "He knows his long suit. None of us do. Maybe he's going to play peace-maker."

This may have been the idea which kept the Indians quiet, though that could hardly have been Al's reading of the riddle, or the old man's thin nostrils would not have been working so nervously, and though such an attire as Anstruther's would have been in keeping with the traditions of old time Hudson Bay factors when going to a solemn meeting, he carried no white flag or other wilfully misleading emblem.

But he rode unarmed. Except for his horn-handled hunting crop, he carried nothing, and in this fashion, restraining his horse to the steadiest trot, he advanced with the utmost unconcern to within fifty yards of the wondering Chilcotens without a shot fired or a word spoken, whilst his friends watched him with their hearts in their months.

At fifty yards from the Indian lines, a dozen voices challenged him, but he rode on as if he had been deaf, without haste as without pause.

Then there was a clank of Winchester pumps, and a rifle went up to a redskin's shoulder. Before the butt touched flesh, in the last second of grace, Anstruther spoke to his horse and touched him with his spurs, so that the gallant beast, unused to such treatment, sprang madly forward on the instant, whilst its rider bent over its shoulder and rode it headlong into the volley which belched out to meet him.

"Give 'em hell! Oh, give 'em hell!" screamed old Al at the window, losing all control of himself, his face working with excitement. "Didn't I say the colt was clar grit? He's through 'em, I tell you. Miss Kitty, look. Don't shut your eyes, lassie. Your man's clear through 'em."

And he was.

A beast coming at you is the hardest mark to hit. A man in deadly earnest is even harder, especially when you don't expect him, and calculating upon this and timing his dash to a moment, the man from Piccadilly had ridden right over the nearest group of Chilcotens, knocking one down with his horse, and breaking old Khelowna's head with his riding-crop as he passed, and now he was going "lickety brindle," as old Al would put it, on the far side of the enemies' lines, whilst they scrambled to their horses instead of stopping to shoot.

So far he had done well, but in a glance his friends realised that his gallant effort had been wasted. Instead of turning to his left and making for the road, in which case he would have had a clear course and two hundred yards' start, he was heading for Soda Creek as the crow flies.

"He has forgotten the canyon," groaned Jim Combe.

"He hain't done no such thing," contradicted Al. "That's what he's a playin' for."

Jim looked at the old man and understood.

"He can't do it. No horse could."

"He can. A buck couldn't. A horse couldn't, but he's a goin' to. Great Scott! See that!"

Perhaps half a dozen Indians followed directly in Anstruther's footsteps like a pack of hounds running in view, but the main body of them, realizing their quarry's mistake, skirted, making for the dip where the road went through, to which they imagined he must eventually come, if he would cross the canyon.

For half a mile the going was good, firm, grass-covered cattle land, and over this the red coat sailed, going two lengths for every one covered by his pursuers. But beyond this for several hundred yards the land was boggy, and when Al spoke, Anstruther slipped out of the saddle and ran by his horse's side, whilst the Indians seeing this, made desperate efforts to overtake him, and played their horses clean out.

Once through the little bog, he was in the saddle again, cantering easily until, to those watching him, he seemed on the very brink of the canyon, with the broken pine close on his right.

Then he shook his horse together, crammed his hat on his head, and went at his death hands down.

To five people still alive, there is one second in their past lives which was more than a day long.

When it was over, a fair-haired girl sank quietly to the ground, and for the first time in her life Mrs. Rolt did not move to help a sister in trouble. She could not. Her great eyes were wide with the hunger of seeing; her little hands clenched and her parted lips white; and when Al, speaking as if he were in church, whispered: "I take it all back about them dudes. There ain't no flies on fox hunting," the others burst into hysterical laughter which was perilously near tears, for the red coat had cleared the canyon. "Jumped it, by gum; jumped it clar!" as the old song says, and was sailing away, a dim pink spot, straight as the craw flies for Soda Creek.

Does the story want fin'shing? Before Anstruther had ridden for a couple of hours, a large posse of men came over a rise and were startled by the vision of a white-faced madman riding across the Chilcoten country in the uniform of the Vale Hunt; moreover, the madman was so mad that he could barely speak intelligibly, and he appeared to be swooning from pain, though on him was no trace of a wound.

They brought him back with them to the ranch, from which, at their approach the Chilcotens vanished like the mists of morning, and it was Horseley, the leader of the posse, who, a month later, talking to Jim Combe over a pipe, said:—

"Like will to like, Jim. She'd never have made a wife for you, old chap. You'll have to plug along same as we all do until you find another Mrs. Rolt—if the world holds one."

DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION TO CURE ECZEMA

The most advanced physicians of this country and Europe are now prescribing a wash of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other soothing and healing ingredients for the cure of Eczema, Psoriasis and all other forms of skin trouble. This compound is known as the D.D.D. Prescription.

Dr. Holmes, the well-known skin specialist, writes—"I am convinced that the D.D.D. Prescription is as much a specific for Eczema as is quinine for malaria. I have been prescribing the D.D.D. remedy for years."

We ourselves vouch for the D.D.D Prescription for Eczema and absolutely know that it will take away the itch the instant you apply it.

Drop into our store and get posted on this wonderful remedy for Eczema and all other skin troubles. Or write the D.D.D. Laboratories, Dept. P.W., 49 Colborne St., Toronto, for their free sample bottle. They will be glad to send it immediately.

KIDNEY TROUBLE CURED !

LAKE MEGANTIC, P. Q., July 31, 1910.

"I was troubled with lame back for the last four years, due to Kidney trouble, and tried a great many remedies but without any relief. I was advised to try No. 7 Rheumatism and Kidney Remedy, and can say that my Kidneys are entirely cured, and even the jar of the engine does not pain me any more. Any sufferer from Rheumatism or Kidney trouble should by all means try Father Morriscy's No. 7. The nature of my work induced Kidney trouble and it required a mighty good remedy to successfully combat the disease."

W. A. Elliott,
C. P. R. Engineer.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL FOR The Hospital for Sick Children

Dear Mr. Editor,—

Thanks for your kindness in allowing me the privilege of appealing at this Christmas time on behalf of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

I make this direct appeal to the people of Ontario, for the fathers and mothers of Ontario, outside the City of Toronto, have precisely the same claim for their sick children as regards the privileges of the Hospital, as parents who reside in this city.

In brief the sick children from any place in Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay, is, on certificate from a municipal officer of any city, town, village or township, treated free.

This is a privilege not granted by any Hospital in the Dominion, or on this Continent.

Let me, in a few words, state that in the last 20 years, since 1891, there have been 4,781 patients from 450 places outside of this city treated free, as the parents were unable to pay for treatment. Last year 384 patients from 234 places outside Toronto were so treated.

The Hospital is not a city but a Provincial institution. The Corporation of Toronto grants $18,000, not only for city children, but towards the maintenance of every patient in the Hospital, and the citizens of Toronto donate an average of $10,000 to the maintenance fund of the Hospital.

It would take more space than you can spare to tell of the good work done for the sick and deformed children of this Province.

Why, in the Orthopedic department in 20 years, nearly 700 children, boys and girls, have been treated for club feet, and about 600 were corrected. Two-thirds of these came from places outside of Toronto, from parents who could not afford to pay.

Surely we have a fair claim for help from the people of this Province.

Every day is Christmas to the child whose little life is saved, or whose crippled limb is straightened with the might of money—your money—and the mercy of the Hospital.

Will you, the reader of this letter, think of what your dollar will do? It helps to restore health and strength, and gives sound limbs and straight feet to crippled boys and girls.

You give wealth to the Hospital, and the Hospital gives health to the children.

Yes, your money can put golden hinges on the door of the Hospital's mercy.

Will you, kind reader, help us and send a spare dollar to Douglas Davidson, the secretary-treasurer of the Hospital, or

A Result Worthy of Consideration

Endowment Policy No. 34022 was issued to a local citizen twenty years ago for which he paid in ten annual instalments to the Company in all premiums, amounting to $688.50. He now receives a single cash payment of $1273.65 which as an investment is over 4% compound interest, or he may accept $750.60 in cash, which is $62.10 more than he paid in, together with a paid up policy for $1000, payable at death which earns profits every year during the balance of his life.

Where can a young man or woman find a better way of saving money as well as providing a protection for those dependent upon them.

The above is the result of a matured policy in the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA, payable on December 1st., 1911,

BIFOCALS
OR—
DOUBLE VISION GLASSES

Most people think, when buying Bifocal Glasses, that a large segment or reading area is required. With very few exceptions this is not so, as most bifocals are required for constant use, and the successful fitting of these lenses depends not so much on furnishing the largest reading portion possible, but on placing a minimum disk or wafer in exactly the correct position. A small wafer accurately placed will afford ample field for reading, writing and sewing, and will overcome the tendency to make mis-steps in going up and down stairs, an experience not uncommon to wearers of bifocals with too large reading segments.

We make a specialty of filling Bifocal Lenses in VISIBLE, SEMI-INVISIBLE and INVISIBLE.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

All Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is more widely and successfully used than any other remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed. Why don't you try it?

MISS LIGHTFOOT WAS SURPRISED

Lock Works Office Staff Deeply Regret Her Departure

Miss Minnie Lightfoot was surprised by a few of her friends who met Thursday evening at the home of Miss Rubie Adamson, where they presented Miss Lightfoot with a beautiful gold and pearl mounted umbrella.

Miss Lightfoot who has been connected with the office staff of the Peterborough Lock Company for the past five years, has secured the appointment of confidential secretary to Mr. A. W. Clark, general manager of the Yale and Towne Co., St. Catharines. She leaves Peterborough to take up her new duties after the first of the year.

Accompanying the presentation was the following address—

Dear Minnie—It is with feelings of deepest regret, that we, your friends, gather here this evening to bid farewell, to one who has always been a participant in our joys and sorrows.

Your courteous manner and congenial companionship have endeared you to each and every one of us, and we feel sure that you will win the confidence and esteem of those with whom you intermingle in your new home.

We beg you to accept this umbrella as a slight token of the high regard in which you have always been held, and we trust that on each rainy day the sunshine of memory may dispel the gloomy weather by recalling many happy hours spent in Peterborough.

FINE POINT IN INSURANCE LAW

Interesting Appeal is Before the Divisional Court

An appeal from a judgment of Mr. Justice Middleton was lately made to the Divisional Court at Toronto in connection with a claim under a policy of the Canadian Railway Accident Insurance Company, and the higher court has reserved judgment. Particulars are as follows: the late J. A. J. Wadsworth, of Ottawa, was insured in the above company, for $10,000; the terms of the policy being that should his death be due to fits, sleep-walking, etc., claimants would receive only $5,000. It was further stipulated that if death were due to the burning of the building in which he was, his heirs would receive $20,000.

While in a small out-house at the Ottawa Hunt Club, he was seized with a fit and upset the lamp beside him. The building caught fire and the assured received such burns that he died a few days afterwards. The offer of the insurance company to pay $5,000 on the ground that the injuries were due to a fit, was upheld by Mr. Justice Middleton. The decision of the Divisional Court will be awaited with interest.

An Unique Sign in the Optical Institute Windows

Something rather unique in the way of signs is being shown in the windows of Dr. Browett's Optical Institute, made purposely for him by Messrs J. J. Turner & Sons. The frame and background of the sign, is of quartered oak, antique finish, upon which are placed raised gold letters.

The front sign is J. W. Browett, "Optometrist," and the side one "Optical Institute." They constitute a rich and substantial attraction, and are in harmony with the fixtures of the office.

TUBERS ARE UP IN PRICE

As High as $1.75 Was Asked on the Market

A jump in the price of potatoes was noticeable at the market this morning, the tubers being offered at $1.50 and $1.75 per bag. Eggs remained high, from 35 to 40 cents being asked, while butter was around the 30 cent mark. But how would the housewives of Peterborough enjoy life in Chicago, where table butter brings from 47c. to 50c. per pound this week. The market was largely attended.

EARL GREY COMPETITION

Reference to the Geisha in Review of Five Competitions

The Hon. Secretary of the Permanent Committee of the Earl Grey musical and Dramatic Trophy competitions, F. C. T. O'Hara Esq. of Ottawa has issued a charming book of nearly two hundred pages, giving particulars of the whole of the five competitions held since 1907 commencing with Ottawa and concluding with last spring's contest at Winnipeg. As only a few copies have been issued, and these only to companies who competed, a few particulars gathered from its pages may be of interest to very many lovers of music, and the drama, as well as to the thousands of amateurs who took part in the actual competitions, for it is surprising to learn that over sixty-three organizations actually competed. Of the judges, it may be said, that seven were from New York and Boston, and six were Canadians, all eminently qualified to undertake the difficult duty asked of them. Of the first year's judges, Langdon Mitchell Esq., Mrs. Kate Douglas, New York, dramatic section and G. W. Chadwick Esq., musical section; it must be said that they set a very high standard which has formed the basis of judging in the other contests. Part of their first report in part says, "the competition should have an excellent effect on the professional stage, as the professional stage is necessarily recruited from amateur ranks. In still another way the competion should have an excellent effect, and that is in regard to spoken English. In England to-day, there is one standard of spoken English, but in North America, Canada as well as the States one can hardly say that there is a standard of any sort. This is a source of continual trouble in the States, trouble that is, to the stage manager if he has correct English at heart. No two men have the same sort of pronunciation, or enunciation. The result is lamentable. It would certainly seem that the present competition, renewed year after year should tend to correct this deficiency of a standard English, especially so, if the future judges shall be severe upon every sort of vulgarity, and upon everything that is slipshod." Their detailed reports which follow on the plays they judged, show that the competition was a very real one, and only well trained companies should compete with any hope of success. The musical judge, found that to judge the performances of choral and orchestral societies was a task of no little difficulty, an opinion that all the musical judges have felt. That the orchestral work has had the verdict in its favor is shown by the fact that in four out of five contests, an orchestra has won the musical trophy, the Ottawa orchestra no less than three out of the four. Last year, for the first time an operatic company from Peterborough entered the contest, still further complicating matters, so much so, that in last year's report, the musical judge, Howard Brockway, Esq., of Auburn, N.Y. reports as follows "we would suggest for the consideration of future committees the question of whether comic opera entries like the first act of the "Geisha" in the present competition should not be jointly considered by the musical and dramatic judges. Involving, as such entries do, both acting and singing, it might be well if the dramatic judges were at least permitted to take into consideration any operatic event in making awards of the special prizes for acting."

In the competition held at Winnipeg the above suggestion was carried out, and for the first time in the history of the competion the orchestral work took second place, the Winnipeg Amateur Operatic Company winning the musical trophy by a fine performance of the "Chimes of Normandy." What might have happened had the new system of accepting an opera as a theatrical offering been in force last year is a matter of conjecture, but the judge who suggested the change reported of the Peterborough Operatic Company as follows (page 144):

"The performance of an act of the 'Geisha' by this organization on Tuesday evening, April 5th, calls for an enthusiastic commendation. To organize from amateur ranks in a town of the size of Peterborough a company which could give so creditable a performance is an achievement which arouses admiration and sincere praise. The performance brought forward one singer of most remarkable quality, possessed of an exquisite voice, most admirably trained, a fine musical sense, and true histronic ability. I refer to Miss Lavina Hallihan, who sang the part of "O Mimosa San." The genial spirit of the performance, and the singing of the chorus in particular, impressed me as remarkable, and in the highest degree praiseworthy.

"I am moved to suggest to His Excellency that if it is practicable, the organization should in some public way receive honorable mention."

The Popular Theatre

THE DIVING GIRL, with her uncle, she visits the shore and goes bathing with a party of her brother's friends. Uncle also takes a dip and is annoyed at the perilous performance of the girl. He orders her from the water and locks her in her room, but releases her. Also on this film we have a story of a burglar who enters the home of a wealthy man and steals a valuable necklace. A reward of $1,000 is offered for his capture. Biograph Film.

THE MISTRESS OF THE HACIENDA DEL CIRRO— A story of an American settler. This story is based upon the actual occurrences which happened in the year 1852, in the region near the boundary line between southern and lower California and the Colorado river. Kalem Film.

THE THUMB PRINT— How a wife is accused of her husband's murder. The murderer being a foreigner was the guilty person. He is traced by the thumb print on a pair of scissors. Vitagraph Film.

Sample of Mr. Hall's Great Interest in the Workingmen—Workingman Took a Back Seat at Liberal Meeting

Why does not Mr. R. R. Hall give the workingman a show? Mr. J. J. Hartley is chairman of the Liberal Association but as a workingman, he is only good enough to preside over small meetings. Meetings at the Opera House, are not suitable for a workingman to preside over. Mr. Hall must make the man who should have the right to take the chair, sit back with the remainder of the workingmen in the audience. He is not good enough to associate with Mr. Hall in big company.

Peck appeals to the electors in a candid, frank spirit that testifies to sincerity and purposes. He is the representative for West Peterborough.

DANCE BY THE BACHELORS

One of the most delightful dances of the season was held last evening at the Conservatory of Music Hall under the management of the "Bachelors" Club. The affair was very largely attended and the spacious hall was taxed to its limit to accomodate thte gathering.

The quality of the music supplied so liberally by the Grand Opera House orchestra was very highly praised, and their efforts were distinctly appreciated.

This orchestra is being very much sought after for occasions of the kind held last night.

BIG LEAGUE CLASS FOR BANK HOCKEY TEAMS

Only Six Men to Each Team—H. W. Harper is President of League

The Bankers' Hockey League organized again this week for the coming season, with the addition of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company and the Union Bank, making a total of nine banking institutions represented. It is hoped to make a grouping this season which will make the league even more successful. The games will be played at Brock street rink on Wednesdays and Saturdays from 5 to 6 o'clock, and each team will play but six men.

The officers were elected as follows:

Hon. Presidents—The managers of the banks

President—Mr. H. W. Harper (Royal.)

Vice-President—Mr. H. W. Walkey. (Moutreal.)

Sec.-Treas.—Mr. E. E. Brumwell (Royal)

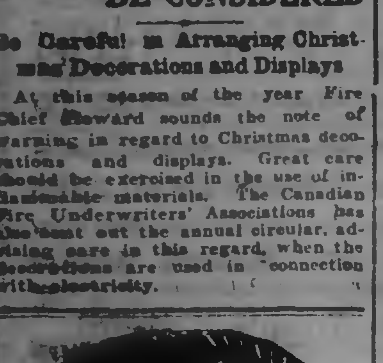
Executive—One representative from each team.

Appointment of referees, selection of colors and the schedule will be arranged at a meeting to be held prior to the opening of the season.

WARNING TO BE CONSIDERED

Be Careful in Arranging Christmas Decorations and Displays

At this season of the year Fire Chief Howard sounds the note of warning in regard to Christmas decorations and displays. Great care should be exercised in the use of inflammable materials. The Canadian Fire Underwriters' Associations has also sent out the annual circular, advising care in this regard, when the decorations are used in connection with electricity.



CALENDARS ARE NOW ON SALE

Buy at Drug Stores and Help the Health Association

Have you secured one of the pretty Christmas calendars in aid of the Peterborough Health Association? They are placed on sale in the drug stores. When you are down town, step into one of these shops and ask to see them. Everybody has one or more fancy calendars among their collection of Christmas gifts. Then in making your selections this year, don't forget the Health Association. Remember that in purchasing one of these calendars, you will perform a two fold act. In addition to having a suitable gift for your friends you will help along the noble cause of this local organisation, namely, that of fighting the tuberculosis in this city. Already a number of these have been sold by interested workers, but there are still several hundred to be disposed of, before the amount of money that the association is endeavoring to raise through this medium is secured.

The Christmas stamps are also now available. In sending parcels and letters put a few of these stamps on them. As was stated in Saturday's issue, the object of this sale is to raise funds in order to engage a district nurse for tubercular cases in Peterborough.

The Last Word.

"What's the first word in the dictionary?" asked the student.

"The article 'a,' of course," replied Mr. Growcher.

"And what's the last word?"

"Ask my wife. She's an expert on the subject."—Washington Star.

His Chief Anxiety.

Defendant's Wife—Don't worry, dear. The judge's charge was certainly in your favor. Defendant (moodily)—I know that. It's the lawyer's charge that I'm thinking about.—Boston Transcript.

No life is so strong and complete but it yearns for the smile of a friend.—Wallace Bruce.

RURAL SCHOOLS

Grants for the School Sections in County are Now Payable

The legislative and county grants to rural schools, on the basis of accommodation and equipment, have just been apportioned by the school inspector, and are now payable to the sections. This grant is paid, one-half by the Legislature and the other half by the county, and amounts to an average of about $24 for each school. It is apportioned among the schools, each receiving 10 per cent. of the total value of the equipment, consisting of maps, charts, libraries and apparatus. The rest is divided on the basis of the inspector's grading of the accommodation according to a schedule prepared by the Minister of Education.

Importance Recognized.

"Do you think that man fully appreciates the importance of the office to which we have elected him?" said one constituent.

"I guess he does," replied the other. "The first thing he did was to say it ought to command a larger salary."—Washington Star.

Bean Ballots.

Greeks and Romans of the ancient world invariably used white and black beans for voting at trials, the white bean signifying acquittal and the black one conviction.

Particular Speech.

"My dear, do you love me still?"

"I still love you, and I suppose I would love you still if I ever saw you that way."—Baltimore American.

History is indeed little more than the register of the crimes, follies and misfortunes of mankind.—Gibbon.

BARTENDER FINED $25

Supplied Whiskey to Two Minors Who Became Intoxicated

The Alternative is Thirty Days in the County Jail

A local bartender was fined $25 this morning at police court for selling liquor to two young men, who were under eighteen years of age. The penalty for such an offense is a fine of not less than $10 or more than $50 so that His Worship compromised in imposing the fine. The bartender could not pay forthwith. In case his employer fails to come forward and make good the amount, he will be forced to spend thirty days on the hill.

I. O. O. F. at Home

Peterborough Lodge No. 111, I.O.O.F., held a very successful "At Home" last night with a good attendance. D. H. Moore was chairman and ran off a very entertaining, brief program, consisting of instrumental music, singing and dramatic recitations, ranging from the sublime to the ridiculous.

RHEUMATISM AND GOUT

Outcome of Sick Kidneys Uric Acid Cause of Grinding Pains That Disturb Day and Night—Booth's Kidney Pills Remove the Cause

Backache, rheumatic joints and uric acid troubles follow in the train of sick kidneys.

There is no rest and but little peace for any person whose kidneys are out of order. Not only does backache keep up its dull throb day and night, but there are sharp twinges, cricks and stitches of darting pain, achy joints and sore, stiff muscles.

When the kidneys get congested and inflamed following a chill, a cold, grippe, fever, or from overwork a fall or some injury to the back they need a kidney tonic.

Booth's Kidney Pills will quickly remove uric acid troubles—rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, sciatica, gout, weak eyes, headache, etc., resulting from the weakened kidneys failing to filter the blood free from uric poisons.

When sediment, thick and cloudy, or gritty as sand, appears in the urine, and passages are too frequent, too scanty or painful, there is danger of dropsy, Bright's disease, gravel, stone in the bladder and diabetes.

Booth's Kidney Pills have brought new life and health comfort to thousands of sufferers from backache, kidney and bladder troubles. They are guaranteed by the proprietor to do all they claim or they will refund your money.

BOOTH'S COMFORT.

T. E. Foster, of St. John street, Fredericton, N.B., says—"I have found more actual relief from Booth's Kidney Pills than in all else I have ever tried for rheumatism. The pains in my limbs have lessened greatly and I am better and stronger than in years previous. My appetite has built up and I eat and sleep better than I have in over three years. My general health is greatly improved, and I can credit this only to Booth's Kidney Pills."

DIZZY SPELLS

Mrs. Edward Calwood, of 123 S. Harold street, Fort William, Ont., says:—"I suffered with dull, miserable pains, soreness across my back and in my sides, for months. I would have dizzy spells and altogether felt generally run down. After using a number of remedies without finding relief I learned of Booth's Kidney Pills, and am pleased to say found them an excellent remedy."

BROUGHT HIS TOOTHBRUSH.

But Saint-Saens, the Composer, Didn't Shock Parisian Society.

The Cri de Paris told the following story of Saint-Saens, the composer: A rare visitor to Paris, he is on his visits much sought after as a social lion. One lady succeeded in persuading him to accept an invitation to dinner, promising to send to fetch him and also to deposit him at his door when he left, his only stipulation being that he should be allowed to make his adieus at 10 o'clock.

The son of his hostess was dispatched in good time and found M. Saint-Saens in a velvet coat seated before his piano. He rose at once, however, and asked for ten minutes to dress, at the end of which he appeared, tying his white cravat. As he was shutting his door behind him he ejaculated:

"Good gracious! One minute more! I have forgotten my toothbrush!"

The young man, to his amazement, saw his guest dive into his dressing room and reappear with a toothbrush, which he put away in his breast pocket. On arriving home he told his mother, who in some uneasiness informed her friends, and everybody was in wonderment as to what the great composer was going to do with his toothbrush.

Every eye was fixed on him throughout the dinner, watching him as he ate and drank and used his finger glass. In the drawing room Saint-Saens talked with the ladies and played any piece that was asked of him till 10 o'clock struck, when he bade farewell politely to the company.

The journey home was without incident, and when they reached his house M. Saint-Saens simply offered to shake hands and say good night. Curiosity was too strong, though, for the youth, who said:

"Excuse me, maiter, but I should so much like to know why you so particularly wanted to take your toothbrush with you."

"Oh, my young friend," replied Saint-Saens, "it is very simple! My lock is very stiff, and I always hurt my fingers in turning the key. So I now pass the handle of my toothbrush in the ring of the key and turn it easily. Voila!"

THOROUGHLY WARMED.

An Old Time Schoolboy's Experience on a Bitterly Cold Day.

An old time gentleman of Newburyport, describing his school days in the opening years of the nineteenth century, has this to say of a wintry day:

"We found our inkstands all frozen up. These required to be thawed out. To do this there was a board held up by bricks over the stove on which the pewter inkstands were placed, but before the copy was written down the ink would be again frozen. Then the boy took his ink to the stove again and while it was thawing laid in a store of caloric for himself, standing by the stove, watching closely that the pewter should not melt.

"The clothes of the boys were made of corduroy, jacket and trousers in one, and nothing under but a shirt. These absorbed the heat like sheet iron, so that when a boy retruned to his seat he was often compelled to carry his inkstand in his mouth, employing both hands to hold his trousers off from his knees, and with every precaution the skin was often mottled and scorched."

Another old time schoolboy in his later years recalled an even severer experience.

"I can remember," he recorded, "how, crowding close to the stove to toast the shivers from my poor little body, I scorched a hole in my trousers in front and exclaimed aloud at the disaster, whereupon the master thrashed a hole into them behind, and when I went home to my mother she told me grimly it was well that things should match and that as my shirt was such an old one she was willing to risk fraying it on the back, and she reached for a strap and did!

"I was thoroughly warmed, and it was the coldest day of the year, but I regretted my shivers after all."—Youth's Companion.

Helpful Son-in-law.

"So you asked my wife for our daughter's hand, did you?" said the stern father.

"I did, and she began to give me a piece of her mind about my persumption, and I"—

"And you beat a retreat and came to see me. Well, sir"—

"Oh, no! I didn't retreat. I argued it out with her, and before I left she had given me her consent. So I"—

"You did? Bully for you! You can have the girl, and you can live right here with us. I want to study your system of defying my wife for a year or so anyway."—Woman's World.

Lady Visitor—I am coming to your mamma's company tomorrow, Tommy. Tommy—Well, you won't get a good supper. Tommy's Papa—Tommy, what do you mean, talking like that? Tommy—Well, you know, pa, you told ma you'd have to get some chicken feed for her old hen party tomorrow.—Baltimore American.

The Widow.

"I noticed as I came in," said the caller to her dear friend the widow, "that you have made a change in your servants. You have a white butler now."

"Yes," sighed the widow, "a white butler, but a negro cook. I go into half mourning this season."—Harper's.

Inherited It.

"What a matchmaker that woman is, to be sure!"

"Yes, but she comes by it honestly. I understand her father was a promoter."—Detroit Free Press.

Winter and Summer Sun.

The sun is nearer to the earth in winter than it is in summer. It is not distance that determines the amount of heat that we got from the sun, but the length of time the sun is above the horizon and the direction in which his rays strike us. In summer, although much farther from us, the sun is daily above the horizon much longer than when he is nearest, at the winter solstice, and this continued action produces the summer heat. In addition to this is to be reckoned the fact that in summer the force of the sun's rays is more perpendicular to the earth's surface, while in the winter they are oblique. In the case of the perpendicular ray the heat stays, while in that of the oblique ray it "glances off," so to speak.

Coal Results

¶ We sell the very best quality of hard coal, as good as we know how to buy.

¶ Are you getting results from the coal you are now using? Are you sure it is good? Are you burning it the right way?

¶ There is a deal of difference in how you handle the range or furnace. Our long experience tells us that fact, and we are ready to advise any in doubt as to the best way to make use of coal as fuel.

CURE THAT COLD

This is Quickly and Pleasantly Accomplished If You Use

Catarrhozone

Catarrhozone will relieve colds almost instantly and in a few hours will cure completely. If it is old-standing asthma or bronchitis its quick and curative results will astonish you.

Catarrhozone is little drops of healing medicine carried by air to the sore and diseased parts. You breathe them through the Catarrhozone Inhaler and they spread throughout all the air passages.

It is sense as well as healing, because Catarrhozone is a germ killer, a healer and restorer of weak tissues, because it is so prompt and certain in its results, better than any other remedy for diseases of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, and it is neither alcohol, morphia or cocaine—all dangerous.

Tens of thousands have used Catarrhozone without reporting a single case of failure to cure diseases of the throat and lungs and nasal passages.

Price 25c., 50c., and $1.00 at all druggists or by mail, post paid, from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost if the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thin and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. Three Burned In Quebec.

Quebec, Dec. 9.—In a fire which destroyed a three-storey building on Champlain street shortly after eight o'clock yesterday morning three persons lost their lives and a fourth is likely to die.

The victims are: Mrs. Thomas Jones, aged 25 years, and her two sons, Charles, aged 5, and Alfred, aged 4, and still lingering between life and death is Mrs. Jones' two-months-old baby, who is badly burned about the face.

It seems that Mrs. Jones, after giving her husband his breakfast, and seeing him off to work, went back to bed and shortly after the fire occurred.

Local Option In Brockville.

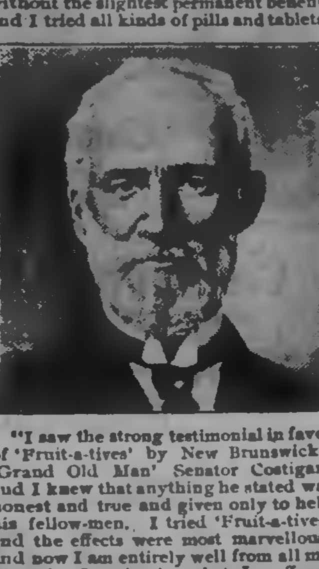
Brockville, Dec. 9.—At the instigation of the Ministerial Association of Brockville, the Protestant clergy of the town met with lay representatives from each congregation to discuss the advisability of starting a local option campaign here next year. Some of the delegates questioned the prohibitive effects of a local option law. Ultimately it was decided on account of divergent opinions to appoint a committee of members of the Ministerial Association and laymen to report to a big meeting composed of church organizations and secular bodies in town.

EFFECTS WERE MARVELLOUS

When I Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

HARDWICKE, N.B., Jan. 17th. 1910.

"I feel it my duty to give you a statement in respect to the wonderful cure I received by taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. Chronic Constipation was the complaint I suffered from for years. My general health was miserable as a result of this disease, and I became depressed and alarmed. I was treated by physicians without the slightest permanent benefit, and I tried all kinds of pills and tablets.



"I saw the strong testimonial in favor of 'Fruit-a-tives' by New Brunswick's 'Grand Old Man' Senator Costigan, and I knew that anything he stated was honest and true and given only to help his fellow-men. I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and the effects were most marvellous, and now I am entirely well from all my Chronic Constipation that I suffered with for years." A. G. WILLISTON.

"Fruit-a-tives" will cure you, just as they cured Mr. Williston. Get a box today—take them—and begin to feel better. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Steerage Neglected.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Penalties aggregating $70,960 were yesterday imposed by the Department of Commerce and Labor upon the British steamer Orteric, charged with what the Department characterized as the worst case of neglect of steerage passengers ever brought under the Passenger Act of 1882.

The penalized vessel was employed to carry Spanish and Portuguese immigrants through the Magellan Straits to Honolulu. Among the 1,242 passengers there were in the eight weeks of her voyage 58 deaths, 57 being children. The births numbered 14.

The investigation further revealed that the sexes were not properly segregated, and that inadequate ventilation increased the mortality. The general sanitary condition of the vessel, including the hospital quarters, was found to be almost beyond belief.

Rebuke For Judge.

Montreal, Dec. 9.—Practical censure of a judge was the unusual course taken by the council of the Montreal Bar Association at a final meeting over an appeal by a young advocate from sharp censures passed upon him by Judge Leboeuf last May. Not only did the council exonerate Joseph Jenkins, the appealing lawyer, from all blame attaching to him by the judge, but they added a clause expressing regret that Judge Leboeuf, during the hearing of the appeal, should have borrowed the dossier and altered a document therein.

It is understood that a copy of the council's decision will be forwarded to the Minister of Justice. An appeal from the finding of the council lies with the censured judge to the council of the Provincial Bar Association.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE CURED ONCE MORE

Dodd's Kidney Pills Again Vanquished Terrible Ailment

Alcide Tramblay Issues Statement for the Benefit of Others—Good News for Sufferers From Kidney Disease

Mistassini, Lac St. Jean, Que. Dec. 8 (Special)—That even the deadly Bright's Disease, the most fatal form of Kidney Disease, can be cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills after all other means have failed has again been proved in the case of Mr. Alcide Tramblay, a well-known resident of this place. In order that other sufferers may benefit by his experience Mr. Tramblay has given the following statement for publication—

"I was troubled with Bright's Disease, Rheumatism and Gravel for seven years. Three doctors prescribed for me but they did not help me. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I was always tired and nervous and had dark circles under my eyes.

"I heard of other cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills and started to use them with the result that in one month I was completely cured and have been in good health ever since."

Bright's Disease is a disease of the Kidneys. Gravel and Rheumatism are caused by diseased kidneys failing to strain impurities out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them all by curing the kidneys.

Local Option In Blandford.

Tavistock, Dec. 9.—At the meeting of the Blandford Township Council yesterday a petition was presented asking that a vote be taken on local option at the January elections. If the vote favors local option there will be a large area of dry country, as the hotel in Bright, which is the only licensed one in the Township of Blandford, is the only one between New Hamburg and Woodstock.

ROWELL AT PALMERSTON.

Liberal Leader Reiterates Complaints Against Whitney.

Palmerston, Dec. 9.—"This is our charge against the Government: that it lies down in face of difficulties, instead of courageously grappling with them," said Mr. Rowell in the course of an address before a large meeting held here last night.

"If a man is lacking in courage, statesmanship, and vision, but will lie down in front of difficulties, he is not worthy to retain the confidence of his fellow-men. The Government appears to be a spent force, a burnt-out volcano, unable to initiate progressive legislation."

Dealing with the so-called bilingual schools, Mr. Rowell charged the Government with vacillation, indecision, evasion, and once more enunciated his own policy of solving this vexed question, not by trifling with the matter nor by wiping out the schools, but by securing through proper training schools an adequate supply of competent teachers, able to give every child a thorough English education.

Mr. McEwing, M.P.P., went on with an indictment of the retiring administration for the giving away of money to the Bruce Mines and Algoma, Central Ontario, and Manitoulin and North Shore Railways, and said the only reason that scandal had not been spread about the Whitney Government was that its huge majority enabled it to out-vote the Opposition when they wanted an investigation.

J. Nelson Hay of Listowel spoke on behalf of Mayor John Brown of Stratford, the candidate of the North Perth Liberals.

Mr. James McMurchie of Harriston, president of the West Wellington Reform Association, was chairman. The Carnegie Library Hall, which is the largest hall in the town, was crowded to its capacity, with over 500 people.

Counsel Received $170,000.

Indianapolis, Dec. 9.—Hoping to dispel doubt and curb criticism of methods used in obtaining and distributing the McNamara defence fund, a report of all money collected and disbursed up to Oct. 25 was made public here last night with the consent of Frank A. Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, who is custodian of the fund.

The total amount received up to that date was $194,612.53, and the total expenditures were $184,858.93. No accounting is made of the sums received and spent since that time.

Clarence Darrow, chief of counsel for the defence of the McNamaras, had been paid the sum of $170,000. It is stated that Darrow was to pay his assistants from this amount. In this connection local international union officials stated that it is understood that Darrow will not continue his office in Chicago.

Local attorneys, who have been looking after the Indianapolis end of the case, have been paid $11,000.

Job For Major Herron.

Ottawa, Dec. 9.—Major John Herron, who went down to defeat as Conservative candidate in Macleod, Alta., is likely to get a place on the commission which is to investigate the needs of agriculture preparatory to the granting of federal help to the provinces. Andrew Broder of Dundas, who almost got the portfolio of agriculture, is sure to go on this commission.

Only a few far westerners are still here, intending to spend Christmas in the capital. Premier Borden will not return from New York till Monday.

"Maine" Really Blown Up.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 9.—The battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor by an explosion from the outside.

This is the gist of a short statement issued by the U. S. Navy Department yesterday, based on findings made by the joint army and navy board which spent several months in Havana harbor investigating the wreck.

"Holy Ghost" Leader Indicted.

Portland, Maine, Dec. 9.—An indictment, containing six counts for the death of six of his followers in the cruise of the yacht Corona, was reported yesterday by the grand jury of the United States District Court against Rev. Frank W. Sandford, leader of the Holy Ghost and Us Society. The trial of the Shilohite leader was begun immediately.

Father Bressel Drowned.

Quebec, Dec. 9.—A despatch received in town yesterday from Bersimis brings news of the drowning of Rev. Father Bressel, who went through the ice at that point. No details are given Potato Famine In United States.

New York, Dec. 9.—Importations of potatoes from abroad are beginning to arrive in this part, the main bulk of them coming from Ireland. Up to date this fall about 25,000 sacks have arrived.

Wholesalers quote Maine potatoes in the market here at $3 a sack, and say this price is just about double the price of a year ago.

Since early fall the price had risen steadily and $4 a sack is expected by February.

Not only is there a scarcity of potatoes in this country, but from practically all the potato producing countries of the world reports show slack crops.

Farmer Shot Through Heart.

Tillsonburg, Ont., Dec. 9.—While out inspecting his mink traps yesterday, Archie Barham, a young farmer of Middleton Township, was accidentally shot and killed as he walked through the woods. He stumbled and the gun exploded, the bullet piercing his heart.

Fourteen Sailors Drowned.

London, Dec. 9.—The Belgian steamer Van Dyck, bound from Valencia, was wrecked off the Cornish coast on Thursday. Fourteen members of her crew were drowned. The vessel, which is owned in Antwerp, was of 1,132 gross tons. She was built in 1904.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH

Those Who Experience Fullness, and Pain After Meals, Stomach Disorders, and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. Today I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

tinue in the future. We reached the conclusion that the recent proposals were inconsistent with those ideals and policies. Moreover, we entirely disbelieve in the framing of tariffs by diplomatic methods. That system has been tested between different states under the British flag, notably in South Africa and the results have been far from satisfactory.

"May I be permitted to express my personal conviction that in the interests of good relations between our countries it is better that each should maintain and preserve unhampered to the fullest extent the control of its fiscal policy. And assuredly good relations between the two countries do not depend upon the existence of any particular form of reciprocal trade relations. No press, however prejudiced, can lead me to accept any such conclusion."

Hon. James Bryce was the next speaker.

In matters relating to the internal questions of Canada, in which it became necessary to represent the wishes and interests of Canada, he said he was at the service of the Dominion for the time being, as an intermediary conveying their wishes (subject to His Majesty's instructions) to the United States. In matters, which, while Canadian, were also of imperial concern, the British Home Government communicated directly with Canada through the Colonial Secretary. In neither case has he anything to do with the policies adopted, but only with the communications between the British and Canadian Governments and that of the United States. But his visits to Canada had been of the greatest interest to him, by enabling him to understand more fully than he could otherwise have done, what were the views and ideas of the Canadian Government, so that he could better secure a perfect understanding between them and the United States, and endeavor to help in solving any difficulties that might arise in a way just and satisfactory to both.

RHEUMATISM AND SPRAINS

Zam-buk is a Cure

When you have a sprain or feel the aching, gnawing pain of rheumatism or the acute agony of lumbago, rub Zam-Buk well in.

Mrs. Frances Wyall, of 25 Guy ave., Montreal, says: "I have found Zam-Buk most soothing and valuable for rheumatism and stiffness of joints and muscles. I suffered long and acutely from rheumatism and tried one liniment after another in vain. I also took medicines internally, but it remained for Zam-Buk to effect a cure. It seemed to penetrate to the very seat of the pains, driving them completely out, and I am now cured."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for piles, ulcers, cold sores, chapped hands, cuts, burns, scalds, scalp sores, babies' rashes, and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores, 50c. box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse substitutes.

WAS ARRESTED FOR ESPIONAGE

Leipsic, Saxony, Dec. 9.—Reports which have leaked out regarding the progress of the espionage trial now taking place before the imperial court, in which the English shipbroker, Max Schultz, and four German associates, who were arrested at Hamburg on March 18, are accused of attempting to procure information regarding German naval secrets say that it has been established that Schultz is connected with the general organization of an English information bureau.

The activities of this institution cover all the shipyards and naval machine works in foreign countries, and aim at the discovery of every naval development.

Schultz, it is said, has been forced to admit the most incriminating charges.

The sentences will be fixed to-day. It is expected that Schultz and two German naval engineers, who are among his accomplices, will be punished severely.

AT THE ONE YEAR MARK

First Anniversary of Knox Church to be Observed

It is just one year since Knox church congregation entered their new church and the people will observe the occasion to-morrow in a very fitting manner. They have been very fortunate in securing the services of Rev. Dr. Barclay. This is the first time that this distinguished preacher has appeared in a Peterboro pulpit and no doubt many who do not belong to any church will join the throng to-morrow going to hear him.

The people of Knox church are to be congratulated on the work they are doing in their part of the city, and they deserve, not only praise, but encouragement. They are making an effort to-morrow to reduce the debt on their church and like everything else they attempt, the effort will no doubt be successful.

AN APPEAL IN VERSE

What! haven't you heard? Well upon my word!
Let me tell you at once the tale;
The ladies of St. James, at no distant date,
Have planned for a sale.

And all they need that they may succeed,
In this enterprise of theirs;
Is cheerful helpers, and willing buyers,
Come! buy, every nation and creed.

And so you, my generous friends,
Come, buy, large or small;
Pretty things of every hue,
In fact, there's a welcome for all.
MRS. R. C. WINCH.

GOOD WORK OF SOCIETY

What Children's Aid Has Done During the Past Year

The following is the secretary's report as read at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society.

To the President and members of the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough.

Ladies and Gentlemen—I have the honor to present the annual report as Secretary of your society.

The work has been of a character similar to that done in previous years and there are but few facts in connection with it that stand out prominently.

We began the year with a substantial balance in the treasury probably the largest balance we ever had to begin a year's work with and we also conclude the year with a substantial balance on hand thanks to the generosity of the citizens of Peterboro by reason of their generous contributions to the Tag Day campaign.

Fifty children have been removed from their homes in this city and county during the past year of this number thirty-four passed through the Shelter, and sixteen were dealt with in the Secretary's office and placed direct in foster homes. Forty-two have been placed in foster homes on trial or adopted, and a number have been returned to their parents conditionally on a substantial improvement being made in the home. Thirty of these children were from the county and twenty from the city and there are in the Shelter at the present time, seven.

In addition to this over one hundred cases have been investigated and warnings served upon the parents or those in charge to improve home surroundings with the result that the home conditions were immediately improved to such an extent as to make it unnecessary for us to remove the children.

The criminal side of the work has been carried on as in previous years. All cases in which boys under fourteen years of age and all cases effecting girls under sixteen years of age have been watched in the Police Courts by an officer of the Society. The provisions of the law respecting the trials of juvenile offenders has been carefully followed by the Magistrates and Chief of Police who have as in former years acted in entire sympathy with the spirit of the legislation under which our work is carried on and I wish to acknowledge with thanks the services of Chief Thompson and the constables which has been at our disposal at all times.

The management of the shelter has been excellent. Our officers have nothing but satisfaction to express of the manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Henry have performed their duties. All children in the shelter of school age are attending school and we are glad to note that there has been very little illness during the year. It became necessary to build a septic tank at considerable expense, also storm windows have been provided and considerable cement work has been done around the building. Mr. Henry supervised the building of the tank and the other work and I consider that his services should be recognised in some substantial manner.

The ladies have rendered efficient service and the committee in charge of the clothing is deserving of our warmest thanks. We have also to especially thank the ladies and girls who freely contributed their aid and assistance in promoting the Tag Day campaign.

1.—The "A" family composed of four children, two boys and two girls, ages 4, 7, 9, and 11. The mother died of tuberculosis and the father although struggling to maintain the family in a partially finished house, unfit for habitation, found that it was impossible to care for the children. They were all placed in the Shelter and have been with the consent of the father, placed in foster homes, three of whom are adopted.

2.—The "C" family, composed of four children. This is a similar case where the mother died, leaving a young family. The father was struggling to keep the family together and finally began to drink, the oldest girl, an infant, attempting to be a mother to the younger children and care for the house. By co-operation with the father we placed the younger children in the Shelter and the father has since been able to have a relative come out from the old country and keep house for him and the family has once more been united.

3.—The "S" family, consisting of two children, a boy and a girl. These children were taken in view of the shocking circumstances in one of the eastern townships of our county investigated by our Society in the early part of the year. They have both been placed in good homes and adopted.

4.—The "G" family. Through investigation of your society it was found that two small boys were living in what was reputed to be a disorderly house. The matter was investigated and the mother was convicted and sentenced to the Mercer Reformatory. The father of the boys, who separated from his wife some three years ago, was finally located and the children placed with him. The last report we have states that they are attending school regularly and that they have the best of home surroundings.

5.—The "E" case. This represents a field of labor where the society is able to do good work offering temporary relief. The mother, a woman in poor circumstances, with a family of young children, was taken ill and was in need of surgical treatment. She was placed in the hospital and the society cared for her children until she was restored to health and able once more to look after her household duties.

6.—The "M" family, a boy of nine years and a girl of thirteen. These children were taken from a home in one of the northern townships. According to the evidence produced at the trial they lived in a shack in conditions that were not fit for animals. Their mother died some years ago and they lived with their father, following him from place to place in his lumbering operations. Their education was completely neglected. The magistrate made them wards of the society and your officers were able to bring pressure to bear upon the father to board the children in a good home in the country where they can be sent to school and be under proper home influences under the society's direction.

All of our wards have been visited in their foster homes and I am glad to state that we have not received a single complaint. This year the visitation work has been done by Mr. Cochrane and Mr. Henry. So far as our wards placed in Peterborough County are concerned, Mr. Kelso, Provincial Superintendent, appointed these gentlemen at the solicitation of your officers who felt that they would like to have this work performed by our own inspectors. As usual, Mr. Cochrane has rendered invaluable services and a great deal of our success is due to his untiring efforts. We are also under deep obligation to Dr. C. Lewitt Amys, whose services have been at our disposal at all times.

We must also thank the many organisations and associations who have given various entertainments for our aid and have sent us money which has been collected in an undenominational way and we have a good deal of satisfaction and feel that the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough is perhaps the only strictly undenominational work which is being carried on in the community and which appeals to all nationalities and creeds alike and which is able to offer splendid machinery for child-saving, which could not be reached through any other channel.

As usual, I give a brief review of some of the cases dealt with during the year in order that some of the varied character of the work may be appreciated.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. E. L. GOODWELL,
Secretary.

Mrs. C. Sabin C. C., was also presented with P.C.C. badge, as a token of appreciation for her services as C. C. for the past year.

Fds. Mr. and Mrs. McGill then served fruit and all had a very pleasant evening.

Dressing Cases

For Ladies or Gentlemen

Most everybody does more or less travelling these days, and the leather goods manufacturers are vieing with each other in getting up little travelling conveniences. We have just added a very nice, new stock of "Julian Sale" Leather Goods, and in choosing it Dressing Cases have had a special care.

The mention of them is a nice hint for a holiday, birthday, or wedding gift. Made in a number of different leathers, completely fitted, and the prices go between

MORE ANSWERS

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q. What is Astigmatism of the eye?

A. Astigmatism is an uneven curvature of the eye and causes double focus. As the eye always strives for clear vision this double focus annoys the brain and causes headache and nervousness. We make lenses called cylinders to correct astigmatism.

Q. What causes double vision?

A. Double vision is caused by the eyes not being in line, that is, one may turn up or have a tendency to do so, or both may turn in; a weak muscular system is back of it all.

We would be pleased to have you call and let us explain how such conditions can be relieved with glasses.

BORDEN AND CARNEGIE ARE JOINT LIONS AT BIG BANQUET HELD IN NEW YORK

Carnegie Looks For Great Improvement in Canada With Her Scottish Premier

New York, Dec. 11.—Hon. Robert L. Borden, Premier of Canada, and Andrew Carnegie, were the guests at a dinner at the Hotel Astor Saturday night, given by the executive committee of the national committee for the celebration of the one-hundredth anniversary of peace among English-speaking people. The celebration is planned to take place in 1914-15. Mr. Carnegie is chairman of the national committee.

Speaking of Canada, Mr. Carnegie said that the greatest tribute that could be paid to ex-Premier Laurier was the fact that he, a Frenchman, had been able to govern the Scotch.

"The Frenchman that can do that," he said, "needs no other diploma. But now that Canada has a Scotch Premier I look for a great advance in that country. You, in Canada, and we in America, have grown closer to each other year by year, and that should be the way with the whole English-speaking race. I never did anything for the republic that I did not also do for Canada, both in the way of libraries and hero funds. I never found a man in Canada who was in favor of annexation to the United States, but I never found a man either who objected to Canada annexing the United States.

"When we were in trouble Canada sent us 40,000 men. If Canada is ever in trouble we will send you 400,000."

Here Mr. Carnegie, grasped Premier Borden's hand, and, holding it in his, nodded his head in emphasis of what he said. He added:

"Telegraph me when you want them. You know my address."

He closed by expressing a hope that the day would come when the whole world would be a brotherhood of man.

Mr. Borden talked of civil service reform in Canada.

"The example of the American civil service system," he said, "has been of great help to us. We intend to work from that plan in the establishment of our own civil service system. Canada and America will maintain the most friendly feelings for each other."

Oscar S. Straus was the only speaker who referred to the defeat of the reciprocity agreement by the Canadian people, which was the means of putting Premier Borden in office.

Mr. Straus said that the fact that the treaty did not go through would make no difference in the mutual feeling of good will between the two countries. He added that the laws which were bringing capital and labor together in Canada should be adopted by the United States, as they were fair all the way through.

John A. Stewart, chairman of the executive committee of the celebration, spoke of the plans for the coming observance. He said that the committee proposed to leave behind it as a memorial of the 100 years of peace, a building in this city dedicated to public uses and it was also proposed to erect a free memorial bridge over the Niagara River.

Before attending the dinner, Mr. Borden, in the afternoon, motored down to Oyster Bay as the guest of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, for luncheon. The Premier and the ex-President had a two-hour chat. It was their first meeting and both expressed considerable satisfaction at having met the other and expressed a hope of meeting soon again.

Mr. Borden, during his stay, also met Henry W. Taft, a brother of the President, with whom he had a pleasant interview.

CHRISTENING AT NIAGARA

Indian Babe is Given Name of Morning Beauty.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 11.—With America's greatest waterfall as the baptismal font, a little Indian princess was christened in the natural tunnel under the Horseshoe Falls on Saturday afternoon. The christening was the second that has taken place in the tunnel, the little princess' grandfather, Oghema Niagara, "Chief Thunderwater," being the first child ever to be christened beneath the mighty flow of water.

Although the parents of the child are pagans, the ceremony was performed by a christian minister, Rev. George Hares, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, officiating. The eleven months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Keokuk Palmer, Cleveland, Ohio, was given the name Mahonicee, "Morning Beauty." Aupawchee kaupaw-qua, "Woman - whose - name-shall-never-die," Keokuk Palmer. The party including about fifteen Indians of the Sioux-Fox tribe, descended into the tunnel under the falls shortly after 4 o'clock. The little princess will be christened within a month according to the faith of her pagan parents.

After christening the child, the party went to a point overlooking the Horseshoe Falls and listened to an address by Oghoma Niagara, Chief Thunderwater, whose English name is Henry Palmer. He declared the child would be taught both christian and pagan religions, and would be allowed to choose for herself which she would follow when she reached the age of seventeen.

PROBABILITIES

Cloudy and mild with occasional showers. Tuesday, westerly winds; fair and a little colder.

LIGHT VOTING TO-DAY

Toronto, Dec. 11.—Reports from all over the province indicated that to-day's vote will be the lightest polled for many years. In East Hamilton, where Allan Studholme is opposing Controller Cooper, there is something like a contest and in North Toronto, where Foy and McNaught, both Conservatives, are opposed, by Joseph Oliver, Liberal, and William Stephenson, who entered as a labor candidate, there is a warm fight. Rain is almost general.

AN INVITATION

Do you know the best place in the city to get the maximum amount of fun for a minimum amount of expense? It's at the Y.M.C.A. Perhaps you have been told that before and didn't believe it. Probably you never investigated for yourself.

To-morrow evening the Y.M.C.A. is open to everybody.

You are at perfect liberty to go anywhere you like, gymnasium, bowling alleys, reading rooms, wrestling, baths, etc. And they won't ask anyone to join, just go and investigate for yourself.

BANQUET FOR PELLETIER

Postmaster-General Honored by Citizens of Quebec.

Quebec, Dec. 11.—Flashing from the large dining hall of the Chateau Frontenac on Saturday afternoon was the electric design of a letter. It bore the address: "Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, Chateau Frontenac, Quebec." It bore the regulation postmark and stamp, and was surrounded with brilliant lights.

The dining hall presented a brilliant appearance and the assemblage of guests to do honor to Hon. L. P. Pelletier, who was the guest of honor at a dinner given him by his admirers in this district, was one of the greatest ever held in Quebec, over four hundred guests being present. The dinner was marked by the attendance of a number of Federal Ministers, including Hon. Messrs. Sam Hughes, Birrell and Nantel, and Mr. Tellier, leader of the Opposition in the Provincial House, besides many prominent Conservatives from all over the province. Hon. Thomas Chapais presided.

Referring to the naval question, Hon. Mr. Pelletier said that Mr. Borden's announcement had been made loyally and frankly to the House to the effect that Laurier's naval policy had been abandoned, that they would have to keep the Niobe and Rainbow, as the former Government had purchased them, but that the ten other vessels would not be constructed. There was no necessity of having a plebiscite to decide the question, as all the Cabinet agreed to abandon the policy of the Laurier Cabinet on that point.

Other toasts were those of "Canada," proposed by Armand Lavergne and C. H. Cahan, and responded to by the Federal Ministers. A. Sevigny, M.P., proposed the toast to the Province of Quebec, and Mr. Tellier, M.P.P., responded.

Italians Are Expelled.

Constantinople, Dec. 11.—The Constantinople papers announce that the Turkish Government has decided to expel most of the Italians from the Gallipoli Peninsula, the territory around the Dardanelles and Smyrna. It is understood that the expulsion will become operative first in all fortified places.

Smyrna, Dec. 11.—The police authorities have issued orders for the departure of all Italians from this district within five days.

Child Kicked In Face.

Toronto, Dec. 11.—Newell Philpot, the nine-year-old son of the pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle, was kicked in the face by a horse at his home yesterday afternoon, and was so seriously injured that he had to be taken to the City Hospital. His teeth were knocked out and his face was badly disfigured. He will recover.

Fire at the residence of P. C. Merrit, 135 Walnut street south, destroyed the upper part of the building yesterday and smoke and water ruined practically all the household effects, which the fire did not destroy.

CHARGES OF SWINDLING

Montreal Men After Money for Government Jobs

Montreal, Dec. 11.—Sensational evidence was given by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, K.C., ex-Postmaster-General and ex-Minister of Marine, in the police court before Judge Lanctot on Saturday, in the case of Lucien Jeannette and Felix Jette, who have been arrested charged with obtaining money under false pretences by selling Government positions at Ottawa.

Pierre Martel, 33 St. Ambroise street, St. Henri, appeared through his counsel, Severin Letourneau, K.C., against Jeannette and Jette.

Martel, in his disposition, states that he gave $115 to Jeannette and $145 to Jette, to purchase a good position in the Government at Ottawa.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, K.C., took the stand against the prisoners and was questioned by Mr. Letourneau. Mr. Lemieux swore that he did not know the prisoner, and so far as he knew, had received no letters from him. A number of telegrams produced were declared to be rank forgeries. The ex-Postmaster-General declared that they had neither been signed by him nor by any of his employes at Ottawa. The only persons authorized to sign correspondence, he said, were his private secretary, Mr. Evarette, and certain assistant secretaries in the Department.

Mr. Lemieux gave evidence to the effect that he had never authorized any party to offer positions under such circumstances.

The evidence showed that Martel got telegrams every few days from Ottawa, demanding money and assuring him that he would be placed by Mr. Lemieux in a short time.

Previous to the general elections, the telegrams were signed by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Hon. R. Brodeur, Minister of Marine, and other Ministers, as well as two fictitious names, L. Anorie, K.C., and Albert Laurenrau. As soon as the new Ministers were sworn in, telegrams were received in Montreal from Ottawa, alleged to have been signed by Hon. Geo. E. Foster and others.

Mr. Lemieux stated that the swindle had been conducted on the wholesale plan, but that many dozen men who had been duped, had succeeded in getting their money back.

Owing to the absence of several important witness, the further hearing of the trial had to be postponed until Dec. 21.

Waterloo For Church Union.

Waterloo, Dec. 11.—At yesterday morning's service in the Presbyterian church here, Rev. W. D. Lee announced the result of the ballot taken recently on church union, with the Methodist and Congregational bodies. One hundred and forty members voted on the question, of whom 125 were in favor, and only 15 against.

The Unlucky Thirteen.

Halifax, Dec. 11.—The steamers Victorian, Scotian and Megantic sailed for Liverpool and Glasgow yesterday, taking seven hundred and fifty passengers. The Megantic left thirteen people standing on the pier, who had been notified of the hour of sailing, but arrived a minute too late.

McNAMARAS IN PRISON

Dynamitards Cleaned up and Photographed in Jail.

San Quentin, Cal., Dec. 1.—The McNamaras yesterday entered San Quentin penitentiary, where James B. is condemned to spend the remainder of his life, for his confessed crime of murder, and John J., secretary of the International Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, is sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment for dynamiting.

Whirled from Los Angeles on a fast night train, the men were taken from it at sunrise yesterday, put on a little river steamer and landed two hours and a half later at San Quentin prison wharf on the shores of San Pablo bay. The shackles which bound them together on the boat were slipped off and they toiled up the prison hill beside Sheriff W. A. Hammel of Los Angeles county.

As the prison clock struck 10, John J. McNamara stepped over the threshold of the jail door, with his brother directly behind him. In five minutes James B. McNamara became convict No. 25,314 and John J. McNamara was No. 25,315. They were measured for jail clothing, photographed in two positions, given a carbolic tinctured bath, put into stripes, shaved and cropped and rephotographed within an hour, and turned over the John Murray, lieutenant of the yard, who took them to cell No. 18 in a stone tier looking out over the prison's upper yard, a great flower garden.

SIXTEEN BODIES ARE RECOVERED

Briceville Has Mine Catastrophe in Which the Death List May Reach Two Hundred—Great Heat Interferes With the Work of Rescue.

Special To The Review.

Briceville, Dec. 11.—Sixteen bodies have been recovered from the Knoxville Iron and Coal Company's mine, but the rescuers cannot penetrate far because of the great heat. Upwards of two hundred men are still entombed, and it is almost certain that they will be found dead.

Briceville, Tenn., Dec. 11.—Somewhere in the depths of the Cross Mountain Coal Mine probably 100 men lie dead to-day, while their sorrow-stricken families keep vigil at the mouth of their tomb, hoping against hope that their loved ones may be alive when rescuers reach them.

Eight torn and mangled bodies had been brought forth at nightfall when search was abandoned for the day. Outside of the immediate families of the entombed men, no one in this little mountain village believes that any living thing in the mine has survived the terrific explosion of coal dust that wrecked the workings Saturday morning.

Seven of those removed were identified yesterday as follows: Lee Polston, Eugene Ault, Taylor Ault, Roland Early, W. A. Farmer, Herman Sharp, James Foust.

The eighth was thought to be Alonso Wood, a youth of 18 years, but his identity was not positively made.

For more than thirty-six hours every surviving miner in this region has toiled with no thought of food, sleep or pay, to remove the debris and force fresh air into the innermost recesses of the mine. Last night they practically had penetrated to the main entry head nearly three miles in. To-day they expect to be ready to work the cross-entries, in which the great mass of bodies undoubtedly were cast by the force of the blast.

Black-damp developed yesterday and stopped progress for a time, but soon the silent forces pushed dauntlessly on, some of them till they were carried out overcome by the noxious gases.

Thousands of the morbidly curious flocked into Briceville yesterday and crowded about the main entry of the mine. They saw nothing but the pitiable grief of the stricken families.

There is hardly a family in the entire Coal Creek Valley that has not fel the touch of death. The problem of caring for the widows and orphans will be a grave one, requiring immediate solution. Certainly Briceville will be unable to care for her living with most of her wage-earners numbered among the dead.

Last night food was scarce, but plentiful supplies are promised by to-night from Knoxville. So far there has been little physical suffering among families of those who lost their lives.

It has been impossible to get any authentic figures on the exact number of men in the mine when the explosion occurred. Mine officials have given out no statement, and it is impossible to get any check on the men who went to work Saturday morning. That it is more than a hundred it seems certain, and that all are dead seems almost as certain.

Work of rescue moved slowly yesterday, partly because most of the entombed men are believed to be two miles from the opening, and because of the deadly black-damp. The latter caused all work to be stopped for a time yesterday afternoon, but by nightfall it was resumed. Electrical devices for moving cars in the workings were shattered by the explosion, and debris cleared away in the tunnels is being hauled away by mule cars to the surface. Mine experts last night said it would be days before each lateral had been penetrated, and stating when all bodies would be found was but guesswork. It is in the laterals that the most bodies are expected to be found.

At least 10,000 persons visited this hamlet yesterday, and willing workers were many. George P. Chanler, president of the Tennessee Coal Co., is in charge of the relief work. He divided the men into gangs of fifty and sent each shift into the workings for two hours.

The throng of visitors is largely responsible for the exhaustion of food supplies in Briceville. All stores are bare of eatables and many went hungry last night. However, hunger will not be a long added horror to relatives of the victims, as Knoxville and other cities are rushing food supplies. All will be provided for by to-night.

Straining on the ropes that keep the throng back from the mine opening, are the relatives of the victims anxiously awaiting some word of life within the yawning mouth of the death trap. The situation becomes more tense as each car of debris is brought to the surface, for its driver might bring some word or with the debris might be a body of some loved one. The shrill whistle of the special train bringing coffins at two o'clock Sunday morning, brought another horror to the already dazed inhabitants of the little town. The special brought 175 boxes, and they were piled near the mouth of the mine. Only eight of these boxes were opened yesterday.

U. S. Would Exclude Jews?

St. Petersburg, Dec. 11.—The Novoe Vremya declares that the days of the Russ-American commercial treaty evidently are numbered, because no country can grant more extensive rights to foreigners than to its own subjects. The paper says that from the Russian standpoint, the American regulations are incredibly cruel, for instance, the rejection of immigrants who are not able to comply with the money qualifications, and the exclusion of polygamists, which closes the U. S. to 16,000,000 Russian Mussulmans.

The paper declares that the logical development of the abrogation of the treaty would be the exclusion from America of hundreds of thousands of Russian Jews, and "the desire for such exclusion," adds the paper, "is the real motive of the Jews in the United States, who are driving American politicans with a pitiless whip."

COLLEGE CHUMS

Rev. Dr. Young, who preached at Charlotte street church, yesterday, and the pastor Rev. G. W. Henderson, were college chums. That they were dear friends and that nothing had marred that friendship during all the long years since, was the statement passed by the Rev. Mr. Henderson, as he made some introductory remarks, at the morning service.

CANADA MUST HELP BRITAIN

In Interest of Own Trade and Commerce.

Ottawa, Dec. 11.—"Canada to-day has world-wide interests and she must, in the interest of her own trade and commerce and to preserve her own prosperity, help to maintain the supremacy of the British fleet, which affects her commercial well-being just as much as that of England or any other part of the Empire."

So spoke J. Norton Griffiths, M.P., of the British House of Commons, and a celebrated British contractor and capitalist, who is in the capital en route from Vancouver.

While here he will interview the Government in regard to the construction of the St. John harbor, for which his firm tendered.

"We are ready for an immediate start and hope to get permission to make one, from the Government," he stated. Another Canadian project with which Mr. Griffiths is connected is the scheme of the Duke of Sutherland to establish English people on Canadian farms while he has also an eye to and an interest in Canadian progress in general.

Detective and Prisoner Shot.

Breeden, W.Va., Dec. 11.—John VanHoose, a detective, and Gideon Macrum, were shot to death in a fight here yesterday. VanHoose was shot by Macrum, when the former tried to arrest him for burglary and as Macrum ran he was shot down by Deputy Sheriff Crumm of Wayne County, who had accompanied the detective.

McManigal to Indianapolis.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 11.—Ortie E. McManigal will be taken to Indianapolis within a few days to tell the federal grand jury there what he knows of the alleged dynamiting conspiracies, the first chapter of which was closed yesterday with the placing of the McNamara brothers in the San Quentin State Penitentiary.

Child Asphyxiated.

Toronto, Dec. 11.—Annie Pyne, seven years of age, living with her grandparents at 20 Leonard avenue, was asphyxiated with gas on Saturday night when her guardians were visiting friends on Ryerson avenue.

The child was adopted by her grandfather, Charles Landy, and brought to this country by him last May. They lived with Charles Landy, jr., and on Saturday evening the child was put to bed, after which the older people went out. When they returned about 12.30, the child was dead and a gas jet partly turned on. Dr. McCullough of Spadina avenue, was summoned, but could do nothing, the child being quite dead.

The jet from which the fatal fumes escaped was used for running a tube to a gas stove, and it is supposed the gas must have been turned accidentally when the tube was removed.

IS SERIOUS FOR BRITAIN

Russia is Getting the Better of Persian Affair.

London, Dec. 11.—Details as to the advance of the Russian troops in Persia have been kept for several days completely in the dark. How large a force has been despatched by the Russian Government, and particulars as to its movements are unknown in London, but the public generally feels that the end will be the establishment of a Russian protectorate over the best parts of Persia, including the two northern capitals, Tabriz and Teheran.

Newspapers and politicians generally give expression to the skepticism, regarding it as unlikely that Russia once entrenched in Teheran will ever withdraw.

The Teheran correspondent of The Times predicts that Russia's first act will be to substitute a new form of government, for that of the National Council.

The possible damage to British commercial interests is absorbing much attention, but the blow to British prestige among orientals causes most anxiety.

The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at Delhi, where the great Durbar of the coronation of King-Emperor George is being held, emphasizes this danger.

The Outlook says: "We are face to face with one of the gravest crisis in the history of British in Asia."

The Nation says: "It means the worst blow which our prestige could suffer in the east. We appear as the weak partner, who does not dare to check his powerful and unscrupulous associate."

W. Morgan Shuster, the American, who is acting as treasurer-general in Persia, and whose dismissal was demanded by the Russian Government, is held responsible for bringing the Persian troubles to a crisis. He has been one of the most discussed men in England during the past week. All officials, as well as the newspapers, credit him with efficiency and with good intentions, but they accuse him of lacking diplomatic tact.

Persia has found a strong friend in Lord Curzon of Kedleston, former viceroy of India, whose knowledge of the country inspires respect and whose speeches have done much to shake confidence in the Government's policy.

The British Cabinet is trying to induce Russia to abate her demands, but the crux of the matter is the tension with Germany which overshadows all other considerations.

England needs Russia's support in case of a war with Germany, and, therefore, she cannot afford to take a stand against her.

FERRY IS ON THE ROCKS

Vessel is Loaded With Thirty Three Coal Cars

Special to the Review.

Milwaukee, Dec. 11.—Pere Marquette car ferry, number twenty, with thirty-three loaded coal cars, is on the rocks near Milwaukee and is in danger of being pounded to pieces. Captain Nassieord and the crew of twenty-one men refuse to leave the ship.

SHOOTING PAINS IN SIDE, ARMS, BACK

Prove the Presence of Rheumatic Virus, Which is Cured Quickest by Nerviline—Rub It In.

Pains in the muscles, in the sides, the back, the neck, or the chest—they always carry with them great discomfort. If the inflammation is severe the pain will be intense. If allowed to continue they are dangerous. Nothing so quickly cures local inflammation and drives away pain as Nerviline. Nerviline does this because it penetrates so deeply. Nerviline is not only powerful, but soothing. By relieving congestion it cures pain. It does this always. It cannot fail because it is a true antidote for pain. You can scarcely find anybody that will not tell you wonderful things about the pain-curing power of Nerviline. Remember, that there is not an ache or pain that Nerviline will not cure immediately. Nerviline is an anchor of health in every household.

Refuse anything that may be offered you instead of Nerviline, which is guaranteed for rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, and all muscular aches and pains.

WHY PETERBORO' SHOULD HAVE NIAGARA POWER

It is up to Peterborough to fall in with other progressive cities and towns of the province and take its electric power from the publicly-owned plant. What has worked out well for the other municipalities will work out well for Peterborough. The introduction of the hydro-electric system has cut in half the cost of electricity to the consumer in Toronto and other centres of population. It has brought the best kind of lighting and power within the reach of the householder, as well as the small manufacturer and tradesman.

Peterborough's chance to come within the hydro circle should be discussed and decided by the people as a business proposition in their own interests. There is no question entailed of grinding any axe, serving the ends of any corporation, or following the lead of any political party. It is a proposition made by a public department, managed strictly on a business basis, to a public corporation. The offer to Peterborough is made after the system has been installed in many western municipalities, and so this city may profit by their experience, and at the same time avail itself of the opportunity at the lowest available cost with the highest stage of efficiency.

The people should discuss and decide this question on its merits, and regardless of extraneous political matter introduced by those who, for party purposes, are opposing the scheme. The question of a cheap power supply is intimately bound up with the further industrial development of the Trent district, and that should be the only consideration to weigh with those who have at heart the best interests of the communities concerned.

Competition is good for the consumer, as well as salutary for the private corporation that would prefer to preserve its monopoly at the public expense. Competition is not only good but necessary if the consumer is to be given a fair chance, for it reduces his bills and enables him to develop his business more readily, to light his house or his store at less expense. The hydro-electric system has brought to reason the corporations within its radius: it will do the same in the Trent district. It is for the people to say whether they will give it the chance.

WANTED, A UNIFORM MARRIAGE LAW

About the last pronouncement of any importance made by Sir Allen Aylesworth, the ex-Minister of Justice, before he went out of office, was that, in his opinion, the Dominion parliament had no power to interfere with the provincial marriage laws. If he is right—and the new Minister of Justice has yet to make a declaration on the point—a serious state of affairs exists and ought to be remedied.

Under the Confederation Act the parliament of Canada is given exclusive legislative authority over various matters, and one of these matters is marriage and divorce, including, of course, the annulment of the marriage tie, as well as the legalization of it. But, in addition to the definition of the rights of the Dominion government, the legislative assemblies are allowed jurisdiction over the solemnization of marriage in the province.

The trouble over the marriage law in Quebec, as it has been crystalized in the Hebert case, arises because of the new interpretation placed upon it by one of the Quebec judges. If Sir Allen Aylesworth is correct in his opinion, only the Quebec legislature can alter the marriage law as it affects that province. And, along the same line of reckoning, the law in no other province can be amended unless the legislature of that province says that it shall be.

The Catholic Church, or any other religious body, really has nothing to do with the question, although the "Ne Temere" decree, issued four years ago by Pope Pius X., has figured largely in the controversy. The Pope's decree against the marriage of a Catholic with a Protestant was doubtless responsible for the raising of the Hebert case. It may have influenced the judge in his decision, but that decision had to be based on legal and not religious findings.

Any church or religious community is perfectly free to make its own terms upon which persons are admitted to its membership, but no body or society of whatever kind should be allowed to interfere with what is a civil contract. Marriage is a law of society legalized by the state, and the state alone should say whether or not two persons should be given the contract to marry, or being married, whether or not they should be divorced. All religions are upon an equal basis in the eyes of the law, and none should have any special privileges over the rest.

What is required in the present case is a uniform marriage law over the Dominion, of the same character as prevails in England. The English law says that two persons who marry each other according to the requirement of the law, and against whom or either of whom there is no civil impediment, their marriage is valid and binding, whether a priest or other minister of religion be present or not. That is how it should be declared invalid and be overruled by the Dominion government as the supreme legislative authority.

DEATH BY FALLING.

Pain and Fear Seem to Have No Place in the Ordeal.

It is difficult to imagine a more horrible accident than falling with an airship, yet in the opinion of a German psychologist, Fritz Kahn, death resulting from such a fall is not exceptionally painful, says the New York Evening Post. He argues that it is likely to be met in a state of indifference or even an agreeable half conscious condition of mind. He witnessed the fall of Heim—a fall which lasted a number of seconds, as the airship fluttered to and fro like a piece of paper before the final descent. The distance was about eighty yards. On recovering consciousness after several days Heim remembered only the ascent. Everything between that and his awakening in the hospital was a blank.

Mountain climbers have had similar experiences. A French geologist who fell over a precipice attests that he swooned and never knew what happened. Whymper, on the other hand, remained fully conscious when he fell on the Matterhorn. Bounding from rock to rock, he calculated the intervals between the shocks, wondered how long he could stand it, felt no pain and came to the conclusion that death through a fall must be one of the least disagreeable ways of ending one's life. A boy of eight who fell twenty-two yards declared that his only thought was that he might lose his new pocketknife.

At a meeting of the Swiss Alpine club the geologist Heim described his feelings during a fall. His first thought was that now he would be unable to deliver the address he had promised; then he thought of the effect on his family of the news of his death. He wanted to take off his spectacles to save his eyes from being damaged by broken glass. Various scenes from his past life flitted across his consciousness in rapid succession. There was no fear, no pain, but rather an agreeable state of mind, like that which is brought on by soft music.

RADIUM RAYS.

Their Velocity the Highest Known Speed of Matter in Motion.

The earth travels in its orbit round the sun nineteen miles a second. The sun itself, like all the other stars, has its own proper motion through space. Some authorities have calculated its speed at twelve miles a second. A few stars move more slowly than this, others much more rapidly. Arcturus maintains a speed of not less than 100 miles a second, and the star called "Groombridge 1830" travels 150 miles in the same brief time.

But the speeds of the heavenly bodies are slow compared with the motions of the tiniest known particles of matter. The sun would seem to stand still could we compare its velocity with that of the radium "rays." These radiations are produced by successive explosions of tiny groups of the tiny atoms of radium. The "alpha rays," being themselves infinitesimal fragments of matter, are thrown out with a velocity of perhaps 12,000 miles a second. The "beta rays" travel still faster.

In the emanations of this wonderful radium we find the highest known speed of matter in motion. At 12,000 miles a second it would take little more than two seconds for a particle of matter to travel all the way round the earth. Look at your watch and note the duration of two seconds; then imagine that in a chariot drawn by "alpha rays" you have been round the world. There is hardly time in two seconds for you to think the journey.

The highest measured speed, however, is not the speed of matter, but the speed of that etheric vibration which we call light. And light travels at the rate of 186,000 miles a second.—Youth's Companion.

"The Thunderer."

It was the mud flinging of an earlier mode of travel than the motorbus that gave the London Times its nickname of "The Thunderer." Two ladies at Kew had been splashed by an unmannerly horseman passing them too closely, and the Times came out with a strong leader alleging the offender to have been the Duke of Cumberland. In due course it was found that the horseman was not the duke, and in a further article by way of apology the Times used the words "We thundered out," an expression that so tickled the public that the name of "Thunderer" was bestowed on the paper forthwith.

A Notable Statue.

In the beautiful city of Buenos Aires is perhaps the only statue in the world erected by white men to a negro. This is the statue of Falucho, a negro soldier who refused to haul down the Argentine flag at the bidding of the Spanish soldiery during the first Argentine revolution and was shot down by the Spanish.

Queen Bess' Wardrobe.

Royal annals have never recorded a more varied and extensive wardrobe than that which belonged to the "virgin queen." Even at the age of sixty-eight, when she might be supposed to have outlived her youthful vanity, she possessed 99 complete official costumes, 102 French gowns, 100 robes with trains and 67 without, 126 antique dresses, 136 bodices, 125 tunics, not to mention such trifles as 96 mantles, 45 dressing gowns and 27 fans. It is possible that she had an ugly foot, for she possessed only nine pairs of shoes, which, considering her extravagances in other articles of apparel, must have some meaning. At her death 3,000 articles were found duly catalogued in her wardrobe which had adorned her proud person.

"Oh, Had I the Wings of a Dove."

The daily papers reported the other day a visit of the primate to a convict prison. The prison has been built by convict labor. Convict hands have done the carving. A convict played the organ, and it looks as if a convict selected the hymns. One of them, "Oh, Had I the Wings of a Dove," the convicts are said to have sung with great heartiness. It is easy to believe.—London Truth.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 9.—The market opened with shorts nervous and offerings lighter, and values ¼d to ⅜d higher, and following the opening further advance, with the undertone firm. Support was attributed to the firmness in Winnipeg lighter and dearer Manitoba offerings, and the resultant advance in spot grades. There was an improved demand from millers, with the continent bidding and sellers few. This was brought about by the lighter Argentine offerings, advance of 3d in Plate steamers, and private reports here of damage in Argentine from rain and wind storms in the centre. Expectations of light world's shipments was further confirmed by Bradstreet's yesterday, and Australian offerings are smaller. There is generally a firmer feeling prevailing, with firmer Plate offerings. At the close the market was firm, ⅛d to ⅜d higher than yesterday.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—A sensational advance of 3 3-4c to 4 1-8c at Buenos Ayres alleged to have been caused by far-reaching storm damage to wheat led to a general covering here to-day on the part of shorts. The close was nervous and 1-8c to 1-2c to 5-8c higher than last night. Other leading staples all showed a net decline—corn 1-8c to 1-4c, oats 1-4c to 3-8c to 3-8c to 1-2c and provisions 2 1-2c to 5c to 12 1-2c.

TO HER WHO WAITS

More Came to Molly Than She Really Expected.

By BEATRICE STURGES.

"Nothing ever happens in this family," grumbled Molly Evans as she sat by the open window and watched an automobile disappear in a cloud of dust. She knew the girls who had just passed in the machine. They had waved their hands gayly at her, but she wished they hadn't. She wished she hadn't seen them. It was no fun to watch other people enjoy themselves.

"You expect too much," replied her sister Kate, who sat near by trying to make a last season's dress look like new. "There are lots of things that might happen that you wouldn't like at all."

Kate was older than Molly and had managed to evolve for herself a philosophy that made life easier for her than for her restless sister.

"Just give up and stop expecting things and they will come to you without any trouble," she added, with a serenity which, it must be confessed, scarcely matched her inmost feelings at that moment, for it is not the easiest thing in the world to make a last year's sleeve appear as the latest fashion model.

"Oh, that's all very well to talk, Kate," burst in Molly, "but what good has it ever done? Here we are grubbing along in the same old humdrum way. You've always been an angel and given up to other people, but you're not any nearer your ambition than ever, and just look at me!"

Kate did look at her affectionately. Molly was nineteen and Kate two years older. They had taken care of themselves for four years, Molly by teaching music and a class of little children, as their town had no kindergarten, and Kate by fine sewing and embroidery. The latter's ambition was to be a trained nurse, but that took so much time, and she could not afford to give up her present income even for the prospect of a better one in years to come. She was always called upon when there was sickness and responded cheerfully, though usually her compensation consisted solely of thanks verbally expressed.

"Never mind, dear," replied the optimistic Kate. "Something will happen before you think—maybe today. Everything comes to her who waits. Suppose you walk over to Ferncliff and take this waist to Mrs. Dean. I promised it to her today, and it's all done up ready to go."

Molly arose and shook her curly brown head, smoothed out her pink frock and took the package. She kissed Kate before she started out, but there wasn't much animation in her walk.

"Something nice is on the way," said Kate. "I feel it in my bones." Molly laughed and ran down the steps. She broke off a big spray of lilac as she passed the bush by the gate and carried it along with her. The scent of the blossom brought memories that were both sweet and sad. A year ago, leaning over the gate in the moonlight by that same lilac bush, Dick Foster had first said, "Molly, I love you," and a new world of sweetness and life had been opened for her. Two months ago they had quarreled and separated. Why? Why do lovers ever quarrel? Do they know? Does anybody know? The most foolish and futile reasons on earth—jealousy, false pride and sometimes a tentative desire to gain the mastery. With Molly and Dick it was mostly jealousy, with hardly any foundation, and after that a foolish resolve on the part of each not to give in.

"I will come back when you send for me," announced Dick.

"I will never send for you," declared Molly.

And that was the situation, and that was why Mollie Evans, young and pretty and healthy, with every right to be happy, was taking a lonely walk and feeling herself the most abused girl in the world.

"Maybe Kate is right," she thought to herself. "I'll do things for other people and try to forget myself. I think I'd like to be a nun anyway. I love those white caps."

A tired looking woman passed her just then, and a sudden impulse made Molly hand the lilac spray to her. The woman looked surprised, but Molly hurried on without waiting for thanks. As she approached a little cottage that stood near the road she heard a child's screams, and the same impulse made her rush around the house in the direction of the noise. There in the kitchen stood a terrified little girl trying to put out a fire which had started from some burning oil and which had just leaped to the child's dress as Molly burst in the door. To snatch a rug from the floor and put out the latter was the work of an instant, and in a few moments more the other flames were quenched. After it was all over the neighbors rushed in and explained that the little girl kept house while her mother went out to work. The damage was slight, and neither Molly nor the child was hurt, but when Miss Evans started out again she was a bit pale and shaky.

"Well, something happened, anyway," she told herself as she went along.

She left the package at Ferncliff, which was the finest estate in the neighborhood and stood not far from Dick Foster's home. She decided to walk through the village on the way back and had passed the postoffice, the drug store, of which the town had but one, and had stopped to look in the window of the little bookshop, where some new music was displayed, when she heard a commotion and turned around to see people hurrying in all directions.

"A runaway," was her first thought, and she started to step into the store for safety when she noticed a big black dog approaching and heard people excitedly exclaim, "He's mad!"

And so he was. Yelping, snapping at everything, frothing at the mouth, down the street he came. Directly across from where Molly stood was an open grass square where a dozen little children, some hardly more than babies, were playing. Toward them he came, and Molly's heart grew cold within her. Not a man moved except to throw a stone at the mad beast, and even the little ones seemed oblivious of the danger that threatened them.

Leaping, the dog gained the square, and the next instant the maddened mouth would have snapped at some helpless child, and Molly was there as soon as he was. Fear had lent wings to her feet, and she stood directly in his path, stooped down, caught his head in her dress skirt and fell upon her knees, holding him down while she screamed for help. Scores of people rushed up then. Some snatched the children, some picked up Molly, others stood and looked, while one man dispatched the dog with a revolver. A chorus of grateful mothers assailed her ears, but she was so faint and weak she felt only a desire to get home and weep on Kate's sympathetic neck. Just then the 5:30 train from New York pulled in, and the passengers promptly stepped across the tracks to the square to see the excitement. One young man who shouldered his way through the crowd caught her eye.

"Oh, Dick," she exclaimed, "I'm so glad you've come!" and then fell limply into his outstretched arms before them all.

He drove her home very slowly, for they had a great deal to say, and, of course, Dick had to bring out the ring again from his pocket and put it on Molly's finger, and Molly had to tell him how silly and unhappy she had been, and Dick had to tell her something to the same effect about himself, and all that took considerable time.

Kate was waiting by the gate for her, but all clouds of anxiety vanished from her face when she saw Dick and looked in Molly's contented and shining eyes. "Didn't I tell you?" she whispered.

"Yes, you dear old prophet, you did," replied Molly, kissing her, "and it will come to you, too, for when Dick and I are married next month you can go and study and nurse to your heart's content."

The Cult of the Sea.

The worship of the sea appears to be pretty general throughout Melanesia. In some of the Fiji islands, for example, the natives attempt to propitiate the sea by building a small house in a retired spot near it, in which they set out a table with ready cooked yams and painted coconuts. They then drum with short bamboos morning and evening for several successive weeks in order to summon the luve ni wai, or children of the waters, to the feast thus provided. They build a jetty to facilitate the ascent of the sea spirits from the water to the house and plant flags at certain points to prevent them from wandering inland. Finally, the worshipers call and whistle to the deities to encourage them to enter, and, when they imagine this has been done, they eat the feast themselves. The inhabitants of the Banks islands also pray to a being named Qat, who either controls or represents the sea, as he invoked thus: "Smooth the sea that I may go safely. Beat down the crests of the tiderip. Beat down the level that I may come to a quiet landing place!"

Metric System Suggestions.

Upon the theory that the metric system can only be made popular in this country by adopting its decimal plan, while changing the present names of familiar weights and measures as little as possible, the following changes have been suggested: Let the yard be made equal to the meter; let the foot be made the fourth instead of the third part of a yard and let it have ten instead of twelve inches; let the pound be made equal to half a kilogram; let the quart equal the liter; let the ton be 1,000 kilograms; let the pint, gallon, peck and bushel be defined in terms of the quart. In this way, it is pointed out, the inch would be shortened less than 2 per cent, but it is admitted that even this slight change would inconvenience mechanical engineers and machine manufacturers.—Exchange.

Rostand the Boy.

Edmond Rostand, academician, the creator of Cyrano and the barnyard drama, says his one time classmate, Jean Payond, in "Les Archives," was not among the bright pupils in the school at Marseilles when they were together. "When we had a drawing lesson he would read a novel, and when problems in mathematics were being explained he would make caricatures on the margin of his book. In composition only did he ever get a good report. At one time the head master said to him, 'You set such a bad example for others that you should be expelled, but your compositions are so good that you may go to the head of the class.'" While at school he edited and founded a monthly school journal, which died after its first issue.

The Venerable Bede's Chair.

In the ancient Saxon church of St. Paul, Jarrow-on-Tyne, England, may be seen the chair used centuries ago by the Venerable Bede. Notwithstanding its very great age, it is in an excellent state, but will hardly bear comparison with the luxurious upholstery of the present day. The Venerable Bede, or Beda, was an English monk and ecclesiastical historian, born at Monkwearmouth in the abbey which, together with that of Jarrow, he spent his life, devoted to quiet learning. His most important work is the "Ecclesiastical History of England," written in Latin, and translated by Alfred the Great. He completed a translation of John's Gospel the day he died. An old monk is said to have written an epitaph over his grave: "Hac Sunt in Fossa Bedae ossa"—"In this pit are the bones of Beda," and then fell asleep, but when he awoke he found some invisible hand had inserted "venerabilis" in the blank which he had failed to fill up, whence Beda's epinomen is alleged.

Qualms of Conscience.

An interesting story of a reproving conscience comes from Sunderland. Among the effects of the late Mr. William Williams, printer, the following letter was found: Dear Sir,—When I was a boy I came into your shop when you were next door to the Black Bull, at the time when you were selling your goods by auction, and I took from your shelf a farthing table book, and now I know it was wrong. This is not in fun: I know I took what was not my own, and Christ has shown me so. I enclose farthing and one shilling interest, hoping it will repay you, and I will be right with my conscience.—Believe me, yours, "V."

A Blacksmith Poet.

What promises to be one of the most successful books of the season—"Poems in Wiltshire"—has been written by Mr. Alfred Williams, a man who earns his living by the "sweat of his brow." Born in 1877, Mr. Williams was employed on a farm from the age of eleven, and since he was fourteen he has worked at Swindon, first as a rivet-boy in the railway works, then as a driver of a steam-hammer, and now as a hammerman.

Letter Thief's Ruse.

A new device for stealing letters was described at the Marlborough Street Police Court, London. A sheet of paper was inserted under a street door, and letters placed in the letter-box hole fell on the paper, which was afterwards withdrawn beneath the door with the letters.

He Caught It.

"You look warm."

"I have been chasing a hat."

"Did your hat blow off?"

"It was not my hat; it belonged to somebody else, and it had a pretty girl under it."

"Did you catch it?"

"Yes. My wife saw me chasing it."

TOO MUCH ALTOGETHER

HON. C. J. DOHERTY COULDN'T STEAL A MAN'S BED.

Career of New Minister of Justice Has Been a Remarkable One In Many Respects—Few Men Give Up a Judgeship at the Age of Fifty to Take Up the Uncertainties of Politics—Friend of Everything Irish.

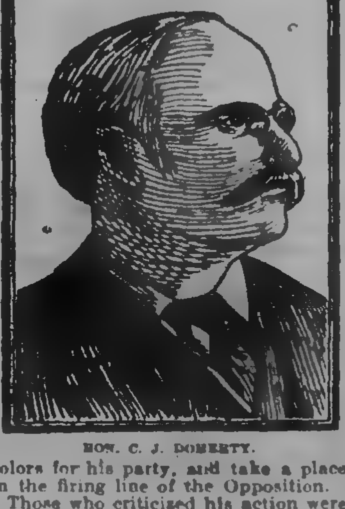
Hon. C. J. Doherty, the new Minister of Justice, went to a well-known apartment house in Ottawa when he arrived to take up his official duties and asked for a bachelor suite until such time as his family should arrive, says Saturday Night. He was shown to a certain apartment by the janitor and was proceeding to make himself comfortable for the night, when he heard unmistakable sounds of heavy breathing from the bedroom, off the sitting-room. He opened the door and peeped in, and to his surprise the vigorous sleeper was none other than William Stevens Fielding, ex-Minister of Finance.

"Look here," said Mr. Doherty to the janitor, "I don't mind turning a man out of office, but I can't very well turn him out of bed!"

It is given to few lawyers to have had a successful career at the Bar, and then on the Bench, and to be able to retire while still but little more than fifty years of age, but that is what Hon. Mr. Doherty has done.

The fact that although he is a retired judge he is still in the prime of life explains the reason why, on taking leave of the Bench, he entered upon another career, becoming at a single bound, one of the leading men in the Conservative party.

No man in recent years has caused so much comment and even criticism, on taking up politics, as did Mr. Doherty when he announced that instead of taking the part of an armchair critic according to the tradition of retired judges, he intended to join the colors for his party, and take a place in the firing line of the Opposition.



HON. C. J. DOHERTY.

Those who criticized his action were men who did not know him—men who pictured a judge as a kind of doddering individual, instead of the alert and virile personality that Mr. Doherty is.

The Conservatives were frankly delighted to have a man of such ripe experience allied to such robust manhood as his, and none were more delighted than Mr. R. L. Borden, who, soon after Mr. Doherty took his seat in the ranks of the Opposition, selected him as his right-hand henchman, amid a chorus of approval from colleagues and press alike.

A Montrealer by birth, Mr. Doherty comes of an old Irish family. He graduated from the St. Mary's Jesuit College, took a law course with flying colors and a gold medal at McGill, and within eleven years was selected a member of the council of the Bar and created a Queen's Counsel, following this up by taking over the chair of Civil Law at McGill University. Four years after becoming a Q.C. he was raised to the Bench. During his legal career Mr. Doherty officiated in many of the most celebrated cases of the day.

Always a man of exceptional activity, Mr. Doherty has from the first been associated with every movement in Montreal making for the welfare of his Irish compatriots, and he was one of the delegates chosen to go to the Irish National Convention in Dublin in 1895. At one time he held a commission as captain in the 65th Regiment, and he served with that corps in the Rebellion in the Northwest Territories on 1885.

A man of fine presence, great culture, and possessed of an attractive style of platform oratory, he seems destined to go far in national politics, especially as since he joined the Conservative party, that party has entered into power.

Music by Electricity.

The "telharmonium," invented by Dr. Thaddeus Cahill, furnishes what is called "electric music," not merely as a transmitter and imitator, but as direct producer of musical tones, by means of alternating electric currents. By combining these currents in different ways the operator at the keyboard produces different qualities of tone.

Dr. Cahill has recently made improvements which render the instrument capable of producing all sorts of entirely new tones of its own, while its imitation of trumpets, horns, viols, and violins may be so perfect as to deceive even the practiced ear of a musical hearer. A single receiver, it is said, responds satisfactorily to any sound from deepest bass to highest treble, and from a single note of pure tone to a full chord of composite tones.

Two Kinds.

"There are just two kinds of liars in this world."

"Two kinds?"

"Yes—the ones who lie to help themselves and the ones who lie to injure others."

A WHISTLER PICTURE.

The Story of Henry Irving's Portrait as Philip II.

The queer ups and downs of a picture are illustrated by the history of the portrait by Whistler of Henry Irving as Philip II. of Spain, now hanging in the Metropolitan museum, in New York. Whistler at a precarious period of his career asked his friend Irving to sit to him for a portrait in the character in which Irving was then playing, Philip II. The portrait was painted, and Irving, much pleased, requested Whistler to let him buy it and to name a price not too high for his slender purse. Having had the pleasure of Whistler's acquaintance, the writer can imagine the following conversation:

"Not too high, Jimmy! You know—aha—that actors—now, modestly, Jimmy!"

"My dear Irving, 'tis a masterpiece, but you shall have it for a song—let us say a thousand pounds."

"Too much, Jimmy—too much!"

Whistler kept the portrait. Soon after, in one of those unpleasant experiences which he shared with his great master, Rembrandt, he was sold out for debt. Rembrandt was sold out only twice. The "Butterfly" underwent three such forced sales.

Irving heard of the sale. Unknown to Whistler, he was able to buy his portrait at the auction for a song, and then in a spirit of friendly retaliation he invited the "Butterfly" to dinner. After the coffee and cigars he remarked, "Aha, my dear Jimmy, you must see my latest acquisition!" and invited him in to see his pictures, not mentioning the fact that he had bought the portrait. Whistler went from one picture to another, criticising, admiring, with that subtle, biting wit of his, and, coming in front of the portrait, he gayly remarked: "Aha! What have we here? My congratulations, Henry—the best picture in your collection!" He never turned a hair. This picture after Irving's death brought $25,000 at auction in London, and we are lucky to have it here now. This was a legitimate advance in price, and the picture is worth it. The few pounds that Irving paid was one of those fortuitous hazards of the auction room.—Saturday Evening Post.

RED TAPE IN PRAGUE.

While the Officials Wrangled the Matter Settled Itself.

A delightful story of circumlocution comes from Prague. One of the least imposing of the bridges in the city, the Liebner Brucke, connects two suburbs. Some time ago the toll collector discovered that some rabbits had invaded the district and concluded that their burrowings might threaten the stability of the bridge, so he called the burgomaster's attention to the matter. The burgomaster decided that it did not come within his province, but he sent the representation to the committee managing the public slaughter houses. The committee examined the rabbits and found they were wild, so they could do nothing, and as it was a close time the aid of the sportsman could not be impressed. Still, they did not relieve them of their moral responsibility.

The Prague slaughter house committee in turn informed the Stadtratpreesidium, but the matter was not within its jurisdiction. Yet the stability of the bridge was beyond all things necessary, so the dossier was sent to the central authority for buildings. This body went into the matter and concluded that the water authority should deal with the subject. But, no; the water board opined that it was for the conservators of rivers, and this body decided that rabbits could not be brought within the domain of things fluvial and that the burgomaster was the right party to take action. The dossier having completed the circle of possible departmental travels, the burgomaster decided to act. He appointed a committee of investigation. The committee went to the bridge in four carriages, and then they learned that the rabbits had taken their departure for some months.—Munchner Nachrichten.

What the Death Mask Shows.

The value of a plaster cast as a portrait of the dead or living face cannot for a moment be questioned. It must of necessity be absolutely true to nature. It cannot flatter; it cannot caricature. It shows the subject as he was or is, not only as others saw him in the actual flesh, but as he saw himself. And in the case of the death mask particularly it shows the subject often as he permitted no one but himself to see himself. He does not pose; he does not "try to look pleasant." In his mask he is seen, as it were, with his mask off.

An Itemized Bill.

The departing guest, according to a writer in the London Opinion, scrutinized his bill and exclaimed, "Look here, you charge for writing paper and I haven't used a scrap all the time I've been here!" The Proprietor—Ah, pardon, m'sieur. It is for the paper on which your bill is made out.

The Origin of "Booze."

The Turks make a liquor from barley which is called booza and which, although fermented, is not prohibited like wine, because it gives heat and strength to the body of Moslem warriors and goes for hunger. Excess in drinking it brings on gout and dropsy.—Evlia Effendi, "Travels."

An Old Family.

He—Miss Bellacour claims to belong to a very old family. She—Well, she's justified. There are six of those girls, and the youngest of them must be at least thirty-five.—Exchange.

Near Lecomte, this year, one [illegible] had 1,500 bushels of oats from 16 acres.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

THE GOOD OLD SUN

W. LYMAN HUME, Esq., M.D., says:

I took my last policy in the "Sun Life" five years ago. You may think how agreeably surprised I was to receive your letter of the 28th ult., informing me that my share of the profits earned by my Policy during the last five years amounted to $205.80 IN CASH; or if I preferred they would give me $46.65 a year for for the next five years, to be used as an annual reduction of my yearly premium; or better still they would increase my policy by $311.00, making it worth $5,311 instead of $5,000, upon which I would continue to pay the old premium. This is the option I have chosen.

Suppose that instead of insuring I had placed the amount of my premium $277.75, in the Bank each year, and had allowed the interest to be compounded for five years at three per cent., the interest allowed by all safe, conservative Banks. What would be the results? To-day I should receive $130.11 as the accumulated interest from the Bank, instead of $205.80 from the "Sun Life," a difference of $75.70; but in addition to this the Company has carried the risk on my life for $5,000, which they might have been called at any time to pay.

This is in marked contrast with the so-called Fraternal Societies: I have a policy of $1,000 in one of the best of them; I was notified the other day that my policy would be reduced one-half, or my premium doubled. The "Sun" increases my policy, or reduces my premium; the Fraternal Society reduces my policy or increases my premium; it should not be a difficult matter to choose which is the better system of the two.

The "Good Old Sun," may it never set except to rise again with increased effulgence!

LAKEFIELD GENERAL STORE VISITED DURING THE NIGHT BY PROFESSIONAL SAFE BLOWERS

Safe in Charlton Bros. Premises Blown Open and Robbers Secured Nearly $2.00—Second Case Within Short Time—No Clue to the Guilty Parties.

Special To The Review.

Lakefield, Dec. 12—A burglary was committed in Charlton's Bros. grocery store Lakefield about two o'clock Sunday morning. By all appearances the party was up to their business. The safe was blown open with dynamite the top being covered with flour to deaden the sound. The burglary was not discovered till ten o'clock Sunday morning when Mr. Charlton went to feed the horse in the morning he found one of his papers in the yard which he had in the safe. This aroused his suspicion that something was wrong. He thought he would look in the shop, and when he went in, he found the safe open and nearly two hundred dollars gone.

Chief Thompson has been advised of the affair, but fuller particulars from Constable Webster at Lakefield are being awaited. It appears that the village has no night constable and such a task as perpetrated Sunday is all the more easier. It is understood that some weeks ago, the safe in the flower mill operated by one of the Charlton Bros. was broken open. To all accounts there is very little for the authorities to work on in their endeavor to apprehend the robbers.

NEW BOOKS AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

The librarian would like to draw the attention of the users of the library to the following facts—

1. That if they wish to obtain the full benefit to be derived from the books it is absolutely essential that they should do as much as in them lies to prevent the volumes being mixed in a conglomerate mass on the shelves. The amount of labor that is expended in cataloguing the books is going to be rendered entirely nugatory in value if people persist in carrying books from one shelf to another or laying them down in a hap-hazard manner wherever the spirit prompts them to do so. It is earnestly hoped that the state of affairs referred to will not continue. Patrons of the library have it in their own power to remedy it and until they do so they cannot expect to find the library in a state of proper efficiency.

2. Several users of the reading rooms seem to be ignorant of the fact that the newspapers and periodicals which are placed in the files are placed for the purpose of preserving them and not at some seem to imagine, to provide them with an innocent form of diversion in striving to discover which is the best method of freeing them from their claspings. Anyone discovered after this notice attempting to tear the papers away from their fastenings will be severely dealt with.

The following new books have just been received at the Public Library and were placed on the shelves to-day.

PETERBORO LODGE I.O.O.F. AT HOME

Those Who Assisted at Affair of Triple Link Brethren

A very enjoyable At Home was held in the Oddfellows' Hall Friday night, by the Peterborough Lodge No. 111. There were between three and four hundred present and everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The At Home took the form of concert numbers, euchre and dancing. Bro. D. Moore occupied the chair in his usual entertaining manner. Miss E. Palmer's violin solos were greatly appreciated, her tone and execution being excellent. She was accompanied with good taste by Miss M. Flowers. Mr. Geo. E. Chandler sang in his usual finished style, encores being demanded and given. Mrs. R. Allen, late of the Manchester and provincial concerts, England, was the elocutionist, and her recital of Hubert and Prince Arthur from King John, was an artistic performance. Her second number, the Way to Heaven, was received with well merited applause.

Mr. Barrett sang two of Harry Lauder's songs in his own inimitable style and after the concert, dancing was indulged in by the younger section, the music being provided by Messrs Lewis and Hackett. The large hall was arranged with tables and euchre was played by all who cared to. A lunch was provided by the committee, Bro. T. Hooper being the caterer and thus ended one of the most pleasant gatherings in the history of Peterborough Lodge No. 111.

PRESENTATION TO MISS M. LIGHTFOOT

As a mark of the high esteem in which she is held by them, the office staff of the Lock Works presented Miss Minnie Lightfoot with a beautiful fountain pen and a bottle of perfume Saturday evening. Miss Lightfoot leaves shortly for St. Catharines where she will enter her new duties as confidential secretary to Mr. A. W. Clark, general manager of the Yale and Towne Co. She will be much missed by a large circle of young friends with whom she has been very popular. A number of her friends made the presentation of a gold and pearl-mounted umbrella on Thursday night.

WEDDING BELLS

SOUTHWELL—CAMPBELL.

A pretty, but quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mrs. Wm. Campbell, Bailieboro, on Dec. 6th, 1911, at the hour of two o'clock, when her only daughter Alice, was united in wedlock to Mr. Oscar Southwell, Whitby Ont. The bride was given away by Mr. H. Campbell and the young couple were unattended. The Rev. D. A. McKenzie, of Centreville Presbyterian church, officiated, only the immediate friends being present. The bride received a handsome array of presents, showing the high esteem in which she was held by her friends. The young couple left on a trip to Toronto and points west and on their return will reside in Whitby.

POLICE COURT TO THE ALTER

Young Girl Arrested on Charge of Vagrancy

Kingston, Dec. 11—A young girl up for vagrancy was given a private session in police court here. She was given a ticket for Campbellford where she is to be married.

She was arrested a week ago, last night, as she was taking a train for Campbellford, where she said she was to be married. Investigation showed that her story was true, and she was allowed to go.

The Vancouver German Press has made its appearance. It is an interesting and ably edited edition in provincial journalism.

LOCAL OPTION AT LAKEFIELD

Rev. W. C. Riddiford Believes Law Will be Sustained

He Took the Services at the Baptist Church

"I believe the local optionists are going to win out," said the Rev. W. C. Riddiford this morning when asked what the prospects were for the repeal of the local option law in Lakefield, where a vote will be taken on January 1st.

"They are having a pretty warm up there," continued the Review informant, "All but two of the merchants signed the petition for repeal."

Next Sunday, he said, the Lakefield churches are to be visited by speakers from Toronto and speakers from Peterborough are also being arranged for.

Rev. Mr Riddiford was in Lakefield for Sunday, when he took the services at the Baptist church for Rev. Mr Gregory, who was heard at Park street. The occasion was the re-opening of the Sunday school at which repairs and other operations have been concluded. He spoke at both services and addressed the Sunday school scholars.

COMMERCE CLOSES RECORD YEAR

The annual statement of the Canadian Bank of Commerce for the fiscal year ending November 30 shows earnings of $2,305,409 as compared with $1,838,065 earned in 1910. The year has been plainly the best in the history of the bank. Earnings on the paid-up capital at the close of the year were 19.70 per cent., compared with 18.38 per cent. last year, 15.10 per cent. in 1909, 16.27 per cent. in 1908, and 17.52 per cent. in 1907. The bank has taken into its assets $250,000 from over-appropriations in connection with assets since realized, which is in addition to a sum of $350,000 from the same source appearing in the statement of May 31 last. The bank, therefore, within the last year has been able to add to its resources a sum of half a million recovered from its reserve for bad or doubtful accounts.

In spite of the increase in its branches during the past year, the bank has written off bank premises $400,000 as compared with $300,000 in the previous year, and has carried forward a balance of profit of $204,304. When the payments in connection with the new stock issue of the bank have been completed the capital will be $12,000,000 and the rest $10,000,000.

PRESENTATION AT SMITH HOME

Friends Gave Bride to be Handsome Mahogany Rocker

An interesting affair took place at the home of Mr. Frederick Cann on the second line of Smith last Tuesday night, when his daughter, Miss Vera Cann, was presented with a handsome mahogany rocker, by her friends, about fifty being present for the occasion. Mrs. G. Simpson read the address, while the presentation was made by Mrs. B. Tully and Mrs. D. Mahood.

Best wishes for a bright and happy future were tendered Miss Cann, who was married on Thursday to Mr. Francis H. Sanderson, and the recipient made a neat acknowledgement. The address was as follows:

Smith, Dec. 5th, 1911.

Dear Vera,—We, your many friends and neighbors, have assembled to extend to you our best wishes, and to spend an evening with you, ere you depart from our midst. We feel that we cannot allow you to go without showing some marks of the general esteem in which you are regarded in the neighborhood.

While you have not resided in our immediate neighborhood for a great many years, yet you, and the family to which you belong, are no strangers to us, and during your sojourn among us, and your social intercourse, you have contributed abundantly toward making life pleasant in the circle in which we have moved.

Let us assure you that our best wishes for a long, happy and prosperous life go with you to your new home.

As a token of our esteem, we present to you this chair, knowing that you will regard it, for its intrinsic value alone, but for the motive which prompts us in giving it.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors.

MRS. D. MAHOOD,
MRS. G. SIMPSON,
MRS. B. L. TULLY.

CALENDARS ARE NOW ON SALE

Buy at Drug Stores and Help the Health Association

Have you secured one of the pretty Christmas calendars in aid of the Peterborough Health Association? They are placed on sale in the drug stores. When you are down town, step into one of these shops, and ask to see them. Everybody has one or more fancy calendars among their collection of Christmas gifts. Then in making your selections this year, don't forget the Health Association. Remember that in purchasing one of these calendars, you will perform a two fold act. In addition to having a suitable gift for your friends you will help along the noble cause of this local organization, namely, that of fighting the tuberculosis in this city. Already a number of these have been sold by interested workers, but there are still several hundred to be disposed of, before the amount of money that the association is endeavoring to raise through this medium is secured.

The Christmas stamps are also now available. In sending parcels and letters put a few of these stamps on them. As was stated in Saturday's issue, the object of this sale is to raise funds in order to engage a district nurse for tubercular cases in Peterborough.

Rev. Dr. Barclay at Knox Church Opening Anniversary

Generous Offering of $21,88 Was Made During the Day

Record congregations and noticeable enthusiasm prevailed at Knox church on Sunday, the occasion being the first anniversary of the opening of the new church, which under the pastorate of Rev. H. J. Keith, is exerting such a helpful and extensive religious force, among its members and adherents.

The spirit of thankfulness and unity was especially prominent yesterday. Most liberal offerings were received and in response to the appeals for generous giving, the magnificent sum of $2,188, was received. For a couple of large donations, which are included in this sum, from outside sources, the officials desire to extend their most grateful thanks.

The presence in the pulpit at both services of the celebrated Dr. Barclay, a man of great intellectuality, splendid personality and wide religious experience was partly responsible for the record attendance yesterday. Dr. Barclay is a preacher to whom it is a pleasure and an inspiration to hear, and judging from the keen attention he was accorded, the congregations were aware of the fact that they were listening to a man of great prominence in the religious world.

His evening discourse was particularly impressive and inspiring, and was of the strain which appeals to all. The words in Romans 5, 3, "And not only so, but we glory in tribulation also; knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience, hope, and hope maketh not ashamed," constituted the basis of his remarks.

"Here we have a picture of true life," announced Dr. Barclay. "The youth for instance is always hopeful. The young man setting out in life is always optimistic, but we know how soon and how often that hope is crushed, and wrecked amid the storms of life. Stern realities show the young man his mistake. He might be said then to be passing through the tribulation period.

"How many there are, sadly disappointed in life." But we should remember that the present is not life; it is a future seen through the golden light of expectation.

The learned divine went on to vividly portray and trace the feelings of mankind, as he passed through the stages described in his text. His theme was full of human interest, and could not fail but to make an impression.

The music by the choir, under the leadership of Mr Lewis, was of a high order, and this part of the days' program was appreciated by the large congregations.

WHAT CHINA NEEDS TO-DAY

Not Crude Boys But Statesmen Says Rev. Dr. Young

Missions are Not a Charitable Organization He Says

"The kind of men we want to plant in China to-day is statesmen—not crude boys—but statesmen who can grapple with the situation," said Rev. Dr. Young at Charlotte street church yesterday morning, "and thank God the Methodist church has men in the field to-day who can grapple with the situation as it is to-day," he continued. The reverend visitor came to preach the missionary anniversary sermons, and he was welcomed by large congregations at both services— That he awakened the Charlotte street congregation to broader views on the missionary problem is partly answerable in the two strong discourses he gave, and the attentive hearing his auditors gave him.

"The day has gone by when you as business men can afford to look at missions as a charitable organization." Rev. Dr. Young said as he addressed his remarks more particularly to the men of his morning congregation. "It is a business investment. I ask you as men of Charlotte street church to take stock in one of the most splendid opportunities for investment that has ever been presented to the Methodist church of Canada."

He prefaced his appeal on behalf of the mission problem by taking up the history of the early church at Antioch, where the apostles were first called Christians, such being one of the mightiest, if not the mightiest force in the world to-day. Dr. Young presented the life of this city, its surroundings and the work being done in a vivid picture of words and brought his congregation up to the call from God to Barnabas and Saul to the work which he had allotted to them. He explained how that this divine call was for the best men of that church, and then pointed out that for to-day the situation needed the same workers—the very best—the men with piety of the deepest, education of the broadest, judgment of the keenest and men with unquenchable zeal. These were the qualifications for a man to be a successful missionary, and the divine call should be heard by every individual who went to the mission field. The present unrest in China to-day, he said, was simply the birth of a new nation—one that would stand out as world rulers. China was like huge monster which had slept for centuries, and was now gradually shaking herself in an awakening.

The missionary offerings for the day were well in advance of last year, so the Review is informed to-day.

HOLIDAY GIFTS

RACKET AT CHINESE CAFE; HEAVY FINES AT POLICE COURT

Contributions of Offenders Make Total of $67.00—Drunks Predominate.

Police court proceedings were unusually lengthy this morning and the income from fines amounted in all to $67.

Two prominent local young men indulged in a fight at the Dominion Chinese cafe, about 6.30 Saturday evening. Both were under influence of liquor and according to the restaurant proprietor's evidence, they refused to pay for a meal. A row followed in which Thos. Hing, the waiter received a crack on the eye, giving it a badly discolored appearance.

P. C. Kidd, and Detective Newhall effected their arrest

The two were assessed this morning $22.75 in the proportion of $8.75 to one, and $14 to the other.

Mr G. N. Gordon, acted in the interests of the complainant. The cost of repairing the damage committed by the two disorderlies was included in the fines.

JUST LIKE NEW YORK

The news of the trouble was communicated to the police officers by means of whistles, which the excited celestials operated on a par with the signalling system at a New York fire

It didn't take the crowd long to gather and for about ten minutes excitement was intense.

BACK TO THE WOODS

John Stover, a plain drunk was fined $2. He is a laborer and leaves for the woods to-morrow.

ORATION COST $5.75.

A man named Calberg pleaded guilty of being drunk on Saturday. He was jostling people on the street and using very filthy language, when taken in by P.C. Brown. The fine was $5.75.

Another drunk parted with $2 after pleading guilty.

FINE OF $14.50

Eddie King, who is on the blacklist, was arraigned on a charge of having been intoxicated. After reeling off quite a yarn, in which he admitted having told lies to the Chief of Police he was fined $10 and costs or $14.50 in all.

William Anthony was placed on the blacklist this morning in police court it being felt that it was his only hope of salvation from the continual use of intoxicating liquor.

Peter Johnston popped up again this morning and was remanded. He escaped from the House of Providence and last night created a racket at Fowlers' Corners and an officer was sent out to arrest him.

THE OFT TOLD STORY

Harry Carney, a blacklister, arrested for beingdrunk, went into the box and told the old, old story of having got his whiskey from a man whom he did not know. Later he was recalled and admitted having committed perjury and said that he had purchased it himself. His Worship was lenient and allowed him off with a $10 fine.

WHAT ST. LUKE'S LADIES REALIZED

Cheque for $220 Placed Upon Offering Plate

As the proceeds of the St. Luke's fowl supper, held a short time ago, in the market hall, a cheque for $220 was placed upon the offertory plate at St. Luke's church yesterday morning. This is the largest sum that has been realized by St. Luke's on an occasion of this kind. It is estimated that almost a Thousand people attended the supper, and the ladies are to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts. Special praise is due to Mrs. Wm. Gibbs, the president of the Ladies' Aid, upon whom fell the main responsibility for the arrangements of the supper.

To The Editor of The Review,

BETTER MAIL DELIVRY

Dear Sir—I am not given to complaint and have refrained from doing so for some days in the hope that an improvement would be shown in the delivery of the mails in the business section of the city, because a new carrier admittedly takes a short time to become familiar with his route. But he has been now sufficiently long enough on his post to have accomplished this, and I think, with others, that the mail should be distributed in the mornings throughout the business section at a much earlier hour. Business people desire to find their mail awaiting them when they arrive, usually between 8 and 9 o'clock, at their offices, in the morning. When the service was first established in Peterborough, I think I am right when I say that the business district was assured of a delivery by eight o'clock. Now it is fully 10 30—altogether too late—before the morning distribution is completed. Other carriers have been able to perform this service satisfactorily to the public, and there is no excuse for the present state of affairs.

IS CALLED "JOE."

Under Secretary Pope Has Served Under Every Premier.

When Joseph Pope emerged from the Prime Minister's room a few days ago, after his first official call on Mr. Borden, he remarked that he had served under every Premier since Confederation. Mr. Pope has other titles besides the one of "Joe." He is Under-Secretary of State and Registrar-General and by royal favor is allowed to tack to his name the letters C.V.O., C.M.G., I.S.O. Joseph Pope is admitted to know more about the fuss and feathers of the social side of Governments than anyone else inside the public service, or outside. He knows exactly the rules of precedent which should prevail at vice-regal drawing-rooms and he it is who really decides, with the able assistance of the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, upon the social qualifications of those who desire to mingle for a brief spell with real live dukes and belted earls.

For many years "Joe" Pope was Sir John Macdonald's private secretary, and he even put his reminiscences of the old chieftain in book form. Pope tells a good story of the somewhat troubled political period after Sir John's death. Sir John Abbott became Premier, and some days after taking over the reins of office he walked over to Mr. Pope's residence to see him. The day was hot and dusty, and Sir John Abbott was then an old man. When he arrived at the Pope domicile, somewhat dishevelled and wiping the perspiration from his brow, one of the members of the family, thinking the aged individual was a book agent, declined for some time to call Mr. Pope downstairs. Finally the old gentleman, feeling the chill of the hostile reception, said, "Oh, don't trouble Mr. Pope if he is busy, but say to him when it is convenient that Sir John Abbott called."—Saturday Night.

A Reverend License Inspector.

No man was more surprised than himself when Rev. John Ayearst, who has resigned as Provincial License Inspector in Ontario, was offered the appointment in 1905. Rev. Mr. Ayearst was then in charge of a Methodist congregation in Western Ontario, and was on one of his visits to "stiffen the back" of Hon. W. J. Hanna, who had announced when appointed Provincial Secretary that Ontario Bonifaces would be made "keep hotel." For years Mr. Ayearst has been an ardent temperance advocate, and the enforcement of the liquor license law as he thought it should be, was the great thing for which he strove. Time after time he called upon Mr. Hanna concerning this matter.

"Now see here, Ayearst," Hon. Mr. Hanna is reported to have said. "Just try it yourself."

Mr. Ayearst never dreamed of such a proposal and it made him stare for a minute. A Methodist minister as a license inspector was something new for him. But it was up to him. "What could I do," Mr. Ayearst said in relating the incident to a friend. He took Mr. Hanna at his word, and for the last six years he has been going up and down Ontario from Cornwall to Kenora, prosecuting illicit sellers of liquor and hotelkeepers whom he caught selling in local option districts. Regarding his position as something akin to detectives, he called in all his photographs. A likeness of John Ayearst is about as scarce as hens' teeth.

He now goes to Edmonton at an increased salary to carry on similar work.

NO MORAL TO THIS STORY.

Considerable Expense Connected With Easing Man's Conscience.

In some way a man became obsessed with the idea that he owed the government a certain sum of money. The thought weighed upon his conscience and disturbed his slumbers.

One day he pushed aside the demands of business and figured out the indebtedness. After six hours of careful computation at 60 cents an hour he arrived at the conclusion that the debt, principal and interest, was exactly 79 cents.

Before the interest could still further accumulate he sent the full amount in an envelope addressed to the treasury department. But he forgot to affix a stamp.

Later on a forty cent an hour dead letter clerk passed the inclosure to a twenty cent an hour messenger, who carried it over to the treasury department, where a five dollar a day clerk railroaded it along to a six dollar a day clerk who dispatched it to a fourteen dollar a day assistant treasurer, who certified it to the twenty dollar a day head of the bureau of extraordinary revenues, who presently chucked it into the conscience fund, with a hoarse laugh of irritable derision.

A reasonable estimate of the cost of returning that sleep wrecking sum is $14.98.

But the man's conscience is now at rest, and he sleeps the sleep of the just.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

JAPANESE DENTISTS.

They Use Natural Weapons In Assaulting Their Victims.

Japanese native dentists conduct their business in a manner which would undoubtedly cause any European practitioner to open his eyes in amazement. The victim is seated on the ground. The dentist bends over him and forces his left hand between the patient's jaws in such a manner that the mouth cannot possibly be closed. Then he grasps the doomed tooth between the thumb and forefinger of the right hand and with one deft wrench removes it and throws it upon the ground.

So great is the skill of these native dentists that many of them are able to remove six or seven teeth per minute. Indeed, their skill is hardly to be wondered at when one considers the course of preparatory training they are obliged to undergo.

A number of holes are bored in a stout plank, and this is fixed firmly to the ground. In the holes are driven wooden pegs, and the would be dentist has to extract them with his fingers without dislodging the board. This process is repeated with a board of pine wood and finally with one of oak, and it is only when he has succeeded in extracting the pegs from the oak plank that the Japanese considers himself qualified to practice upon his fellow men.—Pearson's Weekly.

MAKING A LAWYER.

It Took Patrick Henry Six Weeks to Prepare For the Bar.

Patrick Henry when he was a young married man of twenty-three was a complete failure. He had tried clerking, farming and keeping a country store, all with equally negative or disastrous results.

"Best of all," he said cheerfully to himself, "I will become a lawyer."

Six weeks he allowed himself as a matter of formality to prepare for the bar. During this time he read one book, "Coke Upon Littleton," supplemented by an equally strenuous perusal of the "Digest of the Virginia Acts."

His examiners, Wythe, Pendleton, Peyton Randolph and John Randolph, hardly knew whether to be more amazed at his ignorance of law or his profound knowledge of history. After no little deliberation he received his license.

"Mr. Henry," John Randolph exclaimed enthusiastically after his examination of the young neophyte, "if your industry be only half equal to your genius I augur that you will do well and become an ornament and an honor to your profession."—Green Bag.

QUITE A LITTLE OF IT LEFT.

Kaiser's Love of the Theatrical Did Not Die In His Youth.

It is partly of course policy for the Kaiser to have his picture or his statue placed conspicuously and be well known throughout the length and breadth of his empire; as a result one of the first things that strike the traveler in the fatherland is the number of Kaiser portraits and busts and the comparatively rarity of the portraits and busts of famous national personalities.

There is a certain amount of imperial vanity at work too. Berlin has all it needs in this respect, but it is to be enriched with still another portrait of the Kaiser, and this time in such a fashion as to make it rank with the show objects of the capital. The statue, which is in marble and executed by Prof. Walter Schott, is to occupy a niche in the entrance hall of the Academy of Art in Pariser Platz.

It represents Wilhelm II. in the costume of a ruler, a French count or duke, of the period of Louis XIV., with the long down hanging peruke of the time and a suit of armor the upper part of which is garnished with a covering of delicate lace. The Kaiser is standing, the left foot resting on a ball, the left arm, with the sceptre in the hand, reposing on the raised knee. The right arm is bent, the hand resting on the hip. The helmeted head is thrown back proudly.

It seems that the love of the theatrical side of the imperial office, which characterized the Kaiser's earlier years, is not yet extinguished.

Thought Photos.

At the last meeting of the Paris Academy of Science a communication was read from Major Darget, of the French army, already known as having photographed rays emitted by living beings. These rays he calls "V" rays.

Starting from Dr. Charcot's theory of hypnosis that living fluids are transmitted by a person to a subject, Maj. Darget asked himself whether it would not be possible to register mental images by photography; whether, for instance, by thinking intently of an object, one might under special conditions obtain an image of it on a film.

In a dark room he fixed his thoughts on a bottle, and his eyes upon a plate placed in a bath developer. He kept his fingers also in the dish. At the end of a few minutes the bottle was reproduced on the plate.

The major exhibited his photograph to the Academy of Science, and with it a second photograph obtained under similar conditions, but in the presence of six witnesses. A third photograph was the mental image of a stick. Maj. Darget calls them "thought photographs."

Could Not Say "A."

Canon Horsley, after "thirty-seven years hard labor" in Walworth, has accepted a quiet living in Kent, changing from the care of swarming thousands to a parish of 300 souls. In one of his Walworth toils he admits failure; he could not get the children to speak English properly. Walworth had no objection to pronouncing the single letter "a" as "a," but, in spite of every effort, "baby" was always "biby"—or rather, one would say, "baiby."

Canon Horsley was Mayor of Southwark last year, and no one is better known and liked in the poorer districts of the south of the metropolis. With the children the canon is a special favorite, and largely for the entertainment of his youthful parishioners he has kept a miniature zoological garden.

Canon Horsley is the owner of what he calls a Black Museum, modelled on the famous museum at Scotland Yard. It consists of curiosities collected by him when chaplain of the old Clerkenwell House of Correction, a position which he held for ten years.

Buying Meat By Aid of Pictures.

"Buying meat with the help of pictures is the latest fad," said a butcher.

"I'd give a dollar to know who started it. I'd like to send him to jail. Every cook book prints pictures showing just how the different cuts of meat ought to look and the housekeepers who are green at buying bring them along to go by.

"Such people are enough to drive you crazy. They look first at the pictures, then at the meat. They say I must be trying to cheat them because the piece of beef I call sirloin looks more like the picture of a rump steak. Just as if I cut up meat every time according to cook-book photographs. My only consolation is that the women seem to have as much trouble over it as I do, so I am hoping they will soon get tired."

Birds' Longest Flight.

Perhaps the longest straightaway flight made by birds in their migrations is accomplished by some of the shore and water birds that nest in the islands of Bering sea and spend the winter at Hawaii and Fanning Island, 2,200 miles away.

Inasmuch as some of these birds live entirely on the shore and are probably unable to rest on the surface of the water, it is thought that they must accomplish the whole distance in a single flight.

Yet, although there are no landmarks for them upon their long journey over a waste of waters, they make their way to their destination with the precision of a rifle shot.

Quite Necessary.

"We give trading stamps with these bathing suits," said the saleslady.

"Well, I should say you ought to," returned Mrs. Shyley. "Mercy me! I should never think of appearing in a suit like that without something else on, even if it were nothing more than a stamp."

Smart Boy.

"Want a situation as errand boy, do you? Well, can you tell me how far the moon is from the earth, eh?"

Boy—Well, gur'nor, I don't know, but I reckon it ain't close enough to interfere with me runnin' errands.

He got the job.

HEROISM OF THE SPY

HIS MISSION IS OFTEN A PATRIOTIC ONE.

He Must Have Exceptional Coolness and Courage and the Risk of His Task Is Tremendous — If Caught His Employer Disowns Him—"Pickle" Is One of the Most Mysterious Spies In British History.

However interesting to the student may be the records of history as it appears from the outside, however full of the fascination which clings to the names and doings of great men, there is another side to all history—or almost all—which has a peculiar charm of its own. It must be, very largely, guess work, containing, as it does, endless mysteries and puzzles; that vast mass of the unwritten inner history of nations, the machinery of plots and intrigues, which has to be pieced together from the scanty evidence which has been left to posterity. And the piecing is the more difficult because the very essence of successful plots and intrigues is that they should be carried on with as little documentary evidence as possible, which might, by accident or treachery, fall into the hands of the opposite party, says The Manchester Weekly Times.

The sinister figure of the spy always lurks in the background of these half-revealed political and historical annals—an important, if inglorious, cog in the complicated machinery of intrigue. His work may be at times rather dirty work (the title "spy" is not, on the whole, a very highly respected one), but it has been on occasion both necessary and patriotic; while more often than not it requires a greater amount of personal courage, and certainly of presence of mind, than the more attractive, because more above board methods of hazarding one's life and liberty. The spy generally carries his life in his hand, with the additional proviso that if he should be found out the person on whose behalf he is working will in all probability disown all responsibility for his doings. Broadly speaking, therefore, it is not wonderful that in many cases the task of a spy has fallen to the lot either of the most desperate and unscrupulous type of mercenary, or of those who care above all things for a specially risky adventure for its own sake.

The days of the Jacobite plots for the restoration of the Stuart dynasty were naturally noted for the energy with which spies on both sides carried on their work; and by far the most interesting of these darkly mysterious personages was the man who carried on the work of betrayal under the name of "Pickle the Spy." The identity of this individual, who, as all are agreed, was a personage of high birth, and enjoyed a position of the greatest confidence in the Pretender's counsels, has been matter for much conjecture and discussion; but it seems likely enough that the conclusion to which Mr. Andrew Lang has come, in his interesting monograph on the subject, is the correct one. Mr. Lang deduces that "Pickle" was in reality none other than young Glengarry, and gives several reasons for his deduction, which seem perfectly conclusive. Both "Pickle" and Glengarry, he points out, were officers in the French service, both were to take part in the Elibank plot in London in 1752, and both were intimate with the Earl Marischal in Paris. Further, the correspondence of the spy mentions the death of his father at the time of the death of old Glengarry, an illness when Glengarry was ill, and so forth; while, to conclude, with the death of Alexander MacDonnell, young Glengarry, the figure of "Pickle the Spy" seems to vanish from the pages of history.

"Pickle" played a very important part in the secret history of his day. But for him it is probable that there would have been another Highland rising, certain to fail, yet none the less on that account bloody and disastrous; so that this much good may be said to have come from Glengarry's hideous treachery to the exiled prince whom he professed to serve. "Pickle," at the time when this rising was in contemplation, was in communication with Henry Pelham, the Minister of George II., and forwarded to him a memorial drawn up by his own kinsman, Lochgarry, giving the names and numbers of the Highland clans likely to take arms in the Stuart cause. The Elibank plot, which was also abandoned owing to "Pickle's" information, was to kidnap King George and seize St. James' Palace, and young Glengarry was to take a leading part in this scheme.

The reason for Glengarry's treachery was apparently neither more nor less than love of money, of which, naturally, there was more to be had for treachery than for loyalty. It is at the same time almost incredible that a man of high birth and proud tradition could live a life of such terrible duplicity, dying, as he did, undiscovered, though, as contemporary records show, by no means unsuspected.

To discover the identity of an informer during his lifetime is however, invariably a very difficult business, since death is the almost certain consequence of the revealing of his treachery; while the usual destruction of incriminating documents from day to day renders it by no means easy to detect a spy even long after he could suffer by the discovery. Considerable mystery, for example, surrounds the identity of the betrayer of Lord Edward Fitzgerald's hiding-place during the Irish troubles of 1798, and to judge by a street ballad of the time, it is not wonderful that the spy was not very eager to gratify the public curiosity:

"May heaven scorch and parch the tongue by which his life was sold,
And shrivel up the hand, that clutched the proffered meed of gold."

A recent writer has given pretty good reasons for believing the traitor to have been one Francis Magan, a Dublin barrister, who was one of the very few who knew Lord Edward's hiding place.

THE BANK ROLL.

[With apologies.]

How dear to my heart is the bank roll departed,
The five spots and tens in the strong rubber band,
The yellow boys, too, that were mine when I started
And oft I caressed with a fatherly hand—
The wide bulging bank roll that set my eyes popping,
The bank roll I had when I struck that hotel,
The bank roll she touched when she journeyed out shopping,
The bank roll now vanished that served us so well.
The wide bulging bank roll, the rubber bound bank roll,
The bank roll, now vanished, that served us so well!

How sweet from the green crinkled wad 'twas to peel one
And flash it about for the strangers to see!
How splendid to know that the wad was a real one
And all it was made of belonged unto me!
Now the tear of regret in my sad eyes is welling.
Once again I am making the poverty yell,
And I sigh as I sit in my poor humble dwelling
For the bank roll, now vanished, that served us so well,
The wide bulging bank roll, the Michigan bank roll,

The Chauffeur.

In answer to many letters that we receive asking that we give the proper pronunciation of the word "chauffeur" we would state that it differs in various parts of the country. The following limericks will perhaps make the matter clear:

NEW YORK PRONUNCIATION.

There once was a reckless young chauffeur,
Who chanced to catch up with a gopher.
He of course ran him down,
Then inquired, with a frown,
"Now, what were you going so slow for?"

BROOKLYN PRONUNCIATION.

In Brooklyn they tell of a chauffeur,
A very eccentric old duffer,
Who blows his honk horn
From night until morn
And makes all the neighborhood suffer.

CHICAGO PRONUNCIATION.

Another peculiar chauffeur
Creates a continual stir.
He is blind in both eyes,
And when driving he tries
A smashup is bound to occur.

PHILADELPHIA PRONUNCIATION.

Still another too speedy chauffeur
When arrested seems hardly to care.
If put into jail
He is let out on bail
And is soon again speeding for fair.

"And a senator from New York going up in an elevator?" interrupted the literary editor. "One is a rift in a lute, and the other is a Root in a lift. You oughtn't to try as easy a one as that on me."

Nothing more was said, but they continued to glare at each other.—Chicago Tribune.

In the Asylum.

"That maniac," said the keeper to the visitors as they came to one room, "is crazy about animals and thinks he has a unique zoo. Tell the gentleman, Michael, all the animals you have collected."

"I haven't so many," replied the maniac, "but I am starting well with a sun dog, a moon calf, a sea puss, an ocean greyhound and a blind tiger."—Baltimore American.

THE MUTINEERS OF THE FOAM

Perilous Adventures Told by and of Living Persons

CAPTAIN ROYAL MORGAN, who is ninety years old, is at present living in Tompkinsville, Staten Island. From his little cottage he can watch steamers and schooners as they pass out into the great ocean, where all his life has centred. Captain Morgan does not look his age. He seems not older than seventy-five years and is sprightly for that. He is a fund of information about the sea and has many queer tales of strange lands, but the following story is of the one mutiny which he has seen.

BY CAPTAIN ROYAL MORGAN.

IT never pays to ship landsmen. The thing has been tried time and again, but the skipper who does it will find himself in trouble before he's back in port. Landsmen are not used to the way of the sea, and they are not built so that they can accustom themselves to it very easily. Take one or two in a crew and it's all right, but when you come to have them in the majority you want to be ready for all kinds of deviltment.

Back in '49 and '50 there were many diverse characters trying to get to the Pacific Coast. Some of them were as fine men as you would want to see pace a deck, but gold attracts the worst as well as the best. Most of those old pioneers had no money and they had to work their way around to 'Frisco.

I was mate of the four masted schooner Foam, out of New York, in 1849. The captain was Aleck Bradley, one of the roughest and most honest skippers at sea, but a man short of temper and long of arm. We were carrying supplies to the new country.

I scented trouble when we shipped a lot of backwoodsmen and city waifs for the cruise to 'Frisco. Every one of them was after gold, and they wanted to get it the easiest way they could, which was natural, but made it hard for us. There were only seven old seamen in the crew and there were sixteen of the lubbers. In the first place, that made too many men. We couldn't hope to keep them all busy, which is very bad at sea, and the Captain and I had some warm words about it.

"I can't help it," said Captain Bradley, "and besides, Mr. Morgan, you're mate on this vessel and I'm skipper. If there's any grumbling to be done aboard this craft I'll do it. Sixteen landlubbers we have, and sixteen landlubbers we'll beat into as honest seamen as ever handled ship. If you don't like it, go ashore."

What a time we had getting that old ship out of the harbor. Twenty-two men to handle her, and yet it took all seven of the seamen to tell our landsmen which ropes to pull on, and even then they got them tangled.

We hadn't passed Hatteras when the men from shore began to grumble. The Captain kept them on the jump every minute and they didn't like it. They kicked about the salt pork and the coffee, though most of them hadn't had more than a crust for days before they shipped. They didn't like the fo'c's'l to sleep in, and when the Captain gave them permission to sleep on the deck those who had made their beds in gutters complained about having to sleep in the open. The men from the country weren't used to being ordered about so, and the men from the city were just naturally lazy. They grew morose and looked offended whenever an order was shouted at them. Every day it grew worse and finally you could see them grumbling among themselves and answering back under their breath whenever they were told to do anything.

Through it all the old seamen were cheerful and willing. The two cliques didn't seem to pull well together, which, after all, was best for us, for we were afraid the disaffection would spread to the old hands.

Walking forward one night during the dog watch I heard a couple of the men talking in the fore peak.

"Who is this Captain, anyway?" said one of the landsmen, sprinkling his talk plentifully with oaths. "I ain't used to bein' driven and bossed round like a slave. No, sir, and the Prince of India can't bulldoze me the way that Captain does."

"Look here, Matie," I heard one of the seamen tell him. "If I was you I wouldn't cross the Cap'n. He's a honest man and someways kind, but he's hell when he's started."

The first speaker, who I found out afterward was a bully from one of the tough quarters of New York, went on to tell about what he could do to the Captain if "the old man" only would start something.

Captain Bradley's Fight.

The next night there was a pretty heavy sea running. There were black signs of worse weather to come and we were getting ready for it. Every one was hustling about, but the seamen were doing most of the heavy work. Morton, the man whom I had overheard in the fore peak the night before, was standing amidships leaning against a windlass. I walked over to him.

"Run up there and help make fast that foretopsail," I said. "What are you standing about here idle for?"

The man started to make some reply and I stepped forward, angry. At that instant the Captain approached. He had heard the order and saw the man start to answer back.

"Step lively there!" he yelled. "Get into those ratlines. Quick now."

"I'm darned if I will," snarled Morton.

That was the end of the conversation. Captain Bradley's fist shot out like a small cannon ball and Morton crashed to the deck. Bradley was turning away, but Morton jumped up, roaring. In a second he had grappled with the Captain, who turned in time.

I started to interfere, but Bradley shouted to me to 'tend the men and leave him to deal with Morton.

It was useless to try to continue the work of trimming the ship. In two crowds, opposite each other, the seamen and the landsmen gathered about the fight. Morton was strong and he would have thrown the Captain in the clinch, but Bradley got his knee into the man's stomach and forced him off. Both struck out in the breakaway, and both blows landed. The Captain's nose bled freely, but he had closed Morton's right eye. The helmsman craned his neck trying to see, and looked at the same time anxiously at the sky and the horizon. It was an ill time for such work, with the storm bearing down on us fast and the sea running higher with every swell, but it did not last long.

Morton, with one eye closed, rushed again to grapple, but the Captain was too quick. The schooner was heeled over far to starboard, so that the Captain stood higher than his antagonist. We had to grip hard with our feet to keep from sliding into the scuppers. Square in the jaw Bradley struck Morton, and he reeled backward and downward toward the rail. Even then there was fight left in him and he staggered back at the Captain. Just at the instant when Bradley landed again on Morton's chin the schooner heeled. It looked as though Morton had been lifted from his feet. In reality he was in the act of springing at Bradley. The blow sent him crashing against the low rail. Down it dipped into the water, while Morton was hanging limp over it and he was carried away into the sea.

That second everything was activity. Seamen without orders ran to lower a boat, but before ever they had reached the davits Captain Bradley had leaped to the rail and disappeared in the foamy water.

"Luff her!" I yelled. All hands stand by to man the boats. Johnson, lower away and pick them up."

Under my orders the men ran back to their work. There was no time to lose. Lightning split the clouds on to the westward, and thunder rumbling nearer with each flash told of the coming storm. Johnson told me afterward how he had found the Captain stupid with approaching suffocation, but clinging stubbornly to Morton, who was unconscious. The men dragged them into the boat and the Captain fainted. In his cabin we plied him with brandy and he came around little the worse.

That was the beginning of real trouble. There were no more back answers, but the men showed mighty plainly that they were working under compulsion and they had to be driven to every task.

The Captain and I were working over the chart in his cabin one night and figuring when we might hit the straits. We were about 50 degrees south and 65 west at the time and the winds were pretty favorable. The dingy lamp didn't give out a whole lot of light and I looked up for a moment to ease my eyes. There in the doorway stood a man, silent and motionless. It startled me, and when my eyes became adjusted to the new focus I saw it was Morton.

"What do you want?" I asked.

The Captain looked up at that and frowned when he saw who was there.

Morton did not say a word, but stalked rather clumsily into the cabin. His eye was still swollen and he did not have a very pretty face. He addressed all his remarks to the Captain.

"I don't like you," he said, "and I never will because you licked me, but you saved my life and I owe this to you. The men are going to do you."

The Captain rose abruptly.

"Do you threaten me?" he growled.

"No," said Morton. "I just came to warn you. They'd kill me if they knew I was doing it, but you saved my life. I'm peachin' on them, do you see? I'm comin' over to your side."

"Sit down," said Bradley as he resumed his seat. "Now tell us all about it."

"It's this way," said Morton. "The men say they've stood your bullyraggin' long enough. The right of that I ain't sayin', but no matter how I feel about it I'm bound to stick by you for savin' my life and I'll tell you all."

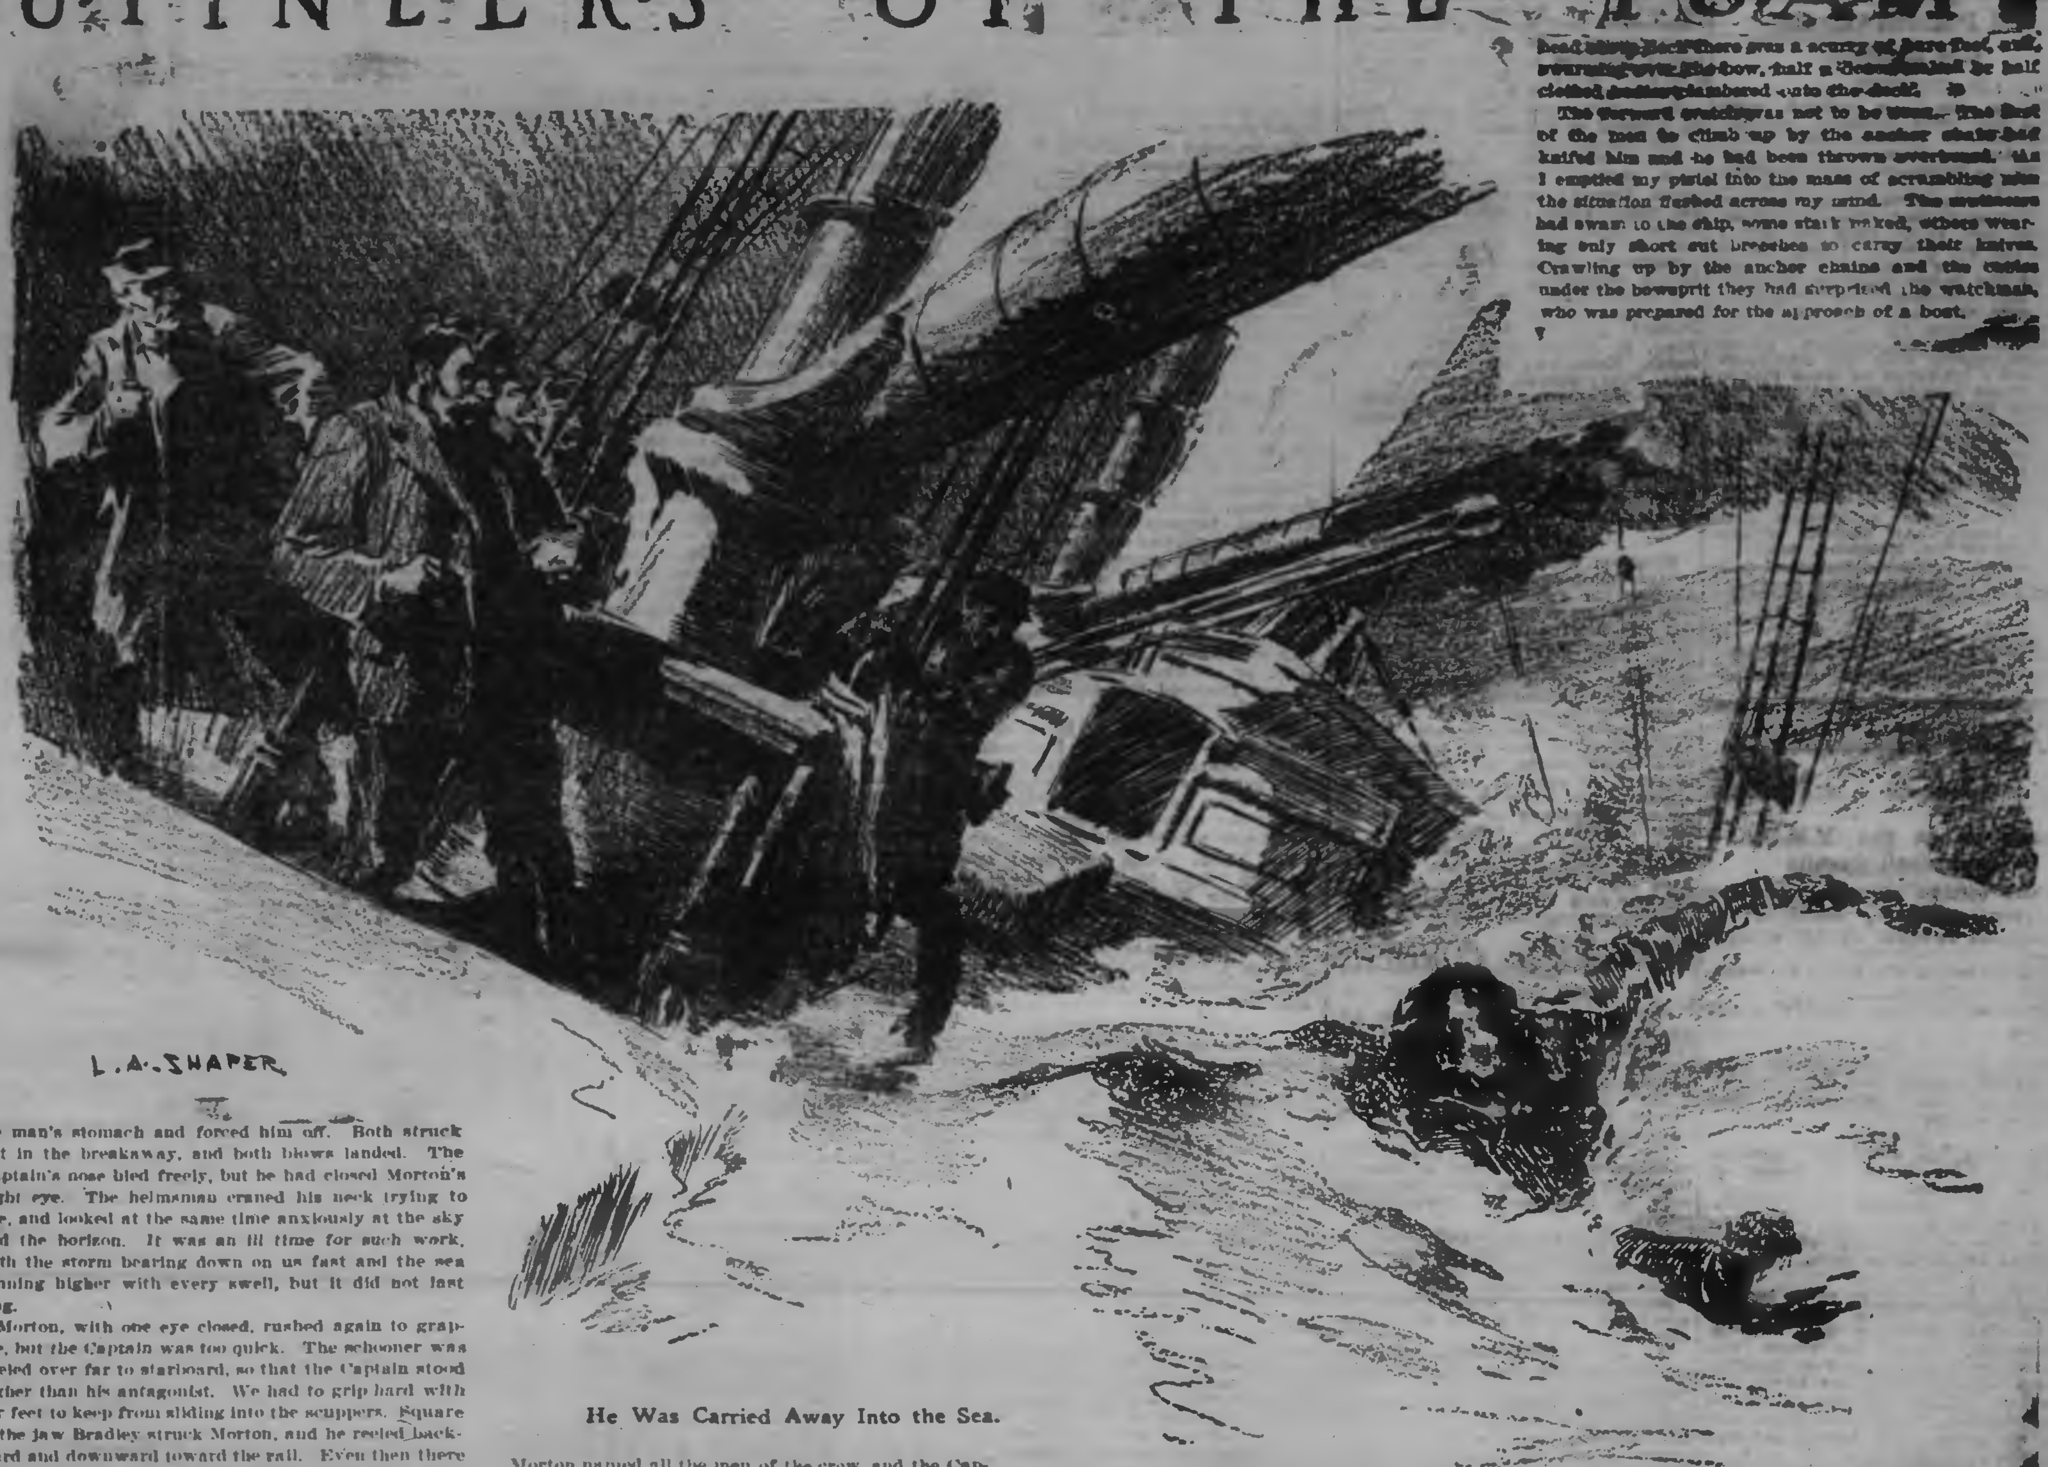
"What's their game?" asked Bradley.

"During the first watch to-night," said Morton, "all but one of the men on deck will be those in the plot. The one man who is sticking by you is to be thrown overboard. The hatches will be battened down, and without noise you and Mr. Morgan will be done away with. After that it will be easy to handle the rest of the crew."

"Who is going to navigate?" asked the Captain.

"Boltwood and Jameson," said Morton, naming two of the experienced seamen whom we had never held in suspicion.

"The lure of gold got them," sneered the Captain. "How do all the men stand?" he asked.



He Was Carried Away Into the Sea.

Morton named all the men of the crew, and the Captain checked off the names in the log-book. It seemed that of the experienced men only two had joined the mutineers. Of the landsmen two had refused to join the rebelling men, but had been intimidated into promising to remain silent. That made the division of the men fifteen against us and eight for us. The Captain and I brought the numbers to ten to fifteen. Captain Bradley smiled wickedly as he contemplated the situation. There was nothing of fear in his thoughts and he was more than satisfied with the number of men at his disposal. It appeared that none of the old seamen was aware of the plan save the two who had been instrumental in forming it.

"It reads like a book," said Bradley after Morton had finished telling his story, "but it won't work out quite that way."

"Mr. Morgan," he said after a moment of deep thought, "you know how to dispose the men. Go above and put an absolutely trustworthy man at the helm. The chart shows that we are just about due east of Cape San Francisco de Paula. It's a desert, barren stretch. Make for the cape, figuring to strike it at 50 degrees 12 minutes, south latitude. You are to attend to the navigating of this ship. I will be busy otherwise. Keep lookouts for land. You had better have one of the mutinous men in the tops all the while. He'll be out of trouble there."

Turning to Morton the Captain said:—

"I suppose the men believe you to be one of the dissatisfied ones?"

"Yes, sir," said Morton. "I'm double crossing them, but I owe it to you."

"Well," said Bradley, "go back to the fo'c's'l and spread the report that the water's gone bad. Make it out that there are only a couple of good casks left and that we're going ashore at a point I know of to store up with fresh water. Work it around some way to get the men to postpone the mutiny till after we have fresh water. They are all green hands and will be glad to replenish their supply before they throw me by the board."

"Yes, sir," said Morton, and ambled off.

Early in the morning we sighted land and a few hours later we were anchored in a little cove. Two of the boats were loaded with empty water casks and put off toward shore. The Captain had seen to it that the whaleboat we carried was manned by eleven of the landsmen and the two seamen who had joined them. The smaller boat contained Morton, the two men who had refused to join the mutiny, four of our own men and myself in command.

This left two of each party aboard the ship. Under orders from the Captain all but one of the hatches to the hold were battened down. While the boats were pulling for shore the Captain ordered the three men who were with him on board to go below to shift part of the cargo in preparation for the replacing of the water casks. There was only one hatch to be used. The three men started below, but the Captain silently restrained Sawyer, the loyal man, and let the other two go down the ladder first. As their heads disappeared Bradley slammed down the hatch cover and fastened the clamps. The seaman on deck was so surprised he did not move until the Captain had straightened himself and covered the man with a pistol.

Hurriedly he explained the situation and asked Sawyer how he stood. The man expressed his willingness to stand by us and said he was not at all dissatisfied with conditions on the ship.

My task was not so easy. The men in the whaleboat were mostly inexperienced and our boat naturally would have made much better time. I had to ease the men off continually and keep astern of the whaler. Finally we had dropped back about fifty yards. I was watching the Captain for a signal we had agreed upon. At last it came and I ordered the men to stop rowing.

"The Captain is signalling us to return," I said. "He will have orders."

Shouting through a megaphone, I hailed the other boat. I stopped and spoke to the seaman in charge, telling him to go to shore and wait there for us. He seemed doubtful, but had his men row away. Back alongside the ship the Captain shouted down to us that there was trouble in the hold. The banging of the prisoners there made this seem plausible enough and the men clambered on board. Morton and I went aboard last. He had a pistol and we ranged ourselves beside the Captain.

Frustrating the Plot.

"Now," said Bradley, addressing the men who were grouped by the rail waiting for orders, "you men are not armed and we three all carry pistols. If it had come to a fight you might overpower us, but you see there would be several of you lose your lives in the fracas. There is a mutiny in this ship."

The men began to remonstrate, but Bradley went on.

"I know that none of you men is aware of it. I believe you all to be true, but we want to have an understanding. Every man in that whaleboat is a mutineer and will not be allowed to return to this ship. If you want to join them you can take a boat and go ashore. If you prefer to remain here under my command all right."

The answer was a cheer. Meanwhile I had been watching the whaleboat. Several times it had come to a full stop and the coxswain had stood up looking at the ship. With the sound of the cheering the men in the boat seemed to realize that something had gone wrong with them and the boat was put about. Splashing and roiling, the men pulled for all they were worth in the direction of the ship while we on the deck watched them, confident that we had the upper hand.

When they were within a few rods of us the Captain mounted the rail, holding to one of the stays.

"Look here in the whaler!" he yelled. "You men are forbidden to board this ship. You are guilty of mutiny, and if you set foot on this deck you are pirates and I shall act accordingly."

He pointed his pistol menacingly at the men in the boat. Morton and I sprang to the rail flourishing our own weapons and warning the men away. Our own crew peeked over the side with no friendly expression on their faces.

For reply the men in the whaleboat cursed Morton in all the most picturesque oaths of the sea.

"That will do," shouted Bradley. "Clear out of here or we'll open fire on you. This ship will lie at anchor here for a few days. If you men choose to return and work under my orders, all right. If not you stay ashore and we continue our cruise."

At dinner Captain Bradley and I laid our plans. It was decided to give the men three days in which to come to our terms. At the expiration of that time we would up anchor and away. It was late when we finished discussing our plans and went above to see that all was well before turning in.

Half up the companionway, I heard a splash as of a heavy object falling overboard. It startled me a little and I sprang up the ladder. As I thrust my head [illegible] there was a scurry of bare feet, and, swarming over the bow, half a [illegible] by half clothed [illegible] clambered onto the deck.

The forward watch was not to be seen. The first of the men to climb up by the anchor chain had knifed him and he had been thrown overboard. As I emptied my pistol into the mass of scrambling men the situation flashed across my mind. The mutineers had swam to the ship, some stark naked, others wearing only short cut breeches to carry their knives. Crawling up by the anchor chains and the cables under the bowsprit they had surprised the watchman, who was prepared for the approach of a boat.

With the bang of the pistol the man who had been stationed aft ran toward me. The foremost of the attacking party hurled his knife with terrible precision and it clattered to the deck as I ducked my head.

Before our man had closed with his assailant the Captain was up the ladder behind me and I sprang to the deck. Men tumbled from below and swarmed over the deck. Two wet, naked fellows clinched with me and we rolled about the deck. They were unarmed and I managed to get my knife loose and soon had them rolling helpless.

Then followed a melée of plunging, kicking, fighting bodies struggling for life in the dark. How many of the mutineers had boarded us we could not tell. There must have been ten of them. In a lull after freeing myself from the first two men to attack me I loaded my pistol. Morton was fighting like a tiger with three of the rebels. One drew off a pace and ran in, clutching him about the legs, throwing him to the deck. I fired at the man who was sprawled out, and he rolled away from the mass. Then I ran in and clubbed one of the men who had Morton by the throat. With the first blow of the butt of my pistol on his skull he relaxed and lay helpless on the deck. I left Morton to deal with his remaining assailant and turned in time to engage a big man who was rushing at me with a knife. Jumping aside I tripped him and slashed with my own knife as he fell. It laid his arm open and he showed no further desire to fight.

Plunged Into the Sea.

I had just felled a man who attacked me with my bare fist when some one of the mutineers gave a yell and plunged overboard. In a panic they all followed him. Lanterns were brought in no time and we began to take account of things. Three of our men were wounded so that they could not rise from the deck. They were hurried below to receive what attention we could give them, and then we found that five of the enemy had been unable to leave the ship. Two of these had flesh wounds in the arm and were simply unable to swim. The other two were badly hurt and we carried them to the cabin. One afterward died, and we learned that one of the men who attempted to swim to shore never reached land.

The man who had been knifed and thrown overboard made the list of killed three. Serious wounds were sustained by five men of both sides, and there was scarcely a man who was not cut or battered more or less.

Next day we could see the enemy moving about on shore cooking and foraging for food, which they seemed to find. That night the watch was doubled and there was no trouble. Next day five men put off from shore in the whaleboat. With four men at the oars progress was slow and they often rested. Finally alongside, the man in the stern asked the captain's permission to go on board.

Bradley granted it and a short conference was held.

"I'll take you men back," said our captain, "if you promise to serve under my orders. You shall give up all arms. My own men will be armed as fully as our stock of weapons will permit. At 'Frisco you will all go ashore, provided your conduct is satisfactory until we reach that port. At the first offence every man of you will be put in irons and taken back to New York, where I will turn you over to the police for the murder of one man of this crew, for mutiny and for piracy."

The spokesman for the mutineers, I think his name was Thompson, agreed to the terms. The men were sick, he said, and most of them had wounds which needed treatment. They would be only too glad to return to the ship.

Well, the voyage was continued. At 'Frisco we discharged all the men who had taken part in the mutiny and recruited some able seamen. The return voyage was uneventful, even monotonous. Many a later voyage I made in the Foam with never a serious trouble, and I sailed under Captain Bradley until his death, in 1860, when I got a ship of my own.

"FEEBLE STOMACH

Causes Digestive Weakness and Poisons the Entire System.

"No one can have suffered more than I did with stomach trouble." writes Phil. E. Pascalar, well known at St. Andrews Corners. "My doctor told me my indigestion and sleeplessness were due to poisons in the blood. Certainly my condition was desperate, and it seemed from the despondent feelings that swept over me that I would lose my reason. I happened to read about Dr. Hamilton's Pills and bought five boxes from the druggist. Such body-cleansing pills I never used; they were mild and yet quite strong enough to drive all the humors out of the blood. My stomach gained strength rapidly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I improved so much that in eight weeks I could eat and digest all ordinary food. Depression and weariness passed away and I am, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills, enjoying robust good health."

No remedy for billiousness, indigestion, headache, sick stomach, or condition that compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse substitutes. Sold in boxes. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

The Intermediate Leaders will meet after class on Tuesday evening instead of Monday's as usual.

In the Intermediate class basketball league, the Dimes meet the Burglars and the Hustlers clash with the Shamrocks. Should the Dimes dispose of the Burglars, and the Hustlers defeat the Shamrocks, the Dimes and Hustlers will be tied for the league championship. Each team have only lost one game, each having defeated the other.

R.M.C. LOST THE FINAL

Petrolea Won the Junior Rugby Championship of Canada

Petrolea, Dec. 9.—The Petrolea junior O.R.F.U. Rugby team won the championship of Canada here to-day, when they swamped the R.M.C. second team by a score 27 to 12. The game was played on a mud-covered field, and the heavier Oil Town team had little trouble in breaking through the Cadet's line for substantial gains. Petrolea had much the best of the play in the early stages, but R.M.C. came strong in the last quarter, when they scored six points.

Petrolea secured 11 points in the first period, on two trys and a rouge, while the Cadets netted three single points. The locals scored 11 points in the second quarter also, and R.M.C. secured two single points, making the half-time score 22 to 5 in favor of Petrolea. There was no scoring in the third quarter. In the final period the Kingston boys woke up and a few minutes after play commenced they scored a touchdown on a fumble. It was converted neatly, bringing their score up to 11. Petrolea went over for another touchdown, and R.M.C. forced a rouge, making the final score 27 to 12 in favor of Petrolea.

The teams:

R.M.C.—Full-back, Barwis; left back, McGann; centre, Hutchison; right, Cronyn; quarter, Ross; middle wing, Fisher; wing, Lattimer; inside, Hall; wing, Patterson; outside, R. J. Leach; outside, Jondran; scrimmage, Vandersmuthson, Matthews, Dennistoun.

Petrolea—Full-back, Stokes; left back, Deacon; centre, Billings; right, Pollard; quarter, McGowan; middle wing, B. Webb; wing, W. Webb, inside, McMullen; wing, Rose; outside, Peat; outside, Crapper; scrimmage, Rainsberry, Thomas, Smith.

Referee—Harry Griffith. Umpire, W. J. Slee.

Dressing Cases

For Ladies or Gentlemen

Most everybody does more or less travelling these days, and the leather goods manufacturers are vieing with each other in getting up little travelling conveniences. We have just added a very nice, new stock of "Julian Sale" Leather Goods, and in choosing it Dressing Cases have had a special care.

The mention of them is a nice hint for a holiday, birthday, or wedding gift. Made in a number of different leathers, completely fitted, and the prices go between

OUTLAWED FOR THIS SEASON

Kingston Standard:—When spoken to this morning by the Standard regarding the rumor that McCammon and Davidson might return to Kingston and play with the Frontenacs this winter, Manager Jas. Sutherland said: "When Marchand, McCammon and Davidson left Kingston for other cities they automatically suspended themselves from playing in the O.H.A. under the residence rule. I cannot understand how the rumor, that they would return, was put into circulation, as none of the Frontenac executive has received any word from either McCammon or Davidson since their departure. I am pleased to see that these players intend to remain in the amateur ranks, and perhaps next year they may be back to their first love, at least I hope so."

Robbers Raid Pool Room.

New York, Dec. 11.—Five masked robbers burst into a pool room on Broadway, Brooklyn, late Saturday, and at the point of revolvers lined up forty men whose pockets they rifled in real wild west fashion.

The intrusion of the men was without warning, and their gunplay immediately caused a panic among the pool players. With guns in both hands the robbers soon had control of the situation and in less time than it takes to tell it, they had made the men give up watches and jewelry and money to the extent of $200 or more.

While the robbery was going on, one of the men in the room managed to escape and gave a police alarm which brought the reserves from a nearby station. The officers surrounded the building and caught two of the masked men as they were bolting out of the front door. Three of the robbers escaping by plunging headlong through the glass sash of the rear windows to the backyard.

Crushed Under Roof.

Hamilton, Dec. 11.—George McGregor, 61 years of age, and a lifetime resident of Watertown, was crushed by the cave in of the roof of a building on which he was working Saturday afternoon, and died in the city hospital here shortly after being admitted to the institution. He was a brother of Dr. McGregor of Waterdown.

A Lucky Discovery.

Since the appointment of Hon. W. T. White to the Ministry of Finance it has been asked if Sir John Thompson had any Parliamentary experience when made Minister of Justice by Sir John Macdonald, in September, 1885. He had, but not at Ottawa. He was first elected to the Nova Scotia Legislature at a bye-election in 1877, and re-elected by acclamation at the general election of 1878. The Liberal Government, under Hill, being defeated, a new one was formed under Holmes, with Thompson as Attorney-General. In May, 1882, he became Premier, was defeated at a general election in June and resigned in July. He was immediately made a judge of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.

In the autumn of 1885, Sir John Macdonald brought three new men into his Cabinet, Thomas White, Geo. E. Foster, and John S. D. Thompson. The two former were members of the House of Commons. Thompson was not a member and had not even met Sir John Macdonald. He was entirely unknown in a national sense and his appointment was a great surprise. Sir John Macdonald, however, needed a Nova Scotian successor for Sir Charles Tupper, and selected Thompson on his reputation. He afterwards said, "The great discovery of my life was the discovery of Thompson."

Brantford Children's Society.

Brantford, Dec. 11.—Lieutenant-Governor Gibson will formally open the new Children's Shelter in this city on Wednesday. The shelter was the gift of Mrs. Peter Wood to the Children's Aid Society, and is said to be the finest in Ontario. School children, cadets and scouts will assist at the opening.

The new two-storey house of Harold Creasser, Maple avenue, collapsed Friday night, and the structure was found on Saturday to be an entire wreck. A loss of about $1,000 falls on Contractor James Wright.

It is announced here that the new postoffice for Brantford will cost $200,000, and the Government will likely purchase the vacant city property on Dalhousie street as a site for the building.

Falls From Scaffold.

Hamilton, Dec. 11.—George Parkes, an Englishman, 28 years of age, who boarded at the Salvation Army metropole, fell from a scaffold on which he was working at the new public library building Saturday afternoon, and sustained fatal injuries. He was removed to the city hospital and died there at four o'clock yesterday morning.

PASSING OF MRS. DURAND

One of the Oldest and Most Estimable Residents of the City

In the person of the late Mrs. Martha Durand, who passed away on Sunday morning at 11.45, the city is left to regret the death of one of its oldest and most estimable residents. The hand of time had dealt kindly with the deceased, and although in her 85 year, she rejoiced in the full use of all her faculties up to the time of her death.

The late Mrs. Durand was a widow, her husband being the late James Durand, registrar of the County of Frontenac, who predeceased her in the year 1882. She was born in Montreal and was the youngest daughter of Thomas P. Attrill, of the Royal Navy. During her married life she dwelt in Kingston, where she was united in marriage to her late husband in 1809. Four years after the passing of her husband the late Mrs. Durand removed to Peterborough, and for twenty-one years resided at 271 Hunter street, the present home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Travers, later removing to 478 Water street, where her death occurred.

The late Mrs. Durand was one of those estimable ladies, in whom are found so many endearing qualities that go to make up a kind, loveable disposition. Up till fifteen or twenty years ago and as long as her vigor permitted, she was a zealous and active participant in the various philanthropic and uplifting enterprises connected with St. John's Anglican church, during the rectorship of Canon Beck. Her gentle and kindly character earned for her the name of "Peacemaker."

The only family survivors are two brothers, namely, Thomas P. Attrill, 478 Water street, city, and Edward J. Attrill, Melbourne, Australia.

The funeral will be private on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, to Little Lake cemetery. Canon Davidson, of St. John's, will officiate.

DR. BRERETON PASSED AWAY

He Was Stricken With Paralysis Last Wednesday

Word was received in the city today of the death at Bethany last night at eight o'clock, of Dr. T. A. G. Brereton. He had been stricken with paralysis last Wednesday, and since then his case had been critical. His brother, Dr. Wm. Brereton was in attendance. His widow, three sons, and one daughter survive. The sons are Fred of Toronto, Charles of the Medical College, London, Ont.; and Frank at home. His daughter, Miss Lillian Brereton resides at home.

Dr. Brereton had practiced in Bethany for many years.

SECRETS OF FILMS.

How the Most Thrilling and Amusing Photographs Are Made.

Every one who has visited a moving picture exhibition is familiar with the ease with which moving picture heroes and heroines run nimbly up the sides of houses when pursued, and no doubt every one has wondered at one time or another how the feat is accomplished.

There are two ways of doing this. One is to have the person posing for the picture drawn up the side of a real house by means of a rope, moving his feet all the time, as though he were walking, the rope being afterward painted out on the film. The other and more common way is to make the film in a specially prepared studio. On the floor a canvas picture of the house in question is spread, and the man pursued just scrambles along it on his hands and knees.

The effect of inanimate objects moving themselves, such as coffee-pots pouring themselves, chairs and similar objects jumping up in the air, chimney pots falling off and flying back into position and typewriters working of their own accord, is produced by means of wires which are either too fine to appear in the picture or if they show are readily painted out.

Railroad collisions are frequent enough, one would imagine, to enable the moving picture concerns to obtain genuine pictures of them, but the thrilling pictures seen on the moving picture screen are obtained in a far less realistic manner. Miniature trains, constructed and staged with great fidelity to actual conditions and which run automatically, are used for the purpose and serve very well. Sometimes an auto is made to collide at a crossing with a locomotive in a similar manner.

The familiar film showing a painter stenciling a ceiling, to which he appears to be clinging in a most unnatural manner while an assistant is holding a pot of paint up to him, never fails to create wonderment among the uninitiated, but is easily made. The pictures are taken in a make-believe room, the walls of which are painted upside down on a four-sided screen and the floor of which is painted white to resemble a ceiling. To a rafter across the top a man is suspended by his feet and holds an empty paint pot toward the floor, upon which the man posing as the painter kneels. The latter holds a stencil to the floor with one hand and with the other dips a brush in the paint pot which the suspended man holds toward him. After the pictures are taken the films are run off upside down and give the topsy turvy effect desired.

In a similar way the film which shows a man holding himself to the ceiling by the top of his head and the palms of his hands is made, the man simply standing on his head. To make the picture realistic tables and chairs are attached to the make-believe room, and an elaborate chandelier is attached to the floor so that when the film is reversed the room will appear to be fully furnished and equipped.

In two out of three moving pictures there is a pursuit race in which men, women and children are made to scamper over hill and dale at phenomenal speed, horses and wagons and automobiles tear pell-mell through the streets, knocking over fat policemen in their path, and everything moves with a hustle and bustle that is little short of amazing. It is needless to say that neither the animals nor the inanimate subjects of the pictures ever actually covered space at the rate indicated. When the pictures are taken the persons posing for them may move as leisurely as they please, the effect of speed being produced by cutting out numerous sections of the film.

The Czar's Treasures.

The Hermitage in St. Petersburg, where are stored the artistic treasures of the Russian Imperial family, possesses some objects of priceless value. These have just been catalogued by Count Ivan Tolstoy. In the collection are to be found some wonderful cabinets of the epoch of Catherine II. Two superb vases in bronze, which adorned the bed chamber of Marie Antoinette. Works of beauty are the lockets of Potemkin and Souwarow, in form of lockets adorned with diamonds and other precious stones. The gallery of porcelain contains a remarkable service of 1,100 pieces of the time of Catherine II. The smallest plate, a Paris contemporary informs us, cost $1,200. When the great fire occurred at the Winter Palace 80 of these precious plates were stolen. Seventy were afterwards recovered, but ten are still missing, and it is suggested that they may be found in some private collections.

Type Establishment In the East.

The leading type foundry of the Far East is located at Tokio, Japan, and produces two series of Chinese type. The first series, consisting of 5,000 characters, has in combinations a total of 150,000 separate pieces of type. The second series has 3,000 characters and 100,000 combinations.

The producers of the type publish a catalogue in which each character is printed, and by the side of this character is given the number of combinations in which it is used. This foundry also produces Japanese characters, the Hirakana in 152 characters and 30,000 combinations and the Katakana in 82 characters and 19,000 combinations.

Hoodoo Ring.

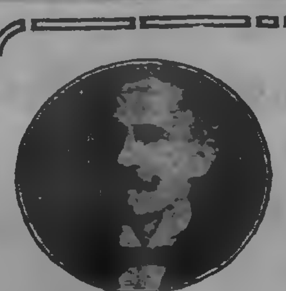
The head of the Paris morgue is responsible for the statement—and it is vouched for by the late chief of the Paris police—that five times within his experience dead bodies brought to the morgue were found to be wearing a ring of Oriental make, and bearing these words in Oriental characters: "May whosoever wears this ring die a miserable death."

Her Deadly Weapon.

The Teacher (reading)—"Then the girl warrior faced the mocking foe and unsheathed her deadly weapon." What does that mean, children? Well, Ethel?

Ethel—Please, ma'am, I think it means she stuck out her tongue.

Seven million dollars will be required for the completion of the various civic works now in hand at Vancouver.



QUESTIONS ANSWERED

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q—Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?

A—Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day, only old persons or those near sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q—Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?

A—Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

Q—Can my headache be relieved with Glasses?

A—A personal visit will be necessary. LET US TALK IT OVER.

THE DAILY REVIEW

COAL

VOL. LXIII., No. 137. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1911 TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

THE WHITNEY GOVERNMENT RETURNED TO POWER WITH SWEEPING MAJORITY

ELECTIONS CAUSED LITTLE EXCITEMENT; RESULT WAS A FOREGONE CONCLUSION

Government Will Have a Majority of Sixty in New House—Clean Sweep in Toronto.

Every Member of Whitney Cabinet Returned With a Large Majority.

Toronto, Dec. 12.—Sir James Whitney has gone back to power with a majority big enough for all "practical purposes," in fact, a lot of his friends believe it is still too large, but a great many of them did not have the heart to help reduce it.

The Prime Minister will have a majority of 60, whereas, in the last House the Conservative majority was 68 including the Speaker.

At midnight, with the returns practically complete from every part of Ontario, the standing of the parties was:

Conservatives 83
Liberals 22
Laborite 1

The Conservatives made 7 gains, including North Renfrew, which went by acclamation. The Liberals made 11 gains.

Some of the Conservative members of the last Parliament who went down to defeat were: Phil Bowyer in East Kent, where local considerations entered largely into the fight; Charles Calder in South Ontario; A. Aubin in Sturgeon Falls, who was opposed by a very strong and popular man, Mageau, and where patronage did Mr. Aubin more harm than good; and Col. Craig in East Wellington, a valuable man.

On the other hand the Liberals lost such stalwarts as James McEwing, who was one of the strongest characters on the left hand side of the House; Daniel Reed, South Wentworth, and Valentine Stock of South Perth.

The bilingual question did not help the Conservatives much. In the French counties they lost Glengarry (formerly Scotch), Prescott and Sturgeon Falls, while on the other hand the Conservatives won in the French counties, Stormont and East Ottawa; the latter could be accounted for by the candidature of L. J. Kehoe, an Irish Roman Catholic, from whom the French expected little.

The majority of Leader Rowell is 58. This is a little better than the late member, Dr. Andrew McKay did in 1908.

The ex-Liberal leader, Mr. A. G. MacKay has over 700 majority over his old-time opponent, G. M. Boyd. This should be specially gratifying to his personal friends who believe that his character was traduced without just cause. For this litigation it is said, Mr. MacKay holds the Conservatives of North Grey blameless. It seems to be a personal affair wholly apart from political considerations. At any rate Mr. MacKay has got his vindication.

SIR JAMES PLINY WHITNEY

The man who will continue to lead the Ontario Government, the people having given their approval in no uncertain manner.

Owing to some of the northern sections being almost inaccessible returns were unavailable last night, and it is possible that there may be a few changes in the summary given this morning when complete figures are in. For instance, at Sturgeon Falls, the election of Mr. Mageau, Liberal, is expected by a majority close to 100. A later despatch from North Bay states that the election is close.

The Conservative gains are: Stormont, East Ottawa, West Wellington, East Simcoe, South Wentworth, South Perth, and North Renfrew (acc.).—Total 7.

The Liberal gains are: Glengarry, South Ontario, Monck, North Wentworth, Sturgeon Falls; North Norfolk, Prescott, East Middlesex, East Kent, Centre Bruce, and East Wellington.—Total 11.

The old members defeated are—Liberals: James McEwing, West Wellington; Daniel Reed, South Wentworth; Valentine Stock, South Perth. Conservatives: Charles Calder, South Ontario; James A. Ross, Monck; A. A. Aubin, Sturgeon Falls; George Neely, East Middlesex; P. H. Bowyer, East Kent; Col. Craig, East Wellington.

The new members in the House are—Conservatives: W. D. Black, Addington; J. W. Westbrook, North Brant; C. W. Jarvis, Fort William; A. M. Rankin, Frontenac; Sandy Grant, East Hasting; Robert Cook, North Hastings; Dr. A. E. Ross, Kingston; N. Champagne, East Ottawa; J. A. Ellis, West Ottawa; J. Benneweiss, South Perth; E. A. Peck, West Peterboro; Don. Hogarth, Port Arthur; E. A. Dunlop, North Renfrew; J. J. Hartt, East Simcoe; J. C. Mulligan, Stormont; C. McCrae, Sudbury; E. W. J. Owens, South Toronto; Dr. Vrooman, West Victoria; Col. Schofield, South Wellington; W. C. Chambers, West Welington; J. T. Regan, South Wentworth. Liberals: W. McDonald, Centre Bruce; H. Munro, Glengarry; Chris. Kohler, Haldimand; C. Ferguson, East Kent; R. Sutherland, East Middlesex; Thomas Marshall, Monck; Col. Atkinson, North Norfolk;

BIG FIRE AT OWEN SOUND

Flames Destroy Two Big Canadian Pacific Elevators.

A Million Dollars Is the Estimated Loss In One of the Most Serious Conflagrations In History of Port—Dropping a Cigarette Butt on Dock Is Blamed—887,000 bushels of Grain Are Lost.

Owen Sound, Dec. 12.—One of the most devastating fires that has ever visited the port of Owen Sound, took place last evening, resulting in the total destruction of the two big C.P.R. elevators with their contents, consisting of 887,000 bushels of grain, of which 129,000 bushels was wheat, the balance being principally oats and barley. The loss will run over one million dollars.

The fire, which broke out at 8.45 o'clock, is believed to have been caused by the dropping of a cigar or cigarette butt on the dock close to the elevating leg of No. 1, the southern of the two elevators. The capacity of this elevator is 250,000 bushels, and that of No. 2, the northern elevator, 800,000 bushels. It was discovered shortly after by Harbormaster Maclean and Wm. Hartford, who promptly turned in an alarm.

Like a lightning flash the flames sprang up the main elevating leg, which furnished a great draft for their progress, and quickly spread over the entire building.

Then by means of the grain-conveyor, they spread to the other elevator, 100 feet to the north, which was soon enveloped in flames.

This disastrous fire has some local interest at Peterborough, for it is known that the Quaker Oats Co., of this city, had a quantity of grains stored in the elevators en route. The loss is fully covered by insurance and will not in any way interfere with operations of the company. The very large elevators and storage capacity at the Peterborough mill provides a capable reserve and besides the company has at other points large supplies readily available.

KING'S GIFT IS ANNOUNCED

Capital of India Removed From Calcutta to Delhi

Their Majesties Proclaimed Emperor and Empress

One Hundred Political Prisoners Released

Special to the Review.

Delhi, Dec. 12—Amid scenes of unsurpassed grandeur, the King and Queen were to-day formally proclaimed Emperor and Empress of India. The King's gift as made known to-day consists of a million and a half dollars for popular education, the release of a hundred political prisoners and debtors, whose imprisonment was due to poverty, and half a month's extra pay for every soldier in India. His Majesty also made the unexpected announcement that India's capital would be removed from Calcutta to Delhi in recognition of the magnificent Durbar reception.

BOTH PETERBOROS WITH THE GOVERNMENT; PECK WINS WEST AND THOMPSON THE EAST

City Gave Mr. Peck Majority of 762—His Total Was 633.

East Peterboro Returned Their Member With an Increased Majority.

Well, it's all over but the receiving of the benefits derived from sending such good men as E. A. Peck and Jas. Thompson to join Premier Whitney in the House at Toronto.

Mr. Peck rolled up the handsome majority of 633 in all or 762 in the city. The first figures do not include the vote at Cavendish, the result being unobtainable.

Only at one polling sub-division in the city did Mr. Hall get a majority and at that it was but three. It was a clean cut victory for the Conservative candidate, and who shall say that it was not deserved.

Contrary to expectations, the vote polled was a good one, despite the lack of any great interest and also the disagreeable weather. Some thirty-five hundred electors of the city went to the polls and cast their ballots yesterday. What further evidence is needed to make it plain that the electors of Peterborough know their own minds and will insist that the men to represent them in the administration of the province, must possess those qualifications which the member-elect is known to and does possess.

The result, so far as Mr. Hall's candidature is concerned is a vindication of the fact that the candidate who issues appeals calculated to set one class against another, invariably fails of its object, as it deserves to fail. During the campaign the literature issued by and for Mr. Hall, teemed with sophistry addressed to the workingman. The employer was denounced as a morbid, grasping, avaricious monopolist, depriving the employee of his rights. The sole idea was to influence the workman against his employer, and to accept Mr. Hall as a new found champion of labor. This failed, and deservedly too. The last man to appeal to workmen for favors or assistance is Mr. Hall. The strength of the advertising of his promises and protections was devoted to this one object. It would now seem that his candidature was never taken seriously. Taken altogether it would appear that the Reform machine has been badly wrecked and might as well be dismantled. Mr. Peck ran a campaign of moderate and sensible appeal for support on fair and decent grounds. This is characteristic of Mr. Peck as a citizen and professional man, standing high in the community in all regards. His many friends believed that these attributes would count with the electorate, and well they did. His campaign illustrates the strength of these propositions. "Make yourself strong, let the other fellow alone." This was appreciated and commented on and brought to his service more and votes. What value is a man's boyhood and manhood in a community where he earns respect and confidence if it is denied recognition? In this respect Mr. Peck was not denied. The friends who rallied around his cause are deserving of praise for much steady helpful work. They worked confident in a candidate against whom

A DECISIVE VICTORY

The return of the Whitney Government to power again by such a sweeping majority is ample evidence of the fact that the people of Ontario are well satisfied with the manner in which Sir James and his colleagues have conducted the affairs of the Province during their two terms of office and well may they be as the government, over which Sir James has presided has been one of progress and they have endeavored to give a square deal to all. The people like a man who is not only honest in his convictions, but strong enough at all times to come out flat-footed in his utterances on any public question and no one can charge Sir James with being backward on that score. The result of yesterday's election was a splendid tribute to Ontario's Premier.

Sir James has been loyal to the people and fearlessly outspoken as to his stand on every question that came up. His pledges were made in unequivocal language and they were redeemed in overflowing measure. Many much-needed reforms have been carried out under his regime and many projects undertaken which mean much to Ontario.

It was generally conceded that the Whitney Government would be returned to power, and the average man, Liberal or Conservative, was at loss to find a reason why a government, that had given them such a splendid administration of affairs of the province, should not again be at the helm. Liberal spellbinders tried in every way possible to discredit the excellent record of the government, but how utterly these attempts failed is shown in yesterday's results. The campaign of cant and rant, such as was conducted by the Liberals of Ontario, would have but one answer from the intelligent electors of Ontario.

Sir James Whitney has now full warrant for going forward along the lines of the progressive policy upon which he has advanced so far and so satisfactorily. The people have responded to his request for endorsation of his projects in no uncertain way and he will continue to promote the general progress of this great province. Never were government and people more of one mind than are the government and people of Ontario to-day.

MR. EDWARD ARMOUR PECK
He fought a good clean fight and won on his merits. The city went strong for him.

Catarrh and Bronchitis

The Bane of Thousands, and has Hitherto Baffled the Skill of Medical Science.

Catarrhozone

Dry air treatment is the one treatment that will cure these diseases.

What stomach medicine has ever been known to cure Catarrh or Bronchitis?

Catarrhozone is not a stomach medicine, but an air medicine, that carries to the remotest parts of the throat, lungs, and air cells little drops of healing so curative that whenever it touches germ life it kills and eradicates them from the system.

Thousands of doctors and patients have been disappointed by using stomach medicines for coughs and colds. Have you not found it a rather roundabout way to reach the diseased portion of the throat and lungs?

Why not use Catarrhozone, which is breathed to the very root of the disease and heals so quickly and perfectly that every spot is rebuilt with new healthy tissue?

Catarrhozone is the only medicine that will cure. Thousands have testified.

Think for a moment. Is it not sense? Little drops of healing—the air carries them just where disease exists. That is why

EDITORIAL NOTES

But now that the election is over, get busy on that Xmas shopping.

Ontario has another four years of clean and progressive government ahead.

Sir James certainly has a peck of supporters—including our own worthy Mr. Peck, M.L.A.

Ex-Leader MacKay must be enjoying a good laugh at the expense of our friend Rowell.

A misfit policy is as dangerous to a statesman as a misfit dress to a woman. Consult Mr. Rowell about this.

Hon. Mackenzie King, "the boy orator," will probably now become advance agent for some other side show.

Ontario's premier is 68 years of age, but wears his years lightly, and is good to lead the government for several terms yet, thank you!

Peterborough West did herself proud in sending such a worthy representative to support the best government Ontario has ever had.

Ottawa has four Conservative members—two in the Federal Parliament and two in the Ontario Legislature. And the home of Sir Wilfrid too!

They say "an ocean of hope springs from a single drop of sympathy." Someone might extend that wee 'drop' to the Liberals of Ontario.

"Defeat may be more glorious than victory," as the old proverb says, but you would have a busy time persuading our Liberal friends along this line just now.

Rev. Editor Macdonald, of the Toronto Globe, will now proceed to explain that the people of Ontario were hypnotized into voting for Sir James—yes, by his splendid record.

Hon. J. J. Foy was bitterly assailed by the Rowell press, but his faithful performance in the office of Attorney-General, again won him a decisive majority in North Toronto.

What an affecting scene when Sir Wilfrid and Leader-of-the-Opposition Rowell meet and fall on each other's [illegible] and console on the rude way Ontario has treated them.

There was something really pathetic about the appeal of the Liberals before the election: "We know we are beaten, but help us to make a strong opposition."

The electors of Ontario keep themselves well informed on matters of politics and Mr Rowell's campaign of cant and rant would be the very last to appeal to them, as was amply evidenced in the voting yesterday.

Rowell dodged every issue of moment to the people of the Province, while Sir James left no doubt as to where he stood. The people like a man strong enough to come out flat-footed on the issues of the day.

It was anything to get into office with the Liberals, but they have many moons ahead in opposition, thanks to the good judgment of the Ontario electors, who could not be stampeded by opposition canards.

No government ever deserved better the great testimonial of popular confidence than that which was accorded to the Whitney Administration yesterday. Its record has been one of faithful service and achieved reforms.

So long as Sir James Whitney is at the helm in Provincial affairs the people know they are sure of clean government. The entire absence of scandals during the past seven years warranted their faith in the Premier yesterday.

Shop early is good advice, but still better is the advice to spread your Christmas shopping over two or three weeks. The gifts you will eventually buy are now on sale, and probably they are cheaper to-day than they will be on Christmas Eve.

A FAST TRAIN IN JAPAN.

The Railroad Thought It a Good Thing, but the Commuters Kicked.

"It's bromidic to say the Japs are peculiar little people," said a traveler from the far east, "but they are just the same. There used to be a commuters' train running between Yokohama and Tokyo. The journey took an hour and the fare was a yen, or 50 cents. You know, a lot of business men whose offices are in Yokohama have their residences in the capital and journey back and forth as people do between Greenwich and New York.

"Somebody in the operating department of the railroad had been inquiring into suburban traffic about New York and discovered that in some instances the commuters here had the benefit of an express service in the mornings and afternoons, so when he got back home he was full of ideas for improving the local service.

"This progressive chap discovered that he could cut down the time considerably on a run from Tokyo to Yokohama by putting on a through train, and he installed such a one which made the journey in thirty-five or forty minutes. The reformer rubbed his hands in satisfaction after the first day's operation of the new service and prepared to be showered with congratulations from the business men he had intended to benefit.

"They never came. Instead the offices of the road were showered with the demands that the fare between Yokohama and Tokyo be reduced. 'We have been traveling for a whole hour for a yen,' said many of the letters that came in. 'We now travel only thirty-five minutes and still we have to pay a yen.'"—New York Sun.

Welfare of the Child.

All the societies interested in the proposed child's welfare exhibition to be held in Montreal in 1912—probably a dozen or more, were represented in the delegation which met Sir Lomer Gouin a few days ago, and obtained from him a promise that the question of granting the project a Government grant would be brought before the Provincial Cabinet.

Dr. Adami, speaking as the head of the deputation, told the Premier that in all great cities the conditions of existence were unfavorable to the healthy development of the child, and consequently to the attainment of active adult life. In Montreal the problems were quite as pressing as in the larger cities. In infant mortality Montreal headed the list for the large cities of North America.

SHE WAS SURPRISED

When Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Cured her Chronic Liver Complaint

Mrs. R. [illegible], of Winnipeg, Man., tells an interesting story of relief from almost intolerable sufferings:

"I can hardly tell you how great my sufferings have been. Chronic liver complaint accompanied by biliousness were a daily source of trial to me. Every day I experienced the sickening effects of these ailments. I longed for some medicine that should permanently drive them away.

Hearing of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, I thought they were worthy of a trial. My surprise was indeed great. From the very first I experienced relief. Continuing with them I found my troubles were slowly but surely leaving me, and before long I once more knew what it was to be free from the harassing effects of the ailments that had long sickened and weakened me. So great is my faith in Dr. Morse's Indian Pills that I shall never on any account be without them."

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

Frost in the foundation caused the collapsing of a new two-storey house at Brantford. Loss $1,500.

George Keriages, a Greek, formerly of Toronto, was fined $50 at Windsor for having assisted two friends to evade the immigration officials.

Arthur deB. Tremaine, chief accountant and paymaster of the Nova Scotia Marine and Fisheries Agency, has received the appointment of inspector of agencies for Canada.

Chief Justice Wettmore of Regina is to retire March 1st, on full pay, having completed 25 years continuous service. It is understood he will be succeeded by F. W. G. Haultain, leader of the Saskatchewan Conservatives.

The murdered body of I. S. Vogel, a wealthy dealer in jewelry, was found in the engine room of a New York loft building. The condition of the room indicated that Vogel had made a desperate fight for life.

Sir Joseph D. Hooker, the eminent surgeon and naturalist, died yesterday in London. He was born in 1817, and was educated at the high school and University of Glasgow, where he took his medical degree in 1839.

Owing to a score of cases of diphtheria in Lindsay, the schools, churches and other public places have been ordered closed until Jan. 1.

The condition of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, who was operated upon for appendicitis a few days ago in Ceylon, is still considered serious.

A sentence of fifteen months in jail was imposed by the Criminal Court of Cologne, Germany, yesterday on a waiter named Friedrichs, who was convicted of extensive thefts of travelers' checks and baggage from tourists there, as well as in London.

Germany's Spy Scare.

London, Dec. 12.—A special Berlin despatch to The Daily Express indicates that the trial of Max Schultz at Leipsic, on the charge of obtaining information about German land and naval armaments for England, has caused a general scare throughout Germany.

The German newspapers bitterly comment on the liberal use of English gold to obtain coveted information.

It is reported that Germany has decided to establish a naval base at Emden, on the North Sea, and will build a harbor there for battleships and cruisers. It is said also that Germany is determined to establish a permanent garrison of 12,000 troops at Varley.

The Express correspondent says the German press is jubilant because, in the policy of fighting fire with fire, Germany has been able to obtain important information, but vigorously protests against members of English society taking part in spying, because their love of sport impels them to court danger.

The spy mania, however, is not confined to Germany; a constant watch is being kept by the British authorities on Germans in important English garrison towns and naval ports.

Darrow Denies Bribery.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12.—"Lockwood's testimony does not bring Clarence S. Darrow legally into the case," said District Attorney Fredericks. "It is hearsay and nothing more. We will proceed with prosecutions only on evidence which will stand in court of law."

"Will you say if you have such evidence?" he was asked.

"We have not," he said, and then corrected himself. "We have other evidence, but it is not sufficient," he said.

When apprised of the testimony in the Franklin hearing, Attorney Darrow said. "Whatever Franklin and Lockwood said, I know nothing at all about it. I had nothing to do with bribing any jurors in any way."

E. L. Woodward bought 150 export steers, 1175 to 1250 lbs. each, at $6.15 to $6.30 per cwt.

Butchers.

Xmas cattle sold from $6 to $7, good, $5.75 to $6, medium, $5.25 to $5.70; common, $4.50 to $5.15; cows, $3 to $5.25; canners, $1.75 to $2.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Milkers and springers sold at steady prices at $40 to $75 each.

Veal Calves.

Veal calves sold from $4 to $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep sold from $3 to $3.75 with a few at $4; lambs, at $5 to $5.85.

Hogs.

Hogs, fed and watered, sold at $6.60 per cwt.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 11.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 9, were 1800 cattle, 1900 sheep and lambs, 2400 hogs and 250 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale were 1000 cattle 600 sheep and lambs, 1100 hogs and 100 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was larger than a week ago by 200 to 300 head, yet a stronger feeling prevailed in the market and prices for butchers' stock showed an advance of 25c per cwt. This was attributed to the scarcity of really choice steers and heifers, there being none on the market. There was a good enquiry and $6.25 to $6.30 per cwt. could have been easily realized for the same, as $5.85 to $6 was paid for good cattle and the supply of this grade was none too plentiful.

Common and inferior stock was abundant and prices for such were easier, with the demand limited, owing to the unfavorable weather prevailing for this season of the year and the fact that canners are well supplied for the present.

There were a few very good bulls on the market, which weighed from 1500 to 1800 lbs., and they sold for $4.75 to $5, and lighter ones of good quality brought $4.75 to $4.50. A feature of the trade was the demand from Quebec, which bought several carloads of cows and bulls, mixed, at $4.50 to $4.75 per cwt. The gathering of buyers was fairly large and, considering the unseasonable weather a very fair trade was done.

A strong feeling continues to prevail in the market for hogs and prices since this day week show a further advance of 5c to 15c per cwt., on account of the small supplies coming forward, for which the demand is good from packers and higher prices are anticipated in the near future. Sales of selected lots were made at $6.65 to $6.80 per cwt., weighed off the cars, and heavy fat and sows sold for $1 per cwt. less.

There was no important change in the condition of the market for sheep or lambs, the undertone being strong on account of the continued good demand from butchers for supplies and the falling off in receipts. Calves of good to choice quality were very scarce, for which there is considerable enquiry and good prices would be paid for the same.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.25 to $6.35; medium, $5 to $6; common, $3.50 to $4.50; canners, $1.50 to $3; choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50, medium, $4.50 to $5; bulls, $4.25 to $5. Milkers, choice, each, $75; common and medium, $50 to $60; springers, $30 to $40. Sheep, ewes, $3.75 to $4; bucks and culls, $3.25 to $3.50; lambs, $5.75 to $6. Hogs, f.o.b., $6.65 to $6.80. Calves, $3 to $13.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Dec. 11.—Cattle—Receipts, 5700 head, fairly active; good to choice 10c to 25c higher; common to medium steady; prime steers, $8 to $8.50; shipping, $6.25 to $7.50; butchers, $5 to $7; heifers, $3.75 to $6.50; cows, $2 to $5.60; bulls, $4.50 to $5.60; stockers and feeders, $3.50 to $5.15; stock heifers, $3.25 to $3.50, fresh cows and springers steady to easy, $30 to $60.

Hogs—Receipts, 19,500; fairly active and steady; heavy and mixed, $6.35 to $6.40; yorkers, $5.80 to $6.35; pigs, $5.75 to $6; roughs, $5.65 to $5.75, stags, $4.50 to $5.50, dairies, $6 to $6.35.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 25,000, sheep fairly active and steady; lambs slow, 15c lower; lambs, $3.50 to $6.25, a few, $6.40; yearlings, $4.50 to $5; wethers, $3.75 to $4; ewes, $3.25 to $3.50; sheep, mixed, $1.50 to $3.60.

SHOW PLACE IS GONE

OTTAWA FINDS RIDEAU HALL NOW OUT OF BOUNDS.

Policemen Bar the Entrances to the Grounds Where Once the Public Walked and Played at Their Own Sweet Will—Quaint Old Building Is a Rambling Place and Is the Work of Many Vice-Regal Hands.

Ottawans in general are now beginning to realize the effects of having a prince of the blood as Governor-General of Canada, and some surprises have come upon them.

Rideau Hall has up till the present been a sort of show place of the capital and the footpaths regarded as semi-public highways. Now, however, citizens and others have discovered somewhat abruptly that they can no longer wander at will in the domain apportioned to His Royal Highness. Fields on the estate which have always been used by football and other clubs, with easily gained and sometimes unasked permission, are absolutely closed; by-paths which led across the grounds are rigidly forbidden; twelve uniformed policemen and a host of plain clothesmen order all pedestrians off the premises by day and eight policemen do the same at night. Every person is met at any corner by the eagle eye of the custodians of His Royal Highness' welfare, with enquiries as to their business. Few of the old democratic customs are allowed to prevail, and those who now reach the very portals of government have first to show solid reason why.

It was not like this in the olden times, and there are heart burnings in consequence. Everybody now has to march up in the middle of the road to the main entrance, and may be turned back soon after passing the entrance gates. A few days ago two unsophistocated newspapermen, representing Winnipeg papers, went to Rideau Hall with the intention of gathering news items of an indefinite sort, and were met on the roadway by the custodians of the law, who asked their business. Failing any substantial reason for being on the premises, they were asked if they did not know they were on private grounds, and as they were not aware of it before, they had perforce to leave the premises—in which they were not alone, for many an honest citizen and visitor has already received a surprise of a like nature.

Rideau Hall seems rather a curious building for its purpose until you realize that the purpose has made the building what it is—a plain, large, rambling structure of quite nondescript architecture. It is no more incongruous than one might expect, considering that every Governor-General since its first official tenant, Lord Monck, has left his mark upon it, enlarging and adapting the house to his own particular requirements.

Still further alterations, we hear, have lately been made, so as to fit it for the occupation of its new master—the first Governor-General of the Dominion connected with our royal house since the time of the Marquis of Lorne and his Vice-Reine, the Princess Louise. The place is said to be very comfortable, and it is, of course, permeated with countless Canadian-British associations and memories mostly pleasant.

Some idea of the gradual expansion of Rideau Hall may be gathered from the fact that the original structure consisted of only eleven rooms, exclusive of those in the basement and attic. To-day there are over a hundred, not to speak of numerous buildings in the grounds.

The original house was built in 1838 by Thomas McKay, a wealthy and hospitable Scots-Canadian—contractor and member of Parliament—for his own residence. It was then playfully called "McKay's Castle," and every one of any note who passed through Ottawa made a point of visiting the host and his wife and large, merry family, with whom entertaining was a cult. The portico is as McKay left it; the round tower also.

Like all good Scots, the McKays took an immense interest in gardening. It is said, indeed, that the grounds have never since been kept so well as in their time. Mr. McKay trimmed the first cedar hedge ever grown in Ottawa, and every single tree in the avenue was planted by his wife.

Although the grounds may not have been perfectly kept in the days that have followed the Government's taking over of the lease from Mr McKay in 1865, they certainly have been vastly improved in various ways by successive Governor-Generals. Thus it was Princess Louise who cut the second avenue through the woods known as "The Princess' Vista," whence you get a delightful view of Ottawa and the mountains beyond. The finest cricket ground in all Canada, dedicated for ever to the use of the Ottawa Cricket Club, is located in a field in front of Rideau Hall.

Added buildings include the lodge, a curious octagonal building of yellow brick, with, as its vis-a-vis, Crichton Lodge, red-roofed and gabled. This used to be the private secretary's house, but he now occupies Rideau Cottage, which, though not so picturesque outwardly, has much internal solidity and comfort. Besides these, the guardhouse, gardener's cottage, laundry, stabling, coachhouse (and, I believe, motor garage), conservatory, vinery iron gates and strong pillars are among latter-day improvements.

The house "nestles among pine trees and cedars on rising ground on the east side of the wild little Rideau River. Its queer chimneys, its old corners and low lines of grey walls may be clearly seen from any point of the opposite shore when the trees are leafless in winter; but in summer only the chimneys and flagstaff are distinguishable." Rideau Hall is named after the river which in turn was called Rideau from the picturesque and curtain-like falls which mark its juncture with the Ottawa.

Lords Accept Insurance Bill.

London, Dec. 12.—David Lloyd-George's national insurance bill passed its second reading in the House of Lords yesterday without division. Lord Lansdowne said that the choice lay between the bill with all its defects and two or three years distracting controversy between the two Houses and he had come to the conclusion that acceptance of the bill was the wiser course.

A SHIP'S BAND.

Have Long Hours, and Do All Sorts of Other Work on the Ship.

Probably few men lead a stranger life than those who ship as band-men stewards on long-distance liners. I have worked for some years as leader of sea-orchestras, and cannot recommend it as a pastime.

As a rule, the band consists of about five performers, and our working day totals sixteen hours, or perhaps more. We are only musicians, incidentally, having signed on as "bandsmen-stewards," we have to fill up our odd hours with various duties, which might be anything from cleaning boots to assisting in coaling the ship.

The band plays to the steerage-passeners, the first and second saloon passengers in turn, in all kinds of weather, and it is not the easiest thing in the world to balance yourelf on a high stool, scraping on a bass fiddle, while the ship is tearing her way through a monsoon.

So long as the passengers are not sea-sick, and want to hear music, it is understood that we have to do our best. This leads to trying situations sometimes, especially as the piano has to be lashed firmly to prevent it toppling over on the top of the man who is playing it. When performing under these circumstances in the first dining-saloon, I have known the bass fiddler to be shot head-over-heels half a dozen yards away.

Before he could pick himself up another lurch of the boat sent the violinist with a heavy cannon into the flute-player, landing them both on the floor, while I was struggling to uphold the honor of the band with one hand, using the other to hang on with for all I was worth.

Once I took part in an unrehearsed scene which caused shrieks of laughter and cost a broken leg. We were homeward bound in the Bay of Biscay, and I was accompanying the violinist, who was playing a solo. There was a heavy sea running, giving the ship that awkward motion known as the "corkscrew." Suddenly she lurched sideways and backwards violently, and the violinist was pitched against me.

He fell clear, and was not hurt, but, owing to an oversight, the piano had not been lashed, and it crashed forwards on the top of me. Not noticing at first that I was under the piano, the passengers roared with laughter after they had recovered their own balance. The wreck of the orchestra must have looked very funny, but I was in hospital for several weeks after it.

Sometimes the passengers insist on having a dance when the ship is rolling, and I must admit that it gives the orchestra a certain grim form of amusement when the ship gives a sudden jerk, to see two or three couples roll over together in the scuppers. The band would rather die than be forced to stop playing on these occasions.

Twice in my life I have known a harsh, grating sound to interrupt the music, showing the vessel had hit something, but on both occasions we got a quiet signal not to stop. The first time the ship actually sank two hours later. It is somewhat thrilling to go on playing in order to keep the passengers from being alarmed, when a situation like that arises.

Scotland's Water-Power.

It is a well-known fact that the annual rainfall is very considerable in Scotland, Wales and certain parts of Ireland, all of which countries are mountainous and thereby offer as good opportunities for obtaining water power as can be found in other countries, at a cost which promises quite satisfactory returns for any capital which may be invested in their development. Scotland especially has advantages in this respect which few other countries can show. Compared with Switzerland — which is often called the country par excellence for water power—with an extensive and highly developed industry, Scotland has, says The Engineering Review, the great advantage of its geographical situation, enabling the almost exclusive use of cheap water carriage for the raw material as well as the finished industrial products to the places of consumption, whereas Switzerland has to obtain practically all raw material from abroad, and to pay heavy railway rates on them and on the manufactured goods.

All the Year Bathing.

Although, according to his own confession, Sir Henry Poland, K.C., was never very strong and far from being an athlete, he was accustomed, when living on the Thames at Twickenham, to have a plunge in the river every morning all the year round. "The great thing to attend to," he says, "is to take your header directly you are out of bed, and to take care to keep warm until you plunge. For this purpose you should put on a coat lined with flannel, with a thick coat over that, trousers lined with flannel, slippers lined with lamb's wool, and warm gloves. You should stand on a piece of carpet and throw your clothing off like a quick-change artist, and on coming out of the water you may stand in the open and thoroughly enjoy the east wind for the first time in your life, and the snow, sleet, hail, or rain will only be a diversion."

Big Bells of the World.

Some of the old world bells are heavy indeed. "Great Paul," of St. Paul's Cathedral, weighs nearly 17 tons, and is nearly 30 feet around. The first "Big Ben," of Westminster, was cast a little more than fifty years ago and weighed about 14 tons, being about 28 feet around. But "Big Ben" had a crack and was made over, losing some weight, and the clapper was made smaller, being now 600 pounds instead of about a ton. "Peter of York" cost $10,000, weighs 12 1-2 tons, and is 22 feet in diameter, or thereabouts.

Widows' Pensions.

The New Zealand Government have introduced a bill to provide pensions of $65 annually for widows with one child, or with more than three children $150. It is estimated that the project will cost the Dominion $165,-000 annually.

GAINS FAME ABROAD

CANADIAN SPECIALIST IN PSYCHOLOGICAL LITERATURE.

H. Addington Bruce, Author of Several Historical Works and a Teller of Ghost Stories Has Been Forced, Like Many Another Young Man, to Secure His Market Outside Canada —Helped Hon. James Bryce.

In one of the big magazines there is running a series of articles, "Adventures in the Psychical." The author is Mr. H. Addington Bruce. He is a young Canadian who has made a striking literary success in a rather unusual and difficult field. University of Toronto men of the class of 1895 will remember Bruce. He was the six-foot Trinity senior who cleaned up on English essays and was the marvel of half-baked football heroes. By birth Mr. Bruce is a Torontonian, the son of Lieut.-Col John Bruce, a well-known military man, formerly commandant of the 10th Royal Grenadiers. At Upper Canada College he began his scribbling on the student paper. After leaving Trinity by the B.A. route, Mr. Bruce was so proficient in sentence structure that Prof. Goldwin Smith gave him a position on his paper, "The Week." The Sage of the Grange liked his style and packed him off to New York.

He arrived there about the time Messrs. Arthur Stringer, Arthur E. MacFarlane, and Arthur Heming were living on flapjacks, and accepted stories. Unlike the three Canadian Arthurs, Mr. H. Addington Bruce did not begin besieging editors with experiments in fiction. His fast-expanding mind developed historical ambitions; he would write the real history of the American people. And during his fifteen odd years across the line Mr. Bruce has written several historical works of real merit. Apart from their historical value, these works illustrate Mr. Bruce's peculiar and almost original method as an historian. Mr. Bruce is a psychological interpreter of history. He himself says that he does not believe a man can write history accurately without studying the working of the human mind. For that reason Mr. Bruce is a psychologist.

H. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

As a psychologist, Mr. Bruce is perhaps better known than as an historian. He was a most intimate associate of that great psychologist, the late Prof. William James, brother of Henry James, the novelist. Mr. Bruce has written many popular articles on mental subjects and two books, "The Riddle of Personality," and "Historic Ghost and Ghost Hunters." But psychology to him is only a means of furthering his historical plans. He has just finished assisting Ambassador Bryce in the revision of his great book, "The American Commonwealth," and is now plotting an extensive historical and psychological prose epic of American expansion since the Revolution.

It seems to be a shame that such a writer should be forced to leave Canada because the student of history or of psychology cannot make a living here. This is an old complaint, but it is still true. The Canadian litterateur must emigrate or starve. It makes one grieve to think that such brilliant delvers and ditchers as H. Addington Bruce should be compelled to work in foreign fields.—Canadian Courier.

Australia's Stone Age.

Dr. Walter E Roth points out that in northern Australia there are to-day many communities of primitive people wearing no clothes, unable to count beyond three, and still making and using the implements and weapons of the stone age. Dr. Roth has seen these people making their stone implements. They manufacture "celts," scrapers, knives, saws, hand-picks, gouges, pounders, hammers, grinders from stone. They also use shells and teeth for scrapers and drills, and bone for awls and stilettos. He does not share the opinion that these people, and other savages, are stupid because they express no surprise at the miracles performed in their presence by white men. Once, when he had struck matches, and they showed no astonishment, he asked his interpreter what they thought of it. "He say," replied the interpreter, "what for no give it him? You fool throw it away."

Preparing Him.

"You're goin' to marry sister, ain't you?" her little brother inquired.

The young man blushed. "I—I don't know," he replied.

"That's funny," said the terrible infant. "Pa has looked you up in the rate books, ma has found out all about your grandfathers, and sister has begun her shoppin'. Gimme a nickel, won't you?"

Oil For Ferns.

An olive oil bath is very fine for a palm or fern. Put two tablespoonfuls at the roots of your palm or fern and you have no idea—unless you have tried it—what the improvement will be.

The U. S. census figures show 106 males to every 100 females. Among negroes women are in the majority.

CANADA'S NAVAL COLLEGE.

School For Training Cadets Outgrows First Plans.

The new naval policy to which the Dominion Government is committed by Act of Parliament, 1910, has necessitated considerable re-arrangement and re-organization in His Majesty's Dockyard at Halifax, says L. R. Richardson in Canadian Courier. The Dockyard, built and operated by the Imperial Government and used for many years as the headquarters of the North Atlantic Squadron of the British Fleet, was taken over nominally last year, and officially April 1, 1911, by the Naval Department of the Dominion Government. The old Naval Hospital has been remodelled and enlarged to serve temporarily as a home for the Royal Naval College of Canada. Class-rooms, laboratories and work shops have been fitted up and the first class of cadets, who joined in January of this year, are now receiving instruction that will fit them for commissions in the Canadian navy. Some of these will be our future captains and admirals. At present the cruiser Niobe is commanded by officers of the royal navy loaned by the Imperial Government, although the commander is Canadian-born, so that the present midshipmen and cadets will be the first Canadian-trained officers in our navy.

From the day a cadet enters the college, he is under the control of naval officers, under whom, after leaving college, he may find himself serving aboard a man-of-war at sea. The command of the college is vested in a captain. Under him come three lieutenants, the senior of whom controls discipline, gives instruction in seamanship, arranges the recreation of the cadets, and sees to the routine and cleanliness of the college. Another lieutenant is a specialist in physical training, and the third is an engineer lieutenant, who supervises the engineering instruction and the workshops. Those three officers live in the college and one of them is always on duty out of school hours, guiding the cadets in their recreation.

On the teaching staff there is a Director of Studies, who is an honor graduate in mathematics from Cambridge, and ranks with a commander in the royal navy, a Naval Instructor and two Masters, who are specialists in mathematics and physics respectively. A professor of languages attends twice a week to give instruction in French and German. The Director of Studies arranges the scheme of instruction and supervises all school matters subject to the approval of the captain. The Masters are civilians, but the Naval Instructors are naval officers, with the relative rank of lieutenant, wear uniform and take their turn of sea service when called upon for the instruction of midshipmen afloat.

There are also a paymaster and a naval surgeon, the former in charge of the commissariat and secretary of the college.

The college staff comprises a crew of about thirty men. Four are chief petty officers who, in addition to their special instructional duties, such as physical drill, seamanship, and boat-sailing, look after the cadets when in the college. They bring before the first lieutenant any cadet reported for misbehavior. The rest of the crew are the workshop mechanics, boats' crews, college stewards, waiters and cleaners.

The cadets make their own beds, get their soiled linen ready for the laundry and keep their uniforms clean. They rise at 6.30 a.m. winter and summer, and every minute of the day is occupied until 9.30 p.m., when lights are out in the dormitories. The first hour of the day is devoted to physical drill. School hours are from 9 a.m. to 4.30 p.m., with the exception of Wednesday and Saturday, which are half-holidays, and the remainder of the day is devoted to sports. The cadets are encouraged to spend all their spare hours in outdoor sports, such as hockey, cricket, football and boating. Rowing boats, a small yacht, and a steam cutter are supplied. In summer they occasionally go off on a week-end cruise with one of the officers, or compete in sailing or pulling races.

The present college has accommodation for 45 cadets, but it is proposed to build within a year or two a new college with better facilities, larger grounds, and accommodation for 100. The Canadian Government intend to keep the expenses low and to assist the traveling of cadets living west of Montreal. It is anticipateed that for his two years at college a boy will cost his parents not more than eight hundred dollars.

A Rising Edutationist.

Dr. Merchant's successor as chief inspector of Public Schools in Ontario is Mr. R. H. Cowley. Born in Carleton County, he attended both Ottawa and Queen's Universities, specializing in literature, history and natural science. He went back to his own county to teach and soon earned an appointment on the model school staff of the Ottawa Normal. Later he was science master in the Collegiate, and finally inspector for the county. This is the typical routine for a successful pedagogue.

One of Mr. Cowley's enthusiasms has been "continuation schools," the school which fills up the space between an ordinary public school and an ordinary high school. He introduced them into Carleton County and about five years ago became inspector of continuation schools for the province. When Dr. Merchant was promoted, Mr. Cowley was naturally chosen as his successor, and he is likely to continue his predecessor's good work—perhaps improve upon it.

A Strong Argument.

In Canada the average load drawn by one horse over level dirt roads is 1,400 pounds and over hilly roads 1,000 pounds. In France and Germany, where they have more improved roads, the average load for one horse is 3,300 pounds. This is one of the reasons why bad roads increase the cost of producing farm crops, and it is a strong argument in favor of improving the roads.

Near Lacombe, this year, one settler had 1,500 bushels of oats from 16 acres.

THE GOOD OLD SUN

W. LYMAN HUME, Esq., M.D., says:

I took my last policy in the "Sun Life" five years ago. You may think how agreeably surprised I was to receive your letter of the 28th ult., informing me that my share of the profits earned by my Policy during the last five years amounted to $205.80 IN CASH; or if I preferred they would give me $46.65 a year for for the next five years, to be used as an annual reduction of my yearly premium; or better still they would increase my policy by $311.00, making it worth $5,311 instead of $5,000, upon which I would continue to pay the old premium. This is the option I have chosen.

Suppose that instead of insuring I had placed the amount of my premium $277.75, in the Bank each year, and had allowed the interest to be compounded for five years at three per cent., the interest allowed by all safe, conservative Banks. What would be the results? To-day I should receive $130.11 as the accumulated interest from the Bank, instead of $205.80 from the "Sun Life," a difference of $75.70; but in addition to this the Company has carried the risk on my life for $5,000, which they might have been called at any time to pay.

This is in marked contrast with the so-called Fraternal Societies. I have a policy of $1,000 in one of the best of them; I was notified the other day that my policy would be reduced one-half, or my premium doubled. The "Sun" increases my policy, or reduces my premium; the Fraternal Society reduces my policy or increases my premium; it should not be a difficult matter to choose which is the better system of the two.

The "Good Old Sun," may it never set except to rise again with increased effulgence!

BIG CROWDS WATCHED FOR THE BULLETINS

Interest Was High but Enthusiasm Was Lacking

Ladies Made Many Telephone Inquiries at the Review

While the Review bulletins were followed by large and interested crowd last night, there was an utter lack of the regular line of political enthusiasm. The "I told you so," prophet was in his glory and by the way the number of these wise ones was something like the government majority. The average elector knew pretty well how things would go both in the city, country and province, and all that remained for him to do was to get the majorities and explain how the Hall-Stratton combination was left far behind.

The local returns were in early, the officials at the polling subdivisions doing their duty nobly and the good news was soon given out to the rapidly increasing crowd.

That the ladies took much interest in the proceedings of the day was evidenced by their many applications for news as to the state of the polls. They called the Review office repeatedly and as late as eleven o'clock there were many requests from the gentler sex for the latest returns.

PROGRAM FOR CONCERT TO-NIGHT

S. A. Band Has Arranged a Treat for Music Lovers

Below is a special program of music and song that will be given by the S.A. band to-night in the Temple. This will be a good time to hear the S.A. band at its best; a glance at the program is enough to suffice that there will be something to suit all classes. The program is as follows:

March, "The New England", introducing "O Canada"—Band.

Vocal solo, "We're Not," by Bandman Moynes, a song explaining S.A. bandsmen.

Selection, "Songs of Joy"—Band.

Mouthorgan solo, "Hallelujah Chorus" by Bandsman W. Pick.

Selection, "Harvest Praises"—Band

Song, vocal, "A Soldier's Life," by the band's male choir

Trombone solo, "Hymns of the Old Church Choir," by Bandsman Sandford.

Marches by the band through a phonograph. This will be an interesting item.

Selection, "Old Song Memories" by band.

Recitation, "Abide With Me," by Bandsman Fred Gray.

Final hymn, "When I Survey the Woodrous Cross."

Now this program has been arranged for the citizens of Peterborough. Bandmaster Beryer and his men would like to see a good crowd at the hall. Admission free. All are invited to spend an enjoyable evening

Have you ordered your Greeting Cards yet. See our exclusive designs—the most reasonable in price to be had. Open to-night, the Review Office. 1d

FIGHT AGAINST THE WHITE PLAGUE

Buy Calendars and Stamps at the Stores and Banks

The pretty calendars and stamps issued by the Peterboro Health Association are now on sale in all the city drug stores, the city banks and also with several merchants. The proceeds from the sale of the above are to be used in the fight against tuberculosis, which our doctors tell us is quite prevalent in our midst. Those who have been ill themselves or have had illness in their homes, no matter of what kind, never turn a deaf ear to the needs of the poor sick, but sometimes the strong and healthy ones do not stop to think of the hopelessness and suffering of those who are poor and have not the means to procure medical attention and advice, and often knock things which well meaning people undertake to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunate ones. Are you going to be a booster or a knocker? If the former, buy some of the stamps and calendars and help on a good cause. Don't knock the Peterboro Health Association. It is but a "child in the cradle." Help to put it on its feet and give it a chance. Give it a smile and a pat in the back even if you can only buy a few stamps. It will all help to fight the good fight against the white scourge.

DELAYS IN MAIL TO BUSINESS SECTION

One of the staff of delivery clerks of the city has called at the Review to protest against the strictness made in a letter in yesterday's issue, sent in by a correspondent. When the facts are fairly considered, the mail clerk's life is not a happy one. They are a faithful, zealous and efficient body of men, engaged in a trying occupation. The mail of the city is growing and it is doubtful if the facilities and force at the post office, keeps pace with the increase of business. Again during the last month, additional mail has been poured into the office, sent on political and campaign errands. This had to be handled quickly, as well as regular matter. The George street business mail is very heavy and a great deal of it is poorly directed. This adds largely to the labor of sorting and the time required in preparation before the carrier sets out on his route.

At least during the Christmas season the delivery force should have additional help, and this will no doubt be provided, if it is not already arranged for. In the meantime any who are inconvenienced, might suspend judgment and not blame the carrier, who is anxious to do what he can, [illegible]

DEATH OF JAMES WOOD

Well Known Farmer of Bailieboro Expires Suddenly

Was About Yesterday When He Cast His Vote

The residents of Bailieboro were startled this morning to hear of the sudden passing of Mr. James Wood, which occurred about five o'clock this morning.

Mr. Wood had voted yesterday and was apparently in his usual good health, and when he retired last night made no complaint. About five o'clock this morning Mrs. Wood heard unusual sounds and hurriedly called Mr. Robert Wood. He rushed to the bedside of his father, but the hand of death was near, and his father passed suddenly away. The deceased was the third son of the late James Wood, who died some years ago. He was one of the most prominent and prosperous farmers of that section, and the late Mr. Wood enjoyed extreme popularity as he carried on farming operations. He had the qualities which go to make a successful man, and all of these he carried out in his everyday life.

Some years ago he spent several years in the Old Country. He married Miss Mary Bowls, of Buffalo, N.Y., and she with two children, Arthur D., of Peterborough, and Miss Ethel Wood, at home, are left to mourn the loss of a kind husband and father.

There are three brothers, William, who is temporarily located at Alameda, Sask., Robert and Thomas, at home. Three sisters are Mrs. Robert Hutchison, of Huntsville; Mrs. (Dr.) Fisher, of Bailieboro, and Miss Sarah Wood, who is on the nursing staff at the Nicholls hospital.

The late Mr. Wood was 52 years of age, and had been born at the old homestead in Cavan, near Bailieboro.

At the time of going to press the funeral arrangements had not been completed, but it is considered that the funeral will take place on Thursday to St. Paul's church cemetery, near Millbrook.

DARKE V. CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY ACTION

This Action for Damages is Dismissed Without Costs

The Darke vs. C.G.E. action was one brought by Mrs. Darke, widow and administratrix of her husband, the late Hugh Darke, claiming $10,000 from the C.G.E. for the death of her husband, who was accidently killed while in the employ of the company. The action was tried at Peterborough before Chief Justice Sir William Mulock and a jury at the fall assizes. A number of questions was submitted to the jury and the judge reserved judgment on the answers of the jury. The following is a memo of the judgment given on Saturday, December 9:

"There is no evidence to support the jury's answer to question nine that Thompson had entrusted to him any superintendence over Darke. Therefore, there is no liability under section 3, Ss. 2, of Workmens' Compensation Act.

Nor is there any evidence to support the jury's findings that Darke was acting under the orders of his foreman, Jeffreys, when endeavoring to secure the machine, so there is no liability under S.S. 3.

The evidence shows Darke was to do nothing until after the machine was set in motion, and though he knew that Anson and Jeffreys had carefully examined the condition of the machine, and pronounced it satisfactory, and that in consequence he was removed from the job, he by some mistake of judgment, of his own motion, perhaps encouraged by the opinion of Thompson, who had no authority over him, undertook to further secure the machine, and whilst so engaged met with the accident. Under the circumstances I fail to see where the defendant company is liable, and I think the action should be dismissed. It is not a case for costs."

DR. PETERSON OF McGILL COMING

Speaks Before the Canadian Club Thursday Dec. 21

The next meeting of the Canadian Club will take place in the Oriental Hotel on Thursday, the 21st, at 8 p.m., and the meeting will be addressed by Dr. W. Peterson, of McGill University, on the subject of "Our English Speech." The executive of the club are most fortunate in being able to arrange to have Dr. Peterson here and meeting promises to be one of the largest in the history of the club. Members who have not already paid their annual fees are requested to hand same to the treasurer at the Bank of Ottawa before the next meeting.

THANK YOU

ARREST MADE IN TORONTO

In Connection With Theft From Bell Telephone Co.

A serious case of theft is alleged to have occurred some time Sunday night, at the local plant of the Bell Telephone Company, when the cash box, belonging to the mechanical department, containing about $90 in money and bills was stolen. The loss was discovered Monday morning. Mr. Harry Soanes, who has the control of the cash box, placed it in its usual place in the cupboard of the stores-room on Saturday night, and missed it on Monday morning. Indications pointed towards two of the employes who were on duty Sunday night as being connected with the robbery, and this was further borne out when one of the employes left suddenly for Toronto, without waiting even to pack his tools.

ARREST AT TORONTO.

The police department were notified and Chief Thompson got busy. Detective Newhall was sent to Toronto and effected the arrest of the employe who had left so suddenly, and will likely arrive in Peterborough with him to-night on the C.P.R. local.

The guilty parties had no difficulty in prying open the door of the little cupboard, in which was the cash box, and it evidently looked like the work of some party or parties who were familiar with the place.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

The Fire Department received a call to 64 Aylmer street this morning and found the trouble to be a chimney blaze.

A meeting of the Peterboro Poultry Association is called for to-morrow night at eight o'clock at J. J. C. Lang's sore.

A concert will be held at the armories to-night for the sergeants. A very successful one was given last Tuesday evening for the public, and will be repeated each month.

Work on the new Baptist church on Murray street is making rapid headway. Men are busily engaged putting in two new furnaces; There is no heat in the church, but the Sunday school room is heated by several small coal fires, to dry the fresh plaster. This will be the first room to be finished. The church is a magnificent building and adds to the surrounding appearance.

A number of men are pushing ahead the work on the new wharf on George street.

SHERWOOD FOREST CAMP GROWING

Initiation of New Members and Election of Officers

The regular monthly meeting of Sherwood Foresters' Camp of the Woodmen of the World was held last night in their lodge rooms in the Sons of England hall, when the annual election of officers took place.

This was a long-to-be-remembered meeting because of the attendance of two hundred members and the initiation of fifty-five members.

It may be added that since the 1st of November, 1911, one hundred and forty new members have been added to this camp and there are enough in consideration now to make this number come to at least two hundred, by the end of December.

The following officers were elected and this was in each case, a promotion from the station below to a higher office with the exception of Con.-Com. Graham, who retired to the Past Con's chair.

Past Con.-Com.—A. Graham.
Con.-Com.—J. Vallery.
Adv. Lieut.—J. Kyle.

Escort—J. Bath.
Watchman—G. Grange.
Sentry—Harold Hicks.
Managers—William Gibbs, R. Waram, R. Carr.
Delegate to the Head Camp—A. A. Haskill.

After the election of officers several of the members were called upon for speeches and among them G. N. Gordon addressed the lodge on the subject of co-operation with the officers and the obtaining of new members and it was resolved with Mr Gordon's suggestion that each member bring in at least one new member during the winter, which will make the Camp's membership extend over one thousand.

Mr. D. C. Dawe also addressed the Camp along the same lines and as the Camp is composed of young men almost entirely it was felt that by the middle of March a membership of at least one thousand could be attained.

It was clearly indicated by the addresses given by Past Con-Com. Graham and Clerk Haskill, were most truly instrumental in increasing membership so rapidly and a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to these officers besides assistance the other officers of the Lodge had given in the campaign for increased membership.

This Camp now bears the enviable reputation of being the largest lodge of any fraternity society in the Midland district of the Province of Ontario.

THE VICTOR WAS CHEERED

Electors Gave Edward Armour Peck an Enthusiastic Reception

AT GRAND OPERA HOUSE

"I Want to be Regarded as Your Servant" He Says

"I pledge myself now to do all in my power to advance the interests of the workingmen of Peterborough and Ontario. I am proud of Peterborough for what it has done to-day. I have no personal interest to gratify; I want to serve this city, and do all I can to promote its welfare."

So said Edward Armour Peck, member of the Legislative Assembly for the premier province of the Dominion—Ontario—as he stood on the platform of the Grand Opera House and, amidst thunderous applause, returned his thanks to the workers who had assisted in the contest the day.

The scene of the night of September 21 was repeated. It was a great victory for the Conservatives, and the big gathering was happy. The majority had gotten off to a good start in the first few returns from the city polling subdivisions, and had rolled up to the three figures—something like seven hundred. As old Casper remarked to young Peterkin, it was a noble victory.

BAND PLAYED THE MAPLE LEAF FOREVER.

Excitement reigned supreme at the Conservative club rooms, and shortly after eight o'clock the member-elect, and three of his stalwarts, Messrs. L. M. Hayes, K.C.; Joseph Mills and J. C. Knapman, were escorted to a cab, and with music from the 57th band, a fife and drum band, the procession wended its way to the Grand. Here Mr. Peck was carried by enthusiastic supporters into the opera house. Never did a Derby winner at Epsom receive a more flattering reception. Everyone likes a champion, and above all, one who wins fairly in the face of the strongest kind of competition. Thus did E. A. Peck come to his own.

L. M. HAYES, K.C.

Mr. L. M. Hayes, K.C., undertook the duties of chairman, and sent more than a merry ripple through the audience when he remarked that he was glad to report to those who might not already know, that a great victory had been won and that Mr. Peck was elected by a large majority. Of course everybody knew and responded accordingly. "We all fought a good fight," said Mr. Hayes. "Victory is ours and we will hold it from now on."

The announcement that the Whitney government had been returned and would govern the province for the next few years was also received with righteous approval. Mr. Hayes, before giving way to Mr. Peck, read a letter from Mr. James Kendry, ex-M.P., who sent heartiest congratulations and expressed his regret at his inability to be present for the rejoicings.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR WAS E. A. PECK

All voices joined in greeting to the man of the hour, as he came forward. He admitted that he scarcely knew how to commence his remarks, but before he took his seat the audience had long become aware that he was making a rattling fine address. He regretted the absence of that old war-horse, whom he prophesied as Senator James Kendry to be. He expressed his gratitude and thankfulness to the many workers who had assisted in gaining the victory of the day. Very many of the men he said had labored assiduously at the expense of their business, loss of time and means in the endeavor to carry West Peterboro for the Conservative party. "I thank them from the bottom of my heart," adi the speaker. The ladies too come in for their share of the spoils. As to their influence he said, it was impossible to guage. Many had encouraged him by kindly wishing him success.

"I also wish to thank the Review" continued Mr. Peck, as he remarked that it had done so much in the work the success of which they were celebrating to-night. He referred to the attacks made upon him during the campaign as mean and contemptable through the Examiner by nameless correspondents. It hurt a man he said to pick up a paper and find it giving effect to such as were both mean and unfair. If the writer could be condemned surely the newspaper must take some of the charge of acting unfairly. He knew he said, when he went into the campaign that his past conduct would be investigated—that was the fate of every man going into politics—but the charges made in the Examiner were unfair, untrue and contemptable. And it didn't do any good. (Applause) They added to the majority. (Prolonged applause)

Of Mr. Hall, his late opponent he had the kindest of feelings, but he knew the facts. Yet he adopted the statement of the Examiner, and adopted it on the platform, in one of the places he knew it would do the most good. But the third charge he didn't dare to repeat. He wouldn't use it on the platform. The man who was a party to prejudice or creed was bound to be kept down.

Mr. Peck turned his remarks to the Whitney government to whose good work he accredited much of the success achieved. Whitney was a good leader—an honest leader. The two essentials to successful government was honesty and progressiveness, and the Whitney government had shown both. He again returned his thanks for the support accorded him and in his concluding remarks, spoke of the pleasure it gave him to learn that in his own polling sub-division that his friends who had known him so long had rolled up a majority of 51 for E. A. Peck. That was something he would never forget.

Other speakers were Ald. Bradburn and Buller, Percival G. Webb, Joseph Mills, J. C. Knapman, F. H. Dobbin and W. S. Robinson.

Before closing the meeting Mr. Hayes referred to the loyal and faithful support given Mr. Peck by the late Conservative member, Mr. T. E. Bradburn. The singing of the National anthem an cheers for the King, the government and Mr. Peck brought to a close one of the most successful political meetings of rejoicing ever held in the West riding of Peterboro.

CONGRATULATIONS ON HIS VICTORY

Citizens Are Glad and Member Elect is Busy

Mr. E. A. Peck is a busy man to-day accepting congratulations on his splendid victory. He has received many telegrams of congratulation, one of which is from R. M. Dennistoun, K.C., of Winnipeg. Another is from Mr. F. G. Hassard, of Regina, who was physical director of the local Y.M.C.A. when Mr. Peck was on the Board of Directors.

BOTH PETERBOROS WITH GOVERNMENT

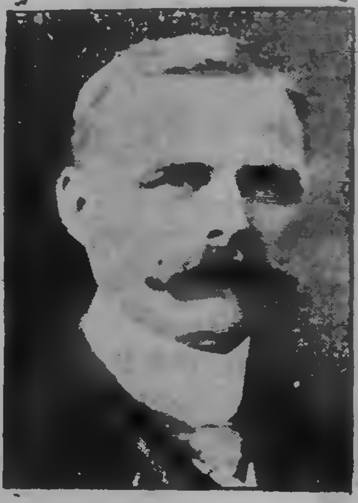
there was no word of reproach. Despite the inclement weather the workers were enthusiastic and did yeoman service.

IN THE EAST.

Battling in the East Riding against two opponents, Mr. Jas. Thompson, M.P.P., also won a grand victory. According to the best count at hand today, he received 1508 votes, his next opponent secured 1041, while the third candidate had to be content with a little better than 100. Mr. Thompson made a fine showing in Havelock, where he had a majority of 162. His majority out of Havelock in the polling subdivisions so far heard from is 467 and it is probable that the final returns will boost this number to the 500 mark.



MR. R. R. HALL.
Playing a losing game from the start he went down to defeat.

NOT PERSONAL SAYS MR. HALL

Of His Defeat in Yesterday's Contest—No Regrets

Mr. R.R. Hall, the defeated Liberal candidate is not in the least down hearted over the result of yesterday's polling and when seen to-day by a Review representative, made the following statement.

"I do not look upon my defeat," said Mr. Hall, "as being personal. The Liberal party had been in power for a long time in Ottawa; the country was prosperous, and the tide of slowing strong in one direction for years, and it was only natural that the forces of re-action should set in.

The receding tide of re-action is as strong to stem as any other. It would be a great satisfaction to me if the Workingman's Compensation Act was re-modelled by the Whitney Government along the lines I advocated. It would also be a great satisfaction to me if the restoration of the model schools took place to give the workingman's son and daughter a fair chance to rise in the world. It is to be hoped that the criticism Sir James Whitney received in this election will stir him on to renewed efforts to see that every child in the province receives a thorough elementary education and a thorough knowledge of the English language. It is very important in farming communities that an expert demonstration be employed, and that demonstration farms be established in the west riding of Peterborough. It will do much to enable the farmers to take advantage of the successful experiments that have been made. "My friends and I did our best in the election and hence have no regrets or recriminations of any kind," said Mr Hall.

LAID TO REST

CALENDARS ARE NOW ON SALE

Buy at Drug Stores and Help the Health Association

Have you secured one of the pretty Christmas calendars in aid of the Peterborough Health Association? They are placed on sale in the drug stores. When you are down town, step into one of these shops, and ask to see them. Everybody has one or more fancy calendars among their collection of Christmas gifts. Then in making your selections this year, don't forget the Health Association. Remember that in purchasing one of these calendars, you will perform a two fold act. In addition to having a suitable gift for your friends you will help along the noble cause of this local organisation, namely, that of fighting the tuberculosis in this city. Already a number of these have been sold by interested workers, but there are still several hundred to be disposed of, before the amount of money that the association is endeavoring to raise through this medium is secured.

The Christmas stamps are also now available. In sending parcels and letters put a few of these stamps on them. As was stated in Saturday's issue, the object of this sale is to raise funds in order to engage a district nurse for tubercular cases in Peterborough.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

CLOSE SEASON FOR GRITS

To The Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir— All the circumstances considered, don't you think it would be wise for both the Dominion and Ontario governments to declare a close season for Grits, for a period covering, say, fifteen or twenty years? If the species is to be preserved from extinction, we think steps should be taken along these lines. To make assurance doubly sure, we would suggest that a few specimens be secured now, if at all possible, and domiciled in the National Park, near Wainwright, Alberta, along with the remnant of the once mighty Buffalo tribe.

Yours truly,
"ANXIOUS ENQUIRER"
Peterboro, Dec. 12th, 1911.

To the Editor of the Review:

Sir,—In your editorial of yesterday you say that the federal parliament cannot interfere with provincial laws respecting marriage. This was the opinion, you say, of the late Minister of Justice, but you say, also, that the present Minister of Justice has given no decision on this point yet. Allow me to say that I think you are mistaken. The present government has given their decision that after a marriage is solemnized it comes under the jurisdiction of the parliament of Canada. This the late government evaded. It would be impossible, according to the B.N.A. Act, to interfere with the manner of entering into (solemnization) the contract unless the Act was changed by appeal to the Home Government, but the construction, validation or amendment of the contract is the most important thing, and that rests with the parliament of Canada, as recently decided by that body, and not with any other body, as claimed.

Yours,
CITIZEN.

LL SAINTS AND T.A.S. CLUBS IN TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE

n Group With Campbellford and and Havelock—Annual Meeting at Stirling.

At the annual meeting of the Trent alley Hockey League held at Stirlg last night, two local clubs, All ints and T.A.S., were admitted to e league and with Campbellford d Havelock will comprise group No. with Dan McCabe as convenor.

District No. 2 will be made up of rmora, Madoc, Tweed and Stirling, th W. Whitty, of Stirling, as connor.

Representatives from all the abovetioned clubs were present and Prelent Kennedy, of Stirling, occupied chair.

The officers elected were:

Hon Presidents—J. H. Burnham, P., E. A. Peck. M.P.P. Robt. Cook irling; C. S. Owens, Campbellford

Hon Vice-Pres.—G. G. Thrasher, rling.

President—W. H. Hubble, Marmora.

st Vice-Pres.—Dan McCabe, Peterough.

2nd Vice-Pres.—W. H. Roe, Campbellford.

3rd Vice-Pres.—W. Whitty, Stirling.

Sec.-Treas.—E. M. Gladney, Marmora.

Executive—Officers and one representative from each club.

All Saints was represented by Tom Moffat and T.A.S. by W. Grady and Dan McCabe.

It is understood that teams are to be formed in Norwood, Lakefield, Keene and possibly Lindsay, and if these clubs get together another district will be formed.

Marmora won the championship for the second consecutive term last winter and took the league trophy for good. Another trophy is therefore needed and the opportunity for samaritan work is a very present one.

With two local clubs in a good district, the hockey fans should witness some first-class hockey, besides the regular O.H.A. bill-of-fare.

SCOTTISH TEAM TO BE NEW ONE

Only one Member of 1902 Party is Coming

A correspondent of the Montreal Star, writing from Glasgow under date of Nov. 29th, deals with the Scottish curlers' visit as follows—

"The final arrangements in the organization of the new Scottish-Canadian curling team have now been made, and the composition of the team as well as the general [illegible] the tour were approved at Edinburgh yesterday, (November 29) by the Committee of Management of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club.

"The team, which sails for Halifax, N.S., by the Allan liner "Ionian" from Glasgow, on December 23, was selected by the Committee of Management of the Royal Caledonian Club, and its secretary, Mr. A. Davidson Smith, Edinburgh, with Mr. Andrew Blair of Glasgow, acting as team secretary and assisting him in the selection of the players and in making the arrangements necessary for the tour. Col. Robertson Aikman (Lanarkshire Province) will act as captain, and Mr. Blair will discharge the duties of team secretary throughout the visit to the Dominion.

"The team has been chosen from various clubs, entirely irrespective of districts or of any consideration other than the ability of the members as curlers. It was felt that while the 1902 team made a very creditable appearance in Canada, considering that they were new to Canadian ice, and Canadian conditions of play, and also that while they were eminently successful as 'social' visitors from the Home Land to a dominion which is so largely Scottish, an attempt should be made this year to sink the social side of the tour somewhat, and to make it almost wholly a curling visit. This does not mean, of course, that the members of the team will hold themselves aloof from whatever hospitality or entertainments may be arranged for them. It only means that they will always give curling a first place, and not allow any social functions to divert their attention from the principal object of their visit—to win matches fairly and honorably, and by dint of clean, straightforward play, and—incidentally— by so doing to induce the Canadian curlers to send another team to Scotland for the purpose, if possible, of regaining the laurels of victory. It was felt among home curlers that, while the 1902 tour was a great success from a social point of view, and while it did a great deal to increase the friendly relations of Scotland and the Dominion, curling was subordinated too much to dining out, and speeches and excursion, and that if another team was to be chosen, no consideration should be given to 'social' abilities, and the members should be selected first and foremost as curlers.

COLD SORES AND ULCERS ARE HEALED BY ZAM-BUK

Cold sores, chapped hands, ulcers, and winter eczema are common troubles just now, and for all these Zam-Buk will be found the surest and quickest remedy. Sometimes cold sores arise from chilblains on the toes or fingers, and in the former case, where colored socks are worn, there is a danger of blood poisoning from the dye. Zam-Buk being so powerfully antiseptic removes the danger as soon as applied and quickly heals.

W. J. Halliday, of Ash Grove, Ont., says: "I had my little finger frozen, and it cracked at the first joint, causing a bad score, which discharged freely, and would not heal. The pain was very bad, and the whole of my hand became swollen and in bad shape.

"A friend advised me to try Zam-Buk, and I soon found that Zam-Buk was altogether different to any preparation I had ever tried. In a very short time it healed the sore."

Miss Lillie May, of Stoney Creek, Ont., says: "A few weeks since, several nasty disfiguring cold sores suddenly broke out on my lips, which became much swollen. Seeing my condition, a friend advised me to try Zam-Buk and leave all other preparations aside. This I did, and was much pleased, after a few applications of this balm, to see every sore healed."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for eczema, blood poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful imitations and substitutes.

Use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c tablet. Best for baby's tender skin!

GRATEFUL TO ONTARIO

Sir James Expresses Heartfelt Appreciation of the Vote.

It Will Encourage the Government to Continue To Do Its Best For the People of the Province—Dr. Pyne Thanks His Supporters—Mr. Rowell Says Four Years Will See a Grand Change In Politics.

Toronto, Dec. 12.—Sir James Whitney, when asked last night to give an opinion on the election result, was in prime good humor. His brief statement was as follows:

"At this moment, it is difficult for me to choose proper language in which to express the heartfelt appreciation of my colleagues and myself, and our thanks for this magnificent endorsation by the people of Ontario of the course pursued by us. The endorsement is phenomenal indeed. It will certainly encourage the Government to continue its best efforts for the advancement and prosperity of the people of the province, who have given us such signal evidence of their confidence."

Dr. Pyne thanked his supporters for electing him to the Legislature for the fifth time.

"I am going to stick to you," he said, "because you have stuck to me. I hope we will never see a Liberal elected in Toronto. We did not get as large a vote as last time, but still there was a smaller vote polled, and the other fellows got almost nothing. In proportion this was just as great a victory as that of former elections. I thank you one and all for electing me, and I hope you won't regret it."

"I feel quite encouraged over the improvement of our fighting strength in the Legislature," said F. G. Inwood, provincial organizer, when asked for his opinion of the election results in the province. "The Liberals are now able to put up a better opposition than before," he continued. "Before we had only seventeen seats, to-night we are given twenty-two, with one Labor, Studholme of Hamilton. This will give us twelve more votes in the House, counting the Labor man, as a change either way counts two votes."

Rowell Is Sanguine.

Woodstock, Dec. 12.—N. W. Rowell, K.C., the Liberal leader, gave a press representative the following statement at 9.30 o'clock last night: "I look upon the splendid majority given me by North Oxford—a majority larger than has been given even a local man in years—as a great compliment to me. I look upon it as an endorsement by the electors of North Oxford of myself as the leader of the Liberals of Ontario.

"The returns so far received indicate a substantial number of Liberal gains, but there will also be several severe losses, the apparent net result being a gain of a few seats to the Liberal party. The Liberal party went into the contest more or less demoralized after their defeat of Sept. 21, without organization and without literature.

"I take the result as a clear indication that the tide has turned, and, if we continue, as we will, our propaganda in the interests of progressive measures are expressive of the best sentiments of Liberalism, both in the Legislature and in the country during the next four years, we have every reason to expect that the country will by that time have wearied of the autocratic and unprogressive character of the present administration and will endorse our progressive policy.

"I believe we may look forward with confidence to a great revival in progressive reforms and that in the next four years the province will return the Liberal party to power, thus giving effect to these progressive measures. I deeply regret the loss from the Legislature of some of the best members of the Liberal contingent. On the other hand, we will welcome those strong men who have been elected to join the Liberal ranks."

Studholme's Victory.

Hamilton, Dec. 12.—Allan Studholme (Labor), East Hamilton; Col. J. S. Hendrie (Conservative), West Hamilton; J. T. H. Regan (Conservative), South Wentworth, and Dr. McQueen (Liberal) North Wentworth, were the candidates elected in the County of Wentworth at yesterday's elections. Col. Hendrie is the only one of the four whose election was conceded before the polling yesterday.

The result in South Wentworth was a distinct surprise, as it was thought that Dan Reid, the Liberal candidate, would win out on account of the presence of Wm. Barrett, the Labor candidate, in the constituency.

The most important victory of the lot was, of course, that of Allan Studholme, the Labor man, who defeated Controller Cooper by a majority of 974. The Labor candidate had big majorities in three of the five wards.

The labor people were naturally elated over Studholme's splendid victory, and celebrated the event last night with a big parade through the principal streets of the city, led by the band of the 13th Regiment.

Dull In Toronto.

Toronto, Dec. 12.—Toronto yesterday refused to break through the hidebound conservatism with which she has clothed herself from infancy, and elected every candidate of the Whitney Government to the Legislature.

The election was remarkable only for one thing—its lack of interest, its apathy. Not one of the political organizers, who are in closer touch with conditions than anyone else, expected for one moment to get out a normal vote, because the indifference of the electorate was very marked from the beginning and until the close of the campaign. But when the dull, drizzling rain set in in the afternoon, to capsheaf the whole affair, it was known the vote would be extremely light.

Mr. McNaught's majority yesterday will approximate 1,815, something over half the majority given him before.

In East Toronto, Hon. Dr. Pyne also fell behind his last majority.

A MORO PIRATE

Told by a Participant and Edited by Yates Stirling, Jr., Lieutenant Commander, U. S. N.

After the Fanatic Massacred the Inhabitants of a Dutch Village He Was Trapped and Betrayed to a Swift Vengeance, Just at a Time When He Thrilled with Pride Over the Birth of a Son.

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

THE Hadji Arsad spat his betel nut juice disgustedly on the ground and arose to his feet, disturbing in the movement several hundred flies, and gazed across the water that separated his little island, Manuk Manca, from Simanor. Beyond lay the old Spanish port of entry, Bongao, where lived the long, slim constabulary officer who alone was responsible for his present dissatisfaction with life.

"Allah's curse be upon them!" he exclaimed. "Renegades and degenerates; traitors to the true faith; servants to the despised infidel!"

The Hadji hurled his oath across the water, directed upon the unconscious constabulary officer and his Joloanos, who, once having taken the oath of allegiance to the United States, would go at command into the deepest jungle to arrest or fight their own blood brothers.

"The blood of our men has turned to water," the Hadji complained aloud. "I have plead and urged my old followers to join me in a voyage which would bring to us pleasure, profit and honor, and all in vain. Ach!" and he again spat on the ground in strong contempt.

The Hadji Arsad, as he stood defiantly facing the town of Bongao, some miles across the water, would have furnished a rare subject for a painter. He was a powerfully built Moro and taller than is usual with his race, despite the horrible scar on his neck, left there by a kris bite in the hands of a foe many years ago. The attempt to sever the Hadji's head had been foiled, but ever since he had been forced to carry his head to one side. The long body was thick, his legs short and bowed, while his brawny arms hung down almost to his knees. His face was fierce and dominant, his eyes blazed under the knitted cap that he, a Hadji, was permitted to wear, with his record of a pilgrimage to Mecca, an honor he shared only with the Hadji Uzman of all true believers south of Sulu. And yet Uzman was the so-called Governor of Tawi-Tawi, with authority over all Moros from Sulu to Manuk Manca, while he, Arsad, was what? Nothing; worse than nothing!

The Hadji's uncouth thoughts were wild, boding ill to the enforced peace of the southern Moros. Never in his life had he wished more for honors and power. On his pilgrimage to Mecca he had stopped at Zamboanga and there taken unto himself a wife, the daughter of a Datu. Upon his return from the sacred city he had taken her from her father's house and brought her to his home. Honors had been given him at the various ports of call, and at Jolo even the American governor had received him with much show of appreciation. As he neared his home he had felt assured that he was to be the Sultan of Tawi-Tawi, but on reaching Manuk Manca he had found even the headman's place filled by Ulama, a mere priest of low caste. It was unendurable and he about to become a father.

A son it would be this time, he was sure, and his previous marriages, of which there had been many, had given him only daughters. For the first time in the forty-five evil years of his life he was in love, though to him, with the Mohammedan idea of women, the feeling was unexplicable. The thought of this love did not soothe the soul of the Hadji. In spite of his affection his newest wife shrank from him, and all his crude efforts to be gentle had not served to make her forget her fear. He had boastingly promised her power and wealth, and now what did he have to offer her? His ambitions received no notice; even his efforts to have Ulama deposed and himself made the headman of Manuk Manca had been met with a flat refusal from the young constabulary officer, whose say was final.

True, all the island deferred to him, even Ulama himself, yet when officials visited the island the low caste Ulama stood ahead of him—a Hadji! He remembered with a dark frown how the priest had tricked him into paying the one peso cedula tax, which he had publicly said he would not pay. The constabulary collector had surprised him in Ulama's house while on a friendly visit. He was sure that Ulama had laid the trap to humiliate him in the eyes of his people. Something must be done to restore himself in authority, and he wanted to make good the boast to his young wife and load her with costly gifts.

Ten Moro fighting men sat some twenty paces behind him while he indulged his dark and menacing thoughts. Unconsciously they shrank within themselves as he turned back toward them. None met his eye.

"See you," he said. "Every year we grow smaller; we have shrunk in importance as a tree which has not been fed with the light of the sun and the rain from the clouds. There was a time when each moon saw our adventurous people return from the islands of the north heavily ladened with booty and captives. My father has told me that our ancestors have dared the sea in our stanch 'vintas' as far as Luzon. All stood in terror of the Joloano Moros before the Americans came, and the dread is still there if we dare to use our power. The Spaniard was willing to pay tribute after we had shut him up in his stone forts, but these accursed Americans will not stay shut up. They come among us with their gunboats, and even leading our own people against us. There is that lone boy—a Christian dog—holding fifty true believers. He locks our people up in his jail, and when he visits us makes us stand uncovered in his presence, as if he were even higher than a Hadji! I tell you it is time to strike or else we shame our faith."

His listeners moved uneasily on their haunches. His impassioned words stirred the sleeping pirate within them. The thirst for blood lay loosely veneered with fear of the law, added to an inertia common to all tropical races.

Planning the Massacre.

"Listen, O Hadji!" one spoke. "Your words ring true and have reached our hearts. We would follow you if we dared. Think, O Hadji, what befell our kindred in Jolo. For two years they defied the Americans. Aye, and spat in their faces, putting them to scorn for calling themselves warriors. Then came the day of reckoning. Dost remember Bud Dajo? Not one Moro was left alive. All died fighting for the true faith. And Jikiri! Remember his end! He died in honorable battle against the infidel, but are we any stronger or are the accursed Americans any weaker through his sacrifice?"

"Bah! Those men on Dajo were fools to fight behind 'cottas', to allow themselves to be surrounded by the unbelievers with artillery. They deserved their fate. And Jikiri! Who was he? One who ate the infidel's salt, who worked with his hands under a Christian taskmaster—an unbelieving low caste dog!" The Hadji spat eloquently as he ended and glanced fiercely about the circle. "It is not for such ends as that that I would lead you."

"Listen! We ten will go to Bongao the next dark night, destroy their boats and slit the neck of the Christian dog who leads them. Without this white man the Joloano traitors will not dare follow. We will then go from island to island and our people will gladly join us. The cuartel at Siassi will then be raided. Half of that garrison will join us and we can outfit ourselves with guns and ammunition. In two weeks we shall be masters of every island in the Tawi-Tawi group. Then we shall stamp out the shame of Bud Dajo."

Arsad searched the faces of his men, but their eyes were upon the ground.

"Remember the comet is to come next month. We shall give it to them as the omen of a holy war against the infidel. The ignorant will believe and follow us. What say you?"

"There is great fear in my heart," Housan spoke. "Treachery stalks abroad. The white man of Bongao seems to read our very thoughts."

"There is the Hadji Uzman," Ibrahim said, as he felt the questioning gaze of Arsad upon his averted face. "He will spy upon us. He has grown rich and powerful."

"I fear neither of these," Ali answered, as it came his turn to speak. "It is the gunboats. Before we could grow strong they would descend upon us from the sea to the northward and destroy us."

"May Allah curse your cowardly souls!" the Hadji cried in deepest disgust. "This island is no longer a place for aught but women and children."

"Listen, O Hadji," Housan interrupted. "All the world does not lie to the north. We know that the time is drawing near when Manuk Manca should do honor to you and your wife. We are very poor. To the south lie many islands where the hand of the American cannot reach. There we can get jewels for your wife and money to restore our fortunes. Let the other plan sleep until the Americans have another war in the north with the Filipino infidels. Then we can unite and throw off this grinding yoke."

Hadji Arsad was silent for several minutes, after hearing the wise counsel of Housan, and when he saw that his followers were a unit he with feigned graciousness conceded the point.

Two days later saw this lawless band adrift on the Sulu Sea. They had hoisted their lateen sails to catch the easterly monsoon and steered south. Without compass, and understanding nothing of the swift currents that circle about the Malay archipelago, the little vintas drifted upon the coast of Borneo. There they rested a day. Then launching their frail boats they skirted the great island. In the China Sea they encountered a severe typhoon, and for three days they struggled in its grasp. Finally, worn out with constant wakefulness, they entered a little bay. Upon landing they found it an island of the Celebes, owned by the Dutch. The hospitality they received in the small town they would have gladly returned by killing and looting, but there was a detachment of sailors quartered there, and the petty officer would not even allow them to leave without first seeing and recording their cedulas of identification, showing them to be subjects of the United States of America.

The party was reinforced now by one Umugan, a Moro from Palawan. He had fled the country some years past to escape the penalty of robbery and murder. Arsad recognized in him an able confederate. Umugan was a pilot. He had sailed the coast in a Dutch trading schooner. He agreed to take them where they could fill their shirts with booty and steep their barongs deep in blood.

The breeze was favorable, and at dawn on the second day following the three boats grounded on the beach in front of a small Dutch trading post. The town behind contained about five hundred souls.

The settlement was still wrapt in slumber, and when the people awakened it was to see their town in flames and themselves robbed and then put to the sword. Every human who did not flee to the jungle was butchered in cold blood. The natives, lacking leaders, not knowing the number of their attackers, were easily conquered, and then came the hour for booty. The great store contained many costly things, all of which went into the shirts of the raiders, to be equally distributed thereafter. Twenty thousand dollars' worth of jewels, money and valuable silks were distributed among the eleven pirates.

Before they left the ill fated town Hadji Arsad became suspicious of discovery. The wonderful richness of his loot had made him suddenly cautious. No living soul should be left to identify them. The murderers returned to the town and diligently put to death the wounded, the old and the sick. Even little children were killed. And then they sailed away.

Five days passed, and then one day Auna, the Hadji's wife, awoke in the early morning to find her lord on his mat at her side. She drew away from him in horror. Although he had ever been kind, there was always a look in his eyes that filled her with repulsive dread. For three weeks he had been absent, and each day she had prayed that he might never return. But Allah had not heard her prayer. She saw his face was gaunt and drawn and he slept the sleep of exhaustion.

Silently she arose, telling the servants of the master's return, and went to the beach for her morning ablutions. As she returned to the sleeping room the Hadji awakened and enfolded her quivering form within his apelike arms. She was passive, but shuddered involuntarily. Releasing her suddenly, he closed and barred the door, drawing the cheap cloth curtains across the windows. This done, he began to unwrap with eager fingers the sash about his waist. Upon the mat at his feet fell a profusion of rings and bracelets, all studded with priceless jewels. With childish joy Auna filled her small, shapely hands with the glittering gold tokens. Then she gazed into his face and what she read there made her shudder.

PERILOUS ADVENTURES TOLD BY AND OF LIVING PERSONS.

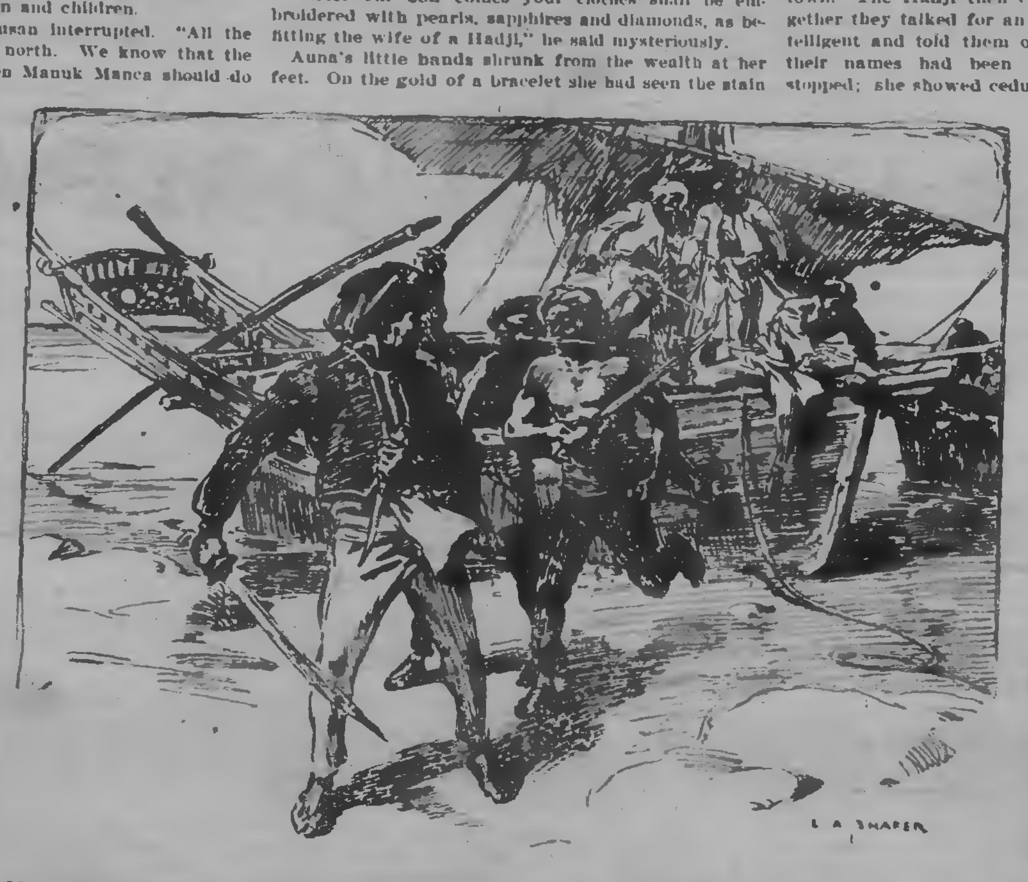
"See, little wife," Arsad chuckled, "I no tell lies! All are for my Auna!"

To her breathless questions he would make no answer.

Appearance of the Avengers.

"After our son comes your clothes shall be embroidered with pearls, sapphires and diamonds, as befitting the wife of a Hadji," he said mysteriously.

Auna's little hands shrunk from the wealth at her feet. On the gold of a bracelet she had seen the stain of blood, and she suddenly understood her husband's silence.



He Agreed to Take Them Where They Could Fill Their Shirts With Booty and Steep Their Barongs in Blood.

It was common talk on Manuk Manca that the Hadji Arsad had led a successful raid, even as in the days before the coming of the Americans, and that he and his followers had waxed rich in gold, silver and jewels. The Hadji had become a great man in the minds of all the Moros of the little island, and his fame had travelled to the larger islands of the Tawi-Tawi group. The piratical spirit of the Sulu Seas had been aroused and all were eager and anxious to follow him wherever he might lead. The wealth and splendor of the sultanate of Tawi-Tawi would again become the boast of the Malay archipelago! The old priest Ulama plotted within his house. To betray the Hadji into the hands of the constabulary officer at Bongao and be rewarded with the renewed confidence of that insidious young white man was what his interest and jealousy dictated, yet the priest knew that he was being watched by the Hadji's fierce followers and dared not make the trip openly.

In another week the comet appeared in the eastern sky. The natives saw it, growing ever brighter, as they went to the beach for their daily morning bath. With the added prestige of success the Hadji had called his followers together and a plan, at once daring and promising great wealth and power, was discussed. With a strong following of fighting men they would turn the bows of their vintas northward. 'A holy war directed upon the infidel would be acclaimed. Even the Sultan of Sulu, the chosen of Allah, was doomed to die if he would not join the holy strife against the Christian dogs, who had turned the warlike men of Sulu to water.

Great were the preparations on Manuk Manca and wild was the joy in the heart of Arsad, but in the early morning of the day chosen to start, a white gunboat, whose sides bristled with artillery and carrying a flag strange to their eyes, passed through the Straits of Simanor toward Bongao. Two hours later the stranger returned, accompanied by another steamer, and both dropped their anchors just beyond the reef, off the settlement of Manuk Manca.

Arsad and his fellow murderers, swearing vengeance on the heads of those who would dare aid in their capture, escaped to the dense jungle and then doubling on their trail came to the beach a mile below the town. They watched boat load after boat load of men land on the edge of the reef and wade across the three hundred yards of shallow water to the town, where they knew the cringing Ulama waited to receive them.

Hardly had the troops been landed when steam launches began to circle the island. The renegades saw these vessels propelled by invisible means seek out the vintas hauled high on the beach; then they saw small parties of armed men land, launch the craft discovered, and in long lines astern tow them back to the village.

Arsad, bidding his men follow, turned and plunged across the island, intent upon concealing several vintas before the searchers arrived, and then that night, under cover of darkness, escaping to Simonor. But after an hour's breathless chase they found the enemy already there and the beach patrolled by several coast guard vessels. The volunteers from Simonor and Bongao were quickly launching the vintas hauled up there, and the coast guard vessels were taking them in tow.

All night long Arsad and his men searched the beach for a boat overlooked by the patrols, but none was found. The gunboats and coast guard kept their search lights playing on the water all night long to frustrate an escape. The Hadji's men kept within the jungle shade, believing that if they were discovered by the gunboat's eye, its artillery would at once be opened upon them. Then they conceived the idea of boldly seizing a boat hauled up on the beach of the town, but after creeping on their bellies for hours they saw a cordon of soldiers and volunteers around the town, and on the beaches were patrols carrying lanterns, guarding the massed boats.

At dusk on the second day they encountered a woman passing along the trail they dared not use. The Hadji stopped her, drawing her away into the jungle. She told him that each night a woman would come and leave food at the water hole south of the town. The Hadji then called his followers, and together they talked for an hour. The woman was intelligent and told them of the Dutch gunboat; how their names had been obtained and where they stopped; she showed cedulas and said that the young lieutenant at Bongao had at once been able to tell the captain of the Dutch vessel where Hadji Arsad and his followers could be found, and he and all his men had come to help in the search. More troops were expected in a few days.

That night the hunted men built a raft and launched it, but the search lights drove them back, and once they were near capture from a patrol of American soldiers on the beach.

Regaining their cave, which they had used as headquarters, they slept fitfully the remainder of the night. Lacking both food and drink, at dawn the Hadji led them to the water hole. He swore a great oath as they suddenly emerged into a wide trail freshly cut. He saw that it divided the island in twain, and when standing in it he could see a half mile in either direction. His followers looked at each other, a great fear in their eyes; the island in a single night had been made one-half smaller. Their enemy stationed along the trail in sight of each other would make it impossible for the hunted men to cross without discovery.

All day they lay hidden in the jungle, starting at the smallest sound. Housan came back from the sea beach in the afternoon, whence he had been watching. He reported the arrival of more gunboats and more soldiers. Ibrahim suggested in a quavering voice the advisability of surrender. The Hadji drew his barong and tried the edge with his thumb nail and nothing more was said.

All during the day and night the jungle resounded with shouts and the noise of falling trees and shrub; a babel of tongues came to the ears of the cringing murderers, now concealed within their cave. Several times one would go out to observe, bringing back the intelligence that the American soldier was in force among the native troops and volunteers, and that officers on horseback could be seen riding over the freshly made trails.

The night wore on and the men who had gone for food and water had not returned. As they crawled through the jungle they heard a gong ringing loudly in the village. They saw from a distance some women on the trail leading to the village. They stopped them and questioned them closely. The Hadji learned that thereafter all must remain within the cordon of sentries. All outside would be shot by the soldiers on sight. At the water hole they saw signs of a struggle. Their two men had either been killed or captured.

The Hadji saw that the spirit of his followers was weakening. In despair he offered to lead them in an attack on the American camp, where they could die gloriously killing the infidel, but they could not agree. The next day they could not obtain water; every water hole was guarded by a strong force of the enemy. They had nothing to eat and their tobacco was finished. They lay in their cave all day, and that evening they skirted the beach and hid in a cave on the south shore.

The Fate of the Hadji.

When the Hadji awakened from his dreamless sleep the sun was already high. He glanced about in the gloom for his followers. He crept out through the narrow entrance and gazed about him. He heard the shouts of the hunters and the crash of bushes swept aside. He smiled bitterly as he realized his men had deserted him. They had preferred the almost certain chance of death by execution to the hunted life where sudden annihilation lurked behind every bush. He knew that he was safer without his cowardly deserters. The numerous caves would afford him ample hiding places even if the island were honeycombed with trails. He sought another cave far from the one just occupied. He must not trust his former friends too far, but to them for not killing him in his sleep and carrying his head as a peace offering to the Governor he was beholden. As he traversed the island he crossed four new trails, each unoccupied as yet. All were parallel to each other and about one mile apart. The trails guarded and himself between, he saw that he could be hunted down like a rabbit before the hounds. The thought was not pleasant, and he felt less bitterly toward those who had deserted him.

Inspiring thoughts drifted through the Hadji's mind. If he could elude the Christian dogs, with their boasted strategy, for a week or more, he was sure the Americans would withdraw; the volunteers from Simanor would become wearied and return home. His friends in town would keep him supplied with food if he dared go for it to the water holes. Then he, Arsad, would be a great man among his people. Was it nothing to defy five hundred soldiers, and mostly Americans, on an island as small as Manuk Manca? Maybe the Governor of Jolo, seeing his influence over the people, would disgrace Uzman and make him, the Hadji Arsad, Governor of Tawi-Tawi in his stead. His heart beat fast as he looked upon the visions of his future splendor.

As he lay near one of the trails he saw a long line of soldiers pass him. Two hundred men he counted, and then, with a great shout that travelled down the never ending column, the men came to rest in the trail. The Hadji, in fear, began to crawl away, but he had not covered fifty feet of ground when bugle calls sounded, and with an American yell his enemies turned. With scarcely the interval of a yard between the soldiers they came rapidly through the jungle toward him.

Getting to his feet, he ran with the energy of despair. Creepers tripped him and the cruel thorn bushes tore great gashes in his flanks. His barong he used to cut his way, holding it ready to sacrifice life dearly if overtaken. The shouts of the soldiers spurred him onward. Half an hour brought him to the next trail. As he crossed it he heard the report of a rifle and glancing around saw a second column of troops advancing. The heat of the jungle was intense; his lungs were as if on fire. The beach suddenly came into view. At its edge he stopped. Out on the water were many small boats filled with sailors. One boat suddenly opened fire upon him at close range. He shrank back into the jungle.

A red fezzed native came into sight; off to the right and left he could hear the crashing of shrub as the line advanced. Fear and rage undermined his judgment. With a shriek he rushed forward, his barong raised high. He felt himself sink into the earth. Stunned, but not hurt, he rose to his feet, finding himself beneath the frail coral crust, through which he had broken, and there before his eyes was the mouth of a small cave. He entered precipitously, edging as far back as he could in the darkness. He felt himself suddenly seized by a cold, slimy creature. Its long tentacles enveloped his waist and legs. He attacked it so fiercely with his barong that it fled before him. At other times he would have cringed with fear at the sight of a giant octopus.

The next morning before dawn he went to the water hole. As he approached cautiously, determined to get water at any cost, he saw a figure standing silently on the trail. He recognized the priest, Ulama. The headman saw the crouching figure and said:—

"I am alone."

Arsad lowered his knife.

"Is it peace between us?" he asked, wondering at his mission.

"Aye, peace!" Ulama exclaimed fiercely. "The unbelieving dogs have held me tied hand and foot. They accused me of taking you food, of knowing your hiding places. They have stripped our trees of the cocoanut and have befouled the ground. When I swore an oath on the Koran that I knew nothing, they cursed the sacred book and threw it aside. They may be watching, but there is yet time." He pressed into Arsad's hands some betel nut, cigars and matches.

"Where are Housan and the others?" Arsad asked.

"In chains aboard the Dutch ship," Ulama replied. "The Governor from Jolo is here and considers your raid on foreigners far worse than on our own people.

"If you surrender to the Governor now, he may save your life," Ulama added, a gleam of cunning in his eyes.

The Hadji spat disgustedly on the trail.

The two men separated. Arsad returned to his cave. He was aware of the nearness of the octopus, but felt not a tremor of fear.

The next night he crept toward the town. The spirit of the Juramentado was upon him, but the thought of his son, who was due to come into the world, prevented him from giving in to the religious frenzy. The sentries heard noises in the brush and fired frequently toward him. One night he saw the tents were down, and just before dawn he saw boatloads of men leaving the beach and the gathering of many steamers on the sea near the village. He crept forward. There were no sentries to block his way. In the early morning he stole into his own house.

Auna awakened and beheld him. His frame was shrunken and his face haggard with suffering. The pitiful loneliness of that form, as he leaned against the wall, overcome with exhaustion, only served to arouse in her breast fear and loathing. The wail of an infant filled the small room, and the hunted man started from his sleep, his knife ready. The fierceness in his eyes softened.

"Praise be to Allah!" he exclaimed, as he took his child tenderly into his arms.

"It is a boy?" he asked, anxiously. Auna nodded, her face averted.

Refreshed with food and drink and cleansed with the water Auna brought him, he stepped boldly out into the town.

"Is it peace?" he asked, as Ulama approached. "You swear on the Koran you mean no treachery?"

The two grasped hands. Others crowded about him to do honor. The time of which he had dreamed had come. He had defied five hundred soldiers and was the father of a son at last. A great joy filled his breast.

Suddenly from around the point came a white gunboat. Arsad thought only of treachery. Ulama tried to explain, but with a savage oath Arsad's sharp edged barong was drawn. His first inclination was to flee back into the jungle, yet first he would be avenged upon the traitor who had lied to him on the sacred book. He rushed upon the priest; a fanatical frenzy gleamed in his eyes. His foot struck a rock and he fell at Ulama's feet. The headman raised his staff, bringing it down upon the Hadji's head with great force. Stunned by the blow, he tried to rise and flee, but those who a moment before would have acclaimed him a hero closed in upon him and with stones and knives left him a quivering corpse, to be shunned by the roadside.

Auna came and gazed upon what an hour ago had made her tremble in fear and loathing. She spat upon the mutilated body of her lord, spurning it with her tiny foot.

"The Tawi-Tawi dog!" she cried contemptuously, and turned to enter the house where Arsad's boy lay screaming.

The gunboat stood in until it reached shallow water, then turned and disappeared to the northward.

Ulama delivered to Hadji Uzman the ghastly head of the notorious outlaw, who in turn sent it to the general commanding the troops and Governor of Jolo. Both Uzman and Ulama were rewarded for their faithfulness.

THE NEXT TWO WEEKS MUST BE ROUSERS

The first week of December brought phenomenal selling, but the two weeks that are left before Christmas will have to be crowded with simply extraordinary selling, if our object is attained of a $25,000 OUTPUT IN DECEMBER. It takes a lot of goods to count up to that amount, but if LOW PRICES on high-grade seasonable goods will do it, we will reach the goal.

DID WOMAN TAKE PART IN LAKEFIELD ROBBERY?

Was in Company of Two Men Whose Actions Were Suspicious.

There have been no arrests made in connection with the safe blowing exploit at Lakefield on Sunday morning but the police would like to secure some light on an early Sunday morning incident.

It appears that two men and one woman came into the city from the north in a vehicle. The horses were covered with foam and one of the men and the woman caught the 5.51 C.P.R. west bound, while the remaining man returned in a northerly direction with the outfit.

Burglars have been busy too at Port Hope, the Guide, having the following report to make—

Burglars entered the store of G. V. Strong last night and carried away a large quantity of cigarettes, cigars and tobacco.

The perpetrator cut a part of the sash of the window at the back but unable to gain entrance in this manner he forced the rear door open.

The matter was reported to Chief Bond this morning and he at once set out to round up the guilty one. He visietd the station and here he found a stranger unable to give a satisfactory acount of himself. The Chief invited the young man to accompany him and while the invitation was not appreciated to a great extent, the prisoner thought it wise to accept. When searched, several packages of cigarettes, tobacco., a tobacco case, an old country comic paper and fifty-two cents were found upon the prisoner. He told the Chief he received the comic paper from Toronto, several months ago. The paper however is dated Dec. 2nd. The prisoner claims that he knows nothing whatever of the robbery but he will have a chance to explain to the court tomorrow. He states that he has been working on a farm about six miles north of Cobourg.

CAN'T CONTROL ISSUE.

Publicity Will Help U. S. Railway Security Problem.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 12.—The railroad securities commission, headed by President A. T. Hadley of Yale, has reported that it would be practically impossible at this time to place issues of railroad securities under federal control. The commission recommends that enforced publicity for all railroad financing is the most effective weapon against stock watering which the Government has at its command.

The commission was created in 1910, when the Senate refused to accept a House amendment to the pending railroad bill, providing that all future issue of stocks of railroad securities be placed under the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission's report is distinctly adverse to the legislation proposed in the railroad bill and President Taft, in transmitting the report to Congress yesterday, declared that he heartily concurred in the recommendations.

The commission's principal conclusions are:

That any attempt by Congress to adopt the policy of the federal regulation to the exclusion of state regulation would be premature.

That for the present, state authorities should make a concerted effort to harmonize existing requirements.

That Congress should prepare for the future by giving consideration to a federal incorporation act which would permit the interstate railroads to exchange their state charters for national ones.

The commission takes the ground that constitutional questions involving the scope and extent of federal authority are unsettled and will remain so for some time; and that while such a condition exists to superimpose federal regulation upon state regulation would add to the conflicts and complexities, which in the public interest, should rather be diminished than increased.

Indictment and prosecution of railroads which fail to refund promptly manifest overcharges on the transportation of freight, hereafter will be requested by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Lynchers Were Hypnotized.

London, Dec. 12.—Auto-suggestion was the defence accepted by the judges at Agram, in Hungary, yesterday, when they acquitted six peasants who had taken part in a brutal case of lynching.

The inhabitants of the Village of Bibnik, in Croatia, had been greatly excited by a number of cases of arson in the neighborhood, and as the authorities failed them, they organized a police force themselves.

Armed with scythes and shotguns, they finally seized an itinerant brushmaker. He was dragged before the assembled villagers and tortured until he made confession. Then more than a hundred men and women beat him to death with flails, chopped up the body with scythes, and burned the fragments in a heap of straw.

Though the public prosecutor asked for death sentences, defending counsel succeeded in persuading the judges that the peasants in the common excitement had, so to speak, mesmerized one another, and were therefore not responsible for their actions.

Fur Flies at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Dec. 12.—Actions and counter actions for alleged libel and slander are threatened by the candidates in West Ottawa to-day, irrespective of the outcome of the election.

J. A. Ellis, Conservative candidate and city treasurer, says he will sue Dr. Gordon Henderson, Liberal candidate, for statements on the platform regarding payment of civic laborers before the money was due.

RETREAT FROM CORRUNA

(With Apologies to Chas. Wolfe)

Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note,
As the Conservatives to the polls they hurried;
We knew it was only a farewell shot,
O'er the grave of the Liberal, we buried.

We buried him nicely at five that night,
With the Otonabee power still turning;
We thought of the Hydro-Electric lights,
And wished that they were burning.

Few and short were the prayers we said,
And we spoke not a word of sorrow;
But we steadfastly gazed on the face of Peck,
As we knew, he would laugh on the morrow.

Lightly we'll talk of the Liberal gone
And trust no Conservative will upbraid him;
For little he'll reck when compared with Peck,
And the place where we have laid him.

And now our heavy task is done,
And the clock strikes the hour for retiring;
We'll leave him alone, the Liberals can moan,
With reciprocity cloaks around them.

Geo Carter Was Injured While in Their Employ

With Judge Huycke presiding the December sittings of the quarterly jury sittings opened at one o'clock to-day, with the court room well filled.

Some of the legal men present were D. O'Connell, Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, R. Ruddy, K.C.; J. W. Curry, K.C., of Toronto, and G. N. Gordon.

The first case on the docket was that of Carter vs. the Toronto Railway Compaany, the former bringing in a suit for damages against the Toronto Railwaay Company for injuries sustained by him while in the employ of the company.

Mr. Curry was present in the interests of the Toronto Railwaay Company, and D. O'Connell conducted the case for the plaintiff.

Carter, it appears, went into the employ of the Railwaay Company as conductor, and it was during his first morning's work that he was knocked off the car by an auto, while standing on the street car foot board, and sustained such injuries that he waas laid up in St. Michael's hospital for some time, his expenses amounting to over $100.

Carter was placed in the box first, and his evidence was being heard at the time of going to press.

Another case to be tried at the quarter sessions is that of Gilbert Horton, accused of theft from the Lakefield Dairy Company, on which the jury retired to decide whether a true bill should be brought in against him or not OBJECT TO TRIAL.

Hebert Does Not Want Ne Temere's Legality Tested.

Montreal, Dec. 12—There will be opposition to any hearing of evidence on the legality of the ne temere decree, or on the legality of the Hebert marriage when the case is called in Practice Court to-day for hearing of evidence on the inscription for judgment asked for by the attorneys for the wife, Marie Emma Clouatre.

This opposition is being raised by the legal firm of Beaudin, Loranger, St. Germain, Guerin and Raymond, who state they have been retained as counsel for L. J. Lefevbre, attorney of record for the husband, and who has conducted the fight single-handed thus far.

These attorneys state that their client had announced his intention of withdrawing from the suit because he has not the funds to carry it on. This, the attorneys claim, Mrs. Hebert and her lawyers duly took cognizance of, and moved for formal declaration in their favor, and there was no question of legality or illegality of the marriage to be decided.

The recent request for a hearing of evidence on the legal aspect of the marriage, which is to be heard to-day is illegal, they say, for there is no argument to settle. The husband has by default desisted, claiming his rights in the first judgment, annulling the marriage and that settled it, his attorneys claim.

If by any chance the witnesses are heard to-day, they will not take part in it, but will take steps to have the proceedings declared illegal in the higher courts.

Probing United Shoe Machinery.

Boston, Dec. 12.—The criminal pleadings in the Government's suit against the directors and officials of the United Shoe Machinery Co., were completed yesterday with the arrangement of George W. Brown of Boston, who was in South America when he and his fellow directors were indicted for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. Mr. Brown, who is a venerable-looking business man, pleaded not guilty in the United States court to the two indictments, and furnished $10,000 bail for his appearance at the trial, the date of which has not been fixed.

Los Angeles, Dec. 12.—A sack containing ten pounds of dynamite, about 200 feet of fuse and a number of triplex caps, was found early yesterday by two boys in a doorway leading to the engine-room of a laundry.

Our Latitude.

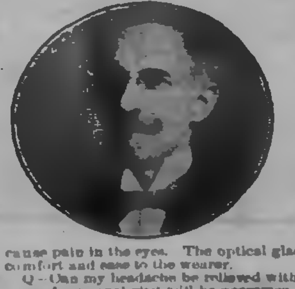
The British islands lie in the same latitude as the Province of Saskatchewan, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium and the northern part of Manitoba. Edinburg, Scotland, is farther north than any of the settled parts of Saskatchewan. Christiania, the capital of Norway, and St. Petersburg, Russia, are in the 16th parallel of north latitude, the northern boundary of Saskatchewan.

Only Two Roses.

The citizens of Montreal seem to have almost entirely overlooked the occasion of Trafalgar Bay, the hundred and sixth anniversary of Nelson's great naval victory by which the supreme command of the sea passed into the keeping of Great Britain. No flags flew in Montreal that day, no celebration was in progress and the Nelson statue opposite the Court House was decorated with two roses, one red and one white which offer up a pathetic plea to the memory of the great admiral.

Apples From Halifax.

The total apple shipments from Halifax so far this year is away ahead of the total shipments for all last season, including the winter exports of late apples. The total so far shows the number to be 352,000 barrels. Last year's total export of apples via Halifax was 270,000 barrels.



QUESTIONS ANSWERED

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q.—Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?

A.—Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q.—Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?

A.—Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

Q.—Can my headache be relieved with Glasses?

A.—A personal visit will be necessary. LET US TALK IT OVER.

NO PROTESTS ARE LIKELY IN THE ONTARIO ELECTIONS

Sir James at His Desk Again Tired but Cheerful.

Recount May be Asked for in Case of Hon. Dr. Reaume.

Toronto, Dec. 13.—Neither W. J. Carstairs, nor F. G. Inwood, the party organizers, have received notification yet that any election in the province will be protested, and it is believed that everything will stand as at present. "It would take several days before anything of this nature would develop," said Mr. Inwood last night, "as any parties wanting to contest an election would make pretty sure of their evidence before they would so so."

Sir James Whitney was quite cheerful but a little tired yesterday. He had nothing to say for publication regarding the election beyond what he said Monday night.

The result in Rainy River is still in doubt. One report has W. A. Preston, the former member re-elected, and another has it that an Independent Conservative was chosen. Sir James has wired for particulars.

Col. Hon. A. J. Matheson, Hon. J. S. Duff and Hon. Dr. Pyne were at the Parliament Buildings yesterday and spent the forenoon talking over the situation with the Prime Minister. The other members of the Cabinet are expected in town by to-night.

When Dame Toronto, Monday, again put on her old Conservative bonnet with the Whitney ribbon on it, which she has worn with few alterations for the past generation, but little surprise was occasioned. A. H. Birmingham, the local Conservative organizer, takes the sweeping victory as a matter of course, and has nothing to say of the result. Mr. Carstairs, the Conservative provincial organizer, experiences no especial elation over the vote in the province, as the net rsult was, of cours, a foregone conclusion.

Studholme Is Happy.

Hamilton, Dec. 13.—Although greatly fatigued by his strenuous campaign, Allan Studholme was the happiest man in Hamilton yesterday as the result of his decisive victory at the poll over Controllor W. H. Cooper, the Conservative candidate. The "old man" was not vainly puffed up, but gave the credit for his magnificent victory to those who had helped in the campaign.

Correct returns as given out yesterday, place Studholme's majority at 688 votes, his total vote being 3,525, while Cooper received 2,837. The vote cast in East Hamilton Monday was little more than 65 per cent. of the strength of the constituency. In the west riding, where interest in the election was not so keen, only a bare 50 per cent. of the vote was polled.

Reaume's Close Call.

Windsor, Dec. 13.—Revised returns show Hon. Dr. Reaume, Conservative, leading by 17. The election is in doubt and is claimed by both sides. A recount will likely be asked for.

SUFFRAGETTES IN BATCHES OF FOUR

Many More Sentenced to Two Month Jail Terms.

London, Dec. 13.—Twenty-two suffragettes, arrested with 200 companions in connection with the demonstration at the House of Commons on Nov. 21, were indicted at the London sessions yesterday. About 200 had been summarily sentenced by the police magistrate at Bow street police court on minor charges.

The accused who appeared yesterday had on their first appearance been committed for trial at the sessions and now had to answer more serious charges of maliciously damaging property.

All the prisoners pleaded not guilty. They were brought in in batches of four. The first group when found guilty refused to undertake to refrain from similar lawlessness in the future and were sentenced to two months in jail.

EXPLOSION ON DREADNOUGHT

Commander and Fifteen of the Crew of the Orion Injured.

Special to the Review

Portsmouth, Eng., Dec. 13.—Commander Herbert N. Garnett of the Naval Ordnance Department and fifteen of the crew of the Dreadnought battleship Orion were injured yesterday as the result of the explosion of an oil tank. The Orion is lying in one of the basins at the dockyards where she is being completed for commission. She is fitted for the consumption of both oil fuel and coal.

FAMINE IN RUSSIA

St. Petersburg, Dec. 13—The Minister of the Interior has introduced in the Duma a bill to authorise a credit of 118 million roubles ($59,000,000) for famine relief. Of this amount 42,000,000 roubles have already been expected.

GOV.-GENERAL VISITS MONTREAL

Their Royal Highnesses Given Big Reception in Metropolis.

Montreal, Dec. 13.—T.R.H. the Duke and Duchess of Connaught arrived here yesterday, accompanied by the Princess Patricia. Their visit will extend over four days.

Immediately on their arrival at 3 p.m. they were driven to the City Hall where the civic address of welcome was read, together with loyal addresses from the British Army and Navy Veterans. The royal party then drove to Royal Victoria College, where a special convocation of McGill University was held and the honorary degree of LL.D. conferred upon His Royal Highness.

Following this the Duke and Duchess of Connaught entertained a small party at dinner and later the public reception in their honor at the City Hall, was was attended by several hundred prominent citizens.

The weather was most inauspicious and the Governor-General and his party drove from place to place over streets inches deep in mud, in the midst of a steady drizzle of rain.

Despite the weather and that the mayor's proclamation of a public holiday met with little response from employers, owing to the Christmas rush being already on the streets were lined with people and cheers for the royal visitors were often heard.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS

The scholars of the city schools will be dismissed from their studies for the Christmas holidays on Friday, December 22, and the schools will reopen again on Wednesday, January 3.

The Normal School closes Friday, December 15, and reopens on Wednesday, January 3.

A NEW CHURCH

Bishop O'connor to Open Edifice at Orillia To-morrow

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor will officiate at an interesting ceremony at Orillia to-morrow when the new Roman Catholic church will be opened with appropriate ceremonies. The church which has just been completed under the supervision of Mr. Richard Sheehy, of this city, who had the entire contract, is a magnificent structure and one of the finest cut stone edifices north of Toronto. The Rev. Father Trayling is in charge. Mr. Sheehy will attend the opening.

Assailant May Be Insane.

Chatham, Dec. 13.—George Senior, the young English immigrant charged with a brutal assault upon his employer. J. W. Robertson of Harwich was remanded yesterday by Magistrate Stanworth for examination by alienists to determine his sanity. If the doctors pronounce Senior to be in his right mind, he will be tried for attempted murder.

Senior was infatuated with his employer's wife and said he tried to kill Robertson because he hated to see him have her. He knocked Robertson down with a spade and was attacking him with a knife when neighbors pulled him off.

C.N.R. Issue Fell Flat.

London, Dec. 13.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The issue of $35,000,000 of C.N.R. stock by Lazars closed early, the underwriter getting 90 per cent. The result shows its unpopularity at the present time considering the unfavorable condition of the market. The issue was of 3 1-2 per cent. 50-year stock at 93, guaranteed by the Dominion Government.

McKENNA WAS DISMISSED

London, Dec. 13.—Lord Charles Beresford in a speech at Leicester, referred to "England's naval unpreparedness during the Morocco crisis" and bluntly stated that Mr. McKenna was dismissed from the post of First Lord of the Admiralty.

"His grotesque antics during the late crisis," said Lord Charles, "led to his dismissal, and if the facts were generally known there would be considerable excitement in foreign countries."

It is significant that when Lord Charles remarked in his speech, "I don't see why we cannot come to some agreement with Germany," the audience cheered loudly.

Berlin, Dec. 13.—A Russo-Persian compromise is probably according to a telegram from Teheran to the German Cable company.

It is reported that Russia is satisfied with Persia's apology and that the Russian government will withdraw its demand for the dismissal of W. Morgan Shuster, the treasurer-general in Persia, and also that it will not ask for any indemnity. There will, however, in future, be an Anglo-Russian control over appointments of officials by the Persian government.

C.N.R.'s Big Land Deal.

Prince Albert, Sask., Dec. 13.—The biggest deal in northern Saskatchewan farm lands which has ever come to the attention of the local registry office is now being wound up. The Canadian Northern Railway is transferring a land grant to the Northern Saskatchewan Land Co., Ltd., and the latter company is paying $901,921.70 for the lands involved.

The lands in question are located at Tisdale, Birch Hills, Mellfort and Kinistine districts, and comprise townships 42 and 47, ranges 15 to 25 west of second meridian. The registration and title fees for this deal will approximate $1,175.

Looking Into Intercolonial.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—Owing to many complaints received by the Government about the management of the Intercolonial Railway, it has been decided to fully investigate conditions on that road.

As a means of investigation, Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways, has appointed Emile Jolly of Quebec, and James A. Macdonald, commissioners, to look into the charges of partisanship and neglect of duty preferred against some high officials of that company.

Tariff Changes.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—The feeling is growing that the federal budget when it comes down in January will contain some tariff changes. But if they do come down they will be few and judged to be absolutely necessary. The bulk of the suggested changes may be referred to the Tariff Commission, which, it is said, will be authorized in an early measure.

PAPAL DELEGATE PASSES AWAY

Sudden Passing of Monsignor Ambrose Agius at Manila

Special to the Review

Manila, Dec. 13— Monsignor Ambrose Aguis, papal delegate to the Philippines, and who had been regarded as the next papal delegate to Washington, died suddenly to-day.

Earl of Selbourne Moves Refusal—Vote 245 to 53

London, Dec. 13.—The House of Lords last night rejected the naval prize bill by a vote of 145 to 53. The Earl of Selbourne, in moving the rejection, objected to the constitution of the proposed international prize court, pointing out that it gave the British Empire only the same representation as that accorded to petty Central American republics. Furthermore, he sadi, the bill permitted an appeal from the British Privy Council to the prize court, but no corresponding appeal from the United States Supreme Court, the representatives of the United States having discovered that under their constitution it is impossible to carry an appeal from their supreme court to any international tribunal. It was, therefore, possible, Lord Selbourne argued, to get two sets of conflicting judgments.

The naval prize bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons on Dec. 7, a motion for its rejection being defeated by 172 to 125. Its rejection by the House of Lords had been predicted. The passage of the naval prize bill would be tantamount to approval of the Declaration of London, the international agreement respecting prizes in naval warfare.

According to The London Daily Telegraph, the rejection of the naval prize bill was determined upon by the House of Lords in order to prevent the Government from ratifying the Declaration of London. This procedure will delay the passage of the prize bill for two years, and the Declaration of London cannot be ratified until the prize bill has received the royal assent.

The Prime Minister, however, last June made it plain in the House of Commons that the British Government intended, despite all protests from British admirals, ship owners and chambers of commerce, to force through the ratification of the Declaration of London, which had been approved by the Government after the fullest possible deliberation.

Where Tail Wags the Dog.

Washington, Dec. 13—Railroad stock juggling, exemplified by the "tail wagging the dog," in the case of the Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroad, over 200 miles long, was discussed at yesterday's session of the house "steel trust" investigating committee. The short-line road is owned absolutely by the U. S. Steel Corporation, which also owns 51 per cent. of the stock of the longer road.

F. C. Baird, general freight agent of the short-line, was a witness. Chairman Stanley brought out that the shorter road's rental of the longer one netted the latter's stockholders about three per cent. a year profits, while the shorter road paid annual dividends of 334 per cent.

TRAIN WRECKED AT WEST PARRISH

Special to The Review.

Portland, Me., Dec. 13.—A special Grand Trunk train, carrying several hundred Canadian from the west to catch the Liverpool steamer, was wrecked at West Parish to-day. Many people were slightly injured, but none seriously.

ONE YEAR AGO

In striking contrast to the climatic conditions to-day was the weather of a year ago. Then it was exceedingly cold and the sleighing was excellent. One year ago last night the hockey team had its first workout at Brock street rink, while the toboggan slide and rink of the Street Railway Company was in full operation. The curlers also opened also opened their season at the rink. King Winter had a tight grip.

WALKED OUT OF THE COURT

Another Move in the Hebert Marriage Case—License Produced

Montreal, Dec. 13.—Walking out of the court in the middle of the proceedings, Eugene Hebert's lawyers protested yesterday morning against the re-opening of the famous Hebert marriage case. Despite these protests, however, Mr. Justice Charbonneau supported the lawyers for the wife in the case to the extent of agreeing to hear evidence and legal argument on the merits of the whole case involving the marriage of Roman Catholics by a Protestant minister.

Two witnesses were called by Mrs. Hebert's lawyers. One was Rev. Father Callahan, who was asked to produce a copy of the Ne Temere decree forbidding the marriage of Catholics by Protestant clergy. The decree now becomes a court record, known as exhibit H. 2, and its text was examined with considerable interest by Judge Charbonneau.

Rev. Wm. Timberlake, the Methodist minister who married Eugene Hebert and Emma Clouatre, was also called to produce a copy of the marriage license.

Emphasis was laid on this production of a marriage license because it is in reality issued by the Lieutenant-Governor, and empowers the clergyman before whom it is presented to solemnize the marriage.

M.C.R. Men Ask Arbitration.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—Three thousand men in western Ontario are deeply interested in an application which was received at the Department of Labor yesterday. It came from the station agents, telephone and telegraph operators of the Michigan Central Railway, who ask for a board of arbitration under the Labor Disputes Investigation Act, to take up matters connected with their working conditions and rates of pay. They also desire a new schedule of rules.

The present application is one of the most interesting that has ever been received by the Labor Department, as it applies to a company of which the principal officers are not citizens of Canada, but live in the United States.

Stabbed Herself to Death.

London, Dec. 13.—A poorly-dressed woman, about 55 years of age, who looks and talked like a foreigner, committed suicide at the G.T.R. station here yesterday by stabbing herself in the breast with a jackknife. She was from Belleville, where her trunk had been checked through to Detroit. When she reached London she got off and told the constable she had lost her ticket. She was taken to the stationmaster's office, and while left alone for a few minutes plunged the knife into her body. She was dead when found by officials. She had said she was out of money, and it is supposed this drove her to the desperate act.

WERE PROCLAIMED EMPEROR AND EMPRESS OF INDIA

Great Ceremonial at Delhi Is Carried Out With Impressive Pomp and Dignity King Emperor Gives Handsome Sum of Money For Education—Many Other Presents—Delhi Is to Become Seat of Civil Power.

Delhi, Dec. 13.—King George V. and consort, Queen Mary, were proclaimed Emperor and Empress of India yesterday. The culminating act of the monarch's accession to the throne of his vast Indian Dominions took place amid a scene which for richness of color and magnificence of decorations has probably never been surpassed in modern times.

The crowning was followed by an act of generosity on the King-Emperor's part, of which a slight hint had already been given. The viceroy proclaimed that the King-Emperor was to donate a large sum of money to promote the public education, and that further handsome gifts would be made.

The huge amphitheatre, which had been erected in the Durbar camp was thronged with people from an early hour. The bright tissues and sparkling gems of the many Indian princes and the smart uniforms of the soldiers contrasted strongly with the white dress of the European ladies and the sober garb of civilian officials.

The great feudatory princes and rulers of India, with the leading British officials occupied seats of honor near the pavilion located in the centre. Screened from the gaze of the curious by a lattice framework, a number Maharanis and other Indian ladies of high rank occupied two sections of the front galleries.

The interval of waiting was beguiled by the playing of military music. The soldiers played a large part in the Durbar and a guard of honor composed of 100 picked men was drawn up before the central pavilion.

Cheers, mingled with sobs, heralded a little body of veterans, the survivors of the armies which had made the present Durbar possible. The old fighters in their weather-beaten uniforms strove to keep up a show of military formation as they marched to the privileged place allotted them, but generally it was impossible, and many of them limped to their seats.

Almost immediately the vice-regal procession came into view. Escorted by a brilliantly-uniformed native bodyguard, the Viceroy and Lady Hardinge sat in their state carriage, drawn by blooded horses, with outriders uniformed in scarlet and gold.

Carriage after carriage with members o fthe suite followed the imperial pair. The guard presented arms and the bands burst into the royal anthem.

When this gorgeously uniformed line had filed past the imperial and vice-regal parties appeared before the vast assemblage in the Durbar amphitheatre. When they took their seats on the crimson dais the strains of the National Anthem were heard and the people rose as one person and stood in profound silence. It was a pretty group around the four thrones of the Emperor, the Empress, the viceroy and the vicereine at the back of which the imperial and vice-regal staffs and the Imperial Cadet Corps, composed entirely of youthful princes and scions of princely families formed in rank.

The first formal act of the ceremony was performed by the Foreign Secretary, who advanced to the dais and asked permission of the Emperor to open the Durbar. At his signal a long roll from the drums and a thrilling call from the bugles were sounded followed by a triumphant peal of music from the bands. Then a note from the heralds' silver trumpets rang over the plain.

At that moment appeared the striking figure of the imperial herald mounted on a jet black charger and blazing in his brilliant uniform of gold and purple. Behind him were a drummer and sixteen trumpeters, eight British and eight natives. Halting for an instant they sounded another blast and then rode slowly toward the dais where they gave a third call before saluting.

The Emperor then commanded the heralds to read the proclamation announcing the coronation. The herald wheeled his charger round and read aloud so that all could hear that George had been crowned King-Emperor. At that moment the Royal Standard was unfurled from the tall flagstaff in the centre of the arena. The National Anthem was played by the massed bands and as the last notes of the music died away, 101 guns boomed the tidings of the proclamation.

Along the never-ending line of infantry rattled out a continuous firing of blank cartridges.

The herald retired to the entrance of the arena, sounded a further flourish, and the Emperor arose from his throne and bowed to all sides. He sat down once more, the herald called for three cheers for the Emperor, and a mighty roar burst from over 100,000 throats. Natives vied with the British in their acclamations and the cheers within the arena were continued by the troops outside until they extended to the horizon.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, Lord Hardinge announced that the King had resolved to devote immediately fifty lakhs of rupees (about $1,600,000) to the promotion of popular education in India, and that further generous gifts will be made for the same purpose.

He also announced that half a month's pay would be granted to the non-commissioned officers and the men as well as to the reservists of the British army in India, and that officers and men of the native army in India would be eligible hereafter to be awarded the Victoria Cross for bravery on the field of battle. A half month's pay was also granted to subordinate civil servants and certain classes of prisoners were released from jail.

Another important change announced by Lord Hardinge was that the seat of Government was in the future to be transferred from Calcutta to Delhi.

The greatest of Durbars ever held in India then came to an end with the National Anthem and a final burst from the silver trumpets.

As the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress, accompanied by Lord and Lady Hardinge and their suites, left the amphitheatre they were cheered time and again by the crowd until they reached their tents.

Caluctta has been the capital of India since 1773. No intimation had been given out that King George was considering changing the seat of Government. No ancient emperor of India ever dreamed of the magnificence and splendor which yesterday marked the formal proclamation of King George and Queen Mary as Emperor and Empress.

King George is the first reigning British Sovereign to visit the Far East, and native potentates and British officials eclipsed themselves in the granduer of the setting for the ceremony. Gems of fabulous value gleamed on the 150 native potentates, but their brilliancy was dimmed by the crown of Queen Mary, from which sparkled the famous Koh-i-noor diamond, for ages the choicest possession of the native emperors, and hundreds of other glittering jewels. King George's crown was equally magnificent. It had been made especially for the ceremony, and no inkling of its design had been given the public. In the centre was a 34-karat Indian emerald, surrounded by 6,170 magnificent diamonds.

OLDEST LABOR UNIONIST DEAD

Special To The Review.

St. Catharines, Dec. 13.—William Bald, oldest labor unionist on the continent, is dead here, aged 97. He was a member of the Carpenters' Union for 74 years.

Was Picked up Near Scene of Robbery at Lakefield.

Another incident, which may in some way be connected with the Lakefield robbers has come to the notice of the authorities. When the men employed by the G.T.R., under Section Foreman Delahey, at Auburn, returned to work Monday morning, they found that the door at the tool house, where the hand-car is stored, had been broken open and the tools had all been taken off the car, where they had been placed on Saturday, when the men were through work. Investigation showed all the tools to be in the house except an axe. Section Foreman Weborne, at Lakefield, said that the axe that was found on the scene of the Lakefield robbery was the same as the one stolen from the tool house at Auburn. There has also been a few well dressed men hanging around between Jackson Park and Lillie Lake for the last couple of weeks. They broke into an old shanty on the G.T.R. and cooked their meals, which were of the very best variety, if the remnants are any indication. Since the recent robbery, however, they have not been seen.

HORSE'S LEG SWELLED

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by "Nerviline."

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P. O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore, and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

Nerviline is a Trusty Liniment

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters, recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large bottles of Nerviline 50c; trial size, 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

NERVILINE FOR MAN OR BEAST

The Daily Review

MINISTER OF POWER

Hon. Adam Beck will now become Minister of Power in the Whitney Cabinet and will proceed with the extension of cheap light, heat and motive energy to the towns and villages and even to the farms of the whole Province. As a Minister in the new government, Hon. Mr. Beck and his department, will have every facility to hand to properly cope with any situation that may arise regarding the power question, and they will be able to give the people an unsurpassed service in the transmission of hydro-electric energy. Peterborough should be in a position to advantage of the hydro-electric system and no doubt will be after the voting on Jan. 1st next. The service has proved itself of great benefit to the many places that have tried it.

BRITISH DIPLOMACY

British diplomacy is again to the fore in the Russo-Persian affair and it looks as if that is where the whole key to the situation rests. Nobody doubts that Russia's purpose was to pick a quarrel with Russia and annex some of it. The announcements of the British government seemed all to be aiding and abetting Russia in her predatory excursion. But that government is now able to tell parliament that Russia's visit to Persia is 'purely administrative' and that there is every prospect of the incident passing over peacefully. Persia is ready to hold friendly negotiations with Russia and so forth. Whether this means merely some duplicity on the part of Russia or a real result cannot yet be said, but it seems plain that Britain has been throwing her weight against the progress of Russia into Persia and that Persia's appeal in her extremity to Britain's mediation has not been in vain, so far, at least, as the exercise of Britain's good offices are concerned.

If Russia keeps the promises she has made to the British Foreign Office, that she will not partition Persia, that she will not interfere with the constitutional government of Persia, that she will not restore the Shah, it will be a sad blow to the St. Petersburg jingoes. At any rate a critical situation which might have involved all the great powers of Europe has been averted for the time being, thanks to British diplomacy.

Yesterday was a great day in Delhi when King George was crowned Emperor of India, amid scenes of barbaric splendor and magnificence such as no monarch has witnessed for hundreds of years. The pomp and circumstances which invested the ceremonies was a further concession to the Indian subjects who can hardly imagine authority unless it is magnificent in appearance.

During the past month of November there were thirteen trade disputes in Canada, according to the Labor Department's strike record. This was six more than in Nov. 1910. Fifty-one firms and nearly twelve thousand employees were involved and the loss in working days amounted to approximately one hundred and forty thousand.

Must Win Sometime

Toronto News.

Sir James Whitney will not begrudge the Opposition their net gain of four seats. At that rate of progress with an election every four years it will take Mr. Rowell 32 years to secure a bare majority in the Legislature. If he is inclined to be discouraged at this prospect let him remember that Moses led the Israelites for forty years in the wilderness before they entered the promised land and even then another leader took them across the Red Sea. Who will be the Liberal Joshua in the dim years to come? For they must win some time.

Enemies an Asset

Toronto Telegram.

Ontario learned to love Sir James Whitney for the enemies he made in the crisis in the hydro-electric fight.

The banks and corporations of this province imagined that they were weakening Sir James Whitney when their organs painted the Ontario Premier as an anarchist and a wrecker of Canadian credit.

These interests brought more votes to Sir James Whitney with the abuse they put into the columns of their organs than could have been bought for Sir James Whitney with all the millions they could have put into a campaign fund.

C.N.R. President Leaves For France.

Montreal, Dec. 13.—Sir Wm. Mackenzie arrived in Montreal yesterday and left at noon for Halifax, on his way to France, to spend Christmas with his son-in-law and daughter, the Count and Countess de Lesseps. He was accompanied by D. B. Hanna, vice-president and general manager, Canadian Northern Railway, who is going to England on business.

Sir William said that he would have no announcement to make regarding the plans of the C.N.R. terminals in Montreal until his return, early in the new year. His representatives in this city, he said, were still hard at work on the scheme, and Col. Davidson, the company's land commissioner, had come down from Toronto yesterday to personally settle up the land end of the scheme.

Britain Averts Big Strike.

London, Dec. 13.—The Government, after inducing the employes of the Postoffice Department not to strike on the eve of the Christmas holidays, has obtained another victory, when yesterday, through its efforts, a second strike of the railway men was averted. The conference, which was brought about by the Government, ended in the signing of an agreement which, though it does not contain any provision for the direct recognition of the unions by the companies, greatly facilitates the access of the workmen to their employers when matters are in dispute, and for which purpose the unions were formed. In the opinion of many of the labor leaders this action will ultimately lead to the recognition of the union directly.

THE POSTMASTER SICK FOR YEARS

But he Found Permanent relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mr. John Nolan had Backache, Nervousness, and Rheumatism but cured them so they didn't come back.

Point La Nim, Restigouche Co., N.B. Dec. 12. (Special) — That as a renewer of youth, Dodd's Kidney Pills has no equal is the experience of John Nolan, the veteran postmaster of this place. Sixty years of age but still strong and healthy, Mr. Nolan declares he owes his health to the great Canadian Kidney remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For ten years I was a sufferer with Backache, Nervousness and Rheumatism," says the Postmaster. "I was so bad at times that I was confined to my bed. I felt heavy and sleepy after meals, had flashes of light before my eyes and had difficulty in collecting my thoughts. After using several medicines without benefit I began to take Dodd's Kidney Pills, taking in all fifteen boxes. That was four years ago, and though I stopped taking the pills two years ago I have had no return of my trouble."

Backache, Nervousness and Rheumatism are all caused by diseased Kidneys. To cure them to stay cured you must cure the Kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills.

HOBBLE SKIRTS PUT GIRLS OUT OF WORK

Paris, December 13—French dressmakers assert that they lost $4,000,000 this year. It is said that 20.00 g0irls are out of employment because of the wearing of the hobble skirts and kimono blouses, which require half the usual amount of material.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 12.—There was a decided improvement in the demand for Manitoba spring wheat, and the bids from the United Kingdom were better than those from the continent, and as ocean grain room to the former ports is more plentiful than to the latter a fairly good business was done at an advance of 3d per quarter. An easier feeling has prevailed in the market for oats, and prices are ½c per bushel lower, with a fair amount of business doing in car lots.

The demand for American new No. 3 yellow corn is fair at 72c per bushel, ex-track. A fair volume of business is passing in flour for local account, but the foreign bids for spring wheat grades are 6d to 1s per sack out of line, and for winter wheat flour 1s. Millfeed is in good demand and firm. The trade in cheese is quiet, while the demand for butter and eggs is good. Provisions are steady under a fair demand.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—The railways 111 carloads of live stock at the City Market, consisting of 1776 cattle, 1286 hogs, 470 sheep and lambs, 94 calves and one horse.

Owing to the auction sale of prize stock at the Union Stock Yards, and many of the dealers attending it, trade on this market was slow, and quite a lot of offerings were left over for Wednesday's market.

Prices in all the different classes were about the same as Monday, quality considered.

this will be about the last opportunity before Christmas to obtain such cattle.

David Rowntree bought 100 lambs at $5.15 to $6.50; 30 sheep at $3 to $4.60; 12 calves at $5.00 to $8.

Charles Maybee and R. Wilson will have four loads of stockers and feeders of good quality, 800 to 900 lbs. each, for sale at the City Market on Wednesday and Thursday. Farmers or dealers needing such had better see these steers, as CHAPTER I.

The Sheridan Park Mystery

With a screaming of brakes, the elevated train on which I happened to be, jerked to a stop, and passengers intending to disembark were catapulted toward the doorways—a convenience supplied gratis by all elevated roads, which, I have observed, is overlooked by their patrons. I crammed the morning paper into my overcoat pocket, fell in with the outrushing current of humanity, and was straightway swept upon the platform, pinched through the revolving gates, and hustled down the covered iron stairway to the street. Here the current broke up and diffused, like the current of a river where it empties into the sea.

This was the first wave of the daily townward tide—clerks, shop-girls, and stenographers, for the most part, intent upon bread and butter in futuro. The jostling and crowding was like an old story to me; I went through the ordeal each morning with an indifference and abstraction born of long custom.

The time of the year was January, the year itself 1892. A clear, cold air with just enough frost in it to stir sluggish blood, induced one to walk briskly. It was still too early in the day for the usual down-town crowd, and I proceeded as fast as I wanted to, allowing my thoughts to dwell undisturbed on the big news topic of the day, which I had just been reading. And so I did, as I strode along, with the concern of one whose interest is remote, yet in a way affected.

So the great wheat corner was broken at last! The coterie of operators headed by Alfred Fluette had discovered to their dismay that the shorts were anything but "short," for all day yesterday the precious grain had been pouring into the market in a golden flood. Grain-laden vessels were speeding from Argentine, where no wheat was supposed to be; trains were hurrying in from the far Northwest; and even the millers of the land had awakened to the fact that there was more profit in emptying their bins and selling for a dollar and sixty cents a bushel the wheat that had cost them seventy-six cents, than there was in grinding it into flour.

It was another pirate of the pit who had brought disaster to the bulls—no other than that old fox Felix Page, himself a manipulator of successful big deals, and feared perhaps more than any other figure on the Board of Trade.

But his spectacular smashing of the memorable corner has passed into history. While Fluette's brokers were buying and sending the price soaring—skyrocketing is more descriptive, though—Felix Page was selling in quantities that bewildered and, since it was Page, alarmed the bulls. Insurance on the lakes had ceased with the advent of winter; the granaries of the world were supposed to be scraped clean; so it seemed that he must be rushing headlong to certain destruction. Still, seeing that it was Felix Page who was doing most of the selling, Fluette's crowd was nervous.

And the sequel, in all conscience, warranted their anxiety. For more than a week Felix Page's iron-prowed ships had been crushing and smashing their way through the ice, opening a way for other ships; yesterday they had steamed into port with their precious cargoes, demoralizing the bull clique with a deluge of golden grain.

Page settled; he had sold five million bushels, and he delivered the goods. This was the opening fissure. Fluette was soon overwhelmed, and to-day he and his crowd would be holding a melancholy wake over the corpse.

This, however, is not a story of stupendous battles in the arena of Commerce. I have merely gone behind my proper starting-point by a matter of ten minutes or so—no more—to lay before you one of those inexplicable coincidences which, when they are flung at us, shake us from our self-possession. The stage was already set for me; serenely unsuspecting, I was headed straight toward it.

Police headquarters was my destination, and I had no sooner stepped across the threshold than I was told that the Captain was wanting to see me at once. So I went direct to his private office, where he was deep in conference with a party of four men, who, in spite of a general air of gloom which seemed to envelop them, looked like a quartette of prosperous brokers. It occurred to me that they might have been struck by the stick of the spent rocket.

As the Captain abruptly broke off an earnest speech to wheel his chair round and address me, the four men stared at me with a curious, unwavering interest.

Fancy how I was staggered by the first words. My chief thrust a card in my direction, on which was penciled a street number.

"Go to this address at once, Swift," said he. "It looks like murder—old Page."

"Page!" I almost shouted. "You can't mean Felix Page!"

"What's the matter with you? Know anything about it?"

My stupefaction was pronounced enough to excite his wonder. I assure you, we are not often astonished at the Central Office.

I caught my breath and shook my head. Of course, I knew nothing about it. But it was something besides the amazing unexpected intelligence of Felix Page's death that struck me right between the eyes. With the mention of his name, my mind cut one of those unaccountable capers which everybody has at some time in his life experienced.

The names of Felix Page and Alfred Fluette had been before me in one way or another for days; I had followed the remarkable wheat deal with about the same degree of interest that animated everybody else who was not immediately concerned; but not until this moment had it impressed me that I knew something respecting Page which had not appeared in the papers in connection with the corner. What was it?

But I could not remember. This was the scurvy trick my mind was playing. I stood there staring at the others, and they sat staring at me. A question was halted provokingly upon the very tip of my tongue, which, despite a most earnest whipping of memory, remained obstinately elusive.

Felix Page! What particular, unusual circumstance was associated in my mind with that name? Why should it come to flout me at this juncture without revealing itself?"

My ineffectual effort to remember was cut short by my chief. He scowled, manifestly in perplexity at the way the news had affected me.

"These gentlemen," he said, with a gesture indicating the funereal quartette, "were more or less associated with Mr. Page; he don't seem to have had any close friends; but they can tell me nothing. Whatever line you pick up, you must find the end of it at the scene of the crime—the house. The address is on that card.

"Here's all I know about it: It must have happened sometime during the night; the report came in from Sheridan Park station about daylight. Three men from there, Patrolmen Callahan and O'Brien and a plain-clothes man named Stodger, are at the house holding two suspects until somebody shows up from the Central Office. Stodger's in a stew; can't seem to make head nor tail of what's happened.

"You hurry, Swift," he curtly concluded; "this is too important a matter to waste time over."

So it was. I saluted and hastily left him.

My brain was still in a whirl; my musings and the blunt, surprising announcement had come too close together for me to regard the supposed crime with unshaken equanimity. Then, too, I was vainly striving to drag from memory's hiding-place the tantalizing circumstance which I somehow felt was pregnant with possibilities in the light of the financier's death. What on earth was it? I thought of everything else I had ever heard or read about the man.

But I was young—not only in the service, but in years as well—and this was one of my first hard rubs with that heartless old pedagogue, Experience.

Felix Page had enjoyed—I use the word advisedly—a widespread reputation for eccentricity. The word, I held a secret conviction, was merely a polite euphemism to cover his unscrupulous nature. Many acts of his were condoned, or even laughed at, which would have been nothing short of outrageous if performed by another. He had been widely exploited as a "character"; in reality he had been a merciless old skinflint, with a supreme disregard for the rights or pleasures of others.

Still, it is not to be denied that his eccentricity did reveal itself in certain ways. After business hours he retired to a forlorn old mansion, where he lived alone, without kindred (if he had any) or servants, save an ancient dame who came of mornings to prepare his breakfasts, and to discharge, under his nagging supervision, the few domestic duties necessary to meet his requirements.

Something like a half-hour after leaving the Central Office, I arrived at the Page place. Stodger, a short, fat, good-natured chap, was awaiting my arrival—evidently with some impatience, for he was stamping to and from before the gate for warmth. As soon as he learned my business he conducted me up to the house.

On the way he gave me a hasty account of the crime, concerning which he frankly and whimsically confessed to be very much at sea.

A description of the house and grounds is in order. The location was all that could be desired, and would have been an ideal place of residence if rehabilitated from its sorry condition of neglect. The house faced the north end of Sheridan Park, a glimpse of whose lagoons could be caught here and there among the leafless trees. It sat well back from the wide boulevard, and, surrounded as it was by fine old elms and beeches and maples, it reminded me of some antiquated English country home, such as I have seen in pictures.

There were any number of chimney clusters; but the general air of the place was extremely cold and forbidding. Notwithstanding it was midwinter and that an inch or more of snow lay on the ground, there was not a wisp of smoke above any of the chimneys to indicate the welcome presence of a fire below.

A high iron fence extending along the front of the property was divided by a carriage entrance and a smaller gate for pedestrians. The former, barring the way to a weed and grass-grown drive, was hermetically sealed by rust; while the other was just as permanently fixed open by the accumulation of earth and gravel about its lower part. Two parallel rows of ragged, untrimmed privet designated the tortuous way of the drive to the unused porte-cochère.

"Nasty case," Stodger was imparting, in queer staccato sentences. "Shouldn't have much difficulty, though; responsibility lies between two men. Here all last night. Nobody else. Callahan and O'Brien holdin' 'em. One's Page's private secretary; fellow named Burke—Alexander Stilwell Burke. Peach of a monicker, ain't it? Has all three sections on his cards.

"The other's a young lawyer chap; calls himself Royal Maillot. I can't pry out of either of 'em what he was doing here."

"And nobody else, you say. Either one of 'em might have done it. They're down on each other for something; glare at each other like—like—you know—cat and dog."

"Go on."

"Well, this fellow Burke—Alexander Stilwell—he comes to our shack some time after two this A.M. Told the desk-sergeant old Page'd been croaked; wouldn't say anything more. Dippy? Say! Acted like somebody'd slipped him around o' knockout-drops. Sure thing, he did. Wouldn't budge till old Grimes sent me back with him. I'm only a license inspector, too. This is what I—h'm-m—I butted into. Dev'lish cold, ain't it?"

He had opened the front door and ushered me into a deep, wide hall. A broad stairway, with carved oak balusters, rose on one side to a landing which formed a sort of balcony over the rear end of the hall, and thence continued up to the second story.

WEAK LUNGS CURED!

Could Not Walk 100 Yards.

Seattle Man Pays High Tribute to Morriscy's No. 10 Lung Tonic.

SEATTLE, WASH., Feb. 10, 1910.

"I was a complete physical wreck, and went to Chatham to see Father Morriscy regarding my health. All my friends were sure I had consumption, and in fact, I was almost positive of it myself. I was so thin and weak that I could not walk 100 yards without sitting down to rest. Two months and a half from the date I commenced taking Dr. Morriscy's No. 10 prescription I was able to go to work in the hayfield and the following winter I worked in the lumber woods. I cannot say too much for his treatment, as I know he saved my life, and I considered his death a personal loss. Thank fortune his formulas were left behind for the sick and suffering, and as a monument to his great life-work."

C. Wellard Taylor.

The above prescription is not a "Cure-All" or so-called patent medicine. Dr. Morriscy prescribed it for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

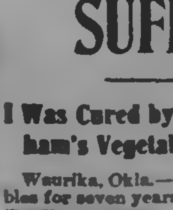
AFTER 7 YEARS SUFFERING

I Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Waurika, Okla.—"I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. In a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well."—Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 31, Waurika, Okla.

Another Grateful Woman

London, Ont.—I feel as if I could not tell others enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was so weak and tired that I could not rest nights. A friend recommended your Compound and I soon gained health and strength and could not wish to sleep better. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it.—Mrs. WM. A. BUFFY, 905 Dame St., London, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has surely cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, and nervous prostration.

Pension Fund For Montreal.

Montreal, Dec. 13.—A report was sent yesterday by William Robb, city treasurer, to the board of control, in regard to the establishment of a civic pension fund, and its cost.

It is shown that all the permanent employes of the corporation, which include police, firemen, clerks, and permanent employes of the road department, shall be included in the fund. One per cent. of their salaries will be taken to sustain it.

"Gone to 23."

Briceville, Tenn., Dec. 13.—Additional signs of life were discovered in the Cross Mountain mine at 11 o'clock. On the walls of the main shaft were found inscribed these words: "We have gone to 23." A crudely drawn "index hand" aimed at entry No. 23, pointed out the way.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost is the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thing and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid in seal boxes on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. STRANGE HOUSES.

Difficulty Experienced In Entering Queer Siberian Huts.

There are many kinds of queer houses in the world, but the huts of Siberian fur hunters, called koryaks, will have to be given credit for being the most peculiar in many ways. From a distance these houses have the appearance of huge funnels rising out of a snowbank. The crater-like top of the house, besides forming a roof, is used as a general storage place for food and all sorts of articles. This slopes downward to an aperture in the centre which served as a smoke hole, ventilator and passage-way below.

A number of logs arranged in a circle support the rickety framework of the roof, the lower end of which rests on a secondary pile of timbers forming the walls of the living quarters.

For nearly nine months the whole house is covered up to the projecting roof with tons of snow, chinked in with frozen earth and debris, the inmates being about 10 feet below the surface.

Entering this house is accomplished by scaling a narrow split log, having holes cut in for the feet and hands, which extends down from the roof. Getting inside is a feat which none but the experienced native can accomplish with comfort.

The interior is reached by descending another perpendicular tree log stairway, the holes being covered with a slippery coating of grease and soot. A misplaced step of any visiting white fur trader or agent would result in his landing in a pot of blubber always kept boiling at the base.

The whole inclosure has a ground floor, and is barren of anything in the shape of furniture. A large vessel for cooking seal and blubber and a kettle used for melting snow are the chief household utensils. The diet is limited almost exclusively to raw and half-cooked seal and whale flesh, with Russian brick tea and American tobacco as an extra luxury.

Before entering one of these Arctic households it is customary for the white visitor or trader to send word ahead prior to his arrival. On reaching the house he will usually find assembled on the roof awaiting him the host and all his family, including dogs.

Dogs play an important part in their primitive religion and are thought to be a potent agency for keeping away evil spirits and bringing good luck in the hunting of fur animals. For this reason the stuffed form of a dog is always kept dangling from the rooftop of the houses.

A Proper Name.

"What a queer name for a child," said the woman who had just moved next door. "Are you sure they named it Breeze?"

"Yes," indeed; and it is a most natural name for the child," was the reply.

"I suppose it's the outcome of a cheap joke on the father's part," sighed the new neighbor. "When the child is naughty he is likely to suggest a spanking Breeze."

"Not at all, though I'll mention that to him," said the other. "You see, the family name is Storm. Before she was married the mother's name was Wind—Augusta Wind. Upon marriage her name became Storm, of course, making it, Wind-Storm. Now, when the little girl was born they were puzzled about selecting a name. They could not agree until someone said a little Wind-Storm might be called a Breeze. The little one is just like her mother—and a little 'Gusta Wind is—"

But the new neighbor wouldn't stay to hear the rest of it.

Lost Art of Love Making.

Amalia Gugliemminetti, poetess, novelist and journalist, one of the most fascinating of Italy's daughters, has boldly declared that man has lost the power of loving and that the passion of love is in decadence. She wants to revive the age of minstrelsy and chivalry, when love-sick poets thought nothing of sacrificing life to their ideal and when knights fought for their Dulcineas without any regard to marriage portions or family expectations.

She says that to-day love in its highest sense is practically dead; that man is little better than a mere animal; that woman on her side does little to fan the immortal flame, but thinks more of her frocks and her freedom—hence the increase in divorce and the gradual disgust of man for the married state.

Amalia Guglieminetti!
Oh, gee jimminetti!
Ouch!

A New Point of View.

A youngster had been very rude to his mother, and she had turned him over to his father to be disciplined, when the following conversation was overheard:

"Ted, did you say so and so to your mother?"

"Yes, dad."

"Well, you will have to settle that matter with her, because she is your mother and not mine. But she is my wife, and I will not allow any man, young or old, to be rude to her. Now you must apologize to me for being rude to my wife, and then you can settle with your mother for being rude to her."

A Good Epigram.

The memoirs of a celebrated Cambridge University professor, Oscar Browning, recall a famous epigram, said to be one of the most admirable ever composed. It was written by a brilliant undergrad, J. K. Stephen, upon the professor, who was somewhat inclined to corpulency:—

O. B., oh, be obedient
To Nature's stern decrees;
For, though you be but one O. B.
You may be to obese!

Worse Than Flats.

Flats may be bad things, but houses in which the maidless housekeeper toils upstairs with a baby in one arm and a bucket of coal on the other are worse.

THE GOOD OLD SUN

W. LYMAN HUME, Esq., M.D., says:

I took my last policy in the "Sun Life" five years ago. You may think how agreeably surprised I was to receive your letter of the 28th ult., informing me that my share of the profits earned by my Policy during the last five years amounted to $205.80 IN CASH; or if I preferred they would give me $46.65 a year for for the next five years, to be used as an annual reduction of my yearly premium; or better still they would increase my policy by $311.00, making it worth $5,311 instead of $5,000, upon which I would continue to pay the old premium. This is the option I have chosen.

Suppose that instead of insuring I had placed the amount of my premium $277.75, in the Bank each year, and had allowed the interest to be compounded for five years at three per cent., the interest allowed by all safe, conservative Banks. What would be the results? To-day I should receive $130.11 as the accumulated interest from the Bank, instead of $205.80 from the "Sun Life," a difference of $75.70; but in addition to this the Company has carried the risk on my life for $5,000, which they might have been called at any time to pay.

This is in marked contrast with the so-called Fraternal Societies. I have a policy of $1,000 in one of the best of them; I was notified the other day that my policy would be reduced one-half, or my premium doubled. The "Sun" increases my policy, or reduces my premium; the Fraternal Society reduces my policy or increases my premium; it should not be a difficult matter to choose which is the better system of the two.

The "Good Old Sun," may it never set except to rise again with increased effulgence!

FIRE AT THE CITY SCHOOLS

The Alarm Rang But it Was the Regular Drill

Acting on instructions from the Fire, Water and Light Committee Fire Chief Howard conducted fire drill in the city schools yesterday, and also made his annual inspection of the buildings.

The drills are held without warning to the school children, and the fact that the pupils march in splendid order and discipline from their various rooms in such quick time as is noted below, is worthy of note. The number of scholars at each school and the time made follows:

TEMPTATION TOO STRONG FOR LAD

Detective Newhall Returns With His Youthful Prisoner

The youth who is alleged to have taken the money from the Bell Telephone Company, was arrested in Toronto yesterday by Detective Newhall, as he was alighting from the train. The officer brought the lad, who is but fifteen years of age, to Peterborough last evening on the C.P.R. local. He was taken to the police station. Out of the amount of money taken, $77 was discovered in his possession.

It would appear that the lad was suddenly tempted and succumbed to the desire to have money.

His father later putting up bail of $2,000 the boy was given his freedom until Dec. 16th, when he will be given a trial. Owing to his youth the case may come under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court. A previous exemplary character may be used as in his favor, when he is tried

PRESBYTERY MET AT PORT HOPE

Further Term of Six Months for the Present Moderator

The Presbytery of Peterborough met yesterday in St. Paul's church, Port Hope, with Rev. H. J. Keith, the moderator in the chair. The six months term of moderatorship was considered too short, Rev. Mr. Keith therefore being retained in the position for another six months.

Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Hastings, the clerk of the Presbytery was delayed by an accident on the Grand Trunk and did not reach Port Hope until noon, his position pro tem. being filled by Rev. Mr. Skene of Havelock.

The re-arrangements of fields in this Presbyetry was left in the hands of an adjourned meeting, which will be held in St. Paul's church, Peterborough in January, when congregations interested will send representatives.

Rev. Mr. Abraham of St. Paul's church, Port Hope, announced his acceptance of the call to Guelph, and he will leave at the end of the present year. Rev. Robert Pogue of this city will be moderator of the session at St. Paul's, Port Hope during the vacancy.

After some other discussions, the Presbytery adjourned

SIGHTSEEING IN NOVEL MANNER

To the Coast and Back by His Own Exertions

With a healthy bronze upon his face, and feeling in prime condition, Mr. Russell Wotton of this city, and late of Oshawa, returned home Saturday night after four months of varied experiences in the Western part of Canada.

Mr. Wotton's principle motive in making the trip was to sample thoroughly conditions in the West, and by exercising his resources, and working his way from place to place, as his feelings directed, he derived a vast amount of interesting knowledge, besides encountering many odd characters.

Mr. Wotton's wanderings took him as far as the coast. At Vancouver he and a friend with whom he made the trip obtained positions, which they held down to the complete satisfaction of their employers, who were loath to lose their services. The two went down into Seattle and came East again by way of Chicago, delighted with their trip and feeling elated over the satisfaction of knowing that they were capable of making their way around by their own individual exertions.

FIGHT AGAINST THE WHITE PLAGUE

Buy Calendars and Stamps at the Stores and Banks

The pretty calendars and stamps issued by the Peterboro Health Association are now on sale in all the city drug stores, the city banks and also with several merchants. The proceeds from the sale of the above are to be used in the fight against tuberculosis, which our doctors tell us is quite prevalent in our midst. Those who have been ill themselves or have had illness in their homes, no matter of what kind, never turn a deaf ear to the needs of the poor sick, but sometimes the strong and healthy ones do not stop to think of the hopelessness and suffering of those who are poor and have not the means to procure medical attention and advice, and often knock things which well meaning people undertake to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunate ones. Are you going to be a booster or a knocker? If the former, buy some of the stamps and calendars and help on a good cause. Don't knock the Peterboro Health Association. It is but a "child in the cradle." Help to put it on its feet and give it a chance. Give it a smile and a pat in the back even if you can only buy a few stamps. It will all help to fight the good fight against the white scourge.

GIFTS FROM KNOX PEOPLE

Fur Coat to Pastor and Cheque for Mrs. Keith

Successful Supper and Entertainment by the Managers

The warm feeling of mutual esteem and regard, that exist between the pastor and people of Knox church was unmistakably revealed last evening, when Rev. Mr. Keith was presented with a handsome fur-lined overcoat, and Mrs. Keith with a purse containing a cheque for a very generous amount. The presentations followed the successful conclusion of a big supper and a most enjoyable and largely attended entertainment, given in honor of the first anniversary of the opening of Knox church by the managers. The delightful supper paved the way for the enjoyable concert, and the audience evidenced their approval of the efforts of the entertainers in a most appreciative and liberal manner.

John A. Kelly, a ventriloquist of widely known ability, was responsible for a large share of the applause and his inimitable humor assisted by his dummy figures, kept the crowd in spasms of merriment.

The other artists on the program were;

Orchestra selection.
Solo—Robt. Dickson.
Solo—Miss Wilson.
Solo—Mr. Hendry.
Selection by the orchestra.
Song—Mrs. MacArthur.
Solo—Miss Wilson.
Trio selection—Miss Wilson, Mr Lorimer and Mr. Hendry.
Solo—Mr. Lorimer.

Some splendid and interesting moving pictures were thrown on the canvas at intervals by Mr. McKenzie, these being very much enjoyed by all.

On behalf of himself and Mrs. Keith, who was absent through illness, the pastor expressed his grateful appreciation of the congregations gifts, and expressed the genuine feelings of regard, which both he and Mrs. Keith felt in the welfare of the parishioners. Mr. Howard Shurter was a very capable chairman.

BOY'S CLUB WILL DISCUSS POLITICS

Collegiate Boys at Y.M.A. Do Something Besides Eating

Eighteen members of the Collegiate Boys' Life Problem Club co-operated in a feeding stunt last Saturday evening, which was delightfully interesting from the start to the last lap.

President Reggie Stratton won the feat, and after a few words hastened away. Hon. President Dr. Spicer volunteering to officiate in his absence. After everyone had satisfied their inmost longings Dr. Spicer gave a reading, which was followed with a discussion as to putting on a concert, and then Dr. Spicer announced that next Saturday evening's subject for discussion would be "Politics."

On motion the meeting adjourned.

JUBILEE PLUNGER BENSON IS DEAD

Geneva, Switzerland, December 13—Ernest Benson, the notorious "Jubilee Plunger," who squandered $1,250,000 in three years, has just died in Switzerland.

After his fortune had been dissipated, the trustees appointed by his father's will made him an allowance of $1,600 a year. For the past two years he had been confined to his home near Geneva. Benson, who never attempted to work, was always intensely proud of his period of extravagance. He wrote a book on "The Art of Spending Money."

WEEKLY CONCERT AT THE ARMORIES

Tuesday Night Next Will be Open for the Ladies

A very enjoyable time was spent last night in the recreation room of the Armories when there was quite a number of members of the regiment present and a good program given. New Tuesday night is open night and all the members are invited to bring their lady friends as there has been an excellent program arranged. Bugler E. Lebar will be chairman. On the first open night of the new year the Y.M.C.A. boys will put on a very interesting concert.

375 BEDROOMS IN 12 HOTELS

Law in Regard to Fire Protection is Obeyed

Inspection of the hotels of the city by Fire Chief Howard and Joseph Stewart, Liquor License Inspector, has been completed and the report to the Commissioners by the Fire Chief is as follows—

Peterborough, Ont., Dec. 12, 1911.
To the Chairman and Board of License Commissioners, City.

Gentlemen— I beg leave to advise your Honorable Body of my annual inspection of Licensed Hotels, made November 21st, in accordance with City By-law, No 420.

The following hotels were visited—Snowden House, White House, Grand Hotel, National Hotel, Albion Hotel, Munroe House, Windsor Hotel, King George Hotel, Montgomery House, American House, Palace Hotel and Oriental Hotel.

In each of the hotels visited I found the law had been complied with relative to fire escapes, ropes in bedrooms, etc. In some of the hotels we found that the ropes in the bedrooms had been removed during house-cleaning time, and by carelessness on the part of servants had not been replaced. The attention of the proprietors was called to this state of affairs and they expressed a willingness to rectify the irregularity. A second visit was made on November 28th, and the conditions were found to be entirely satisfactory. This intelligence will no doubt be gratifying to you.

It was found that in all twelve hotels there were 375 bedrooms. Seven of the hotels have made provision for accomodating extra guests by placing cots in commission, which it is understood are only used in time of a convention or extra rush of visitors to the city. In the seven hotels mentioned a total of 95 cots were in store.

I may say that 375 bedrooms herein mentioned include the apartments of the proprietors and their families and the servants of the hotels.

The twelve hotels in the city were found to be in a fairly good state of repair, and in every case the premises were found to be clean and nothing of an offensive nature whatsoever was found.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

I have the honor to be, Sirs,
Yours respectfully,
W. A. HOWARD,
Chief Fire Dept.

Dressing Cases
For Ladies or Gentlemen

Most everybody does more or less travelling these days, and the leather goods manufacturers are vieing with each other in getting up little travelling conveniences. We have just added a very nice, new stock of "Julian Sale" Leather Goods, and in choosing it Dressing Cases have had a special care.

The mention of them is a nice hint for a holiday, birthday, or wedding gift. Made in a number of different leathers, completely fitted, and the prices go between

"THE DEVIL'S HORSE"

Just off the main road from London to Cambridge, between Ware and Puckeridge, is a straggling hamlet called Standon Green End. Here in the middle of a meadow, says "Cycling," stands a remarkable monument, known as the Balloon Stone. Under a hinged metal flap is a bronze plate bearing an inscription chronicling the first balloon ascent. Lunardi's ascent created a tremendous sensation, all London turning out to witness his departure into the upper atmosphere. His sole companions were a dog, a cat, and a pigeon. When he was nearing the earth in the field where the Balloon Stone stands, five laborers declined to take hold of his mooring ropes, and swearing they would have nothing to do with the "devil's horse," took to their heels. But for the plucky conduct of a young servant girl from an adjoining farm-house, who seized the rope and summoned assistance, the pioneer balloonist would not have effected a landing.

FOSSILS AND GOLD

In Alaska the bones, and often the entire bodies, of extinct animals, such as the mammoth, the mastodon, the reindeer, and the bison, are found most abundantly in layers of soil directly above gold bearing gravels. So intimate is this association between fossil animal remains and auriferous deposits that one scientist, who has just been exploring Alaska, says fossils serve prospectors as indexes of the metallic richness of the soil. In ancient times both the gold and the bones and the bodies of the animals were deposited at the bottoms of valleys by action of rivers and smaller streams, many of which have now disappeared. Consequently the appearance of fossils is, it is claimed, an almost certain indication that gold will be found in the neighborhood.

ANOTHER FIRE AT BUILDING OF GAS PLANT

Two Firemen Were Injured—Blaze at Townsend Street

The fire department had another run to the gas plant last evening, when the eastern section of the frame buildings known as the coke shed, was in danger of being wiped out.

It is supposed the blaze started from sparks which alighted on the roof, as the trouble was first noticed at that point.

Two streams were played on the fire, which had quickly gained headway, owing to the inflamable condition of the building and control was effected before any great damage had been done.

Mr. Munro has given orders for the damaged structure to be torn down. Last evening's blaze was the fifth of the year. Brick and fireproof buildings are under consideration for the gas plant as well as other improvements.

TWO FIREMEN HURT.

While working on the roof fireman Degan fell and dislocated his shoulder blade and fireman Johnston was burned about the hand. Dr. McPherson attended to their injuries.

A SECOND CALL.

Another frame building on Townsend street, the property of T. Rehill, caught fire about 8.30 o'clock this morning and damage amounting to about $250 was caused.

Ald. Buller sent in the alarm.

The building had been moved to its present site, the object being to remodel it into dwellings. The origin of the blaze is thought to be incendiary.

PROTESTANT HOME CHRISTMAS TREE

SPECIAL SERMON ON DEAD BEATS

Rev. W. C. Riddiford to Deal With Question Sunday Night

The Rev. W. C. Riddiford will continue his special series of subjects next Sunday evening in the Park street Baptist church.

Next Sunday evening will be a question for dead-beats and the sin of going wilfully in debt. The subject arose out of a question dropped into the pastor's question box "Should the house of God be in debt, if so, how far?

A practical discussion of the awful and useless habit of going into debt will be given. This is the second sermon on "Some questions the people are asking."

CAVENDISH FOR PECK

Two Polling Subdivisions Gave Him Majority of 6.

In the results for the city as given yesterday the vote at No. 3 polling subdivision was published as 55 for Peck and 31 for Hall, but the correct figures were 82 for Peck and 66 for Hall, or a majority of 16 for Peck. These figures would lessen his city majority to 754.

At Cavendish the return is:

	Peck.	Hall.
26- Cochrane's house	4	1
27—Higgin's house	6	3

These figures give a majority for Mr. Peck of 6 and makes his total majority 681. The official count has yet to be made.

TRUE BILLS RETURNED

Judgment Reserved in Claim for Damages for Injuries

The hearing of the claim for $500 damages, laid by George Carter, of this city, against the Toronto Railway Company, was continued yesterday afternoon and evenign at the sitting of the quarterly jury sessions. The action, as published yesterday, was brought against the company for injuries sustained by Carter, while in the performance of his duties with the company last summer. The plaintiff was struck by an auto while standing on the running board of his car, thereby sustaining serious injuries.

J. W. Curry, K.C., of Toronto, acted for the company and judgment was reserved by Judge Huycke.

TRUE BILL RETURNED.

The jury in the case of King vs. Crouter brought in a true bill against who is charged with stealing $25 from the plaintiff. A true bill was also returned by the jury in the case of Gilbert Horton, the former employe of the Lakefield Dairy Company, accused of the theft of $115 and a quantity of butter from the dairy concern. The hearing of the charges was not proceeded with, but the trial of the Crown vs. West taken up in its place. West, an old man of sixty-two, is alleged to have sold cattle and horses valued at $1,650, which he was holding in lien from a cattle dealer named Watt.

Judgement take two.

The case was resumed at two o'clock this afternoon with the defendant in the witness stand, and F. D. Kerr, his counsel, conducting the examination. The prisoner was formerly a physical instructor for the Cobourg Collegiate Institute, and has also been engaged in the cattle business.

At the time the prisoner purchased the goods, he stated that he expected to pay for them from out of a sum of money which he was expecting from some property in Australia.

Mr. R. E. Wood for the Crown questioned the prisoner about his habits of life and where he was living.

"Did you ever hear that the people with whom you were living were being supported by the city," asked Mr. Wood.

Mr. Kerr objected to such a question being asked his client, on the ground that it did not materially affect the case. To Mr. Wood, however the prisoner admitted being summoned to court in Lindsay for a breach of the medical act, when he advertised a cure for rheumatism by massage.

Further evidence was being taken at time of going to press.

GEMS BROUGHT BIG PRICE

Paris, Dec. 12—The sale of the jewels of the ex-Sultan of Turkey, which began at the George Petit Picture Gallery, on Nov. 27, was concluded to-day. The entire auction brought $1,398,000, out of which sum $459,609 was realized by to-day's sale of pearls and diamonds.

DIED OF POISONING

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 12—Oliver Rumsey, aged 28, was discovered in a dying condition in an empty coach in the Michigan Central yards here last night. An overdose of whiskey and ptomaine poisoning, caused by eating canned beef, was responsible for his condition. The man had been lying in the car apparently for some hours, and although everything possible was done for him, he died a few hours later. Coroner Bell examined the body this morning and decided an inquest to be unnecessary. Rumsey's home is believed to be in Detroit.

MUSICAL AT HOME MUCH ENJOYED

Interesting Affair Held in St. John's Schoolroom

The musical "At Home" under the auspices of the St. John's church Association last night in the schoolroom proved to me a most enjoyable affair. Mr. Wainwright, chairman of the committee explained the circumstances under which the association had been formed and Mr. H. Cluxton president, afterwards took the chair giving a hearty welcome to all present and asked for the thorough cooperation of the whole congregation in the work of the church, which was to be undertaken by the various committees of the association. A delightful musical program was presented by the choir, under the leadership of Mr. R. J. Devey, the following members taking part; solos by Mrs. Hazen Ritchie, Mrs. R. Davidson, Miss Quartermaine, Miss Daisy Sharman and Mr. Langley. The choral numbers "Hail Smiling Morn" and "Sweet and Low" were given by Mrs. Seward Mrs. R. J. Devey, Mrs Langley, Mrs. W. Common, Messrs. Langley, Devey Flowers and Coleman. Mrs. Langley and Miss Flowers assisted Mr. Devey in accompanying the various numbers. Dainty refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs Burnett, Mrs. Hazen Ritchie and Mrs. Coulthard, and a pleasant evening concluded by the singing of "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

Next Monday, a literary evening will be provided by Mr. C. E. Jamieson consisting of selections from Drummond's "Habitant Stories" and an interesting evening is assured. Meetings open at 8 prompt, concluding at 9.30 p.m.

Probing Dynamite Shipments.

Indianapolis, Dec. 13.—Who besides John J. and James B. McNamara handled or had knowledge of the interstate shipment of the ton or more of dynamite and nitro-glycerine used in blowing up iron and steel structures erected by firms employing non-union men in the last five years?

This question was enquired into by Government officials yesterday preparatory to the resumption on Thursday of the federal grand jury's investigation of an alleged nation-wide dynamite conspiracy. Clerks who wrote letters, baggagemen shippers and all those who are supposed to have had even the remotest knowledge of the movement of the explosives or where and how they were stored are among the several hundred witnesses who have been summoned to testify before the grand jury.

The instances of the finding of the explosives about which special enquiry was made yesterday, are the following:

Fourteen hundred and ninety pounds of dynamite discovered in a padlocked box in a barn in the rear of Ortie E. McManigal's father's home at Tiffin, Ohio, April 23, 1911.

Guelph Winter Fair.

Guelph, Dec. 13.—This was the opening day of the provincial winter fair, and there was a large crowd in attendance. The horse ring was a big attraction, and all available space was occupied by those anxious to see the best exhibition of horses yet shown at the winter fair. The judging started yesterday afternoon, and but few awards have yet been made.

The heavy draught horses are exceptionally fine and some of the judges say a better collection has never been brought together in Canada. Another great feature of the fair is the poultry show, with over five thousand entries.

The competition in sheep is very keen, there being about five hundred entries, many of which captured prizes at the Chicago International Show last week. The dairy test of milch cows was concluded Monday night. There were sixty entries in this class, about twenty more than last year. There were no Jerseys entered.

The wet weather of the past few days has made the roads so bad that it may affect the attendance of local farmers, who have far to drive, but big crowds are expected by train today and to-morrow.

CARTER'S OUTFIT AS BLACK MARIA

Lumbermen Enjoyed the Fruits of Healthy Jags

Representatives of three great countries, one a Swede, one an Irishman and a Canadian, were arraigned before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning on charges of being very much intoxicated last night. Each pleaded guilty and a $2 fine was imposed.

Two of the men were so drunk that they were prostrate in the gutter at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets when discovered. A carter's wagon was used to convey the couple to the police station together with kits. The men were lumbermen and the amount of cash previously in their possession was considerably diminished.

The third man was raising a rumpus in an Italian fruit store.

Changes in Paris.

Ottawa, Dec. 13.—The decision of the Dominion Government, reached within the last few days, to consolidate the various branches of the Canadian service in Paris, means that Mr. Anatole Poindron, trade commissioner, will cease to hold office. The trade and commerce and immigration offices are to be placed under one roof, and Canada is to get more advertising in Paris than has obtained under the old system.

Mr. Poindron was appointed by the late Premier and his work, it is alleged, has not been satisfactory. Under the centralization scheme the Paris offices will, it is expected, be conducted at an annual outlay of $12,000 instead of $30,000, the old figures.

TTRACTIVE PURSES TO GET THE VERY BEST STEPPERS

ocal Turf Club Busy With Arrangements for the Ice Races at Driving Park

Peterborough is to get its share of f doings this winter, the Peterbor- gh Turf Club having jumped into game with more vim than ever. is proposed to put on an ice meet e some time in the latter part of uary, when the horses working the Ottawa meet would be caught their return.

"We are going to put up the purses is winter so that we can get the st horses for our meet," Dr. John- n remarked this morning. Belle- le, Port Hope, Lindsay, Oshawa Port Perry and other towns have caught on, nd the horsemen are working enthusiastically for their respective meeting. Local turf followers are awaiting a return visit of Adrian Pointer and Angus Pointer, these two horses having been very prominent since their transfer to new management.

The meet will be put on at the Driving Park, arrangements having been made with the Agricultural Society. Every attention is to be given to the track so that the big steppers can shake themselves and travel at their prettiest.

A good meeting was held in Dr. Johnston's office last night, when some important business in connection with this season's work was transacted.

TANLEY CUP'S LONG SERVICE

nation of $1000 From Stanleys for New Mug

ttawa Dec. 13.—The Hon. Arthur nley, son of the late Lord Stanley Earl of Derby, donor of the famous Stanley Cup, has written the tees of this trophy, Messrs. P.D. ss and Wm. Foran and made an ex- dingly generous offer as regards old mug for which so many bat- on the ice have been fought.

earing that there was talk of re- the cup with a more preten- piece of silverware, the Hon. hur Stanley, and his brother Lord by, came to the decision that they ld offer a new cup to the hockey ms of Canada to replace the old . They wrote Mr. P. D. Ross and . Foran in regard to the matter said they were ready to give $1000 be used in the purchase of a new phy. Messrs. Ross and Foran in ly, stated that they would ask the key teams of Canada their opinion to the acceptance of the new tro- , and would then answer the gen- us offer of the donors, they are of opinion that the old cup should retained. SPORT TALK

The counter hopping fraternity of this city are burning with a desire to jump into the hockey game, in dead earnest this winter. They are, moreover, firmly of the opinion that they have plenty of first-class material to draw from, that would enable them to place a winning outfit on the ice.

If a Mercantile League is organized this winter they would be one of the first to throw in their lot, and would greatly like to see some definite action taken for the reorganisation of such a league in Peterborough this winter.

Physical Director Thompson, of the Y.M.C.A., has a good word to say of the hockey players who are attending classes at the gymnasium. He says they are a gentlemanly lot of fellows and conduct themselves in a highly creditable manner. The class is on again to-night from 7 to 8, and every prospective hockey player should b eon hand sharp on time.

Fred Doherty, the Norwood hockey player, may not go to Port Arthur. professionals, which will be managed by Chaucer Elliott, are after the husky youth.

Someone ought to band the reminder to the city league magnates that the time for reorganization is long since due.

To provide an open air rink at the city school yards would be a capital scheme for the school authorities. In every case there is sufficient area and the pupils would be tickled to learn that such a proposition would become a reality.

The girls of the Collegiate Institute will play hockey again this winter, hours having been secured at Brock street rink for both the girls' athletic club and that of the boys.

A meeting of All Saints Hockey executive will be held in the Parish Hall, on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock sharp. All interested are asked to be present as some important business is to be discussed.

STAYS WITH COCHRANE.

George Yates Follows His Former Chief to Ottawa.

In the appointment of George Yates as secretary to Hon. Frank Cochrane the new Minister of Railways and Canals in the Borden Cabinet, the Ontario Government will lose one of its most esteemed private secretaries.

During the past eleven years, Mr. Yates has been private secretary to Hon. Frank Cochrane, ex-Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines in the Ontario Cabinet and his worth has been so amply demonstrated that Mr. Cochrane urged his former secretary to continue as his right hand man at Ottawa. Mr. Yates' new office has a salary of $3,000 a year, as compared with $2,000, which he received as secretary to Mr. Cochrane in the Provincial Cabinet.

Mr. Yates first came to the Ontario Parliament Buildings in 1899, when the Hardy Government was in power. He was at first in the office of Provincial Secretary to Hon. J. E. Davis, who twelve years ago was commissioner of Crown Lands. When the portfolio of Lands, Forests and Mines was established Mr. Yates was appointed secretary to the Minister, and has filled the position ever since. During these years, Mr. Yates has met at his desk nearly all the newspapermen from every paper in Toronto. His unfailing kindness and courtesy have won for him the esteem of all.

Before coming to the Parliament Buildings Mr. Yates was engaged for many years as a reporter and has had a varied newspaper experience. He has occupied positions on the editorial staffs of all the London, Ont., newspapers and was legislative reporter for The Advertiser. He was also at one time on The Toronto Globe staff.

Mr. Yates has been secretary to five different Ministers in Queen's Park, and is the only private secretary still in office, who got their position at the same time as he did. Mr. Yates was, therefore, dean of the secretary corps.

In the large and important Department of Lands, Forests and Mines Mr. Yates has worked hard, but his services have been appreciated to the full.

Getting at the Facts.

Head of Commission—What is the object of your raising your rates?

Railroad President—In order to pay the interest on our bonds.

Head of Commission—Do the bonds represent the actual cost of the road?

Railroad President—Oh, dear, no! They represent the amount of money we have been able to raise from the sale of bonds, based on the interest we can pay on them.

FINGER PRINTS OF THE UNDERWORLD THAT NEVER LIE

MR. WILLIAM A. PINKERTON Describes the Amazing Results Achieved by This Method of Identification Which the Chinese Used for Centuries and Mark Twain Made Famous in a Masterpiece

"SEE this fellow; what do you think of his face?"

The speaker was William A. Pinkerton, present head of the great detective agency that has made the name "Pinkerton" synonymous with "detective" from Hong Kong to Chicago—and that goes both ways.

I looked at the photograph he handed me. It was that of a bald, bearded, roughly dressed man, of middle age. There was a shifty look about the eyes, a suspicious twist of the cruel looking lips, and it did not require much thought to decide that I did not like the face.

"I don't like it; looks like a crook," I hazarded. It seemed to be a safe guess for one who was talking with Mr. Pinkerton.

"That's what he is," replied the detective, "and he doesn't look any better in this picture, either, does he?" He handed me another photograph. There was the same shifty eye, the same cruel lip, the same bald forehead and stubby beard. The gentleman did not improve upon acquaintance, and I said so.

"Here's another," said Mr. Pinkerton, passing over a third portrait. I was really disgusted by the subject's appearance by this time. Those tricky eyes and that cold blooded mouth were beginning to affect me unpleasantly.

"Wouldn't like to meet him in a lonesome street, would you?" suggested Mr. Pinkerton. I admitted that I would not.

"Don't know as I would either—that is, not all of them. You see, those three pictures are photographs of three entirely different men." Then he laughed.

"You needn't feel ashamed of being deceived," he continued. "The likeness would deceive any one. There isn't a detective anywhere in the whole world who, if told to pick up the man whose photograph I first showed you would not arrest either the second or the third if he met either of them and be perfectly sure that he had the right man. And until very recently there was no police department in the world that wouldn't have tried to fasten a crime committed by No. 1 on either No. 2 or No. 3 had they been arrested, and have been perfectly honest in the attempt."

"And now"——

"Now it's different," replied Mr. Pinkerton. "It has always been known that 'doubles' existed. It is an old saying that 'every man has his double,' and there are plenty of cases where three men, as in these three pictures, look so much alike that it is impossible to distinguish their photographs. But there is one physical characteristic that every one possesses of which no double so far as human experience goes exists."

"And that is"——

"That is the thumb print," replied the detective. "See here." He passed me three small pictures—mere blobs of black, formless and vague looking affairs.

"This is the thumb print of the man whose photograph I first showed you. This is the print of the second man's thumbs, and this of the third. Do you see the difference?"

It was as plain as the nose on one's face. The first man's thumb was coarse grained, with lines and ridges set far apart and the central whorl of the simplest possible type. The second man's thumb showed very much finer lines, with a more complicated whorl, while that of the third bore a transverse scar that confused the lines and made the impression quite distinct from either of the others.

It is not an easy task to interview Mr. Pinkerton. That doesn't mean that he is not one of the most affable and courteous of men, but merely that he doesn't crave newspaper notoriety. But he was fairly launched on a subject in which he is intensely interested, and after some persuasion finally consented to talk freely and for publication.

Originated by the Chinese.

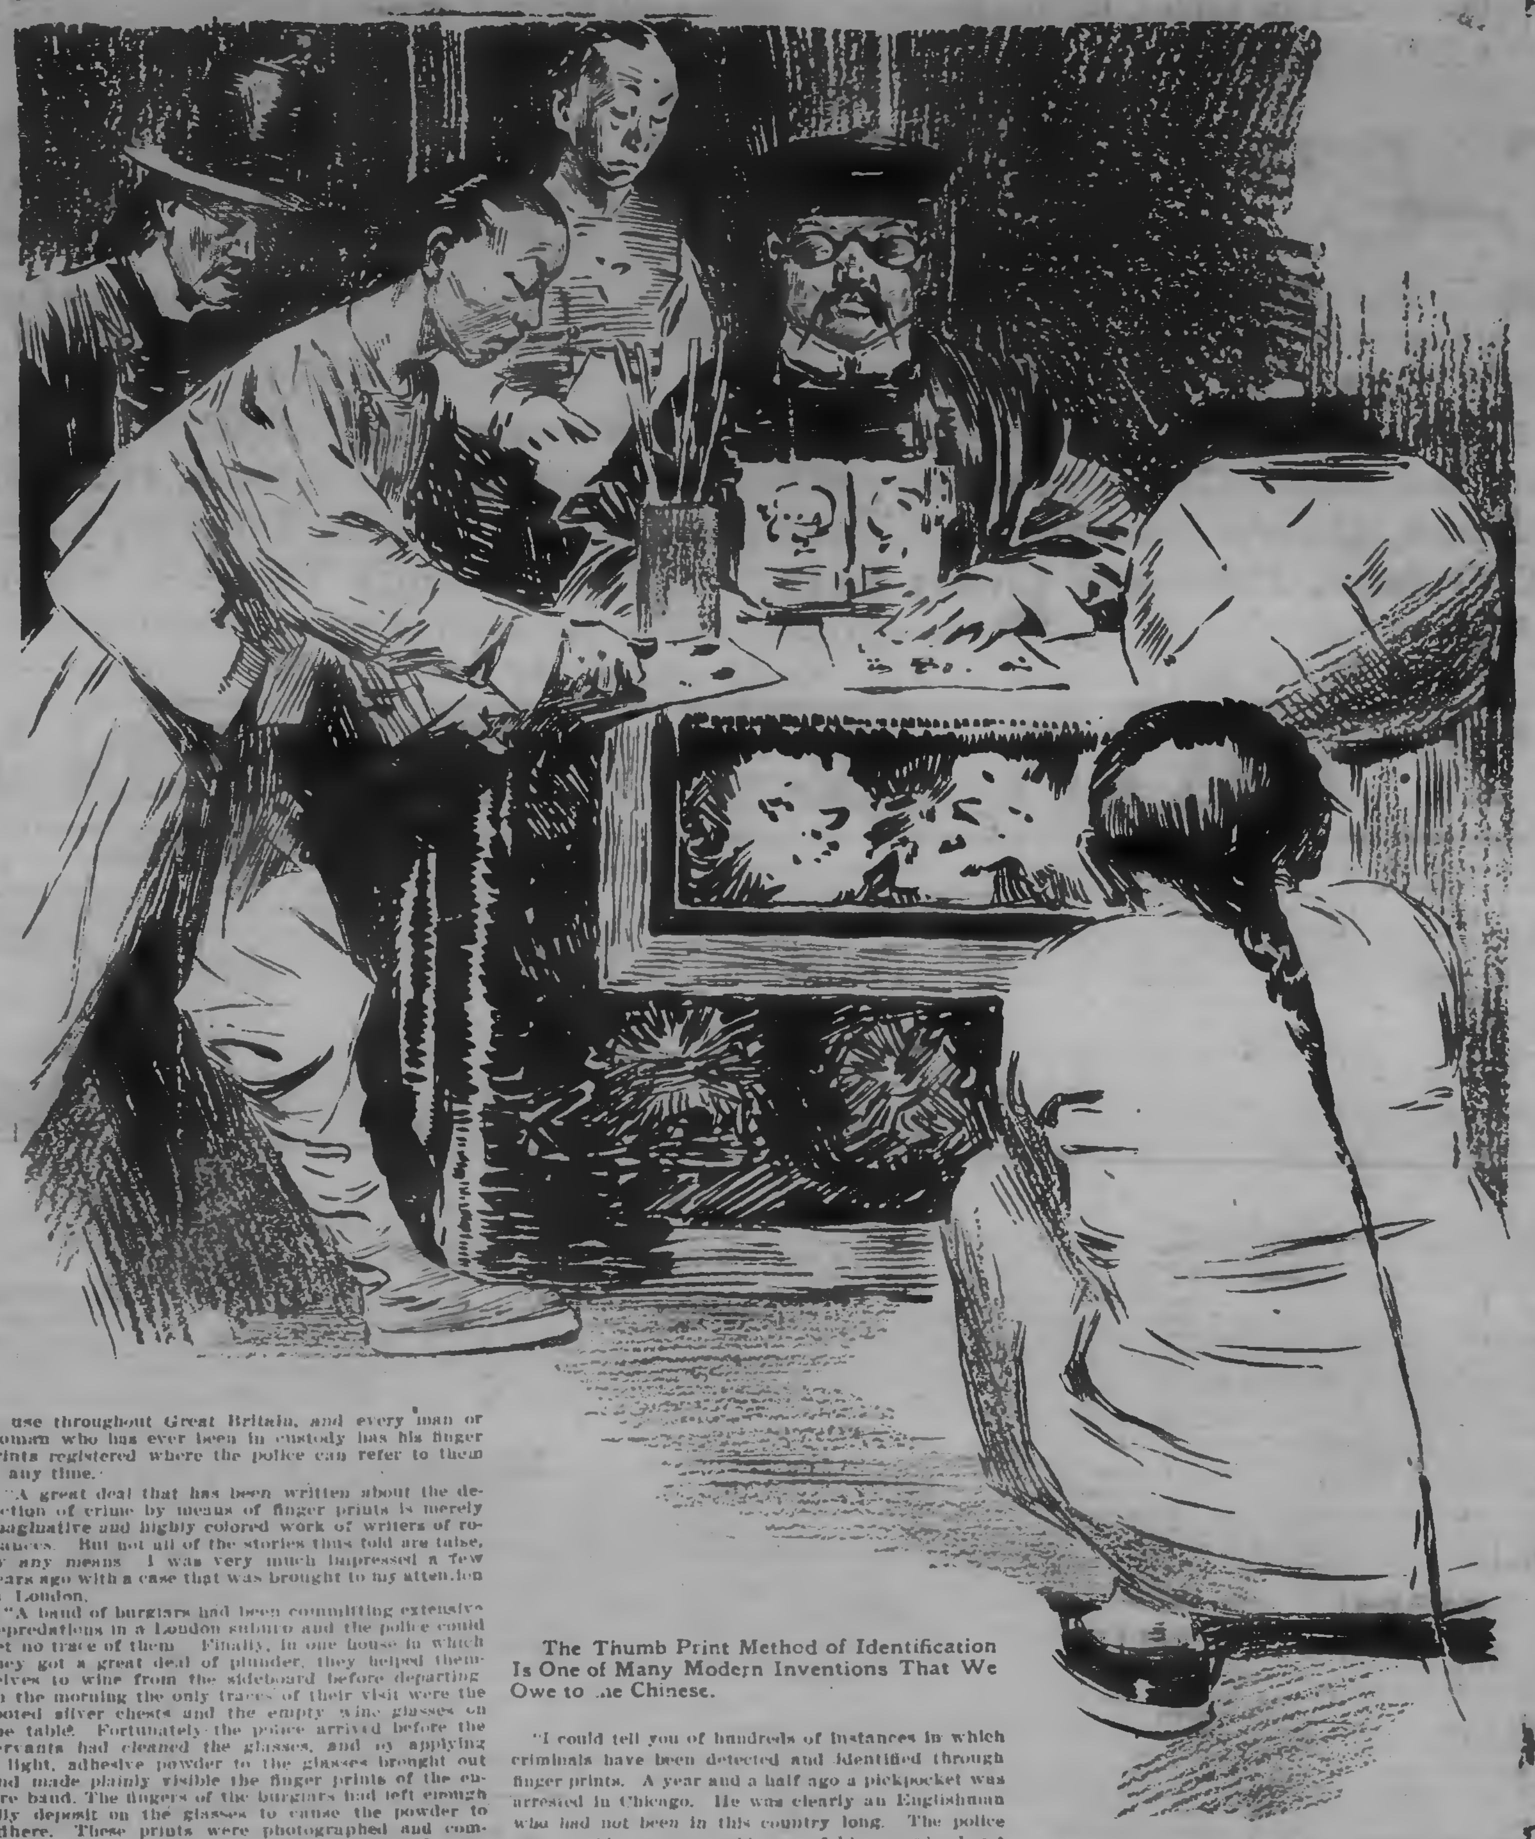
"The thumb print method of identification is one of many modern inventions that we owe to the Chinese," Mr. Pinkerton went on. "For hundreds of years, perhaps thousands, the merchants of China have used the impressions of their thumbs instead of their signatures. I have seen it so used myself, in the interior of China, where each merchant or other person who may have occasion to sign a document keeps a cake of ink at hand for this purpose. And in all the history of China it is said that never have two thumb prints exactly alike been found.

"From China the use of the thumb print spread into the north of India, where it was adopted many years ago by the British military authorities as a means of identifying the individual members of the native troops, who look so much alike that white men have difficulty in distinguishing one from another. From this use it spread to the white troops in India, who were registered by thumb prints as a means of identifying deserters. English officers, returning from India and taking positions in the police departments of Great Britain, soon realized that here was an infallible method of identifying criminals. Now the system is in use throughout Great Britain, and every man or woman who has ever been in custody has his finger prints registered where the police can refer to them at any time.

"A great deal that has been written about the detection of crime by means of finger prints is merely imaginative and highly colored work of writers of romances. But not all of the stories thus told are false, by any means. I was very much impressed a few years ago with a case that was brought to my attention in London.

"A band of burglars had been committing extensive depredations in a London suburb and the police could get no trace of them. Finally, in one house in which they got a great deal of plunder, they helped themselves to wine from the sideboard before departing. In the morning the only traces of their visit were the looted silver chests and the empty wine glasses on the table. Fortunately the police arrived before the servants had cleaned the glasses, and by applying a light, adhesive powder to the glasses brought out and made plainly visible the finger prints of the entire band. The fingers of the burglars had left enough oily deposit on the glasses to cause the powder to adhere. These prints were photographed and compared with the police records. The identity of every one of the criminals was immediately revealed, and all were arrested and convicted.

"Soon after the finger print method of identification became general in England a bank was robbed. The burglar left but a single clew—a piece of paper in which some of his tools had been wrapped. On the chance that it might reveal a trace of his identity the police sprinkled it with powder and the finger prints stood out distinctly. He, too, was arrested and convicted.



The Thumb Print Method of Identification Is One of Many Modern Inventions That We Owe to the Chinese.

"I could tell you of hundreds of instances in which criminals have been detected and identified through finger prints. A year and a half ago a pickpocket was arrested in Chicago. He was clearly an Englishman who had not been in this country long. The police were unable to get any history of his record. I got his thumb prints and sent them to England. By the earliest possible return mail we received three photographs of the man, with a complete history of his criminal record. It had taken just five minutes to learn who he was when the English police saw the thumb prints.

"A few years ago a burglar, making his escape over an iron picket fence, caught a ring that he wore in such a way that when he leaped he tore his finger off and left it sticking in a crevice in the fence. An impression of the finger was taken and compared with the finger print records of criminals of his class. In a few hours the police had found the man they suspected, and his finger was missing.

"It is not going to be so easy to detect clever criminals by this method in the future, for so general has become the knowledge among crooks that finger prints are dangerous clews to leave behind that any really first class cracksman or forger now wears gloves while at his work. But if every person who is arrested is registered by means of finger prints it is not going to be difficult to identify him if he ever gets into trouble with the authorities again, for his finger prints will be compared with those registered on previous occasions and there will be no chance for him to plead mistaken identity.

"I have been active for several years trying to get the National Bureau of Identification, of which I am one of the Board of Governors, to adopt this system throughout the United States. Some of our members who are using the Bertillon system have been inclined to be sceptical. But the Bertillon system, though useful when very carefully and accurately used, is liable to all kinds of errors.

Bertillon's System.

"Bertillon's method of identification consists principally in certain minute measurements of certain parts of the body, such as the right ear, together with a record of the color of hair, eyes, &c. Now, any system that depends upon measurements is likely to go wrong whenever the person doing the measuring makes an error. A single error ruins the accuracy of the entire record. And those mistakes due to human inaccuracies, which must always be reckoned with, occur frequently.

"A few years ago one of my operatives, Charles Schumacher, was shot and killed by two yeggmen, William Rudolph and George Collins, at Union, Mo. I put every available man on their trail and they were arrested at Hartford, Conn., and taken back to St. Louis. There they were measured by the Bertillon system and placed in jail awaiting trial. Before their cases were called they broke jail and escaped.

"I declared that the world was not big enough to hide them and redoubled the efforts of our men to find them. It was practically certain that they would go back to their old line of work, so I decided the best way to catch them would be to keep track of all the yegg burglaries. Wherever a yegg was arrested, anywhere in the United States, I sent one of my men, armed with the photographs and Bertillon measurements of the two criminals, to look over the prisoners and see if they were Rudolph and Collins.

"One day we were notified of the arrest of two yeggmen in a small town in Kansas. A man from our Kansas office went to the place, taking with him the Bertillon clerk from Kansas City Police Headquarters and the measurements and photographs of Rudolph and Collins. The pictures looked like the two men, but the Bertillon measurements failed to identify them, and my man was uncertain, because, as I have just shown you, and as every experienced detective knows, photographs are deceptive. We had to have the men held until some one who knew them could go to the spot and identify them without question. Incidentally, the identification was made, and Rudolph and Collins were hanged. But the point I am making is that it might have been proved impossible to hold these men on the Bertillon measurements alone, while if the finger print system had been used they would immediately have been identified without question.

"The use of the thumb print for identification is rapidly spreading. Every great State prison and penitentiary now uses it, and no escaped prisoner can evade identification. He may alter his physical appearance all he pleases—he can never alter the impressions of his finger tips without amputating all his fingers. In the United States Army the finger prints of every enlisted man are recorded as a means of identification in case of desertion. Even the officers have recorded their finger prints in the War Department. In time of war this might prove to be the only way of identifying a body found on the field of battle. Thousands of unidentified dead who perished in the civil war might have been identified if this system had been in use, and many a man reported simply as 'missing' might now be known to his family as having perished with the honors of war.

"I received a letter from the War Department recently asking me whether I thought it advisable to register the finger prints with every new enlistment. I replied that it made little difference, since the finger prints never changed, but as the records are quickly made and take up little room it might as well be done.

"There is a great advantage to an agency like ours in the use of finger prints for identification. We have no right to photograph prisoners whom we arrest, but we can take their thumb prints. Then, too, thousands of criminals are arrested in small towns and places where there are no facilities for photographing them, but any school boy can take their finger prints. A photograph of a criminal or a suspected criminal is useful in putting the police of the whole country on their guard, but the wrong man is likely to be, and often is, arrested by some too zealous policeman who is looking for glory or a reward and has fancied a resemblance between the picture and the man he arrests. If the thumb prints accompanied the pictures, a person so suspected could clear himself instantly if innocent.

Mark Twain's Novel.

"Mark Twain laid the whole truth about finger prints before the people of the United States nearly twenty years ago. His novel, 'Pudd'nhead Wilson,' which was dramatized and had a long and popular run, was based on the plain fact that finger prints never lie. I told the English authorities about 'Pudd'nhead Wilson,' of which they had never heard, a few years ago, and they were intensely interested. I sent some copies of the book to some of my friends of Scotland Yard, and they declared that Mr. Clemens had gone into the subject in the most thorough manner.

"There are such dramatic and romantic possibilities in the finger print system that I wonder that more of our writers and playwrights have not utilized them. I happened to meet a rising young American dramatist in London a short time ago and took him to Scotland Yard, where I showed him some of the things the British police have done with finger prints. He was amazed.

"'To think of all this dramatic material right under our noses for years, and none of us ever touched it!' he exclaimed."

Horse for 97 Cents at a College Raffle

IT was a Princeton University sport who was talking.

"Did you ever hear," said he to a bunch of New Yorkers at a bohemian table d'hote, "the true narrative of how W. H. Edwards, Commissioner of Street Cleaning for New York city—largely known as 'Big Bill,' and no infringement on President Taft's sobriquet—bought a horse for ninety-seven cents? Not marked down from a dollar, either. No? Well, listen. When the aforesaid William was cleaning up the curriculum of Princeton University some years ago there was a big and husky Nova Scotia Scotsman named Donald Mackenzie Macfadyen doing the same thing some grades lower.

"Macfadyen was also a boss football favorite and on the side was tutoring a toot over at Lakewood, but not in football classics. He was handing the youth other kinds of mental pabulum, and he found it was necessary to have a horse to keep up with his young charge, so he negotiated the rent of one from John Dwyer, the well known Jersey horseman. This animal was named Chubb, and had at one time been George Gould's finest polo pony. But he had got a buck in the knee, and when a horse gets that he gets out. It happened, therefore, that Dwyer had Chubb in livery, the last resort of the noblest equines. By and by, when Macfadyen was leaving Lakewood, he concluded he would buy Chubb, to whom he had become fondly attached, and take him to Princeton with him to use on the gridiron if necessary, but incidentally to hire him to other students and thus add to his income. He paid Dwyer $25 spot cash for the horse, including the bucked knee, and rode him home.

"At Princeton the intellectual atmosphere was too much for Chubb and he did not prove a financial success. Or it might have been his bucked knee. In any event, Macfadyen offered him for sale, but there was no rush of buyers. Somehow they were on to Chubb and that knee of his. But everybody wasn't, and presently Bill Roper, the coach, rose to the bait and offered to purchase if the horse proved satisfactory on demonstration. Mac had his doubts about expecting too much of Chubb, but it was demonstration or no sale, and Roper rode away. But not for long. He was a sight when he got back to the stable, Chubb having weakened in the knee and Bill having gone over his head. Nothing but Mac's [illegible] saved him from an untimely fate, and Chubb went back into his stall.

"Forced at last to desperate measures Macfadyen finally put Chubb into a raffle, one of those running up from one cent to $1 a chance, or however high it has to go to enable the raffler to break even on the purchase money. Here Big Bill appears on the scene, and being a judge of horse flesh and liking the looks of Chubb, who put up a good front, though he didn't weigh much more than the Commissioner does now, he took a ticket out of the box and its number was ninety-seven, meaning that the holder had to ante up ninety-seven cents or stay out of the game. But William the Great was a true sport, and he handed over the sum nominated in the bond. Then he waited in eager expectancy till the drawing, and behold the magical ninety-seven won the horse, and William took him with him to his room or some place.

"How many times Chubb fell down with his new owner or what other painful incidents in connection with the bucked knee may have occurred is not a matter of public record, but Chubb could have been bought cheap mighty soon after the raffle, if anybody around Princeton had wanted him. But nobody did. Neither did his owner, but that was different. He might have prosecuted Macfadyen for obtaining money under false pretences, but ninety-seven cents for a horse would have been a hard case to handle. As Princeton offered no relief, William shipped Chubb to New York, but not to enter him at the Horse Show. Just what for nobody knows, but it was reported some time later that he had swapped the horse to a Long Island farmer for a yellow dog and had turned the dog over to the tender mercies of the S. P. C. A. people.

"But that has nothing to do with the fact that W. H. Edwards, Commissioner of Street Cleaning for New York city, bought a horse for ninety-seven cents, has it?"

THE NEXT TWO WEEKS MUST BE ROUSERS

The first week of December brought phenomenal selling, but the two weeks that are left before Christmas will have to be crowded with simply extraordinary selling, if our object is attained of a $25.000 OUTPUT IN DECEMBER. It takes a lot of goods to count up to that amount, but if LOW PRICES on high-grade seasonable goods will do it, we will reach the goal.

COME & GET YOUR SHARE

The great RETIRING SALE has been proven a veritable harvest of Money-Saving Opportunities to thousands of the forehanded buyers in this district, and when still further reductions are assured, the public will have the fullest confidence in the statement. Just be one of the hundreds who are going to make their money spread over more buying than it ever did, in the next two weeks, by shopping at FAIR'S.

NORWOOD NEWS BUDGET

Special Correspondence

Norwood, Dec. 12.—Mr. Thos. Watson has been engaged to manage the new rink.

Mrs. C. W. Miller, of South River, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Nicol, King street.

Mrs. J. Forsyth and daughter, Marion, of Warkworth, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pufter last week.

Mr. Egbert Kelly was in Peterborough on Saturday.

Miss V. Coulter, of the Elite Millinery Parlors, left on Saturday for Toronto.

Mr W Shepherdson was in Toronto on Saturday.

Mr Lisle Mills, of Havelock, was the guest of friends here on Sunday.

Mrs. C. W. Waters and daughter, Oalo, have returned from Toronto.

CURLING RINK.

Messrs. Finlay & Sons have secured ten pairs of curling stones for use in their new rink. The carpenters are putting on the finishing touches and the rink will soon be ready for the cold weather. The owners are sparing no pains to have the rink fully up to the mark. Comfortable waiting rooms are being prepared, one for the ladies, one for the gentlemen and one for the curlers. The splendidly lighted. About twenty 16 candle power lamps have been installed in the curling rink, while two rows of lamps about three dozen, will illuminate the ice for skating and hockey. Mr. Finlay is organizing a hockey team out of the workmen in the factory. He expects to have a pretty strong line up, as some of the best players in the village are employed in the works.

Election day passed off very quietly in Norwood. It seems to be a foregone conclusion that Mr Thompson would be returned and consequently little excitement prevailed. Considerable interest was manifested in watching the returns from the province in the evening and the two parties threw aside their strife and united in procuring the Council chamber and the returns from the Telegraph Company. Now that the political elections are settled we will look for municipal politics to take a spurt.

It is generally thought that the present council will be returned unopposed. Mr. B. W. Squire may be nominated to oppose Reeve a Breault.

The nominations will be held on Friday evening, Dec. 22nd, at 7.30 p.m. in the town hall. At the last meeting of the Village Council, a by-law was passed appointing deputies and poll clerks, in case of an election on Jan. 1 1912.

For polling sub-division, No. 1, at the town hall, E. J. Laing was appointed D.R.O. with Mr. H. Fry as poll clerk, Mr. C. O'Reilly is D.R.O. for Division, No. 2 at the Secretary's office, Fair grounds, with A. Davidson as poll clerk.

People who have any occasion to do any driving say that the country roads are in a very bad shape. The mud is as deep as any time in the spring when the frost is going out.

The Village Council will meet on Friday evening of this week to wind up the business for the year.

The Farmers' Institute will hold their usual annual meeting in the town hall here on January 8th. next. The afternoon will be devoted to business while the usual entertainment will be given in the evening. No charge will be made for admission to the evening entertainment.

Mr. J. S. Squire is paying 15 1-2c. a pound for live turkeys and at that price is receiving large quantities almost every day.

CAMPBELLCROFT

Misses Essa and Maggie Wright spent a day with Mrs. G. Cladwell Canton, last week.

Mr. B. Moyse of Rochester is the guest at Wm. Moyse.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray attended the wedding of her sister in Peterboro last Wednesday.

Walter Caldwell journeyed to Peterboro last Wednesday and brought home a new bride in the person of Miss Matilda Sampson of Welcome.

Mrs. Rev. Lowe's baby girl died only 2 days old, and was burried at Port Hope, as also Mrs Thos. Wilson's baby girl died, just 2 days old

Dr McKinley of Port Hope is making professional calls here with his auto yet.

Miss Cambers of Toronto is the speakr for the Presbyetrian Home Mission at Mrs. Allison's on Wednesday next.

W. H. Moyse of Oshawa spent Sunday in our town.

Mr. Alex. Walsh J.P., brought the boys to time who have been in the habit of stealing whips adn changing ropes in rigs at the different church sheds both here and at Elizabethville. If a few more examples were made there would be less depredations going on in the line of thieving.

Dick Gardiner and Wm. Maize make lively times here Mondays and Tuesdays, loading hogs for shipping as well as cattle and sheep.

Christmas trees are all the rage here now. Knoxville 19th, Methodist 21st, English church, 22nd and Presbyterian 25th, with a candy social at Bewdley thrown in, and Elizabethville held a shadow social last week. Lots of fun for the young people.

BRIDAL PAIR WEIGH 735 POUNDS NET

Dover, N.H., December 13.—Samuel Chesley Drew, the pride of the New England Fat Men's Association, who weighs 457 pounds, is back at his home here after a honeymoon trip with his bride, who was Miss Rose Lavigne, of Rochester, and who herself tips the scales at 278 pounds. As there was no carriage in the town capable of transporting the happy pair, they were carried from the train to their home in a haytruck.

GERMS SPREAD IN SKIN

Eczema, Psoriasis, and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Unless these germs are promptly destroyed rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a loathsome and torturing skin disease with its years and years of misery.

Don't take any chances! Destroy the germs at the beginning of the trouble, with that soothing and cleansing wash, the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

We have had experience with many remedies for skin trouble but have never—never seen such remarkable cures as those from D.D.D. Prescription. Instant relief from the very first application.

If you have skin trouble of any kind, we certainly advise you to drop in and investigate the merits of D.D.D. or why not drop a line to the D.D.D. Laboratories, Dept. P. W., 49 Colborne St., Toronto.

We know that D.D.D. will help you.

NEWSY NOTES FROM OMEMEE

Omemee, Dec 11.—The glad announcement was made at Christ church on Sabbath evening that the balance of debt on the church had been wiped out by a donation from Mr. Walter Cottingham, of Cleveland, aformer resident of our town.

Mr. A. P. McLean, of Peterborough, called on his brother on Thursday evening.

The Presbyterian Sabbath school will have a Christmas tree and entertainment on Friday evening, December 22nd.

L.O.L. 113 hold their annual concert on Christmas evening in the town hall. There's a splendid bill-of-fare for the evening.

The village and township of Emily councils convene on 15th inst.

Mr. Bert Morden, of Peterborough, was in town over the week end.

Mr. W. G. Stephenson is recovering from an attack of tonsilitis, which retained him from active duty for a time.

Our very cold weather and the snow has departed. The bleakness is depressing to the eye, and the temperature of 45 degrees unseasonable.

A local student of weatherology has discovered that the pancreas of the common hog or commerce predicts the weather for the winter. This conclusion is the result of years of research, comparison and observation. The indications of this organ, found in 15 or 20 slaughtered hogs, are that the present winter was to begin in true style and then subside, so there you have it; there's to be open conditions for the remaining conditions, despite the almanac, the Indian, Higgins or Hicks.

If it were not for the press we would scarce know there was a provincial election campaign.

Rev. R. Burns preached to the Presbyterian congregation at Mount Pleasant on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. M. Parrington held a successful sale of farm stock and implements on Friday.

We regret to learn that Mr. Rost Adams is indisposed and hope he will soon be about as usual.

Miss McCaffrey is home from Wilberforce, where she has been teaching.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Handley, of Mt. Pleasant, called on friends in Omemee, the first of the week.

Anniversary services were held in the Methodist church on Sunday. The Rev. D. H. Currie delivered a stirring address at each of the services.

Rev. Robert Burns preached an edifying sermon in the Presbyterian church on Sabbath morning.

Mr. Havelock Fee, of Lindsay, was down for over the week end.

Our new town hall, the cost of which has been provided by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Eaton, of Toronto, will be opened on 18th inst. The chair will be taken by Judge McMillan, of Lindsay. Addresses will be delivered by Rev. R. Burns, Rev. D. H. Currie, Rev. H. Earle, of town, and Rev. Father Megan, of Downeyville, and Dr. Malcom, M.P.P., of Fenelon Falls, Mrs. J. C. Eaton and Mrs. Walker, of Toronto, and a chorus of 40 voices under the leadership of Reeve Mulligan, with Miss Annie Ivory as accompanist, will contribute to the program. The receipts are to be applied to the purchase of a piano for the hall and this coupled with the fine program and the distinction of being present at the first concert held in the nattiest town hall in any village of Canada, should draw a bumper attendance.

Nominations for municipal positions will take place on Friday, Dec. 22nd and polling on New Year's Day.

The stork called early on Saturday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Ingram, who are in ecstasy over over the presence of a bouncing young son.

At the coming municipal elections, the council will submit to the electors a by-law, which, if approved of by popular vote—will legalize the corporation representatives to assume control of the present library and to establish on a basis without [illegible] The by-law is in print in the public press. Other small towns and villages have taken this step. The library is a going concern and can be managed more successfully, more efficiently and at less expense under control of a board of directors appointed by the council and the Board of Education. Those who have the educational interests of the village at heart and desire advancement along lines of business progress and greater service, should see to it that their votes are recorded in favor of the by-law on January 1st.

With deep regret we note the demise of Dr. T. G. Brereton, of Bethany, a man whose place in the medical profession will be hard to fill. Sincerest condolence is extended to the bereaved relatives.

GOOD CONCERT AT S. A. TEMPLE

Band Delighted Large Audience With Special Program

The band concert at the S. A. Temple last night, proved a great success, the hall being nearly filled with people who greatly appreciated the splendid program. The trombone solo by Bandsman Sandford was far above the ordinary, as was also Bandsman's Dicks' mouthorgan solo and Bandsman F. Gray's recitation. The male choir rendered an excellent selection and the program ended about ten o'clock. The band will be giving a series of these concerts during the winter, to which the public are invited to attend.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q.—Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?

A.—Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day, only old persons or those near sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q. Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?

A.—Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

Q.—Can my headache be relieved with Glasses?

A. A personal visit will be necessary. LET US TALK IT OVER.

FIEND WIPES OUT FAMILY OF FOUR

Beheaded Bodies of Mother, Son and Two Daughters Found in Cow Stable--Italian Farm-Hand is Missing.

Special to the Review.

Albany, N.Y., Dec. 14.—Evidences of a fiendish crime were discovered last night in Rensselaer County, near here, when the headless bodies of Mrs. Mary Mornor, her son Arthur aged 29 years and her two daughters, Edith and Blanche, aged 20 and 17 years respectively, were found buried in the cow stable behind the home.

The crime has been fastened to an Italian farm hand who had worked for the family for some time and has disappeared. The police found a hastily written note on the piano in the house which read, "Italian make sausage out of Americans."

LAW IS IN ERROR SAYS COUNSEL FOR MRS. HEBERT

Celebrated Marriage Suit In Montreal Takes an Interesting Turn When Lawyer Wainwright Undertakes to Combat the Ruling Given In Two Famous Cases Now Cited as Precedents.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—That under the Roman law, French law, British common law, and under the law prevailing in the Province of Quebec before the cession of 1760, the one great essential for the validity of the marriage was the mutual consent of the contracting parties; that Catholic priests officiating at marriages in the province prior and subsequent to the cession acted simply as officers or witnesses on behalf of the state in the matter, and that, consequently, all attempts to read into existing statutes exclusive powers for Catholic clergymen to officiate at the marriages of Catholics could not be based on the contention that such exclusive privilege existed prior to the promulgation of the present civil code — such was the burden yesterday of a lengthy address delivered before the practice court by Arnold Wainwright, counsel for Mrs. Hebert, in the marriage annulment case. His address occupied the whole afternoon session and was resumed this morning.

According to the attorneys for Mrs. Hebert, the position of Hebert is that, taking into account the ancient practice existing in Quebec prior to the time when the French colony came under the dominion of the British throne, the marriage of Catholics, to be valid, had of necessity to be contracted before the parish priest or bishop. Hence, if it could be proven that such was not the case, the position assumed by Hebert in the matter would become automatically untenable. As it was it was a decree of the Council of Trent, as well as an ordinance of the French state, issued in 1697, that Catholics had of necessity to be married before their parish priest or bishop, all that had to be proven was that neither the decree nor the ordinance had ever been in effect in French Canada before the cession. This counsel endeavored to do.

Incidentally, as the position Messrs. Cousins and Wainwright are taking is in contradiction to existing jurisprudence as enunciated in judgments of Justices Jette and Lemieux, in two famous cases, they admitted that the task of confronting them was no small one, and, in this admission, they were confirmed by an expression of opinion from Mr. Justice Charbonneau, presiding at the hearing. That an extraordinary error had crept into the jurisprudence of the province, as exemplified in the rulings above referred to, was the view taken by Mr. Wainwright.

"It is incumbent upon me," says he, "to prove that, under the old law, the marriage of two Catholics solemnized before a Protestant clergyman was not illegal.

"In doing this I will prove that the marriage in the present instance cannot be attacked, and thus combat an extraordinary error which has crept into the jurisprudence of the province will be set aside."

Lieutenant-Governor at Brantford.

Brantford, Dec. 14.—Lieutenant-Governor Gibson formally opened the new children's shelter here yesterday, the gift of Mrs. Peter Wood to the Children's Aid Society. His honor was tendered a luncheon by civic representatives and was escorted to the new shelter by the cadet corps and scouts.

The shelter, which is the residence of the late Rev. Dr. Martin, is said to be the finest in Ontario and congratulating references were made to the work of the society in Brantford. His honor was accompanied by Sheriff Middleton, Hamilton, and J. J. Kelso, Toronto.

On Eve of Revelations.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 14.—Nationwide interest will centre here to-day when the weeks of work by detectives, attorneys and accountants who have compiled evidence alleged to show the complicity of others than the McNamara brothers in a dynamiting conspiracy, will be turned over to the federal grand jury for formal investigation.

Letters and records of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers have been abstracted and checked, against statements by O. E. McManigal, confessed dynamiter in the employ of John J. McNamara, the convicted secretary-treasurer of the association.

No More Live Men.

Briceville, Tenn., Dec. 14.—With the passing of another day without the discovery of any more live men in Cross Mountain mine, hope for the rescue of the fifty old men still unaccounted for reached its lowest ebb. Late yesterday the report spread through the village that three more survivors had been found and practically the whole population flocked to the mine for news, only to be disappointed in finding that it was untrue.

PRINCESS HAD CLOSE CALL

In the Wreck on the Moroccan Coast.

Launch Conveying Party Was Upset.

Several French Blue Jackets Drowned.

Gibraltar, Dec. 14.—Princess Louise Victoria, Princess Royal of Great Britain and Ireland and sister of King George V., and her daughters, had a thrilling experience yesterday when the Peninsular and Oriental steamship Delhi, on which they were voyaging to Egypt, struck the reefs of Cape Spartel, the northwest extremity of Africa. While being taken ashore by the long boat of the British armored cruiser, Duke of Edinburgh, they were thrown into the water by the capsizing of the boat, one of the daughters having a narrow escape from drowning. She was rescued by a sailor and carried to land with the others, all suffering severely from the bitter cold.

The Delhi struck at one o'clock in the morning in a thick fog. Immediately all the passengers hurried from their staterooms half dressed and put on life preservers. Water poured steadily into the cabins, while enormous seas, sometimes mast-high, broke over the vessel. Signals of distress were sent out by wireless, and the first warship to arrive was the French cruiser Friant.

It was long past daylight before the Friant's steam launch was able to come alongside the Delhi. In the meantime preparations were made aboard the stranded steamer to send the women and children ashore. One of the boats of the Delhi was lowered and filled with passengers. The launch succeeded in getting this in tow and then steamed to the British cruiser Duke of Edinburgh, where the frightened woman and children were safely taken aboard.

The cruiser Duke of Edinburgh with thirty-eight of the rescued passengers from the Delhi, arrived here last night. It was expected that the royal party would reach Gibraltar aboard the battleship London, but latest reports state that they had decided to remain for the night at Tangiers, where they are housed in the British legation.

One of the women passengers, in describing the wreck, said that there was not the slightest panic after the vessel struck. The passengers were summoned to dress and go on deck, but were assured that there was little danger. Arriving on deck they found the fog dense and the seas beating heavily against the ship. There was little confusion or excitement. They remained assembled on deck until 10 o'clock in the morning, when the Friant's boats, after considerable exertions, succeeded in conveying some of the passengers aboard the British cruiser.

All preparations had been made here for the reception of the royal party, which included the Duke of Fife, who, it is learned, remained aboard the Delhi until most of the passengers had been transferred. Wireless despatches say that they are in good health and spirits, but much fatigued and exhausted from their dangerous adventure, the ride on horseback to the lighthouse and the journey thence to Tangiers.

The Delhi is reported to be in a critical position. She is broadside on the rocks. The salvage vessel Gibelmusa, has sailed from here with lighters and will make an attempt to save the specie, mails, and luggage. The weather has moderated somewhat, but heavy seas are still breaking over the stranded vessel.

HEAVY SENTENCES ON BRITISH SPIES

Max Schultz and Accomplices Get Penal Servitude.

Leipsic, Germany, Dec. 14.—Heavy punishments were meted out yesterday to the English spies arrested at Hamburg on March 18, and who have been on trial behind closed doors before the imperial court for several days.

Max Schultz, an English ship broker, was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. One of his associates, an engineer named Hipsick, was condemned to twelve years in jail; another engineer named Wulff was sent to jail for two years; a merchant named Von Maack and Max Schultz's housekeeper each received three years.

Max Schultz was accused of using his profession as a ship broker as a covering for corrupting shipyard workmen and getting them to betray German naval secrets. He was for a long time closely watched by detectives during his frequent trips between Hamburg and Bremen, at which ports ten German warship of different types were at the time under construction.

It was said during the trial that incriminating material was found in his possession, but that this was not of an important character, although it is believed that he succeeded in getting documents of value to those who employed him out of the country. He is regarded by the German naval authorities as the most dangerous spy connected with an institution whose activities cover all the shipyards and arsenals of Europe.

Revenue Greatly Increased.

Toronto, Dec. 14.—Great increases in the receipts of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway are reported by the Provincial Treasurer.

During the month of September the net earnings of the Government railway amounted to $75,814, as compared with $21,604 during September, 1910.

The gross receipts for September, 1911, were $200,317, against $119,082 during September of last year.

The gross revenue of the T. & N. O. Railway from Nov. 1, 1910, till Sept. 30, 1911, amounts to $1,568,646, as compared with $1,480,318 during the corresponding eleven months previous.

After all expenditures have been deducted, the net revenue of the Government railway from Nov. 1, 1910, till Sept. 30, 1911, is $492,822.

Last year it was $384,841.

Labor Can Beat Liquor.

Washington, Dec. 14.—"The laboring man is the hope of the country in the fight against the rum traffic," declared John B. Lennon, treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, to the delegates at the annual convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, here yesterday.

"The liquor forces had boasted," said Mr. Lennon, "that as long as organized labor stood back of them they had no fear of the church. This combination can be broken up," he said, "just as soon as Christian men and women begin to interest themselves in organized labor."

Bouquet For Speaker Sproule.

London, Dec. 14.—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, at its regular meeting, placed on record its appreciation of the stand made by the Hon. Dr. Sproule in prohibiting the use of intoxicants at social functions. The membership also expressed its grateful appreciation of the part Mrs. Sproule played in bringing about this happy event.

South African Cruisers.

London, Dec. 14.—The Chronicle announces that the South African Government will build a fleet of cruisers, which will be employed in times of peace to carry the mails to England in place of the Union Castle Line, which is now receiving a subsidy of $750,000.

HOPES FOR RECIPROCITY

President Taft Says it Will Come in Time.

Port Hope, Dec. 14.—J. K. Culverwell, hydraulic engineer of this town, was a delegate to the convention of the Atlantic Deeperways Association held at Washington, and addressed the association on the subject of canals.

Mr. Culverwell met President Taft, and the President said to him that the U. S. would have reciprocity with Canada yet. Mr. Culverwell replied that Canada was not worrying about reciprocity, but was constructing canals, and busy thinking of building more.

Sir Charles Tupper Ill.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—The Star publishes a despatch from its London correspondent to the effect that Sir Charles Tupper is seriously ill with bronchitis at Bexley Heath and that owing to his advanced age the doctors consider his condition critical.

Hawkes To Report.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—Immigration Commissioner Arthur Hawkes is in Ottawa to-day in connection with the report which he is to present to the Government. Mr. Hawkes, who has been appointed to prepare a report on the most scientific and practical methods of obtaining settlers for the Dominion, has been out west, and also in Quebec. He will be here for a day or so, and will then go to Toronto. His work will, after Christmas, take him over to England, and he expects to have his report ready about February.

He has already seen about six of the Provincial Governments with regard to overlapping in immigration.

"I was up in New Ontario last week to meet some of the incoming settlers," he said. "An idea has for some time prevailed that it is possible to dump immigrants into New Ontario like coal into a cellar, but this 'root, hog or die' scheme brings failure and discontent."

Royal Garden Party.

Delhi, India, Dec. 14.—A royal garden party was held at the fort yesterday afternoon, King George and Queen Mary being given a great ovation by the 7,000 guests as they walked through the grounds. Later in the afternoon Their Majesties, wearing their crowns and coronation robes, appeared in a screened balcony on the wall of the fort, formerly used by the mogul.

The Emperor and Empress remained seated on golden thrones, while for an hour and a half a long train of religious and other native processions passed in review.

Thorold Beats Railway.

St. Catharines, Dec. 14.—The Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway Co., Tuesday night accepted the terms of the Town of Thorold as to renewal of the franchise of the Port Dalhousie, St. Catharines and Thorold Street Railway owned by the former company, and the service was resumed yesterday morning. The company grants all the terms, and the town leases a site to the company for a new station.

Farmer Goes to Jail.

Chatham, Dec. 14.—Grant Vanmeer, charged with assaulting James Chittem of Raleigh, was sentenced to one month in jail without the option of a fine by Judge Dowling yesterday afternoon. The assault was the outcome of a dispute over possession of a farm. The defendant started upon Chittem when he and his brother attempted to move a threshing machine into the barn on the property.

Compulsory Training Won't Do.

London, Dec. 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Truth disparages Dr. Logie's scheme for compulsory military training. It says: "Compulsory training would quicken the procession of young Canadians to the United States. Neither the navy nor the militia arouses enthusiasm in Canada. Both problems threaten to be as difficult for Mr. Borden as for Sir Wilfrid Laurier."

PRESIDENT TAFT,

Who expresses the opinion that reciprocity will yet carry between Canada and United States.

PHONE RATES IN MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Dec. 14.—The Manitoba Government Telephone Commission yesterday announced a new schedule of rates, the essential feature of which are as follows:

The old rates and methods of charging for service will be abandoned.

No more payments of six months in advance. All bills in future will be paid monthly.

Twenty thousand telephones are now in use in the city of Winnipeg, but with the new low monthly rates 10,000 more places should have telephone connections as fast as they can be installed.

Old rates will remain in force for present subscribers up to April 1, 1912. New rates apply to all new subscribers after Jan. 1, 1912. The rate for business telephones will be $4 a month which includes 100 calls free, or 1,200 a year. Additional calls will be charged at the rate of 2 cents each. The rate for residence telephones will be at $1.50 a month, which includes 30 calls, free, or 360 a year. Additional calls, 2 cents each, or $4.00 a month unlimited calling.

Party lines are abolished.

Train From Canada Wrecked.

Portland, Me., Dec. 14.—A special train bringing several hundred passengers to sail for Liverpool to-day, was wrecked yesterday at West Parish, Me., on the Grand Trunk Railway. Several passengers were hurt, but no one was killed.

The passengers came from points in the Canadian Northwest and were on their way to spend the holidays with relatives in their native countries. They were taken to West Parish to remain there until the tracks were cleared. They will be among 1,000 passengers to sail from Portland to-day on the Teutonic and Sicilian for Liverpool and Glasgow.

TAFT STARTED INVESTIGATION

Los Angeles, Dec. 14.—President Taft personally initiated the government's present investigation, both here and at Indianapolis, into the dynamiting conspiracy in which the McNamara brothers figured.

The president, when he visited Los Angeles on Oct. 16 was apprised by Oscar Lawler, then an assistant of District Attorney John D. Fredericks, of the strong case built up by the latter against the McNamaras.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

TRADE WITH UNITED SLATES SHOWS BIGGEST INCREASE

Germany and France Also Enlarging Their Dealings With Canada—British Increase a Little Over Two Million Dollars—Year's Returns.

Ottawa, Dec. 14.—The section of the annual report of the Department of Trade and Commerce dealing with trade between Canada, Great Britain, France and Germany has been issued. The report shows that during the fiscal year, which closed on March 31 last, Canada's total trade with Great Britain amounted to $247,551,912 as against $245,313,984 for 1910. A considerable increase in imports of British goods, and a decrease in exports to Great Britain are shown.

The total imports amounted to $110,586,801 as compared with $95,679,877 in 1910. Exports last year amounted to $136,065,111 as against $149,634,107.

Canada's total trade with the U. S. for the same twelve months reached a total of $413,813,003, as compared with $352,221,337 in the previous year. Both imports and exports increased, the former from $290,070,540 in 1910, to $294,415,202 in 1911, and the latter from $113,150,778 in 1910, to $119,396,801 in 1911. The duty collected on imports from Great Britain amounted to [illegible] and on imports from the United States $37,854,72[illegible].

The figures of trade with Germany show a slight increase, the total for the year being $12,750,216 as compared with $7,958,264 in 1910.

The figures show that while Canada bought more largely from Germany, the increase in exports from Canada to Germany was very slight, the figures being $3,501,191 for 1910, and $2,663,017 for 1911.

Trade with France increased both ways. The imports amounted to $11,755,403 in 1911, as compared with $10,170,903 in 1910, and the exports $2,782,092 in 1911, as against $2,640,648 in 1910.

Canada's total trade in 1911 amounted to $769,443,905, as compared with $693,211,221 in the previous year, and the duty collected increased from $60,709,707 in 1910, to $72,935,639 in 1911.

The exports as well as imports of coin and bullion show very large increases, the imports being $6,017,569 in 1910, and $10,206,210 in 1911, and the exports $2,594,536 in 1910, and $7,196,155 in 1911.

A BIGGER GERMAN NAVY DEMANDED

Intense Interest in the Proposed Strengthening of the Fleet is Aroused in the Berlin Press—Government Silent.

Berlin, Dec. 14.—The possibility that measures for strengthening the navy or the army or both will be submitted to the next Reichstag, which is to be elected on Jan. 12, 1912, as a result of the international crisis of last summer, is arousing the most intense interest in the press and among the public.

Until now not the slightest indication of the Government's intention in the matter has been evoked.

According to an apparently authoritative statement, which appears in The Boersen Zeitung yesterday, however, the navy and not the army is to be the chief beneficiary of the new program. The army at the same time will figure in the appropriations asked for. These were included in the last budget, but the Minister of War withdrew them out of consideration for the financial condition of the empire.

In connection with the published report that a new military bill which will add two entire corps to the army, is to be introduced instead of increasing the navy program (a statement which The Boersen Zeitung calls semi-official), the newspaper remarks that the remark in this sense is false. The building up of the navy is regarded in authoritative circles as more urgent and the reorganization of the army will be taken up only after what is necessary for the navy has been accomplished. A general military bill is not to be expected for several years. In the meantime the Ministry of War will probably seek minor appropriations.

The statement of The Boersen Zeitung does not mention the nature of these appropriations, but it is believed that they concern aviation and the provision of more machine guns.

TRENT WATERWAY TO BE LIGHTED AND BUOYED

Many Lighthouses to be Built Along the Route.

Member for West Peterboro Has Been Active at Ottawa

Mr. McClellan, the superintendent of the Trent canal, informed a Review representative to-day, that there were seven lighthouses to be built on Lake Simcoe, one on Cameron Lake, one on Lake Scugog, three on Sturgeon Lake, one on Buckhorn, three at Stoney Lake, 1 on the Otonabee River two at the entrance of the Otonabee river to Rice Lake, and one on Rice Lake. The number of buoys will be increased and all will be repainted. Beaverton harbor will be made a harbor of refuge. Major Sharpe, M.P. for North Ontario has been active in having this done. Wharves at Bradfort and the entrance to Kemptfeldt Bay on Lake Simcoe, will be built, also the wharf at Belle Ernest is to have large repairs.

The work on the reservoir dams is to be proceeded with faster than before. Lindsay river is to be dredged in fact the Trent waterway will be taken care of, and work pushed faster than in the past.

Mr. Sexsmith, M.P., East Peterboro is taking a great interest in the reservoir dams in his riding, also in all the canal that effects his constituency.

The co-operation of all the members whose constituencies touch on the canal, will soon be felt, and the canal will soon show betetr than ever. More water, better wharves, and better lighting will all tend to make the Trent Waterway the greatest tourist route on this continent.

BITTER ATTACK ON COL. HUGHES

Made by Le Canada a French Liberal Paper of Montreal

Special to the Review.

Montreal, Dec. 14.—Le Canada, the French Liberal paper, is bitterly attacking Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia. It prints a speech he made twenty-two years ago in which he is accused of having blasphemed the Pope. Le Canada says: "Col. Hughes is an insultor of priests and the people of Quebec and that the Borden regime is a glorification of hypocrisy."

Out on $10,000 Bail.

Hamilton, Dec. 14.—After remaining in jail for nearly two weeks, Joseph Acheson and J. D. Chilman, the two young men charged with the theft of $8,000 from the Canadian Express Co. last September, were released from custody yesterday afternoon on bail in the sum of $10,000 each. They appeared in the police court yesterday, and at the request of the crown attorney were remanded for another five days, at the end of which time the police expect to be able to proceed with the charges against them.

Chicago's Big Terminals.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Details of a plan that would involve the most comprehensive grouping of railway terminals ever contemplated are being worked out by railroad officials here, following a suggestion of President F. A. Delano of the Wabash System. The plan provides an expenditure of from $150,000,000 to $250,000,000 and includes the abandonment of several terminals now in use.

This outlay would provide for the construction of a transcontinental railway from coast to coast.

LINDSAY FARMER SENT TO JAIL

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Dec. 14.—Lyman B. Dillman, a middle aged farmer from Lindsay, was to day sentenced to sixty days in jail for shoplifting in Simpson's store. He stole many small articles of jewellry.

State Cable Not Yet.

London, Dec. 14.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Postmaster Samuel, replying to questions in the House of Commons, said that after viewing all the circumstances, the Government had no present intention of embarking on a large capital expenditure involved in the laying of a state cable.

"Is the postmaster aware," asked Major Archer-Shee, "that one Canadian railway's telegraph facilities are not controlled by the American Telegraph & Telephone Co., and is fighting them in fact, and that now is our opportunity to arrange through traffic for the Pacific cable?"

Mr. Samuel replied that the Pacific Cable Board had already leased a wire between Montreal and Vancouver.

Niobe Deserter Surrenders.

London, Dec. 14.—Edwin Rutherford, aged 16, who deserted last May from the cruiser Niobe, surrendered himself to the Windsor police on Dec. 11, fearing arrest and punishment. Rutherford formerly resided with his parents at 140 Egerton street, this city.

MILKING BY HYDRO-ELEC.

Hon. Mr. Beck Tells Winter Fair Visitors How it Can be Done.

Guelph, Dec. 14.—With the entries larger than ever before, and with increased accommodation, all that was necessary to make the winter fair of 1911 the greatest in its history was for the attendance figures to be larger than that for any previous year and this hids fair to be the result. The attendance figures for Tuesday were 5,547, being an increase of 2,105 over 1910, when there were only 3,442 on the first day of the fair. Yesterday the station platforms were black with people when the trains discharged their passengers, and an enormous crowd thronged the buildings all day long.

In the evening a big public meeting was held in the City Hall, over 1,200 people being in attendance. Hon. J. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, who acted as chairman, in a brief address, stated that this year the show was the best ever held in the Dominion, the attendance being greatly in excess of other years.

Hon. Adam Beck followed, dealing with the Hydro-electric power question as regards the supplying of electricity for use on the farms of the province. He gave a heart to heart talk with exhibitors from the rural districts and described the many ways in which it was used in Europe, especially in Genrmany, in man[illegible] tions of which is was used [illegible] farm and showed how [illegible] Ontario would be bene[illegible] stallation, as it was [illegible] the Government to [illegible] through other [illegible] from which mun[illegible] ships could secur[illegible] rate.

Catarrhal Deafness

Successfully Treated By

Catarrhozone

Deafness is not so common as blindness, yet thousands are more or less afflicted by it, and their comfort seriously interfered with.

Catarrhal deafness manifests itself but slowly, yet it must be acknowledged that the great majority of those who become totally deaf might have averted this unfortunate condition if they had treated the catarrhal inflammation at its beginning.

The only remedy that can be safely employed for all forms of catarrhal deafness is Catarrhozone. You simply charge the air you breathe with this healing, soothing agent, and by forcing it gently through the ears destroy the germ life which keeps up the inflammation, and at the same time by the soothing, healing action it heals the inflamed surfaces of the middle ear.

CATARRHOZONE, to those who are just a little deaf, and are growing increasingly deaf, is an agent capable of affording the utmost satisfaction, and its use is attended without danger, and as the treatment can be carried on at home no person threatened with the affliction of deafness should postpone one moment in beginning its use.

From every part of the Dominion glowing accounts of the beneficial action it exerts upon catarrhal conditions of the middle ear have been sent in, and you will be resorting to the only method of cure, and the simplest method too, if you try Catarrhozone. Dealers everywhere sell it, 25c, 50c, and $1.00, or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

While you are planning for a joyous Christmas, don't forget that there will be many little folks who will not be able to enjoy the festive season unless some kind person takes an interest in them. The year 1911 has been one of the most prosperous that the Dominion has seen for a long period, and those who have enjoyed their share of this prosperity, should see that the less fortunate ones at least have a cheerful Christmas. The brighter the light the darker the shadow and the more cheerful and prosperous and generally beautiful is your Christmas the deeper appears the gloom which shrouds the lives of those unhappy little humans to whom Christmas is merely a time when they perhaps go hungry and cold to bed wondering why Santa Claus was so much more kind to other little people than themselves. Then perhaps these little ones have seen more fortunate days when the outlook was brighter, and what pangs a cheerless Christmas must mean for them. You can help some poor little unfortunate to be happy and you will be the better for it, and enjoy the festive season to its full. Christmas ought to be a time of real joy and happiness for all.

THE COST OF NAVIES

In the last ten years the world's eight leading naval powers have spent over $5,500,000,000 on their navies, and of this sum nearly one-third has been spent by Great Britain. One of the first acts of Mr. Churchill as Lord of the Admiralty was to issue a comparative cost of the British navy, and of the seven other navies of nearest strength for the past ten years. This comparison was many months in preparation and is the most accurate and far-reaching compilation in the matter of naval cost ever issued by Great Britain.

Though the percentage of increase during the last ten years has been much greater in the case of Germany than in the case of Great Britain, the naval expenditure of Great Britain this year is still twice as heavy as [illegible]any's, and the British tonnage [illegible]nstruction is more than [illegible]t. EDITORIAL NOTES

Only eight more days for that Christmas shopping. Do it now.

We notice that the Italians are giving praise to the Lord for their victories in Tripoli. Wonder what the Turk is doing.

Were men to change their hats as frequently as women what a boom there would be in the "gent's" furnishing trade.

The Toronto Telegram says Ontario's great need is more people in the Temiskaming country and less politics there and in other parts of the province.

Mrs. Pankhurst accuses the Asquith Government of "treachery" because it introduced the manhood suffrage bill during her absence from England. She certainly has a pretty high opinion of Mrs. Pankhurst.

King George and his good consort are having a busy time as the centre of one of the most brilliant spectacles in India the world has ever witnessed. Yet they will turn their faces toward England toward England, we would wager, with a sigh of relief. These functions are very tiresome, if the truth were told, even to kings and queens.

Hydro-Electric System

Toronto News.

Among the important measures upon which ratepayers are to be asked to vote, the extension of the hydro-electric system must take first place. Having accepted the principle of municipal ownership of public services, the citizens should not refuse to extend to the whole town a service which has already proved itself of great benefit to a large part of it. Further capitalization of the hydro-electric system will secure more custom, and thereby we should get lower prices in the future. For it is more economical to provide for a large demand than for a small consumption. The citizens will be voting the destruction of their own property if they deny the necessary increase of capital for the hydro-electric system.

LAKEHURST NEWS

Special Correspondence

Lakehurst, Dec. 12.—Mrs. Wilbert Elliott spent a few days in Peterboro last week.

Mr. H. Holmes spent Friday of last week in Racboro.

We are extremely sorry to learn that Mr. A. Fawcett, who has been suffering from an attack of pleurisy is not recovering as speedily as we would like to see him.

Mrs. W. Thompson, Miss Mabel Thompson, Misses Martha and Isabel Stevenson, spent last Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. Nesbitt.

Mr. W. Adams is renovating his kitchen by laying a new floor.

Miss Mary Young entertained a few of her school friends at a birthday party last Saturday afternoon.

Miss Annie McGuire of Ennismore spent Saturday and Sunday, under the parental roof.

Miss Fern Telford, who has been visiting at her grandmother's, has returned to her home in Bridgenorth.

Miss Martha Stevenson was the guest of Miss Madge Shaw last Wednesday evening.

Mrs. W. Thompson was the guest of Miss Madge Shaw, last Thursday evening.

A number of the Lakehurst young people spent a very pleasant evening skating on Sandy Lake last Thursday. The ice was in excellent condition and everyone present enjoyed themselves immensely. We deplore the fact that the recent thaw has wrought havoc with both our sleighing and skating and hope that ere long we will be enjoying these advantages once more.

Mr. John McGuire visited the city of Peterborough last Saturday.

We are pleased to see the Lakehurst boys who went West on the harvest excursions have returned to their homes here. They give varied accounts of the prairie province, but we believe a number of them intend returning in the Spring.

The Methodist Sunday school and the Presbyterian Mission Band are uniting in an effort to get up a Christmas tree and concert for the evening of Dec 20th. We have very sanguine anticipations as to the success of the affair and hope many will avail themselves of the opportunity of spending a pleasant and profitable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stevenson are visiting friends at Locust Hill, this week.

FIGHT AGAINST THE WHITE PLAGUE

Buy Calendars and Stamps at the Stores and Banks

The pretty calendars and stamps issued by the Peterboro Health Association are now on sale in all the city drug stores, the city banks and also with several merchants. The proceeds from the sale of the above are to be used in the fight against tuberculosis, which our doctors tell us is quite prevalent in our midst. Those who have been ill themselves or have had illness in their homes, no matter of what kind, never turn a deaf ear to the needs of the poor sick, but sometimes the strong and healthy ones do not stop to think of the hopelessness and suffering of those who are poor and have not the means to procure medical attention and advice, and often knock things which well meaning people undertake to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunate ones. Are you going to be a booster or a knocker? If the former, buy some of the stamps and calendars and help on a good cause. Don't knock the Peterboro Health Association. It is but a "child in the cradle." Help to put it on its feet and give it a chance. Give it a smile and a pat in the back even if you can only buy a few stamps. It will all help to fight the good fight against the white scourge.

KEENE NEWS

Special Correspondence

Keene, Dec. 13—Considerable excitement was caused in the village when the chimney on the house occupied by F. Burnham caught fire. The village bucket brigade under the management of G. E. Gall turned out in full force. Ladders were raised to the roof and then an argument arose as to whether to pour water down the chimney or let it burn out itself. The argument grew so warm that before the brigade realised, the chimney had burned out and the brigade decided to disband until their services would be needed again.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Frightened over a big falling off in northwestern receipts and because of unsettled weather and strike threats in the Argentine, wheat shorts to-day covered freely. In consequence the market closed 1-4c to 7-8c higher than last night. All other leading staples, too, made a net gain—corn, 3-8c to 3-4c; oats, a shade to 1-4c to 3-8c, and hogs, 10c to 22 1-2c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day unchanged to ⅛d higher than yesterday on wheat and ¼d higher on corn. At Berlin wheat closed ⅛c higher, at Buda Pest ⅛c lower and at Antwerp unchanged.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 12.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat continues good and a fair amount of business is passing daily, but exporters state that ocean room is becoming very scarce to all ports and unless steamship agents increase the sailings, it will be hard to do much more business. In coarse grains a fair trade is being done. There was an increased inquiry from European sources for spring wheat flour, but the prices bid were all 6d to 1s per sack below millers' views. The local trade is fair and prices rule steady. Demand for bran and shorts is good. Cheese is quiet; but firm. Demand for butter is good. Eggs are active and strong at another advance of 1c per dozen. Provisions are fairly active.

Corn—American No. 2 yellow, 80c.

Oats — Canadian western, No. 2, 47½c; do., No. 3, 46c, extra No. 1 feed, 46c to 46½c; No. 2 local white, 46½c; No. 3 local white, 45½c; No. 4 local white, 44½c.

Barley—Manitoba feed, 64c; malting, 95c to $1.

Buckwheat—No. 2, 65c to 66c.

Flour—Manitoba spring wheat patents, firsts, $5.60; seconds, $5.10; strong bakers, $4.90; winter patents, choice, $4.75 to $5; straight rollers, $4.25 to $4.40; do., bags, $1.75 to $2.05.

Rolled oats—Barrels, $5; bag of 90 lbs., $2.37½.

Bran, $23; shorts, $25; middlings, $27 to $29, mouillie, $29 to $34.

Hay—No. 2, per ton car lots, $15 to $15.50.

Cheese—Finest westerns, 14¼c to 14⅜c; finest easterns, 13⅞c to 14½c.

Butter—Choicest creamery, 30½c to 31½c; seconds, 29c to 30c.

Eggs—Fresh, 60c; selected, 30c to 32c; No. 1 stock, 26c to 27c.

Potatoes—Per bag, car lots, $1.25 to $1.27½.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 12.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the offerings this morning were 900 cattle, 1100 sheep and lambs, 1750 hogs and 200 calves.

On account of the continued mild and unseasonable weather and the fact that the market is glutted with common and inferior beef the demand for such grades of cattle was very limited, and as the bulk of the offerings on the market consisted of the same, trade was dull and the tone of the market was weaker, but even at the reduced prices butchers did not want that class of stock at this season of the year.

There were no really choice steers offered, but there were a few good ones, for which the demand was fair and sales of a few picked lots were made at $6 to $6.25 per cwt., and some fairly good steers brought $5.50 to $5.75. The trade in small meats was fairly active, there being a good demand for all lines and as supplies were not in excess of the requirements a firm feeling prevailed in the market and prices show no change as compared with those of Monday.

Hogs were a little more plentiful, but the demand was ample to take care of them all and sales of selected lots were made at $6.50 to $6.60 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Export cattle, bulls, $4.50 to $5.40; butchers' cattle, choice, $5.75 to $5.95; choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $4.50 to $5; bulls, $3.50 to $4.50; milkers, choice, each, $75, common and medium, each, $50 to $60, springers, $30 to $40.

Sheep, ewes, $3.75 to $4; bucks and culls, $3.25 to $3.50; lambs, $5.75 to $6.

Hogs, f.o.b., $6.50 to $6.60 per cwt.

Calves, $3 to $14.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Cattle—Receipts, 21,000; market weak; beeves, $4.55 to $8.90; Texas steers, $4 to $5.75; western steers, $4.40 to $6.65, stockers and feeders, $3.10 to $5.60; cows and heifers, $1.90 to $6.15; calves, $5.50 to to $8.

Hogs—Receipts, 31,000; markets 5c to 10c higher, light, $5.55 to $6.22½; mixed, $5.85 to $6.35; heavy, $5.90 to $6.40; rough, $5.90 to $6.10; good to choice hogs, $6.10 to $6.40; pigs, $3.75 to $5.60, bulk of sales, $6 to $6.35.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 43,000, market weak; native, $2.60 to $4; western, $2.75 to $4.10; yearlings, $4.25 to $5.50; lambs, native, $4 to $6.10; western, $4.25 to $6.20.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

With his concluding words, Stodger pointed up to the landing, through whose balusters I could see a hand and a part of a motionless human form stretched out at full length upon the floor.

"Felix Page—b'r-r—dead as a door-nail," Stodger now added. "Slugged over the head with a heavy iron candlestick; find it lying there by him. Think of all that wheat—and them ships crunching through the ice. Say, it's pretty tough, ain't it? He was—but would you rather make an examination first? Or shall I go on?"

I smiled at the man's air of vast importance, which discriminated not at all between grave matters and light. With his queer "hum's" and "haw's," his funny little exclamatory noises and quick, jerky manner of speech, he reminded me of a jolly diminutive priest who had just dined well. Never was mortal freer of affectation. And his cheerfulness? It was as expansive and as volatile as ether. His buoyancy was a perpetual, never-failing tonic for doubt and discouragement, and I have yet to witness him confronted with a situation that could in the least dash his spirits.

He awaited my reply to his question with an air which suggested nothing less important than the well-being of his very existence was at stake.

"Tell me what you have learned," returned I. Things usually acquire a more comprehensible aspect when you have a few facts by which to measure and weigh them, and I wanted to hear Stodger's story.

"Yip!" he cried cheerily. "Might as well sit here as anywhere else; nobody to disturb us."

Weighted as he was with surplus flesh, his agility was amazing. He wheeled around and plumped down on an oak bench, not unlike a church pew, which stood against the panelled stairway beyond the newel. As I followed I drew my overcoat closer about me, for the hall was cold and dismal.

"This fellow Burke—Alexander Stillwell; queer chap. Close-mouthed? Say!"—he squared around and tapped my chest with an impressive forefinger—"a clam's real noisy compared with him. Fact. Watched me steady all the time I—you know—looked at the body."

Stodger stopped abruptly, with the manner of one to whom has occurred a sudden brilliant idea. He thumped one fat knee with a pudgy hand, and whispered with suppressed eagerness:

"By jinks, Swift! I have it! I'll get Burke—Alexander Stillwell. Let him talk—in there"—with a violent gesture toward the opposite side of the hall—"library. What say? There's a—you know—alcove—curtains. I'll hide behind 'em and listen; if he don't tell the story just like he did to me, why, we'll call the turn on him. See?"

For various reasons I thought the idea not a bad one, and said so. He went nimbly round the prostrate figure on the landing without so much as a look towards it, and disappeared.

He and another man appeared, after a while at the back of the hall, having evidently availed themselves of a rear stairway.

I surveyed the private secretary with much interest, and must even now confess, after no inconsiderable study of the human face, that I have never since beheld one that was so utterly baffling.

He was a slender man of medium height, and of an age that might have been anything between twenty and fifty; his eyes, hair, brows, and lashes were all of a uniform shade of pale yellow—excepting that the eyes had a greenish tint—while his face and thin, nervous hands wore a dead, unwholesome pallor.

The effect was extraordinary. The ageless face looked as if it did not know how to conform to or mirror any inward emotion; and furthermore, one was never precisely positive whether or not the pale eyes were following one, for they somehow, in their uncertain fixedness, suggested the idea that they were windows behind which the real eyes were incessantly vigilant. So it was when Stodger introduced him; I could not tell whether he was watching me or my colleague—or, in truth, whether he was watching either of us.

"Mr. Burke, Mr. Swift," said Stodger, with a grand air—"Mr. Alexander Stillwell Burke." Then, in a hoarse aside to me:

"Little matter I want to look after; just 'tend to it while you two are talking."

CHAPTER II.

The Private Secretary

Stodger at once left us together, having, I surmised, his own method of getting into the curtained alcove of which he had spoken. In order that he should have ample time to reach it, I held Burke with a question or two in the hall.

"Mr. Burke," said I, "who besides yourself and Mr. Page was in the house last night?"

He replied promptly, but with a deliberate precision, as if he were making a weighty confidential communication, and wanted to be exceedingly careful to convey an exact interpretation of his thoughts.

I might now add that this cautious, reflective manner characterized all his speech, and in time it grew extremely aggravating.

"A young man named Maillot," he said; "Royal Maillot."

"And who is this Royal Maillot?" I next asked.

Was Burke returning my intent look? Or did he have an eye for some fancied movement behind him, or off there towards the closed library door? For the life of me, I could not have told with assurance.

"I can't tell you much from my own knowledge," he presently returned; and now I was pretty positive that he was meeting my regard. "Mr. Maillot is still here, however; he can speak for himself."

"I know that"—curtly; "but I prefer to be informed beforehand—even if it's only by hearsay. Who is Mr. Maillot?"

Again the furtive, wandering look behind the blank of the clean-shaven, ageless features.

"I've gathered the idea that he's a young lawyer, and that some business affair brought him here to confer with Mr. Page. He arrived only last night. The whole circumstance was very unusual."

"What do you mean by that?"

Some moments elapsed before he replied.

"Why," presently, "Mr. Page was not in the habit of seeing people here, or—as far as that's concerned—of considering any business matters whatever after he returned home in the evening; this was his invariable rule, excepting—" He paused.

"Excepting what?" I urged.

"Well, occasionally—very rarely—he would have me here. Last night was one of those occasions; he expected to be absent from the city, and there were special instructions that he wanted to give me, concerning certain matters that had to be looked after to-day.

"But, without an exception that I can recall, everybody else who had business with him was required to go to the Drovers' National, or to his office in the same building.

"Even our relations—our acquaintance—practically ended with each day's business, not to be renewed until the next day; and I suppose I approach nearer than any of his other employes to being what you might call a confidential clerk, or secretary."

I rose briskly to my feet.

"Let's go some place where it's more comfortable," suggested I, throwing open the library door; "in here will do."

He entered unhesitatingly, for it is an easy matter to influence people to your will in such trifling manoeuvres; and as I followed, I glanced about the spacious apartment.

Its walls were wainscoted with oak, save for a narrow painted frieze, and while very few books were in evidence, the place would have been cheerful enough had there been a fire in the wide, handsome brick fireplace, or had there existed any indication at all that the room was ever used by human beings. Before the cold and empty hearth stood a table, where, very likely, Mr. Page had been in the habit of working on those rare occasions of which his secretary had spoken. On the right of this table was the curtained alcove.

Now Burke's conduct during the next second or so was destined, later on, to give me an idea concerning that gentleman, which indirectly aided me in clearing up a puzzling feature of the case. It was this.

As I indicated the chair where I wanted him to sit—one near enough to the alcove for Stodger not only to hear what Burke might say, but also to have the additional advantage of watching him without much likelihood of being observed in turn—I could have sworn that Burke hesitated and bent a doubtful, inquiring look toward the alcove; yet I am not positive that he ceased for a moment his blank, unblinking scrutiny of me. At any rate, he was no sooner seated than he bounded up again.

"We can have a little more light here," said he, starting towards the alcove, behind whose curtains Stodger was at that moment, I daresay, hastily planning a means of precipitate retreat. I was already seated myself, and I stayed his progress only in the nick of time.

"Burke!" I called sharply.

He wheeled about, a trifle disconcerted, I imagined.

"Please sit down," I went on authoritatively. "You are not precisely at liberty to go just where you please; for the present I'm responsible for your movements."

He shrugged his shoulders and returned to his chair, remarking in an unemotional way:

"I forgot that I was under arrest."

I didn't trouble to define his position. At best it was at that instant an anomalous one; so far as I knew there were no grounds upon which to hold him at all; and while I would have hesitated to say that he was actually in custody, at the same time it is true that I would not have permitted him to walk out of the house and away, had he desired to do so.

"Now, Mr. Burke," I went on, "tell me just what you know about this matter. Don't slur details; take your time."

"I know very little, Mr. Swift."

"Let's have it, nevertheless."

"About one o'clock last night I had just completed sorting some papers in my room. They had been in a file-case so long that they were very dusty; so when I was through I went to the bath-room—one door from mine—to wash my hands, and while I was so engaged I was startled by a crash, as of some one falling heavily outside.

"I picked up my candle, and looked into the hall. At first I saw nothing, and everything was perfectly quiet; but in a moment I noticed that an étagère, which had always stood at the head of the stairs, was tipped forward against the banisters, and at the same time I heard Mr. Maillot moving about in his room. I was much perplexed to account for such a disturbance at that hour of the night, and for a time I stood motionless, waiting to see what would occur next. I admit that I was even somewhat frightened; but as nothing else happened, I crossed over to Mr. Maillot's door—directly opposite my own—and rapped.

"He threw it open at once. He was holding a hand to his right eye, and glared at me with the uncovered eye. He evidently had slipped hastily into his clothes; his candle was lighted, and I noticed that his hands and face were wet, as if he too had been washing.

"It strikes me that there was an unusual amount of hand-washing," I here observed, "considering the hour of the night. Had the household retired?"

"Why—yes, sir—we were supposed to have done so. But Mr. Maillot at once explained why his hands were wet. As he threw open the door, which he did in an angry manner, he asked me what the devil was the matter. I replied that I didn't know. He then stated that he thought the roof had caved in; that the tumult had awakened him, and that in springing out of bed he had nearly knocked an eye out by colliding with some piece of furniture. The pain was for a moment so intense, he said, that he had forgotten all about the noise; so he had lighted a candle and bathed the injured eye. It was already beginning to swell and show signs of discoloration. On my remarking that it was strange the noise hadn't roused Mr. Page, Mr. Maillot at once seized his candle and preceded me into the hall. He was the first to find Mr. Page's body.

FIVE DOCTORS GAVE UP ALL HOPE

Said she Would Die of Kidney Trouble

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HER

MOUNTAIN, ONT., Dec. 14th. 1910.

"For six years, I suffered from dreadful Kidney Disease. My legs and lower part of my body were fearfully swollen, and the pain was awful. My people thought sometimes I was dead, as I would faint from the agony. Five different doctors attended me, and all said it was kidney trouble and gave me no hope of getting well. A kind neighbor told me to try "Fruit-a-tives" and mentioned the case of Mrs. Fenwick, who was cured by them.

I took "Fruit-a-tives"—and in a short time, I began to feel better, the swelling went down, the pain was easier, and then "Fruit-a-tives" entirely cured me. All my friends look upon my recovery as a miracle, and I am unable to praise "Fruit-a-tives" enough."

Pushing Back the Frontier.

Quite striking is a phrase in The Winnipeg Telegram describing how "The C.N.R. yesterday pushed Western Canada's frontier back 105 miles" by the opening of a new line from Vegreville south towards Calgary through Camrose and Stettler. Pushing back the frontier is the business of the Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Pacific. Soon they will be joined by the new Hudson Bay Railway. The pioneer who leads the way into the wilderness, erects his little shack and turns over a few acres of sod is pushing back the frontier, but when the railway construction gang follow in his wake the frontier is even more widely disturbed.

This process of pushing back the frontier means much for Canada, and every one must be grateful to the pioneer farmers and pioneer railway constructors who are opening up new districts for the public benefit. This process means much to the provinces where the work is proceeding apace, and also a great deal to those who live in Eastern Canada and reap some of the benefits that come from a larger and more populous Dominion.—Courier.

Cranbrook is strongly urging the desirability of the establishment of a federal experimental farm in the Cranbrook district.

PRAIRIE ARCHITECTURE.

Foreign Peoples of the West and Their Quaint Houses.

One of the most interesting things to the prairie tourist is the fact that in the west the influx of foreigners has resulted in the erection of a variety of strange habitations. Take, for instance, the country about Saskatoon, in Saskatchewan. There within a radius of forty or fifty miles you may find representatives of a score of peoples, nations and languages, says Emily P. Weaver in The Saturday Globe.

So close to Saskatoon that that city serves as their chief centre for business are several Mennonite settlements, where it is the prevailing fashion to build the houses and barns under one long roof. We visited one hamlet about a mile from Warman, where half a dozen Mennonite houses stand side by side, and, with one or two exceptions, the cow stable forms a kind of ante-chamber to the living-room of the establishment.

Outside some of the houses are nicely painted; others have paint only on the doors, the window-frames and the wooden shutters. For these trimmings a sky-blue tint is the favorite, contrasting sharply with the dull, weathered grey of the unpainted siding. Most of the houses have gay gardens beside them, along the fences of which quilts and pillows covered with bright-colored print were hung to air; and in the sunshine the little settlement, despite the dingy hue of some of its buildings, showed no lack of color.

Half way from Saskatoon to Prince Albert, near the villages of Rosthern and Hague, on the C.N.R., there is a large district settled almost entirely by people whose mother tongue is not English. Along the high bank of the Saskatchewan there is a settlement of French-Canadians, living, like their compatriots on the St. Lawrence, on deep, narrow farms, with the houses built sociably close together on the waterfront. I was not able to visit any of these houses, but I have little doubt that, being a conservative folk, they have transplanted to the west many of the domestic arrangements practiced by their forefathers in old France.

Not far away are Indian reserves, and scattered through the country are well-to-do German farmers, Mennonites and Doukhobors in their villages, and Hungarians and Galicians on their own farms. Some of the last-named people settled a few years ago on the outskirts of the village of Rosthern, living at first in dreadful little hovels built of poplar poles, filled in with sods. At the best of times the Galicians are not credited with being a clean people, and their tiny sod dwelling places, which were more like excavations than houses, were so insanitary that at last their occupants were obliged to remove, and they were destroyed.

According to all accounts, the Galicians, in the construction of these places, aimed only at making some kind of shelter and retaining within it as much heat as possible. Ventilation was never thought of, so there was only one door, and the window was not made to open. The consequences would have been more disastrous were it not for the fact that in fine weather grown-up people and children alike almost live out of doors, but during the bitter days of winter the air in these hovels gets so indescribably noisome that those unaccustomed to it cannot endure it.

The dwellings of the Doukhobors, of which there are many within easy reach of Saskatoon, are unlike any other houses I have ever seen. These houses are made, like those of the Galicians, of poles and clay; within are clay ovens of much the same description as that in the Mennonite house, and one man assured us that their houses are much warmer than ours. "Yours too thin," was his criticism, as he pointed out the thickness of the walls of his own abode.

Moreover, I think the outside of these houses is even more interesting than the inside. They have rude little carvings over doors and windows, and their queer overhanging mud roofs are covered with a straggling growth of lamb's quarter or some such weed, which makes the quaint village look like anything but a village.

Edmonton's Park Problem.

A prominent citizen writes to The Edmonton Journal asking Edmonton what she is going to do about it—meaning parks, playgrounds, driveways, and breathing spaces for new citizens. He remarks that Edmonton is years behind other municipalities in Canada in this regard.

Apart from its purely local significance to Edmontonians, the letter is of interest to every Canadian concerned in city building in the newer districts of the Dominion.

When pioneer settlers begin to stake out a town on the prairie, or beside the bush, and gaze across the acres of waste land about their hamlet, they don't naturally bother much with provisions for children's playgrounds and boulevard driveways.

Edmonton was a fur post twenty-five years ago. Now she is one of the big places of Canada, capital of a province.

This modern city wants parks. She needs them.

Had an effort been made years ago to set apart land for park purposes, Edmonton would have no park problems. The park land which she is dickering for now, she would have obtained much more cheaply.

For real estate values in a fur post are somewhat lower than in a metropolis.

A Borden Story.

Mr. Borden is a man of admirable self-control. On one occasion he could not get a hearing at a meeting. "If you do not want to listen to me," he said, during a momentary lull, "you are not compelled to do so. I will dictate what I have to say to the press representatives." With that he walked over to the assembled newspaper men and continued his remarks in an undertone. His quiet nonchalance had the desired effect, and the speech was delivered to a silent and attentive audience.

THE REVIEW

THE GOOD OLD SUN

W. LYMAN HUME, Esq., M.D., says:

I took my last policy in the "Sun Life" five years ago. You may think how agreeably surprised I was to receive your letter of the 28th ult., informing me that my share of the profits earned by my Policy during the last five years amounted to $205.80 IN CASH; or if I preferred they would give me $46.65 a year for for the next five years, to be used as an annual reduction of my yearly premium; or better still they would increase my policy by $311.00, making it worth $5,311 instead of $5,000, upon which I would continue to pay the old premium. This is the option I have chosen.

Suppose that instead of insuring I had placed the amount of my premium $277.75, in the Bank each year, and had allowed the interest to be compounded for five years at three per cent, the interest allowed by all safe, conservative Banks. What would be the results? To-day I should receive $130.11 as the accumulated interest from the Bank, instead of $205.80 from the "Sun Life," a difference of $75.70; but in addition to this the Company has carried the risk on my life for $5,000, which they might have been called at any time to pay.

This is in marked contrast with the so-called Fraternal Societies. I have a policy of $1,000 in one of the best of them; I was notified the other day that my policy would be reduced one-half, or my premium doubled. The "Sun" increases my policy, or reduces my premium; the Fraternal Society reduces my policy or increases my premium; it should not be a difficult matter to choose which is the better system of the two.

The "Good Old Sun," may it never set except to rise again with increased effulgence!

CONGREGATION GAVE ADDRESS

Mr. B. R. Matthews Remembered by Murray St. Congregation

On the occasion of the eighty-second birthday, Mr. B. R. Matthews, was honored by the congregation of the Murray street Baptist church, last night, when he was the recipient of a beautiful illuminated address. The same being read to him by Mrs W. Aldridge. Mr. Matthews is one of the church deacons. That he is a valued worker and member of the congregation is evidenced by the kindly reference to him in the address, which was as follows—

Mr. B. R. Mathews,

Dear Brother—The officers, your fellow officers of Murray street Baptist church have remembered that today is your eighty-second birthday, and we feel that we should have the opportunity of expressing to you our affection and good wishes.

You are the senior Officer of our church, and one who has through long years of service been most faithful in your attendance, devoted to your duties, and in every way earning the respect and love of the congregation.

Your influence, which we realize will be felt long after you are moved to another sphere and to our Father's House, it being felt every Sunday and at our prayer meetings by your very presence, while your words are an inspiration to us all. This address is intended to express in a few simple words the love which we bear toward yourself and your dear wife, and to express the hope that you may be spared to us for many days, and finally have an abundant entrance into the Kingdom of Him, Whose you are and Whom you serve."

Yours, sincerely,

W. Aldridge, W.D. Scott, M.D., R. E. Harding, Vincent Eastwood, Porter S White, John Riddell, T. P. Dustin, H. G. Webber, George Cochrane, W. G. Shiner, Deacons.

And then, too, you raise his opinion of you just another bit higher when you present him with something practical and sensible—something he would buy for himself.

Every time he wears the Scarf, the Shirt, or the Cravat, or House Coat, or the Lounging Robe, or the Hose, or the Suspenders, or the Gloves which you gave him he thinks of you.

Every time some friend speaks a word of admiration for the gift you gave him it brings a happy recollection of you.

Every time he sees the ornamental, perhaps, but unuseful gift of someone else, he unconsciously remembers you for your practical, useful and sensible gift of something to wear.

So when you select a present for "him," remember men are practical. They cherish the memory of a practical, useful gift, but soon forget the opposite kind, and make your gift to "him" something he will really like better than all the other presents he receives—let it be something he can wear.

And don't lose sight of the fact that most men instinctively know that anything which bears this store's label is absolutely right in style and dependable in quality.

WEDDING BELLS

YEUST—LOCKHEAD.

A very pretty but quiet wedding ceremony was solemnized on Saturday afternoon last in Toronto, when Mr. Edward Yeust and Miss Laura Lockhead, a popular young couple of Galt, were joined in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. J. D. Morrow, a former Hespeler pastor. The contracting parties were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Yeust were both employed in the Getty & Scott shoe factory, and have a host of friends in town. After a short wedding trip to Peterborough and Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Yeust will take up their residence on North Water street, Galt. The Reformer joins with the young couple's many friends in congratulations—Galt Reformer.

At St. Paul's manse yesterday afternoon, at 3.30 o'clock, Miss Melecent P. Jewell and Mr. George Meharry were united in marriage by the Rev. Robert Pogue. The wedding was quietly observed, no attendants being present.

Mr. and Mrs. Meharry will reside at 52 Victoria Avenue.

INTERDICTS GOT LIQUOR

Man Who Supplied Them Given Fine of $25

A local man named George Elliott was fined the sum of $25 by Magistrate Dumble this morning for supplying whiskey to blacklisters last night. The blacklisters were Wm. Anthony and George Mein, the former having been only on the blacklist one day. The men were discovered by Detective Newhall and P.C. Kidd with the evidences of their guilt surrounding them, in the shape of a dozen or more whiskey bottles, lying on the floor and table of Anthony's rooms on George street, just south of Charlotte street.

Elliott, who was found guilty of procuring the cause of the other two men's intoxication, attempted to slide out of it, by saying that he was unaware that the men were blacklisters but His Worship couldn't swallow such deceit.

PLEADED GUILTY

When individually charged with drunkenness, Anthony and Mein each pleaded guilty, and were placed in the box, that they might inform the court where they secured the liquor. Anthony as is becoming fashionable with all blacklisters, rattled off an unbelievable cock-and-bull yarn, about not knowing where it came from, later contradicting himself in several points.

Detective Newhall's evidence corroborated by that of P.C. Kidd was very clear however.

Last night, as the detective's evidence ran, he and P.C. Kidd were standing by the customs house, when they noticed a swarm of blacklisters on the other side of the street.

George Elliott appeared on the scene and after coming down the stairs from Anthony's apartments, he returned upstairs and came down again. He stood in the doorway, looking up and down street. The two officers becoming suspicious closed in on him, and Elliott's first words were, "search me if you think I have been buying booze for blacklisters." "I have no money at all."

The officer inquired how many blacklisters were up there. Elliott's reply was "just Geordie Mein."

As the two police officers entered Anthony's rooms, they were confronted by Anthony himself in a half dead state, and Mein was sitting on a chair in the room. Both were very drunk.

His Worship in fining Elliott scored him very severely for procuring the liquor, thereby causing the downfall of Anthony, who had only been black-listed the day previous.

The fine was ordered to be paid forthwith with the alternative, of thirty days on the Hill.

POLICE AUTHORITIES HAVE TO LOOK LIVELY THESE DAYS

Numerous are the Number of Cases of Stealing--Shoplifters at Work.

The local police as well as the authorities of other places in this district are being called upon to keep their eagle eyes active, these days of fake promotions, burglaries and petty thieving. There appears to have broken out an epidemic of wrongdoing and the offenders are not confined to any particular town or locality. Peterborough not long since had a visit from Jarry, the Cobalt faker, Lindsay had its railway promoter, Lakefield had a visit from safe blowers, and lawlessness such as breaking into stores, and other acts of theft are well known in Havelock and surrounding points.

Local merchants at this season of Christmas rush and bustle, occasioned by the large crowds at their stores, are with their staff, watching the nimble fingered ones. Several cases have come to light, where different parties have been caught with the goods. No arrests have as yet been made, but a severe lesson will no doubt result if the practice is continued.

Chief Chelton of Lindsay, has a burglary case on his hands at present, a toy store on Kent street having been entered and a tin cash box containing $41.35 taken. The Warder says;

The burglar gained admission to the store through a rear window. The glass was broken out of the window sash, which was a pane about 20 in by 14. The window was protected on the inside with iron bars firmly attached to the inner frame with screw nails. It would not require any great strength to displace those bars, but the thief preferred climbing to the top of the window and descending the bars, which formed a good ladder for his ascent and descent. This act would prompt one to think the burglar possessed more agility than strength and that he was of slim build as the space between the window and bars could not have been more than nine inches. The robbery is evidently that of a boy as no man could possibly squirm through the aperature made and climb the bars on the inside of the window.

On entering the premises the thief took a tour through the store, as some goods were displaced, but none taken away. Toys are of little use to a burglar so he confined himself to loot that was easy of concealment, departing with a tin cash box containing $41.35.

No clue to the thief has yet been found.

GRADUATING EXERCISES AT ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

Diplomas Were Presented by His Lordship Bishop O'Conner.

Rev. Mother Antionette Pinned on the Medals Won by Graduates

GRADUATES OF 1911.
Sister M. Bernadette.
Miss M. Farley.
Miss D. McGuire.

The first graduating exercises in connection with St. Joseph's hospital were held on Tuesday evening when the graduates of the class of 1911, received their diplomas and medals. The spacious operating room was converted into a veritable bower for the occasion and his Lordship Bishop O'Connor who graced the occasion by his presence, personally presented the diplomas. In his remarks his lordship dwelt on the dignity of the nurse's calling and the sacredness of the duties entrusted to them and urged each one to be always faithful to the ideals of their profession.

The graduates medals were then pinned on by Rev. Mother Antionette under whose supervision the nurses have been so efficiently trained and whose untiring efforts were rewarded by the high standing taken by them, at the recent examinations.

Dr. McNulty gave a resume of the evolution of the nursing profession, pointing out its early association with religion, its more widespread development as a result of Florence Nightingale's work during the Crimean war and the more recent influence of science in raising the profession to its present high pedestal.

Short addresses were also given by Rev. Father McGuire, of Downeyville, Rev. Father O'Brien and Rev. Father Galvin, of Apsley, and by members of the staff, including Dr. Cameron, Dr. McCullough, Dr. McPherson, Dr. Fredericks, all of whom spoke of the efficiency of the hospital training, the aptitude of the graduating class and predicted success for them in their chosen work. The first part of the program was brought to a close by Rev. Father McColl, who acted as chairman, and who in his remarks, expressed the gratitude of the sisters and nurses for the many kindnesses of the staff and for the deep interest in and generous support accorded to the hospital by them.

Those present then adjourned to the dining room where the sisters had provided dainty refreshments after which an hour was spent in music and social enjoyment.

The graduates were Sister M. Bernadette, Miss M. Farley, Lakefield; Miss D. McGuire, Lindsay.

TWO CHARGES ARE DISMISSED CROUTER CASE BEING HEARD

Gilbert Norton Acquitted of Theft Charge — He Had Claim Against Company

In the Crown vs. West case, the charge against West was dismissed, the jury finding that West had a counter-claim against Watt as the transactions had not been properly carried out and that the action should have come under the jurisdiction of the civil court.

Gilbert Horton, the Lakefield man was an employe of the Lakefield Dairy company, was acquitted by the jury of theft. It being found that Horton had a claim against the Dairy Company.

The trial of Albert Crouter accused of theft of $25 from William Stewart, commenced at two o'clock this afternoon at the resumed quarterly jury sessions.

Crown Attorney Wood outlined the facts of the case to the jury, after which Stewart, the complainant, was placed in the box and examined by the Crown. Stewart related his story, of the theft, practically the same as he gave it in police court, when he was committed for trial. The complainant was a very difficult man to get a straight story from, and displayed laughable bashfulness in explaining some of the rather embarrassing circumstances of the case, when an inmate of the Crouter house.

G. N. Gordon acted for the defendant Crouter.

P. C. Stebarry and Detective Newhall each gave their story of the affair.

Stewart it was learned has had past experiences of being robbed, once being relieved of $130 by two boys while driving.

No new evidence had been given up till time of going to press.

ALLOWED OFF ON PAYING COSTS

Mrs S. Lewis, Glen Brill and Oscar Copperthwaite of Havelock, were arrested on Saturday last by Chief Bennett on a charge of stealing turkeys, ducks and geese from Mr. Wm. Plunkett and Mr. Peter McMillan, who both reside near Havelock. The three prisoners were brought to Peterborough where they came up before Magistrate Edmison on Tuesday. All three pleaded guilty to the charge and after paying all costs incurred were allowed to go on one month's suspended sentence. Much comment has been caused by this case. Mrs. Lewis is a married woman while Brill and Copperthwaite are both young boys.

PETERBORO' HOCKEY CLUB GROUPED IN TWO SERIES

Toronto, Dec. 14.—The Executive of the Ontario Hockey Association met last night in the Telegram building, and adopted the grouping of the 40 teams desirous of playing in the big association this winter.

Conveners are requested to call meetings of the groups at once and not later than Monday night next, as the rule book is to be issued immediately, with the schedules included.

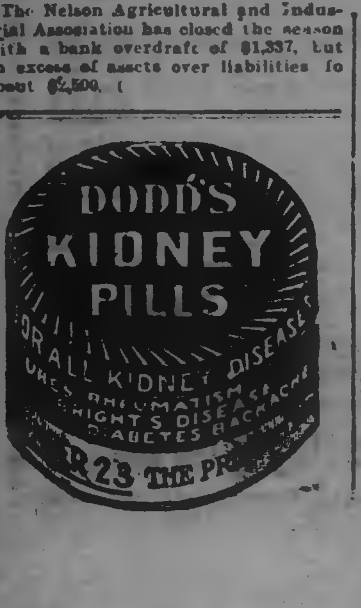
In the intermediate series Peterborough was grouped with Belleville, Trenton and Lindsay, while for the junior series grouping Peterborough was placed with Lindsay, Port Hope and Cobourg. Mr. R. M. Glover is convener of both groups the representatives of which are to meet in Port Hope.

The Cobourg Club which was grouped with Peterborough last year will play with Bowmanville, Oshawa and Whitby this season.

WALTER MILLER HAS SIGNED WITH TORONTO PROFESSIONALS

Toronto, Dec. 14.—Mac. McGregor, the Tecumseh hockey manager, has signed up Walter Miller, of Brandon, one of the fastest men in the game, as a member of his team. Miller learned the game in Peterborough. Nicholson, the Cobalt goalkeeper, is now in communication with the Tecumsehs, and is waiting to come to Toronto, as is also Throop, another boy from the silver country.

The Nelson Agricultural and Industrial Association has closed the season with a bank overdraft of $1,337, but an excess of assets over liabilities fo about $2,500.



SPORT TALK

Forty-one sheets of ice will be ready for Winnipeg curling tournament in February.

Ottawa Citizen:—Recent developments in hockey go to show that the game has already graduated from the outsider of sport. The professional brand is business, [illegible]

There will be eight senior teams, including Eaton's, Argonauts, Toronto A.A.C., Stratford, Kingston, University of Toronto, Parkdale, and St. Michael's College, in the O.H.A. this season.

Frank Gotch has signified his intention of retiring from the mat next spring in which event he will bestow his title on Yussif Mahmout, whom he is willing to back against all comers.

At the annual meeting of the Trent Valley Hockey League at Stirling on Monday evening, Havelock was placed in a district with Campbellford, T.A.S., of Peterborough and All Saints of Peterboro. It was generally understood that Hastings and Norwood would enter also and so make a district far more convenient than the above.—Havelock Standard.

This is the way the executive of the Galt Hockey Club hands it out:

"If the boys who want to make a place on either the intermediate or junior teams do not come out and train, there will be no hockey club in Galt this winter. The executive have been working hard, have engaged a good trainer, and now the boys seem to think they do not need any training. This is no way to act; this is what we call childish. There isn't a player in town who wants to play hockey, if there was a game to-morrow, could last fifteen minutes in his present condition. Now boys, it only means about twenty minutes three times a week, Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. Meet at the rink at 7.30 p.m., on the days mentioned and show your appreciation of the efforts being put forward by the executive, who are determined to have the teams in first class shape for the first game or drop the sport altogether. Boys it is up to you.

MAT WELLS MAY NOT RECOVER

English Lightweight Champion is Sick with Erysipelas

New York, Dec. 14.—According to letters received in the latest mails from England, Matt Wells, the lightweight champion of Great Britain, is seriously ill in London. He is suffering from erysipelas, and physicians say there is little or no hope for his recovery. Wells has many friends in this country, who will be shocked to learn the news of his illness. The English champion made a big hit here when he outpointed K.O. Brown and Abe Attell in Madison Square Garden. He displayed unusual boxing skill in those matches and appeared to earn the right to a match with the world's title holder, Ad Wolgast.

Deadly Spiders.

Did you ever encounter a tarantula? Probably not unless you have traveled in the south. You can, however, see them right here in the city at times and still not be suffering from any form of zooscopy. Banana dealers occasionally find these poisonous big spiders hidden away in the large bunches that come in trainloads from the tropics. A writer tells of one seen recently at the railway lunch counter in North Bay.

"There's a spider in one of those bunches," quoth the waitress, with a little shudder, "and I am afraid of it. Ugh!"

The newspaperman's curiosity was aroused. Presently one of the attendants volunteered to produce the creature, and grabbed a bunch of fruit he droped it on the counter as if it had been red hot. Nothing happened. Then he started to jab the clusters where they joined the stalk. With a spring out darted a hideous, hairy spider, in the centre of whose pink body two wicked green eyes shone like emeralds.

Stupefied by the cold, nothing. This fellow was as full of life as a terrier after a rat, and the way he capered about that counter was a caution. But the tarantula dance didn't last long, for the proprietor subservlating entomology to business squelched the vermin with a broom.

A bite from one of these creatures is not necessarily fatal, but they are filled with potent poison, and their sting causes intense pain. Ever since this experience this writer has wondered at the temerity with which fruit men handle the immense shipments of the luscious bananas that comes to Canada.

A large and handsome new railway station is promised the residents of Tappen by the C.P.R.

MAETERLINCK HONORED

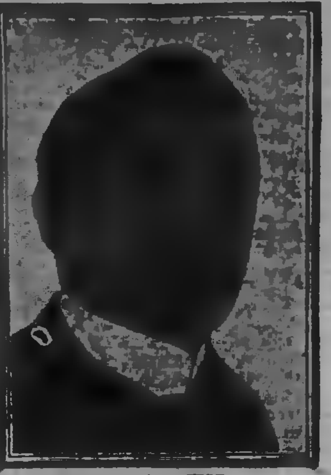
POET AND PLAYWRIGHT GETS THE NOBEL PRIZE.

Author of the Blue Bird Has Conferred Upon Him the Biggest Plum That Literature Can Offer to a Man of International Reputation—Kipling Was the Prize Winner In 1907—Two Other Britons Honored.

The "Dagens Nyheter" states that this year's Nobel prize for literature goes to the Belgian poet, M. Maurice Maeterlinck.

M. Maeterlinck is, perhaps, best known to the general English-speaking public by his fairy play "The Blue Bird." Like all his work, it unites symbolism with artistic charm. "We all seek happiness, do we not?" said the author. "Well, the Blue Bird is happiness—the bird that is never caught. Quite simple; just a story for children—of all ages."

Maeterlinck has been called the Belgian Shakspere. Born at Ghent in 1862, he studied law at the university of that city, and became a barrister. But it was to literature that his thoughts ever turned, and after his first book of poems in 1889 he wrote "Pelleas and Melisande," "Monna Vanna," "The Life of The Bee," and other plays and books by which his name has become world-famous.



M. MAETERLINCK.

The Nobel prizes were instituted by Mr. Alfred Nobel, the Swedish inventor of dynamite, who left his fortune of nearly $8,500,000 as a fund for the benefit of persons who in five different fields of progressive activity contributed to the welfare of mankind and the peace of the world. Mr. Nobel died in 1896, and in 1901 the first prizes were awarded. Each is of the value of over $35,000, and is awarded for work in the promotion of peace, medical research, chemical research, literature, and physics.

Among English prize-winners have been Mr. Rudyard Kipling (Literature 1907), Major Ronald Ross, chief of the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine (Medical research, 1902), and the late Sir W. R. Cremer, then secretary of the International Arbitration League (Peace, 1903). In 1905 the prize went for the first time to a woman, the Baroness von Suttner, whose book, "Lay down your arms," moved the Tsar to call together the first Peace Conference at The Hague.

A Veteran Correspondent.

A veteran among working war-correspondents is Mr. Bennet Burleigh, of The London Daily Telegraph, who has achieved another journalistic triumph over the Tripoli affair. His career has been an amazing one. As a young man he fought on the Confederate side in the American Civil War, and was twice sentenced to be shot by the Federals in the course of the campaign. From the seventies onward he has never missed a big campaign, and we get a striking illustration of his pluck and daring in an incident which occurred at El-Teb, when he volunteered to ride with a message from one of the British squares to another. He had a good horse, and could have made a detour without losing many minutes; but instead he rode straight through the Dervishes, who were between the two squares, thus risking death not only from their spears, but from the fire of his friends.

Indians Making Good.

For the first time since the Government has had charge of the Sioux Indians the issuance of rations has been stopped. No subsistence of any kind has been furnished the Indians for three months. For several years a small ration of beef, sugar and flour has been issued to the old and indigent, and this will be done again this winter, but only to those who are infirm. The Indians for the first time have shipped their own cattle to Chicago this year. They have sent several trainloads and have received top prices for them, netting them thousands of dollars.

People Who Don't Laugh.

Laughter is unknown among the Veddahs of Ceylon. They are the most solemn people in the world. When a traveler asked some of them why their people never gave indication of mirth, they replied that they never saw anything to laugh at.

On the other hand, some savages appear to have a more robust sense of humor than their civilised brethren. Dr. Livingstone tells of an African tribe who, when dressed in clothes for the first time, "rolled about on the ground in uncontrollable fits of laughter."

The Bojars of Russia.

Bojars held exclusively the highest military and civic offices in Russia and were so universally looked up to by the mass of the people that the most powerful rulers, even Ivan the Cruel, considered it prudent to use this form of expression in the ukases: "The emperor has ordered it; the Bojars have approved it."

PEAT FUEL.

Dr. Haanel's Experiments Full of Promise For Canada.

Dr. Eugene Haanel, in a recent pamphlet, says that the 37,000 square miles of peat already known form, probably, but a small fraction of the amount of this valuable fuel asset in existence in Canada.

He refers to the various expensive experiments made in Canada with new methods of manufacturing peat into fuel and expresses the opinion that it will be better to adopt the methods already proved successful in Europe and "leave experimentation and the development of new ideas to the future, when our peat industry is on a secure basis and peat-fuel in abundance on the market.

He thinks "We will then have gained in the manufacture of peat fuel along lines which are at present commercial the necessary experience to warrant the hope that proposals for modifications and improvements of present processes will be based upon a thorough and practical understanding of the nature of peat and the principles upon which future economy may reasonably be expected."

He goes on to say that to re-establish the confidence of the people of Canada in the value of peat as a domestic and industrial fuel, and to stimulate renewed activity in the development of our peat resources, the Government has acquired 300 acres of peat bog at Alfred, Ont., with an average depth of nine feet, for the purpose of manufacturing peat fuel on a commercial scale by a method which has proven successful in European practice.

The capacity of the Government plant is a production of 30 tons per day. Manual labor is employed in excavating the fuel, but Dr. Haanel says that, for a large commercial plant mechanical excavators should replace manual labor.

The Government plant at Alfred is not intended for the production of peat fuel on an extensive scale, but is to serve as a model of a successful process.

The plant was established after an investigation of peat fuel manufacturing processes in various countries of Europe where peat is extensively used as fuel.

"There is nothing artistic about the appearance of the fuel produced at the Government bog," says Dr. Haanel. "It has not the regular geometric form of briquettes nor their smooth exterior, but it serves the purpose for which fuel is intended as well as briquettes, and has the advantage of being low in cost of manufacture."

It is stated that allowing 140 days for a season's operation, the cost per ton of air-dried machine peat, including interest on capital invested, amortization, oil and repairs is as follows:—

Cost of fuel on the field	$1.40
Cost of fuel stored in shed	1.65
Cost of fuel loaded on car	1.65
Cost of fuel in stock	1.70

It is thought that by the employment of mechanical excavators and the manufacture of peat on a large scale the cost of production per ton should be considerably reduced.

Dr. Haanel says that the endeavor to accomplish economically by artificial means in a short time what has been accomplished by nature in exceedingly long periods of time in the transformation of peat into fuel has so far apparently not been attended by success.

The process at Alfred is simply air drying. The chief disadvantage of this method is that it can only be worked during the summer months and the amount of fuel that can be produced depends upon weather conditions, but the climate of Canada is as favorable for drying peat as the climate of Sweden, Finland, Denmark, Germany, Holland, Austria and Russia, all of which depend for a large part of their fuel supply on the same simply process of pulping peat, forming it into bricks on the field and drying it in the open air as is used at Alfred.

It is stated that peat fuel can be used in any of the common stoves now in use in Canada, but there may be seen at Alfred a model of a Swedish stove specially constructed for peat-fuel, which is said to be very convenient in operation.

Montreal and Toronto.

In comparing the census figures for Montreal and Toronto it should be noted that Toronto has annexed all its contiguous suburbs except North Toronto, whereas Montreal has a number of populous suburbs that have not been annexed, says The Canadian Century of Montreal. In making comparisons regarding the growth of the two cities the suburbs of both should be included as they are merely outgrowths of the city.

Both Montreal and Toronto will very soon be regarded as among the world's great cities, and the probability is that they will show a larger percentage of growth during the next ten years than they ever did before. We believe that the population of Montreal has not been fully counted by the census enumerators, but even the census makes the Montreal urban district, including the city and its contiguous suburbs, over 534,000. It is almost certain that Montreal will have over a million people when the next census is taken. Toronto is also growing wonderfully. Both cities should quickly plan and carry out improvements that will make them compare favorably with other great cities.

JEAN VALJEANS OF REAL LIFE

MR. WILLIAM A. PINKERTON Tells Why Some Escaped Convicts, Now Leading Upright Lives but Ever in Fear of Detection, Are Entitled to More Sympathy Than Many Who Have Paid the Full Legal Penalty for Their Crimes

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

"JEAN VALJEAN was a real character—real, I mean, in the sense that Victor Hugo drew a picture that has often been paralleled in real life. 'Les Miserables,' although pretending to be nothing more than fiction, is yet a true story, in that it describes incidents, actions and emotions that have occurred not once but a thousand times in the actual experience of mankind."

William A. Pinkerton, head of the great detective agency that bears his name, was the speaker. The talk had been running on criminals who had reformed.

"There was a case," he said, "in which the effort of the criminal to reform was hampered by the fact that he had escaped before he finished paying the penalty society had meted out as expiation for his crime. You know the story—the poor fellow had done nothing serious, nothing we would regard as a grave offence. His real offence was in escaping from the galleys. It is one of the most pathetic stories in all literature—the tale of his effort to lead an honest and useful life, in constant fear of detection and denunciation. And the character of Javert, the relentless police official who turned up every time poor Jean Valjean got a fresh start, is, to my mind, one of the most despicable pictures ever drawn by a novelist. Yet the policeman was only doing his duty, as the law laid it down."

Mr. Pinkerton paused, relit his cigar, contemplated the richly browned meerschaum holder affectionately for a moment, then spoke again.

"We were talking the other day about crooks who turned straight," he said. "I told you of some I knew who had paid the penalty of their crimes and are now honest, respected men—good citizens in every sense. These men hold up their heads among their fellow men, knowing that the worst that can befall them is to have their past discovered. They may suffer shame, but they are free from the shadow of the prison as long as they remain straight. Good citizens—yes, sometimes too good. Most of them are not inclined to set themselves up as superior beings, even when they do not fear the discovery of their identity, but once in a while there is one who forgets that he ever was a criminal."

Mr. Pinkerton paused, puffed at his cigar and laughed shortly.

"One of the foremost physicians in New York, a man at the very head of his profession, is of that kind," he said. "A good many years ago I was called to a bank in a small Western city. A man had come in, demanding money, and, presenting revolvers, made the assistant cashier and a girl clerk hold up their hands while he got away with all the cash in sight, some $40,000. There were traces that made me believe it was an inside job, and so my investigation proved. The whole thing had been framed up by a young physician, well liked and respected, and one of the tellers. It turned out later that this same physician had been involved in a similar case in another town and that he had been planning this affair for two or three years.

"He was convicted, and on his release came to New York. He did not change his name, but it is a common enough name so that it attracted no attention when he began his practice in this city. Now he is a noted practitioner, whose fees are enormous, and who is in great demand among his wealthy patients.

"But it has not been sufficient for this man to accumulate wealth and fame; he has arrogated to himself a sort of aristocratic superiority that makes him a self-appointed arbiter of society morals. He is a member of several exclusive clubs and is very particular as to who is allowed to join them."

Mr. Pinkerton laughed again.

"It makes me laugh every time I think of it—what I am going to tell you," he said. "There is a young man, the son of a highly respected and very wealthy Western family, whose name was put up for membership in one of the most exclusive clubs in town. And in the way in which those things are told, he was informed that he would better withdraw his name if he didn't want to be blackballed, for Dr. ———, who is on the Board of Governors, would oppose his admission.

"The young man happened to be a friend of mine, as his father was before him. He came to me, greatly disturbed, to ask what he ought to do.

"'I can't understand it,' he said. 'I've never done anything any one could criticise, except to buy champagne. I admit I've opened a lot of wine, but I've no record, nothing in my past that I'm ashamed of. I can't understand why Dr. ——— should want to blackball me.'

"'Who is it that's going to blackball you?' I asked.

"'Dr. ———,' he replied, mentioning the physician's name.

"I took one of my cards and wrote on it:—'Introducing Mr. Willie S———. William A. Pinkerton.'

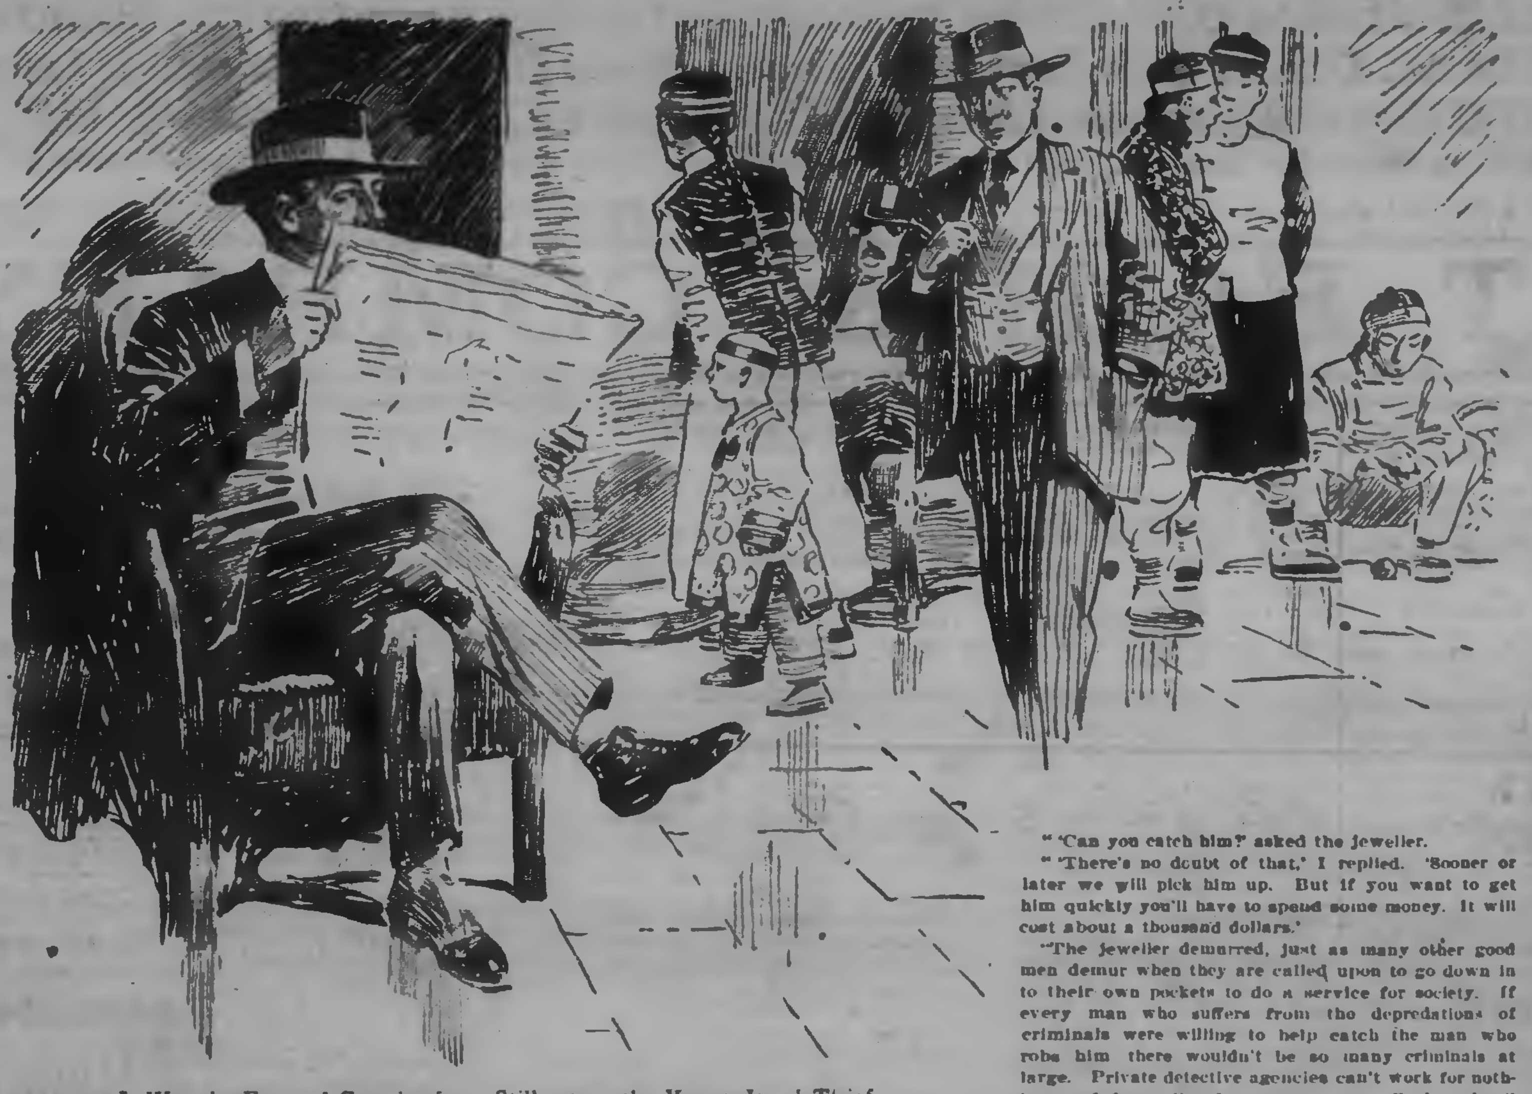
"'Give that to the doctor with my compliments,' I said. 'He won't blackball you.'

"The physician took the hint, and my young friend was admitted to the club. He doesn't know yet how I did it.

"Now, you may say that this physician had paid the penalty for his crime, that he owed no debt to society and that he had a right to be as arrogant and exclusive as he pleased. I grant that, but I maintain that he is no better citizen than some of these Jean Valjeans of real life, men who have escaped from prison and who are honestly trying to live rightly, with the double fear not only of detection but of re-imprisonment hanging over them.

"That is an awful terror—that fear of being found out and dragged back to serve out a prison sentence. But the man who, like Jean Valjean, honestly tries under such a handicap to be a good citizen is entitled, I honestly believe, to more respect than the man who has paid his debt—certainly his task is a harder one, and fewer men accomplish it.

"I have in mind one case that interests me very much. I could put my hands at any time on an escaped criminal who has nearly twenty years yet to serve in the Stillwater Penitentiary in Minnesota. But I do not intend to molest him or reveal his secret unless he commits another crime—which he is not at all likely to do.



It Was the Escaped Convict from Stillwater—the Young Jewel Thief.

Swindler of Jewellers.

"This fellow was one of the cleverest jewelry thieves I ever knew, and I've known a good many. He was a young fellow of good family, educated, could dress well and liked to—in short, just the kind of a man to impose on an unsuspicious tradesman. He got a lot of money through his thefts, but blew it all in as soon as he got it and had to resort to crime again to get more.

"I first heard of him a good many years ago in San Francisco. That, I believe, was the first place where he worked his favorite trick.

"Registering at a San Francisco hotel under the name of a wealthy man of San José, he visited a jewelry store and picked out a fine diamond ring. After making the selection he said, rather bashfully, that he was intending to be married and was buying the ring for the young woman, but before deciding to purchase it he would bring her around to see it. He asked the jeweller to lay the ring aside for him, and as there was nothing suspicious about his manner or his request the ring was put away for later inspection by the mythical fiancée.

"The young crook went to five other jewellers and did the same thing. Now, he had introduced himself and made his selection in six places, choosing rings worth several hundred dollars apiece. His next move was to go to San José, which was not his home and never had been, and write to each jeweller on the letterhead of the firm of which he had pretended to be a member. In his letters he said that he had been unexpectedly called home on business and asked the jewellers to keep the rings until he could visit San Francisco again.

"When enough time had elapsed for the jewellers to get the letters, but before they had time to answer them—for the answers would have gone to the firm of which the young man pretended to be a member—he sent each jeweller a telegram to the effect that he had decided to take the ring and would call for it the next day. So the jewellers did not answer the letters.

"Next day the young man visited each jeweller, gave him a check which was accepted without question, for the jewellers had been completely deceived by the letters from the highly rated firm in San José, and took up the rings. This was on Saturday, and the forged checks could not get back to the San José bank before Monday. By that time the young fellow was hundreds of miles away.

"We were not called in on the case, but I learned about it, and I heard of what he did after that. He worked the same game in Denver, with Colorado Springs as his supposed home city. He worked it in St. Louis, and a little later he worked both Louisville and Cincinnati in one day. Finally he got into six jewellers of St. Paul in one day, and one of them happened to be a member of the Jewellers' Protective Association, which retained us for protection against thieves. This jeweller sent for me, and I went up to see him. The story he told me was familiar. There was no doubt the man who had turned the trick was the one who had worked San Francisco and the other cities.

"'Can you catch him?' asked the jeweller.

"'There's no doubt of that,' I replied. 'Sooner or later we will pick him up. But if you want to get him quickly you'll have to spend some money. It will cost about a thousand dollars.'

"The jeweller demurred, just as many other good men demur when they are called upon to go down in to their own pockets to do a service for society. If every man who suffers from the depredations of criminals were willing to help catch the man who robs him there wouldn't be so many criminals at large. Private detective agencies can't work for nothing, and few police departments can afford to detail men to follow the trails of individual criminals except in the most serious of cases. But finally this St. Paul jeweller came around and agreed to spend a thousand—which he could well afford—to catch the ring thief. I knew then we would have the man soon."

"How could you tell that?"

"Because he was certain to try the same trick somewhere else, since he had been so successful in getting away with it before," replied Mr. Pinkerton. "It was certain, too, that he would try it in a big city. So the way to trap him, it seemed to me, was to put the jewellers in the big cities on their guard. It was not much trouble to get a description of him, for so many jewellers had seen him—to their sorrow. And the checks held by the banks gave samples enough of handwriting. We got out circulars containing the description and specimens of penmanship and sent them broadcast. Not long afterward one of our men picked him up in Boston."

"The young fellow begged and pleaded for mercy, but he had been at the game too long to play innocent and first offender, and all the six St. Paul jewellers identified him as the man who had robbed them. He was convicted on six counts and was given four years on each—twenty-four years in the Minnesota Penitentiary.

"I got reports from the prison from time to time. He was taking his imprisonment easily and was making himself a good fellow with the warden. He became editor of the prison paper and wrote some really clever things for it. The reports that came to me were so good that the man who brought them asked me one day what I made of the fellow's actions.

"'He's getting ready to "kiss himself out,"' I said, and I was right, for not long after that he slipped away between two days and vanished.

"Of course, his photograph and description were sent to all the police departments and detective agencies, but nobody got a trace of him. I hadn't heard or thought of him for twenty years until a couple of years ago.

"I was sitting in the lobby of a hotel in Hong Kong, watching the people passing, when a man whose face seemed familiar came in. I studied him a moment, then I placed him. It was the escaped convict from Stillwater—the young jewel thief! His hair was gray, but it was the same man—I was sure of it.

"If I had had any doubt about his identity it would have been removed by his actions when he caught sight of me. He started, turned pale and hurried away. He had recognized me quicker than I had recognized him.

"In the few minutes that followed his recognition of me that man went through all the pangs of terror that Jean Valjean ever suffered. He could not stand the suspense long, and soon he came over to where I sat.

"'What does this mean—what are you doing here in Hong Kong?' he stammered.

"'What are you doing here?' I asked him, and he told me his story.

"He had lived straight from the time he escaped from prison. He had had a hard time of it, between keeping himself under cover and earning a living. He had done newspaper work and other things until he finally drifted to Hong Kong. When I found him there he had been for sixteen years a merchant in that city, had built up a large and profitable business and was one of the most highly respected business men in the city. Nobody, not even his family, ever had so much as guessed his antecedents.

The Quality of Mercy.

"I had difficulty in making him believe that I had not found his trail and come to Hong Kong after him. Of course I hadn't and of course I didn't expose him. What good would it have done? It would have done infinite harm without doing any good.

"It lifted a tremendous weight off the fellow's mind. In spite of his outward appearance of contentment he had been looking for me, or for some officer of the law, all these years. Like Jean Valjean, he had known the terror of the evildoer, who knows by bitter experience the fate that awaits him if he is caught. The man who has escaped dreads imprisonment more than he who has always served out his time, for he knows what kind of treatment he will get in the ordinary prison when he is taken back.

"Jean Valjeans in real life? Yes, there are many of them; many men who have not, after years of freedom, entirely lost the fear of being recognized and denounced and, what is worse, dragged back to prison again. And often that fear is justified. I will tell you of an instance.

"More than forty years ago, when I was a young fellow, a desperate criminal broke jail in this [illegible]. He was a man with a long record as a bank burglar and he was serving a sentence that had many years yet to run. I did not know the man, but knew about him, and his escape was a great newspaper sensation at the time.

"A few years ago a man called on me here in my New York office. He was a crook whom I recognized.

"'I've got a proposition to make to you,' he said. 'You remember So and So?' He named the man who had escaped so long ago. I nodded.

"'I know where he is,' said the crook. 'I ran across him a little while ago. He's changed his name and got rich. He's been living straight ever since he got out and he's one of the prominent citizens up where he lives. He doesn't know that I'm on, but I've got him dead to rights. Now, you could go up there and shake him down for a big bunch of money for both of us.'

"He didn't get any further. I got up out of my chair and—well, when I got through with the fellow I had done some remembering myself.

"'Look here,' I said, 'you did a trick yourself up in New Hampshire some years ago, and you made your getaway after you were sentenced. My recollection is that you owe the State of New Hampshire about fifteen years' time, and I promise you that if that old man you just spoke of is ever molested or approached in any way by you or any one else, for blackmail or to peach on him, I'll see to it that you spend the rest of your life in prison, and that goes.'

"The crook slipped out of my office and the old man who escaped from prison forty years ago is still a useful and respected citizen, so far as I know. I never investigated the story the crook told me, but I have no doubt that it is true and that in the city he named there is another Jean Valjean in real life."

WHITE MOTH'S ADVENTURE.

THE presence of a common white mothmiller in a McAdoo tunnel car the other morning caused no end of consternation among the passengers and was nearly the cause of a small sized panic owing to the remark of an excited woman.

How the moth got into the car is a mystery, but its appearance was not generally noticed until after the car had left the Jersey City terminal and was well under the river. The writer first discovered the miller and was intently gazing at it in an effort to study out how it got so far away from its native heath. The "gaze" became contagious in a few seconds and was taken up by the nervous and evidently superstitious woman opposite me, for she uttered a faint cry of "Oh, my heavens, look at that butterfly! It's a bad sign, and I'm sure this train will never reach New York before we are all drownded!"

By that time every eye in the car was on the moth, which kept butting into the electric lights, while three or four excited women grabbed the men nearest them. A little woman with a baby in her arms sitting next to me asked if there was any danger of the "pipes" bursting, and in less time than is consumed in telling it every occupant of the car caught the fever of fear and stood up, most of them with a look of fright and ready to make a rush for the doors the moment they were opened.

In the meantime the moth was entirely forgotten, but before leaving the car I caught it and let it go in Dey street.

THE MAYOR AND THE CAPTAIN.

PETTY politicians and officeholders followed their chief, the Mayor of an Eastern city, on noisy tugs down the bay when he was leaving for Europe. They cheered and sang and shouted that he was a jolly good fellow. The Mayor felt that he was and that this demonstration proved him the biggest man aboard ship. That he might appear so to the men in the screaming tugs, he mounted the bridge, where he waved his hands and shouted at them. In the midst of his glorification he was quietly but authoritatively ordered from the bridge by the captain of the ship.

"But," sputtered his indignant Honor, "but I am the chief magistrate of"——

"No one is allowed on this bridge without orders from me," said the captain, turning his back with an air of finality.

That a Mayor should be treated with such ignominy in the eyes of his henchmen by a mere man of the sea was intolerable. The Mayor made loud threats about having the captain removed.

A few weeks later he returned on the same ship and his faithful followers went down the bay in tugs to meet him. Again there was the shouting and the singing, but only the captain was on the bridge.

"Where's the chief? Where's the Mayor?" his loyal men inquired.

Finally some one espied him. He was one of the crowd struggling to get near the railing on the saloon deck.

"A Mayor on land is a personage, but on a ship he's only a passenger," admitted His Honor bitterly to his secretary, as he cast a glance at the big captain dominating the bridge in solitary grandeur.

Mr. J. B. Duke's Ploughing.

IN spite of the distractions of the Tobacco Company's reorganization, Mr. James B. Duke bestows much attention upon the work of developing and beautifying his three thousand acre estate, Duke's Park, near Somerville, N. J. Not infrequently on his tours of inspection he personally directs the laborers. One day he took the plough from the hands of a slow, awkward foreigner, saying:—

"Here, let me show you how to plough a furrow. I've not forgotten how I did that when I was a boy in South Carolina."

Another day he took the place of the boss of a gang of workmen and before he got through he dismissed five for inefficiency.

DIDN'T KNOW HER.

THERE was an uncomfortable congestion at the rear end of the pay as you enter car, every one trying to get out of the rain and mud and only a third having their nickels ready. A young man gave the conductor a quarter, received his five nickels and dropped one of them into the box. "Here," shouted the conductor, "put in another nickel." "What for? I ain't two people," retorted the young man angrily.

"Well, who's that woman up there?"

"I don't know. I never saw her before."

"Well, she didn't pay." But the insistent passengers demanded attention and the man at the box had to drop the subject, although he looked into the car later, glaring with especial disfavor at the youth who disowned acquaintance with the woman whose fare remained unpaid.

ANCIENT PUFFS AND SWITCHES.

CAESAR'S wife may have been above suspicion so far as her morals were concerned, but the same could not have been said about her hair, any more than it could about the hair of the fashionable matron of to-day.

The Greek, Egyptian, Carthaginian and Roman ladies of twenty-five centuries ago made use of the most astonishing quantities of borrowed hair, and the Roman women of the time of Augustus were especially pleased when they could outdo their social rivals by piling upon their heads a greater tower of additional tresses. They also arranged curls formally around the head.

An extensive commerce in human hair was carried on, and after the conquest of Gaul, blond hair, such as grew originally on the heads of German girls along the Rhine, became very fashionable in Rome. Caesar did not disdain to mix a little commercialism with his military enterprises and collected a vast amount of hair from the vanquished Gauls, which he sent to market at Rome, and in the Roman provinces a cropped head was regarded as a badge of slavery or at least of subjection.

The hairdressers of Rome were persons of real importance and charged exorbitant prices for forming the hair into fanciful devices, such as Larps, wreaths and diadems.

The Senator's Sarcasm.

FOR many years there served in the United States Senate, from the West, a man of brilliant mind and many fine qualities, but who was forever estranging many with whom he desired to be friendly by reason of his incurably sarcastic manner both of speech and action.

Once an intimate friend wrote the Senator urging the appointment of another friend to a minor position in the government. The Senator returned a most sarcastic reply, declining to recommend the appointment. It is said that he never forgot the merited rebuke he received from the friend who had suggested the appointment.

"My Dear Senator:—I think it would be well for you to reserve your sarcasm for the rapidly increasing number of your enemies, instead of offering it to the decreasing number of your friends, of whom I am one."

THE USE OF PERFUMES.

THE use of perfumes, from the standpoint of good breeding, is a subject much discussed. An important feature generally overlooked, however, is the fact that perfumes have decided medicinal characteristics, a fact well known to the ancients. One Latin writer listed more than a hundred scents as remedies for disease, the place of honor being given to the violet. It is essential, of course, that the essence be pure and actually made from the flower.

Most of the "violet" extract and toilet water on the market to-day is merely a chemical imitation, and most chemical imitations of perfumes are irritating to the nerves. The lavender scented sheets of our grandmothers were delightfully soothing to the nerves of the persons sleeping between them, for lavender is both quieting in its effect and a remarkable sleep inducer and having the exceptional merit of combining refreshment and relaxation. Most refreshing perfumes are stimulating. Old writers assert that jasmine alone is a most valuable general tonic, but add that in most compounds it is injurious, producing nerve exhaustion and depression.

The compounding of perfumes is a distinct branch of chemistry—a perfume maker may be regarded as an artist of chemistry, blending his ingredients with the care of one and the taste and skill of the other profession. Almost all perfumes have as a basis ambergris or civet, and while these materials are most necessary, great care must be exercised in their use, for a grain too much will make the perfume distressingly irritating to the user. The same is true of many combinations of scents, such combinations even producing hysteria in a mild or severe form. If indulged in at all but one distinct scent should be used.

THE NEXT TWO WEEKS MUST BE ROUSERS

The first week of December brought phenomenal selling, but the two weeks that are left before Christmas will have to be crowded with simply extraordinary selling, if our object is attained of a $25,000 OUTPUT IN DECEMBER. It takes a lot of goods to count up to that amount, but if LOW PRICES on high-grade seasonable goods will do it, we will reach the goal.

MAYORALTY AT CAMPBELLFORD

C. L. Owen ex M. P. is Likely to Likely to be Unopposed

Campbellford, Dec. 14.—Mr. C. L. Owen, ex-M.P. has decided to be a candidate for the mayoralty for 1912. Mr. Owen was a member of the Town Council for fourteen years, and his connection with the last opposition which was so strengthened at the September election as to become the present government, should place him in a position to render good service to the town. It is not likely there will be any opposition to him.

People From United States Want to Secure a Hebert Divorce

Montreal, Dec. 14.—Some of the undesirable effects of the notoriety given to Quebec Province by the Hebert marriage case are already commencing to flow. A priest of the diocese of Montreal stated this morning that several husbands and wives living in various parts of the United States had arrived in Montreal to make application for the annulment of their marriage under the terms enjoyed by Eugene Hebert. The fame of the case had brought them on journeys of hundreds of miles only to be told by the Montreal priests to go home and obey the laws of the respective States.

"We deal with these people summarily," said he, "in no instance giving their pleadings for an annulment any consideration whatever. We told them we had plenty of troubles of our own and that their petitions to be included in the Hebert class was only an excuse to secure an easy separation." I am informed that they wasted no more time in Montreal.

Bethany People Propose a Glass Factory for Lindsay

Special Correspondence.

Bethany, Dec. 14.—It is stated that some of the Bethany people are going to Lindsay to build a glass factory so that the Lindsay people can see through it.

The sad news of Dr. Brereton's death has cast a gloom over Bethany and the surrounding country, and it seems to be even a harder hit to Bethany than the fire. He was a friend to all men, and especially to a person in sickness. Neither self-sacrifice or horse flesh were any object to him when a person lay at the end of his journey, and many a sick bed has been cheered by his presence. There is no home in the community but owes him their thanks. Many who are to-day enjoying health and happiness seem not to realize that but for his care they might be to-day without father or mother.

The C.P.R. station is progressing rapidly, and the officials are expected to pass over the road to-day.

FEAST OF LIGHTS TO BE OBSERVED

Jews Celebrate Purification of Temple at Jerusalem

One of the lesser holidays in the Jewish calendar begins this year on December 16, but as Jewish calendation makes the day begin the evening before, the eve of the feast wil be on Friday, Dec. 15.

The feast is called Chanukah; also in other forms is designated as the "Feast of Lights" and as "The Feast of Dedication." The feast was instituted in the year 165 B.C.E., in celebration of the purification of the temple at Jerusalem after its occupation and pollution, as a heathen temple by Antiochus Epiphenes, the Syrian king. The Jews had been tributary to Syria but had enjoyed religious freedom and practical autonomy up to the time when Antiochus desiring to unify his empire, attempted to Hellenize all its parts. He met with strong opposition from the Hebrews, who objected to the introduction of Greek idolatry, but by means of threat and preferment, won over the priestly leaders, as well as large numbers of the wealthy.

The high priests had become political appointees and the tools of the temporal rulers, now, as they were in the last days of the hierarchy. The opposition came from the common people who started a guerilla warfare under the leadership of Mattathias, a member of a priestly family, and later under his sons, amongst whom Judah Maccabee stood out as a heroic figure After a protracted guerilla campaign, gradually developing into a national war, the foreigners were expelled, and the temple, in which a statue of Zeus had been set up, reclaimed for the worship of Jehovah. The feast is celebrated in the home principally by the lighting of candles or lights, one added on each successive day until eight are lighted on the eighth day.

Must Be Separate.

Lisbon, Dec. 14.—The Portuguese Government has informed the Catholic Patriarch of Lisbon, Mgr. Anthony Mendes Bello, that it will not pay any salary to the clergy unless the clergy submit to the law separating church and state.

This announcement was made in consequence of the receipt of advices from Rome that the Pope had authorized destitute Portuguese priests to accept stipends from the republic on the condition that they did not allow the Government to interfere in ecclesiastical matters.

PROGRESS IN THE WEST

A piece of railway construction that is almost unique is now under way on the British Columbia Division of the Canadian Northern Railway It is a three mile stretch between Spence's Bridge and Welhachin located at a point about an equal distance from the towns of Lytten and Ashcroft and in that strip of right of way four tunnels are to be built. One will be fifteen hundred feet in length, another a thousand feet and the two others five hundred feet each.

Recently six hundred men were employed there but this number will probably be doubled in the immediate future. Owing to the anxiety of the Canadian Northern to complete the entire section of their line from Edmonton to Vancouver it is probable that construction work will be proceeded with during the winter. This however, should prove in no sense a hardship because of the mellow climate of the coast province and of the fact that this underground cutting will place the men employed beyond the interference of conditions obtaining outside.

In addition to this section of heavy rock work there are two other tunnels to be built in this mountain district that are even of greater size One of these, which is located near the town of Yale is to be almost half a mile long, or to be exact 2,070 feet. The other bore is to be made in the Black Canyon close to the town of Ashcroft.

A cougar or mountain lion was captured while running on the track in front of a train from Rosebery to Nakusp, B.C.

Moose Jaw has the smallest tax rate in its history, 12 1-2 mills. Reports show the city assessment to be $20,000,000

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q.—Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?

A.—Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near-sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q. Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?

A.—Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

Q.—Can my headache be relieved with Glasses?

A. A personal visit will be necessary. LET US TALK IT OVER.

WHY PUNISH THE WOMAN

Wainwright's Argument in Hebert Case.

Minister One to be Punished if Anyone.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—The continuation of argument in the Hebert case, which was to have taken place yesterday afternoon, was deferred till this morning, on account of the fact that the hearing of the cases on the Practice Court roll extended till late in the afternoon.

In his coming address Mr. Wainwright will take up the thread of historical argument at the cession, and will proceed thence to the year 1866, when the present code was brought into effect. His contention that in the interval between 1670 and 1866 there was nothing in law then existing to oblige Catholics to go before their parish priests or bishops in order to be married, and that consequently ministers of any faith other than the Catholics were not restrained from officiating at such marriages.

Mr. Wainwright will also claim that if an illegality was really committed in the solemnization of the marriage, then the author of that illegality was the officiating minister. If so, how does it come to pass, that the sanction of, punishment of that illegality in the form of a judgment of annulment is visited upon a third party or parties and not on the person responsible for the commission of the illegality?

CONSCRIPTION FOR WOMEN

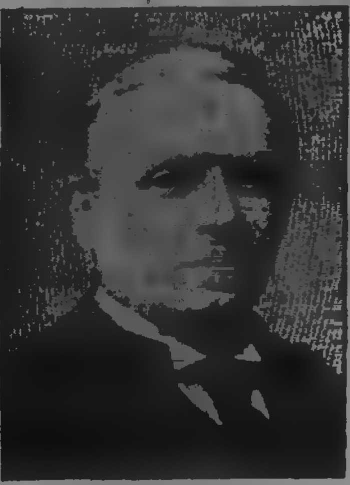
Dusseldorf, Germany, Dec. 15.—The introduction of obligatory military service for women was proposed at a meeting yesterday of the Patriotic Women's Union here by Privy Medical Councillor Witzell, professor of the Medical Academy at Dusseldorf.

The lecturer, who is a well-known physician, suggested that women should be enrolled in the military hospital, transport, provisioning and clothing services, and should be mobilized with the other auxiliary troops in case of war.

The proposition has been taken up enthusiastically by the suffragettes, as it is regarded by them as eliminating any argument against the granting of the franchise to women.

King Reviews Troops.

Delhi, Dec. 15.—King George yesterday reviewed 50,000 British and native troops. He held an investiture in the royal camp last night bestowing orders on 93 knights and 200 companions. The Queen witnessed both the review and bestowal of orders.



PREMIER ASQUITH.

Who told a deputation of anti-suffragettes that to grant the franchise to women would be a political mistake of a very disastrous kind.

PREMIER AGAINST VOTES FOR WOMEN

Declares Suffrage for the Fair Sex Would be Disastrous—A Political Mistake.

London, Dec. 15.—(Can. Press.)—The anti-suffragists have been roused to action by the recent violent demonstrations of the suffragettes.

An important deputation of the National Anti-Women's Suffrage Society, under the leadership of Lord Curzon of Kedleston, was received by Premier Asquith at his official residence on Downing street, yesterday morning.

The object of the deputation was to secure the Prime Minister's co-operation in blocking the threatened enfranchisement of women by means of an amendment to the Government's forthcoming Franchise Reform bill, which includes the granting of votes to women.

Mr. Asquith expressed his hearty sympathy with the object of the deputation and agreed with them that to grant the franchise to women "would be a political mistake of a very disastrous kind."

The Premier said that he did not reject the suggestion that a referendum should be held on the subject of women's franchise, but he feared that the verdict of such a referendum would not be accepted by the suffragettes unless women were permitted to vote in the referendum.

Mr. Asquith thought that the public opinion in the British Isles was so much against such a gigantic change as the granting of suffrage to women that it would prove a dominating factor in ultimately defeating the proposal, even should a franchise bill, including the women's vote, be carried through the House of Commons.

UNDER NO OBLIGATION TO PROTECT PERSIA

British Foreign Secretary Says That Shuster Must be Replaced—Has Raised Strife.

London, Dec. 15.—Referring to the Persian question during a discussion of foreign affairs in the House of Commons yesterday, the Foreign Secretary, Sir Edward Grey, said that the Anglo-Russian agreement was not intended to impair the independence and integrity of Persia. A declaration to that effect had been made to the Persian Government, but, he added, Great Britain was not undertaking any obligation to protect the integrity of Persia.

The Russian Government, continued the Foreign Secretary, had demanded that Mr. Shuster should be withdrawn. The British Government had said that it did not object to that demand. Mr. Shuster's intentions in appointing British officials in Northern Persia were good, but the spirit and intention of the Anglo-Russian agreement could not be permitted to be upset, and two great nations embroiled by the action of an individual, no matter how good the intentions were.

After what had happened he agreed with Russia's demand that the consent of the British and Russian legations should be obtained for the appointment of foreign advisers to Persia.

In conclusion, Sir Edward said that as Persia was unable to pay an indemnity, he hoped Russia would be induced not to press that demand.

Philip Edward Morell, Liberal, said that a poorer excuse for taking away the independence of Persia than that advanced in the case of Mr. Shuster had never been put forward in the House of Commons. The exact crime committed by Shuster, said Mr. Morell, was that he did not call at the Russian legation as often as he ought.

The Foreign Secretary said that if the difficulty were mismanaged or rashly handled by those concerned larger issues of policy might become involved. The British Government strongly opposed the restoration of the ex-Shah and Russia had given categorical assurances that it had no intention of that kind.

In this connection Sir Edward read a communication from the St. Petersburg Government stating that the troops would not advance from Kasbin for eight days, unless extraordinary circumstances should force an advance, and that when Persia complied with the demands the further presence of the troops would be superfluous. The communication concluded with assurance of adherence to the Russo-British agreement.

Sir Edward insisted upon the importance of Treasurer-General Shuster being replaced without delay by a foreign financial adviser acceptable to Great Britain and Russia, and that the latter countries should co-operate to assist Persia in securing loans and restoring order.

Criticism of Policy Unreasonable.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 15.—M. Sazanoff, Foreign Minister, said yesterday: "The Morocco agreement and the Turkish and Persian questions have strengthened the European combinations, especially the triple entente, which has passed the test with honor. Under the circumstances there is no desire in any quarter to change the groupings of the powers.

"No one is safe from reproaches, but criticism of the Persian policy is unreasonable.

"Should the ex-Shah attempt to usurp the throne," said M. Sazanoff, "Russia will refuse to recognize him."

On the question of the indemnity demand he asserted that the poor financial condition of Persia had been taken into consideration in making the demand.

Would-Be Suicide In Jail.

Galt, Dec. 15.—Thomas Sayles made a desperate attempt to take his own life and yesterday afternoon was removed to Berlin jail to await sentence, having pleaded guilty to the charge at the police court yesterday morning. Sayles is a friendless Englishman and ex-soldier, aged 50. He slashed his throat with a razor and nearly bled to death.

PRINCE ALBERT IS 16

H.R.H. Prince Albert, second son of Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary, yesterday celebrated the sixteenth anniversary of his birth. The young Prince was born Dec. 14, 1895. He is a naval cadet and a fine, manly lad.

The other children of the royal family are: Edward Albert, Prince of Wales, the heir to the throne, born June 23, 1894; Princess Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary, born April 25, 1897; Prince Henry, born March 31, 1900; Prince George, born December 20, 1902, and Prince John, born July 12, 1905.

CONSECRATION OF NEW CHURCH BY BISHOP OF PETERBOROUGH

Church of Guardian Angel at Orillia Was Opened on Thursday.

Over One Hundred Children Confirmed by His Lordship.

The new Roman Catholic church of the Guardian Angel of Orillia, which has been under construction for the past year and a half, was consecrated and opened for public worship yesterday morning. The church was consecrated by the Right Rev. R. A. O'Connor, Bishop of Peterborough, while the sermon was given by Monsignor McCann, of St. Mary's church, Toronto, Vicar General of the Diocese. Mass was sung by Father Guerin, of Toronto.

A large number of the clergy from Toronto was present and those from the Peterborough diocese, besides his Lordship, were Rev. Father McCall, Rev. Father McGuire, Archdeacon Casey, Rev. Father O'Leary, of Bracebridge. At an impressive service in the afternoon Bishop O'Connor administered confirmation to over one hundred children.

The new church is a stately edifice of Longford stone, crowning the hill on which the former brick church stood. The main building is 158x60 feet. At the northwest corner is the sacristy, 60x33 feet, and a porch 15x15 feet, and on the southwest corner the baptistry, 16x16 feet. The entrances, of which there are three, are at the east end of the church, facing West street. A wide vestibule runs the full width of the building. Spacious concrete steps lead up from the street to the doors.

Inside the church is as beautiful as it is stately in its outward aspect. A prominent feature in twelve Scagliola columns of Sienna marble, which support the roof. The work was done by Italian artists, brought from New York for that purpose. The columns are supported on octagon bases of Keene cement, and are surmounted by Gothic capitals. In fact the architecture and construction is consistently Gothic throughout. At the east end is a spacious choir gallery in which there is provision for a pipe organ which it is intended to secure in the near future. The church has a seating capacity of about a thousand. It has cost so far about $60,000, and when the tower is completed, the basement equipped as an auditorium, the grounds terraced and other contemplated work carried out, the total cost will be in the neighbourhood of $75,000.

The contractor for the building is Mr. R. Sheehy, of Peterborough. Rev. Father Trayling is the priest of the parish.

RIGHT REVEREND R. A. O'CONNOR

Bishop of Peterborough who Consecrated the Guardian Angel Church at Orillia.

INSPECTORS DISMISSED

Changes in the Dominion Fruit Inspection Dept.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—The Hon. Martin Burrell has made a number of changes in the fruit inspection department. About a dozen fruit inspectors have been dismissed for non-political reasons. The dismissals had been urged for years by officials, but political pull was strong.

A reorganization of the fruit section of the agriculture is being contemplated by Hon. Mr. Burrell. The fruit industry is now under the direction of the dairy commissioner, whose interests are naturally not with fruit farming. Strong representations have been made by the various fruit farming associations that there should be a special fruit commissioner appointed. It is almost certain that the change will be made.

BLACKMAILERS SENTENCED

London, Dec. 15.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—For blackmailing Elijah Fader, a Canadian financier, by falsely declaring he had committed an indictable offence against a young woman, Butler was sentenced to nine months and Henry Marshall to three years in prison. Marshall stated to have been a secret service agent in Canada.

John Tait Promoted.

Winnipeg, Dec. 15.—John Tait, superintendent of Canadian Pacific Telegraphs, Winnipeg, has been appointed assistant general superintendent of western lines.

Building Floating Drydock.

Port Stanley, Ont., Dec. 15.—A floating drydock will be built in Port Stanley by Oscar C. Smith of the village, to provide facilities for the repair of vessels coming into port, as well as to care for the local fleet. Hitherto, owing to its absence, the boats had to go elsewhere to have their troubles attended to. The Tug Owners' Association will give financial assistance to the undertaking.

FRENCH MINISTER ON MOROCCAN AFFAIR

France Not Worsted in the Affair by Any Means ---German Declaration at the Outset of Crisis.

Paris, Dec. 15.—The German, British, Russian and Spanish ambassadors were present in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday afternoon when Foreign Minister DeSelves, before a crowded House, delivered France's contribution to the German-British debate and made some additions to the revelations concerning the Moroccan crisis.

Among other things M. DeSelves declared that Germany at the outset of the crisis had asserted that she would not accept or abide by a new Algeciras conference as a means to the settlement of the Moroccan question.

The discussion followed an interpellation by the Count DeMun and other members to the right or Conservative side, which wished to postpone the ratification of the Franco-German accord in regard to Morocco until after the negotiations now going on with Spain are concluded.

Count DeMun in a long speech condemned the sacrific to a rival power of part of a French colony equalling in extent two-thirds of France and conquered by the spilling of blood of French soldiers. He condemned the making of secret treaties as a method of diplomacy and wanted to know where France had been heading for forty years. The world, he said, had not seen Europe in a more menacing condition. He hoped that France did not dream of a dangerous Utopia involving the substitution of the friendship of England by the friendship of other powers.

M. DeSelves, in opposing the motion for the postponement of the ratification of the Franco-German agreement, traced the negotiations between France and Germany since the beginning of the crisis. He admitted that there had been a moment of tension due to the excessive demands of Germany. Reasonable negotiations ensued upon this and M. DeSelves denied that Germany had become irritable and tried to start a conflict. On the contrary her attitude had been conciliatory. French interests had been constantly guarded while the dignity and calm of public opinion in France had revealed the force of French patriotism.

M. DeSelves then defended the Franco-German accord, saying that the world realized that France had emerged from the negotiations far from being worsted. However, he continued, the chief advantage of the agreement is that it frees foreign politics from the Moroccan question, which has been a permanent source of conflict.

"The advantage is not a small one at an hour when the external political situation demands particular attention." He then continued: "We have no intention of abandoning our friends or our alliances. On the contrary we shall bind them closer." In conclusion he said that the negotiations with Spain had been taken up in a friendly spirit.

Count DeMun's motion was defeated by 448 to 55.

CAUSED SENSATION

Rumor in England That King Had Been Assassinated at Delhi.

Special To The Review.

London, Dec. 15.—A rumor that King George had been assassinated at Delhi camp swept aff England today, causing a tremendous sensation. The Home Office issued a statement denying that any accident affecting His Majesty had occurred.

Will Settle Coal Strike.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—Hon. Charles W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, has taken what will probably be final action on the part of the Government in connection with the settlement of a strike which several months ago tied up the coal mines of Alberta and Eastern British Columbia.

On the suggestion of Mr. Crothers, H. Bentley, a well-known merchant of Lethbridge has consented to act as chairman of a committee of arbitrators. It is agreed that the findings of the committee will be accepted by both parties.

Borden's Busy Week.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—Premier Borden's return to Ottawa on Saturday will be followed by a week of hard work. The intention is to rush the work of preparation for the re-opening of the House in January. Probably the first thing to be done will be the appointment of the promised tariff commission and the commission which is to study the needs of agriculture with a view to co-operation between the Dominion and the provinces.

Liners' Crews Too Small.

Washington, Dec. 15.—Wm. H. Frazier, secretary of the International Seamen's Union of Boston, startled the House committee on merchant marine and fisheries yesterday, by declaring on a majority of the passenger carrying ships on the Atlantic coast, there were not enough members of the crew to man the life boats. He said most ships carry only boats enough for 75 per cent. of the passenger capacity of the ships.

A Home-Stayer's Death.

London, Ont., Dec. 15.—Mr. George Burridge Peacock, a shoemaker, of Delaware, died in that village on Wednesday night at the age of 75 years, without ever having spent a night away from his home or ever been on a railway train.

Sir Charles Tupper's Condition.

London, Dec. 15.—Sir William Barlow and the physicians attending Sir Charles Tupper, at Bexleyheath, yesterday morning issued a bulletin stating that their distinguished patient is maintaining his condition.

POLICEMAN TAKES HIS LIFE

Shot Himself While Unfit for Duty and in Custody of Patrol Sergeant

Special to The Review.

Toronto, Dec. 15—While being taken to the Court street station by Patrol Sergeant Martin, who found him on the beat incapable for duty, Constable Arthur Staples, (91) shot himself shortly before three o'clock this morning. At the corner of Leader Lane and King street, Staples stepped back and put a bullet through his head with his revolver. He died in the hospital a few minutes later.

POSTAGE WILL BE COLLECTED

On Campaign Issues of Newspapers—Globes Bill the Largest

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—Postage will be collected on all campaign issues of newspapers distributed to other than regular subscribers prior to the recent general election. It is understood the late postmaster-general decided to remit the charges, but Postmaster-General Pelletier, takes a different view. The Toronto Globe's bill is said to be the largest.

Pope Exempts Germany.

Berlin, Dec. 15.—(Can. Press.)—It is announced officially that the Papal Legate to Prussia was informed by Cardinal del Val, the papal secretary of state, when the special order of the Pope relating to court proceedings against the clergy was issued, that it did not apply to Germany. The order has been subjected to bitter attacks by newspapers on every side except the Catholic organs.

Too Easy For Prisoners.

London, Dec. 15.—Dr. R. W. Bruce-Smith, inspector of prisons, has filed his report of his inspection of the jail with Sheriff Cameron.

The report states that the amount of work provided for the prisoners is not sufficient, and that there is altogether too much idleness. Governor Carter explains in this connection that the prisoners who were not at work were either those on remand or those sentenced to serve terms in the Central Prison.

PREPARATIONS TO CELEBRATE THE TREATY OF GHENT

Active Steps for Great Centenary Have Started—One Hundred Years of Peace.

London, Dec 15.—Preparations are now being made in this country to celebrate the centenary of the treaty of Ghent.

Earlier in the year a parliamentary committee was formed to promote arbitration between Great Britain and the United States with Sir Philip Magnus as chairman, and this committee has now decided to form a larger body, which will proceed to consider what actual shape the celebrations should take.

The opening meeting was held at Caxton Hall, Westminster, yesterday.

An executive committee will be appointed, and the work of the organization will begin with the New Year.

The Treaty of Ghent is an arrangement between the United States and Great Britain by which the war of 1812 was brought to a close. It was negotiated at Ghent, Belgium, by J. Z. Adams, J. A. Bayard, Henry Clay, Jonathan Russell and Albert Gallatin, representing the United States, and Lord Gambier, Henry Goulburn and William Adams, representing Great Britain. It was signed December 24, 1814, ratifications being exchanged at Washington, Feb 17, 1815.

The treaty declares that there should be a firm and universal peace between the two countries * * * and that the two parties should use their best endeavors to abolish slavery. Provision was also made to refer to a commission matters of boundary disputes.

PASSED THE HOUSE OF LORDS

Special To The Review.

London, Dec. 15.—Loyd George's industrial bill passed its third reading in the House of Lords to-day, minor amendments being made which will undoubtedly be accepted by the Commons.

Sun Yat Sen at Penang.

Penang, Straits Settlements, Dec. 15.—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the Chinese reformer, and Gen. Homer Lea, the American who, it was alleged, would take charge of the military government in China, landed here yesterday. Dr. Sun Yat Sen declined to grant an interview, preferring to reserve his judgment on the situation in China, and not desiring to commit himself to a definite policy until he was in full possession of the facts and acquainted with the intentions and views of the reformers.

BENEFITS OF HYDRO-ELECTRIC

Hon. Adam Beck, who will be Minister of Power in the Whitney Cabinet, made a most important announcement on the hydro-electric question at Guelph on Wednesday. He dealt with the question of supplying electricity to the farmers of the province and told of the practical uses it could be put to by the farmers for cooking, washing, milking and for heating. The farmer could even do his threshing and ploughing with it and at a very reasonable cost. Hon. Mr. Beck showed that electricity was used very extensively on farms in Germany and with great success, and pointed out clearly how the farmers would benefit by installing the hydro-electric. The government intend to extend main lines through other parts of the province and municipalities and townships will be able to secure power at a low figure. The hydro-electric means much to the farmers of the province and they will doubtless take advantage of it.

NEW CAPITAL OF INDIA

The announcement made by King George at the great durbar held at Delhi on Delhi, would henceforth be the capital city of India, and the seat of government for the Indian Empire has met with general approval. The present Capital, Calcutta, is a comparatively new city. Its age does not go much farther back than the beginning of British dominion in India. It became the capital, not because it was favorably situated, or because of any other advantages, but merely because British power first centered there and spread from there throughout the vast peninsula.

There is little question that Delhi is the natural site for the Capital City of the Empire. It is centrally situated, and its historic associations make it an object of reverence to the great mass of the Indian people, Hindus and Mohammedans alike. As far back as history reaches, Delhi not only existed, but was a capital city. It is one of the oldest cities in the world. There the ancient dynasties of Hindu kings held court, and later on it became the centre of Mohammedan power in India and the capital of the Mogul empire. Its monuments and buildings attest its greatness and splendor in the past.

This latest move on his Majesty's part in establishing the seat of the British-India Empire in the ancient capital is a fine stroke of policy, and will enchance the prestige of British rule in India. The Bengalese will naturally resent the removal of the seat of government to Delhi, as it will mean the decadence of Calcutta, their chief city, but the government is under no obligation to the people of Bengal where disaffection is rife.

Both Satisfied

(Montreal Gazette.)

The situation in Ontario over the election of a new Legislature seems to be that the Conservatives are satisfied with having almost three-fourths of the members and the Liberals are thankful that they got as many as one-fourth. The man who trains himself to expect little in politics does have his compensations now and then.

A Dead Issue

(Toronto Mail and Empire).

The Chicago Record-Herald is of opinion that the Ottawa Opposition will keep alive the issue of reciprocity. No party in Canada could keep alive the issue if it would, still less would any party keep it alive if it could.

The Worst Enemy

(Hamilton Herald.)

The elector who takes a bribe for marking his ballot is a despicable fellow. The man who bribes him is worse. For the tempter is always worse than the one tempted. We regard the electoral corruptionist as a more dangerous criminal than the thief or robber, for the consequences of his criminal activity are worse than the consequences of larceny and robbery. He should be classed with the seducer and debaucher of women. He poisons the stream of government at its source. He is one of the worst of public enemies and deserves to be treated as such.

Joke Ends In Murder.

London, Dec. 15.—Fred. Culbert, aged 27, died last night from loss of blood from a wound caused by an ax slash at Graham's Hotel, a roadhouse three miles from this city. A middle-aged gypsy, Dan Reynolds, was arrested late last night, charged with the assault.

The two men met at the hotel early in the evening and got into an argument over a gun which had been hidden as a joke. Reynolds, the gypsy, accused Culbert of hiding the gun. After some arguing Reynolds went to his wagon and got the ax and attacked Culbert. He escaped, leaving Culbert on the road. The wounded man dragged himself into the hotel and a physician was sent for, but arrived too late.

Reynolds was arrested some hours later at his home in Pottersburg.

It's Hamilton Now.

Hamilton, Dec. 15.—Some alarm has been caused in the city by the report of City Bacteriologist Dr. Fidlar, presented to the board of control yesterday morning. The report states that colon bacilli have been found in the water taken from taps in the city. The doctor says that the condition is serious, but as the infection is only occasional, there is no cause for immediate alarm. The source of the city's water supply has been found to be pure, and the doctor concludes that the water is probably infected from the bay inlet through seepage.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 14.—A fair amount of business continues to be done in all grades of Manitoba spring wheat over the cable, the demand being still good from both the United Kingdom and continental buyers at steady prices. There was also considerable enquiry for oats from foreign buyers and as buyers have advanced prices 6d per quarter during the past two or three days a good business could be done at a profit if ocean freight room was obtainable. The local trade in oats and American corn is fair. Flour is steady under a fair demand. Millfeed is active. Cheese is quiet but firm. Demand for butter and eggs continues good. Provisions are fairly active. Supplies of dressed poultry are large and demand slow on account of mild weather.

"So far as we could determine, he was quite dead. Mr. Maillot at once warned me not to mollest anything—he's a lawyer, I believe—and we agreed that I should notify the police while he remained to guard the house."

Such was Burke's story of the midnight tragedy. Further questioning elicited the assertion that he was utterly unable to account for Maillot's presence in the house; that he had never seen him before, and that he was sure the young man's call had been unexpected by Mr. Page, as the latter had, the last thing the previous evening at his office, instructed Burke to procure a number of specified papers from the file-case, and bring them to the house after supper.

Burke believed it to have been his employer's intention to go through these documents with him, for the purpose of selecting certain ones which had to do with a contemplated business trip to Duluth; but Maillot had arrived about seven o'clock, and he and Mr. Page had at once repaired to the library, where they remained until after eleven o'clock.

Burke had busied himself with other matters until convinced that, as his employer had doubtless given over the Duluth journey, his services would not be required; whereupon he had retired to his own room.

Such minor details were added as the only servant was a woman who came to the house of mornings, and departed before the master went down-town; there was no telephone in the house; and the millionaire's "eccentricities" included, among other things, a preference for candles over any other means of artificial illumination, and a strong disinclination to consume any more fuel than was absolutely necessary.

Learning that the woman servant was at that very moment in the house, I speedily saw to it that a rousing fire was kindled upon every hearth and in every stove; nor were they allowed to die out, as long as I remained beneath the roof. Felix Page would have no further use for his coal and kindling.

When Burke returned from discharging this errand, I continued my questioning.

"So it had been Mr. Page's intention to go to Duluth last night, eh? What for?"

"I don't know. About vessels or his wheat shipments, I suppose; something too important to entrust to the mail or telegraph."

"Did the coming of Mr. Maillot upset his plans?"

"I can't imagine what else caused him to change his mind at the last minute; the journey must have been unusually important to take him away from the city at this time."

Then Maillot's mission could not have been without exceptional weight, I reflected. And unless I was much mistaken, the deferred journey had seriously disarranged some material plan for Mr. Burke. I had nothing more to say, however, for the present.

I sent Burke back to the custody of Callahan and O'Brien, to await the completion of my investigation; for, until I became reasonably sure that I held in my hand all the available facts, it would be rank carelessness on my part to send the whilom secretary about his business.

I would have been hard put to it to interpret the impression which Alexander Burke had made upon my mind, if Stodger had demanded my opinion at that moment. As his round, cherubic face emerged between the curtains, I turned to him with considerable curiosity.

"Told it word for word as he did to me," was my companion's comment. "Couldn't have told it better if it had been a piece learnt by heart."

"Oh, he couldn't, eh?" observed I, thoughtfully, leading the way to the landing.

But I could not permit myself to theorize at this stage—an indulgence which, when premature, inevitably colors one's opinions, and prejudices all attempts at clear, logical reasoning.

CHAPTER III.

Some Discoveries

But I was not yet permitted to begin my examination of the body and its immediate surroundings. I had no sooner arrived at the landing than I heard a man's voice, somewhere above in the second story, speaking with a note of determination that demanded some sort of recognition from the person addressed. The clear, ringing, resolute tone made me involuntarily pause and listen.

"Where's your headquarters man?" the voice was irately demanding. "I want to see him, d'ye hear? You blithering idiot, I'm going down those stairs; if you want to rough it, just try to stop me."

Another voice was raised in expostulation. Stodger, at my elbow, suddenly chuckled.

"That's him!" he whispered, with an unaccountable excitement. "That's Maillot!"

"He must be a tartar," I observed.

At that instant a stalwart young man, very angry, and with one discolored eye that lent him an uncommonly truculent appearance, looked down on us from the upper hall; then he deliberately ignored the arguing policeman, strode to the head of the stairs and descended to the landing.

"It's all right, Callahan," said Stodger to the discomfited blue-coat.

The young man halted before us.

"Ass!" he growled, staring hard at me.

Stodger made the epithet exclusively mine with a bow and a broad grin. Instantly the young fellow flushed and stammered an apology.

"I didn't mean either of you chaps," he explained, in embarrassment. "It's that chuckle-headed hod-carrier in a blue uniform. If he gives me any more of his cheek, I'll take his club from him and hand him a wallop over the head with it—dashed if I don't."

He looked eminently capable of doing it, too. He paused, his look resting upon me with an interrogation.

"Are you in authority here?" he bluntly demanded.

"I suppose so. Are you Mr. Maillot?"

"I am. And I'd like to know how much longer I'll have to stay in this beastly cold-storage warehouse. I'm plenty tired of it right now, if you want to know."

I smiled at the resolute young fellow; there was something decidedly likable in his frank and handsome countenance, and his blunt, intense manner.

"It all depends, Mr. Maillot. You and Mr. Burke are the only ones who can help me to some sort of a solution of this crime—if crime it is; I take it for granted that you are willing to do what you can."

He favored me with another stare, then stood thoughtfully pulling at his lips and gazing at the body.

"Poor chap!" he muttered at length, in a hushed voice. "A ghastly way to die; I'd give a lot to know how it happened." Then he looked brightly at me, and asked with an almost boyish impulsiveness:

"Are you a detective—like Stodger here?"

"I'm a detective," I told him; "though I don't know how closely I resemble Stodger." A sound some from that worthy that made me think he was strangling. "Swift's my name."

Maillot suddenly thrust out his right hand.

"Glad to know you, Swift," he said. be said heartily. "You look like a sensible chap. I'm willing to do all I can to help you—of course I am. It won't be much, I'm afraid. But if any thick-headed cop says I can't do this or that, there's going to be trouble. They can't bluff me, and I know they haven't any right to dictate what I shall do."

All of which was quite true. Maillot glanced at the body again, and lowered his voice.

"Say," he said, "can't we go to a more appropriate place to talk matters over?"

"Yes—the library," I suggested.

He drew back and his face darkened.

"Library!" he echoed.

"There's a fire there now," I informed him, wondering at his quick-changing moods. Next instant he was talking again, eagerly.

"But—look here, Swift—you haven't examined the body yet, have you? I'm curious to see whether you discover anything. Queer old chap, he was; I don't think anybody ever understood him."

He broke off and eyed Stodger severely.

"What the deuce are you laughing at, Stodger?" he demanded.

Stodger laid a hand upon his arm, and asked with husky eagerness:

"On the level, Maillot—between us, you know—just what did you say last night when somebody pulled the shade down over that lamp of yours?"

"You go to thunder," Maillot retorted, turning his back upon him.

"Pshaw! I'll bet it was hotter than that," said Stodger, in a disappointed tone.

Now, then, here were the parts of the puzzle I had to piece together in order to gain some conception of the manner in which Felix Page met his death.

The still form lay, as I have already stated, on the landing which extended across the rear of the hall like a balcony. The stair continued thence up to the second story, but in a direction exactly the reverse of the first flight and on the opposite side of the hall therefrom.

Standing midway upon this landing, I had a view not only of the entire spacious hall, but could also see the tope of the étagère tipped forward at the head of the stairs. It had evidently been a receptacle for old magazines and newspapers, all of which, that had not been checked by the balusters, now lay in a confused heap upon the floor just as they slid from the shelves.

Even across the distance which then separated me from this article of furniture—twelve feet, I should say—I could see that the top was coated with dust, save for two spots where the rich red lustre of the polished mahogany shone conspicuously: one about five inches in diameter and forming a perfect octagon, the other much smaller, and ragged in outline.

FIGHT AGAINST THE WHITE PLAGUE

Buy Calendars and Stamps at the Stores and Banks

The pretty calendars and stamps issued by the Peterboro Health Association are now on sale in all the city drug stores, the city banks and also with several merchants. The proceeds from the sale of the above are to be used in the fight against tuberculosis, which our doctors tell us is quite prevalent in our midst. Those who have been ill themselves or have had illness in their homes, no matter of what kind, never turn a deaf ear to the needs of the poor sick, but sometimes the strong and healthy ones do not stop to think of the hopelessness and suffering of those who are poor and have not the means to procure medical attention and advice, and often knock things which well meaning people undertake to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunate ones. Are you going to be a booster or a knocker? If the former, buy some of the stamps and calendars and help on a good cause. Don't knock the Peterboro Health Association. It is but a "child in the cradle." Help to put it on its feet and give it a chance. Give it a smile and a pat in the back even if you can only buy a few stamps. It will all help to fight the good fight against the white scourge.

TWO INDIAN BOYS TRIED CIRCUS LIFE

They're in St. Paul Now, and Both May be Deported to Canada

St. Paul, Minn. Dec. 11—Two sixteen-year-old Cree Indians, Earl Daniels and Julian Wood, held for the present in the Ramsey County jail, have become objects of international negotiations between Canada and the United States.

They are finding out how much more difficult it is to get home to the Cree Indian reservation, in Saskatchewan than they did to leave last summer to join a travelling circus touring the Canadian Provinces and the Western States.

The boys arrived here, without money, in a box car. Bruce Walker commissioner of immigration at Winnipeg advised the local officials to take the matter of deportation up directly with officials at Ottawa. The immigration bureau at Washington has been appealed to and orders are expected authorizing the deportation of the boys.

CHRISTMAS APPEAL FOR The Hospital for Sick Children

Dear Mr. Editor,—

Thanks for your kindness in allowing me the privilege of appealing at this Christmas time on behalf of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

I make this direct appeal to the people of Ontario, for the fathers and mothers of Ontario, outside the City of Toronto, have precisely the same claim for their sick children as regards the privileges of the Hospital, as parents who reside in this city.

In brief the sick children from any place in Ontario whose parents cannot afford to pay, is, on certificate from a municipal officer of any city, town, village or township, treated free.

This is a privilege not granted by any Hospital in the Dominion, or on this Continent.

Let me, in a few words, state that in the last 20 years, since 1891, there have been 4,731 patients from 450 places outside of this city treated free, as the parents were unable to pay for treatment. Last year 384 patients from 234 places outside Toronto were so treated.

The Hospital is not a city but a Provincial institution. The Corporation of Toronto grants $18,000, not only for city children, but towards the maintenance of every patient in the Hospital, and the citizens of Toronto donate an average of $10,000 to the maintenance fund of the Hospital.

It would take more space than you can spare to tell of the good work done for the sick and deformed children of this Province.

Why, in the Orthopedic department in 20 years, nearly 700 children, boys and girls, have been treated for club feet, and about 600 were corrected. Two-thirds of these came from places outside of Toronto, from parents who could not afford to pay.

Surely we have a fair claim for help from the people of this Province.

Every day is Christmas to the child whose little life is saved, or whose crippled limb is straightened with the might of money—your money—and the mercy of the Hospital.

Will you, the reader of this letter, think of what your dollar will do? It helps to restore health and strength, and gives sound limbs and straight feet to crippled boys and girls.

You give wealth to the Hospital, and the Hospital gives health to the children.

Yes, your money can put golden hinges on the door of the Hospital's mercy.

Will you, kind reader, help us and send a spare dollar to Douglas Davidson, the secretary-treasurer of the Hospital, or [illegible]

J. ROSS ROBERTSON.
Chairman of the Trustees, Toronto

"OUT, COLLISION MATS!"

A Command In the Navy That Is Quickly Obeyed.

In the accounts of the collision between the gigantic White Star liner Olympic and H.M.S. Hawke, it was set out that as the cruiser came into harbor after the accident, "her collision-mat was in position." The collision-mat is a kind of temporary covering for a gaping hole.

Collisions mostly occur, of course, in foggy weather. It is an eerie sensation to stand on the deck of a cruiser as she feels her way along in a fog.

All round can be heard the clang of bells and bleating of syrens from fog-bound craft—sounds which we in turn answer.

All at once the mist swirls away, according to its strange habit, and a clear expanse of lead-colored sea is visible on the starboard bow. The glimpse is only momentary, but it serves to show the outline of a great battleship bearing down upon us.

Instantly, on board us all is orderly confusion. The bugle sounds "Collision Quarters." Every man knows what to do, and how to do it; it has been done as a drill so many times.

The commander, armed with a megaphone, issues sharp orders in rapid succession—orders that are executed at the double.

Then various petty-officers step up to the commander in turn, and report: "Lower deck cleared, sir!" (which means that every officer and man not on duty in the engine room department is at his station on the upper deck); "A and B doors closed, sir!" which means that all the water-tight doors being fast shut, the ship is now divided up in a number of air and water tight compartments).

All this has taken, perhaps, some three minutes to carry out.

Meantime, our engines have been reversed, and so, we hope, have those of the approaching battleship. Suddenly she looms up out of the fog, right upon us, and, more quickly than it can be written, her bow is rending its way through the plating of our starboard side.

If her look-out had not seen us, and if her engines had not been reversed, she would have cut her way right through us. As it is, the ships hang together for a tense moment and then, under the influence of their reversed engines, gradually draw apart.

There is a rush to examine our damage, which is patent enough. A large hole reveals itself just abaft our starboard hawse-hole, through which the green water is pouring into us in a broad, gleaming stream. "Out collision mat!" comes the order—an order that every one of us clearly understands.

The collison mat itself is an enormous square contrivance, in appearance something between a gargantuan gymnasium mat and a huge ship's fender.

On each of its four sides two stout ropes are fitted. Two of them are passed under the ship's bottom—a feat requiring some considerable skill—and brought up on the other side, and, by manoeuvring with the four pairs, the mat is hauled into position over the gaping rent in our side; the rush of water itself forces it into the hole, and so the leak is stopped.

The pumps are then got going, and the flooded compartment is rapidly emptied.—London Answers.

Wear the Kilt!

There is a very kindly wave of patriotism in Scotland this year, engendered by the Scottish Historical Exhibition in Glasgow. Glorious facts of the olden time have been recalled, friendly sentiments have passed between rival clans and families, new interest has been taken in the ancient language, and now we are face to face with a national movement for the more general wearing of the kilt!

Major Gunn, of the Cameron Highlanders, presided over a meeting held at Inverness for the purpose of forming a society to encourage the wearing of the Highland garb. With quiet humor he explained that they did not wish to have a law passed for the compulsory wearing of the kilt, but he pointed out the picturesqueness, hygiene and economy of such attire. Another speaker, a Macaskill, attested to the economy. He had worn his present kilt for twenty years! An Inverness town councillor, who followed, said the Highland dress should be the official garb for the Highland capital. Eventually, the society was formally instituted, but its plan of campaign has not yet been made public.

A Remarkable Shot.

The other night the participants in, and the spectators of, a game in a Glasgow saloon were astounded at a shot whose termination is probably unique. Two billiard tables are placed somewhat closely together in a section of the room. One of the players at the first table was standing between the two, resting on his cue and facing his own table. A player at the second table made a vigorous screw stroke. The two white balls "knocked," leaped off the table, and dropped one in each of the pockets of a golfing jacket worn by the player between the tables!

Familiar Quotation Wrong.

One of the most familiar "quotations" from the Bible which are not to be found there upon research is "the lion lying down with the lamb." The spirit of the reference is correct enough, but turn up to the passage in Isaiah and you will find; "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together. The popular mind has condensed the zoological miscellany, and to the incorrect version alliteration has no doubt contributed.—London Chronicle.

An Automatic Bartender.

Two young Grimsby inventors have patented an ingenious contrivance for use in hotels, which, it is claimed, will do away with bartenders. The machine, which is dial-faced, has a list of refreshments printed round it, and, it is explained, all the thirsty individual needs to do is to move a pointer to the required beverage, press a button, and the drink is electrically transmitted to the serving counter.

THE GOOD OLD SUN

W. LYMAN HUME, Esq., M.D., says:

I took my last policy in the "Sun Life" five years ago. You may think how agreeably surprised I was to receive your letter of the 28th ult., informing me that my share of the profits earned by my Policy during the last five years amounted to $205.80 IN CASH; or if I preferred they would give me $46.65 a year for for the next five years, to be used as an annual reduction of my yearly premium; or better still they would increase my policy by $311.00, making it worth $5,311 instead of $5,000, upon which I would continue to pay the old premium. This is the option I have chosen.

Suppose that instead of insuring I had placed the amount of my premium $277.75, in the Bank each year, and had allowed the interest to be compounded for five years at three per cent., the interest allowed by all safe, conservative Banks. What would be the results? To-day I should receive $130.11 as the accumulated interest from the Bank, instead of $205.80 from the "Sun Life," a difference of $75.70; but in addition to this the Company has carried the risk on my life for $5,000, which they might have been called at any time to pay.

This is in marked contrast with the so-called Fraternal Societies. I have a policy of $1,000 in one of the best of them; I was notified the other day that my policy would be reduced one-half, or my premium doubled. The "Sun" increases my policy, or reduces my premium; the Fraternal Society reduces my policy or increases my premium; it should not be a difficult matter to choose which is the better system of the two.

The "Good Old Sun," may it never set except to rise again with increased effulgence!

RESULT OF THE HYDRANT TEST

Fast Time Made by Firemen at Annual Inspection

The Canadian Underwriters' Association's inspector Mr. Norman R. Wilson, C.E., arrived in the city yesterday morning, and sent in a fire alarm from Box 23, at Hunter and George streets. The bell rang at 10.13 3-4 o'clock, the hook and ladder truck and the hose waggon arriving at 10 15 3-4. The men were obliged to lay one line of hose 250 feet in length and ready for water, which was accomplished in 30 seconds.

The pressure of the hydrant was then taken, the gauge showing 80 lbs. to the inch.

The inspector then ordered 10 lines of hose, each 300 feet in length, to be coupled to the different hydrants, the lines reaching from Hunter street to the Public Library. The following table will give the pressures at Hunter street hydrant as the lines were turned on two at a time. The engineer at the water works having now raised the pressure to 90 pounds—2 lines, 88 pounds; 4 lines, 76 pounds; 6 lines, 68 pounds; 8 lines 63 pounds; 10 lines, 60 pounds.

During the afternoon the inspector accompanied by the Chief, examined the fire hydrants throughout the city.

The steam fire engine received its test this morning at the fire station.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF THE WAR CRY

A copy of the Christmas number of the War Cry, has been received at the office. The front cover shows Young Canada enjoying a sleigh ride while on the back is seen a lumber Jack reading a Christmas letter from home, the mental picture appearing before him as he reads the missive being in evidence in the upper portion of the design.

The number contains thirty one pages of matter, relative to the grand work of the Salvation Army, and these include pictures of the "First Christmas" officers of the Army, including General Booth, Commissioner and Mrs. Rees. The price is 10cts per copy.

Nixon's logging camp at Beeton has been burned. The loss is a very heavy one, entirely unprotected by insurance.

NEW OFFICERS FOR W.F.M.S.A. OF ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

Mrs. Kerr Was Elected President—Secretary's Report on the Year's Work.

The members of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society Auxiliary, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon reports being presented and officers elected. The officers are as follows—

Hon. Pres.—Mrs. Fowler.
President—Mrs. Kerr.
1st Vice Pres.—Mrs. Rollins.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Elliott.
3rd. Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Pakenham.
4th Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Godfrey.
Treasurer—Mrs. Atkinson.
Secretary—Mrs. Sills.
Assist. Sec.—Mrs. Girard.
Pianist—Miss Lundy.
Convenor of Clothing Com.—Mrs. Spry.

Executive Committee—Mrs. Laing, convenor; Mrs. Brightman, Mrs. Chisholm and Mrs. Harper Stevens.

The secretary's address read by Mrs. Lees, was—

AVERAGE ATTENDANCE 27

In presenting the 22nd annual report, we are grateful to our heavenly Father for His guidance and blessing throughout the year.

Meetings have been held regularly on the third Tuesday of every month except August, with an average attendance of 27.

The January meeting, as usual was especially devoted to prayer, following as closely, as possible, the program outlined in the tidings. This year we took up the study of Western Women in Eastern Lands, two ladies having charge of the meeting each month. In connection with the study, much more benefit would be derived if more members would secure copies of the text-book and keep in touch with the subject for each month.

At our Easter meeting, held in April, Mrs. Rollins gave an interesting and helpful talk on "Missionary Spirit." At our June meeting, very full reports were given of the Presbyterial meeting held at Cobourg, by the delegates, Mrs. Rollins and Mrs. Harper.

THANKOFFERING, $60

Our thankoffering meeting was held in October. The attendance was not as large as we had hoped for, owing to the inclemency of the weather. Mrs. Fee addressed the meeting, giving a minute description of the evangelistic and educational work in China. Her address was listened to with marked attention. The offering was $60.

A bale of clothing, valued at $22 61 boots $2 00, was sent to the west.

The Missionary Tidings has been placed in 117 homes, we would urge every woman of the church to become a subscriber to the Tidings, as it costs only 15 cents a year, and is filled with the latest missionary news, and is a great stimulus to the work of the society.

LOSS OF MEMBERS

It is with regret that we record the removal by death, since the last annual meeting, of two of our members, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Davidson, both of whom took a deep interest in the work of the society.

In reviewing the year's work, we find much to be thankful for, but there is a note of regret that calls for consideration. The growth in our membership is almost at a standstill and many of the women of the congregation have no yet identified themselves with this work.

May we realize our responsibilities and faithfully meet the obligations we have assumed, always keeping in mind God's great promises concerning prayer and enter another year with fresh zeal and renewed courage, in this great work of winning the world for Christ.

E. LEES,
Secretary.

Peterborough, Dec 14, 1911.

The other report presented was that of the Mission Circle.

STORES AND APARTMENTS AT OLD AMERICAN HOTEL

The premises on the north side of Hunter street, known as the old American hotel, are to be remodeled, the arrangement to be for two stores and living apartments overhead.

Mr John Young, the present owner of the property, has arranged for the plans and specifications which are being prepared by Mr. Sam Belcher to be out in a few days so that tenders for the plumbing and carpenter work can be received.

When the contracts are made the work will be proceeded with as rapidly as possible. A change such as will be made, will add greatly to the appearance of this section of the street.

HEALTH ASS'N. AND ITS OBJECTS

Why the Association is Worthy of Co-operation

To provide medical attendance, comforts and necessaries for the sick.

To disseminate information relative to household and public sanitation for the preservation of health.

To employ a district nurse. The services of a nurse will cost about $1,200 per annum. Will you help by paying an annual membership of one dollar, or a life membership fee of one hundred dollars?

The above are among other reasons why the Peterborough Health Association has been incorporated. If you do not feel disposed at present to pay an annual membership fee, there is yet another way of helping along its good intentions. The little Christmas stamps and pretty calendars, issued on behalf of this local organization to help care for needy patients, serves a very practical purpose in securing funds for the association. But the educational value of circulating these stamps among citizens is not to be overlooked. For this reason it is urged that a one cent stamp be placed on every letter and package that is mailed between now and the New Year.

With the stamps only costing one cent each the door is open to every one to have some part in the fight against consumption. Every buyer of a Christmas stamp or calendar will be lending a helping hand in the campaign in our city. The stamps and calendars are on sale in the city drug stores, the city banks and with several merchants.

AT THE NORMAL

The lecture on "The Music of Literature," at the Normal school, last evening by Miss Warnock (Katherine Hale) was, as expected a rich literary treat and the audience of students, and citizens, thoroughly enjoyed the evening's program.

To-day the students were dismissed for the Christmas holidays, the reopening date being Wednesday, January 3rd.

JOHN O'KEEFE HANDS OUT $50 HE GAVE BLACKLISTER LIQUOR

Police Found the Wet Goods With the Accused—Magistrate Suggests Flogging

A fine of $50 which is the maximum was imposed upon a young fellow named William O'Keefe, at police court to-day, who was found guilty of buying three bottles of beer for a blacklister last night.

"You ought to be flogged," was His Worship's comment, for trying to destroy another man, who may be weaker than you are."

LOOK OUT FOR MORE

It is the intention of the Magistrate and the Chief of Police to put a check if possible, on the abominable practice of liquor being given to blacklisters. The frequency of such offences has become so alarming that stiff penalties will invariably be meted out to all offenders, who, in future are apprehended and found guilty.

$1 PER DAY

The blacklister for whom the three bottles of Pilsener, was purchased, is a man named Michael Fallon. He was given a $20 fine, but being unable to come forward with the amount the next twenty days of his career will be spent on the hill. Such is the fate of all offenders of the liquor license act.

As is usual, Fallon went into the box with the worn-out story of meeting a man, on the way to the G.T.R. station, who gave him a drink out of a flask.

"Give us something fresh," interrupted Magistrate Dumble, "that is the same story we hear from every man in your position.

Fallon persisted in his yarn however and on being examined closely by Chief Thompson failed to make his story run smoothly in some very important points.

"If you are going to lie, you must lie consistently," admonished the Magistrate.

Detective Newhall and P.C. Kidd told of following the two men, and of over-hearing their conversation in a local hotel, and of discovering the liquor on the person of O'Keefe. His Worship had no difficulty in bringing a conviction.

WEDDING BELLS

HIPPERSON—GUMPRICHT

A charming wedding was solemnized at two o'clock this afternoon, in George street Methodist church, when Miss Wilhelmina Gumpricht, daughter of Mrs Jessie Gumpricht, 535 Aylmer street was joined in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. William S. Hipperson, of this city, by the Rev. Isaac Couch.

Promptly at the time appointed, the bride, beautifully and attractively gowned in white satin, with pearl trimmings and wearing the customary bridal veil, was led to the altar, gracefully, leaning on the arm of her her grandfather, Mr. E. Mundy, of the "Reformer" office, Oshawa.

Attending her in the capacity of bridesmaid was the bride's youngest sister, Miss Grace Gumpricht, who was also handsomely attired in pale blue, wearing a white veil and carrying pink roses. The bride carried a beautiful shower bouquet of cream roses and lilies-of-the-valley, and wore a necklace of costly pearls with cross.

The groomsman was Mr. Charles Mundy of Oshawa.

As the bride entered the beautiful and appropriate strains of Lohengrin were played by Miss May Dillon of Oshawa, followed by Mendelsohn's wedding march. Mrs. Charles Mundy of Oshawa, contributed in a most harmonious manner, the solo "Because God made thee Mine."

At the conclusion of the nuptial ceremony, the wedding party, adjourned to the residence of the bride's mother, where a delightful reception was tendered to the guests and friends, after which the bride and groom left on the 4.28 C.P.R. on a wedding tour. Mr. and Mrs. Hipperson will return to Peterboro for a couple of months, before leaving for Regina, their future abode.

The groom's gift to the groomsman was a pretty pearl stick pin, and to the bridesmaid, the soloist and organist, dainty lace pearl stick pins.

LIQUOR TAKEN AT LAKEFIELD

Lakefield News:—Constable Webster seized a quantity of liquor on Wednesday evening. The liquor had been purchased in Peterborough, and was being taken to the village in a buggy, and when the rig was opposite the town hall the constable stopped it and took the liquor out. Further developments will likely result.

THEATRICAL

"DEAR OLD BILLY"

The sympathy of the large audience at the Grand Opera last night went out to "Dear Old Billy" for as a victim of circumstances in which would be married ones played a painful part, was such as Billy was concerned, he deserved it. Dear Old Billy's marital matrimonial contract was a failure and the reason, the audience found, to be perfectly clear, when Mrs. Wm. Smith appeared, fresh from the divorce court and according to her own oration to hound her unfortunate, but legally separated hubby, where'er he might roam She did,

Billy quickly makes new and fast friends as he attempts to secure a little rest and repose at the sea shore hotel, in fact, them come too fast. He becomes a target for the proprietess, the maid, his ward, and last, but not least, another man's wife, and complications come from all angles. Everything however, is untangled and Billy at last finds his repose in the arms of the relenting Mrs. Smith.

Mr Wm Hawtrey as Dear Old Billy, scored heavily. He was seen at a disadvantage on account of a severe cold, but he is assured of a hearty welcome back to the Grand at any future date. His supporting company was strong.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE JAS. WOOD

His Sudden Passing Occasioned Genuine and Widespread Regret

With sincere evidences of the respect befitting a man who had passed from this earth after a useful life, and one which had borne much fruitfulness, the funeral of the late James Wood, whose sudden death, cast a gloom over the whole community of Bailieboro, was held yesterday afternoon at one o'clock, from his late residence to the cemetery at St. Paul's church, near Millbrook. The attendance of friends and acquaintances was exceptionally large and from everyone passed expressions of regret at the termination of so highly respected a person as the late James Wood.

The funeral was held under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters the deceased being a valued member of the Bailieboro Court. The service at the house was taken by Rural Dean Allen, of Millbrook, assisted by Rev. James Fennell, of Toronto, a cousin of the deceased. Service was also held at the house and grave by the Foresters.

As the cortege passed Bailieboro, the bell of the church tolled out its sad message. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Robert Fair, James McCamus, Wilfred Brown, cousins of the deceased and James Greer, George Fair and John Greer.

INDIAN LACROSSE PLAYER MARRIED

Played for Port Hope Against Peterboro Some Years Ago

The marriage of John White, the Indian lacrosse player, to a Mrs. Benedict, at Cornwall, is announced. The groom is a well known exponent of the gutted stick and has played with almost every team of note in Canada. About twelve years ago when lacrosse was booming in this locality Big John played with Port Hope and the old sporting fraternity will remember him for his appearances in Peterborough, as he played with Port Hope against the local team. He was one of the cleanest of players and hard to check, but he has a check that will hold him now.

WAS INJURED IN LUMBER CAMP

Harold Walsh Suffers From Wound Inflicted by Axe

The condition of Harold Walsh, of 19 Conger street, shows little if any, improvement. The young man was brought to his home last week from Rocksroft, where he was engaged at work in the woods. While chopping on Thursday with a companion the axe of the latter struck Walsh on the left leg just below the knee, inflicting a terrible gash.

He had to be taken by horseback a distance of two miles to the camp, and on the following Friday morning he was placed in a waggon and brought the entire distance from the camp to his home here, in that manner. He is delirious at times and the doctors fear the bone is injured. The wound is badly swollen, and it will be a long time before the patient is able to be up and around again.

YANKEES HAVE BANDIT FIGHT

Carrying Out Law in Philippine Islands No Light Job

Lanao, Mindanao, Philippine Islands, Dec. 15.—Forty-two more outlaws were killed here to-day in an engagement with a detachment of United States scouts.

There were no fatalities on the American side. The battle occurred in connection with the campaign for suppressing organized brigandage among the Moros. The disarmament of the entire Moro population of Mindanao and Jolo was ordered by the military authorities three months ago, following a number of murderous attacks on Americans.

Since that time troops have been actively engaged in carrying out the orders. Most of the chiefs gave up their weapons peaceably, but there has been a series of sharp engagements with bandits.

COUNTY COURT

The trial of the young man named Tighe, accused of seduction, will take place on Wednesday afternoon at the County Court before County Magistrate Edmison.

The girl in the case is young enough to come within the power of the Children's Aid Society, and as Mr. Goodwill is ill, the trial was postponed yesterday.

Archduke Disciplined.

Vienna, Dec. 15.—Another romance connected with the imperial house of Hapsburg is contained in the announcement that the Emperor Francis Joseph has placed the Archduke Henry Ferdinand, brother of the Princess Louise of Saxony and of Archduke Leopold Salvatore, "on leave with the stoppage of all emoluments."

Archduke Henry Ferdinand, who is a painter with great distaste for court life and military duties, has been living some some time in Munich. He has desired for a long period to abandon his rank and title in the same way as Archduke John Orth, Archduke Salvatore, and more recently Archduke Ferdinand Charles, in order, as is reported, to marry a Munich girl belonging to a family not of noble rank. Finding this to be most difficult, the archduke has taken the easier course of throwing up his military career.

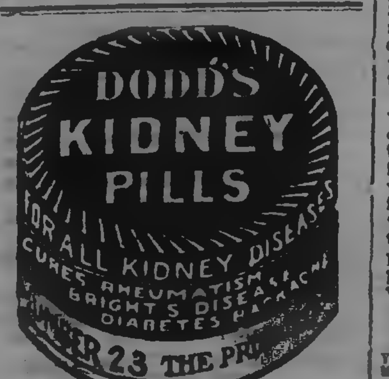
The family of the Hapsburgs has experienced a series of romances. The first among the more recent was that of the Archduke John Salvatore, known as John Orth, who completely disappeared after giving up his rank and title and marrying an actress named Milly Stiebel. He was said to have sailed for Chile on board the Santa Margaretha in July, 1890, and no trace of him has since been found.

Check on Drugs.

The Hague, Dec. 15.—(Can. Press.)—The International Opium Conference yesterday, adopted two resolutions presented by the British delegates. The first declares that it is desirable that the Governments decide whether it is possible to punish those having morphine illegally in their possession. The second resolution urges the Governments to restrict the traffic and use of such substances to medical and other legitimate purposes.

The Dutch delegates referred to a future conference a proposal that the Governments interested in the production and consumption of raw opium should arrive at an agreement to limit the trade therein, in view of international measures already taken.

The cordwood prices in Winnipeg—Poplar, $6.50; spruce and pine, $7.50, and tamarac, $8.50—will probably be reduced $1 per cord by reason of the exceptionally good season for hauling.



A TEST FOR LIBEL.

Names of Well-Known Writers to Figure in a Story.

A novel in which the names of well-known writers are bestowed upon its characters as a protest against the present law of libel is about to be published by Mr. Stephen Swift.

The story, "Motley and Tinsel" by John K. Prothero, appeared some months ago as a serial in Lloyds' Weekly News. To be strictly accurate, only the opening chapters were published, for the commencement of action by an actor whose name was similar to that of one of the original characters brought it to an abrupt close.

At the trial of the action the author, a lady, went into the box and declared that the character complained of was a purely fictitious one and was not intended in any way to represent the plaintiff. Nevertheless, the jury considered that the plaintiff was entitled to $1,000 damages.

In publishing the novel in book form, the author has given her own name — Prothero — to the character which was the subject of the libel action. "Extraordinary as the law of libel appears to be," she says, "I have not yet learned that one can libel oneself."

Her appeal to other authors to give their consent for the use of their names has been strikingly successful. Some of the characters, indeed, now bear very interesting names. George Bernard Shaw represents a stage-door keeper. George R. Sims is a cabdriver, Robert Barr is a stage manager, with Pett Ridge as call boy, and Cecil Chesterton a fiery-tempered lover. Barry Pain divides his name between an aged man of weak intellect and his dead son.

In giving permission for the use of his name Mr. Geo. R. Sims wrote this amusing letter to the author:

By all means use my name in the way you suggest, but be careful about the cabman. I have not the slightest doubt that there are several of them who bear the aristocratic name of Sims. I know that a Sims was very nearly hanged a few years ago, and one was a famous thief. But if a cabman named Sims brings an action against you, you can call me as a witness to prove that the name has long been associated with crime and other amusements of the period.

Mr. Cecil Chesterton wrote: "You can rely on me to bring no libel actions. You may depict me as a burglar, or a blackmailer, or a man who steals pennies from blind beggars, or even as a politician."

Bright Detectives.

An ingenious Brentford (Eng.) detective has been filling the role of a barber whilst in the execution of his duty. In a betting case at Brentford the officer told a greatly-amused court that he went to the shop of one of the prisoners, a hair-dresser, took off his coat, pulled up his sleeves, put on a white apron, and began work as a barber. He received several betting-slips and various sums of money, and thus obtained the evidence he required.

A police sergeant at Dulwich lately, in order to keep observation on a house, masqueraded as a chair-mender, and on another occasion he donned a grey beard and pretended to be an aged man. He obliged counsel for the defence, after some natural hesitation, by giving to the court a very successful imitation of an old man's cracked and piping voice. He was very evidently a master of "make-up," and ought to have been on the stage rather than on the beat.

Another police sergeant in Walworth figured as a costermonger, with donkey and barrow complete. It was related in court how his raucous voice roused the neighborhood, and how he seemed to copy the characteristic twists and turns of the voice peculiar to the coster to perfection. He certainly "took in" the man he wished to observe, for he was able to drive his donkey close up to him, observe his conduct, and later to arrest him.

A Volunteer "Cop."

Members of the Liverpool Police Force attached to the Brock Road district have the assistance of a volunteer police dog, which belongs to a local publican. Regularly every night the dog, a large retriever, walks into the police station, just as the night men are going on duty, and takes up the patrol with one of the uniformed constables. It will have nothing to do with an officer in plain clothes. On several occasions the dog has proved exceedingly tactful and useful. When the officers come off duty in the morning the dog runs away home, but when the hour for resuming in the evening arrives he is at the police station to the minute to go upon his beat.

Catch of 10,000 Fish.

The Marquis of Bute, finding that his attempts to stock Loch Fad, in the island of Bute, with trout were impracticable owing to the great number of pike in the waters, arranged that the loch, which is more than two miles long, should be blasted with gelignite from end to end, 300 mines being required. The work has been carried out, and nearly 10,000 stunned fish were brought to the surface and netted, and many more were killed outright and sank to the bottom. Further blasting will take place soon.

Control of Shoe Machinery.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—The local sessions of the United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada investigation ended yesterday afternoon, when the testimony of F. W. Knowlton, general manager of the company was concluded, and next Tuesday the investigation will reopen in Quebec to take the testimony of plaintiffs.

The chief point of interest yesterday was evidence relating to the control of shoe machinery in Canada previous to 1899, when the United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada was formed. It was shown that while a few companies had supplied machinery before that date, the machines made by them had either become obsolete or passed under the control of the company whose affairs are now being investigated.

BECOMING A PRINCE.

Slick Swindlers and Their Methods of Bleeding Newriches.

The bogus advertiser—the man who fleeces the public by specious advertisements, offering hundreds a year for little work and no qualifications—has long been with us. Periodically his tricks are exposed in the Law Courts, but he usually reappears in some new guise and with a more ingenious scheme for gulling the public and emptying their pockets. One of his latest dodges is to advertise in Continental papers offering a princely title—of course, to a man of means. The following advertisement, for instance, has appeared at intervals in German papers for the last two or three years:

"Princely family is desirous of adopting a young man, not more than thirty-eight years of age, on whom the title of Prince will thus be conferred. Replies to be addressed, but only by very wealthy applicants, personally to the office of this paper."

Evidently the game of catching the wealthy parvenu with this bait is a very profitable business, judging by the fact that the advertisement frequently appears in the journals. Sometimes there is a variation, and the advertisement runs as follows:

"Princess, young, beautiful, fond of gay life, is driven to look for a husband by this means owing to the solitude of her life in the country. Only very rich candidates need apply."

The average man, of course, merely smiles at such an advertisement; but those who understand the eagerness with which a certain class of wealthy people avail themselves of every opportunity of securing a title know that such advertisements never fail to bring in replies.

Frequently one sees offers made by ladies and gentlemen of position to introduce young men and women into the best society. The majority of these offers are doubtless quite genuine, but a case came to light about six months ago which shows the danger of such lures.

In a certain paper an advertisement appeared offering to take in, as paying guest at a nice country house, a young man of means who wished to get into good society. A young Frenchman replied to the advertisement, and although the terms seemed exorbitant he willingly paid them, as the advertiser seemed in such a good social position. After a while, however, the latter began to borrow money and win large sums from his protege at cards, and at the end of six months decamped, having fleeced the young fellow of between four and five thousand pounds.

"Tay Pay" a Busy Man.

Rev. Dr. W. T. Allison, professor of English and History in Wesley College, Manitoba, who was in England this summer, writes thus about T. P. O'Connor:

One of the busiest men in England is T. P. O'Connor, M.P. I saw him lately at a press banquet, sitting next to Lord Northcliffe. The evening was warm and he wore an expansive handkerchief to protect his chin from a stately collar. During the speech-making he tried to look pleasant, but it was evident that he was bored. No doubt he was begrudging those hours which he could ill spare from his various toils.

For consider the extent of Tay Pay's activity. When the House of Commons is in session he has to be in his place as the representative of a teeming district in Liverpool. He is not only an individual member of the House, but one of the leading spirits of the Irish party, Redmond's right-hand man. He is obliged, therefore, to lie awake at nights planning the campaign for Home Rule, and when the funds in the party's war chest run low he is usually packed off to America on a lecture tour in order to raise more money to enable the Irish to keep on fighting.

Remembered His Art.

When, owing to ill-health, Rev. Thomas Spurgeon was obliged to give up his ministerial work at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, he found time hang somewhat heavily. Suddenly he remembered his old allegiance to art, for in his youth he studied painting at South Kensington. "Bring me a box of colors," he said one day to his wife. Mrs. Spurgeon brought the colors, and the ex-pastor, at the age of fifty-one, began to copy a Landseer hanging on the wall of his room. From that moment painting became a joy to him, and ever since his box of colors and sketching block have been his inseparable companions. Two years ago he gave his first show of pictures, and sold them all, and at the present time is exhibiting a hundred more pictures in New Bond street, London.

A Veteran Cricketer.

The man who bowled the first ball for England against an Australian team—William Caffyn — still lives at Reigate, Surrey. He went out with the first team in 1861, and he remembers seeing Lilywhite, the famous bowler, playing in flannels and a tall hat. And he also remembers when players wore pads on their elbows to protect them from the effects of swift bowling on bumpy grounds, "for," he says, "pitches were then not what they are now."

Record For Speeches.

As an illustration of the arduousness of the duties of the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Vezey Strong confessed the other day that during his recent visit to Austria he delivered something like one hundred speeches in twelve days in all kinds of places.

A Simple Twist of the Wrist.

"You know Jones, who was reputed so rich? Well, he died the other day, and the only thing he left was an old Dutch clock."

"Well, there's one good thing about it—it won't be much trouble to wind up his estate."

Its Kind.

"A shoemaker has a looking glass sort of life, hasn't he?"

"How so?"

"Doesn't he reverse all usual rules by starting with his 'last' work first?"

Rev. J. Hood has been formally inducted as the new Presbyterian minister at Cumberland.

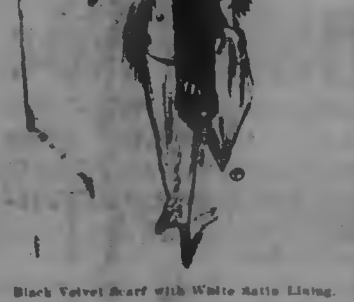
FASHIONS in materials and trimmings change every season and just as much attention has to be paid to fabrics, colors, embroideries and trimmings of all kinds as to the models designed in gowns, wraps and hats. This winter there are many new colors and many more new trimmings, for, alas! the day of the perfectly plain gown is apparently drawing to a close, in spite of the strenuous efforts made to keep [illegible] fashion. Although a gown may start by having a simple effect and long unbroken lines before the original model has been copied half a dozen times simplicity and unbroken lines will have been entirely lost sight of, under the superb trimmings with which the gown is loaded down. This is a season of striking effects of colors and fabrics that challenge and compel attention, if not admiration, and a gown that has not some detail about it sufficiently striking to make it individual passes unnoticed, no matter how costly.

The few so-called simple models of the draped order are only simple in so far as the material is untrimmed, but the material itself is so superb, of such vivid color and design that any idea of simplicity is wanted. The slashed skirt invariably displays an underskirt or inside flounce of velvet, satin, brocade or embroidered tulle—this with an inner plaiting of chiffon—and almost invariably there is fringe on either underskirt or overskirt. Fringe is the craze of the moment and trims day and evening gowns, while the different kinds are endless in number. There are wool fringes, just a little reminiscent of the old time stuffed furniture with the worsted fringe; there are silk and wool fringes and there are gold, silver, crystal, jet, pearl and all colored bead fringes. Not to be forgotten are the silk and satin tassel fringes, extremely effective and used on all materials.



Black Velvet Scarf with White Satin Lining.

Fringe Bordered Street Skirts.

Last winter there were several smart street costumes seen late in the season that were most effective and that were trimmed with two inch worsted fringe, the material of the costume being the ratine now so fashionable. These models, with a few slight modifications, are again to be noticed, and one odd detail is especially striking, the narrow fringe around the hem of the skirt. As a dust collector this is without a rival; at the same time it is a smart and novel finish to the skirt. One of the smartest models of the winter shows the new rendering of the style. It is a velvet or velveteen street gown, with double skirt, and both skirts are finished with fringe. The jacket, with belt and skirt, is also finished with the fringe, while fringe also trims the bead collar and cuffs. In the description this might seem too heavy and clumsy. The gown is, however, smart and attractive. There is an exception to be made—it is not a suitable model for a short woman, and requires to be worn by a slender figure. For fringe the color of the costume or black is the rule, and the same color as the material is the smarter. Care must be taken in selecting, for some fringes look better with woollen material, while others go best on silk or velvet. The fashion is rather an extravagant one, for the cheaper grade does not always wear well. Again, it must be repeated that it is best to use less of any trimming and have it satisfactory rather than to use recklessly a poorer quality.

Fringe on evening gowns is certainly delightfully effective, and while it seems especially designed for the thin, transparent fabrics it also shows to great advantage on silks, velvets, brocade and satins. Gold, silver or bead fringe of any kind is effective under artificial light—in fact, is more brilliant—so that for evening gowns it is in great demand. A new style, comparatively speaking, is the use of it in scallops, the two or three inch width with a narrow heading of the same beads. The pale color mousseline de soie gowns trimmed with pearl or crystal bead fringe put on in this style are charmingly dainty in effect, while the fringe around the soft folds of a fichu lend a finish that is both becoming and effective. It is extremely fashionable to trim the vivid transparent colors like green and red with gold fringe, and evening gowns so trimmed stand out from all others, even those of far richer material.

There are dainty fringes of pearl and crystal beads combined that trim charmingly the debutante dancing frocks of tulle and net, while the more elaborate gowns of pearl and crystal embroidered net are given an even more elaborate and effective finish with the exquisite fringes to correspond. The present fashion of a touch of color with white is also improved by fringe, as can be noticed in a white silk voile evening gown trimmed with bands of cerise, the bands finished with a narrow crystal fringe. The idea is so novel and original and so up to date that it has met with well deserved admiration. Velvet gowns with fringe are also fashionable, and there are one or two model gowns of satin and velvet with jet fringe. This last requires most careful treatment, for if an all black gown is made too heavy in appearance it at once lacks the air and smart effect that make it attractive. Jet fringe on net or transparent material is always smart, and the different varieties of jet fringe are amazing, but black silk or wool fringe is a different proposition and one that requires more careful consideration.

Apparently Dame Fashion has inaugurated a new style of walking, for all the smartest evening gowns are so designed that women cannot take long steps, this not from the too scant skirt, but from the weight of the skirt and the way in which it is hung in front, and also its length in front, which, even with the slashing at the side or in front, always impedes locomotion. And yet there is something attractive about it—so distinctly feminine—and a graceful woman can be as graceful in her apparent effort to walk while hindered by the weight of the costly material of which the gown is composed, and then the fringe again adds to the effect, for it falls over the feet where the two sides are crossed or draped to show the underskirt.

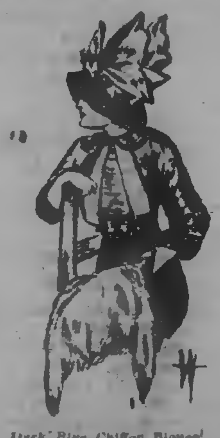
Although the richest of brocades and velvets are extremely fashionable this season, the combining of the thinnest of voile de soie or mousseline de soie with liberty



Dark Blue Chiffon Blouse.

satin is as smart as ever, and not only are the materials combined, but colors as well, and most charming results are obtained. Blue—and such exquisite shades of blue!—with black is extremely fashionable, and reception and theatre gowns of this combination of colors and materials are in great demand. A most attractive model that has received well deserved applause is of the vivid blue liberty satin covered with black mousseline de soie of finest texture. This really is a simple model so far as the general style and drapery go, but the trimming of gold fringe takes it into the category of elaborate gowns. The same model has been made in different colorings, the taupe and salmon pink with crystal fringe being most effective. The favorite black and white with white satin and the fringe of silver has also been worked out, while a rather striking and yet smart combination of white over black has gained much admiration.

A model that also has proved popular has scarcely any fringe and that only on the waist, a small, round tasselled silk fringe, quite unlike anything that has been used heretofore. The gown is of almond green mousseline de soie and liberty satin. The skirt is quite full and has a wide panel of the satin, finished with a bow at the side. There are doubled flounces that are on the order of ruchings and quite novel in design. The only trimming is a broad lapel or revers of heavy cream lace and the ball fringe already described. The model is unique and attractive, but is not so easy to copy as might be thought at first glance. If there is too much fulness it will be unbecoming, and care should be taken that the fulness be thrown toward the back—not a simple task, either, when so much material has to be dealt with. So, then, these simple gowns made of the less expensive materials are far more difficult to achieve than those of extremely expensive materials of an apparently elaborate design. The more elaborate materials, like brocade, or even plain satin, velvet or crepe de Chine, require as a rule far less trimming, for the design and quality are sufficient. But all the thin, transparent fabrics are equally popular this season and variety is certainly the spice of life in clothes as in everything else.

Attractive Theatre and Opera Bags of Irish Crochet

ONCE one has learned to crochet the little Irish lace roses or other tiny "motifs" the number of charming uses to be made of them is endless, even if one does not care to crochet the picot ground on which to display them. A most fascinating opera glass bag recently seen and admired was evolved from a number of these baby Irish roses and a linen Battenburg braid with an openwork edge. The pattern of the bag, back and front in one, was marked clearly on a sheet of stiff manila paper. Also, as a guide, a line was drawn from the exact middle of one "top" edge down through what would be the bottom when the bag was made up, and up to the middle of the other top edge. This was to guide the basting on of the braid, so that it should not "skew."

The roses used were about the size of a nickel five cent piece, so the braid was tacked to the manila paper in lengths that crossed each other, interlacing basket fashion—or like the woven mats in kindergarten—but far enough apart to leave square spaces between at least three-fourths of an inch across or even a trifle more. The lacy effect is increased if the roses do not quite touch the braid, but are inserted with an openwork stitch, such as lace workers use. In each opening a rose is basted face down, and the intersections of all sorts are securely fastened with stitches of fine linen thread, making one fabric of braid and roses. This is, of course, [illegible] side of the bag. The lengths of braid should go beyond the outline of the bag at least an inch on the sides and tops to allow for making up. When finished the braid is ripped carefully from the paper foundation and the bag is ready to make up. One thing should be observed if the final result is to be workmanlike—the bag must have two linings, one for the lace outside, the other the "real inside" of the bag. Otherwise the cut ends of the braid will work out and look anything but attractive. Arrange the lace on its own lining and stitch up the bag. Then turn it lace side out and make the inner lining to fit. This covers all the raw edges and gives an opportunity for some very charming color contrasts.

❀ Boudoir Jacket of Ribbon and Lace. ❀

A FRILLY little negligee that is extremely useful, as well as pretty to slip on when in one's own room, is composed of ribbon and lace bands, and the fashioning of it may be called fancy work. When completed it has a V neck and ends just above the waist line. Through the bottoms of the elbow sleeves and near the edge of the jacket itself is narrow ribbon run through lace beading and ending in [illegible] bows.

Alternating bands of wash silk ribbon and lace form the body, and they are put together by hand. That they shall be shapely and also prevent drawing, the work is done over thin brown paper that later is easily torn away.

The two fronts and back (the latter in one piece) are cut out, and the first band of lace is basted down the edge which corresponds to the seam. Then a piece of ribbon is laid against the lace to make the join come on the wrong side, and the two are overhanded with 110 cotton, the silk not being cut off until the seam is made. This method prevents the least waste of materials. Next to the ribbon is another band of lace, the preceding band always being basted down on the paper, that the garment when complete shall fit well.

When the back is made the first band should be put in the middle, each side working out from that in order to insure it being alike on both sides.

Fronts and back completed, they remain on the paper while the under arm and shoulder seams are whipped together. Then from the bottom of one edge is begun a band of lace, which goes around to form a finish. All this work is done on the paper.

Next to the lace is a fine lace beading, and then another band of lace completes the outline.

The raw edge of the bottom is rolled and whipped before sewing on it a fulled frill of lace edge not more than two inches deep.

The sleeves are similarly made, two bands of lace, with one of beading intersected, and a frill completing them.

Narrow ribbon is run through the beading, ending in round bows.

At the bottom of the V neck are two rosettes, one on each side, which serve to conceal a lace button and loop which hold the garment together.

If wash ribbon is used the little garment may be laundered. Dresden ribbons, however, are charming, and a jacket made from them will dry cleanse.

Wallachian Stitchery for Fichus.

WITH many persons the coarse, though effective, Wallachian stitch found scant favor. The fact that it was easily and rapidly done, that it covered the ground in less time than almost any other method of embroidery was in the end its undoing, for it was done to death almost before it arrived by workers who wanted quick and showy results. Yet the stitch from which it was an outgrowth, the long and short buttonhole stitch, has so many good points when done in filo or mercerized cottons that those cunning in needlework will never cease adapting it for original embroidery effects.

In brief, it is long and short stitch, worked delicately, with the outer row having the buttonhole finish, which accents the outline in the manner known as Wallachian. For tiny clover leaves or maidenhair fern, worked in pale greens, this stitch far surpasses ordinary satin or long and short stitch in the naturalness of its appearance.

Most exquisite are the fichus de luxe on which this stitch finds place. They are in three pieces, the fitted back part being like that of a large [illegible] or pointed collar cut across along the shoulder seams. Here are gathered on the two front pieces, of which each outer edge is embroidered with tiny roses or apple blossoms, set petal to petal, to match the edge of the collar section. The outer edge of each draped part has a border of soft lace, a narrower edge of which appears in some cases just under the edges of the long and short buttonholed blossoms. The ends are sufficiently long to knot softly on the breast, and a cluster of buds at the point of each "tab" gives the finishing touch.

VERY FEW DAYS LEFT NOW

Christmas approaches very fast, and we have still a long way to go if we reach the goal we have laid out to attain in December, of a $25,000 output for the month. We must do it if it is within the bounds of possibility, even if the prices mean a very great loss to us. For this reason the GREAT RETIRING SALE will be

REFORESTRATION TO BE TAKEN UP BY THE GOVERNMENT

Forestry Branch is Pursuing Policy Which Will Bring Big Results.

The following is a copy of a letter received by J. H. Burnham, M. P., from the Department of Forestry:

Forestry Branch, Ottawa,
December 5, 1911.

Sir,—The Forestry Branch has been gathering information during the past two or three months, concerning the large, rocky, non-agricultural tract of land which lies between Perth and Peterborough, with a view to having an examination made next summer to learn what are the possibilities for the reforestation of this tract with valuable species of trees.

This investigation was prompted by information which has been collected by the Forestry Branch during the past two or three years, showing that the large manufacturing industries of Canada are now chiefly dependent upon the United States for their supply of the higher grades of timber suitable for manufacturing purposes. This tract of which I have spoken, is naturally a hardwood region, capable of producing ,under good management, great quantities of valuable timber. It is expected that a full examination of the tract will be made by employes of the Forestry Branch in a few months which will show that this land is at present producing nothing and supporting a very small population; that it could, under wise management, with a reasonable expenditure of money, be reforested with valuable species of timber, and that if it were reforested it would annually produce large quantities of high grade timber, which would be of great value to the manufacturers of Ontario, and would lead to the building up of the small towns and villages through the region.

The Dominion Government has large interests in this region on account of the expenditure on the Trent Valley Canal, a public work which must be more or less influenced by the deforestation of a portion of its watershed. I have, learned from Dr. Fernow that you are interested in having a forest examination made of this region, and I would be very glad to have an opportunity of talking the question over with you.

Your obedient servant,
R. H. CAMPBELL,
Director.

FESTIVAL OF NATIONS AT THE MARKET HALL

Ladies Aid of St. James Church Are in Charge

Once more the market hall presents a gala appearance, and the Festival of Nations is responsible for the brilliant transformation. The festival is being given b St. James' church Ladies' Aid Society and is of the nature of a bazaar of two days' duration.

A visit to the bazaar will well repay anyone. Along the far side of the room, are arranged striking and gaily adorned booths, representative of seven nations, on each of which the flags of the respective countries predominate.

At each booth various articles are for sale, namely, fancy work, homemade candy, knitted and crochet work, pies, cakes and numerous other toothsomes. Each booth is capably manned managed by two or more members of the Ladies Aid Society.

Dinner and supper were served yesterday and the program will be continued to-day.

Last evening a splendid audience attended the bazaar, in conjunction with which a very high-class program of a patriotic character was rendered.

TO JAIL FOR THREE MONTHS

Albert Crouter Was Sentenced To-day by Judge Huycke

Albert Crouter charged with the theft of $25 was sentenced to the county jail this morning by Judge Huycke, for a term of three months. Fifteen dollars of the amount was recovered by the police.

At the continued hearing of the Crouter case, yesterday afternoon. Wesley Crouter, son of Albert Crouter was placed in the witness stand. He stated that Stewart has slept with him the night of the robbery. He, (witness) awoke at three o'clock in the morning, and went down stairs, and when he came back, Stewart blamed him with stealing his money. Witness said he saw a roll of bills on the floor, and Stewart picked the roll up.

Crouter, the prisoner took the stand next.

Mr. Wood questioned him about previous times that he had been in police court, and what the offences were for.

Mr. Gordon objected to the Crown's questions, on the ground that they did not affect the case being heard, but the Judge stated that it was not in his power to have him refrain, although recommending the Crown to exercise fairness.

Mr. Gordon made a strong address when summing up the case in his presentation of the facts to the jury, making his strongest points in the fact that Stewart, the star witness of the prosecution was more or less used to spending his money in a riotous way; also the statement of Wesley Crouter, which the Crown did not see fit to contradict, that Stewart was accustomed to get up in the dead of night and bury his money in whiskey bottles in back yards. He also dwelt weightily upon the fact that the complainant was in the habit of coming to town on jollification sprees and that he was drunk on the night of the theft. The contradictory stories of Stewart were also so unreliable that Mr. Gordon submitted that such should be considered by the jury in finding the verdict.

The Crown's reply was very convincing and the facts presented to the jury in a clear and able manner.

Judge Huycke, strengthened the Crown's appeal to the jury, and urged upon them the necessity of finding a true verdict for the purpose of putting down crime.

After being out about twenty minutes the jury returned a verdict of guilty and judgment was reserved until ten o'clock this morning.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED
By J. W. SHORTLY, Optometrist

Q.—Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?

A.—Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day, only old persons or those near sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q. Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?

A.—Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

Q.—Can my headache be relieved with Glasses?

A.—A personal visit will be necessary. LET US TALK IT OVER.

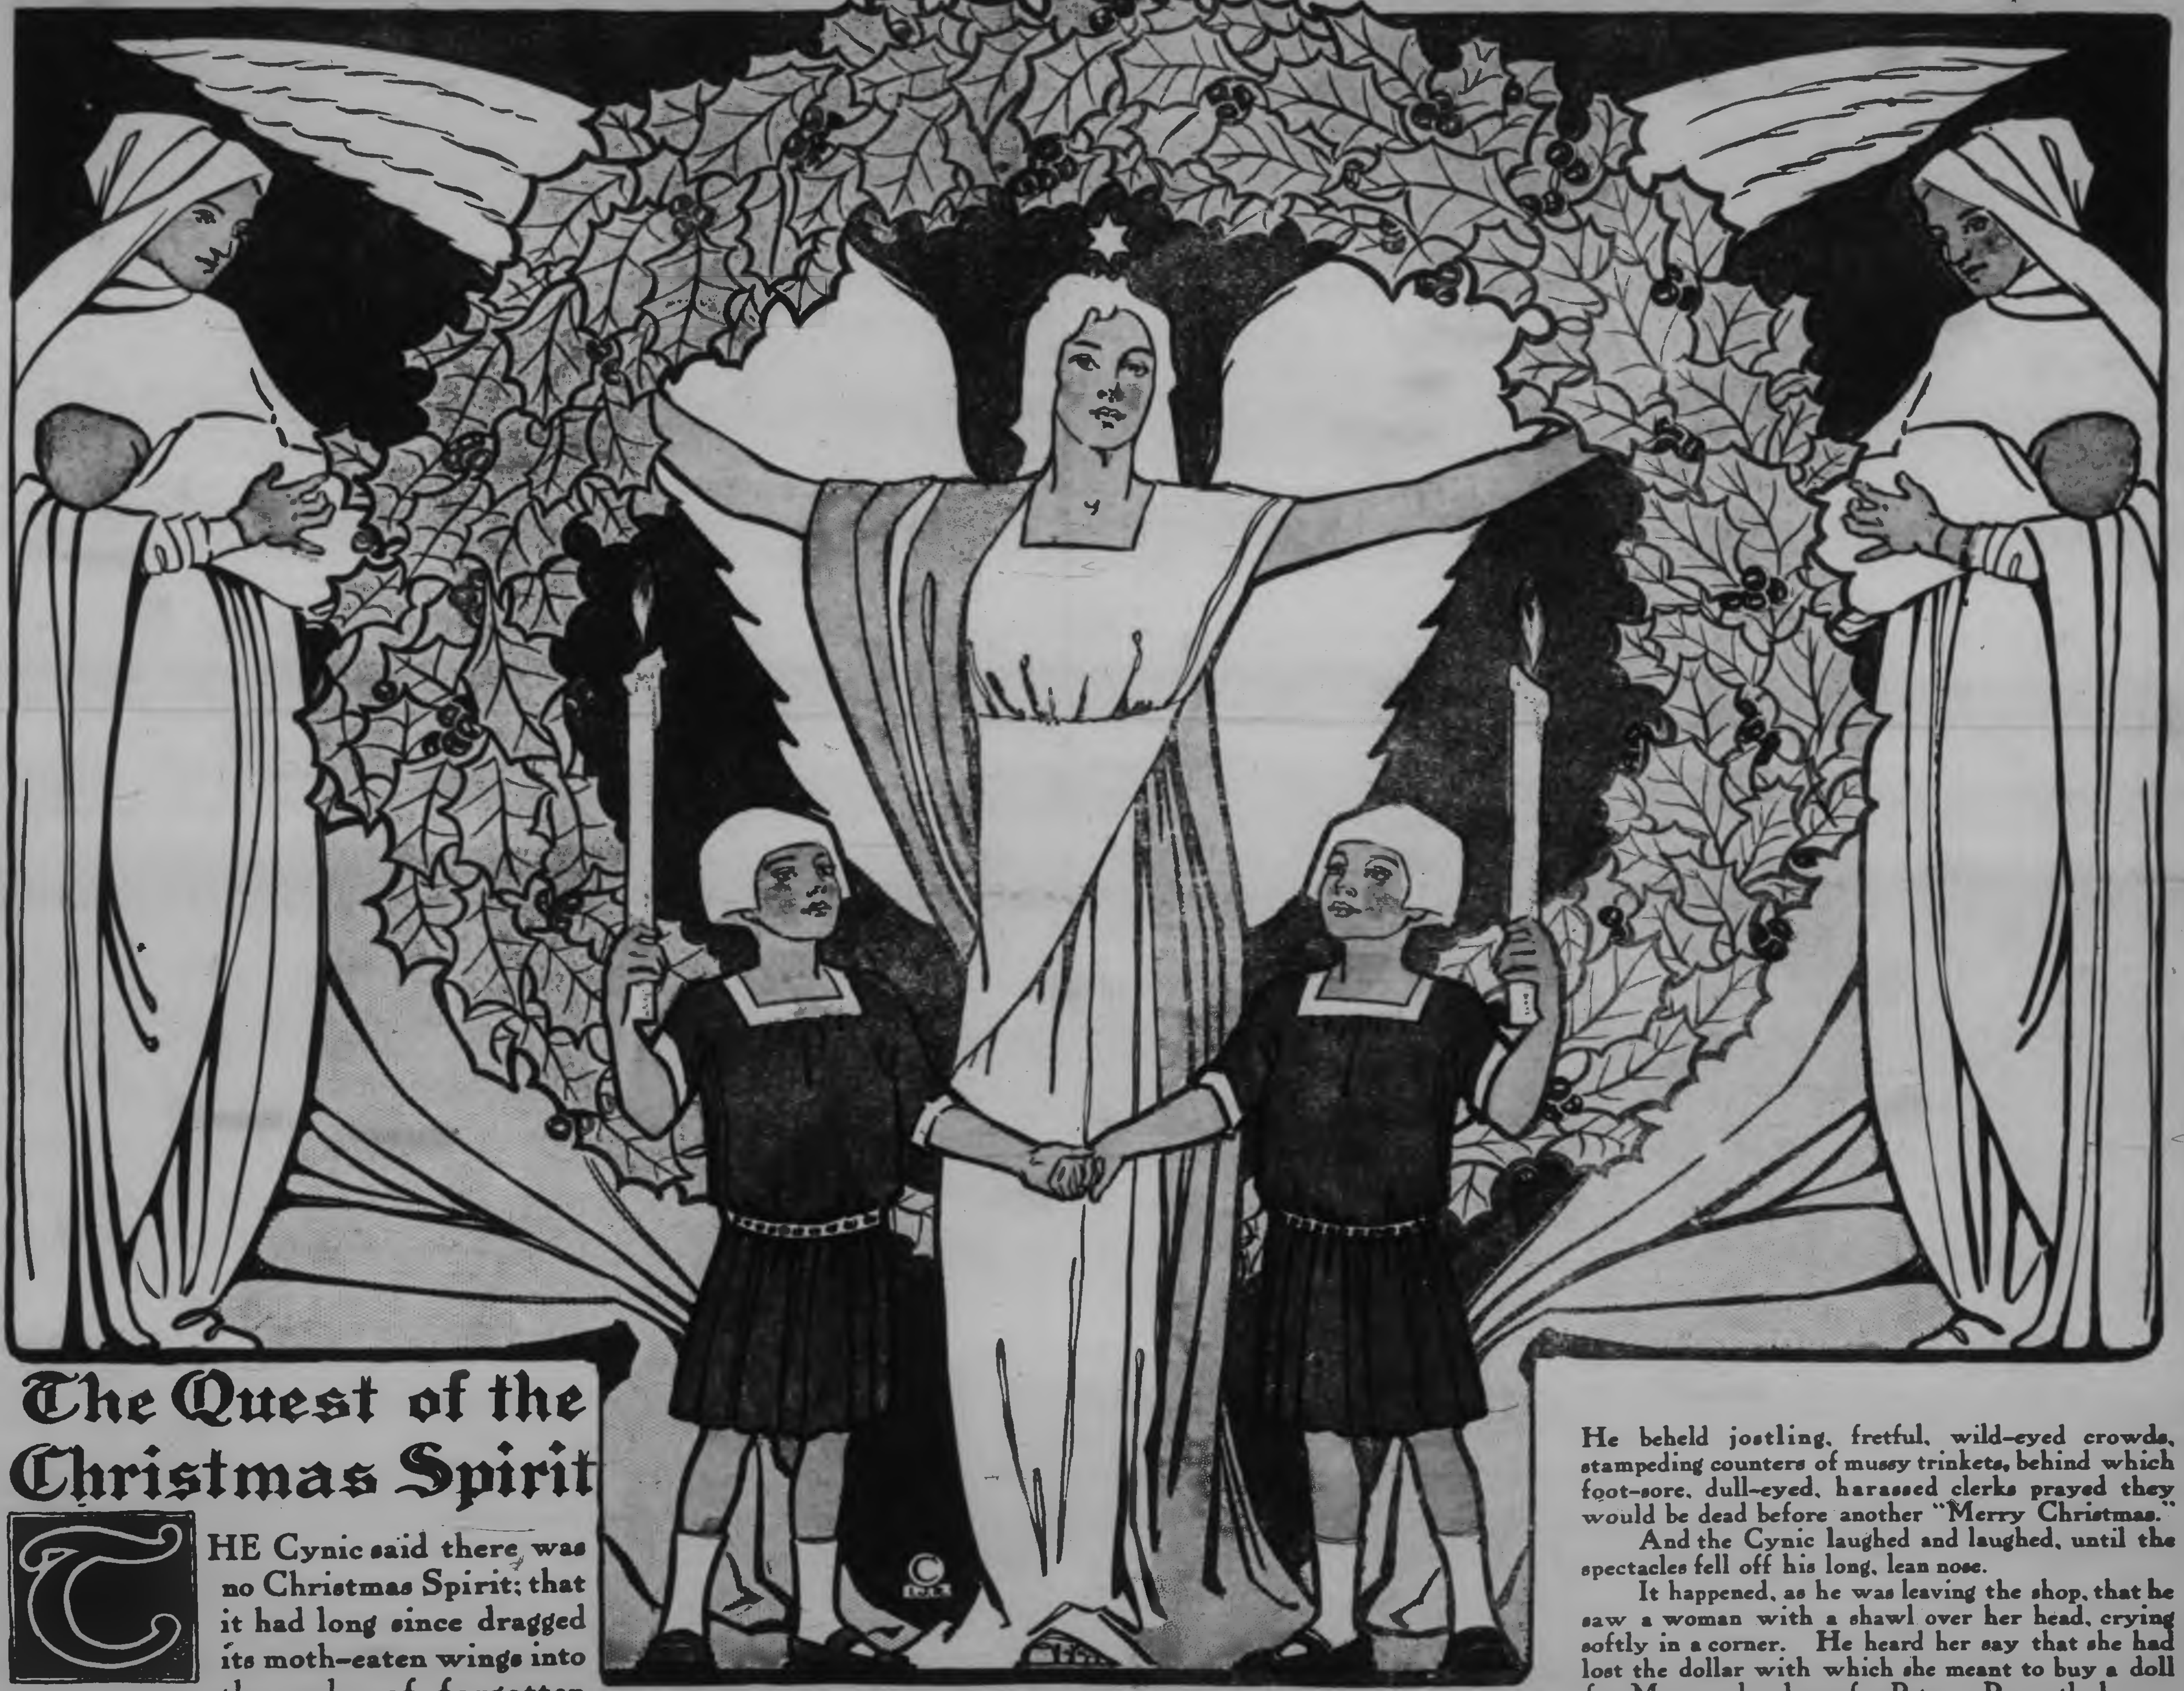
Christmas Edition



The Quest of the Christmas Spirit

THE Cynic said there was no Christmas Spirit; that it had long since dragged its moth-eaten wings into the realm of forgotten myths. In its place, said the Cynic, was the Spirit of Custom, the Spirit of Commercialism, the Spirit of Barter.

To prove it, he set out to search the fabled haunts of the Christmas Spirit, for a glimmer of its raiment or a flutter of its wings. He entered first a home of the Very Rich, where the holly wreaths in every window, suspended by a superior quality of satin ribbon, seemed to say: "Within is the Christmas Spirit. At this joyous season are we privileged to share of our abundance with those less fortunate. Therefore we rejoice."

Now, within the home of the Very Rich the Cynic found a table laden with gifts about to be sent off by the butler. There was a costly vase for the Titled Cousin; a rare edition for the Richest Relative; a choice antique for the Valuable Business Ally; an order for twenty-five Christmas dinner baskets, to be delivered by the chauffeur; and a Christmas check, of thousands, for the Endowed Hospital for Working Girls, with which to meet the increased expenses after the holiday rush that always filled the Hospital with the Working Girls employed by the head of this very house of the Very Rich, and by the Business Ally.

The Cynic smiled, with ironic satisfaction. Verily, the Christmas Spirit dwelt not there.

So into the seething shops, on Christmas Eve, the Cynic crowded, though fearful that here, where all the world was gift-buying, he must surely come upon the forsaken Spirit. He beheld jostling, fretful, wild-eyed crowds, stampeding counters of mussy trinkets, behind which foot-sore, dull-eyed, harassed clerks prayed they would be dead before another "Merry Christmas."

And the Cynic laughed and laughed, until the spectacles fell off his long, lean nose.

It happened, as he was leaving the shop, that he saw a woman with a shawl over her head, crying softly in a corner. He heard her say that she had lost the dollar with which she meant to buy a doll for Mary and a drum for Peter. Presently he saw another woman, shawl-headed, too, go up to her and crush into her trembling hand a dollar bill. "Sure, an' I just picked it up,—it's that same dollar you were after losin'! Bless you, don't be thankin' me for only pickin' of it up!"

The Cynic knew that it was not the lost dollar bill that the woman had placed in the other's hand, because he had seen her take it from her own lank, worn purse. And seeming to hear the soft rustle of wings, the Cynic followed her out into the street and to the very door of her tiny cottage.

Through the window he saw a strange group gathered about a scrawny Christmas tree, sparsely decorated. There was, besides the three children of the belated hostess, the one-legged man who peddled papers in the building where she scrubbed, the lone widdy woman next door, and the child whose mother had been arrested the day before for shop-lifting,—forlorn waifs gathered up in a warm embrace of friendliness.

And lo! when the woman he had followed entered the room there entered with her, luminous, the forgotten Christmas Spirit! And he saw that after all it was only the Spirit of Kindness with a holly wreath around its neck.

Now, nobody knows why, but a tear fell off the long, lean nose of the crabbed old Cynic who stood outside the cottage there, in the cold.

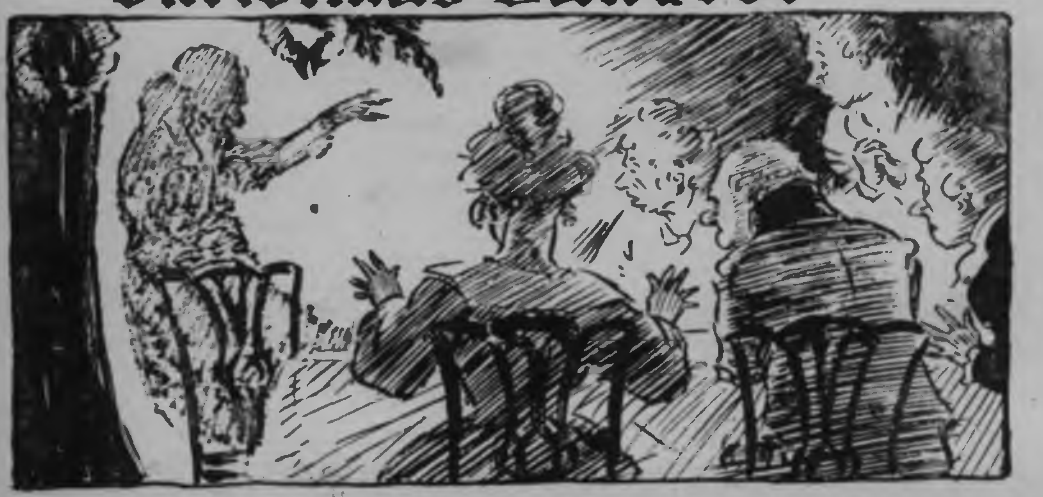
Nawthorne's Strange Christmas Banquet



IN GRIM and weird contrast with the jovial, hearty, human Christmas feast which Irving tells of is the "Christmas Banquet" imagined by Nathaniel Hawthorne in his "Mosses from an Old Manse." It is a story within a story, the latter merely the shell which serves to excuse and carry a tale of an annual banquet at which the conspicuous guest is Gervayse Hastings, typical of the cold, hard, soulless man of wealth and distinction, known not in New England only, but in old England and, indeed, in all the world. It is, in reality, a kind of morality play, whose moral warns us to keep our hearts warm to others throughout the year lest, on occasions when we need them most, we may have no hearts to feel and to enjoy:

In their own way these were as wretched a set of people as ever had assembled at the festivals There they sat, with the veiled skeleton of the founder holding aloft the cypress wreath at one end of the table, and at the other, wrapped in furs, the withered figure of Gervayse Hastings, stately, calm, and cold, impressing the company with awe, yet so little interesting their sympathy that he might have vanished into thin air without their once exclaiming, "Whither is he gone?"

"Sir," said the philanthropist, addressing the old man, "you have been so long a guest at this annual festival, and have thus been conversant with so many varieties of human affliction, that not improbably you have thence derived some great and important lessons How blessed were your lot could you reveal a secret by which all this mass of woe might be removed!"

"I know of but one misfortune," answered Gervayse Hastings, quietly, "and that is my own."

"Your own!" rejoined the philanthropist, "And looking back on your serene and prosperous life, how can you claim to be the sole unfortunate of the human race?"

"You will not understand it," replied Gervayse Hastings, feebly, and with a singular inefficiency of pronunciation, and sometimes putting one word before another. "None have understood it—not even those who experience the like. It is a chilliness—a want of earnestness—a feeling as if what should be my heart were a thing of vapor—a haunting perception of unreality! Thus seeming to possess all that other men have—all that men aim at—I have really possessed nothing, neither joys nor griefs All things, all persons—as was truly said to me at this table long and long ago—have been like shadows flickering on the wall. It was so with my wife and children—with those who seemed my friends, it is so with yourselves, whom I see now before me. Neither have I myself any real existence, but am a shadow like the rest."

"And how is it with your views of a future life?" inquired the speculative clergyman.

"Worse than with you," said the old man, in a hollow and feeble tone, "for I cannot conceive it earnestly enough to feel either hope or fear. Mine is the wretchedness! This cold heart—this unreal life! Ah! it grows colder still."

It so chanced that at this juncture the decayed ligaments of the skeleton gave way, and the dried bones fell together in a heap, thus causing the dusty wreath of cypress to drop upon the table. The attention of the company being thus diverted for a single instant from Gervayse Hastings, they perceived, turning again toward him, that the old man had undergone a change. His shadow had ceased to flicker on the wall.

BRAUND'S TRY THE NORTH WARD BRANCH FOR XMAS GROCERIES

The Saviour's Birthplace, from Lew Wallace's "Ben Hur"

IT WAS General Lew Wallace who, in the most reverent spirit and with advantages of knowledge as to eastern manners and customs rivaling those of the artist Tissot, reconstituted the scenes that attended the birth of the Saviour, in his famous story, "Ben Hur." After recounting the difficulties which Joseph and Mary and their companions, the family of the Beth-Dagonite, experienced until they reached the khan, he proceeds:

The Nazarene went back joyfully to Mary and the Beth-Dagonite In a little while the latter brought up his family, the women mounted on donkeys. The wife was matronly, the daughters were images of what she must have been in youth; and as they drew nigh the door, the people knew them to be of the humble class.

"This is she of whom I spoke," said the Nazarene; "and these are our friends."

Mary's veil was raised.

"Blue eyes and hair of gold," muttered the steward to himself, seeing but her "So looked the young king when he went to sing before Saul."

He took the leading-strap from Joseph and said to Mary, "Peace to you, O daughter of David!" Then to the others, "Peace to you all." Then to Joseph, "Rabbi, follow me."

The party were conducted into a wide passage paved with stone, from which they entered the court of the khan. To a stranger the scene would have been curious; but they noticed the lewens that yawned darkly upon them from all sides, and the court itself, only to remark how crowded they were. By a lane reserved in the stowage of the cargoes and thence by a passage similar to the one at the entrance, they emerged into the inclosure adjoining the house, and came upon camels, horses, and donkeys, tethered and dozing in close groups; among them were the keepers, men of many lands; and they, too, slept or kept silent watch. They went down the slope of the crowded yard slowly, for the dull carriers of the women had wills of their own. At length they turned into a path running towards the gray-lined stone bluff overlooking the khan on the west.

"We are going to the cave," said Joseph, laconically.

The guide lingered till Mary came to his side.

"The cave to which we are going," he said to her, "must have been a resort of your ancestor David. From the field below us, and from the well down in the valley, he used to drive his flocks to it for safety, and afterwards, when he was king, he came back to the old house here for rest and health, bringing great trains of animals. The mangers yet remain as they were in his day. Better a bed upon the floor where he has slept than one in the courtyard, or out by the roadside Ah, here is the house before the cave!"

This speech must not be taken as an apology for the lodging. There was no need of apology. The place was the best then at disposal. The guests were simple folks.

The Converted Scrooge, from "A Christmas Carol," by Dickens

DICKENS, if you recall, did much of the same thing with old Scrooge, but he did not whisk him off into a doubtful eternity but a probable perdition. After Scrooge had his scare with all his ghostly visitors, he became a converted Scrooge, a transformed Scrooge, a Scrooge so human that poor Bob Cratchit thought he must have gone stark mad. For this is how the altered Scrooge behaved

Scrooge was early at the office next morning. Oh, he was early there. If he could only be there first, and catch Bob Cratchit coming late! That was the thing he had set his heart upon.

And he did it, yes, he did! The clock struck 9. No Bob. A quarter past. No Bob. He was full eighteen minutes and a half behind his time. Scrooge sat with his door wide open, that he might see him come into the tank

His hat was off before he opened the door; his comforter, too. He was on his stool in a jiffy, driving away with his pen, as if he were trying to overtake 9 o'clock.

"Hallo!" growled Scrooge, in his accustomed voice as near as he could feign it. "What do you mean by coming here at this time of day?"

"I am very sorry, sir," said Bob. "I am behind my time."

"You are!" repeated Scrooge. "Yes. I think you are. Step this way, sir, if you please."

"It's only once a year, sir," pleaded Bob, appearing from the tank "It shall not be repeated. I was making rather merry yesterday, sir."

"Now, I'll tell you what, my friend," said Scrooge, "I am not going to stand this sort of thing any longer, and therefore," he continued, leaping from his stool, and giving Bob such a dig in the waistcoat that he staggered back into the tank again; "and therefore I am about to raise your salary!"

Bob trembled, and got a little nearer to the ruler. He had a momentary idea of knocking Scrooge down with it, holding him, and calling to the people in the court for help and a strait waistcoat.

"A merry Christmas, Bob!" said Scrooge, with an earnestness that could not be mistaken, as he clapped him on the back "A merrier Christmas, Bob, my good fellow than I have given you for many a year! I'll raise your salary and endeavor to assist your struggling family, and we will discuss your affairs this very afternoon over a Christmas bowl of smoking bishop, Bob! Make up the fires and buy another coal scuttle before you dot another i, Bob Cratchit!"

Scrooge was better than his word. He did it all, and infinitely more, and to Tiny Tim, who did NOT DIE, he was a second father. He became as good a friend, as good a master, and as good a man as the good old city knew, or any other good old city, town or borough in the good old world. Some people laughed to see the alteration in him, but he let them laugh and little heeded them, for he was wise enough to know that nothing ever happened on this globe, for good, at which some people did not have their fill of laughter in the outset, and, knowing that such as these would be blind anyway, he thought it quite as well that they should wrinkle up their eyes in grins as have the malady in less attractive forms. His own heart laughed, and that was quite enough for him

He had no further intercourse with Spirits, but lived upon the Total-Abstinence Principle ever afterwards, and it was always said of him that he knew how to keep Christmas well, if any man alive possessed the knowledge May that be truly said of us, and all of us! And so, as Tiny Tim observed, God Bless Us, Every One

The World's Greatest Stories of Christmas

SOMEHOW or other, and at some time or other, the spirit of Christmas has descended upon pretty nearly every famous writer, and has inspired him to a Christmas story, or an essay, or a sermon—for your famous writers can be pious enough when the spirit moves them.

Odd and interesting Christmases remain, embalmed, like rare and spicy fruit cakes of literature, in those pages which are too often left shut on library shelves; for we of this country especially are prone to make our own Christmas, and to believe sincerely that no other Christmas can be quite so delightful or quite so happily picturesque.

But when we happen, by some fortunate chance or some impulse of recollection, to hunt through the volumes for the Christmas which we would like to enjoy if we weren't so resolutely content with our own, it is astonishing how many different ways other Christians have had of making Christmas joyful—and how every way, including ours, agrees with the others in choosing for the best of Christmas that straightforward kindliness and sincerity which lie back of the best Christmas sermon, and the best known, that has been written.

It is as though that rare soul of Robert Louis Stevenson's had been reserved to speak to mankind after the way had been prepared for him by all the rest—after Thackeray's shrewd good-humor, after Dickens' effusive heartiness, after Irving's picture of jocund Christmas hospitality, after Hawthorne's grim morality play, and after Wallace's vivid picturing of the first Christmas the world beheld. His immortal "To be honest, to be kind," seems to have struck, fully and firmly, the great human chord that underlay all those more impressive writings, although every one of them was true and often far more brilliant.

So, like the prelude that gives the theme of all that is to come, here is the passage of Stevenson's "Christmas Sermon" that has gone around the world:

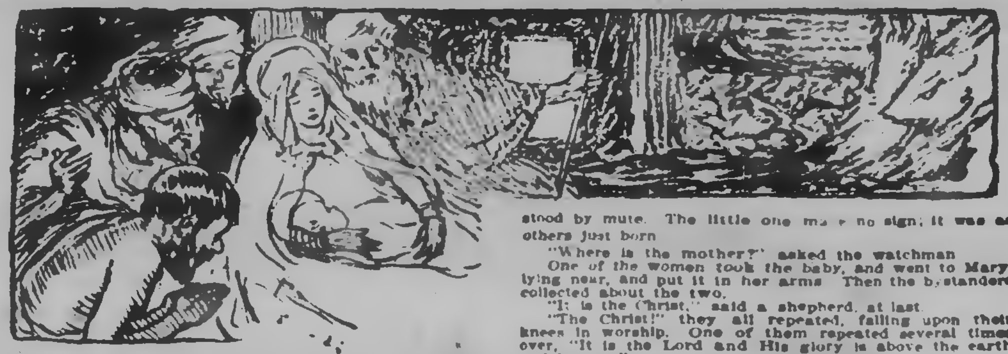
Stevenson's Christmas Sermon

TO BE honest, to be kind; to earn a little and to spend a little less; to make upon the whole a family happier for his presence; to renounce when that shall be necessary and not be embittered; to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation—above all, on the same grim condition, to keep friends with himself—here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy. He has an ambitious soul who would ask more; he has a hopeful spirit who should look in such an enterprise to be successful. There is indeed one element in human destiny that not blindness itself can controvert: whatever else we are intended to do, we are not intended to succeed; failure is the fate allotted. It is so in every art and study; it is so above all in the continent art of living well. Here is a pleasant thought for the year's end or for the end of life: only self-deception will be satisfied, and there need be no despair for the despairer.

by habits of life easily satisfied. To the Jew of that period, moreover, abode in caverns was a familiar idea, made so by everyday occurrences, and by what he heard of Sabbaths in the synagogues. How much of Jewish history, how many of the most exciting incidents in that history, had transpired in caves! Yet further, these people were Jews of Bethlehem, with whom the idea was especially commonplace; for their locality abounded with caves great and small, some of which had been dwelling-places from the time of the Emin and Horites. No more was there offense to them in the fact that the cavern to which they were being taken had been, or was, a stable. They were the descendants of a race of herdsmen, whose flocks habitually shared both their habitations and wanderings. In keeping with a custom derived from Abraham, the tent of the Bedawin yet shelters his horses and children alike. So they obeyed the keeper cheerfully, and gazed at the house, feeling only a natural curiosity. Everything associated with the history of David was interesting to them.

The building was low and narrow, projecting but a little from the rock to which it was joined at the rear, and wholly without a window. In its blank front there was a door, swung on enormous hinges, and thickly daubed with ocherous clay. While the wooden bolt of the lock was being pushed back, the women were assisted from their pillions. Upon the opening of the door, the keeper called out:

"Come in!"



The guests entered, and stared about them. It became apparent immediately that the house was but a mask or covering for the mouth of a natural cave or grotto, probably forty feet long, nine or ten high, and twelve or fifteen in width. The light streamed through the doorway, over an uneven floor, falling upon piles of grain and fodder, and earthenware and household property, occupying the center of the chamber. Along the sides were mangers, low enough for sheep, and built of stones laid in cement. There were no stalls or partitions of any kind. Dust and chaff yellowed the floor, filled all the crevices and hollows, and thickened the spider webs, which dropped from the ceiling like bits of dirty linen; otherwise the place was clean, and, to appearance, as comfortable as any of the arched lewens of the khan proper. In fact, a cave was the model and first suggestion of the lewen.

"Come in!" said the guide. "These piles upon the floor are for travelers like yourselves. Take what of them you need."

Then he spoke to Mary.

"Can you rest here?"

"The place is sanctified," she answered.

• • • • • •

They [the shepherds] went through the courtyard without notice, although there were some up even then talking about the wonderful light. The door of the cavern was open. A lantern was burning within, and they entered unceremoniously.

"I give you peace," the watchman said to Joseph and the Beth-Dagonite. "Here are people looking for a child born this night, whom they are to know by finding him in swaddling-clothes, and lying in a manger."

For a moment the face of the stolid Nazarene was moved; turning away, he said, "The child is here."

They were led to one of the mangers, and there the child was. The lantern was brought, and the shepherds stood by mute. The little one made no sign; it was as others just born.

"Where is the mother?" asked the watchman.

One of the women took the baby, and went to Mary, lying near, and put it in her arms. Then the bystanders collected about the two.

"It is the Christ," said a shepherd, at last.

"The Christ!" they all repeated, falling upon their knees in worship. One of them repeated several times over, "It is the Lord and His glory is above the earth and heaven."

And the simple men, never doubting, kissed the hem of the mother's robe, and with joyful faces departed. In the khan, to all the people aroused and pressing about them, they told their story; and through the town, and all the way back to the marsh, they chanted the refrain of the angels, "Glory to God in the Highest, and on earth peace, good will towards men!"

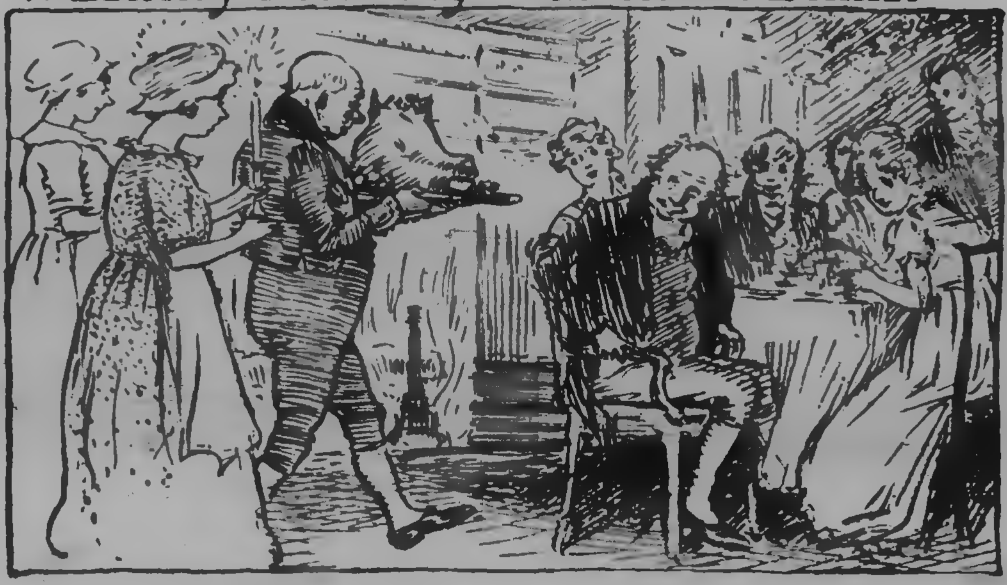
The Boar's Head, from Washington Irving's "Christmas Dinner"



OUR own Washington Irving, in his "Sketch Book," has described an English Christmas dinner perhaps better, and more provocatively of a longing for its enjoyment, than any of the English writers themselves. How much there is in the dinner, and how much in the writer, it would be hard to say, even after one had exchanged for the boar's head and the "ancient sirloin" of old England the glorious brown turkey of his native land; but this is the way Irving describes it:

The dinner was served up in the great hall where the squire always held his Christmas banquet. A blazing, crackling fire of logs had been heaped on to warm the spacious apartment, and the flame went sparkling and wreathing up the wide-mouthed chimney. The great picture of the crusader and his white horse had been profusely decorated with greens for the occasion; and holly and ivy had likewise been wreathed round the helmet and weapons on the opposite wall, which I understood, were the arms of the same warrior. • • •

A sideboard was set out just under this chivalric trophy, on which was a display of plate that might have vied (at least in variety) with Belshazzar's parade of the vessels of the temple: "flagons, cans, cups, beakers, goblets, basins and ewers"; the gorgeous utensils of good companionship that gradually accumulated through many generations of jovial housekeepers. Before these stood the two yule candles, beaming like two stars of the first magnitude; other lights were distributed in branches, and the whole array glittered like a firmament of silver.

We were ushered into this banqueting scene with the sound of minstrelsy, the old harper being seated on a stool beside the fireplace, and twanging his instrument with a vast deal more power than melody. Never did Christmas board display a more goodly and gracious assemblage of countenances; those who were not handsome were, at least, happy; and happiness is a rare improver of your hard-favored visage.

The parson said grace, which was not a short familiar one, such as is commonly addressed to the Deity in these unceremonious days; but a long, courtly, well-worded one of the ancient school. There was now a pause, as if something was expected, when suddenly the butler entered the hall with some degree of bustle. He was attended by a servant on each side with a large waxlight, and bore a silver dish, on which was an enormous pig's head, decorated with rosemary, with a lemon in its mouth, which was placed with great formality at the head of the table. The moment this pageant made its appearance, the harper struck up a flourish; at the conclusion of which the young Oxonian, on receiving a hint from the squire, gave, with an air of the most comic gravity, an old carol, the first verse of which was as follows:

> "Caput apri defero
> Reddens laudes domino.
> The boar's head in hand bring I,
> With garlands gay and rosemary.
> I pray you all synge merrily
> Qui estes in convivio."

The table was literally loaded with good cheer, and presented an epitome of country abundance, in this season of overflowing larders. A distinguished post was allotted to "ancient sirloin," as mine host termed it; being, as he added, "the standard of old English hospitality, and a joint of goodly presence, and full of expectation." There were several dishes quaintly decorated, and which had evidently something traditional in their embellishments; but about which, as I did not like to appear overcurious, I asked no questions.

I could not, however, but notice a pie, magnificently decorated with peacock's feathers, in imitation of the tail of that bird, which overshadowed a considerable tract of the table. This, the squire confessed, with some little hesitation, was a pheasant pie, though a peacock pie was certainly the most authentical; but there had been such a mortality among the peacocks this season that he could not prevail upon himself to have one killed.

• • • • • •

When the cloth was removed, the butler brought in a huge silver vessel of rare and curious workmanship, which he placed before the squire. Its appearance was hailed with acclamation, being the Wassail Bowl, so renowned in Christmas festivity. The contents had been prepared by the squire himself, for it was a beverage, in the skillful mixture of which he particularly prided himself, alleging that it was too abstruse and complex for the comprehension of an ordinary servant. It was a potation, indeed, that might well make the heart of a toper leap within him, being composed of the richest and raciest wines, highly spiced and sweetened with roasted apples bobbing about the surface.

The old gentleman's whole countenance beamed with a serene look of indwelling delight, as he stirred this mighty bowl. Having raised it to his lips, with a hearty wish of a merry Christmas to all present, he sent it brimming round the board, for every one to follow his example, according to the primitive style, pronouncing it "the ancient foundation of good feeling, where all hearts met together."

There was much laughing and rallying as the honest emblem of Christmas joviality circulated, and was kissed rather coyly by the ladies.

How easy it is for one benevolent being to diffuse pleasure around him; and how truly is a kind heart a fountain of gladness, making everything in its vicinity to freshen into smiles! The joyous disposition of the worthy squire was perfectly contagious, he was happy himself, and disposed to make all the world happy, and the little eccentricities of his humor did but season, in a manner, the sweetness of his philanthropy. • • •

After the dinner table was removed, the hall was given up to the younger members of the family, who, prompted to all kind of noisy mirth by the Oxonian and Master Simon, made its old walls ring with their merriment as they played at romping games.

Berlin's Night Life.

Berlin, the city which never sleeps, has long since outdistanced all its European rivals as a city of night cafes, daybreak restaurants and theatres which open their doors only at midnight. Berlin has a magnificent bathing establishment which is open every hour in the twenty-four. The newly built Admirals Bad in the Friedrichstrasse, which has recently been opened, is one of the finest bathing establishments in all Germany. Its swimming baths, both women's and men's, are resplendent in the finest majolica marble and beveled glass, while the Roman and Turkish baths are more than oriental in their luxury. A small army of masseurs and attendants is constantly on duty, and the great doors of the establishment are never closed. Attached to the baths is a large and up to date restaurant, where Berlin night revelers, after enjoying a swim at 3 o'clock in the morning, may be seen eating an early breakfast in their bathing dress.

Real Sea Serpents.

Great numbers of wholly aquatic, veritable sea serpents inhabit the Indian Ocean and the tropical waters of the Pacific. They possess deadly fangs and sometimes swim in schools of thousands. When seen in great numbers knowledge of their nature gives the shipboard spectator a creepy, uncanny feeling. These snakes have a paddle-like tail to assist them in swimming. They range in size from a yard to eight feet in length, and the greater number of them are vividly ringed. By a queer touch of fate they may be generally designated as a specialized offshoot of the great nonvenomous species.

What He Would Proceed To Do.

The pretty teacher smiled encouragingly on her new pupil.

"Well, Tommy," she said, "I am glad to have you in my class. Your mother tells me that you are a busy little boy and I shall like that characteristic in you. Now, if I seat you at that rear desk and give you an alphabet book and slate, with what will you busy yourself first?"

"Cuttin' my name on the desk," was the swift reply.

Family of Ministers.

Canon Robson, who will shortly complete thirty-four years' ministry in Birkenhead, England, is the head of a remarkable family. Four of his sons and a nephew who was brought up with the family have entered the ministry, and a son-in-law of the canon is also a clergyman.

Australia's Acreage.

Of the 1,903,731,840 acres of land in Australia the amount sold or granted by the Government is 93,567,000.

THE DAILY REVIEW

PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, SATURDAY, DECEMBER, 16 1911

A MERRY CHRISTMAS

Thackeray and the Christmas Tree, from "Round About the Christmas Tree."

THERE is about the Christmas tree as Thackeray pictures it in the "Roundabout Papers" under the particular title of "Round About the Christmas Tree," just such an atmosphere of realism applied to the world of these later days as is felt in Wallace's depiction of the first Christmas. Every one has his little worries and troubles now, as all had their anxieties then, and it takes the Christmas spirit to gloss them over into cheer and hopefulness. His undertone of satire, never gentler or more friendly, brings us all closer to the joys as well as the small worries that surround the Christmas tree.

The kindly Christmas tree, from which I trust every gentle reader has pulled a bonbon or two, is yet all ablaze whilst I am writing, and sparkles with the sweet fruits of its season. You young ladies, may you have plucked pretty giftlings from it, and out of the cracked sugar plum which you have split with the captain or the sweet young curate, may you have read one of those delicious conundrums which the confectioners introduce into the sweetmeats, and which apply to the cunning passion of love. Those riddles are to be read at your age, when I dare say they are amusing. As for Dolly, Merry, and Bell, who are standing at the tree, they don't care about the love-riddle part, but understand the sweet almond portion very well. They are 4, 5 and 6 years old. Patience, little people! A dozen merry Christmases more, and you will be reading those wonderful conundrums too. As for us elderly folks, we watch the babies at their sport, and the young people pulling at the branches; and instead of finding bonbons or sweeties in the packets which we pluck off the boughs, we find inclosed Mr. Carnifex's review of the quarter's meat; Mr. Sartor's compliments, and little statement for self and the young gentlemen, and Madame de Sainte-Crinoline's respects to the young ladies, who incloses her account, and will send on Saturday, please; or we stretch our hand out to the educational branch of the Christmas tree, and there find a lively and amusing article from the Rev. Henry Holyshade, containing our dear Tommy's exceedingly moderate account for the last term's school expenses.

The tree yet sparkles, I say. I am writing on the day before Twelfth day, if you must know it, but already ever so many of the fruits have been pulled, and the Christmas lights have gone out. Bobby Miseltow, who has been staying with us for a week (and who has been sleeping mysteriously in the bathroom), comes to say he is going away to spend the rest of the holidays with his grandmother—and I brush away the manly tear of regret as I part with the dear child. "Well, Bob, goodby, since you will go. Compliments to grandmamma. Thank her for the turkey. "Here's"—(A slight pecuniary transaction takes place at this juncture, and Bob nods and winks and puts his hand in his waistcoat). "You have had a pleasant week?"

Bob—"Haven't I!" (An exit, anxious to know the amount of the coin which has just changed hands.)

SECOND TOUR OF THE SCOTTISH CURLERS; TEAM SAILS FOR CANADA DECEMBER 23

Knights of the Broom Will be Accompanied by Their Own Pipers—How the Rinks are Made up—Play in Peterboro January 22.

Edinburgh, Scotland, Dec. 15.—After repeated invitations from Canada, in which curlers enjoy greater facilities for cultivating "Scotland's ain game" than in any other part of the world, a team of Scottish curlers went out under the captaincy of the Rev. John Kerr, of Dirleton, in the winter of 1902-3. This visit no doubt had good results in cementing the bonds of union between Canada and the mother country, and in view of the scarcity of frost at home, and the long practice which the curlers across the water have in covered rinks, the Scots did well to win nearly 50 per cent. of the matches then played. Two years ago Canada responded to the visit of the Scots by sending over a team under the captaincy of Governor Fraser of Nova Scotia, whose eloquence intensified the feeling of sympathy between Scotland and the Dominion, and his death not long after his return home was much deplored. The venerable Lord Strathcona and Royal, High Commissioner for Canada, was president of the Royal Club at the time, and took much interest in the visit of the Canadian curlers to the home country. He had done much to encourage the game in Canada, and them had benefited by their practice on the covered rink at Crossmyloof, where the condition of play in many respects resemble those which obtain in Canada. A Selection Committee having been appointed and having considered the applications, brought forward a list of thirty gentlemen as worthy to form a suitable team representative of the Royal Club, and at the annual meeting at Newcastle last July this selection was approved, and the Council, with the aid of the Special Committee, filled up vacancies that arose in course of time, and proceeded to make all arrangements for the tour. The Newcastle meeting voted a sum of £100 towards the expenses of further, to advance its progress and encourage such interchange of visits he presented a valuable silver cup as an international trophy. Unfortunately, as was feared, the frost did not permit of many matches in the open when the Canadians came across, and most of these had to be played in the covered rink, and on the artificial ice at the Scottish Ice-Rink at Crossmyloof, Glasgow. In three test matches in which picked rinks from the various Provinces of the Royal Club throughout the country met their brethren of the land of the maple leaf, the latter were victorious, and carried off the Strathcona Cup, and in the other matches the home players had generally the worst of the argument.

SECOND INVITATION.

Last year a hearty invitation was sent to Scotland to send out a second team, and this was cordially accepted, the invitations issued by the secretary of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club, Mr. Davidson Smith, C.A., inviting volunteers for the tour. Notwithstanding the intimation that on this occasion the members of the team would require to pay their own expenses, quite a goodly array of "knights of the broom" signified their willingness to champion Scotland against the Dominion, and "bring back the ashes," viz., the Strathcona Cup. The majority of them hailed from Glasgow and the West of Scotland, and they were no doubt emboldened to take up the invitation by the fact that many of the trip. The Special Committee consisted of the secretary, the Rev. J. Kerr, Mr. Henderson-Bishop, V.P., and Messrs Murray and Thomson, and arrangements have now been pretty well completed.

CONSTITUTION OF TEAM.

One or two changes may yet require to be made, but the names, clubs, and occupations of the members of the second Scoto-Canadian team, as at present constituted, are as follows:

T. S. G. H. Robertson-Aikman, Hamilton, Colonel.

Alexander Aitkenhead, Greenock, contractor.

Hugh Solomon, Penninghame, farmer.

James Telford, Newcastle-on-Tyne, merchant.

James Templeton Ward, wine merchant.

Robert Wardrop, Cambusnethan.

George Wolfe, Bathgate, manufacturer.

MEETING OF THE TEAM

The members of the team met together for the first time on the invitation of the secretary of the Royal Club on 25th October., Mr. Henderson-Bishop, V.P., who was in the chair, conveyed to them the good wishes of the Royal Club for the success of their tour, Lord Lyveden, the Rev. Mr. Kerr, and the secretary, also giving them cordial congratulations on their selection for such an interesting historic tour, and expressing the desire that after a happy time they would all return safe home. After the luncheon the team met together in the secretary's office, and with heartiness and unanimity elected as their captain, Colonel Robertson Aikman of the Ross, Hamilton; and as their honorary secretary-treasurer, Mr. Andrew Blair, Aberfoyle. At a subsequent meeting, they, under the guidance of these officials, formed themselves into rinks, arranging that each rink should throughout the tour be distinguished by a special tartan. These rinks are as follows, there being an extra player allotted to each rink, and one reserve man.

Captain's rink; Tartan, Robertson—Col. Robertson-Aikman, Andrew Brown, Major Campbell, James Hamilton, James Telford.

Secretary's rink; Tartan, Buchanan—Andrew Blair, William Brown, John Hewetson, Andrew Mitchell, Hugh Solomon.

Lancashire rink; Tartan Murray—James Cameron, J. Guthrie Kennedy T. B. Murray, John F. Ross, James T. Ward.

Glasgow rink; Tartan Mackenzie—James E. Bett, J. Fulton Lawrie, A. C. Riddall, T. A. B. Sherriff, Robert Wardrop.

West Lothian rink; Tartan Gordon Robert Allan, Alex. Dougal, D. R. Gordon, W. J. Brewster Grant, Geo. Wolfe.

Renfrewshire rink; Tartan McLeod—Alex. Aitkenhead, Bailie Bennett, Robert Connell, John M'Leod, James Y. Keanie.

Reserve man—Captain D. G. Astley.

SAIL DEC. 23

The team will sail at twelve noon on Saturday, December 23, from Plantation Quay, Glasgow, by the Allan liner "Ionian" (8265 tons), and as they are to be accompanied by their own pipers, they will have music wherever they go to cheer their journey and rouse the enthusiasm of their brither Scots in Canada.

Wife Sues "Pinafore" Captain.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—The "Captain of H.M.S. Pinafore" was sued yesterday in the Practice Court of Montreal, for $1,200. His name is George J. Macfarlane, and the lady who sues is his wife, Dame Emily Whatt. The money is claimed as alimony and an interesting trial is promised unless an amicable arrangement is arrived at before the departure of the company, now playing at the Princess Theatre, takes place on Sunday morning next.

It is not a theatrical quarrel; quite the reverse. Mr. Macfarlane is a native of this province and as a result of trouble with his wife she awaited his coming to Montreal. Victor Harmon, the manager of the company, says that he knows nothing whatever of the suit beyond the fact that he had heard that trouble might take place in Montreal between the two parties. The hearing began this morning.

Central Vermont Spur Line.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—E. H. Fitzhugh, president of the Central of Vermont, and 24 others, have asked for a charter to build a railroad from Barre, Vt., to Williamstown, Vt. It is proposed to call the new road the Barre Granite Railroad, and to incorporate with capital stock of $100,000.

Donovan's Majority 449.

Brockville, Dec. 15.—The official count of the polling in Brockville riding on Monday, gives Donovan, Conservative, a majority over Smart, Liberal, of 449, and over Wing, Socialist, 1,877.

AT 106 HE GOES TO THE POLLS

Cobalt, Ont., Dec. 14—Alexander Renaud, a resident of Haileybury, celebrated his 106th birthday Sunday at the home of his son. The old man went out to the polls Monday and cast his vote along with others many times his junior.

He was born near Sherbrooke, Que., Dec. 10, 1805, and two years afterwards moved with his father and mother to near Ottawa, and since that time has lived in the Ottawa Valley.

He kept a butcher shop in Ottawa when the town consisted of three or four houses and was known as Bytown, and later farmed in that section.

He moved to Haileybury five years ago and has made his home there. In 1909 he made the trip from Haileybury to St. Anne's alone and enjoyed the trip, it being the longest he had ever taken.

He has lived under six English kings and queens, and there was talk at the time of the coronation of sending him to England as the oldest living British subject.

He has never been out of Quebec or Ontario provinces and only once has he been more than 50 miles from the Ottawa river.

Last year he celebracted his birthday by chopping a cord of wood, but on Sunday he remained quiet, attending church in the morning. He is a well known figure about town and has all his faculties.

He has smoked and chewed tobacco since he was eleven years of age, and used liquor moderately. He has 13 children, 40 grandchildren, and a score of great-grandchildren.

"John Strange Winter" Dead.

London, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Arthur Stannard, the famous novelist, known throughout the world by her pseudonym of "John Strange Winter," died yesterday. She had been confined to her bed for the past five months as the result of an accident while stepping out of an elevator. She slipped and fell on her elbow. The wound never healed.

Mrs. Arthur Stannard, who was born at York, England, in 1876, had been for years one of the most prolific fiction writers. Her stories were chiefly about army life, and the late John Ruskin referred to her as "The author to whom we owed the most finished and faithful rendering ever yet given of the character of the British soldier."

Will Oppose Graham.

Ottawa, Dec. 15.—Interest is growing in the political situation in South Renfrew. The Conservatives are calling a convention to consider the selection of a candidate to oppose Hon. George P. Graham, to provide a seat for whom Thomas Low, M.P., resigned.

FIND GOLD HOARD HIDDEN BY STUMP

Located Near Where Man's Body Was Found—Increases Mystery of St. Luc Woods

St. John's, Que., December 15—The mysterious possibilities connected with the discovery of the skeleton of a man in the woods near St. Luc on Sunday last have increased with the discovery, beneath a stump nearby where the skeleton mouldered of a little hoard of gold, amounting to $330. Even after all clues have been discussed by a jury empanelled by Coroner Chevalier, however, the man's identity remains still unguessed.

The weather and the creatures of the woods had long since stripped the flesh from the bones. The material of the clothes which had once covered the body, lay in scraps about it, and the watch which the dead man had worn in life, had fallen through his skeleton and was almost washed underneath the ground by successive rains. The timepiece had a French movement. A set of prayer beads and a prayer book were the only other articles discovered. It is assumed from the presence of these that the man was a Roman Catholic. The body will be placed in the parish vault at the coroner's disposal until next spring.

The story of the skeleton is a constant topic of discussion in the vicinity of the long undiscovered tragedy. It will pass into history as one of the weird countryside tales which finally developed into masterpieces of the mysterious.

It is thought very strange that nobody in the vicinity can even guess at the man's identity. Nobody remembers having ever seen in the vicinity anyone who might be he. The body might have been dropped from an airship, so unaccountable is its presence in this not very thickly settled district.

ROBBERY AN HOUR CHICAGO'S RECORD

Crime Recently Flourishing Unchecked in the Windy City

One burglary, highway robbery or case of pocket picking for each hour of the twenty-four is Chicago's current record. The police found that 1210 crimes of this class had been reported in five days. Probably as many more never were reported. The loot ranged from 50 cents to $600.

Thirty of the victims were women, most of them being robbed as they walked in the streets. One was of $500, one of $215, another of $250 and five others of $100 or more.

Robberies in which automobiles were used were frequent. Three armed highwaymen entered a saloon in North California Avenue early one morning, drove the owner and a customer into the basement, locked them in and escaped in an automobile with $40 taken from the cash register and two boxes of cigars.

The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

Here at my feet was the explanation. The base of the iron candlestick accounted for the octagonal design; while the fragments of a shallow, saucer-like sea-shell, which had been utilized as a match-holder, accounted for the smaller spot. These two articles manifestly had reposed upon top of the étagère. The matches, to the number of half a dozen or so, were strewn upon the stairs and landing.

I picked up the candlestick from where it lay upon the landing, and examined it with much interest. It was a solid affair of ornamental iron, about fifteen inches high, and weighed some six or eight pounds—clearly a nasty weapon if wielded by a strong arm.

The bit of candle which it had contained lay near by, one end flattened out from having been crushed under somebody's foot.

At the time of his tragic death Mr. Page was in his sixty-first year, but a large and very vigorous man. He had been garbed in his street clothes (save for a frayed and purple smoking-jacket), thus contradicting Burke's belief that the household had retired. On the right temple the mark clearly showed where the candlestick's base had crushed the skull beneath. Death certainly had been instantaneous.

While I held the candlestick in my hand, Maillot suddenly exclaimed:

"By George, Swift! the old gentleman's death may have been owing to accident, after all!"

I looked keenly at him.

"Suppose he was here on the landing," the young fellow went on enthusiastically; "suppose somebody knocked that book-case affair suddenly forward—might've stumbled against it in the dark, you know—why, that heavy candlestick would have put a quietus on any man, falling on his head that way."

But I could not encourage this idea.

"I thought of that as soon as I saw the overturned whatnot," said I; "but several circumstances disprove it.

"In the first place, if the candlestick slid off the top, the dust would show it. Now the shell did slide, for you can plainly see where it scraped the dust in doing so.

"Again, considering your supposition, the candlestick would have struck about half-way up the flight; if Mr. Page had been at that point on the stairs—in the line of its fall—his head would have been too high to have encountered it. And then, Maillot, look here." I pointed to the object of interest itself.

"If you were carrying it while the candle was lighted," I said, "your thumb would be uppermost, and your little finger nearest the base—wouldn't they?"

"Naturally."

"Very well. Suppose, now, I reverse my grasp—my thumb toward the base, the little finger toward the top—I now have it in a pretty effective position for use as a bludgeon, eh?"

He was following me intently, and now nodded his head in token of comprehension.

"Look at those drippings," I went on; "the hand that last grasped the candlestick did not try to avoid them, although they were yet soft and warm from the flame. It doesn't require a trained eye, to determine that the thumb was nearest the base."

"I declare!" he wonderingly interrupted. "Blest if you're not right, Swift. The candle was burning when somebody grabbed it up for use as a club. Whoever it was he caught hold of it with a pretty firm grip."

"An additional argument," I added, "that it was put to some violent use. It isn't necessary to hold it anything near so tight merely to carry it.

"However," I pursued, "the circumstance is in a way unfortunate. While I can gather the idea that the hand wasn't inured to hard labor, and that it was a rather long and slender one, it closed so powerfully upon the drippings that the pattern of little lines—the vermiculations which differentiate one man's hand from everybody else's—is merely a blur. As a wax impression of the murderer's hand it is not a success."

My audience seemed to be immensely interested. But I was not yet through with the wax impression.

"One peculiarity is suggested, though: this is unmistakably the impress of a right hand, and the owner of the hand wore a broad ring on the second finger—an unusual place for a man to sport that sort of jewellery."

The third finger of Maillot's left hand was adorned with a modest signet ring, while the private secretary's abnormally long, bloodless digits bore no sign that they had ever been encircled by any ring at all.

The situation was serious enough, however; the imprint which I assumed to have been made by a ring was so blurred as to leave wide latitude for error respecting any deduction that I might make from it.

I gravely regarded young Maillot, and tried to picture him to myself in the role of a murderer, but was obliged to own that such a thing was exceedingly difficult to do. Still, all things are possible; and the next few minutes had to determine whether I should take him or Burke into custody—maybe both—or permit them to go about their business.

"Mr. Maillot," I said by and by, "I'll tell you frankly: this business looks pretty bad for you and Burke—unless between you you can help me to place it in an entirely different light."

He paled, but met my level look steadily enough.

As I have already said, he was a good-looking chap, dark of hair, his eyes grey, and he possessed an honest, open countenance that stood a whole lot in his favor. He was tall, with a well-knit, athletic figure that made me fancy he had been an heroic member of a university football team.

But I have known just such men—steady, upright and governed by high standards of conduct—to become in the twinkling of an eye red-handed assassins.

Your man of lofty ideas and honor, in truth, is the more deeply sensible of injury and sometimes the easiest incensed. He is the more keenly hurt when his most sacred feelings are suddenly outraged. Finish off his equipment with a hot, passionate temper, and his resentment is likely to strike as blindly and as effectively as a bolt from a surcharged thundercloud. It is the motive that either palliates or makes the crime. A moment's previous reflection often stays the hand from a deed which a lifetime of after regret can not recall.

I could associate these possibilities with Maillot, and yet extend to him my sympathy; for controlling impulses are infinitely various and sometimes not to be held to account.

And so, too, could I have done with Burke, if he had betrayed one trait of a nature to inspire sympathy or engage my goodwill. Still, I meant not to be in the least influenced by my own feelings in the matter, nor do I now believe that I was; I determined to be as just and impartial as possible. Bear in mind that, as yet, I had been given no hint of a possible motive.

After a bit Maillot said very soberly:

"The possibility of such a thing never for an instant occurred to me; but—Swift—I suppose I must meet it somehow."

"You're beginning excellently," I returned sincerely. "That's the way to look at a thing of this kind. If you'll not forget that I'm inclined to be kindly disposed toward you, why, I dare say we can, between us, clear up whatever mystery there is in one-two-three order.

"For example, why you came here last night—your business with Mr. Page—when you tell me that perhaps—"

I stopped. Maillot's face had suddenly become a mirror of consternation.

"Good Heavens, Swift!" he gasped, recoiling. "I—I can't do that!"

I promptly grew grave. And then, from the head of the stairs, came the slow, colorless voice of Alexander Burke.

"How about the Paternoster ruby, Mr. Maillot?" inquired he.

Maillot's hands closed spasmodically; his teeth clicked together; and he slewed round like a released spring.

Next instant, had it not been for the intervening stairs and Stodger's and my quick interposition of our bodies between the two men, matters certainly would have gone hard with the private secretary. Maillot's temper was like gunpowder; the quiet question seemed to sting him to an unreasonable fury.

"You—you spy! You dirty sneak!" he snarled viciously

CHAPTER IV.

The Ruby

Unless I wanted affairs to get away from me entirely, it was high time to assume complete control of them, and immediately to abandon all temporizing measures.

I turned Maillot about without ceremony.

"Go with this man to the library, Stodger," I peremptorily directed. "Burke, you come with me."

In the next ten seconds I had the big library table between the two, Burke impassive, while Maillot glared at him savagely. I wanted to give them time to cool—Maillot, at any rate; so I took advantage of the opportunity to scribble a note to the Captain, hinting at the complications promised by Felix Page's death, and requesting that I be permitted to retain Stodger as an assistant—for I liked the stout, cheerful man who was willing and quick to act upon no more than a hint, and at the same time not disposed to interfere at all with my own modes of procedure. This message I gave to him, requesting that he entrust it to either Callahan or O'Brien for delivery. "Tell 'em to clear out," I added; "I have no use for them here."

Then I thrust my hands into my coat pockets, and fell to pacing the floor while I reflected. That is to say, I reflected after I had secured a good, firm grasp upon the thoughts which skurried helter-skelter, like a flushed covey of quail, through my brain.

The Paternoster ruby!

Here was the very thing I had tried so futilely to recall when the Captain first mentioned Felix Page's death!

Like a flash, the phrase had opened up to me an illimitable vista of possibilities. I went over in mind all that I had ever heard of this famous gem, and wondered—indeed, to tell only the bare truth—I thrilled with the very idea: could it have had any part or place in the financier's death?

The Paternoster ruby!

EXPECTED TO DIE FROM CANCER.
Morriacy's No. 11 Tablets promptly relieved as usual.

L'AVENIR, QUE., June 10, 1910.

"I suffered so intensely with pain in my stomach that I was sure I had cancer and could not live, and had actually made some plans for impending death. I had been suffering about a year, and during that time my family doctor had given me everything he knew of in dyspepsia remedies. They would help me for a while, but the disease was getting the best of me. My husband, who runs a store in this place, handles a line of medicines, and was carrying yours, and he decided that as the doctor was doing me no good, that I must try your No. 11 Tablets for Dyspepsia, because they were so well recommended—but not to say anything to my doctor about it. I did as my husband directed, and in four days was able to eat meat and other nourishing foods, which I had not been able to do for many months. My recovery came very fast, and now I am perfectly well—and have regained the 40 lbs. of flesh which I had lost. I told my doctor what I had done, and he could hardly believe it. I feel it my duty now that I am cured to give this testimonial and to highly recommend to all sufferers of Indigestion or Dyspepsia these wonderful No. 11 Tablets, which seem almost miraculous to me."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naysdom, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone, Co., Kingston, Ont.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Doing Great Work in Saskatchewan

Mrs. Emil Carlson Tells How Quickly and Completely They Cured Her Kidney Trouble.

Colonsay, Sask, Dec. 15.—(Special)—No remedy has done as much for the wheat growers of Saskatchewan as Dodd's Kidney Pills. They occupy a place in the family medicine chest on nearly every farm, and every day brings fresh evidence of the great work they are doing. One of the latest to sing their praises in this neighborhood is Mrs. Emel Carlson. Here is what she is telling her many friends:

"For about two years I was sorely troubled with Kidney Disease brought on by a strain. My heart bothered me. My sleep was broken and unrefreshing and I was always tired and nervous. The least exertion would cause me to perspire freely, and my perspiration had an unpleasant odor.

"Three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me. They are certainly the best medicine I ever used."

If you have any of Mrs. Carlson's symptoms your kidneys are wrong. Make them right with Dodd's Kidney Pills.

COW AND THE MOON

Patrons of the Grand will be pleased to learn that the Cow and the Moon, a companion play to The Cat and the Fiddle, will be presented here on Friday and Saturday of next week.

THE TURK IS A FIGHTER.

Moslem Soldier Is One of the Greatest Warriors In the World.

The Turk, between whose country and Italy a state of war exists, is one of the greatest warriors in the world. On sea he is helpless against Italy, as the Turkish navy is almost a negligible quantity, but on land the Moslem soldier is capable of giving a good account of himself.

From the founding of the Islamic empire up to not so many years ago Turkey carved her path to fortune with her sword. In 1853 and in 1877, in her wars with Russia, the Turkish soldier showed remarkable capacity and valor. The heroic defense of Plevna won the admiration of the world. Turkey, although crushed, was not disgraced. Despite wretched equipment and bad commissary arrangements the Turkish troops showed themselves far superior, man to man, to the Russian. In 1880 German officers undertook the reorganization of the Turkish army and drafted military regulations for the whole empire, which came into force in 1887. Ten years afterward Greece wantonly provoked the Turks to war. In a few weeks' time Turkey had defeated the Greeks, occupied the whole of Thessaly, and Greece was only saved from the effects of her folly by the intervention of the powers.

There is no army in Europe that has such a mixture of other nations in it. The German element among the officers is strong; so is the French. There are a fair number of Italians. Some Austrians and some Russians are also found among the captains and majors and colonels. So far as officers and men go the Turkish army is probably the most democratic military body in Europe or Asia. It has a peculiar attraction for a restless spirit that wants action. The Turkish troops always have a chance at fighting somewhere. There is trouble along the northern frontier in the Balkans continually. In Armenia there is not so much real fighting as there is killing out of hand in the suppression of so-called insurrections. The Turk is as near to being fearless as soldiers can be. He goes into battle without a qualm. Being a fatalist death has no terrors for him.

The Ottoman empire is a tremendous mixture of races and is constantly in a state of ferment. There is such a conglomeration of peoples and religions that it would require a man of transcendent genius and great patience to work out a scheme that would keep them all half way contented and at peace. That is one of the reasons why there is always something for the Turkish army to be busy about. Another reason is that the Turks themselves, who are not in the majority by any means in this congress of races, want to be the dominent element in the empire.

Eat Flowers.

Not only does the violet please the sense of smell, but it pleases the palate as well. In days gone by a favorite sweetmeat was made of candied violets; while a sherbet made of extract of violets is said to have surpassed any other extracts.

All over Europe it is the custom to mingle violets, roses and lime blossoms with preserves to add a flowery element to the fruity flavor. Crystallized carnations, lavender, syringa and lilac preserves are made in Turkey.

Sandwiches of a floral variety are usually made of nasturtiums, which is probably the most useful edible flower that grows here. In England, sandwiches made of finely-chopped spearmint, spread over slices of thin bread-and-butter, are often served.

The tuber of the dahlia is claimed to be excellent for food, although somewhat acrid. The dandelion makes an excellent wine. But it is the cooks of China and Japan who make the best use of flowers as food. They study the various mixtures, scents, etc., until they are able to arrange an entire banquet of nothing but flower dishes.

Butcher Birds.

Many years ago when rice was dear in eastern China efforts were made to bring it from Luzon, where it was abundant, says Kirkland in his "Cyclopedia of Commercial and Business Anecdotes." At Manila there was, however, a singular law to the effect that no vessel for China should be allowed to load with rice unless it brought to Manila a certain number of cages full of the little "butcher birds," well known for their usefulness. The reason for this most eccentric commercial regulation simply was that the rice in Luzon suffered much from locusts, and these locusts were destroyed in great numbers by butcher birds.

An Air Brake's Power.

Some idea of the power of an air brake may be gained from the following facts:

It takes a powerful locomotive drawing a train of 10 passenger cars a distance of about five miles to reach a speed of 60 miles an hour on a straight and level track. The brakes will stop the same train from a speed of 60 miles an hour in 700 feet. Roughly it may be stated that a train may be stopped by the brakes in about three per cent. of the distance that must be covered to give it its speed.

Hardly Conceivable.

The boy whose business it was to answer the telephone rushed into the room of the senior partner.

"Just got a message saying that your house was on fire," he said.

"Dear me," returned the senior partner, in a bewildered sort of way. "I knew my wife was pretty hot about something when I left home this morning; but I didn't think it was so bad as to set the house on fire."

Real Farmers.

Lord and Lady Carnarvon are genuine and practical farmers. "Back to the land" is the motto of the earl. He preaches it for all he is worth, and has no patience with those who tell him farming does not pay.

THE GOOD OLD SUN

W. LYMAN HUME, Esq., M.D., says:

I took my last policy in the "Sun Life" five years ago. You may think how agreeably surprised I was to receive your letter of the 28th ult., informing me that my share of the profits earned by my Policy during the last five years amounted to $205.80 IN CASH; or if I preferred they would give me $46.65 a year for for the next five years, to be used as an annual reduction of my yearly premium; or better still they would increase my policy by $311.00, making it worth $5,311 instead of $5,000, upon which I would continue to pay the old premium. This is the option I have chosen.

Suppose that instead of insuring I had placed the amount of my premium $277.75, in the Bank each year, and had allowed the interest to be compounded for five years at three per cent., the interest allowed by all safe, conservative Banks. What would be the results? To-day I should receive $130.11 as the accumulated interest from the Bank, instead of $205.80 from the "Sun Life," a difference of $75.70; but in addition to this the Company has carried the risk on my life for $5,000, which they might have been called at any time to pay.

This is in marked contrast with the so-called Fraternal Societies. I have a policy of $1,000 in one of the best of them; I was notified the other day that my policy would be reduced one-half, or my premium doubled. The "Sun" increases my policy, or reduces my premium; the Fraternal Society reduces my policy or increases my premium; it should not be a difficult matter to choose which is the better system of the two.

The "Good Old Sun," may it never set except to rise again with increased effulgence!

How a Big Railroad Keeps Xmas

THE SNOWSHOE CLUB AT THE CHATEAU · QUEBEC

The Grand Bounce Canadian Snow Shoe Club

N the year of 1925, if you take up a daily paper of December 25th, you may possibly see a dispatch from the city of "Nowhere," reading somewhat like this:—

(Canadian Associated Press Dispatch.)

Nowhere, Dec. 24th. — Leaping lightly to the Engineer's seat at midnight last night, Santa Claus grasped the throttle of the big locomotive and quickly the huge special train hurled itself into the dark night carrying with it joy and the Christmas spirit to the people the wide world over.

We say possibly you may see a dispatch like the above, but of course there is also a possibility that you won't, because in the first case it is more than likely that after using them for so many years, Santa won't want to give up "the big sleigh and the eight tiny reindeer," and in the second case, it is just possible that with the big traffic over the railways at Christmas time that even such a very important personage as Santa Claus, couldn't command a special train.

Naturally Christmas is just about the busiest season with a big railway. Not only is there a big freight and express movement but the passenger traffic jumps into big figures. Everybody has a desire to visit the old home at least once a year, and at Christmas, when the snow is on the ground and the spirit of doing and giving is in the air, the desire takes root, grows and finally materialises. There is a wild packing of suitcases, a hurried scurrying to make the "last purchases," and then there is a rush for the station and the train. December is the time when the big rush on the railways first starts, and from then until the last sad obsequies are said over the dead body of the old year railway station officials and sleep are only on the faintest of speaking terms. Long special trains "puff, puff" their way out of the big stations. The colored porters go about on the run, the transfer men work overtime crowding Christmas parcels into the Express cars. The mail men in the post office cars take off their coats roll up their sleeves and sort with twice their ordinary speed. The train despatcher stops going home for lunch, the station master likewise, and then as the December 25th draws nearer, things buzz faster and faster. The man in the information bureau, who ordinarily answers anywhere from 2,000 to 3,000 questions per day now answers 6,000. Extra cars are added to the regular trains. New trains are made up and dispatched within an hour and the station officials get their boots half soled and work harder and later than before. Everybody is going "home." The station is filled with a conglomerate assembly. Over there the fair Co-ed and the Varsity Captain of class '14 scan the pages of the time-table. They are going home to spend the holiday in Cushionville. To the right is the small shop girl who lives at Yorktown, just twenty miles out. She got off an hour earlier than usual to catch the train. On the left a fat man puffs a big cigar and coldly glances at the raging multitude. He wants you to think that he is not at all excited at the idea of getting home. He appears disinterested, but all the same the chances are ten to one that he is thinking of that rocking horse with the real mane that he shipped home to his grandson yesterday. Over there, touching elbows with a matron of sixty, is the young dry goods clerk going back to father and mother on the farm. On all sides are school marms, students, clergy, laborers, clerks, college professors, young maidens, maiden aunts,—all with beaming faces and prominent parcels, and all waiting for the grinding of the wheels and the clang of the bell, that will announce that they are off on their Christmas journey.

THIRD CABIN PASSENGERS PLAYING IN THE SAND PIT ON BOARD THE "EMPRESSES" XMAS MORNING

The freight and express traffic on a great railway at Christmas time is enormous. There was a time when the greater part of the C. P. R.'s freight and express traffic was from East to West, but with recent years the traffic from the West to the East has steadily increased. This is owing to the great influx of new settlers into Western Canada. The great majority of these new settlers, of course, came from Britain, and at Christmas time they send home to their relatives and friends numerous presents. During the days preceding the sailing of the last Christmas boats the freight and express matter is forwarded from the West to Quebec and St. John in a perfect flood, and of a varied and interesting nature are the presents sent to friends across the Atlantic. Talk to Canadian railway men and they will tell you that the presents, which are perhaps the most popular with the new settlers are the souvenirs of life in Canada,—miniature snowshoes, toboggans, etc. These are transported from Canada by thousands at Christmas time.

But it is not the increased passenger and freight traffic alone that causes the hustle and bustle in railway circles at Christmas time. On a big railway there are thousands of Christmas dinners to serve, and there are all sorts of Christmas celebrations to prepare for. At Christmas time we happen to know that the C.P.R. orders the turkeys and plum puddings, etc., for its Christmas dinners by the thousands. When the morning of the 24th this year comes into view, all of the company's sixty-seven steamships will not be in commission, but there will be a sufficient number of them out on the broad bosom of the ocean to render necessary the preparation of enough meals to make the figures look pretty large. Then there are the guests at the C.P.R.'s seventeen hotels to feed and the passengers in the dining cars, and altogether the figures are startling.

The Start at, Ste Agathe Que.

Christmas is always a festive occasion on the Company's steamships. Over night Santa Claus and his invisible minions work wonderful changes in the appearance of the boats. When the morning of the twenty-fifth dawns, great streamers float in the breezes from the mast heads. Gay bunting and flags "flap, flap," from the lines and the big liners look quite captivating in their holiday clothes. During the day on shipboard, there are sports and concerts and dinners and everybody, from the captain down to the smallest passenger, in the third cabin, joins in the celebration and is happy. First of all, there is a Christmas tree. Christmas Day would not be complete without a tree, so the passengers in the first and second cabins club together, and give the smaller children in the third cabin the time of their lives. The big tree droops under the load of presents. Everybody contributes something, toys, bundles of all sizes and shapes. There are dolls with real hair, and that open and close their eyes. There are toy rubber elephants that squeak in the most "unelephantic" fashion when poked in the right spot. There are toy aeroplanes, toy automobiles, and toy balloons, and occasionally, too, some big, jovial passenger from the first or second cabins will "dress up," and play Santa Claus. Not until the presents are all in their places and the preparations concluded, are the small children of the third cabin allowed into the sacred presence of the tree. Then when the doors are thrown back and the treasures displayed, what a happy giggling and romping there is. For some of them it is their first real Christmas. A couple of years ago on board one of the Empresses there was coming out from Liverpool, a father and mother and two small children. Life had been a failure in England, and the family was on its way to Canada to make a new start. One of the small children was a small girl six years old, who, owing to an infirmity, was unable to join in the play of the other third cabin children. It was lonesome sitting there all alone all day long, and while the little maid did her best to hide that fact, she did not succeed altogether. Then on Christmas morning there was handed to her from the tree, a great big life-size doll, contributed by a first cabin passenger. That marked a new epoch in the little girls' life. After that it did not matter that she could not build wonderful mud pies in the sand pit with the other children, or play shuffle board. It was her first doll, and she was perfectly happy.

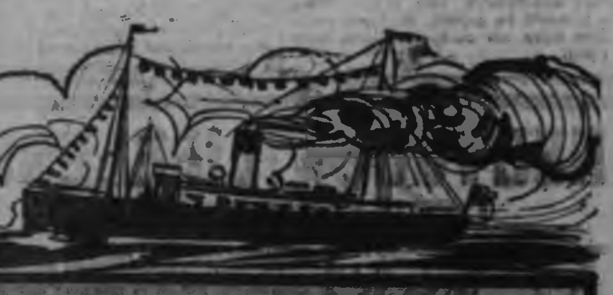
Up in the first and second cabins there are equally stirring scenes. Under the influence of the day there is a general disregarding of the conventionalities. There are games of all kinds. At dinner time in all three cabins the tables groan under the weight of the turkeys, and plum puddings, the fruits, nuts and candies with which they are loaded. In the evening there is a big concert. It is really remarkable the amount of high class talent that is present at these functions—actors travelling between the two continents, amateur and professional singers, expert pianists, entertainers, and occasionally small companies of theatrical players. Outside the wind may be blowing a small gale, but inside the ship, there is warmth, gaiety, and the true Christmas spirit.

At the big railway hotels life on Christmas Day is just as gay as on the steamships. At the Chateau Frontenac, at Quebec; at the Place Viger, at Montreal; at the Royal Alexandra at Winnipeg; and at Vancouver and Victoria the fun runs high. Perhaps there is no hotel on the continent that is quite as renowned, for the festival spirit which pervades its halls at Christmas time as the Chateau Frontenac. The old city of Quebec is wonderful at any time, but at Christmas it is especially entrancing. This is the day when the gay snow-shoe clubs gather at the Chateau. All day long they tramp the parks and country of Quebec, gathering in the evening at the Chateau, tired, but with ravenous appetites. The Chateau is the centre for the festivities for the whole city. From here set out the parties for the toboggan slides. From here go the parties to the skating rinks and the curling rinks. From here leave merry sleighing parties, the bells on the cutters singing a gladsome song. In the evening there is more fun. There is a big dance in the ball room, where guests from the Chateau mix with their friends from the city. The hall is decorated with thousands of flags for the occasion, the big grate fires send up the open chimneys showers of sparks from the Yule logs, the orchestra plays dance music and another Christmas Day goes all too soon.

XMAS BALL AT THE CHATEAU, QUEBEC

At Montreal it is becoming the fashionable thing for society to take the railway up to Ste. Agathe for Christmas Day. Here is situated the only bob-sleighing course on the American continent. This is a new sport for Canada, but it is one that bids fair to outrival even the toboggan. The sleighs are built on the same lines as those used in Switzerland. The runners are braced far apart and the hood at the front slopes back towards the steering wheel. On a course like that at Ste. Agathe these sleds travel at an enormous speed,—a mile a minute being often made, when the slide is in good condition. It is an exhilarating sport this, and on Christmas Day the scene at Ste. Agathe is a gay one.

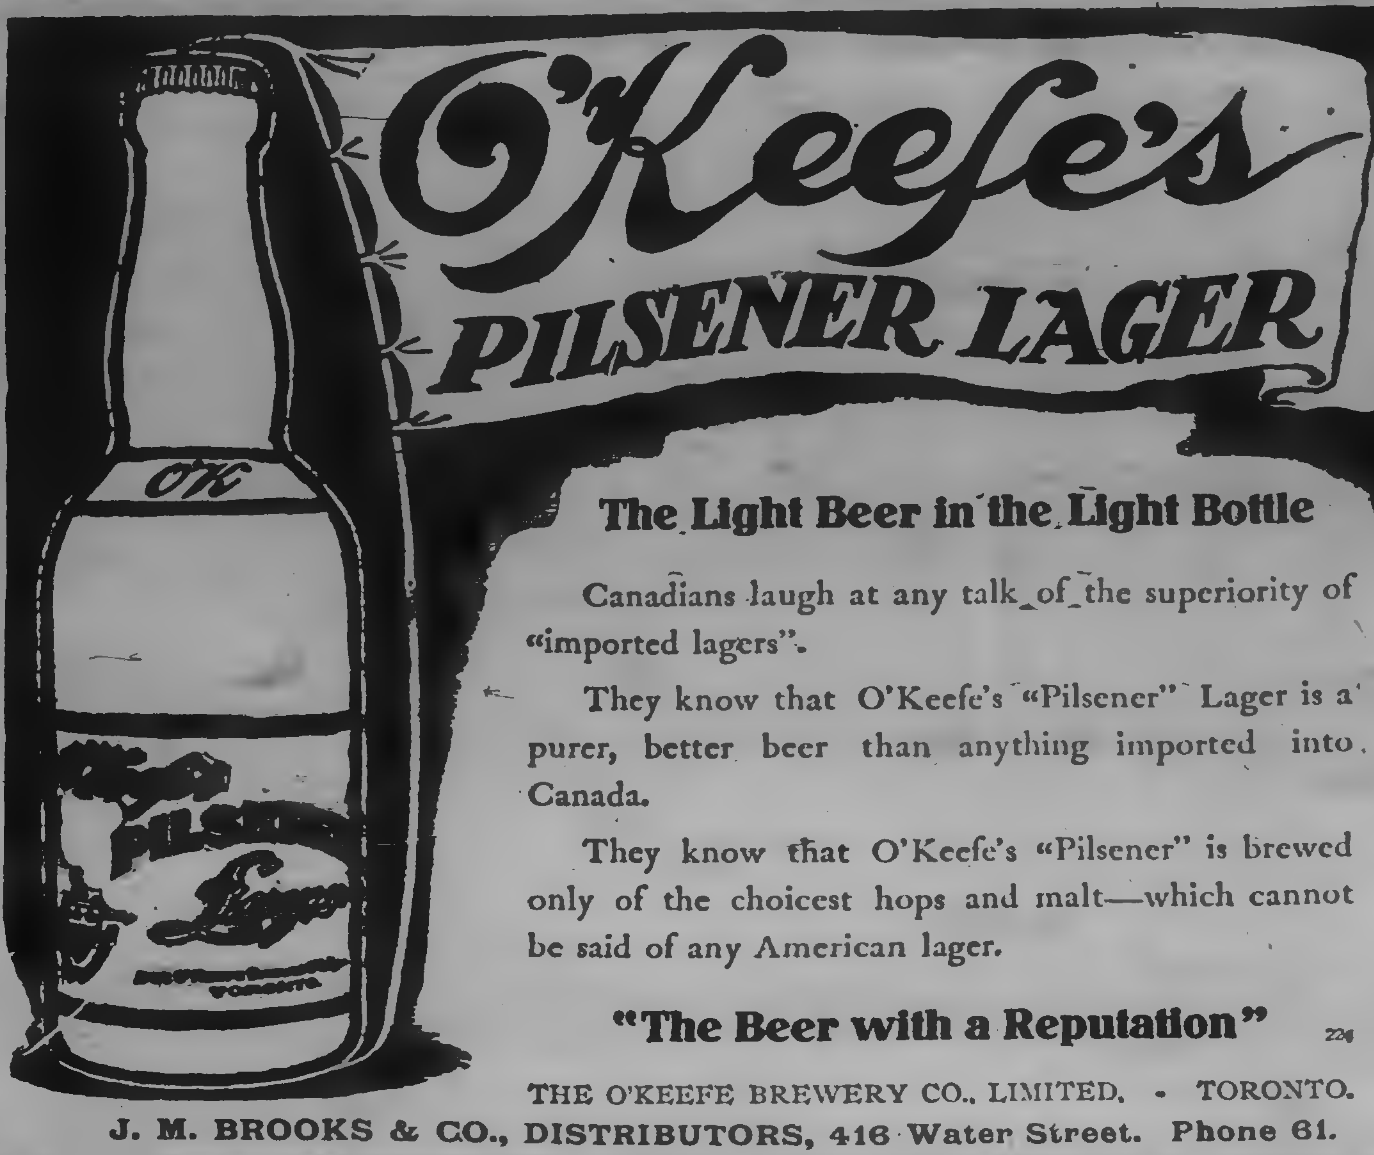
Whenever possible, travellers through the Rocky Mountains at Christmas time try to arrange to spend December 25th at Banff. Banff is an ideal place to spend Christmas Day. Here is the whole big Canadian National Park spread out before one. The park is beautiful in summer, and it is no less attractive in the winter. The towering mountains all around give an air of seclusion and at the same time they suggest that the little village of Banff has been placed there for the sole purpose of pursuing winter sports. And what sport it is. One can drive around Tunnel Mountain, with the whole valley spread out in the foreground. One can explore on skis the course of the Spray, and pass beneath the shadow of Mt. Rundle. One can rush madly down the slopes of Mt. Sulphur on a toboggan, or tread on snowshoes the the mazy paths of the woods.



Bob Sleigh Race, Xmas Morning Ste Agathe. Que.

Even on its trains running on Christmas Day the C.P.R. endeavors to keep up the spirit of the day. In the sleeping cars in the morning the colored porter wakes you with a hearty "Merry Christmas, to yo', suh." When you enter the dining cars you will find there a special menu for the occasion, and the car is nicely decorated with evergreens and bunting.

That's the way it is throughout the whole C.P.R. system. It is a big railway, but it is not too big to enter fully into the spirit of Christmas Day.



The Light Beer in the Light Bottle

Canadians laugh at any talk of the superiority of "imported lagers".

They know that O'Keefe's "Pilsener" Lager is a purer, better beer than anything imported into Canada.

They know that O'Keefe's "Pilsener" is brewed only of the choicest hops and malt—which cannot be said of any American lager.

FIGHT AGAINST THE WHITE PLAGUE

Buy Calendars and Stamps at the Stores and Banks

The pretty calendars and stamps issued by the Peterboro Health Association are now on sale in all the city drug stores, the city banks and also with several merchants. The proceeds from the sale of the above are to be used in the fight against tuberculosis, which our doctors tell us is quite prevalent in our midst. Those who have been ill themselves or have had illness in their homes, no matter of what kind, never turn a deaf ear to the needs of the poor sick, but sometimes the strong and healthy ones do not stop to think of the hopelessness and suffering of those who are poor and have not the means to procure medical attention and advice, and often knock things which well meaning people undertake to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunate ones. Are you going to be a booster or a knocker? If the former, buy some of the stamps and calendars and help on a good cause. Don't knock the Peterboro Health Association. It is but a "child in the cradle." Help to put it on its feet and give it a chance. Give it a smile and a pat in the back even if you can only buy a few stamps. It will all help to fight the good fight against the white scourge.

Both Satisfied

(Montreal Gazette.)

The situation in Ontario over the election of a new Legislature seems to be that the Conservatives are satisfied with having almost three-fourths of the members and the Liberals are thankful that they got as many as one-fourth. The man who trains himself to expect little in politics does have his compensations now and then.

Poe's Short Stories.

There are in the best of Poe's brief tales a constructive skill, a command of design and a gift of decoration rare in any literature and almost unknown in English, which is ever unduly negligent of form. And no one need wonder that Poe's short stories wandered swiftly out of our languages into French and Italian and Spanish, into German and Scandinavian and Bohemian, into strange tongues where no other American author, except Fenimore Cooper, had ever before penetrated. His weird psychologic studies have influenced later writers as unlike as Maupassant and Richepin, Fitz-James, O'Brien, Robert Louis Stevenson and Rudyard Kipling. His tales of a mystery solved at last by observation and deduction have been imitated by Dumas and Sardou, by Gaboriau and Boisgobey, by Wilkie Collins and Conan Doyle. And Sherlock Holmes, the only fictitious character to win international recognition in the final years of the nineteenth century, is the reincarnation of a figure first projected by Poe.—Brander Matthews in Century.

The Handkerchief Came From Italy.

A writer in a French review points out that the handkerchief does not come to us from China, as has been generally believed, but from Italy. It is only 300 years ago that the handkerchief of a Venetian lady was considered a great curiosity. The handkerchief crossed the Alps and was received with great favor at the court of France. Handkerchiefs were then made of cambric or lawn and bordered with Venetian or Alencon lace. Under Henry III. of France the sachet was introduced. The handkerchief was taken into Germany a little later and was known as the "fazzoletto," after its Italian name. Only persons of quality used it, and an edict in 1595 was published at Dresden interdicting the use of the handkerchief among the trading classes.—London Globe.

CHANGING SENTENCES.

Some Prisoners Who Transfer Their Identities.

"I got the other man into a mess, and I had a right to do his sentence," remarked Thomas Flaunty, when charged at the Southwestern Police Court, London, with defeating justice by procuring the escape of another prisoner.

Flaunty, it appears, was sentenced at Woolwich in June last to twenty-one days' imprisonment, and at the same time his companion, a man named Tyler, was awarded three months' imprisonment.

But Flaunty, considering that he was the principal offender, managed to exchange names with Tyler at Wandsworth Prison, and their punishments were reversed. The ruse, however, was discovered by a warder.

This is not the first time that a similar trick has been played on the prison authorities, and, oddly enough, it was the same prison—Wandsworth—which was the scene of the last attempt of the kind.

In December, 1906, two men, whom we will call X. and Y., were in prison for short terms. X.'s time was up on Tuesday, and Y.'s on the following Saturday. The two men managed to exchange identification cards, with the result that Y. went away on Tuesday, wearing X.'s clothes.

On the following Saturday, when it was X.'s turn to be released, he complained that his clothes were gone, and flatly refused to wear Y.'s, which were in rags. To get over the difficulty and save bother, the warders are said to have subscribed and purchased a new suit for the man.

In France, except in penal cases, it is not usual to call upon a prisoner to serve his sentence immediately after judgment. It is the custom to allow a man a month or so, in order that he may arrange his business affairs.

Some little time ago, a Parisian commercial traveler, named Eugene Gulin, was sentenced to a fortnight's imprisonment for assault.

Gulin, in due course, was required to present himself at the Sante Prison, but when the time came he found it so awkward to leave his business that he arranged with his friend, Alphonse Soufflet, to serve the sentence in his place. Soufflet was to have ten shillings, a new suit of clothes, and to become Gulin's guest for a month.

Soufflet was an excellent prisoner, and all would no doubt have gone well, but that he foolishly confided his secret to a false friend, who promptly gave him away.

Soufflet was then re-arrested, charged with personation and with fraudulently obtaining food and lodging at the expense of the state, while the unfortunate Gulin was also taken off to serve his term.

A most extraordinary case of convict personation occurred three years ago in the Italian prison of Barri. A man named Serao was serving a four months' sentence for complicity in a burglary, and was counting the days to his release, when he would be married to his sweetheart, who had vowed never to forsake him, when news reached him that she had played him false.

Frantic with rage, Serao approached another convict, who was due to go out next day, and managed to persuade or bribe him to exchange identities.

Before night he had found his false sweetheart, and stabbed her to death, after which he calmly gave himself up to the authorities.

Careful of His Gun.

In one of the small mountain towns of Kentucky lived Dan, a half wit, with whom the boys often went hunting. On one of these trips Dan and the young man with him were between two hills when a rabbit jumped up in front of them and ran up the hill to Dan's right. The other fellow, being on Dan's left, did not wish to take the chance of shooting at the rabbit for fear of an accident, so he said: "There he goes, Dan! Shoot him; shoot him!" But Dan simply stood still and watched the rabbit disappear over the hill, and his partner wanted to know why he didn't shoot. After a moment's silence he answered, talking through his nose: "Did you take me for a fool? Do you think I was going to strain my gun shooting uphill?"—Judge.

RELICS OF THE GREAT DEAD.

$1,500 for a Lock of Nelson's Hair Paid at Sale.

At the Manor House, Piddletrenthide, near Dorchester, Eng., Messrs. Waring and Gillow's sale of the valuable collection of works of art and historical and royal relics formed by Mr. John Gawler Bridge and his son, Mr. John Bridge, was held. The bulk of the collection was made by a member of the firm of Messrs. Rundell, Bridge and Rundell, crown jewellers, and by Mr. Gawler Bridge, who was a groom of the Great Chamber to King William IV. and Queen Victoria. The articles offered for sale include an antique jewelled pendant, formerly the property of Queen Elizabeth; a Cavalier's badge of Charles I., and ormolu escutcheon from Napoleon's coronation coach, a sword scabbard worn by the Duke of Wellington during the Peninsula war, and an autograph letter from Lady Emma Hamilton. This letter from Lady Hamilton, addressed to George IV. when Prince of Wales, encloses a lock of Lord Nelson's hair, which was included in the sale. In her letter, Lady Hamilton writes: "I have opened the paper with his dear hair for the first time, and am most unhappy and agitated." $1,500 was to-day paid for the letter and the hair.

Three hundred pounds were also paid for a half-length portrait of the Duke of Wellington. The glazed case of the frame encloses the silver gilt scabbard, which was presented to the duke by Indian officers and worn by him in the Peninsula wars. Also enclosed in the frame are an autograph letter of the duke written from Paris in 1814, and a Waterloo medal.

An Artist's Lucky Number.

Sir Lawrence Alma Tadema, who was prevented by illness from opening the autumn exhibition in Liverpool, England, has been so long in England that one may be excused for regarding him as a native. He is of Dutch birth, and his origin shows itself in the detail of many of his pictures and in the distinctive beauty of his home.

"Hard work and plenty of it" is his motto, and four or five o'clock in the summer mornings finds him at his easel. His lucky number is 17, for his wife was at that age when he met her. Seventeen was the number of their first house, the work of rebuilding their present house was begun August 17, and he and his family "moved in" on November 17, about twenty years ago.

In this house is the famous "Hall of Panels," consisting of 40 pictures, each specially designed and painted by different artist friends. When the late Lord Leighton offered to do a panel for Sir Lawrence, the latter sent him the dimensions of the space selected for him to fill. The next evening they met at dinner at a friend's house, and were placed opposite each other. The subject of the impending picture came up. Lord Leighton took up a dessert knife, and holding it up, said to Sir Lawrence: "My dear Tadema, what kind of a subject do you expect me to paint on this?"

Liked to See It.

It is about nine years ago since Mr. Alfred Sutro, whose new play, "The Perplexed Husband," has been described by one critic as "almost a masterpiece," made his first hit with "The Walls of Jericho," and he has told how he was so delighted to see a big board on the side of an omnibus advertising this play that he mounted the omnibus and rode along with the title of his play for half an hour, though the vehicle was taking him miles out of his way. Mr. Sutro's pet aversion is untidiness, and if he makes a "wide" when aiming a pelleted error at the waste-paper basket, he leaves his chair in search of the misdirected screw, and, when he has found it, makes sure of a bull's-eye by deliberately placing it where he had intended it should go. "If Mr. Sutro," says one who knows him, "were a carpenter instead of a writer, he would pick up the chips after every bit of planing, and separate the screws from the nails after every bit of joining."

When the King Motors.

It may not be generally known that the drivers of the motor-cars of the King, the Prince of Wales, and the Duke of Connaught are all policemen. The late King's instructions were, "Run no risks, but lose no time." The latter clause used to be obeyed so implicitly that Lord Derby once, when returning from Newmarket a "horse's length" behind the King, on whom he was in attendance, was stopped in his motor by the police at Barnet—a happy illustration of the principle that the King can do no wrong. The royal drivers do not rely on a motor-horn alone. Alongside them on the box there sits a footman, who plays a key-bugle to announce the approach of the car.

Wanted His Name.

The following anecdote is related of the late Lord Glasgow.

His lordship was traveling by rail one day, and tendered a "fiver" to the booking-clerk for a ticket.

"Put your name on it"; said the youth.

Lord Glasgow endorsed it as requested and handed the note back.

"Here, you old idiot!" cried the clerk. "I want to know who you are."

A Notable Meal.

The Duke of Fife is the only man living who began a meal as an earl and finished it as a duke. The meal was his own wedding-breakfast at Buckingham Palace. His title was Earl of Fife, but Queen Victoria announced during the reception that she had raised her newly-made grandson-in-law to the rank of a duke.

DECLARES RULING TO BE MONSTROUS

Argument is Concluded in the Famous Hebert Annulment Case—Decree Called a Trap by Arnold Wainwright.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—"If the system of law in this province is what it is represented to be in the judgments of Justices Jette and Lemieux, it is a monstrosity and one designed to entrap the unwary, for under such circumstances a person might go before an officer who has been given the power by the state to celebrate marriage, and who accordingly assumes such right and is protected by the state; a person, I say, might be married by that officer, who acted in virtue of a license emanating from the King's authority. If that marriage is invalid —not on account of any restriction existing in the only law of which the person can be assumed to have any knowledge, but on account of the provisions and ordinances of old dead and gone French kings, or on account of hair-splitting distinctions of learned jurists, all of which the person cannot be expected to understand—then the law is not a protection to the public as all laws of marriage are supposed to be, but a menace both to the state and the individual.

"Therefore, I would ask your lordship's ruling in the matter in order to determine at once and for all whether the law in this province is the monstrous and unreasonable thing it is held to be. Under a system where only one set of ministers would be given the exclusive right to officiate at marriage ceremonies there would, at any rate, be no danger of deception for innocent parties, but, under a system where the validity of the union is said to depend purely and simply on the faith of the contracting parties, there is a constant danger to all concerned."

In these words did Arnold Wainwright terminate his argument in the Hebert marriage annulment yesterday afternoon. Mr. Wainwright endeavored by the historical argument to show that from the period intervening between the cession (1760) and the promulgation of the present code in 1866, there was nothing to warrant the contention put forth in the judgments of Justices Lemieux and Jette—or, in other words, there was nothing to support the argument that two Catholics would be validly married only by a priest of their faith.

As the case in the interests of Dame Clouatre is now closed, the ruling of the court in the matter is looked forward to with expectancy.

WIRELESS FOR THE LAKES

Government to Erect Chain of Stations.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—The first report of the Department of the Naval Service was issued yesterday. It deals with the carrying out of the naval program of the late Government, the work of the fisheries, protective service and of the hydrographic survey, and the wireless and radio telegraphic services.

Arrangement are in progress, it says, for the establishment of a chain of wireless stations on the lakes from Port Arthur to Kingston, including Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie, Midland, Tobermory, Sarnia, Port Stanley, Port Colborne, Toronto and Kingston, with the station at Kingston of sufficient range to communicate with Montreal. Three new radio-telegraphic coast stations were established during the year.

Out of an appropriation of $3,000,000 for the naval service, there was an expenditure of $1,790,000. On the fisheries protection service there was expended $272,200, out of an appropriation of $301,500. Upon the hydrographic surveys, out of an appropriation of $300,000, there was expended $163,118. The total appropriation of $150,000 for wireless stations, was spent. the grand total appropriation for all these services and contingencies was $3,969,566, out of which there was expended $2,492,812, leaving a balance of $1,476,754.

Dealing with the recruiting for the naval service, the report shows a total sum of 223, including 185 for the Niobe, and 38 for the Rainbow. Nova Scotia contributed 97 men for the Niobe, Ontario 45, and Quebec 28. Of the Rainbow recruits, all but three were found in British Columbia. Alberta contributed one recruit for the service, and Manitoba and Saskatchewan none.

The hydrographic survey report includes considerable information in regard to the possibilities of Port Churchill and Fort Nelson as desirable railway terminals. The approaches to the ports were examined by two parties from the icebreaker Stanley. A good deal of ice was encountered in making Churchill, which would be dangerous to a ship not especially constructed.

The opinion is expressed that no cargo vessel of ordinary construction would have been able to find or force her way through the large fields met before Churchill. Apart from the ice difficulty it is stated that the salient points of Hudson Bay and Strait, are inaccurately charted. The report adds that the approach to Churchill harbor is very well marked, and comparatively easily picked up in marked contrast to the approach to the whole shore from near Cape Churchill to James Bay.

At Nelson the Government expedition had great difficulty in getting ashore with material for signals. The roadstead is described as exposed to every wind that blows and every sea that runs with cross currents and low shores.

The report states: "Until further and proper definite information is obtained no opinion can be expressed as to the suitability of this port for a terminus."

LAKE NAVIGATION

The steamer "Geneva" under Captain W. C. Harris, came up the river this morning from Gores' Landing, Harwood and other river points. There were 120 passengers aboard. Lock master Collins, reports the closing season of last year, as November 26.

FATAL LOCK IS EXHIBITED

New York, Dec. 16.—After hearing extended testimony, Judge Crane, in general sessions late yesterday, allowed the lock in the door that is alleged to have barred the escape of the girl operators from the Triangle Waist Co. fire of March 25 last, to be introduced in evidence. Twice before the day the court had refused to admit the exhibit as evidence against Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, who are on trial for manslaughter in the case of Margaret Schwartz, one of 147 who died in the fire.

The piece of panel containing the lock, with shot bolt and known as "People's Exhibit, No. 3," constitutes the strongest physical proof the prosecution possesses. For two days Assistant District Attorney Bostwick fought a legal battle to get it before the jury. It shows conclusively, he contends, that ninth floor on the Washington Place side of the factory where many girls died, was locked when the panic-stricken employes threw themselves against it to escape from the flames.

U. S. Fears Russian Reprisals.

Washington, Dec. 16.—Opposition to the Senate program for immediate action on the Sulzer House resolution looking to the termination of the Russian treaty of 1832 is developing among some Senators. It is based largely on the theory that any estrangement between this country and Russia would have the effect of bringing Russia into alliance with Japan with the result of injuring the Oriental trade of the United States. Many telegrams advancing this idea were received during the day.

To Educate U. S. Farmers.

Washington, Dec. 16.—A plan to enable agricultural colleges throughout the country to do extension work by taking to the farmers of their respective communities the best methods of intensive agriculture, is contemplated in a bill, which will be introduced in Congress after the holidays.

The leading spirit in this movement is Howard H. Gross of Chicago, president of the National Soil Fertility League.

C.P.R. Lets Big Contract.

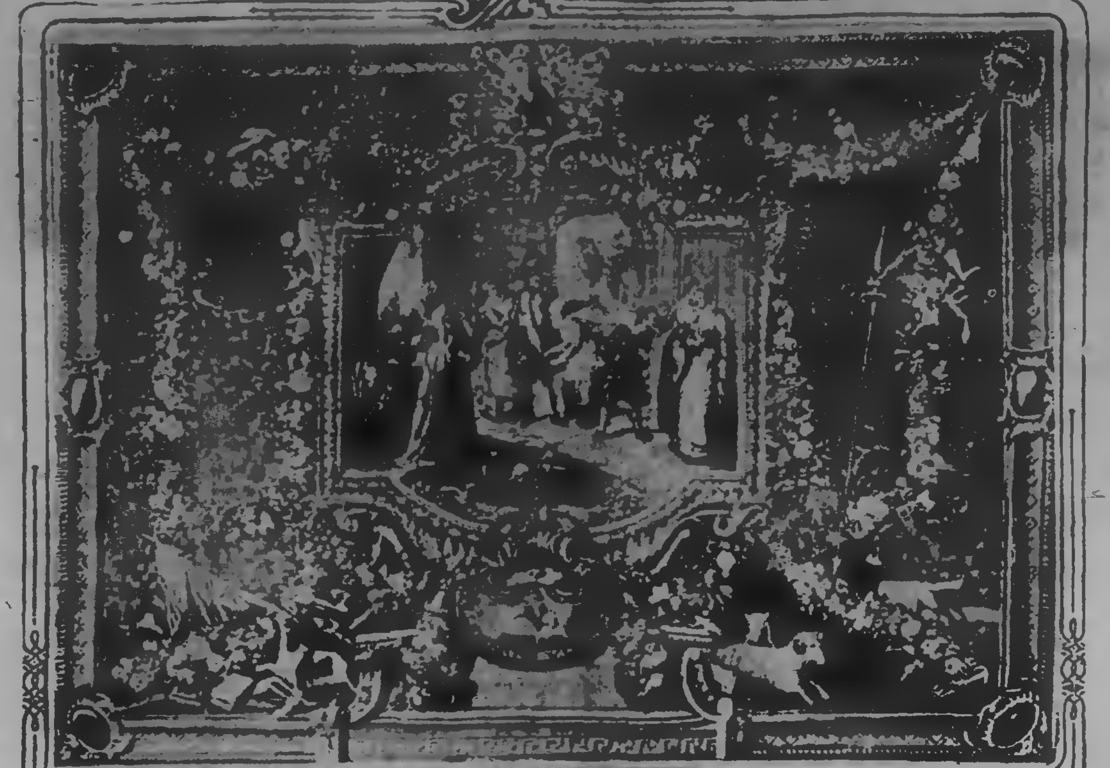
Million-Dollar Canning Co.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—Letters patent have been issued to a new million-dollar canning concern to be known as the British Canadian Canners, Ltd., with headquarters in Montreal. The company is authorized to deal in all food products and to buy up or otherwise acquire the interests of other companies.

Mother Deserts Baby.

Brockville, Dec. 16.—An infant of two months left in a basket on a door step in Athens, was handed over yesterday to the Children's Aid Shelter. With the child was left a letter from the mother, saying she was unable to provide for her offspring.

BEAUTIFUL GOBELIN TAPESTRIES, ONCE OWNED BY KING, NOW THE PROPERTY OF J. PIERPONT MORGAN, OF NEW YOR.



GOBELIN TAPESTRY DON QUIXOTE ATTENDED BY THE DUCHESS WOMEN. FORMERLY OWNED BY KING OF SPAIN.

Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, the well known financier and art collector, has just come into possession of five beautiful Gobelin tapestries, which he bought from the King of Spain through a New York art collector.

The tapestries are from the Manufactures Royale des Gobelins. Their borders, which are of unusual width, are of the exquisite Rose du Barry and are embellished by garlands of natural flowers.

In the first panel, "Don Quixote Attended by the Duchess' Woman," the hero is seen in the centre. He is extravagantly dressed. The ladies of the duchess are bestowing all manner of attentions upon him. One holds a mirror before him and another girds on his sword. As for Sancho, who has not yet retired behind the door where he may have a quiet gobble, he is making himself agreeable to the fair members of the court. A terrace and park are shown through an archway in the background and a window is on the left. The tapestry is signed "Cozette 1773."

Loss of $700,000 --- One Life is Lost in Fire --- 100,000 Bushels of Grain Burned --- 300 Men Out of Work.

Special to the Review.

Moose Jaw, Dec. 16.—Robin Hood mills, belonging to a big Canadian Cereal Company was burned last night, causing a loss of upwards of seven hundred thousand dollars. One employe, Robert Ness, lost his life, his body being found in the ruins this morning. Besides the buildings, one hundred thousand bushels of grain were burned. Three hundred men are thrown out of work.

Soo Navigation Closes.

Soo, Ont., Dec. 16.—The last boat down bound, the Michipicouten, from Michipicouten, has arrived in the Soo, and navigation is closed for the year. The formal closing of the canal occurred yesterday, and the gas buoy at the upper approach to the locks is already taken in. Lighthouse keepers are arriving in the Soo. The weather is exceedingly mild, and all snow in the city has disappeared.

Belleville's New Postmaster.

Belleville, Dec. 16.—Mr. A. Gillen, who for many years was deputy postmaster here, yesterday received instructions from the Department to assume full charge of the office as postmaster.

A. McGinnes was yesterday placed as collector of customs here, by Inspector Shaw. Mr. McGinnes was for years in the customs department here.

Horse's Kick Killed Boy.

Port Colborne, Dec. 16.—Thomas Everett, aged 16 years, died yesterday afternoon from the effects of a kick from a horse, which he received on Thursday. Everett was a home boy, living with Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Tripp at Humberstone. He came from England about seven years ago, going directly to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tripp in Humberstone.

DEPRAVED CRIMINALS

Is What Teddy Roosevelt Calls the McNamaras.

New York, Dec. 15.—Denouncing the McNamara brothers as "depraved criminals, who have on their sacred souls the murder of so many innocent persons," Theodore Roosevelt, in an editorial entitled "Murder is Murder," gives his views of the famous dynamiting case in the current issue of The Outlook.

The associate editor bitterly scores the labor leaders, who championed the cause of the McNamaras, "as they did that of Moyer and Haywood," declaring they have rendered an evil service to the union cause. He insists that he believes in unions, but all workers must "set their faces like flint against any effort to identify the cause of organised labor, directly or indirectly, with any movement which in any way benefits by the commission of crimes of lawless and murderous violence."

NEARING END OF BIKE RACE

Clark and Folger are Called to Finish in Front

Special To The Review.

New York, N.Y., Dec. 16.—The Jackie Clark and Joe Fogler team gained one lap on the other ten entries in the six day bicycle race this morning and are picked to finish first to-night. At ten o'clock this morning their mark was 2492 miles, and eight laps, which is sixteen miles behind the record. The attendance has broken all former records.

To Protect "Dope" Fiends.

The Hague, Dec. 16.—The International Opium Conference yesterday adopted a resolution submitted by the British delegates restricting the import or export of morphine or cocaine in the countries represented at the conference. It was decided that all resolutions adopted concerning morphine should be applicable to opium and similar drugs.

Many Fishermen Drowned.

Emden, Germany, Dec. 16.—Three fishing luggers belonging to this port, carrying crews totalling forty men, have, it is feared, foundered during the recent storms in the North Sea.

Mrs. Bowie's Death.

Brockville, Dec. 16.—The death occurred here yesterday of Mrs. Robert Bowie, following a stroke of paralysis. Deceased was 72 years of age and a life-long resident of Brockville.

Boys' Fatal Fight.

Fraserville, Que., Dec. 16.—In the trial of Jules Ploudre for the murder of Louis Dion, at St. Honore, Temiscouata County, some months ago, a number of witnesses have sworn that after a fight between the two Dion brothers and the two Ploudre boys, the accused deliberately fired five shots at the victim, killing him. The prisoner is only 20 years of age.

Montreal a Spender.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—According to the civic estimates tabulated at the City Hall at noon yesterday by Mr. Pelletier, the city comptroller, the city will spend more than a million dollars in excess of last year. Next year's total expenditure on revenue account is placed at $8,185,000, against $7,005,285 placed in the estimates last year.

THE YOUNG MAN

Rev. C. E. Cragg, pastor of Mark street Methodist church, will have something of more than ordinary interest for the young men to-morrow night, when he will preach on the subject of "Is the Young Man Safe?" A male choir of 20 voices, assisted by Mr. Gordon Wright, and "The New Harmony" quartet will provide the music.

LONDON'S BAD FIRE

Biggest Part of Perrin's Bis Factory is Destroyed—Loss Estimated at $100,000.

London, Dec. 16.—The greater portion of the D. S. Perrin Co.'s biscuit and confectionery plant was destroyed by fire, which broke out about 11.30 last night. The loss is estimated at about $100,000 and is fully covered by insurance, there being about $240,000 carried on the building. The risks are well divided among a number of companies, principally English companies.

The fire started from an oven in the rear portion of the factory on Carling street, and flames spread furiously so that by the time the firemen arrived, it had gained great headway. That portion of the building on Dundas street was partially saved from destruction. The company have four buildings in one block, and one other across a street. It was the east building of the block, that was gutted and the central building was partially destroyed. The building was five storeys high and about eight years old.

Altogether 500 hands were employed and some of these will be out of work for some weeks.

Most of the Christmas stock was out of the building, but there was considerable regular stock on hand.

The firm is one of the oldest established in the western part of the province, having been startled fifty years ago.

Sheffield Choir Leaders Honored.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—A cable received here from London says: At a special meeting of the court of the Musicians Company yesterday the honorary freedom of the ancient city guild was conferred on Sir Edward Elgar and the silver medal was awarded Dr. Charles A. E. Harriss of Ottawa for distinguished services rendered British music throughout the Empire. A banquet preceded the presentations.

TO KILL THE GRAND VIZIER

Bombs With Clockwork Attachment Placed in Office

Special To The Review.

Constantinople, Dec. 16.—Clockwork bombs were found to-day in the forces of the Grand Vizier and War Minister. They were placed there. It is believed by a sympathiser of Abdel Hamid, the ex-Sultan, who is critically ill and not expected to recover.

FOUR INDICTMENTS ARE EXPECTED

In Connection With the Dynamite Outrages—Accomplices Will be Named—Other Union Officials May be Arrested.

Los Angeles, Dec. 16.—A little package of indictments, numbering perhaps four, probably will be returned here next Tuesday or Wednesday against men living in California and suspected of complicity in nation-wide dynamite plots. This will end the western section of the investigation and will transfer the scene of all activities to Indianapolis, where another grand jury is in session.

A canvas and leather case, ten inches square and as tall as a small ice cream freezer, was shown the jury yesterday. This case and others like it are said to have been used in carrying about the country dynamite needed for various "jobs."

It was such a case that Ortie McManigal carried them, according to his own statement, when he came west to blow up the Llewellyn Iron Works. McManigal was so accustomed to its presence, that he gave it to a porter, giving him also a dollar to take care of it.

Presumably in connection with the appearance of the dynamite case, came B. J. Crosby, now of Los Angeles, and formerly of Boston, Mass. Crosby was once connected with the firm that made the case.

Miss Tillie McCarthy, of San Francisco, a stenographer for an exhibition league, of which Olaf Tveitmoe is president, appeared before the grand jury, remaining about fifteen minutes. She was preceded by Thos. Mills of San Francisco, a chauffeur, whose appearance recalled the story that after James B. McNamara had dynamited The Los Angeles Times' building, he hurried north to San Francisco, and with his companions, "went automobile riding," apparently having plenty of money.

Mrs. Maude B. King, assistant housekeeper of a San Francisco hotel, appeared before the grand jury a second time, being the only witness recalled. She is said to have been acquainted with Milton A. Schmidt, a fugitive under indictment for complicity in The Times' explosion.

Trail Grows Warm.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 16.—Government officials who are co-operating with District Attorney Miller in conducting the investigation of the dynamite conspiracy before the federal grand jury, learned from two sources yesterday the details of explosions in which it is said others than the McNamaras were implicated.

W. A. Griffin, chief of police of Kansas City, Mo., who had knowledge of five explosions in Kansas City, was questioned about certain facts which, it is said had never been revealed. These explosions, all directed against structures erected by firms employing non-union men, occurred from 1908 to 1910. As not more than two of them were confessedly the work of McManigal, Chief Griffin's information was sifted to ascertain who else might have destroyed the property.

Much important testimony bearing on the records taken from the headquarters of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers was also obtained from Miss May Dye, who went before the grand jury. Up to a few years ago, Miss Dye, now of Pittsburg, was confidential secretary in the Iron Workers' headquarters, and as such had to do with the correspondence of J. J. McNamara, the secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Andrew J. Hull, the ironworkers' former bookkeeper, also visited the federal building. Many hotel clerks from various parts of the country have been subpoenaed to tell what they know of the movements of McManigal while he was on his dynamiting expeditions. The hotel men are to be questioned chiefly to corroborate McManigal's confession wherein he related visits to certain towns with a suitcase filled with dynamite or nitroglycerine.

It was intimated that the ironworkers' officials were not opposed to the Government efforts to expose all implicated in the dynamiting.

Burns is Prophetic.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 16.—Declaring that other arrests in the McNamara case may be expected soon, and that attempts to bribe him and his men had been made, Detective William J. Burns made an address here yesterday before one hundred members of the National Erectors' Association. He stopped here on his way to Indianapolis, where he will continue his investigations.

Burns made another attack on Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, declaring he would not cease his attacks until Gompers is thrown out of organized labor. He also denounced what he called "the corrupt political crowd that controls organized labor."

"There are many McNamaras in organized labor," he said.

Burns said that after concluding his work at Indianapolis, he will go to Los Angeles.

Roosevelt to Run?

New York, Dec. 16.—A statement that Col. Roosevelt is "ready to run for the Presidency" is printed to-day by The Herald, which explains that the announcement comes from the "authentic source." The statement says in part:

"There will be no formal announcement of the candidacy of Mr. Roosevelt, but if he is chosen as the party's standard-bearer in the national contest next year, he will not decline the nomination."

Tip to Fruit Growers.

Ottawa, Dec. 16.—A cable has been received from the Canadian trade commissioner in Birmingham, England, stating that a Birmingham firm requires several cars each of russets, greenings, baldwins and spys, grading No. 1 and No. 2 for January delivery, Ontario apples preferred. Parties desiring the name of the firm in Birmingham will be supplied with same by wire on application to the Department of Trade and Commerce.

U. S. Meat Packers Excluded.

London, Dec. 16.—The British Government has decided to exclude all the American meat packers against whom prosecutions have been instituted in the United States, from tendering for contracts for the supply of meat to the British army and navy, pending the settlement of the suits.

The contracts are now expected to go to Argentina packers.

CHRISTMAS TREE

The Christmas Aid Society are making their annual appeal to the citizens, for donations to the Christmas tree, which will be held at the Shelter, on the afternoon of Christmas Day, for the seven children now in their charge. Gifts of toys, games, clothing, candies and fruit may be left at the newspaper offices, where they will be forwarded, but the better way is to have the article or articles sent direct to the Shelter.

Labor Controls New Zealand.

London, Dec 16.—A Christchurch, N.Z., despatch says Labor holds the balance of power at the polls and dissolution will probably follow. The News says the election probably means the fall of Sir J. Ward. His popularity has been generally declining, the final touch being his acceptance of the coronation baronetcy.

Starting For South Pole.

Christchurch, New Zealand, Dec. 16.—Captain Robert Scott's exploring ship the Terra Nova, sailed yesterday for the Antarctic. The Terra Nova, which is to seek the South Pole, will not take the same route as will Amundsen, who is going by way of the Beardmore glacier.

Thirty Nimrods Lose Lives.

Boston, Dec. 16.—Thirty human lives were lost in New England, and four in the Province of New Brunswick as a direct result of the hunting season which, so far as big game is concerned, came to an end yesterday. Of the victims five were shot in mistake for deer, 12 were killed by accidental discharge of their own guns, 14 by accidental firing of guns held by companions or by stray bullets, two were drowned and one died of exposure.

It is estimated that about 10,000 deer and 300 moose were killed, besides several score of bear and a great quantity of small game.

Mohammedan Forces, Who Who Have Retreated to the Oasis, Are Short of Provisions.

Malta, Dec. 16.—The Turkish and Arab forces, who have retreated to the oasis at some distance from the coast of Tripoli, are in a sorry plight, according to a statement made by a Maltese citizen named Tomua, who succeeded in escaping from the Turkish camp, and he just reached Malta.

Tomua says that it will be impossible for the Mohammedan forces to hold out much longer, owing to the almost entire lack of provisions. He also says that the dissensions among the Arabs irregulars and the Turkish troops have become so acute that defections among the former are extremely numerous.

Constantinople, Dec. 16.—Officials of the Turkish War Office are circulating a complaint that the Italian troops in Tripoli are using dumdum bullets in their operations. These bullets are soft at the point and spread when they come in contact with any opposing substance, making a severe wound.

Doctors Condemn Oily Liniments

The Public are Warned to Be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not, and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritants; chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor wants you to quit using a certain liniment do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating pain-subduing liniment such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white, ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache, and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

DOMINION DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

The Dominion Department of Health to be established by the Federal Government. This is the suggestion of Hon. Mr. Burrell, and it is a splendid one. A fighting force controlled by the government to contend with the ravages of disease, could accomplish much in preventing at least the spread of epidemics, and they could take up the fight against the chief enemy of mankind—tuberculosis. More Canadians die of the white plague than all other contagious diseases put together, and to be fought effectively a Dominion organization is required to work in conjunction with the various associations which are now doing good work in this direction. The war against tuberculosis is as much a nation business as quarantine, and the government should undertake their share of the work.

In referring to the question, the Montreal Star says:

"When Hon. Mr. Burrell establishes a Department of Health, the first task should be to organize the war against the White Plague. Thousands of devoted volunteers are already in the field. It is most creditable to our people that they have done so much to provide centres of help for the suffering and the menaced by reason of this archenemy; but the colossal task is utterly beyond the power of private philanthropy. The Federal Government should provide official machinery for making the best possible use of this volunteer enthusiasm, and should generously finance its efforts along the various lines of endeavor. The British Government is about to found Tuberculosis Sanatoria; and the Canadian Government ought not to be satisfied with anything less as a first step."

It is to be hoped that the colleagues of Mr. Burrell will heartily support him in his idea.

CANADA'S TRADE

The official trade figures of the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1911, show that the commerce of Canada has far more than kept pace with the increase in the population. The increase in the total volume of trade last year was about $76,232,030, which is an annual increase of more than seven per cent. At this rate the volume of trade would be doubled in ten years. The most significant feature of the figures is the great increase of our trade with the United States. The total increase is $61,591,676, or over 27 per cent. We have bought from the United States last year about 22 per cent more than we bought the year before, while our sales to the United States have increased only about 5 per cent.

Compare the growth of [illegible] increase with that of our trade with Britain. Our total trade with the mother country has increased only 10 1-2 per cent. There was an increase of 15 1-2 per cent in our imports from Britain, but a decrease of 5 per cent in our exports to Britain.

Although our purchases are enormously greater from the United States than those from Britain, the mother country continues to be Canada's best customer, despite the decrease in our exports to Great Britain. Last year, our sales to Great Britain amounted to nearly thirty million dollars worth more than our sales to the States.

Of the increase in Canada's trade with the world, eighty per cent is represented by the increase of Canada's trade with the United States. This fact indicates how much more powerful is natural law than artificial restraints and stimulants in regulating the course of trade.

Premier Asquith openly declares that woman suffrage would be "a disastrous mistake." Lloyd George openly favors the woman suffrage cause and promises to do all he can to promote it. Here is why the premier and his first lieutenant may yet be compelled to part company.

The feature of the Durbar programme at Delhi on Thursday was the review of 51,000 troops. The force included representatives of the British army, the British Indian army and the armed troops of the independent native states, and made, in its way, as significant a demonstration as any of the gathering. British rule in India evidently wins the confidence of men who have the fighting spirit in them.

Ninety-five fatal and one hundred and ninety-one serious injuries to workpeople were reported to the Department of Labor during November. The record is considerably more favorable than that of the preceding month last year. In October there were 344 accidents, fatal and non-fatal, and in November, 1910, there were 407. The chief accident during the month was the foundering of the schooner Antigua, off St. Martin's River in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, when the captain and eleven sailors were drowned. There were eleven killed in the railway service, eleven in the agricultural pursuits, and twelve among unskilled laborers.

A Lazy Liver

Upsets the Whole System.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Put Things Right Again.

His liver is to sluggish — his stomach bad.

A bitter taste in the mouth—coated tongue—dizziness on rising suddenly—bowels alternately loose and constipated—these mean that the liver is out of order.

Instead of flowing into the bowels, to regulate them and aid digestion, the bile has been going all through the system, upsetting digestion, leaving the bowels constipated, and making the sufferer perfectly miserable. This is biliousness.

The quick, safe and certain cure is Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. They clear out the clogged-up system, stir up the lazy liver, cleanse the stomach and bowels and purify the blood. The bile returns to its normal course, the food is again digested properly and all the disagreeable symptoms vanish.

Doctors prescribe Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills and they are known throughout the world as a proven cure for all digestive troubles. They are equally effective in strengthening weak kidneys and curing rheumatism.

Traveler Falls Under Train.

Toronto, Dec. 16.—A man believed to be Otto Lang, a commercial traveler of this city, was seriously and probably fatally injured by falling from the C.P.R. Montreal Express at the Don Station last night. He attempted to board the train as it was moving, but missed his footing and slipped beneath the front trucks of one of the sleeping cars, and before the train was brought to a standstill the trucks of three cars had passed over him. His left foot was so terribly crushed that it will have to be amputated, the right arm is broken in several places, and the right knee fractured.

Train Nearly In River.

Philadelphia, Dec. 16.—A signal tower was demolished and passengers on the Conshohocken, Norristown & Phoenix express train of the Pennsylvania Railroad, leaving Broad street station at 5.49 o'clock last night, narrowly escaped being thrown into the Schuylkill River when the rear coach jumped the tracks shortly after leaving the station. Six coaches composed the train, all being filled with passengers. When the rear car bounded the rails, the engineer applied the emergency brakes just as the train approached the bridge which spans the river.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 15.—There was a brisk demand from foreign buyers for all grades of Manitoba spring wheat and the prices bid showed an advance of 3d to 9d per quarter. There were orders in the market for over 1,000,000 bushels, but owing to the limited amount of ocean grain room available to all ports, only a fair amount of business was done. The demand for oats was also good. A fair trade continues to be done in all lines of coarse grains on spot at steady prices. There is no change in flour, for which the demand is fair, for local consumption. Demand for bran and shorts is good. Cheese is quiet but firm. The trade in butter is fairly good. Eggs are active. Demand for provisions fair.

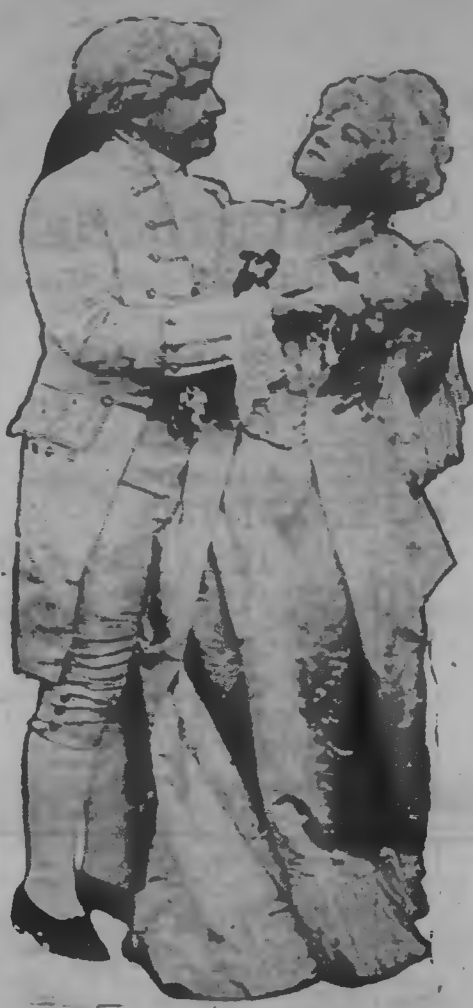
The Last of the Druids

A Lyric of a Man a Maid and the Mistletoe Bough



HALF of her beauty her faith in his ardor,
  Half of her faith in the berries above,
Last of the Druids, she waits for his coming
  Under the mystical symbol of love;
While Cupid, her ally, with quiver and yarrow
  Hidden away in the leaves of his screen,
Has tightened his bowstring and fitted an arrow
  To shoot from his ambush of silver and green

Silence! his foot on the path of her dreaming—
  A silence and pause at the symbol and sign—
One little berry has dropt from the green-bough,
  Dropt like a bead from a goblet of wine,
Or the welcome that falls from her lips with a curtsy—
  Her curtsy and lips that are tender and sweet
As the grace of the leaves from the quiver of Cupid,
  Or the berry that falls to the grace of her feet!

"Nay, Sir Impetuous!—Think you to gather
  The rose of desire in the winter of love?
Wouldst know how the heart of a maiden is ripened?—
  Look to the leaves and the berries above;
By tears of the April awakened to pity,
  By dread of the lightning and thunder undone,
Coaxed into blossom and blush of the summer—
  At last are they ripe for the kiss of the sun!

"But ah, though denying, I know that they fear it—
  That day when the bough shall hang dreary and low,
And only the passionless knights of the woodland
  Shiver and quake in the wind and the snow;
And I, like the blossom that treasures her honey
  And baffles the bee for an hour or a day—
Ah—learn you a lesson; the hive of the winter,
  Is full with the flowers and the sweets of the May!"

How can he know that she waited his coming,
  And measured her pause to the woodcraft and art—
The flutter of leaves and the fall of ripe berries
  That dropt to her feet at the call of her heart?
And how can she guess that the lure of her fancy
  Brought him a slave to her dream of desire?—
Pursued and pursuing a moment delaying
  Love's roses aswoon in a garden of fire!

Shoot! Cupid, shoot from the green of your ambush!—
  Now, while the berries lie tender and warm—
Warm on her lips, and ablush with his breathing,
  And faint as a leaf in the power of a storm!
The lightning has struck, and the wind of the summer
  Blows in her hair from the mistletoe now;
Shoot! ere the leaves of love's magic have withered,
  And the berries untasted fall dead from the bough!

A Discovery of Vast Importance

It Is Now Admitted That Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Coughs and Colds Can Only Be Quickly Cured By Mixing a New Medicine With the Air You Breathe

Scientists acknowledge that medicated air treatment is the only treatment that will cure these diseases, and that stomach medicines are worse than useless.

Catarrhozone air treatment has been found to be the most effective way to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. Its action is so prompt that in less than an hour an ordinary cold is cured, and after a more thorough use of Catarrhozone, Bronchitis, Catarrh, and all diseases of the throat and lungs are completely cured.

Catarrhozone is a very simple and powerful method of treatment. You simply breathe it through the inhaler and it immediately passes over every air cell of the throat, lungs, and bronchial tubes, curing and healing as it goes.

Catarrhozone treatment affords little drops of healing for sore places in the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

RECORD TRIP FOR CHRISTMAS

New York, Dec. 16.—In order to act the role of a Santa Claus ship to continents the Cunard liner Lusitania, which arrived early yesterday morning from Liverpool and Queenston, began discharging at breakneck speed 1,000 tons of cargo, taking on in the meantime a like burden and 6,000 tons of coal for the return trip. It is planned to get her away at four o'clock this afternoon, which if accomplished will be a new record.

Bearing 4,350 bags of Christmas mail and 400 packages of parcel post, the big ship reached quarantine at 4.20 a.m., and was immediately boarded and cleared by health inspectors. After but a few moments delay she made her way to her dock, ing there before 7 o'clock. The vessel met with rough weather on the voyage over, but nevertheless made the trip in four days, 20 hours and 39 minutes. She will carry a monster Christmas mail on the way back.

Among the passengers arriving yesterday were: The Duke of Newcastle Lord and Lady Tweedmouth Sir George Whitehouse, Lady Grey Wilson, Lord Alistair Leveson Gower, the Hon. N. Burton Rogers and Lieut Donald Newton, R.N.R.

FARMERS' WIVES IN CONVENTION

Guelph, Ont., Dec. 15— Two hundred women from all parts of Wellington County held a meeting in connection with the Winter Fair yesterday for the purpose of discussing the work carried on by the Women's Institute of the county. G. A. Putnam of Toronto, superintendent of women's institutes, who presided, spoke of the value of the institutes from a community and co-operative standpoint, and referred to the good work carried on along the lines of sanitation of schools and the distribution of good seeds. Next year, he said, the convention would be extended by inviting neighboring counties to send delegates.

POULTRY MEN DINED

Guelph, Dec. 16— All the owners of poultry who are exhibiting at the Winter Fair, were the guests of the Guelph Poultry Association at a large banquet. Speeches were made by several of the exhibitors and Mayor Thorp Wm. McNeill, of London, said the poultry show was the best held outside of the World's Fair, not barring Boston or New York. One reason for this fact was that the Government was behind it, and was assisting in every way. The prize list was 50 per cent. better than when the show first started.

Richard Pike, of London, said the horse show was threatening to outdo the poultry. More money was needed for prizes, he said.

C. P. R. GIVES CONTRACT

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 16—The contract for the C.P.R. shops at Calgary was let yesterday by Vice-President Bury to the Westinghouse, Church, Kerr Company, New York. They will commence work on the new buildings at once and are to have them finished by the end of next year. They will be of the same size as the Winnipeg shops.

CHRISTMAS RUSH WITH POST OFFICE AND EXPRESS PEOPLE

Big Increase in Post Office Orders — Express Companies Have Reinforcements.

The usual Christmas-tide rush and its consequent extra work for the post office and express company employes has commenced, and from now on till Christmas day, those hard working individuals will have their hands full. So far there are no special indications that the rush and amount of shipping will excel that of previous years, and a great deal of the responsibility for the proper handling of the Christmas matter, as usual, will rest upon the general public. If they will govern themselves in the matter of shipping their presents and parcels in time, much annoyance and anxiety will be averted by shippers and receivers alike.

A Review representative inquired at the post office to-day if the officials anticipated or were experiencing any unusual Christmas time rush, and was informed that commencing on Monday, they would feel the effects in dead earnest. For the proper delivery of the extra amount of mail and parcels which are expected, the mail carriers will each have the aid of an assistant on their delivery route. These assistants will be put on next week.

MANY MONEY ORDERS.

In the postal money order department the amount of money orders sold is just double what were issued at this time last year, a large number of these being issued to English folk, for mailing to the Old Land. All the mails for England were closed on Tuesday last, December 12th, and a very heavy budget was despatched.

EXPRESS COMPANIES.

The Dominion and Canadian Express Companies are feeling the rush even to-day. Mr. Fred Skitch, agent of the Canadian Express, stated that so far they have been able to handle the matter promptly, and that they will have no difficulty at any time during the rush, if people will abide by a few simple rules laid down for the guidance of shippers. If each parcel is fully addressed, bearing the name and address of the shipper, and properly labelled, paid or prepaid, shipping will be greatly facilitated, and matter can be put through in half the time that would be required otherwise. As soon as the big rush is on an extra delivery wagon will be added to the Canadian Express route.

The Dominion Express Company is also adequately equipped this year for caring for shipping and handling it in proper manners. A vehicle known as a lorry has been placed on the road, which is capable of carrying a much larger load of express matter than the wagons now in use.

OPEN TILL EIGHT.

For the convenience of the shipping public the city offices of the Dominion Express Company and the Canadian Express will remain open till eight o'clock during the Xmas week. With commendable enterprise the Dominion Express have mailed a complete set of shipping tags, labels, etc., with instructions for shipping to one thousand people of the city. This is in accordance with their usual yearly Christmas-time practice.

Lakefield Men are Charged With Infraction of Liquor Law

Elias Williams, Liquor License Inspector for East Peterboro, has taken action against Otter Northey and Albert Kennedy of Lakefield, whom he charges with having had a quantity of liquor in their possession, with intent to sell, without having the proper license.

It will be remembered that on Wednesday, Constable Webster of Lakefield, confiscated a large quantity of liquor, in the possession of the two men, in the vicinity of Lakefield.

The case will be heard before County Magistrate Edmison next Saturday.

It is stated that between 30 and 40 bottles of liquor were taken from the outfit used by the men, and that there is a probability of others being connected with the case.

Prisoner Under Seven Years Sentence Asks His Liberty

Magistrate Edmision has been asked by the Department of Justice to forward the evidence in a case heard before him, about four years ago, in which he sented a man named Baldwin to seven years in the penitentiary for assault and robbery.

His crime was that of assaulting and robbing a pedlar in the north country. He secured about $100. Now he is appealing to the department for his liberty.

Spoiled the Solemnity.

Joseph H. Choate when ambassador to the court of St. James and Mark Twain were together in St. George's chapel, London, one hot day, both seemingly sobered by the solemnity of the place.

"What an awful thing it is"— Twain began in a whisper.

Mr. Choate leaned closer to catch some ponderously sad expression from the humorist.

"What an awful thing it is," Twain repeated, "to be shut up in a place where one cannot smoke."

FALL CAUSED HER DEATH

Sudden Summons to Mrs. Jas. Campbell at Her Home

Fell Down the Stairs and Her Head Struck Post

With shocking suddenness the life of Mrs. James Campbell, 334 Water street, was brought to a close late yesterday afternoon, when, as the result of a fall while descending the stairs of her residence, her head came in violent contact with the hardwood post on the stairs, causing her death almost immediately. The deceased was in her seventy-first year and her advanced age prevented her chances of recovery. She became unconscious after the fall, and passed away shortly after the arrival of Dr. Eastwood, who was hurriedly summoned.

The deceased had enjoyed very fair health till the time of the unfortunate accident, and the sorrowing survivors will have the sympathy of the community in their unlooked for bereavement.

The late Mrs. Campbell was the widow of the late James Campbell, who predeceased her about twelve years ago. She was an energetic member of St. John's Anglican church during the most of her life.

A family of two sons and two daughters survive her, namely, James Campbell, of Peterborough; Thomas, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Hattie Campbell, of Weyburn, Sask., and Miss Katie, at home.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

FIGHTING THE FLAMES

Annual Inspection of Local Equipment Has Been Made

The general inspection of fire appliances in Peterborough under the supervision of R. N. Wilson, C.E., of Toronto, with a view to ascertaining whether Peterborough was keeping pace with the growth of the city in the matter of fire-fighting facilities is concluded. When Mr. Wilson arrived in the city this week, he went directly to the mayor's office, and requested that official to send in an alarm over the fire alarm system. His Worship granted the request with the result that an alarm was turned in from box 23, at the corner of Hunter and George streets.

With splendid promptitude the call was responded to, and the mayor then introduced Mr. Wilson, the inspector, to Chief Howard.

The order was then given to lay 12 lines of hose from the different hydrants, for taking the water-works pressure. This test was maintained from 10.15 a.m. to 12.15 p.m., and gave the firemen a very severe workout. Three thousand feet of hose was used, and the streets being muddy, it required a great deal of work. The inspector was very non-committal regarding the inspection and gave out nothing to either the press of the mayor and aldermen present. He agreed, however, that the pressure was all that could be desired.

The pumps at the waterworks station stood up well during the test, a pressure of 115 pounds being maintained at varied degrees, on George street, the lowest being 53 pounds.

On Thursday morning the inspector with Chief Howard and one fireman set out to make a test of the pressure at different points in the city, commencing at the north end of Water street and making a complete circle around the outskirts of the city. The inspector took the pressure at each hydrant, which varied from 96 to 70 lbs. Some 42 hydrants were tested. This work lasted till six o'clock in the evening.

To-day the steam fire engine was tested on Aylmer street at the Brock street bridge. The engine was kept running from 9 a.m until 12.20 a.m., and worked splendidly. With three fire lines throwing solid streams of water, one of 1 1-2 inch diameter, and two of 1 1-4 diameter, the hydraulic lift was 9.10. The guage on the steam engine registered from 60 to 120 lbs. The water pressure at the nozzles tested between 70 to 90 lbs. Mr. Wilson remarked upon the splendid condition of the engine and upon its efficiency.

The inspector also went through the fire hall, taking an inventory of all the appliances, all the details of which were furnished by Fire Chief Howard. Mr. Wilson before leaving to-day asked the chief if he could obtain permission from the corporation to turn in an alarm at any moment. Chief Howard referred him to the proper authorities and said that as far as he was concerned he was quite willing, as the fire department was ready night or day.

Mr. Wilson went to Millbrook this afternoon, but will be back to-night.

DOCTORS GAVE ME UP

But "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Me.

MOORFIELD, ONT., March 25th, 1910.

"I suffered from severe indigestion and dyspepsia for nearly two years. I could not take food without fearful distress.

I could not do any work and became so run down and weak that I could hardly walk. I was attended by two experienced doctors and they both pronounced my case incurable, that they could do nothing more for me as they thought my disease was HEART FAILURE AND INCURABLE. The doctors gave me up and I looked forward for death in a short time.

At this time my son asked me to try 'FRUIT-A-TIVES', and from the outset of taking these wonderful tablets I was better, and gradually this medicine completely cured me. I took a large number of boxes, perhaps a dozen, and now I am entirely cured and I have gained over thirty pounds in weight."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

Peterborough, Dec. 15th. 1911.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—On January first next the ratepayers of this city are being called upon to express their opinion as to the advisability of entering into an agreement with the hydro-electric commission of Ontario for a supply of power. It is sincerely to be hoped that a most thorough and clear understanding of just what a contract of this kind will mean to the tax-payers of this city, may be arrived at before polling day. A commitment of this magnitude cannot receive too much publicity. The question of power is to-day uppermost in the minds of a great majority of property owners and they are naturally anxious to see development of the resources of the district. The hydro-electric commission has done much towards this end, but shrewd business people claim to see grievious trouble in the making for some localities. In Western Ontario where natural conditions are altogether different to Peterborough in the matter of power, the hydro-electric have an acceptable field for their operations. In the Trent district their functions may appear to be of a slightly different character, and yet with the same object to be accomplished—cheap power for the public—and it just appears possible, that with their powerful assistance, the city may secure concessions from the opposing interests, with greatly reduced cost to the city compared to what might have to be charged by the hydro-electric commission.

It must always be remembered that Trent Valley power must, under the natural condition of things, seek for its market in the territory nearest that from which it is derived.

In considering the proposition placed before the ratepayers it will be most advisable for them to be assured precisely as to the extent of the power that they might be vesting in the city council in the matter of making agreements, with consequent expenditure of money without further reference to the ratepayers.

This letter is written solely with the object of having placed before the public all possible information on this subject, which is so closely allied present conditions as well as that the future industrial development of the city.

As a suggestion, would it not be well to endeavor to secure opinions from the various municipalities in Western Ontario through their leading business men and municipal officials as to their experience on this subject.

Yours truly,
LEX.

SPLENDID PRESENTATION OF THE OTHER WISE MAN

By Scholars of Murray St. Baptist Sunday School—Beuquet for Mrs. Pettit

Accommodation at Murray street Baptist church was at a premium last night, when the scholars of the Sunday school presented the Christmas cantata from Dr. Henry Van Dyke's book, "The Other Wise Man," under the direction of Mrs. L. J. Pettit. The presentation of the piece was a distinct success and the large audience, was justly liberal in its applause. From the opening chorus to the concluding number, those taking part displayed the careful training of several months and the success of last evening warrants a second presentation at least.

The story by Van Dyke is based on the thought that in addition to the three Wise Men who were guided by the Star of the East to the manger in Bethlehem, the birth place of Him who was to be proclaimed King of the Jews, a fourth Wise Man, also watched for and seen the guiding star and although having arranged to make the trip across the desert sands with the caravan he was thought his non appearance at the time set for departure left behind and to make the journey himself. He arrives in Bethlehem at a later day than the Three Wise Men and not in time to see the Child as it has been hidden that Herod's decree may not bring about its death.

He becomes a wanderer and thirty-three years later returns to find Christ in the hands of the Roman soldiers, but the Light is revealed to him and he truly believes.

The character of the other Wise Man, Artiban, received a splendid portrayal by Mr. Walter Batley, and to his work much of the success is due. He was most prominent in the presentation and his ability for the heavy task which fell to him, was demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of all. Mr. Gordon Matthews in the dual role of Abgarus and the Jewish Rabbi, both difficult parts, also did highly creditable work, while the same can be said of Master Herbert Webb, as Tigranes.

Special mention is also due Mrs. Pettit, Miss Clara Kidd, Miss Olive Yelland for their respective performances, to Miss Bessie Elcome, who acted as accompanist and to Mr. Pettit, who arranged the Oriental settings and scenic effects, which added so much to the enjoyment of the piece. The choruses and drills were given faultlessly and the nine young ladies taking part in the "Star of the East" drill in which among other features were a star and a cross are to be congratulated on their clever contribution.

One of the many interesting features of the evening was the presentation of a large bouquet of roses to Mrs. Pettit by little Miss Doughty. It evidenced to some degree the grateful feelings of the scholars to Mrs. Pettit. So far as the audience was concerned Mrs. Pettit was made to understand by their unanimous approval that her painstaking efforts were greatly appreciated.

PLANS TO PLACE THE MILITIA ON A MUCH STRONGER BASIS

New Minister Will Arrange to Have Military Instrnctors Meet the Wishes of Officers.

(Ottawa, Dec. 15— Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes is working energetically to carry out his program of placing the Militia Department on a strong basis. In addition to the new barrack at Toronto, he is also preparing to quickly carry out his original plans for new militia quarters at Montreal. At Montreal a half million will be spent on new barracks on the Longueuil site secured last spring. A permanent corps will be established there. The Minister has also inaugurated a reform in regard to the annual schools of instruction for officers and non-commissioned officers. Hitherto these schools have been held at a comparatively few fixed points throughout the Dominion, and in some districts the men have to travel considerable distances to reach them. Under the new arrangements the instructors will do most of the travelling, and the schools will come to the officers at most points, instead of compelling the officers to leave their places of residence to go to the schools. There are now available on the permanent staff seventy-five instructors and a strong effort will be made to remedy one of the chief deficiencies of the present militia service, namely, the scarcity of properly qualified officers. The first of the schools of instruction will open in St John, on Jan. 1.

Lieut. C. A. Harden has been appointed inspector of arms and ammunition for the Dominion. This is a newly established office.

ENTERTAINED BY THE BIBLE CLASS

Good Time in Lecture Hall o George St. Church

A very enjoyable time was spent last evening in the lecture room of Geo. St. Methodist church, when Mr. Switzer's adult Bible Class entertained the members of the choir, orchestra and a number of the Bible Classes. An excellent program was rendered and was highly appreciated as was evidenced by the hearty applause given. Special mention should be made of the trio "Spanish Fantasia" In this number Misses Beach and Picard presided at the piano, while Mr. Robt Beach delighted the audience with his handling of the drums, tambourine and castagnets. After the program dainty refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was brought to a close by the singing of the doxology

CLOSING OF ZION SUNDAY SCHOOL

The closing of the Zion Methodist Sunday school for the season, on Thursday night was the occasion of an enjoyable concert given in the hall, with Mr. Jas. Northey as chairman. TO WISH YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS

A beautiful Christmas card embossed in twocolors and bearing the inscription "Wishing You a Merry Christmas, and a year of profit and pleasure in the Boys' Department of the Young Men's Christian Association," has been turned out by the job department of the Review. This will interest the parents of boys over twelve years of age. A more acceptable gift for a boy can hardly be imagined It doesn't wear out and he can enjoy it for 365 days of 1912. It may mean the difference between a wasted life and the strengthening of his character. Another card, which is also which is a piece of printers' art, is being sent out from the office of the Y.M.C.A. for the purpose of drawing the attention of the parents to this splendid suggestion.

A collection for the Children's Christmas tree, taken up amounted to $24.52. On Christmas Day, the Society is giving a dinner to the young men of the city. Mr. Bert Cole, ventriloquist will be the entertainer.

NOBLE WOMEN OF THE PAST

Three Splendid Papers Read at St. Peter's Ladies Literary

The heroic and self-sacrificing lives of three noble women were most brilliantly and comprehensively pictured in splendidly written papers, read at a meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of the T.A.S., held last evening in the Lyceum on Simcoe street.

Miss Gertie Clancy gave the story of the life of the saintly Mary of the Incarnation, most graphically. The paper was all that could have been desired from the viewpoint of accuracy and description, being both nicely composed and well read. The beautiful character and piety of Mary of Incarnation was interestingly depicted.

A paper on the life of Margaret Bourgouis followed, read by Miss May Grady. The life of the famous heroine was picturesquely described.

The last reading was on the life of Jane Manse, and presented by Miss Teresa MacNamara. It was also a very comprehensive and nicely worded description of the character, life and works of the celebrated French heroine.

Rev Father McColl, at the conclusion of the papers, highly complimented and congratulated the young ladies on their excellent papers, as illustrative of their possibilities along literary lines. He urged the young ladies of the society to take the lives of the three heroines described as mottoes for their lives, and impressed upon them the absolute necessity of having high ideals and conceptions of life.

The following musical numbers preceded the papers:

Piano duet—Misses Delaire and Hurley.

Solo—Edward Hanrahan.

LINDSAY MAN LOSES HIS LIFE

Patrick Penrose Was Struck by the G. T. R. Flyer

A shocking fatality happened at the iron bridge on the G.T.R. track last night, when a farmer by the name of Patrick Penrose, who lived about two miles east of Lindsay, in the 5th concession, was struck, and instantly killed by the G.T.R. flyer which leaves Lindsay about 9.30 p.m. for Port Hope.

The first intimation of the fatality was given by an employe of the R. M. Beal tannery, who was going to work about 7 o'clock this morning, walking on the C. P. R. treacks. In going under the bridge on the G. T. R., he discovered an object on the track, which on investigation proved to be that of a man's leg. He at once notified the section foreman, James Shaw.

Coroner Dr. Blanchard and Chief of Police Chilton, were notified of the remains, which were strewn along the track for 200 feet to be collected.

COULD NOT HEAR TRAIN

The following are the facts collected by a reporter of The Warder who visited the scene. It would appear the unfortunate man was travelling east on the G. T. R. tracks to his home, a heavy snow falling at the time, a cap which he usually wore being pulled down over his ears. This left him unable to hear the flyer, which was following in the rear. At forty feet west of the bridge, the engine must have struck him, as at this point a pair of rubbers, which he had purchased that day in town, lay beside the track. His glasses, were also found a few feet from the rubbers. From this point where he was struck, pieces of flesh and bones, with a foot here, and a portion of a limb in another place, were found. The trunk was about 200 feet from where the accident occurred, lying on the track. It is most reasonable to believe that after the engine struck him the body was rolled along and thereby mangled and cut to pieces by the wheels. The coat of the unfortunate man, was found about one quarter of a mile east of the bridge with one sleeve torn out and otherwise tattered, being torn from his body and carried out by the engine. The top of the unfortunate man's head was taken off above the ears, both hands cut off at the wrists, and both feet ground off at the ankles.

A more sickening sight could not be imagined than that presented by the mangled remains as they lay on the side of the track and were viewed by crowds who visited the scene this morning.

A pocket book containing several gold rings and a brooch were the only articles of value found in his trousers pocket.

The remains were removed to the undertaking rooms of Mr. M. E. Tangney about nine o'clock a.m. The deceased leaves a wife and three sons, none of whom were at home when the fatality took place.

He was engaged in light occupations around town of late, being an expert carpenter.

INJURED BEFORE

The deceased had been struck at this point on the road about two years ago by an engine and badly hurt, owing to having a cap over his ears, but this did not seem to intimidate the unfortunate man who met such a terrible death last night.—Lindsay Warder.

Defended Salvationists.

ile Rev. Sidney Swann, the vicar osby Ravensworth, Westmorland, rowed from Dover to Sangatte, Cape Grisnes, Calais, in a 20-foot skiff in the extraordinary short of 3 hours and 50 minutes, was ndergraduate at Cambridge, he noted for his unusually liberal ed views. For example, the Sal n Army in the 'Varsity town met fierce opposition. A rowdy an istic mob used to find pleasure ashing up the bandsmen's instruments, and personal violence was not by any means unknown. This was too much for a trio of the undergraduates—S. Swann, Rowing Blue, who has now conquered the Channel; C. T. Studd, the famous cricketer, now so useful a worker at the London Polytechnic; and S. P. Smith, stroke of the Light Blue crew. These at once decided to show their sympathies with the Army by addressing the crowds who were drawn nightly to the local Salvation Army barracks. It is a remarkable fact that from that time the opposition commenced to subside, and some of the most troublesome of the "roughs" led to hear the young 'Varsity speakers afterwards became "soldiers" of the Army.

Got His Revenge.

Sir John Hare, whose reappearance at the Comedy Theatre in London in "The Marionettes" has aroused so much interest, has an inexhaustible stock of good stories. One of his best concerns a visit to a Scottish town. The prices had been put up a little, and a man explained to a friend that he had gone to the theatre with his wife, intending to go to the pit, and had found that eighteen pence was being charged instead of a shilling. "Of course, you didn't go in?" remarked the friend. "Oh, yes, I went in, but I paid Mr. Hare out for his greed. I sent my wife home, so he lost sixpence by it."

Lord Mayor at 81.

London's new lord mayor is Sir Thomas Crosby. He is 81 years old and remarkably preserved. "Take care of your arteries," he advises those who do not wish to die young. "A man is as old as his arteries. If they degenerate you get an effusion of blood on the brain or elsewhere and—crack; you are old at 25. Early to bed; smoke little and drink less."

Ammonia as Poison.

During the last three years seventy-one deaths were caused in England by ammonia, thirty-three of which were accidents and thirty-eight suicides. Hereafter every bottle in which ammonia is sold must be labelled with the words "not to be taken," in addition to the word "Poisonous."

Parental Sarcasm.

"Your daughter says she will marry me or nobody," said Baron Fucash defiantly.

"Yes," replied Mr. Cumrox with slight irritation, "and I reckon she's going to do both."

Turks and Russians May Clash.

London, Dec. 16.—A despatch to The Times from Teheran says that the Mollahs at Shiraz, capital of the Province of Fars, have disregarded the order of the Government to cease the boycott of the Indian troops there, and that hence these troops are absolutely without supplies. The correspondent adds that a collision is possible at any moment between Turks and Russian on the Turco-Persian frontier.

Failed to Reach Canada.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 16.—Nantone Luisei and John Adaminka, after being refused admission to Canada by immigration authorities, were rowed over to the Upper River in a boat yesterday. When arrested they confessed and were fined $5 each and deported.

Struck by Car, May Die.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 16—George Foss was seriously injured when his carriage was struck by the local line trolley in Ferry street last night. He was thrown to the ground, sustaining internal injuries. Two physicians are in attendance.

Dum-Dums Not Used.

Rome, Dec. 16.—The Italian Government has issued an official denial that its troops in Tripoli are using dum-dum bullets, as has been stated in Constantinople. No military operations were reported yesterday.

Welland Canal Closes.

Port Colborne, Dec. 16.—The Welland Canal was officially closed yesterday. Lock tenders were busy closing bridges and lock gates for the winter.

DOESN'T LIKE HOME LIFE.

Domesticity Fails to Interest the Ambitious Australian Woman.

In Australia, the dominion which has acceded to the demand for votes for women, there is a sharp cleavage in the ranks of the feminists. Some profess to be satisfied with the vote, writes an Australian woman, others wish that women should enter Parliament and, under the banner of "Sex Equality," advocate the removal of all restrictions on women in industrial and professional life. Woman is no longer to be the homekeeper, but is to enter into general competition with man.

Defining industry as something apart from domestic duties there should be no occasion for the Australian woman in industry. Australia has not to face any problem of a surplus female element in the population. In the commonwealth for every 100 women there are 111 men, which means that there should be a place for every Australian woman as wife and homekeeper for an Australian man.

With an area almost as large as that of Europe Australia has a population which does not reach 5,000,000 and admittedly stands in urgent need of an increase of inhabitants. Thus it would seem the duty of Australian women to consider wifehood and maternity as the ideals of life. From the realization of those ideals there are few of the deterrents that exist in more crowded communities. Except where individuals are hopelessly vicious or inefficient there is no real poverty. Living is cheap, wages are high and social life between men and women of all classes is much less formal and restricted than in England. Success is the natural corollary of intelligent and industrious enterprise. For starting children in life the opportunities are simply boundless. A thorough education is obtainable at free state schools. Further, the state provides exceptional facilities for technical and agricultural training. Lastly, in that cheerful democracy there is little of the social tyranny of "keeping up appearances" to prevent people from marrying young and struggling up to a good position by frugal living.

But in spite of the absence of all obstacles to early and fruitful marriages, in spite of the excess of men, in spite of the call on a pioneer people to populate their lands quickly, in spite of all the inducements and opportunities to make domesticity their life work an appreciable and increasing number of Australian women deliberately enter the ranks of industry; and it is without a doubt the result largely of the feminist revolt arising out of the suffrage agitation.

World's Longest Chimney.

Wales has probably the longest chimney in the world. It is two miles high, and has a brook running through it. The chimney is connected with the copper works at Cwmavon, near Aberavon. This is how it came to be built. About 60 years ago the copper smoke from these works was the plague of the neighboring countryside. It settled upon and destroyed the grass for 20 miles round, while the sulphur and arsenic in the fumes affected the hoofs of cattle, causing gangrene. The company tried all sorts of devices to remedy the trouble, but in vain.

Finally, Mr. Robt. Brenton who was later engineer of the Sind Railway in India, solved the problem. The copper works are at the foot of a high, steep mountain. Mr. Brenton constructed a flue or chimney running continuously from the base to about 100 feet above the summit, following the natural slope of the ground. The brick which lined it, and of which it was largely constructed, was burned close by. A small spring, rushing out near the mountain top, was turned into the chimney, and allowed to flow through almost its entire length to condense the smoke. Once a year it is swept out, and about a ton of precipitated copper obtained. Its top can be seen for between 40 and 50 miles.

Aids Inventor.

It is stated that a permanent exhibition will be held in London for the benefit of inventors. The exhibition is to be kept open throughout the entire year, and inventors will be afforded the opportunity of displaying their patents to possible purchasers, not only in the United Kingdom, but from all parts of the world. It is proposed employing expert demonstrators, who will take visitors through the various sections of the exhibition and who will have technical knowledge of the sections with which they are specially connected.

Through this exhibition, which has its financial side, it is hoped to bring investors who are anxious for promising patents in which they may place their money in touch with patentees who may have something of real value to offer, but who are unable frequently, under existing conditions, to profitably dispose of their inventions.

A Novelist at 87.

Mrs. Katherine S. Macquoid the novelist, who is 87 years of age, has written a new book. Mrs. Macquoid has been writing for fifty years and her health remains good, save that the strain of her work has slightly affected her eyesight. She has traveled much in Europe off the beaten track. Mrs. Macquoid's first story was published in 1859, and she has written since over fifty novels, besides children's and travel stories. She has also just completed another new novel entitled "Susanne." Her husband, Thomas Robert Macquoid, who is 91, has had a long and honorable career as an artist and black and white draughtsman.—London Evening Standard.

Scriptural Place Names.

England can boast that no other country possesses so many Scriptural place-names as it does. The name of Jericho occurs six times on the Ordnance maps, Paradise five times, and Nineveh, Mount Zion, Mount Ararat, and Mount Ephraim three times each. In Bedfordshire there is a Calvary Wood, and in Dorsetshire a Jordan Hill.

H.L. Moore, caught in the shafting of the McCormick Mfg. Co., London, was fatally hurt.

STEADFAST CANADIANS

THIS IS PRES. FALCONER'S TRIBUTE TO YOUNG DOMINION.

The Youth of Canada Are Neither Fickle Nor Very Impressionable, Steadfast If Not Brilliant, Loyal If Not Emotional—He Is a Prince Edward Island Man, Born in 1867—Been Four Years In Present Place.

President Falconer of the University of Toronto includes in almost every one of his notable public utterances a plea for the development of individuality by young Canadians. In his opening address to the students recently he urged the cultivation of chivalry, generosity, and self-sacrifice. In a letter, appearing in the first issue of 'Varsity for this year, he said: "Fewer each year, I hope, come to the university and seclude themselves from everything but class-room and laboratory work; fewer, I hope, leave untouched as to their individuality except by the impress of books and lectures. One of the chief objects of your coming here is to learn to think."

President Falconer's opinion of Canadian individuality as it has already developed was given some time ago in a lecture. He said: "I think I am justified in saying that the average Canadian is neither fickle nor greatly impressionable, is steadfast if not brilliant, loyal if not emotional."

This is a good character, and if we deserve it, Dr. Falconer has done his full share in moulding it, especially since 1907, when he assumed the great responsibilities of his present position. It may correct an error of general belief to note that Dr. Falconer, although one of the strong men produced by the Maritime Provinces, was not born in Nova Scotia, as many think, but in Prince Edward Island. He first saw the light in the capital city of that province in the year of Confederation.—Toronto Star Weekly.

Footballing Freaks.

A one-legged man has just succeeded in swimming between Hastings and Eastbourne, England; but in 1907 an absolutely legless football player was brought to light. This novel enthusiast was an inmate of Dr. Barnardo's Homes, at Stepney, and, although his abilities were sadly limited to goalkeeping, he put wonderful energy into the game, swinging his body from side to side by means of his arms.

Then there is a Leicester player who, besides being a fine judge of the game, can perform comparative marvels with his one leg, either as back or in goal. Halifax, however, produced a team of pigmies some years ago. Every member of this wonderful team was under eight stone.

On the other hand, the two backs of the Grenadier Guards are veritable "pillars of Hercules," one—Sergeant Trotter—measuring 6 feet 6 1-2 inches, and his companion being only shorter by two inches! Lieut. Rogers, the old Rugby International, who plays for the Royal Artillery, exceeds six feet and fourteen stone; and yet another Artillery giant is "Dido" Plumb who, although yet hardly out of his teens, scales close on fourteen stone, and is 6 feet 3 inches, yet he is one of the army's fastest, inside rights.—London Answers.

"Uncle Manny."

There are very few people in the East End of London who do not speak in admiring terms of "Uncle Manney," the "Kosher King," otherwise Mr. Emanuel Barnett, founder of a famous firm which sends tinned Kosher foods all over the world. "Uncle Manney" is rather fond of quoting the reply of Sir Herbert Tree after sending him a piece of glazed smoked beef to "serve as an inspiration" when he was producing "The Merchant of Venice." "Had I known you were sending such a delicious joint," wrote Sir Herbert, "I should never have troubled about the pound of Antonio's flesh."

British Sweater Towns.

"Birmingham is the most sweated and 'blacklegged' town in the country."

This was the startling statement made by Mr. G. Shann, who presided at a meeting of working men held in the town hall at Birmingham, Eng., to protest against sweating in the engineering, cycle and motor trades.

Twenty thousand women, it was stated, were working at carding hooks and eyes at an average of from half a crown to four shillings a week.

"Women never get a good grasp on anything."

"Are you a married man?"

"Yes."

"Then, for gracious sake, tell me where you hide your loose change."

Made a Show of Himself.

"That was rough on Davis."

"What?"

"He stepped on a piece of orange peel, fell and was arrested for giving a street performance without a license."

John Tai has been made assistant general superintendent of C.P.R. telegraph lines in the west.

TRUSTEES . . . . . . THE ROYAL TRUST COMPANY.
BANKERS . . . . . . BANK OF MONTREAL, DOMINION BANK

SECURITY

These bonds are secured by a trust deed held by The Royal Trust Company, upon all of the Company's properties, comprising modern packing plants and stock yards, at Montreal, Toronto, Hull, Peterborough and Brantford, valuable city properties used for retail markets in Montreal, Ottawa, and Peterborough together with branch distributing houses at Montreal, Ottawa, Sydney, Halifax and other points.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE AND DESCRIPTION OF BONDS

These bonds are issued for the purpose of furnishing additional working capital to extend the Company's operations.

Under the trust deed the issue represents a closed mortgage on all the fixed assets of the Company. The proportion is therefore only 60%. The remaining $800,000 can be issued subject to the mortgage, upon new property only, and to the extent of 66⅔% of the actual outlay. Furthermore, no additional bonds may be issued unless the net earnings for the year previous to such date of issue shall have amounted to three times the amount necessary for interest on the existing bonds.

The Trustee for the bondholders is The Royal Trust Company. The trust deed provides for a sinking fund of 2% per annum, commencing 1914. The bonds redeemed by means of the sinking fund are to be kept as cancelled by the Trustees, but the interest coupons thereon are to continue payable. All or any part of the issue of bonds may be redeemed after December 1st, 1915, at 105 and accrued interest.

SINKING FUND.

On or before Dec. 1st, 1914, and annually thereafter, a cash sinking fund of 2% of all bonds outstanding, plus an amount equal to the annual interest on all bonds redeemed through the sinking fund is to be paid to the Trustees and shall be invested by the Trustees in the purchase of the bonds of this issue in the open market at a price not exceeding 105 and accrued interest. If bonds are not obtainable in the open market, the Trustees may retire bonds by means of drawings at 105 and accrued interest.

PAST EARNINGS

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up. The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

You are safe in rejecting the article offered as "just as good."

THREATEN TO WRECK THEATRE

Italians of Montreal Very Wrathy Over Moving Picture Show

Montreal, Dec. 15.—Moving picture films that have been causing trouble in various parts of the United States arrived in Montreal yesterday, and promptly caused a small sized riot. The pictures depict the war in Tripoli, and represent the Italian soldiers as guilty of all the barbarities of which they have been accused, besides giving the Turks all the best of the actual fighting.

The proprietor of "Starland," a moving picture show on St. Lawrence Boulevard, this evening exhibited the pictures for a short time.

As soon as the Italian population got word of what was going on a crowd of young Italians rushed the theatre, tore down all the advertising signs depicting scenes of war, ousted the ushers and fought their way to the proprietor, forcing him to stop the performance.

The indignant Italians will also ask the Italian Consul here to take the matter up, and threaten to return to-morrow night and wreck the theatre if the pictures are again exhibited.

Ald. Eckert and ex-Alderman C.M. Graham are contesting for the London mayoralty.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost is the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thing and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. CANADIAN LEAGUE BALL MAY BE SEEN IN PETERBORO

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 15.—An eight-club circuit in the Canadian Baseball League seems a fairly certain result of the annual meeting of the league representatives in the Waldorf Hotel here to-day. The matter was brought up by the application of Ottawa people for admission to the league. The league magnates were entirely favorable to taking Ottawa in, the only unsettled condition being the matter of the guarantee by the capital's visiting clubs. Instead of $200 for a three days' trip, the league officials will insist on a guarantee of $75 per day.

There is some doubt as to whether Berlin will remain in the league and Owner Williams stated that the franchise of his club is for sale for $2500. The chief difficulty in the German city seems to be grand stand accommodation. If the Berliners can finance the grand stand proposition, no change will likely be made in the franchise. In the event of the franchise being transferred it will probably go to Peterboro or Kingston both of which cities are said to be anxious to break into professional baseball.

The Sporting Editor of the Review, has received a delayed letter from Hugh A. Shannon, of Buffalo, N.Y., who states that he would like to come to Peterboro to manage a Canadian League team, should one find berth in this city. He claims to have a good bunch of players who would deliver the goods for the Peterboro fans both on the home lot and away. The writer sends references from Chas. Murphy, President of the Chicago Nationals, Carl W. Chester, secretary of the Buffalo club and E. J. McCafferty of the Montreal club. He has had a large experience with ball players and clubs, and to judge from the tone of his letter, he is capable of handling the local end of the league.

Canadian League ball is a big proposition for Peterboro and yet a strong team would be well supported. The trouble is to get the backers, as considerable money would have to be forthcoming to put the club on a good foundation.

The rest would be easy. If local people fail to take the proposition the opportunity is bright for any outside magnates.

Making a Cake With the Bible.

The following unique recipe for Scripture cake is copied from an old English cookbook. For the ingredients and directions for making the cake you must refer to the Bible, in the chapters and verses given herewith. It may be added that by carefully following the directions you will be able to make a most delicious cake—the very best thing for a Sunday afternoon tea:

Four and a half cups of I Kings iv, 22; half pound Judges v, 25; two cups Jeremiah vi, 20; two cups Nahum iii, 12; two cups I Samuel xxx, 12; two cups Numbers xvii, 8; two teaspoonfuls I Samuel xiv, 25; to taste, II Chronicles ix, 9; six Jeremiah xvii, 11; one and a half cups Judges iv, 19; two teaspoonfuls Amos iv, 5; one pinch Leviticus ii, 13; directions, Proverbs xxiii, 14; bake one and a half to two hours. Baking powder may be used instead of yeast or leaven, as it is termed in the Bible.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q.—Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?

A.—Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near-sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q.—Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?

A.—Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

Q.—Can my headache be relieved with Glasses?

A.—A personal visit will be necessary. LET US TALK IT OVER.

JAPAN AND BRITAIN TO SETTLE THE WAR

Would Act as Mediators Between Chinese Government and The Revolutionists—Negotiations Under Way.

Tokio, Dec. 18.—It is unofficially stated that Japan and Great Britain have offered, or are about to offer, to mediate between the Chinese Government and the rebels, and will adopt further measures if this is refused. The newspaper Yoroszu says Japan on Dec. 11 notified China of her intnetion to make such an offer and said an agreement had been made with Great Britain by which the two Governments would act in concert in the matter. Mr. Ijuin, the Japanese Minister at Pekin, was notified of this action on Dec. 16, and it is understood that he forthwith informed Premier Yuan Shi Kai and the rebel leaders at Shanghai that Japan and England were instructing their respective consuls-general at Shanghai to offer to mediate.

The Ji-Ji Shimpo adds to the above that if the terms suggested by Japan and England are refused they will take decisive measures.

The Foreign Office refuses to confirm or deny the story, but says its publication was not authorized. It adds that it is impossible to make a statement now owing to pending negotiations.

Some action of this sort has been expected for several days. Japan recently sent councillor of the Foreign Office Matsui, who was at one time Charge d'Affaires at Washington, to Pekin, where he has held frequent conferences with Premier Yuan Shi Kai. It is reported that Sir John Newell Jordan, the British Minister at Pekin, left for Shanghai on Dec. 16.

A despatch from Shanghai reports that Japan and England have notified the revolutionists that they are prepared to guarantee certain terms of peace.

FIRE IN LOCK-UP

Two Prisoners Have Narrow Escape at Port Hope.

Port Hope, Dec. 18.—Fire was discovered at about 1 o'clock yesterday morning in the lockup of the Town Hall, where a commercial traveler, for being drunk and disorderly, and also a young man, charged with stealing a horse, were confined. Constable Chester and family, who live in the building, were aroused by the shouts of prisoners and liberated them just in the nick of time, as they were almost overcome by the smoke. The fire was extinguished after it had done a few hundred dollars' worth of damage, and thus the town hall was saved. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

APPLE BUYER GOES TO JAIL

He Bought Apples and Paid With Worthless Cheques

Special to the Review

St. Catharines, Dec. 18.—Convicted at Thorold, of paying for apples with cheques when he had no money in the bank, William R. Dingman, an apple buyer, of Belleville, was sentenced this morning to serve six months in the Central Prison.

Building Permits in Galt.

Galt, Dec. 18.—This year was the first that a building permit bylaw has been in force in this town, and it has worked out very satisfactorily. The town engineer's report shows that 267 permit swere granted, representing a sum of $282,334 spent in buildings in Galt this year.

Show Girls to Sue.

New York, Dec. 17.—Counsel for Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad, who were acquitted Saturday, announced yesterday that the show girls would file damage suits against Stokes for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution.

MOTHER GETS HER LOST BABE

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 18.—Reunited after a long separation, Mrs. O. H. Sang, wife of wealthy Japanese importer of New York, and her little five-year-old son, are together to-day. Behind the reunion here is an interesting story.

Five years ago "Yankee Consul" company played a one-night engagement at the International Theatre over the river. Olgo Sinclair, who was a Russain dancer with the company, was the mother of a two-weeks-old baby boy weighing scarcely three pounds. The manager refused to keep the young mother in the company unless she gave up the child. To leave the show meant starvation for both mother and child.

Harris Lumberg, who was at that time manager of the International, was appealed to by the almost distracted mother, and Mr. and Mrs. George Land, Chippawa, were induced to take the baby boy, the mother agreeing to pay $1 a day for his keep. For a few months the money came regularly, then all trace of the mother was lost and the Lands came to look upon the dancing girl's child as their own.

A week ago Land received a letter from a firm of New York lawyers seeking information concerning the Russian dancer's child. The mother arrived Saturday afternon and saw her boy for the first time in five years.

Mrs. Sang, who will take the boy back to New York with her, refused to talk of her fortunes during the past five years.

New Uniform Rule.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—The Minister of Militia is putting into effect a new rule with regard to the selection of uniforms for the militia. Under the old system the cloth for the uniforms was purchased without any stipulation as to color standards, the result being that different regimnets wore varied hues of red or of green, and this has caused comment on review days. Hereafter, the cloth will be manufactured in Canada specially for the militia under the supervision of a textile expert.

Sold Crooked Gambling Outfits.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—Three years in the federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., was the sentence given Saturday by Judge Landis in the U. S. District Court, to Eugene Stockton who was convicted by a jury of having used the federal mails in disposing of unfair dice, marked cards and crooked gambling devices which he manufactured.

ASSAILANT OF LLOYD GEORGE GETS TWO MONTHS TERM

He Struck the Chancellor in the Face With Brass Bound Box.

London, Dec. 18.—David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was seriously injured while leaving a Women's Liberal meeting here on Saturday evening, at which he had just made an address. A male suffragist hurled a brassbound box at the Chancellor, which struck him full in the face, cutting his lip and badly injuring his eye. A doctor who attended the Chancellor's injuries, said that he had a narrow escape from losing the eye.

Sir Edward Grey and Mr. Lloyd-George both addressed the meeting in favor of including female franchise in the Government's suffrage bill next year. The police had taken extraordinary precautions to exclude militant suffragists from the meeting, but evidently some of them forced their way through the barrier.

Special to The Review.

London, Dec. 18.—Allan McDougall, who struck Lloyd George in the face with a brass bound box was to-day sentenced to serve two months' imprisonment at hard labor.

McDougal claimed that he had no intention of assaulting the Chancellor, merely wishing to deliver suffragette literature to him as he could not reach the stage. [illegible]

N. J. Divorce Was N. G.

Montreal, Dec. 18.—A divorce said to have been obtained in the District Court of New Jersey, failed to meet with recognition at the hands of Judge Charbonneau yesterday when Dame Caroline Francis Smith brought an action against her husband, Henry Charles Cornish, to force him to support herself and her children.

The couple were married in West Ham, Eng., in 1886. Two years ago Cornish left his wife and went to the United States. Here he obtained a divorce and then came to Montreal and is said to be earning $3,000 a year. His wife traced him and, Saturday, despite his plea that the American divorce freed him from all obligations and liabilities, that the judge ordered him to pay his wife $50 a month for twelve months and costs.

Canadians In Georgia Railroad.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 18.—The Georgai Railroad Commission yesterday approved the $47,000,000 stock and bond issue sof the Georgia Railway & Power Co., a consolidation of numerous North Georgia water power electric concerns, financed largely by New York, Boston and Canadian interests.

The company asked permission to capitalize at $27,000,000, and issue $30,000,000 in bonds. The farmer was cut to $17,000,000, whlie the latter was approved.

Whether this compromise will be accepted will be decided by the company officials in New York this week.

ALL ENGLAND IS NERVOUS

Fears Openly Expressed For King George's Safety.

Every Effort Was Made to Persuade His Majesty to Avoid Visit to India and Friday's Rumor Is Evidence of the Anxiety In London—Fires In Durbar Camps Increase Feeling—Royal Party Hunting.

London, Dec. 18.—Apprehension for the safety of King George in India is now voiced openly in official circles. The rumor of the King's assassination on Friday was the natural outcome of the apprehension felt in London and shows how keenly the nerves are on edge of those who realise the danger of the crisis which would be precipitated if harm came to the sovereign.

Every effort was made to persuade the King to abandon his visit, but he was obdurate in the face of evidence presented to him of Indian unrest which was not seeking an opportunity such as the royal presence would afford to demonstrate its strength. Those whose advice he did not heed now feel justified in saying "I told you so!"

An appreciation of the danger of the situation is shown by Parliament in its present treatment of the announcement of the removal of the capital from Calcutta to Delhi and the readjustment of the boundaries of Bengal and Assam. It was a stroke of genius for the Ministry to induce the King to make the announcement. This fact in a measure stifled criticism on account of the desire not to reflect on the King-Emperor. But the main consideration causing the present reticence is that which was implied by Bonar Law, the leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, when he said that it would be dangerous to the King's safety to agitate the subject while royalty is in India. The first bitter outburst of the Marquis of Lansdowne and Lord Curzon, both of whom were former viceroys, were frowned upon in the press and elsewhere, and there is evidence that the would-be critics of the Indian changes will remain silent until the King has started for England.

While the reports that the burning of the durbar tents was caused by incendiaries have been discountenanced by the press, the belief is widespread that the fires were purposely set as a protest against British rule. The Ministry will breathe a sigh of relief when the Indian excursion passes into history.

Hunting In Nepal.

Delhi, India, Dec. 18.—King George, who Saturday left for Nepal on a shooting expedition, was notified before his departure of the death of Maharajah of Nepal, Shamsher Jang Bahadur, on Dec. 11. Before his death the maharajah expressed the wish that his illness would not interfere with the King-Emperor's visit. The succession of his son, Halr, has been announced and the mourning ceremonies will be hastened. The King decided to fulfil his engagement.

WILL COST BIG SUM

$40,000,000 for Deepening of the Welland Canal

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—It is understood that the reports of the engineers who have been investigating the proposed deepening of the Welland Canal, will show that the work will cost forty millions of dollars. The project will be seriously considered before the government undertakes to make such an enormous expenditure.

Reyes Pulls Off Battle.

Mexico City, Dec. 18.—A special despatch to The Herald from Monterey says that a high official at that place has received word from the vicinity of Galeana in the State of Nueve Leon that Gen. Reyes has arrived there and is engaged in recruiting. The some official learns also that a skirmish between federal troops and Reyistas occurred Saturday at Sandoval, near Matamoros, in the State of Tamaulitas. No details of the fighting have been received.

Laredo, Tex., Dec. 18.—Private advices received here Saturday night say that Gen. Geronimo Trevino, in command of the federal army in Mexico, is closing on the Town of Galeana, where Gen. Berardo Reyes is declared to have established headquarters preparatory to launching a rebellion against the Government of Mexico.

Gen. Trevino has ordered his troops to move hurriedly on Galeana and has informed his officers that Gen. Reyes was accompanied by only five or six men on his trip from the border.

U. S. Financing for Nicaragua.

San Juan Del Sur, Nicaragua, Dec. 18.—The Nicaraguan Finance Minister has handed over the custom houses to the American financial advsier of the Nicaraguan Government, Ernest H. Wands. This action is taken in connection with the readjustment of Nicaragua's finances, which is to be carried out with the aid of the American Government, and with the loans which are forthcoming from American bankers.

NEW ELECTION IN SOUTH ONTARIO

Oshawa, Dec. 18.—There is a movement on foot to demand another provincial election in South Ontario, because of alleged mistakes on the part of Crown Attorney Farewell in issuing the voters' lists and giving instructions to deputy returning officers.

It is stated that Col. Farewell did not act under the revised statutes in handling the lists, but under the old provisions of the law, that there were some errors in the polling books and instructions given D. R. O.'s were vague, and that the returns from the polling books were not systematically handled.

Pinchot Warns Republicans.

Boston, Dec. 18.—That the development of recent months have made impossible the renomination of Mr. Taft and that the country is turning rapidly to LaFollette as the next Republican Presidential nominee, were among the declarations made by Gifford Pinchot, former chief of the U. S. Forest Service, before a gathering of progressive Republicans in Tremont Temple Saturday night.

"Unless the Republican party shall meet the demand of the times by throwing itself squarely into the progressive movements, its time of usefulness is past," said the speaker. "Modern conditions demand modern treatment. The Republican party needs to be cleansed of its open sores."

The gathering was so large that an overflow meeting was necessary.

Girl Babies Taller.

Boston, Dec. 18.—Girl babies are being born taller and with much more vitality than used to be the case, according to an authority in this city. Miss Charlotte W. Dunn, assistant superintendent of a hospital here patronized by the stork to the extent of 3,000 babies a year, says:

"We have noticed that girl babies are getting taller and that they are appearing in this world lately with more vitality than formerly. The boy babies continue on the average in weight and height."

Strikebreaker Shot Dead.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 18.—The third killing during the strike of Harriman line shopmen here occurred yesterday, when Thomas C. Lyons, a carpenter, was shot dead in the Southern Pacific Railroad yards. Lyons came here from Kansas City.

The assassin has not been identified and no arrests have been made.

CHARGED WITH KILLING SON

Bad Axe, Mich., Dec. 18.—Mrs. Carrie B. Sparling, wife of the late John Wesley Sparling, and mother of Cyril, Albert and Peter Sparling, all of whom are dead, was arrested early last night charged with the death of her son. Mrs. Sparling was taken to jail. The warrant was issued Saturday and Mrs. Sparling was expecting arrest.

"I am resigned to go to jail contentedly and prayerfully," she said in an interview some time before the sheriff arrived. She told of "prayer visions," in which she said she saw Dr. R. A. MacGregor of Ubly robed in white and indicating his innocence, being driven over a precipice by a multitude.

Saturday Dr. MacGregor was held to the Circuit Court, charged with the murder of Cyril Sparling. Miss Marguerite Gibbs, the nurse who also attended the youth, was bound over on a charge of accessory after the fact.

Mrs. Sparling's arrest resulted partly from the testimony of Sheriff McAuley at the MacGregor examination Saturday.

It is reported that the bodies of father and third son are to be exhumed soon.

Rhenish Westphalian Zeitung Publishes an Inflammatory Story to the Effect That British Conspirators Tried to Blow Up Wilhelmshaven, the Big Warship Harbor—British Admiralty Laughs at Tale.

Cologne, Dec. 18.—The Rhenish Westphalian Zietung publishes a story of an alleged discovery of a plan on the part of Great Britain to blow up Wilhelmshaven. The Zietung professes to have received its information from one of the best informed officers, who said that the postal authorities, becoming suspicious of repeated money orders in favor of deck officers and chief mates, finally seized some of the letters passing through the postal department. These showed that the plans to the entrances to Wilhelmshaven war harbor, as well as plans of the water supply and the contents of the secret code book had been betrayed to the British Admiralty.

The paper points out that with such information at its command, Great Brtiain could blow up the entrances to the war harbor at the decisive moment, rendering the harbor utterly useless and Germany at the very beginning of war helpless to defend herself at sea. To prevent the threatened danger, The Zietung continues, a German squadron remained for weeks on patrol duty. Recent conferences between the Emperor, the Minister of Marine, the chief of the Admiralty staff, and the chief of the Marine Department, dealt with this danger.

Just a Romance.

London, Dec. 18.—The story that the British Admiralty has secured plans of the locks and water supply and the secret signal codes of Wilhelmshaven with the idea in event of war of blowing up the harbor entrances, and thus bottling up the German fleet, is regarded here as a mere romance. It is further alleged that to avoid this supposed danger, the German fleet kept for weeks to the open sea during the recent crisis. These stories are supposed to have been betrayed by German officers to the Rhenish Westphalian Zietung, which is strongly anti-British and the organ of the war material trade.

England Not Friendly.

Cologne, Dec. 18.—The Cologne Gazette's inspired Berlin despatch says yesterday, commenting on The London News' article in which Anglo-German relations are discussed: "The News correctly asserts that the desire for better relations will not be satisfied until English speeches are supported by English deeds. One could believe from reading The News that the greatest goodwill exists among the English, and that closer relations between Great Britain and Germany would be in no wise difficult.

"Unfortunately, it must be said that The News is far from expressing public opinion in England, which now, as formerly, approves the policies which can be blamed for the present situation.

"Of course," continues The Gazette, "there are some prominent Englishmen who have preserved the historic British open-mindedness towards us. Lord Charles Beresford appears to have joined these recently, but their influence is not strong enough to banish the hypnosis with which the English regard German policies and what they believe to be behind them. The conviction that Germany is threatening Great Britain with every sinister plan is so firmly rooted through years of incitement by a certain section of the press, that it would be difficult to shake off. How deep this conviction is and how it rises to blind hatred can be seen from the libels which have been uttered against Germany."

STORES OPEN IN THE EVENING

Commencing Wednesday and continuing till Saturday, the stores will remain open in the evenings. The slogan for the week is SHOP EARLY.

NEW COMPANY FOR TRENT CANAL ROUTE

The Lindsay Post publishes the particulars of an interview with an unnamed Peterboro man, who gave out the information that a new navigation company was being organized to take the place of the Peterboro and Lake Simcoe Navigation Company.

The boats of this company are still being offered for sale.

KING'S DAUGHTERS TO DISTRIBUTE CHEER

The King's Daughters of this city will put into worthy practise, this Christmas time, the truth contained in the old axiom, "that it is more blessed to give than to receive" when they will disseminate Christmas cheer to poor but deserving folks of the city, regardless of denomination. Supplies of good things, such as money, candy and other means of relief, will be distributed for the alleviation of suffering of any nature and the brightening of Christmas generally for those not so well fixed in worldly goods.

To this end they thankfully will receive contributions of the above nature, to be left at St. John's school house, on Wednesday afternoon, and wish to specially remind prospective donators that the giving will be of an entirely undenominational character.

MRS CARRIE C. CATT

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the famous woman suffragist, heads a list of "the world's twenty greatest women." The list was compiled by the members of the Illinois State Equal Rights Association, which they offer to compare with the list of men recently selected.

NINE DIE IN WRECK

Freight Crashed Into the Rear of Fast Passenger Train

Special to the Review

Odessa, Minn., Dec. 18.—Nine persons were killed and many others injured near here this morning when a freight train crashed into the rear of the fast Columbia Limited passenger train on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway.

MEXICO HAS EARTHQUAKE

Mexico City, Dec. 18.—Mexico was rocked from ocean to ocean and from Guanajuato on the north to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec on the south by an earthquake yesterday. One old woman was so badly injured in a falling hut that she may die. Mrs. Dora Chenoweth, wife of an American dentist, succumbed to heart trouble aggravated by the shock.

The disturbance was most severely felt in the State of Guerrero, especially in Chipancingo, the movement was much greater. A few flimsy buildings were thrown down.

The quake caused a panic here. Hundreds rushed terrified to the Zocalo, where they ran aimlessly about or fell on their knees in prayer.

Telegraph and telephone wires were snapped and for a time the city was without light and electric power.

The first shock was felt at 12.40 and continued for a few seconds more than two minutes. The instruments registered an oscillatory movement from southwest to northeast. Two slight tremors were recorded at 2.16 and 8.13 p.m.

To Stop Tripoli War Films.

Washington, Dec. 18—Italy, through her ambassador here, Saturday appealed to the State Department to stop the exhibition in the United States of motion pictures alleging to portray the massacre of Arabs and Turks in Tripoli by Italian soldiers. The States Department informed the ambassador that it would do what it could towards stopping the exhibition of the objectional pictures.

Royalty Will Enjoy Winter.

Montreal, Dec. 18—That Their Royal Highnesses intend to enjoy the Canadian winter in true Canadian fashion was made evident by some purchases made by Captain Buller, A.D.C., before the departure of the royal party. He visited a well-known sporting goods establishment and purchased toboggans, skis, snowshoes, etc., ordering the store authorities to send them to Rideau Hall.

A Costly Fire.

Hudson, N.Y., Dec. 18.—Fire starting at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the large storehouse of the New York and Hudson Steamboat Co. here burned that building and its contents, spread to the Washburn ice house, which was also destroyed, and to the Hudson Wholesale Grocery Co.'s building, all but one end of which was saved. The total loss is estimated at more than $200,000.

Pioneer Steel Man Dead.

Pittsburg, Dec. 18.—Thomas Noble Miller, aged 76, merchant, manufacturer, railroad operator, inventor and pioneer steel man, died here Saturday, after a two-day's illness, from pneumonia. Mr. Miller in his youth was engaged with Andrew Carnegie and Henry Phipps in the steel industry. He is the last of his family.

NO QUARREL WITH RUSSIA

President Has Sent a Diplomatic Message to Czar's Ministers, Giving Notice of the Proposal of the U. S. to Abrogate Treaty on Account of Jews—Will Veto Sulzer's Fire-Eating Resolution If It Passes.

Washington, Dec. 18.—The Russian treaty situation cleared materially yesterday, and the administration plans for the abrogation of the 1832 pact with the St. Petersburg Government became more definitely known. President Taft, it is said, has indicated emphatically that he would veto the Sulzer resolution instantly if it should be forced through the Senate to-day without modification. Nothing that can be construed as an offence to Russia will be permitted if the President can help it.

According to plans announced last night, Mr. Taft to-day will send two communications to the capitol, one a message addressed to the same to be considered in executive session, and the other a letter directed to Chairman Cullom of the Senate committee on foreign relations. In these communications, Mr. Taft, it is said, will outline his attitude plainly, and will call pointed attention to the fact that international relations are not lightly to be dealt with.

Despite the advice of certain of the Republican leaders of the House that the lower branch of Congress should be considered in the matter, President Taft said last night he was determined to ignore the House entirely in his further dealing with the Russian situation. Senate leaders expect to hear to-day that the President, through American Ambassador Guild at St. Petersburg, already has notified Russia of the impending abrogation of the treaty. This notice is believed to have been couched in the politest terms of diplomatic language, and to have stated that the American people had come to regard the treaty as obsolete in many of its provisions. The expiration of the treaty is fixed for Jan. 1, 1913.

"Trusty" Makes Escape.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Felix Gagne of Montreal, a prisoner serving a sentence of two months in Hull Jail, escaped from that institution on Saturday evening, and, despite rigorous search, has not yet been recaptured. He was a "trusty" and working in the cellar at the furnace. There was a loose bar to the 18-inch window and while the jailer went upstairs he got through and escaped.

PROBABILITIES

Moderate northerly winds cloudy, Tuesday, north and east winds with a little lower temperature.

TWENTY MORE BODIES FOUND

Briceville, Tenn., Dec. 18.—Twenty-one more bodies were found yesterday in the Cross Mountain mine, in which an explosion occurred a week ago yesterday morning. This brings the death list to 84 and President Stevenson of the Knoxville Iron Co., owner of the mine, stated last night that he believed this accounted for every man entombed. Five were rescued. The company has claimed from the first that but 85 men were in the workings when the explosion occurred, but the miners say there were more.

Fifty-nine women were made widows and 147 children left fatherless as a result of the disaster. In addition, there are ten or twelve other dependents. It is probable all bodies will be removed by to-day. Only one of 84 men killed carried life insurance. The relief fund has passed the $20,000 mark.

SCIATICA

EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY

Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored by "Nerviline."

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service, and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold, and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day, and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments, and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism, or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

CURED SIX YEARS

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. Don't accept anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." 50 cents per bottle, trial size, 25c; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

NO CONTRACT INVOLVED

Some of the ratepayers of the city seem to be confused with regard to the power question, upon which they will pass upon in the municipal elections. Now it must not be assumed that any contract is involved. The issue is an academic one. The vote is simply one for the ratepayers to decide whether the council will be authorised to negotiate with the Hydro-electric Commission in regard to power. Property owners will doubtless vote on New Year's Day, to give the Council power to open such negotiations. Then when a definite proposition is submitted by the commission it can be perfectly dealt with and the question settled in a satisfactory manner. The Commission have made it a practice not to go into the question of supplying power to any municipality without first having a public expression of the people on the issue. This is the reason of the power vote on New Year's Day and there is nothing binding or committing in the referendum.

Twenty-six municipalities will vote on the question on New Year's day.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The civic elections will be held just two weeks from to-day.

Yes; she loves the luxury with which she will be surrounded, the glitter of diamonds, the great house, all the paraphernalia of wealth, but she hates the trembling, tottering, blear-eyed object who bought her.

Some of the Ontario opposition papers charge that the Government of the province is composed of men who are asleep. The critics, if they have satisfaction for their charge, would do well to make no noise about the discovery. New Use For Breakfast Food

Popular Mechanics.

The Salt Lake, Los Angeles, and San Pedro Railroad Co. recently received a bill for several pounds of breakfast food purchased by a locomotive engineer, Nipton, Cal., for a unique purpose. A few weeks before the receipt of the bill one of the road's fastest trains was stranded, because of a leaky locomotive flue, at Nipton, which is a desert station in Southern California. Nothing could be obtained to stop the leak until the engineer finally thought of breakfast food, this material being suggested to him by the restaurant sign near by. The flaky material was mixed with scraps of paper and with water, the whole being kneaded into a tough paste, which was used to plug the hole. The train was thus enabled to reach a station where more substantial repairs would be made.

REFORMS IN CALENDAR.

Changes In Months and Holy Days Before British Parliament.

Some novel proposals are contained in the fixed calendar bill presented by Sir Henry Dalziel and supported by Mr. Wilkes, Mr. Pringle and Mr. Munro Ferguson. The memorandum accompanying the text of the bill, explains that the measure purposes to substitute for the present irregular calendar a fixed calendar having regular periods, of which the week is a common measure, says The London Globe.

It differs in some important features from the calendar reform bill introduced on March 15, 1908, by Mr. Robt. Pearce. That bill sought to make the months as uniform in length as possible, but as a difference in this respect is unavoidable in a year with twelve months it is thought better to increase that difference so as to allow of the week being a common measure of all the months. This arrangement makes it possible for each month to begin on a Sunday and end on a Saturday.

The memorandum points out that although the making of a definite regular difference between the lengths of the months does not introduce any new element into the meaning of the word "month," seeing that the months already differ in length, it has been thought well to codify the present rule determining monthly periods and to make a rule regarding the computing of the monthly salaries. The bill provides that the conditions of labor on New Year Day and Leap Day, and also the remuneration thereof shall conform as far as possible to what prevails on Sundays.

In meeting the desire for a fixed date for each of the movable holy days it has been thought sufficient to enact a fixed date only for Easter, which is to be upon April 15, as all the others are calculated from the date of Easter. As in Mr. Pearce's bill and in the calendar act of 1751, provision is made regarding the comings of age and other events which may be affected by the passing of this bill.

The bill if passed by Parliament will not become operative until the crown decides that sufficient international concurrence has been secured.

A table giving the proposed fixed calendar shows that the months of January, February, April, May, June, August, October and November would each consist of twenty-eight days, while the remaining months of March, July, September and December would each have thirty-five days. New Year Day is set apart, thus bringing the total of days up to the requisite number of 365, while for leap year a special day is set apart as Leap Day, which is to be intercalated between the last day of June and the first day of July as reconstituted by the bill.

A clause of the bill lays down that the New Year Day and Leap Day shall neither of them be accounted days of the week, and shall not, except where specially mentioned or provided or be held to be included in any computation of days, but shall otherwise be public bank holidays.

Porcelain Walls.

Walls of porcelain at a comparatively cheap cost, have been made possible by an English pottery expert, W. H. Turner, who has been working out his patent for many years, and now has succeeded. The material is simply glazed slabs of pure porcelain, the material commonly known as "china," so translucent that light can be seen through its half inch of thickness. The slabs are made in single pieces of any size up to that of the largest sheets of plate glass, and "are so strong that an elephant could stand on one without breaking it."

It is said to offer a means of imperishable decoration, which "in color, grace and brightness, rivals the painted wall decorations of Pompeii," for there can be printed on the slab in its "biscuit" or porous stage of manufacture designs or pictures with such gradations of coloring that any masterpiece can be faithfully copied.

To line the walls of a room with this everlasting covering costs no more than ordinary panelling, and architects believe that these plates will solve the problem of housing in the tropics, since a house built with walls, floor and roof of these plates, will resist damp, heat, disease and white ants.

Salt in the Beer.

Some curious superstitions are gathered round even so eminently practical a thing as beer. In Scotland it used to be the custom to throw a handful of salt and a little dry malt into the mash to keep the witches from it, and the cautious housewife in houses where they brewed their own beer used to throw a live coal into the vat to save the liquor from the frolicsome interference of fairies.

The addition of salt, by the way, to beer in the course of brewing was supposed to be for the unholy purpose of exciting thirst. It may possibly have been used to this end by the unscrupulous, but the real reason was legitimate. Salt moderates the fermentation and makes the liquor fine.—London Chronicle.

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 16.—There was some realizing at the opening, with prices lower and following the opening further pressure carried values lower, with support lacking. The early firmness in Buenos Ayres and the unfavorable weather there and the strong closing in American markets yesterday were offset here by the reaction in Buenos Ayres at the close and latest reports of hot dry weather over most of the area, which is highly favorable. There was free outside selling by early buyers on the quieter demand for cargoes and parcels and forecast of fine weather in Argentine. At the close the market was easy, ⅛ to ⅛ lower.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Despite hopeful news from many quarters, better harvest weather in the Argentine sent the wheat market to-day to a lower level. The close here was easy at 1-4c to 1-2c under the figures of 24 hours before. Corn finished a shade to 3-8c higher than last night. Oats a shade lower and hog products varying from unaltered prices to decline of 10c.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 16.—The foreign demand for Manitoba spring wheat was quieter and cables stated that advanced prices asked by exporters checked business and there were few orders in the market that could be accepted on account of the higher prices for wheat and the advance in ocean grain freights. There was no change in the local market for coarse grains, for which the demand was fair. There was an improved demand from European sources for spring wheat flour. Sales of several thousand sacks were made and bids of 3d to 6d per sack less were in hand for round lots. Sales of 90 per cent. winter wheat patents were made to Belfast at equal to 24s 6d to Glasgow, but the best bid from Glasgow was 24s. The local market is steady with a fair volume of business doing. The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

Those three words were an illumination; memory was flooded; and I glowed with a satisfaction that, in accordance with my custom in such matters, I had collected and preserved every available scrap of information which had in any way to do with this same Paternoster ruby. And right here some of that data must be presented.

First of all, this magnificent gem's known history hinted at no religious association whatever, as its name might seem to imply. In more than one journal I have seen it seriously affirmed that at one time it was a property of that celebrated pope, Alexander VI., Rodrigo Borgia, father of Caesar and Lucresia—thus investing it with an antiquity and romance which the facts did not warrant.

But, after all, am I not premature in making this last assertion? Perhaps it will appear before we are through.

The gem first became known to the world and acquired its name through one Luca Paternostro, an Italian dealer in precious stones having his place of business in London, who claimed to have purchased it in the rough from some adventurer whose name is unknown to history. This occurred in the early '80's.

Subsequently it was carefully cut in Amsterdam, a paste replica made for the purposes of display in the course of trade, and then added to Paternostro's stock—perhaps not because he expected to dispose of it to the first chance customer, but rather by reason of the prestige which the ownership of so superb a jewel would give him; it was an excellent advertisement.

On the fourth night after he received the cut ruby from the Dutch lapidaries, Paternostro was murdered and the gem stolen from his apartments in Hatton Gardens.

Of course, a stone so celebrated was easy to identify; not alone by means of the paste replica and an accurate preserved description, but its extraordinary and distinguishing features—to say nothing of its value—were not likely to be forgotten by experts who had seen and handled it.

And so, when it appeared in Paris a few months later, Paternostro's heirs and successors in the gem-importing business were promptly on hand to claim their property; an enterprise in which they succeeded after the determination of some legal complications; and the Paternostros started with the ruby on the return to London.

Incidentally, the assassin and thief—an Oriental of undetermined nationality—was also apprehended and, the red-tape of extradition having been gravely untangled, conveyed to England and duly hanged.

Ill-luck, however, followed the ruby. On the boat over from Calais to Dover a confidential employe of the gem merchants, who had accompanied them to Paris, was lost overboard while the vessel was entering the home port. Although this man was known to be an expert swimmer—notwithstanding the attempts at rescue, the proximity of land and the numerous craft of all sorts in the vicinity—a strange fatality seems to have carried him straight to the bottom. After the man vanished beneath the waves, no sign of him was seen again.

In the following year no less than four attempts were made to steal the stone from the Paternostros; but as they had learned caution from their unfortunate predecessor's death—to the extent, at least, of keeping such treasure in bank—these attempts were abortive.

Later several tentative overtures on the part of one of Europe's richest monarchs toward the purchase of the Paternoster ruby came to naught; the price set upon it by the Paternostros was prohibitive; and gradually it came to be forgotten by the public, until the year '84, when interest concerning it was again revived, this time to fever heat.

And now we have Alfred Fluette and Felix Page Page arrayed against each other once more. Everybody, of course, still remembers the sudden rivalry between these two American citizens, which sprang up in June of that year, for the gem's possession. The complexity of causes which simultaneously inspired them with an inordinate desire for the Paternoster ruby—a desire which seemingly could be appeased only by possession, regardless of cost—was much of a mystery, and afforded the energetic correspondents a fruitful text for many a day. Both, as is well known, had unlimited means with which to indulge their sudden whim; where kings and princes resigned themselves to the melancholy fact that the gem was not for them, these two men battled for it with an unlicensed tendering of fortunes that amazed the world; and one may easily imagine the sleepless anxiety of the Paternostros, as first one and then the other of the millionaires ran up his bid with true American prodigality.

Only—and this the mystifying feature of the episode—Felix Page could never honestly be accused of prodigality in any circumstances. He secured the ruby—at a fabulous price; but in the operation he made at least one bitter, implacable enemy. Alfred Fluette returned to the United States, smarting with the stings of defeat, and pledged to a commercial warfare on the successful millionaire speculator. It waged merrily thenceforward.

Why did Felix Page want the Paternoster ruby? It was impossible even to surmise a tenable theory. His parsimony was notorious; he was a bachelor without kith or kin, and had never before been known to evince the slightest interest in precious stones.

On the other hand, Mr. Fluette was not only a collector of gems, but his collection was and still is one of the most famous in the world. Perhaps Page was willing to sacrifice a fortune merely to thwart a rival's ambition; perhaps he was only satisfying some old grudge about which the world knew nothing—it was all speculation, and speculation of a most unsatisfying sort, too. He got the stone, at any rate; and here we have another instance of the man's peculiar disposition.

Whatever he did with the ruby nobody knew. There were many connoisseurs and jewellers on this side of the water who were naturally curious to see a gem of such renown; but with characteristic selfishness the new owner refused one and all, not only a glimpse of his costly prize, but would not even impart any information about it. His was a dog-in-the-manger attitude; with no appreciation whatever of his possession, he refused bluntly to allow anybody else to enjoy it. The ruby was kept hid away.

Such, briefly, were the data I had neatly pasted in my scrapbook and which memory had been all the morning trying to recall.

I paused in my promenade to survey Burke: what new adjustment must be made of the bare facts so gathered; what now, in view of this new element injected into the case, was the attitude of this strange being toward it—my regard shifted to Maillot—and his?

Just at this juncture my cogitations were broken in upon by the door being unceremoniously thrown open. Stodger, much excited, darted in, closing the door after him. He handed me an envelope, accompanying it with a look of suppressed eagerness which suggested certain details pertinent to the missive which were being reserved—with difficulty—for my private hearing.

"Note for Maillot," announced he, his eyes fixed curiously upon the young man.

Maillot, apparently dumfounded, rose slowly to his feet.

"A note—for me!" he faltered. Then quietly: "Give it to me, Swift."

Our glances met—and stayed. I had the envelope before me pinned to the etable with the outspread fingers of my right hand. Maillot was unmistakably in great distress of mind, and his expression was that of a man desperate but determined. Only for a moment I hesitated; then without raising my hand, I slid the envelope across the table to him.

"It's a question of confidence, Mr. Maillot," said I, calmly, endeavoring to convey my earnestness in the look which had not for an instant swayed from his. "I reserve the right, should the occasion arise, to read it; understand?"

With a curt nod of acquiescence, he snatched it up from the table. A glimpse of the handwriting brought a flush to his face and a glad sparkle to his eyes; but the missive troubled him It was short, but as he slowly returned it to its envelope his hand shook and his countenance grew more and more harrassed and perplexed.

I glanced at Burke's pallid features and found them as impassive as any Indian's. It was impossible to determine whether he was watching me or Maillot.

Evidently assuming the incident to be closed, Stodger saw his opportunity to speak again.

"Chaps out here that brought it," said he; "coachman, he looks like; waiting for an answer." Then he turned to me, continuing:

"Four reporters out there, too; what shall I do with 'em?"

Maillot suddenly startled us by smiting the table violently with his fist. He was white, trembling, and apprehensive; but his determination was by no means broken.

"Swift," said he, in a hashed, strained voice, "step aside with me; let me have a word with you."

He seized my arm, and fairly dragged me off toward the curtained alcove.

"Swift," he whispered, not releasing his grip on my arm, "I'm in a devil of a position. For Heaven's sake, show some sign of humanity! That note was from a young lady—"

"I surmised as much."

"Hang it, man! Don't laugh! I'm more dead in earnest than I ever was before in my life. This means more to me—to her—than you can by any possibility conceive, astute officer of the law though you may be."

My expression must have contined something of surprise at his vehemence, for with an effort he abruptly checked himself and at once went on more calmly.

"Swift, it's the young lady I expect some day to marry; she's heard a rumor of the trabedy, and is worried about me. The note was broubht by her coachman, and she's waiting on the corner a block from here for me to come to her."

I tried hard to consider what was best to do. Enter a woman into a case like this, and assured conduct becomes an impossibility. Maillot was searching my face eagerly; in a moment he laid more of the matter before me.

"She's a sensitive, high-strung girl whom the slightest breath of scandal would fairly kill. I can't let her name be dragged into this mess; I can't answer her note, and send the reply away from under your very nose without a word to you. And the reporters! Gracious heavens! Swift, Stodger wanted to know what to do with 'em; for pity's sake, tell him to kill 'em!"

Again I interrupted. I trust that I may in all modesty record that I have more than a spark of the feelings to which the young fellow made such a passionate appeal.

"Look here, Maillot, has the young lady a companion?"

"Yes—usually; a young lady cousin who lives with her."

"Very well. If they happen to be together now, we can settle the matter quite easily. Answer her note; request the two of them to come here in a half-hour. Within that time we can get rid of the reporters, and you can—well, you can collect yourself. If your present expression is an index to what you are likely to say, this will be no place for a young lady—for the next thirty minutes, anyhow."

He caught and wrung my hand.

"Swift, you're a good fellow!" he said impulsively, and hurried back to his seat.

However, I did not forget that I had not heard this young man's story; nor did I fail to consider th[illegible] was a lawyer, and hence possessed of advantages for appreciating and intelligently weighing all the chances for and against his sweetheart becoming involved.

As Maillot dropped into his chair, Stodger could no longer contain himself. Drawing me into the hall, though the door was left wide open, he said in a whisper that was heavy with importance:

"Youd never guess whose coachman it was."

I made no attempt to, and my stout friend impressively announced:

"Fluette's."

DO YOU USE PILLS?

If In Doubt About the Right Pills to Use Read the Following Letter Carefully:

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak there is no pill like them.

"Speaking of my own experience with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I can say they have proved the most stimulating pills for the liver I have found. I have proved their tonic action upon digestion, and the same results have been secured by friends upon whom I have urged their use. The manufacturers are to be congratulated upon possessing so valuable a prescription, and the public should know that so valuable a remedy has been placed at their command."

No other pill for constipation, for liver, kidney, or stomach trouble, compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild and sure always to restore health. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston Ont.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills A Family Medicine

"What!" Surprise jerked the exclamation from me; but I kept my voice subdued.

"Fact,"—Stodger nodded his round head impressively,—"Alfred Fluette."

Here, indeed, was the promise of pretty state of affairs!

CHAPTER V.

The Hidden Safe

I left the four reporters to Stodger's tender mercies—his instructions did not include any such extreme measures as Maillot had suggested—confident that he was the proper person to relieve me of this unwelcome intrusion. It has always been hard for me to talk to these sharp-eyed, alert young chaps of the press, without saying something I had no business to say. Even if I didn't say it, some one of them would be sure to make a pretty shrewd guess, sometimes causing me no end of trouble. Stodger knew nothing of my intentions; therefore he could let nothing slip that might in any way affect my future movements.

Maillot's note dispatched, I directed my attention to ascertaining just what Alexander Burke meant by his reference to the ruby.

His explanation in itself was simple enough. He had heard of the ruby, of course—who hadn't—and during his wanderings through the house the previous night, while he waited for Maillot to finish his business with Mr. Page, he had paused now and then in the vicinity of the library door. Twice he had heard the gem mentioned by those within.

Maillot accepted this statement with an offensive incredulity which was plainly deliberate.

"The house was very quiet," Burke made haste to add.

To be continued.

BLOW THE MAN DOWN.

Chanties of the Sailorman Aboard the Wind-Jammer.

Whoever has foregathered much with sailors will have heard something of their chanties, those curious songs which form so important an accompaniment to the work done aboard a sailing vessel.

Hear the singing of a chanty going on and it may be safely assumed all is well with the crew. When the men hauling on the yards or braces, or heaving the anchor, don't work rhythmically to the singing of one of the particular songs peculiar to whatever piece of work is going forward something is wrong.

Who wrote the words of the chanties nobody knows. Most of them are old, and the tunes to which they are sung are probably older still. They have been handed down from tradition.

One of the most beautiful melodies is that belonging to the chanty invariably sung when heaving anchor preparatory to leaving a foreign port on the homeward voyage. The words, too, are distinguished by genuine feeling:

"Our anchor we'll weigh, and our sails we will set;
Good-bye, fare ye well;
Good-bye, fare ye well;
The friends we are leaving we leave with regret;
Hurrah, my boys, we're homeward bound!"

The first and fourth lines are sung as a solo by the chanty man, or leader; the other lines—the chorus—fall to the rest as they put their backs into heaving on the pawls—the short lengths of wood fitting into the revolving capstan on which the anchor cable is wound.

In a similar way all chanties are sung. The majority are four-lined, the chanty man and the chorus taking a line alternately.

Scores of these songs are in existence, but they are not sung indiscriminately. There is an appropriation of certain ones to certain tasks connected with the working of a ship which entail heaving or hauling. For instance, one of the oldest and most popular—

"As I was a-walking down Paradise
Street,
With my 'Aye, aye, blow the man
down!'
I chanced on a frigate, so nice and so neat,
Give us some time to blow the man down,"

or,

"Boney was a warrior,
Oh, ay, oh!
Boney was a fighting man
A long time ago"—

would be entirely out of place when the singers were engaged in heaving up the anchor, the refrain being totally unadapted to the long, slow movement with which the turning of a capstan is necessarily accomplished.

That the words of many of the chanties are meaningless detracts nothing from their value. There is a swing and a rhythm about them that makes listening delightful, and gives them a highly practical value by causing the men engaged to work in unison, thus utilizing their combined strength to the full advantage.

As might be expected, the sailor's traditional love of the feminine sex gets full latitude in the songs with which he encourages himself when at work, and few chanties are sung with better feeling than those into which enter such references.

A Link With the Past.

A link with great events and personalities of the last century was severed by the death recently of Lady Herbert of Lea, mother of the late Sir Michael Herbert, who was Ambassador to Washington, and married Miss Wilson.

Lady Herbert was the widow of Sidney Herbert, who was War Minister at the time of the Crimean war. She was the author of several books and a leading member of the Catholic Society.

Lady Elizabeth Herbert of Lea was the daughter of Gen. A. Court and the niece of Lord Heytesbury. She married the Right Hon. Sidney Herbert in 1846, and was thus the mother of the thirteenth and fourteenth Earls of Pembroke. She was the author of many books of travel and short stories, among which were "Cradle Lands," "Impressions of Spain," "Children of Nazareth" and "Lives of Monsignor Dupanloup," and others. She lived for many years in Herbert House, in Belgrave square, London.

Suffragettes' New Move.

Miss Christabel Pankhurst has left her desk in London for a trip to Dublin in the interests of votes for women.

Speaking to a representative of the Daily Sketch she confided to him her intentions.

"I mean," she declared, "to get a suffrage clause inserted in the Home Rule Bill. I succeeded in getting such a clause into the Parliament Bill. But Mr. Lloyd-George is such a tricky little man. He has said that the Conciliation Bill will not be carried in 1912, and if this will be the case, we will lose the protection granted in that clause of the Parliament Bill.

"So it is of imperative importance to fight him in order to get a similar clause into the Home Rule Bill. He is not keen on votes for women."

Real Gold Bricks.

Genuine gold bricks were on sale at a very low rate for a short time in the vicinity of Golcondos, Haidarabad, in India, where permission was granted to a company to make bricks from the refuse of some ancient gold mines which had been abandoned many years ago. After these bricks had been on sale for some time their bright yellow color attracted the attention of some investigator, who found they were rich with gold. Immediately the Government seized the precious piles and revoked the privilege which had been given. Gold is now being taken in paying quantities from the ancient refuse piles.

Sir Wm. Meredith was in Cobalt taking opinions in regard to the proposed Workmen's Compensation Act.

THE GOOD OLD SUN

W. LYMAN HUME, Esq., M.D., says:

I took my last policy in the "Sun Life" five years ago. You may think how agreeably surprised I was to receive your letter of the 28th ult., informing me that my share of the profits earned by my Policy during the last five years amounted to $205.80 IN CASH; or if I preferred they would give me $46.65 a year for for the next five years, to be used as an annual reduction of my yearly premium; or better still they would increase my policy by $311.00, making it worth $5,311 instead of $5,000, upon which I would continue to pay the old premium. This is the option I have chosen.

Suppose that instead of insuring I had placed the amount of my premium $277.75, in the Bank each year, and had allowed the interest to be compounded for five years at three per cent., the interest allowed by all safe, conservative Banks. What would be the results? To-day I should receive $180.11 as the accumulated interest from the Bank, instead of $205.80 from the "Sun Life," a difference of $75.70; but in addition to this the Company has carried the risk on my life for $5,000, which they might have been called at any time to pay.

This is in marked contrast with the so-called Fraternal Societies. I have a policy of $1,000 in one of the best of them; I was notified the other day that my policy would be reduced one-half, or my premium doubled. The "Sun" increases my policy, or reduces my premium; the Fraternal Society reduces my policy or increases my premium; it should not be a difficult matter to choose which is the better system of the two.

The "Good Old Sun," may it never set except to rise again with increased effulgence!

CONTRACT FOR SNOW PLOWHING TAKEN FROM JOHN DOIG

Work in District No. 2 Not Being Done Satisfactorily.

Expenditure on South end Pumping Station Has Been $29 917.72

John Doig has lost his snow plowing contract. At a meeting of the Board of Works Saturday evening, the chairman (Ald. Metheral) reported that John Doig, who had been awarded the contract of snow plowing in district No. 2, was not doing the work satisfactorily, and he was informed, had not a horse fit for the work. Two men, John McFarlane and Jas. McWilliams, were willing to do the work at the terms of Doig's tender.

The street commissioner said J. Francis would do it at the same price. He also said that Doig's sureties had not signed the bond, and that he had to engage E. Flaherty to do snow plowing in the district.

On motion of the Mayor and Ald. Duncan, it was moved and carried that the work be taken from John Doig, and that the chairman be instructed to make a contract with Jas. McWilliams to do the work if satisfactory arrangements can be made with him, and that the city treasurer be authorized to pay for the work done in the district so far, on the certificate of the city engineer.

Mr. Anderson was on motion heard, and complained of a building the Radial Railway Company had erected on Lake street, over the derailing device, at the Grand Trunk railway crossing. The matter was referred to the chairman.

MORE MONEY NEEDED.

A letter was read from the city treasurer, saying that up to Dec 15th, the expenditure on the south end pumping station amounted to $29,917.72 and that the money provided would not complete the work.

On motion the city treasurer was instructed to pay accounts in connection with this sewer work, and to use any unexpended appropriations or other accounts to meet them until the end of the year.

On motion of Ald. Duncan and Ald. Brown, the city engineer was asked to report on what the cost would be to extend the drain on Romaine street about 600 feet west of Park street.

A report was read from the city engineer on the cost of the culverts constructed on Concession street. The report was received and the city treasurer was instructed to charge the Grand Trunk Railway with their part of the cost of the work

Those present at the meeting were Ald. Metheral (chairman), Mayor Monrow, Ald. Graham, Brown, Anderson and Duncan.

SCOTCH LADS

Are on the Lookout for Positions on Farms

Two stout and healthy appearing Scotch lads, waited upon Mr. G.H. Howson, immigration officer, on Saturday night, for the purpose of having the officer obtain positions on farms for each of them. The two boys were accompanied by their father, a carpet weaver by trade, who has been in this country about one year, his two sons however, having only recently come out.

The boys appeared to be strong and willing and any person desirous of securing their services could have the same by getting in touch with the immigration officer on Water street.

THERE WAS NO NEED FOR ALARM

Since the inspection and test of the water pressure by the Fire department, on Thursday, Chief Howard has been asked many times what would have happened had a fire occurred during the operation, when all the hose wagons were out. For the benefit of perhaps the slightly timid and yet sensible people, who asked, the Chief wishes it made known that ample provision was made had a fire alarm been sent in.

Each hose wagon was sent back and loaded with hose, from the extra supply at the fire hall, after what was on the wagon previously, had been run out on George street. Sufficient firemen remained at the fire-hall, also to equip the wagons in case of emergency, so that the department would have been equal to any sudden alarm, had a fire occurred during the inspection.

The B.C. Government is considering an elaborate railway policy that includes a line from Fort George to Vancouver.

SERMON TO YOUNG MEN

Helpful Discourse by Pastor of Mark Street Church

Rev. C. E. Cragg Urges Them to Have Lofty Purpose in Life

In a vigorous and inspiring sermon at Mark street church last night, the pastor Rev. C. E. Cragg, urged young men to have a lofty purpose in life, to love their homes, to respect the Sabbath, and lastly, but not least, to take care of their bodies.

The above thoughts came out in the course of a sermon specially directed at the young men, his subject as announced being "Is the young man safe?" The church was crowded to capacity and chairs were called in requisition to furnish seating accommodation.

The pastor's text were the words found in Samuel, "Is My Son Absolom Safe?"

How many parents are asking themselves the question, "is my son safe," and how many young men are being confronted with the same question, asked the pastor in opening.

In order to decide the momentous question, there were four things to be taken into consideration, first of which was, "has the young man a lofty purpose in life? Had he high ideals by which he was directing his life? Were his aims high or was he content to drift along the paths of aimlessness and mediocrity. Secondly, did the young man love his home, or was he so inflated with airs of superiority, that the restraining and softening influences of home life were considered unmanly." The speaker illustrated vividly this idea by a touching story of a youth, who at college, had drifted away, and ceased writing to his mother, whose heart ached for his return.

"Remember young men," pleaded the pastor, "that wherever you are, and whatever you have done wrong, the heart of the dear kind mother in your home is beating warmly for you."

A very effective story was told to illustrate the value of home training.

Two young boys, so the story ran, started out one night to enjoy themselves. They came to the door of a certain theatre. One of the lads said, 'let us go in here!' The other refused, but the other went in remarking that he had been tied to his mother's apron strings too long, and that he was going to see life. He went in and witnessed a play, in which religion and prayer were ridiculed; and the thing pleased the boy, it was just what he wanted. He went again and again, his morals suffered, vice gripped him and a short time ago, he died in the agonies of delirium tremens.

The other boy went home that night fell on his knees in his room and surrendered his future to God, and to-day is one of the foremost preachers living.

The last though throught out by the pastor, was that young men must take care of their bodies, that they might be able to take their stand in the world on equal or on better footing than other men. The mind also should be cultivated as well as the physical body.

"The glory of young men is their strength," were the words of Solomon.

The pastor made a strong appeal at the close, for some present to evidence a desire to lead a Christian life.

The musical worship was rendered by an entire male choir under the direction of Mrs. Dr. Middleton. Several stirringly sung anthems contributed greatly to the effectiveness of the service, also a male quartet number entitled "Sweet Sabbath Eve." Special collections were taken up for all the connectional funds of the church.

WAR AT ARMOURIES

57th Regiment to Do Battle Next Month But There Will be no Blood Shed.

Orders have been issued by the Officer Commanding the 3rd Division to hold what is called a war game in Peterboro in the month of January next under the control of the G.S.O. of the 3rd divisionm Major Hordern, and it is expected to prove a most interesting and instructive feature in the military training of the officers of the local garrison. The nature of the scheme is not yet known, but is expected that two bodies of groops of all arms of the service will be at certain points, and will be manoeuvred under the command of the officers taking part, and under conditions as near as possible as might be met with in actual warfare. The officers will be divided into two parties, each having command of one body of troops and will be in separate rooms, and the umpire in the third room will note and criticize the manoeuvres of the opposing forces.

The game will occupy two evenings of three or four hours, each, and will require from twelve to fifteen officers.

TWILIGHT MUSICALE

Lovers of high-class and varied musical entertainments were again afforded the pleasure of listening to a delightful "twilight musicale" on Saturday afternoon, from four to five, given in the Conservatory of Music Hall, under Women's Art Association auspices.

These popular musical treats are eagerly anticipated and greatly appreciated by a large portion of the music loving public of Peterboro, and the programs supplied are acknowledged to be of exceptional merit. The attendance on Saturday afternoon amply demonstrated this fact.

The Conservatory orchestra's rendition of Gounod's "Scenes from Faust" was a decided hit, these seried compositions being most accurately interpreted and winning liberal applause.

Mr Gordon Wright, tenor soloist was also well received in his rendering of "The Gift" a selection very appropriate in its treatment of the Christmas spirit. The Conservatory Orchestra, also were heard to advantage in a selection from the popular "Il Trovatore," and were heartily encored. Mr. Asa Huycke, the local baritone soloist again revealed his well cultivated vocal powers in Lindsay's composition entitled, "Far Away," a number requiring a flexible and sympathetically inclined vocal tones.

A splendidly played violin number by the talented artist Wm. Wilson, a rising pupil of Miss Julia Choate, captivated the audience. His selection was of a difficult and classical character calling for great freedom and mastery of the instrument.

The piano accompaniments were played perfectly by Miss Mary G Chalmers and Miss Pearl McKee of the Conservatory of Music staff.

ALL NATIONS BAZAAR BROUGHT $300 FOR ST. JAMES LADIES' AID

The magnificent sum of $300, clear of all expenses was realized by the Ladies' Aid of St. James' Methodist church, on the Festival of Nations bazaar, which they held in the market hall, two days of last week. This splendid sum speaks volumes for the energy and success of the undertaking, and is decidedly a feather in the caps of the ladies, who managed the bazaar. No small portion of the credit is due Mrs. Brown, the treasurer who, as convenor of all the committees, had a great deal to do in causing the affair to become such a success. The president of the Ladies' Aid is Mrs. A. Wilson, and the secretary Mrs. J. T. Palmer.

The other committees were—

Japanese—Mrs. McLaren, Mrs. Fandiford

United States—Mrs. Winch, Miss Miss Poole, Miss Morris.

British—Mrs. Rook, Mrs. Palmer.

Canadian—Mrs. H. Greene, Mrs. Carlos Greene.

Irish—Mrs. Robinson.

China—Mrs. Goodwin, Miss Barrie.

Hungarian—Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Stenson, Mrs. Moss.

HARD LUCK STORY WON BERTH AT POLICE STATION

A middle aged man, with a hard luck story is at present sheltered in one of the cells of the local police court, until some arrangements are made for getting him into good hands.

The man, it appears, came here from Sault Ste. Marie, having been given free transportation to Peterborough as he claimed he had once been employed in Peterborough. His story is that he just emerged from the hospital at the Soo, having sustained severe injuries in a lumber camp, and that soon after convalescence he had broken his shoulder blade.

It is understood he has a brother in Kingston, to whose care he may be consigned. He has been a lodger in the police court cells for the last couple of nights.

The Dominion Millers' Association met at Guelph and decided to ask the Government to take over the terminal grain elevators.

THE COW AND THE MOON

Edwin Gilmore, the inimitable eccentric comedian is this season appearing in Chas. A. Sellon's musical extravaganza, "The Cow and the Moon" and will be seen in this city at the Grand Opera House, next Friday and Saturday with bargain matinee, Saturday at 2.30.

A production of the most massive and gorgeous scenery that has been shown in many a day is promised. District novelties are said to be a feature commencing with the Girls Seminary at Not Much Ville, Ind., the Pullman Palace Car, the Gigantic Locomotive, The Forest of the Mists the Moon as viewed from the Earth, and Earth as viewed from the Moon, the Dream Forest, the Oriental Bazaar, the Moon Jungle, The Home of the Hottentots, The Temple of the Sacred Cow, and the Grand Transformation. Riotous coloring reigns supreme and there are many feats of marvellous magic, illusions of wonder and ballet evolutions by a chorus of much beauty.

Carleton Lee Colby, has provided the notes and the words for this new success, and his "They All Look Alike to Mabel," "The Haughty Hottentots" "It's Just the Same Old Story," "In Sevilla," "The OOzy OOzy Man," "Bridal Bells," and others are said to be most teasing.

Mr. Sellon is sending a company of over forty people, well known in extravaganza circles, including Bess Taft, Maude Amanda Scott, dainty Little Sanet Priest, Clarence Sterling, Will. M. Haenel, John Gilmore Wilson, Mr. Gross and others.

SMALL FIRE AT CANOE WORKS

The Fire Department had a call to the Peterboro Canoe Company, Saturday evening, some oily waste having started a small blaze through coming in contact with a steam pipe. The damage, between $10 and $15 was caused to some freshly varnished canoes. A few pails of water extinguished the blaze.

WHO'S COMING AND GOING

Mr and Mrs. Harris Ardiel have returned to Toronto after spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stratton.

Mr Vernon Lewis, of Pittsburg, is home on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lewis, Boswell avenue, for the Christmas holidays.

At Port Hope the marriage was quietly colemnized at the home of the groom's uncle, Mr. Wm. Henning, of Mr. Humphrey Skitch, contractor, to Mrs. Ida McMillan, both of Cobourg. Rev. Dr. Lager, Methodist clergyman, officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Skitch left for a trip to western points, and will reside in Cobourg.

HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH LIQUOR

In regard to the seizure of liquor at Lakefield and the subsequent proceedings in which a charge was laid by License Inspector Williams, Mr. Otter Northey of Lakefield, one of the men named in the information, disclaims any connection with the case save that it was his outfit which was used. He says the liquor was for a hunt party.

.M.C.A. BASKETBALL TEAM CAME BACK AND WON OUT

he local Y.M.C.A. basketball team neyed to Port Hope Saturday af- noon where they met the Trinity llege school, in the school gymna- m, before a large crowd. This is first year that the school team taken up basketball as part of ir carriculum, and it can be safly that if they continue to improve rapidly as they have in the past weeks, they will take a lot of ting on any floor. They play a passing game and shoot remark- y well for a new team, to say hing of their checking ability. local boys played their usual steady game and shot very wall considering the strange baskets, every man played the game from the drop of the hat to the toot of the whistle there was not one idle moment in the entire game. The half time score stood 19 to 14 in favor of the Port Hope boys, the final score reading 33 to 29 in favor of the locals, who only won out by their superior shooting ability. The teams lined up as follows—Peterborough—H. Hill and E Hanwell, forwards; H. Walls, centre; A. Hall and A. Fitzgerald, defence. Trinity College school—Simonds and Broadfield and Perry, forwards; Bartlett centre; Dennison and Mathers, defence. Referee — J. J. Thompson, Peterborough. Umpire — Mr. Sterling, Physical Director Trinity college school.

The return game will be played on the local floor some time after the Christmas holidays.

SPORT TALK

Mrs. Helen Britton is the only woman owner of a big league baseball club in the world.

"We are going to have a ball club in St. Louis next year," declares Mrs. Britton. "I have perfect confidence in Mr. Bresnahan as a manager, and I think that he has done wonders so far."

Washington, December 17— Seven of the members of this year's track athletic team, at Georgetown University, Eller, Tarrisello, Krafts, Campazzi, Donnelly, Foley and Chapman, are planning a walk from Washington to New York, during the Christmas holidays. The walk is planned for the first part of the Christmas holidays as the men will leave the capital city early Tuesday morning, December 19 and plan to be in the metropolis Christmas Eve. The seven men expect to walk about 40 miles a day, and will make Baltimore their first stop.

Ty Cobb's career on the stage is likely to be a brief one. Whether the famous outfielder of the Detroit club has made good or not is left to one's imagination, but it is now said that when the College Widow reaches his home city, Cobb will retire. Tyrus claims that the footlights injure his eyes and that to remain on the stage for one whole season would ruin him as a batsman. Consequently Cobb has decided to return to the automobile business.

The Eastern Professional Hockey League will open its season the first week in January. Horace Gaul, Edgar Dey, Ran Murphy and Billy Baird, of Ottawa are in great demand, but if the new league in the West, consisting of Brandon, Moose Jaw, Regina and Saskatoon materializes, some of the local puck chasers may go out there. Dey is already well known at Brandon where he played in the palmiest days of professional hockey.

Hugh Lehman has already left for the coast and will manage the New Westminster team, on which "Pud" Glass, Ernie Johnston, Harry Hyland and other ex-Wanderers will figure. Lehman is a Pembroke boy.

GOULDING BROKE WORLD'S RECORD

Took 1 1-5 Seconds off His Time for the Mile

Buffalo, Dec. 17.—Fairly flying over the board track at the seventy-fourth Armory Saturday night, George Goulding, the sensational Canadian walker, clipped one and one-fifth seconds from his own world's record for one mile. Starting from the back mark in a field of the best Toronto, Rochester and Buffalo pedestrians, Goulding fairly flew over the track until at the finish he was half a lap in advance of S. A. Kapperman, of the German Y.M.C.A., who finished second. Goulding started off with an easy swinging stride that appeared a trifle slow. But with the conclusion of the second lap he cut loose and passed his competitors as though they were standing still. He was given a tremendous ovation as he crossed the line a full 200 yards in advance of the perspiring Kapperman.

The N.H.A. decided at a meeting on Saturday night to drop both Toronto teams and draw up a new schedule. The Toronto people could give no assurance that ice would be available in the new rink.

New York, Dec 18.—Promoters of the Zybszko-Raicevich wrestling match which will be staged in Madison Square Garden on Christmas night, announced to-day the receipt of a telegram, from Frank Gotch, the champion of the world, declaring that he would be ready to meet the winner of the match by the latter part of January. It was declared to be evidence that Gotch has no intention of retiring from the mat, as some stories have had it.

WEALTH OF ROTHSCHILDS

Possessed $3,200,000,000 More Than Forty-five Years Ago

London, Dec. 18.—The wealth of the Rothschilds is a fascinating theme for speculation, but accuracy is difficult to arrive at.

The fortunes of the house, as is well known, were founded by the Rothschild who was the first in England to obtain the news of the Battle of Waterloo and profit by it on the Stock Exchange. The recent death in Paris of Baron Gustave recalls the first occasion on which some idea could be obtained as to the wealth of the firm.

The brothers are partners and the bank has branches in London, Berlin, Paris, Frankfort and Vienna. The French branch was founded by Baron James, who had four sons. Of those only one, Edmond, outlived him. When his first son, Solomon, died in 1864, he left a widow and a daughter, Helen. When Helen married Baron Van Zuylen de Nyevelt, her share of her father's fortune, which she brought with her as a dowry, was £14,000,000.

Baron Solomon's fortune was double this amount and his three brothers and his sister, who married Baron Nathaniel of London had equal amounts. Thus the total fortunes of the five in 1864 was nearly £160,000,000. As the four branches of the family are equally rich its aggregate wealth at that time must have been £640,000,000, and that is more than 45 years ago.

25 EDITIONS SOLD OF HIS NOVEL

Yet This Welsh Author Had to Seek Parish Relief

London, Dec. 18—The extreme poverty of a novelist whose works are popular has come to light in proceedings before the Merthyr Bankruptcy Court in Wales. The occasion was the public examination of Isaac Craigfryn Hughes, 50 years old, who gave his occupation as that of a colliery laborer.

It came out in the examination that although one of his twelve novels was in its 25th edition, he had been forced to obtain parish relief and had later been committed to jail. His wife died in 1908, leaving four children and since November 1910, Mr. Hughes said he had been unable to work on account of illness and had sold his books and effects to obtain food for his family.

Mr. Hughes told the court that one of his novels, "The Maid of Cefn-Ydfa," was in its 25th edition of 6,000 copies each in English and in its tenth edition in Welsh.

"I sold the copyright of all my books outright," Mr. Hughes explained, "and I am not receiving royalties of any kind. I was ignorant about royalties."

The novelist said that he had begun to write in Welsh when he was about 25. In his leisure he studied English and had written in that language since he was 30. His writing was done in his leisure from work in the collieries. Nine of Mr. Hughes' works are in Welsh and three in English.

SLAVERY ON THE OYSTER FIELDS

Children of more tender age are employed in the shrimp and oyster canneries than in any of the cotton mills of the South, some of them being only four or five years old. The method of handling the oysters consists in piling them into small cars and running them into big "steamchests," out of which they come with their shells open, so that, when spread on long tables, it is an easy matter to take out the "meats." This is the task allotted to the children, who, under the stern eye of a "shucking boss," cut the meats out of the shells and transfer them to tin buckets, ready for canning.

Most of these children come from Maryland and Delaware. They are employed during the summer and early fall in the vegetable and fruit canneries of those States, and are shipped to the South in flocks to shuck oysters and pick shrimps through the winter and spring. When autumn arrives, agents for the shrimp and oyster packers visit Baltimore and other large towns in that part of the country, and pick up as many poor immigrants as they need, especially among the Poles—the Italians having become wary through experience. Such families, usually provided with plenty of children, are persuaded to go by the promise of free transportation and of the payment of their return passage—the latter expectation being nearly always unfulfilled. Very ignorant and commonly unacquainted with any language except their own, they are helpless to protect themselves, and, once herded on board steamers, they have no chance to escape.

Filled with the hope of going to a warm latitude—where, they are told, they can pick oranges off the trees—they are carried to Biloxi, Apalachicola, Pass Christian, and other places where the shrimp and oyster canneries are located. While at work, they commonly live under such conditions of squalor as would not be tolerated in the most poverty-stricken quarter of any Northern city. The pay is small, and for the children often not more than ten cents a day; but a good deal of Northern capital is most profitably invested in the canneries, and the big dividends they are largely derived from the labor of mere infants. Dr. A. J. McKelway, Secretary of the National Child Labor Committee (which has its headquarters in New York), says: "Our chief adversary in the fight for a better child labor law in Florida has been the owner of an oyster cannery at Appalachicola. I visited his factory and saw acres of oyster shells fifteen feet deep, a great proportion of which had been shucked by little children. —From "Shrimps and Babies." January Technical World Magazine.

WON PRIZES AT GUELPH

Local Poultry Breeders Exhibited Many Winners

James Baptie and Harry Lush Back From Big Exhibition

On Saturday morning Mr. James Baptie, of Springville, and Harry Lush, the well known poultry breeding enthusiasts, arrived home from the big Guelph stock and poultry exhibition, bringing with them a bunch of prizes won by their birds.

Mr. Baptie sent down a fair number of winners, his prizes amounting to twenty-one, in specials and firsts. In the silver-spangled class, six of the ribbons came his way, in the golden spangled class five prizes and in the silver wyandotte, two.

Mr. Harry Lush came out well, having a big bunch of birds on exhibition. Mr. Baptie states he is entirely satisfied with the result, and that the exhibition as far as he saw, was a grand success. Over 5,000 birds were exhibited in the poultry department.

BRITISH LAW HELD AT FAULT

London, Dec. 18— The important question as to whether foreign estates inherited by persons domiciled in Great Britain, which have never actually been transferred to this country, are liable to estate duty was raised Saturday in the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice.

The suit arose in connection with the fortune inherited from her brother by the late Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester, who was a daughter of Antonio Yznaga de Valle, of Louisiana and Cuba.

The executors of the Countess' will resisted the demands of the British revenue authorities, who claimed death duty on the whole of her estates. Counsel for the executors yesterday pointed out that $2,000,000 of the property was still in America and had never come to Great Britain.

ARCH. WEIR JAMES O'BRIEN

The MOONSTONE

BY JEAN RICHEPIN.

I WILL tell this story, not after the fashion of a romancer, who rearranges the circumstances of life, but after the manner of a reporter, who simply notes them down. I will not invoke imaginative aid and I will appeal only to my memory. I will draw no conclusions either for or against such and such a theory. If I have imparted to the tale a character of magic, there is nothing, as far as I know, to hinder me from regarding it as magical, at least apparently. And are these only appearances, or do they conceal some inexplicable reality? I will not permit myself to decide; to each I will, rather, leave the burden of determining for himself the judgment that seems most pleasing to him. That this judgment, thus given by another, may be thoroughly independent, I will be impartial to the point of narrating the facts without resorting to any literary artifice whatever. In brief, I will strive to tell this story as life and the circumstances surrounding it have revealed it to me.

It is as much as forty years ago, within two or three years, that the opening of this history was disclosed to me—a history unique and well calculated to excite and touch to the quick the Balzackian curiosity of a Great Man apprentice, as I was then. And if I do not fear to give myself this pretentious, romantic title it is because we were, all of our circle, possessed with the idea that it belonged to us! Without scruple, moreover, without even a laugh, each of us had the firm, sincere conviction that he and his comrades were to be the "thirteen" of the Paris of to-morrow. And if I did not at once confess to this chimerical state of mind, which was common to all, my history would have no meaning; while that it does have a meaning will be apparent and one perhaps sufficiently profound, as it seems to me.

As I learn, from the confessions of many young people, Balzac is not much read now. In any event he is not read as he was in our generation, which was not content to seek in his pages an artistic gratification alone, but found therein its intellectual and moral sustenance, a species of mundane evangel, a social guide, a catechism for the use of genius in evolution of the unknown, the poor, the humble, the ambitious, lifting them up to power, wealth and glory. Now, of all our circle the two most Balzackian of this type, those most devoted to this strange evangel, having as its Eden the conquest of Paris, and by romantic methods, the two most vehement, violent apprentice Great Men, according to the code of the "thirteen," were Pierre Jallery, a medical student, and Jacques Delbiot, a poet.

So it seems to me very natural and very proper that this famous history, singular and moving as it is, is concerned with them rather than the rest of us, quite unimportant in this respect. None certainly merited so well this smile of fortune quite unexpected and extraordinary.

My own vanity, meanwhile, consoled itself with regard to their good fortune from the fact that I was the sole confidant of the story. To allow me to hear it, was that not giving me a share in the bounty? And who could prevent me, once a witness, and consequently a copartner in the marvellous story, from considering myself raised to the rôle of a real personage—nay, even to that of a hero? This reflection, truth to tell, came so suddenly that at first it only awakened a sensation in my mind. My first, my strongest sentiment (I proclaim it to our praise) was to do homage to Destiny, which was not deceived in esteeming Pierre Jallery and Jacques Delbiot worthy of her favor.

And every one of our band would have experienced the same sentiment if all had, like myself, the distinguished honor of being taken into their confidence. Admiration was unanimous, indeed, in our circle for the medical student and the poet, the friends of legendary lore, unique, sublime, who in an earlier day would have been compared to Orestes and Pylades, to Nisus and Euryalus, and whom, in our enthusiasm, the fresh soil of Romanticism, we called "Pierre and Jaffier," with an erudition of a newer type.

Meanwhile, though our circle lived more or less the life of the Bohemian in the Latin Quarter, that is, gayly enough, with frequent periods of privation, our two heroes prepared themselves for their triumph by an outre existence. This inspired in us an added sentiment of respect for them which might have easily become one of veneration. We admitted to ourselves sometimes that we were in a certain degree Murgerians, in spite of our grand airs. But Pierre Jallery and Jacques Delbiot were truly, purely, Balzackians.

Fleeing the world of the school, easy, gay and often opulent, wherein were to be found many wealthy young bourgeois, the most generous of companions, the medical student and the poet had elected to live à la Glaciere, in a despised suburb, poverty stricken, rustic almost, with leprous ruined houses, with vast spaces of undefined estates, all breathing the spirit of misery. And this misery, in their solitude assuming the aspect of exile, gave them in our eyes a halo of high, severe glory.

They dwelt in a house filled with working people, among these ruins, in the highest story under the mansard roof, sharing their deprivations in common, each receiving from his family a very meagre allowance which did not admit of life in a hotel provided with a table d'hôte. Thus had they conceived that they could serve each other in turn, each for a week acting as housekeeper and cook, leaving the other free to work with his brain and relieved of material cares, to study, to dream and foster his ambition.

They were not seen much, save on a Sunday, when they indulged themselves with the solace of a visit to the Quarter, bringing among us as we sat in fiery discussion the silence of their grave, proud mien. At once the gayest among us became serious, and, seized with remorse, murmured sadly:—

"These are the models we should follow! It is apparent that they have achieved something. While, as for us ——!"

Our admiration for them redoubled with the measure of our contempt for ourselves. They perceived the two sentiments and really enjoyed themselves. Their Sunday was in fine a fête day. It is certain that on this day they forgot their week of privation and hardship, having already a foretaste of the future and the triumph near at hand promised to the illustrious in this rugged yet delicious verse of the Latin poet:—

* * * Digito Monstrari et Dicier "hic est."

Judge of my pride on the evening when these two heroes did not disdain to descend from their pedestal, choosing me as their confidant, their sole confidant in the fantastic history which, as we have said, was to realize their and our Balzackian ideal—that is, to raise them to the height of fortune, to the glory of romanticism, and, as it were, romantically! There could be no doubt to this they had fallen heir. I realized this at their first words.

This, the evening in question, was a Sunday and I had had the audacity, a novice poet in the circle, to read some verses in the presence of Jacques Delbiot, the great Poet (with a capital P). And his impassable Olympian countenance had grown agitated as I proceeded. The verses were a paraphrase of an Assyrian incantation to the goddess Lilith which I had taken from an English book entitled "Records of the Past."

Jacques Delbiot, at the moment of departure with Pierre Jallery, had invited me to accompany them to the end of their way; then, scarcely beyond the threshold, brusquely he had seized my arm and with his face close to mine had cried, passionately, feverishly:—

"Thou knowest her, then, she who is called the goddess Lilith?"

"Yes," I had responded, swelling with my sudden access of importance and pride in my newly acquired knowledge of Assyrian mythology.

His reply was, "Thou wilt aid us, Pierre and me, in conquering the graces of one who, it appears, bestows good fortune."

And, thus without restraint entering into full intimacy with them, I replied, raising myself to their mental and moral stature by a familiar stroke of flattery:—

"Yes, Jaffier, you can count upon me as your servant."

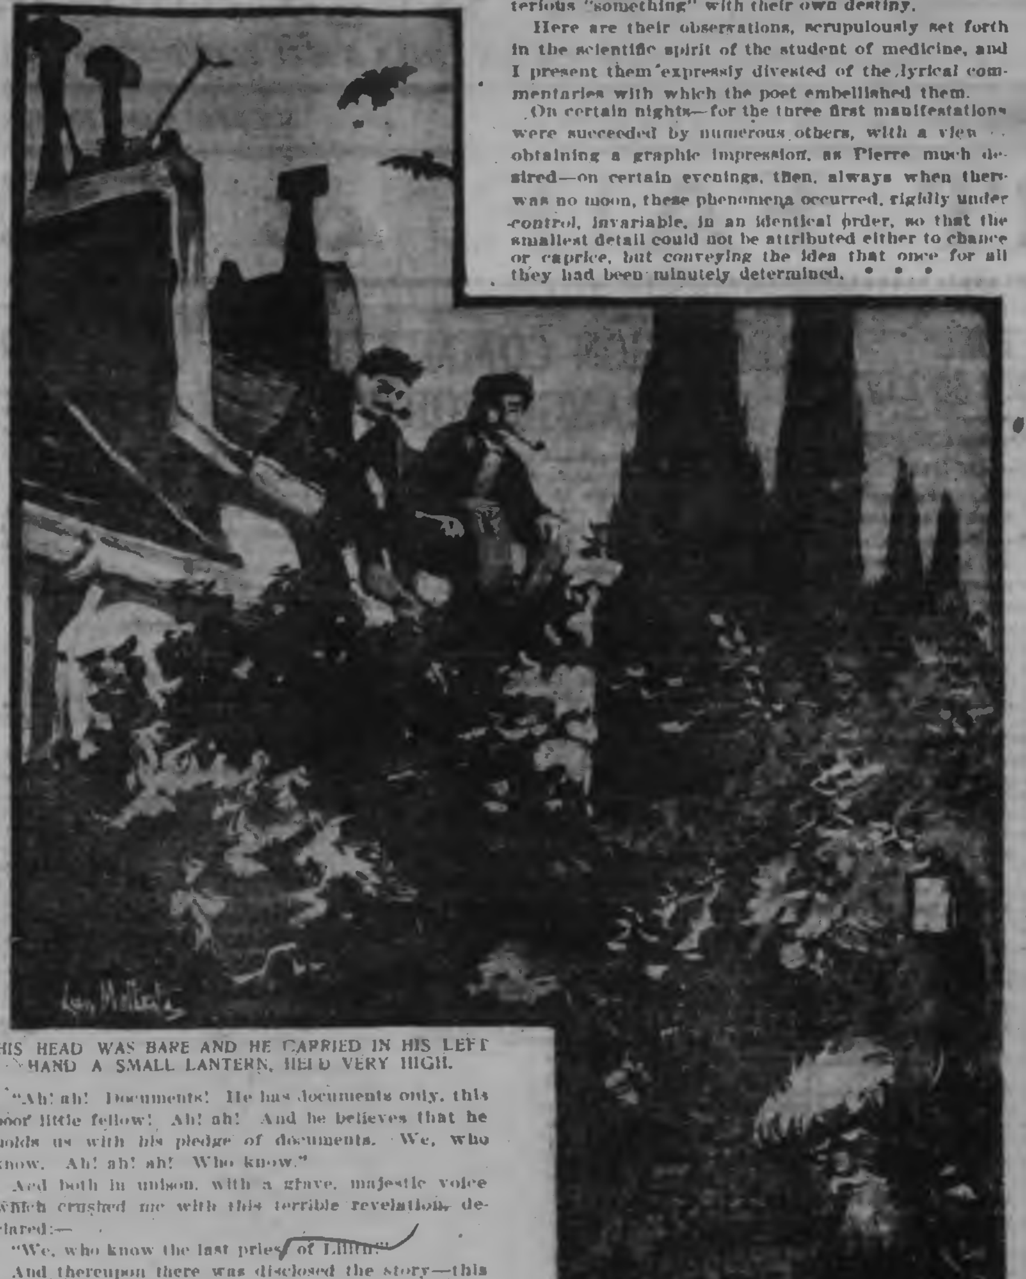
After which I added, forcing them to bestow their confidence:—

"But you, who has placed you en rapport with Lilith?"

For a moment they kept silence, consulting each other with a glance only. I divined their hesitation in revealing their secret. Impregnated with the spirit of our Balzac, I thought the moment had come to play my little "Vautrin," and I murmured with a menacing smile —

"Give, give! My secret for yours! I will tell you where I have unearthed my documents concerning Lilith if you will tell me"——

With disdain Pierre Jallery cut me short, interrupted me with an ironical laugh that punctuated these words:—



HIS HEAD WAS BARE AND HE CARRIED IN HIS LEFT HAND A SMALL LANTERN, HELD VERY HIGH.

"Ah! ah! Documents! He has documents only, this poor little fellow! Ah! ah! And he believes that he holds us with his pledge of documents. We, who know. Ah! ah! ah! Who know."

And both in unison, with a grave, majestic voice which crushed me with this terrible revelation, declared:—

"We, who know the last priest of Lilith!"

And thereupon there was disclosed the story—this marvellous, this fantastic, passionately moving story, to which I listened standing upright, my mouth open, my arms swinging, the expression of my eyes haggard, both narrating with broken, feverish phrases, the one sometimes ending the phrase of the other, the student of medicine with the minute, precise detail of the trained observer, the poet with outbursts of imagination, with images, tableaux and lyrical ejaculations.

Since then, in reflecting on the scene, I have comprehended how irresistible was their need to reveal, to tell their secret. Alone to possess it was, indeed, to be personages of importance; to disclose the fact that they did possess this secret was the true commencement of their triumph. Now, more experienced in life, I am less proud of having been at that moment their unique, chosen confidant.

But at the precise period of this revelation I could well believe that I also was one predestined to a mysterious, romantic fortune, romantically conquered, according to the Balzackian mode—a future "thirteen," perhaps. Thus these moments have remained unforgettable, and I well believe that I could repeat word for word the strange and confusing narrative of Pierre Jallery and Jacques Delbiot. As it has not to-day the special interest that it then had for me, I will limit myself to giving only a clear résumé of it, to which I will add the recital of what I myself saw with my own eyes. My readers will then have all the elements upon which to base a conclusion.

Each evening Pierre Jallery and Jacques Delbiot gave themselves as a recreation after their labors of the day and before retiring the pleasure of a causerie in what they called their hanging garden. This was the gutter of their roof, a large trough, where they could sit after raising themselves out of their windows and gliding along the zinc cornice. This gutter opening, and which served as a background to a large bordered the crest of a high, bare wall without any garden. The trees growing in the garden raised their highest branches to the top of the wall, and our two friends, their legs pendant among the leaves, sat in the hollow divan formed by the trough, breathing the fresh air and smoking their pipes. There they talked in the nocturnal peace and solitude, with a delicious sensation and nearly in full heaven, their heads, as they declared, within reach of the constellations.

Without doubt, they thought, the garden was a deserted adjunct of some inhabited house, but either their discussions occupied too closely the attention of the two men or perhaps they had no curiosity as to what might be going on beneath them and so far from their sublimated meditations. However, they had never seen any one.

Now, one night a little before midnight (they had delayed long while they congratulated themselves upon their brilliant future) they experienced an unexpected sensation, as if something was happening in the silent garden, and at the same time an inexplicable instinct, as it were, an announcement of fate, told them that their future depended upon this mysterious "something." At once, indeed, and without being able to perceive anything, they had pronounced this "something" mysterious.

It was, in fact, of this particular character, as they were thoroughly convinced the second time that the sensation came to them some time afterward, again at night, a little after the hour of midnight. As before, they could see scarcely anything, but their presentiment of a mystery was corroborated—a mystery with which their own existence was intimately connected.

Again, a third time and at night, shortly before midnight, the sensation returned. But their eyes had become better accustomed to the darkness, their vision pierced the obscurity of their curious, clustered retreat, and, gathering distinct impressions, the mystery was duly established, while the beating of their hearts in unison confirmed the connection of this mysterious "something" with their own destiny.

Here are their observations, scrupulously set forth in the scientific spirit of the student of medicine, and I present them expressly divested of the lyrical commentaries with which the poet embellished them.

On certain nights—for the three first manifestations were succeeded by numerous others, with a view to obtaining a graphic impression, as Pierre much desired—on certain evenings, then, always when there was no moon, these phenomena occurred, rigidly under control, invariable, in an identical order, so that the smallest detail could not be attributed either to chance or caprice, but conveying the idea that once for all they had been minutely determined. * * *

"Methodically," declared the student of medicine.

To which the poet added, with a sweeping gesture:—

"Ritually, with a priestlike regularity, one may say indeed."

To the very second when the last vibrations of a neighboring clock sounding the last quarter before midnight were extinguished in the soft night air the casement of a little pavilion situated at the other end of the garden opened without noise, as if moved by the cautious hand of a criminal. Upon the sill, even with the ground, an old man appeared clothed in a long outer coat, in fashion something like a cassock. His head was bare and he carried in his left hand a small dark lantern, held very high, whence there emerged a thin, pale ray of bluish light.

Thus, at least, they saw the old man somewhat vaguely in the obscurity of the night, but still with sufficient certainty, thanks to the numerous observations of Pierre, all carefully noted.

After remaining motionless for a time, as if meditating or in silent prayer, the old man bowed profoundly three times, once toward the left hand, once toward the right, and, lastly, directly in front. During their first observations the young men thought they divined in these movements the stooping attitude of one who leaned forward the more clearly to pierce the nocturnal shadows, but very soon they understood, without the possibility of doubt, that these genuflections were manifestly salutations—slow, ceremonious, stamped with the character of sacred gestures, like those of a priest before the tabernacle.

Perhaps a score of steps from the pavilion there was a thick, massive hedge of cypress, but over its top if one looked in the daytime it would have been an easy matter for the eye to discern the outline of a sinuous, serpentine path, winding tortuously under the low branches and around the trunks of the cypresses, making of the hedge a veritable labyrinth.

The frontal salutation of the old man being always in the direction of the entrance to this labyrinth the young watchers had concluded that it was regarded as the portal of a temple.

But what idol was there in this temple which the old man worshipped? For a long time our observers asked this question without being able to answer it. At first Jacques Delbiot, the one more endued with imagination, thought hastily that it must be the angel of darkness, inasmuch as the progress of the old man toward the entrance of the hedge was really that which has gained acceptance among the worshippers of the Evil Spirit. It is understood, indeed, however little one may have read occult books (and we as good romanticists certainly did not deprive ourselves of them), that the Arch Fiend is revealed not alone by his forked head, but by that peculiar gait which, in order to make the steps count, consists in taking three steps forward and two backward. It was in this manner that the old man proceeded.

What remained unexplained, what indeed could not be observed, was the nature of the long, mysterious devotions to which the aged man abandoned himself in the centre of the labyrinth. He remained within the profoundest depths of the hedge a quarter of an hour certainly, and before he entered he extinguished his lantern. He was not heard again until the clock sounded the first stroke of midnight. His presence then was only made apparent by a sigh as if from the infinite, from the depths, inarticulate, seemingly, as it were, to express a sensation of ecstasy.

How much time did the devotee consume in the labyrinth? No one could tell. In vain did the young men watch until dawn to see him emerge from the hedge. Without doubt, they said, he came out by an alley, easily observable by daylight, which extended along the left wall of the garden and was bordered by a wild grape vine forming a thick arbor around the pavilion; so that the re-entrance of the old man into his retreat was entirely concealed from view on the other side of the building. Still, after all, this was only a supposition, for none heard his steps upon this gravelled path in his furtive walk. And perhaps (it was the poet who advanced this hypothesis) there was subterranean communication with the labyrinth.

In revenge, as it seemed, one capital observation unveiled the mystery. It was in the night in which he had first distinguished the sound of the inarticulate sigh of the old man, breathed at midnight.

Inarticulate? No. This sigh was a word; this word a name.

Advised of this, I was seized with a veritable passion. Among other matters I informed the young men that the priests of Lilith were commonly believed to be in possession of a certain moonstone, dark in color and emitting rays of fiery light like the diamond, a single talisman assuring for its possessor success and triumph in everything he undertook.

That the old man was indeed, as my friends contended, the last surviving priest of Lilith was a certainty. That he had the moonstone, that was another. That it was necessary to deprive him of it our delicious Balzackians decided incontinently. Either one is a member of the "thirteen" or one is not.

First, as to the evidence! Astutely and energetically this was quickly gathered. The pavilion was inhabited only by the old man, his servant and his granddaughter, aged thirteen, an idiot, or nearly in that state. The old man was the owner of the place, and he lived upon his rents, having formerly been an official of some sort in the Bureau of Public Instruction. His progress through the College of France was traced. There he had once served as professor for a short time in a free course of lectures on Assyriology. He had then published two brochures on "Magic in Chaldea," and these brochures had led to his dismissal as being mentally unsound.

We procured the two publications in the National Library. They were absolutely meaningless, unintelligible, bristling with thaumaturgic formulas, cabalistic symbols and nearly three-fourths of the contents manifestly written so as to be indecipherable, thanks to the employment of an occult cryptography. The single thing that enchained our attention was the repetition to satiety of the name of the goddess Lilith, as if the writer were under the sway of a kind of obsession.

Ah! but it was we who were a little mad—we, the followers of Balzac, notwithstanding our fine pretensions, we were a little mad, even in the venerated persons of our two chiefs, of my two heroes, the [illegible] of science, Pierre Jallery, and the lyric poet, Jacques Delbiot! Imagine, in the last analysis we had ended by deciding in favor of the savans who had treated the priest of Lilith as a poor demented being! Yet Balzac himself would have accepted him as a model, a guide, and, with his chimerical genius, he would have believed in the chimera of this demented man, falsely so judged. Or at least he would have pictured him in his imagination and breathed life into this hero of romance, having faith in this romanticism.

We had had no faith, nor had we attempted to play in the game of fortune the trump card which chance had placed in our hands. "Pierre and Jacques," the man of science and the lyric poet, and I, a humble infant follower in our battalion of apprentice great men, all of us as skeptical and craven as students of the truest bourgeois type, had thrust aside these marvellous gifts, the last priest of Lilith and the Moonstone. And who knows, meanwhile, if ——

For—and at this point I pray the reader to draw whatever conclusion is most pleasing to him on the foundation of this story—after forty years, or within two or three years of it, it seems to me really, positively, extraordinarily and fantastically magic, alone.

Nearly two years ago I attended a dinner of Parisians, all of them good companions. Far from me then was any thought of the story à la Balzac, of our circle of great men apprentices, of Pierre Jallery, of Jacques Delbiot, of the last Priest of Lilith and the Chaldean talisman, the Moonstone! Perhaps I had never thought of all this in the last forty years—within two or three years, more or less.

And how was it that the memory of these things was revived? Life and its struggles had destroyed all the freshness of youth. Of the romantic, of romanticism, I had found an abundance in the reality of existence without refreshing myself with that to be discovered in books. I had lost sight of Pierre Jallery, who had become a humble physician in the provinces, and of Jacques Delbiot, a faded flower, it might be said, who had left no trace of its perfume.

How was it, then, that at this dinner of Parisians the thought of all this suddenly arose in my mind again, that I saw once more, as in a vision, the garden, heard the voice of the old man, sighing ecstatically, utter the name of Lilith, and that the story of the Moonstone was again confirmed as a magic tale? This is how, and here is the reason that I have recounted it.

In the course of the dinner some one spoke of a new discoverer whose fame was spreading, though he had not been a prophet in his own country. Thanks to him, it was said, an inexhaustible source of industrial energy was about to spring forth for utilization by the employment of forces concealed in matter and which, being set free, develop radio-activity, or, as it was called by Dr. Gustave Le Bon, dematerialization of matter.

This fortunate scientific discoverer passed as having been always affluent and successful. Yet young, he had reached the height of his ambition. Honor, glory, wealth satisfied his utmost desires. Those who discussed his extraordinary good fortune were astonished—nay, it was scandalous, outrageous, said some.

If we were not living in the twentieth century, declared another, one might believe that he had a talisman and that he had sold his soul to the devil.

Hobbinot, the great Orientalist, is well known. All commend his gravity and wisdom, while on the other hand they openly express their pleasure in his delightful amiability in social intercourse and friendship. He was present at this dinner. To the last expression of opinion he replied with a seriousness that was impressive:—

"That is the real secret of his triumphant success. Do you not know that his insolent good fortune dates only from a period five years back? Are you unaware that precisely five years ago he married a poor idiot, half a century old, but in possession of the moonstone, since she was the granddaughter and heir of the man who was the last Priest of Lilith?"

And Hobbinot, who was not in our circle, who is younger than that generation, who had never had the least suspicion of the story which had so long been buried in the storehouse of my memory, suddenly blurted out the name of the old man, the prohibited, abolished name which I had not dared to write to authenticate this absurd, yet magical tale.

HUNTING TOLL CLAIMED 30 LIVES

Several of the Victims Were Shot in Mistake for Deer

Boston, Dec. 18.—Thirty human lives were lost in New England and four in the Province of New Brunswick as a direct result of the hunting season, which, so far as big game is concerned, came to an end to-night. Of the victims five were shot in mistake for deer, 12 were killed by the accidental discharge of their own guns, 14 by accidental firing of guns held by companions or by stray bullets, two were drowned, and one died of exposure.

Maine furnished 15 victims, Massachusetts seven, New Hampshire three, Vermont and Connecticut two each, and Rhode Island one. In addition more than 20 persons received more or less serious injuries.

It is estimated that in the neighborhood of 10,000 deer and 300 moose were killed during this year's season, besides several score bear and a great quantity of small game.

RECEPTION COMMITTEE TO ARRANGE FOR VISIT OF SCOTS

The Peterborough curlers are going to give their Scottish visitors the glad hand when they arrive here for the matches in January. A committee composed of Messrs R. M. Weddell, W. McIlroy, W. G. Ferguson and Mayor Morrow, has been appointed to arrange for the reception to the lads from the land of the heather and with this strong quartet, satisfactory arrangements will undoubtedly be made.

This slight change in the program of the weatherman is encouraging to the ice makers at both the curling and skating rink. In Angus McIntosh and Jack Thornbeck Peterborough has two of the best in the business and if curlers and skaters are disappointed this feeling is shared by the men who provide.

The ladies are going to curl again this season and they hope for a larger membership and better results.

The Scots from Edinburgh will have their own pipers. Big preparation is being made by all the clubs which they will visit during their tour.

FORMER PETERBORO LADY ENTERTAINED

The following from the Edmonton Capital will be interesting to many local people:

A reunion of "old girls" was held yesterday afternoon in the Blue Moon tea rooms, which was a very jolly affair.

There are old girls and old girls, but these particular "old girls" were those of the Bishop Strachan school, Toronto, and much merriment was caused by the relation of certain individual experiences among the older members, who "told on" themselves, and others with a recklessness which was surprising—at least to the younger members, who sat with bulging eyes, wondering how anyone besides themselves could ever have been so "naughty" at school, and then tell about it.

Old photograph groups were produced and old autograph albums read, and one "old girl" proudly produced a medal awarded by the mayor of Toronto for general proficiency.

The tea tables were "done" in the school colors—red and black (rouge et noir), and every lady wore a bit of the colors pinned to her furs. Mrs. Wallbridge poured tea.

After tea, Mrs Arthur Murphy read a selection from her latest book (not yet from the press), called "Open Trails," and the extract was a particularly appropriate one, because it contained an "appreciation" of Miss Greer, who was principal of Bishop Strachan school in Mrs Murphy's school days. Miss Greer appears in the book under the name of "Rose Elizabeth."

The pleasant afternoon ended by the signing of an autograph letter which is being sent to-day to Miss Greer and Miss Acres, and the names which were attached, follow:

"The undersigned old girls of the Bishop Strachan school, assembled in Edmonton, Alberta, to entertain Mrs Arthur Stevenson (Maud Beck) of Peterborough, send affectionate greetings and best wishes to their former principals, Miss Greer and Miss Acres.

CONSERVATORY ORCHESTRA

To the Editor of the Review,

Dear Sir,—It was my privilege to be present at the Twilight musicale given under the auspices of the Woman's Art Association last Saturday afternoon. The Conservatory music hall was fairly well filled, but it was surprising to me that more of our people did not take advantage of such an opportunity for hearing good music rendered by those who are making it a special study. The solo work was excellent. The musical numbers by the Conservatory orchestra showed careful training, being executed with splendid effect. Such an orchestra is an organization of which the citizens of Peterborough may well be proud.

Yours truly,
A MUSIC LOVER.

DON'T FORGET THE XMAS CALENDARS

Proceeds Will Assist the Local Health Association

"To do all in our power to win health and to keep it, is as much one's duty as to be honest," thus runs one of the mottoes on the pretty calendars, for sale in aid of the Peterborough Health Association. To help others to win health. That is the object of this organization, and the duty also falls on every healthy citizen of this growing city to lend his or her assistance. Money is required before the Health Association can do much in combatting tuberculosis in Peterborough. Then in making your Christmas purchases this week, don't forget the pretty calendars, and when sending out your parcels be sure and have them well stamped with the association's stamps. The stamps are only a cent a piece, so everyone can do something if it only to buy one of these. Everyone who buys a single stamp or a package of 10 cents or 25 cents worth may feel that he is making it possible to do something to help the needy consumptive. It is a fight worth while when it is considered that within a decade a decrease of nearly forty per cent has taken place in this province alone in the death rate from tuberculosis. Buy the stamps at the drug store, at the bank or from the children. Be sure and get them, remembering the object.

Astronomical Society

Members of the Astronomical Society are reminded of the annual meeting to-night in the physics laboratory room of the Collegiate at eight o'clock when officers are to be elected. The Council will meet at 7.15 sharp. Dr. Maran is to give an illustrated lecture on the planet Saturn, and the public are invited.

Plowing Operations by Farmers During the Past Week

Special Correspondence

Lorenz, Dec. 18—It is seldom we see plowing in December as has been the case during the past week.

Mr. Wm. Cerks, formerly of this vicinity has returned, having spent a couple of summers in Saskatchewan.

Mr. John Garner was in Millbrook during the past week with a load of turkeys which he sold to Mr. Thos. Hartness.

Mr. James Taylor left last week for his home in England. We all join in wishing him a safe voyage.

One of our young men, Mr. Wesley Bradshaw, is exercising his musical talent, in taking lessons at Peterboro. Miss Cathcart is his instructor. We hope to see him make a mark for himself in the musical arena. We expect to have him on the public platform at Centreville in a short time, at the concert, when we look for a rare treat.

No further developments have arisen re the sulky plow wheel, and people are in doubt as to its disappearance. It was merely referred to as a rumor of which every vicinity has plenty.

Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull have returned home having been absent a few weeks visiting friends in Peterboro and other points.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q.—Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?

A.—Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q.—Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?

A.—Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

Q.—Can my headache be relieved with Glasses?

A.—A personal visit will be necessary. LET US TALK IT OVER.

PRESENTATION TO J. J. THOMPSON

Warsaw Boy's Club Show Appreciation of His Services

That the Young Men's Club of Warsaw appreciate kindness was manifested unmistakably on Saturday night last, when Mr. J. J. Thompson, physical instructor of the local Y.M.C.A., was presented with a beautiful eighteen pound Christmas turkey as a mark of the club's appreciation of his work.

The presentation, which was accompanied by an address, followed the final session of the club's work for the season, at which the local Y.M.C.A. boys, under Mr. Thompson, gave their usual demonstration of physical work.

A vote of thanks was also tendered by the club to Messrs. J. E. Sharpe and F. E. Ellis, who assisted the Y.M.C.A. boys by putting on exhibitions of wrestling and boxing.

At the close of the demonstration Rev. A. C. Huffman, the hon. president of the club, called upon Mr. Allan Payne, the president of the club, and J. J. Thompson, of the Y.M.C.A., to come forward, when the following address was read by Mr. Payne, and at the proper moment the feathered monarch of the barnyard being placed in the popular physical director's hands by Mr. James Selkirk.

Warsaw, Ont., Dec. 16, 1911.

Mr. J. J. Thompson:

We, the members of the Young Men's Bible Club of Warsaw, wish to convey to you a feeling of appreciation for your work done among us during the last few months.

This work, we believe, will greatly benefit not only the physical, but also the spiritual strength of the body and mind. We sincerely hope that the work which you have commenced among us may grow, and in time bring forth fruit, which may be a credit to our instructor.

We ask you to accept this turkey, not for its intrinsic value, but as a slight token of our appreciation. We extend to you a Merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

Signed on behalf of the Young Men's Club of Warsaw.

Rev. A. C. Huffman,
Hon. President.
Allan N. Payne,
President.
Rufus R. Payne,
Vice-President.
Archie Hawthorne,
Secretary.
John F. Selkirk,
Treasurer.
Wm. Darling.

The presentation came as a thorough surprise to Mr. Thompson, who, however, made a very appropriate reply, embodying in the same his sincere thanks to the club for their kindness, and wishing for them a bright and prosperous future.

BETTER UNIFORMS FOR THE CANADIAN MILITIA

New System to be Inaugurated by Hon. Sam Hughes — More Rigid Inspection

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—Another reform to which Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes set his hand immediately on assuming office has been approved by his colleagues of the government, and will go into effect as soon as arrangements can be made, for carrying it out. It is a plan to improve the method of uniforming the militia. At present the cloth from which uniforms are manufactured is obtained from divers sources of production, with the result that while care is taken to ensure good quality of garments, or at all events provision is made for adequate inspection, with that end in view, it has been found that the system does not give perfect satisfaction in the way of uniformity of color. Thus on field days and reviews, in which considerable bodies of troops participate, the variety of shades in uniforms worn by regiments of the same arm of the service is sometimes so marked as to be a subject of comment. Rifle regiments have been observed to wear shades of green so varied as to constitute a marked contrast, and the same diversity of hue is said to characterise the blues and the scarlets of the cavalry and infantry corps. It is purposed to remedy this, and at the same time ensure even more rigid inspection of materials for uniforms by having the cloth itself manufactured expressly for the militia under the eye of a technical expert. The manufacturing will be done in Canada, of course. And hereafter contacts for clothing will be let on condition that this specially made material shall be used exclusively. This scheme will, it is believed, give satisfactory results, not only in uniformity of color, but in quality of cloth. The Department of Militia will at once set about making arrangements for the manufacture of clothing under these improved conditions.

PATHETIC TRAGEDY OCCURS NEAR VILLAGE OF OKE QUE.

Two French-Canadians and Four Indians Perish In Lake of Two Mountains While Men From Village Endeaver to Locate Them—Shouts For Help Are Heard While Storm Rages—Women Pray.

Como, Que., Dec. 19.—While women knelt on the banks and prayed wildly and men frantically tried to locate the direction from which the despairing cries for help were coming, six men were drowned in Lake of Two Mountains, opposite Oka., on Saturday night.

The accident happened in the evening about eight o'clock. The victims were: Hormisdas Laberge, postmaster of Oka; John Burns, butter manufacturer, and four Indians — Ignace Simon, Pierre Ignace, Joseph Laforce and a son of Jean Tivasha.

It was toward eight o'clock and all at once through the blinding snow and howling wind wild, despairing cries for help were heard.

Half of the population of Como immediately collected on the river bank. To their horror, however, they were unable to tell from which direction the sounds came. The voices were tossed about by the wind.

A dozen boats were ready to start, but no one knew which may to go.

The wife of the postmaster was telephoned to and told of her husband's danger, and a search party at once collected on the opposite bank at Oka. Nothing could be done, however, and it was not until 10 o'clock that search parties found the boat floating bottom upwards, with two dead bodies lying across the bottom.

Laberge and Burns had crossed the lake in a boat to Lake Como to get the mail, which arrives at 4.40 o'clock in the afternoon. When the train had departed and they were able to start back, the four Indians asked to be taken over in the boat.

NEW FIELDS TO CONQUER.

Canada Must Be Commercially Great, Says Laurier.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—Members of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association, at their annual banquet last night heard two members of the Dominion Cabinet, together with the leader of the Nationalists, each of whom expressed divergent views and ideas. While Sir Wilfrid Laurier emphasized the necessity of looking after foreign trade and not being cut out by European nations. Hon. George E. Foster argued that interprovincial trade relations were perhaps more important still; and Henri Bourassa, speaking for the Province of Quebec, made an eloquent and forceful plea for the use of the French language throughout the Dominion.

The toast to the Dominion Parliament was first responded to by Hon. Charles J. Doherty, who was followed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Sir Wilfrid urged that attention must be given to western European nations, to which he said Great Britain and the United States were making a bee line to capture trade.

"Canada should be not only in the front rank of commercial nations, but the every first of the commercial nations of the world. To that end, let me tell you to wake up; the dawn is upon us."

Hon. George E. Foster suggested that attention should be turned to the interprovincial trade of the Dominion.

"Laud as we may the praises of trade between ourselves and nations across the border and across the sea, right here amongst us ought there to be the interchanged of our diversified products. The policy is good which leads to the development of trade between Canada and foreign countries, but that policy is better which leads also to the devolpment of home productions and their interchange between our products," he said.

Farmers Write Borden.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—Premier Borden is in receipt of a large number of letters from western farmers, in which attention is called to the fact that Saturday was the first anniversary of, the visit to Ottawa of the mammoth delegation of farmers, which made a large number of demands upon the late Government.

All the letters contain the hope that as little time as possible will be lost by the Government in meeting the requests made by the members of the delegation.

REV. DR. ELMER HARRIS DEAD

Succumbed to Smallpox While Travelling in India

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Dec. 19.—A cable message to-day announces the death in India of Rev. Dr. Elmer Harris, from smallpox. Dr. Harris who was one of the best known Baptist ministers in Canada, was prominent as a theological educationist and in business circles. He was on a wedding trip and intended to be absent for one year.

PROBABILITIES

Moderate winds and fair to-day and on Tuesday, increasing easterly winds followed by rain or snow.

Tried to Hit Member.

Constantinople, Dec. 19.—The Parliamentary situation is becoming critical. The members of both parties are at high tension over the proposed modification of Article 35 of the constitution, and this led to a personal encounter yesterday between a Unionist deputy and a member of the Opposition on the floor of the House. The former attempted to strike the Opposition deputy with a chair, but was prevented from doing so by the intervention of several members. A tumultuous scene ensued, and the president was compelled to suspend the sitting.

The Unionist majority then held a meeting and decided to provoke a dissolution of the chamber at all costs.

Refuses Ultimatum.

Teheran, Persia, Dec. 19.—The National Council has refused to accept the Cabinet's proposals regarding a solution of the Russian difficulty, and the Russian troops are preparing to advance on the capital. It is believed that the advance will begin on Thursday.

The people are apathetic and only the women continue an active boycott. The official attitude suggests passive resistance, but the provincial sentiment is strongly opposed to the Russians. The ex-Shah, Mohammed Ali Mirza, is at Gumesh Tepe.

Wabash Receivers Appointed.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 19.—On the application of the Westinghouse Air brake Co., Judge Elmer B. Adams in the U. S. Circuit Court yesterday afternoon, appointed Fred. J. Delano, Edward B. Pryor and W. T. Bixby receivers of the Wabash Railway Co. The receivers' bond was fixed at $300,000 each, to be given in ten days. Wells E. Blodgett, who has been general counsel for the road, was appointed counsel for the receivers.

F. J. Delano is president of the road now, and Mr. Pryor, until recently, was a director.

Chinese Cabinet Not Formed.

Shanghai, Dec. 19.—The Nanking convention, which is to take under consideration the establishment of a republic, has not yet met in regular session. As a consequence the reports that a President has been elected and Ministers named, are without foundation.

Chatham's Building Permits.

Chatham, Dec. 19.—Seventy-seven building permits aggregating an expenditure of over $140,000 have been issued this year by Fire Chief Richard Pritchard. Several large permits, including one for the addition to the Ursuline Academy, are yet to be filed this year, and it is expected that the total cost of building operations will amount to over $150,000. The last year has been the best from a building standpoint in the history of the city.

MUST STOP HOSTILITIES

Or Foreign Powers Will Intervene in China

Special to the Review.

Shanghai, Dec. 19.—Delegates to the peace conference to-day received notices from the powers, urging them to arrive at some agreement that will end the hostilities in China. Reading between the lines it was seen that unless there is an early end to the struggle foreign intervention is certain.

'Ware Gypsies.

Belleville, Dec. 19.—Yesterday a number of townsmen were victimized by a band of gypsies, who on Saturday evening arrived here from the east.

The party consisted of two men, six women and six children. Yesterday morning the women started out to tell fortunes. Their modus operandi was to have their victims produce bills, which the women would have placed in their hands, and after saying a few unintelligible words, would make a few motion and apparently return the money. In at least three cases the women succeeded in keeping some of the bills. A number who were victimized, reported to the police, who had the band arrested.

In the afternoon three victims appeared against them, but the magistrate allowed them to go upon making restitution and compelling them to leave town. It is said that many victims failed to report to the police. In some cases as high as $15 was taken from one person.

To Study Canals.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—The first real move towards the realization of the Georgian Bay Canal scheme has been made by the Public Works Department. Arthur St. Laurant, Deputy Minister of Public Works and engineer in charge of the Georgian Bay Ship Canal, leaves Ottawa to-day in company with Mr. Coultbee, the assistant engineer of the Georgian Bay Ship Canal, for Panama, via New Orleans.

The object of the two engineers is to examine the works and obtain information that may be useful when the Georgian Bay Ship Canal is placed under construction.

The two gentlemen will be absent from Ottawa for six weeks, and during that time will consult with all the eminent engineers who made possible the opening of the great Panama route, as the latest machinery and appliances for work of that kind are at the canal. Mr. St. Laurent and his assistant will make a report on them.

GETS TEN YEARS.

Leader of Holy Ghost and Us Sect Found Guilty.

Portland, Me., Dec. 19.—In company with two convicted postoffice robbers, Rev. Frank W. Sandford, leader of the Holy Ghost and Us Society, left Atlanta, Ga., last night, to enter upon his ten-year term in the federal penitentiary, to which he was sentenced yesterday.

The specific charge upon which the Shiloh leader was sentenced is that of causing the death of Geo. Hughey, a member of his flock, who died at sea, by failing to furnish provisions during the recent 17 months' cruise of the Holy Ghost yacht Coronet. This was the first of six counts in the indictment.

The arrival of the party at the Union Station, where the train was taken, in the police automobile, was the signal for the gathering of a big crowd, but Sandford remained undisturbed.

Convinced that he was being banished for a time, Sandford had bid his wife and children good-bye before leaving his home in Shiloh for the court house at Portland yesterday, and when he finally took his departure for the south last night, three of his elders, Rev. Charles E. Holland, who succeeds to the leadership of the colony; Capt. A. K. Perry, commander of the Kingdom fleet, and Rev. George A. Jewell, were the only close friends about him. He shook hands with each and urged them to continue the work at home as he should like while away.

In an interview just before he left the city Sandford declared that he felt no resentment and that he looked upon his imprisonment simply as a part of God's plan.

Major Leonard's Generosity.

Brantford, Dec. 19.—Announcement has been made here that Major R. W. Leonard, chairman of the Transcontinental Railway Commission, has offered to donate funds to Grace Church in this city sufficient to erect a tower with a chime of bells. It is understood the entire structure will cost $6,000. The tower will be a memorial to Major Leonard's father and mother, who were well-known workers in Grace Church for many years.

In connection with the improvements the sum of $23,000 has been subscribed in addition for a handsome parish hall. The gift of Major Leonard is entirely unconditional, and it is understood has been accepted by the church authorities.

Rev. H. F. D. Woodcock, M.A., has resigned as curate of Grace Church and will accept a call to Oakville Anglican Church.

Northumberland Fruit Growers.

Brighton, Dec. 19.—At an enthusiastic meeting of the fruit growers here yesterday afternoon, the Northumberland Co-operative Fruit Growers' Association was formed, and the following officers were elected: President, W. J. Farley; vice-president, C. E. Post; secretary-treasurer, E. C. Brown; executive, Robt. Wade, Dr. C. M. Sanford, S. T. Tinson.

R. B. Scripture, who was instrumental in organizing, was appointed manager.

PLAYING A GAME

Attempting to Block the Plans of Hydro-Electric Commission

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—A Peterborough deputation was here yesterday afternoon. The crux of the whole matter is the desire and intention of the Hydro-Electric Commission to repurchase the dam on the Trent Canal at present owned by the Otonabee Company, with other powers on the same waterway, develop power for Peterborough and Lakefield and the surrounding municipalities. On the occasion of Mr. Beck's last visit here he was accompanied by a number of members of the Peterborough Council, and the Government was requested to sanction the taking over of the power by the commission. This, it is understood, the Power Company is opposing, and the matter is to come before the Government.

There were sundry conferences, but none of the representatives of either side of the case were very communicative.

PASSING OF JOHN BIGELOW

He Was Personal Friend of Abraham Lincoln

Special to the Review.

New York, N.Y., Dec. 19.—John Bigelow, author, journalist and diplomat, died to-day at the age of ninety-four years. He was a warm personal friend of Abraham Lincoln and at one time was ambassador to France.

Brantford and Paris Dry.

Brantford, Dec. 19.—Announcement has been made that strong efforts will be made in Paris at the municipal elections to elect a temperance council for the submission of local option in January, 1913. It is understood a similar movement will be made in Brantford, so that voting will take place in both municipalities at the same time.

After the "Plumbing Trust."

Los Angeles, Dec. 19.—The Government filed in the federal court here yesterday a suit to dissolve the so-called plumbing trust. The allegations are made in a bill in equity that the Pacific Coast Plumbing Supply Association "and others" have conspired since 1907 to restrain trade and interstate commerce.

Blaze In Kingston.

Kingston, Dec. 19.—Kingston's main business block had a narrow escape from destruction when fire broke out in the apartments of J. H. Melville, over the store of D. A. Weese, photographer. It was checked in the nick of time by Chief Armstrong and his men. The loss of $3,000 is partially covered by insurance.

WILL QUIETLY MAKE AN END OF RUSSO-AMERICAN TREATY

President Taft Hands the Matter Over to Upper Chamber of Congress to Bring to an End the Entente and Suggests That a More Modern One Be Entered Upon — Officials Are Not Very Sanguine.

Washington, Dec. 19.—President Taft turned over to the Senate yesterday the task of completing the abrogation of the treaty of 1832 with Russia, because of alleged discrimination against American citizens of Jewish faith. Ignoring the House of Representatives, the President sent a message to the Senate announcing that on Friday last he had caused notice to be forwarded to St. Petersburg that the U. S. desired the treaty to end Jan. 1, 1913. This notification was officially handed to the representatives of the Russian Government yesterday.

Mr. Taft asked the Senate to ratify and give effect to his action. The foreign affairs committee of the Senate voted unanimously to report a resolution of ratification couched in diplomatic language, and Senator Lodge offered it later in the Senate. There was every reason to believe that the resolution would be rushed through, inasmuch as the Senate committee, as an act of courtesy to the House, had decided that the lower branch of Congress should be asked to concur in the Senate's action.

Senator Heyburn of Idaho took the floor, and after protesting vigorously against hasty action, asserted his right under the rules and by formal action, threw further consideration of the matter over until to-day.

Although it was evident that politics would enter into the fight to-day, the prediction was made freely that all obstacles would be overcome.

In his message to the Senate, President Taft transmitted a copy of the letter to the Russian Foreign Office. In it was expressed the view of the U. S. that the old treaty no longer met the political principles or commercial needs of the two nations and should be terminated.

The American Government, with marked courtesy suggested further that it would be most agreeable to this country if a new treaty, along more modern lines, could be negotiated to replace the ancient and outlived document.

Despite this overture to the Russian Government, State Department officials last night practically admitted that there was little hope for negotiating a new treaty that would avoid the very things that were leading to the denunciation of the old one.

Popular In Russia.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 19.—American Ambassador Guild, acting under instructions from Presidenet Taft, yesterday notified the Russian Foreign Minister, M. Sazanoff, that the treaty of 1832 between the U. S. and Russia would be abrogated, in accordance with provisions made by article 12, on Jan. 1, 1913.

It is pointed out in official circles that Russia has no cause to be dissatisfied with this turn of affairs, President Taft's action, in view of the previously contemplated procedure, being likely to increase his popularity here. The notification, it is said, was given with full right and tactful mention of motives underlying the abrogation of the treaty, which leaves full latitude for conducting new negotiations, with the controversial factor eliminated.

Austria Backs U. S.

Vienna, Austria, Dec. 19.—The Russo-American controversy is arousing great interest there and the newspapers are publishing long despatches from Washington on the subject. The general view held in Austria is that Russia will be worsted in a commercial fight, especially in view of the power of American capital.

The Neue Freie Presse commenting on the possibilities, says that a conflict would occasion no surprise, as the contract in culture and political development between the U. S. and Russi is bound to influence the relations between the two countries. Two Galician deputies of the Austrian Parliament have sent cablegrams to the Senate at Washington, expressing gratitude at the efforts of the U. S. to obtain justice for the Jews.

Youthful Thugs Committed.

Cornwall, Dec. 19.—Fred White, Arthur and James Tyo, aged 18, 16 and 15 years respectively, were yesterday committed for trial on the charge of doing bodily harm to Geeorge Gallinger, aged 63, of Cornwall Township, with the intent to commit murder.

Mr. Gallinger, whose eye was knocked out by a club in the melee, gave evidence and in a measure identified the trio as his assailants.

Fourth Son to Crown Princess.

Berlin, Germany, Dec. 19.—Crown Princess Cecilia, the wife of Crown Prince Frederick William, gave birth to a son at one o'clock yesterday morning.

The Crown Princess was Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. Her marriage with Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm took place June 6, 1905. The family of the royal couple now consists of four sons.

Prison Didn't Reform Him.

Berlin, Ont., Dec. 19.—Robert Lindsay, who was liberated from Central Prison last Wednesday, was found trying to gain an entrance into stores on King street at four o'clock yesterday morning and was placed under arrest. He pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy and was sent back to Central Prison for another term of six months. He claims Collingwood as his home.

New York's Gas Strike Deferred.

New York, Dec. 19.—A committee of clergymen representing all denominations persuaded the Consolidated Gas Co. employes yesterday not to plunge the city in darkness at Christmas, but to wait until after the holidays at least before taking action on a proposed strike.

Market To-morrow

The housewife is reminded that market proceedings will be in full operation to-morrow. The indications are that the offering by the farmers will be large and the buying public may benefit accordingly.

Christmas fowl it is expected will be much in evidence. From all parts of the country come reports to this effect.

FREIGHT CARS LEFT THE TRACK

Four cars of a G.T.R. southbound freight jumped the track near Blezard's Cut about five o'clock last evening, with the result that traffic was blocked. The Lakefield passenger train was used to transfer the passengers, and the track was cleared to-day.

SIR CHARLES IMPROVING

Physicians Are Hopeful for His Ultimate Recovery

Special to the Review.

London, Dec. 19.—Sir Charles Tupper's physicians report further improvement in his condition to-day and say that prospects are good for his ultimate recovery.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

PETERBORO' MAN ASSAULTED ON STREET IN ROCHESTER

Court Proceedings Followed and Defendant Was Discharged.

Special To The Review

Rochester, N.Y., Dec. 19— Justin Gorman, Peterboro, of 343 Rubidge street, Peterboro, Ont., who came to this city five years ago, was assaulted by George N. Flowerday, of Franklin street. Gorman became friendly with Flowerday, who at that time was not married. Flowerday secured Gorman a position and befriended him in other ways. Four years ago, Flowerday married. Soon after marriage he was offered a position in Chicago which he accepted. He left Rochester and was gone for thirteen weeks. Gorman meanwhile lived at the Flowerday home, where he had a room.

Upon his return Flowerday became suspicious. He had no cause for complaint until Nov. 24th, on the evening of that date he met Gorman with his wife walking in Franklin street. Flowerday first saw them as they were coming out of a hotel; Flowerday's anger was too much for him. Running up behind the couple he smashed Gorman over the head with a gold headed umbrella. Gorman was at the Hahnemann Hospital for over a week. Flowerday was discharged by Judge Chadsey, who stated that he was disgusted with the whole affair.

INDIANAPOLIS GRAND JURY GET SOME IMPORTANT CLUES

Evidence at Federal Investigation Into Shipment of Explosives Reveals Movements of Authors of Explosions Throughout the United States—Burns Will Give Evidence —Depots For Dynamite Located.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 19.—Hotel registers showing the movements of those suspected of complicity in the dynamiting conspiracy other than the McNamaras and Ortie McManigal were taken before the federal grand jury yesterday.

Thomas J. Refingon of Youngstown, Ohio, the first hotelman to be examined, brought with him his hotel register and some account books said to show by whom certain hotel bills had been paid. A bridge being erected by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at Youngstown was damaged by an explosion on the night of Oct. 30, 1907. Non-union ironworkers had been employed on the contract. This explosion was followed by numerous others in Northern Ohio, all alleged to be depredations of the "dynamiting crew."

McManigal's and the McNamaras' movements are well-known, and the hotel records are being brought from places in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, from the east and as far west as Salt Lake City, Utah, with a view of tracing others whose names have not yet been mentioned, but upon whom it is said, the Government is keeping close watch.

Other persons examined yesterday are believed to know circumstances connected with the stores of explosives which the dynamiters kept. The stores were at Tiffin, Ohio, where in April, 1911, 540 pounds of dynamite were taken from a barn in the rear of McManigal's father's home at Indianapolis, where more than 100 pounds of explosives were found in the basement of the building occupied by the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, and in a barn outside the city; at Rochester, Penna., where nitro-glycerine was found, and at Muncie, Ind.

Detective W. J. Burns, who, through evidence left at these places, traced McManigal's connection with the McNamaras, probably will be a witness later.

District Attorney C. W. Miller said the Government was progressing rapidly with the investigation. He said more than the preliminaries had been gone through, and it was probable all the evidence would be in within a month.

Probing Bribery Charge.

Los Angeles, Dec. 19.—Bert. H. Franklin, formerly an investigator, employed by the defence in the McNamara dynamiting cases, was brought before Justice Young yesterday for preliminary hearing on the second bribery charge against him—that of having bribed Mrs. Robert F. Bain to influence her husband, a juror, in the trial of James B. McNamara.

One witness, Mrs. Maud Farley, a neighbor, testified that Mrs. Bain came to her home one day and used the telephone; that Mrs. Bain used the name Franklin several times.

The case then went over until to-day.

Frenchmen Protest.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—That the French in the English-speaking provinces were treated with far less generosity than that accorded the English-speaking minority in the Province of Quebec and that the rights of the French-Canadian citizens of the Province of Quebec and of the Dominion generally were grievously trampled upon both officially and semi-officially, was the dual declaration of Mr. Armand Lavergne, M.P.P., speaking before the Canadian Club of Montreal yesterday afternoon on the position of the French language in Canada.

A strong denunciation of the methods of the Government in requiring all French candidates for the civil service to be able to speak English when little or no knowledge of the French language was required from English-speaking candidates for Government positions was indulged in by Mr. Lavergne, who further charged that French-speaking citizens of the Province of Quebec were even unable to get printed receipts in their own language from the postmasters of districts in the heart of their own province.

In conclusion, Mr. Lavergne said that while he was considered an extremist, he would, as long as he could draw a breath, see to it that the English-speaking minority in this province was accorded the greatest generosity that it was possible for the French majority to bestow.

Two Wrecks In U. S.

Odessa, Minn., Dec. 19.—Twelve persons were killed in a wreck on the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad here yesterday, and ten or more were seriously injured when the second section of train No. 18, the Columbian, from Seattle, crashed into the first section, which had been stopped on a signal.

The dead were: Mrs. R. C. Myers, Newcastle, Ind.; Mrs. C. W. Barber, Ferry, Mont.; — McCone, sleeping car conductor; Mrs. J. J. Richards, Mobridge, S.D., wife of Supt. Richards of Trans-Missouri Slope Division, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Richards; Dr. R. F. Whetsone, Minneapolis; six unidentified dead.

Among the injured are Miss Eliza Clement, Boston, Mass., seriously, and Miss Leona Kennedy, Newcastle, Ind., bruised.

Leavenworth, Kas., Dec. 19.—According to reports received here seven persons were killed and a number injurd in a head-on collision between two trolley cars on the Kansas City Leavenworth electric line near Wolcott, Kas., fifteen miles south of here, yesterday. Physicians and nurses were hurried to the scene from this city.

C.P.R. Changes.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 19.—G. M. Bosworth, C.P.R. vice-president, yesterday announced the transfer of the following officials of the company's telegraph service:

J. F. Richardson, superintendent at Montreal, to be superintendent at Vancouver; J. Fletcher, superintendent at Windsor, to be superintendent of traffic at Montreal; J. McMillan, superintendent at Calgary, to be transferred to Winnipeg, replacing J. T. Tait, appointed assistant to Western Manager B. S. Jenkins; J. L. Coons, formerly of Winnipeg, to be superintendent at Calgary.

Nine Dollars For Six Weeks Work.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 19.—Otto Greiger and Otto Huffman, Germans, told Magistrate Fraser yesterday that they had been brought to Canada from the States by a contractor, for whom they worked six weeks, receiving $9 pay each. The balance had been kept for transportation. The men were dismissed. They were charged with trespassing, but were released.

Wm. J. Hamilton, Falls passenger agent of the Lehigh Valley, will assume his new duties as successor of the late Robt. Lewis, Canadian passenger agent in Toronto, the first of the year.

Pray For U. S. Senate.

London, Eng., Dec. 19.—Influential support is being given among Englishmen of all parties to the celebration of a century of Anglo-American peace. The Morning Post makes the piquant suggestion that the best celebration would be to convert the Rush-Bagot agreement into a treaty securing the removal of all armed forces now upon the Great Lakes, thus ensuring the future peaceful character of these lakes. If, as proposed, a special day be devoted to prayer, The Post says, let us all pray that the Senate of the United States be moved to consent to such a treaty.

Woman Obstructed Police.

Berlin, Ont., Dec. 19.—Mrs. O'Connor, who assisted her husband, James O'Connor, to escape from Bailiff Ogg, Guelph, while being brought to the county jail here to await trial on a charge of housebreaking, was placed under arrest by the local police and remanded until Thursday. She is charged with obstructing the police in the performance of their duty.

IMPORTANT MEDICAL APPOINTMENTS

Leading Canadian Physicians Become Consultants to the Muskoka Sanatoriums

The trustees of the National Sanitarium Association have announced to the Medical Profession in Canada that they have appointed Dr. W. P. Caven, Dr. J. T. Fotheringham, Dr. H. B. Anderson and Dr. Harold Parsons consultants to the Muskoka Cottage Sanatorium and the Muskoka Free Hospital. These well-known physicians will spend a day regularly once a month at the Muskoka Homes. The visits of Dr. Parsons, who has charge of the tuberculosis clinic at the Toronto General Hospital, will be made every two months.

Catarrhozone

Cures Permanently BRONCHITIS, COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, CATARRH

Throw medicine to the dogs. At best they are unpleasant, often useless. You are suffering from some disease of the throat, nose, or lungs. Doctors call it Bronchitis, Asthma, or Catarrh, or it is a slight or severe cold. Germs cause these diseases—they have a common root.

Catarrhozone destroys disease germs, but it does more, it heals disease tissue.

CATARRHOZONE is little drops of healing carried by air to the exact place where Catarrh exists. Observe, Catarrhozone not only destroys the cause, but immediately repairs the result of diseased condition.

Catarrhozone means little drops of healing carried by air and placed over the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

Catarrhozone is endorsed by doctors, druggists, and by thousands of Canadian people who have used it.

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH
BY-LAW No. 1639

A By-law to take the vote of the ratepayers of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on Money By-Laws, on a question to be submitted whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, deems it advisable to submit to the ratepayers of the said City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws a question as to whether the said ratepayers are in favor of a supply of electric power from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

THEREFORE THE COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH ENACTS AS FOLLOWS—

1. That the following question be submitted to the ratepayers of the Municipal Corporation of the City of Peterborough, entitled to vote on money By-Laws—

"Are you in favor of obtaining from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario a supply of electric power?"

2. That the votes of the said ratepayers shall be taken on this question on the first day of January, 1912, being the same day as the annual election for the Municipal Council is being held and the polls will be held at the same hour on the said day, at the same places and by the same Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks as for the said Municipal Election.

3. A true copy of this By-Law shall be published in the Morning Times, a public newspaper, published in the said City of Peterborough on the days hereinafter mentioned, that is to say—On the 9th, 16th, and 23rd, days of December, A.D., 1911, and a copy of this By-Law shall be posted on George street, between Brock and Murray streets, on Hunter street, between George and Aylmer streets and between Water and Queen streets, and on Charlotte street between George and Aylmer streets.

4. On the thirtieth day of December, 1911, at the City Clerk's Office at the corner of Simcoe and Water streets, in the City of Peterborough at the hour of twelve o'clock noon, the Mayor will in writing signed by him, appoint two persons to attend at the final summing up of the votes by the Clerk of the Corporation, and one person to attend each Polling Place on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the affirmative and a like number on behalf of the persons interested in and desirous of the answering of the said question in the negative respectively.

5. The second day of January, 1912 at the said Clerk's Office at twelve o'clock noon, is hereby appointed for the summing up by the Clerk of the Corporation of the number of votes given in the affirmative and in the negative respectively.

Made, passed and enacted this seventh day of December A.D., 1911.

W. G. MORROW,
Mayor.

S. R. ARMSTRONG
Clerk.

NOTICE

Take notice that the above is a true copy of a By-Law passed by the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough, on the seventh day of December, 1911.

And further take notice that at the hour, day and placed therein fixed for taking the votes of the electors the polls will be held.

And further take notice that the name of any leaseholder, who does not at least ten days before the day in the said proposed By-Law appointed for taking the vote thereon, file in my office a Statutory Declaration proving that he or his wife is the holder of a lease which under the provisions of section 354 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, entitles him to vote for or against the said proposed By-Law, shall not be placed on the Voters' List for such voting.

First publication the ninth day of December, 1911.

S. R. ARMSTRONG,
City Clerk.

Council Chamber, December 7th, 1911.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Wheat shorts took fright to-day at a sensational advance in prices at Buenos Ayres, the result of incessant rains apparently putting an end to bright harvest prospects in the Argentine. The close here was nervous at 3-4c to 1c advance over Saturday night. Corn made a net gain of 5-8c to 3-4c and oats a shade to 1-4c. Latest trading left hog products varying from 2 1-2c decline to a rise of 5c.

The Liverpool markets closed to-day ¾d to 1¼d higher than Saturday on wheat, and ¼d to ⅜d higher on corn. Paris wheat closed ½d to 1d higher. Buenos Ayres wheat was 2⅛c higher, Antwerp and Budapest unchanged, and Berlin ⅛c higher.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—The demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat was renewed again to-day on account of further bad reports from the Argentine, and there were orders in the market for some round lots at an advance of 1½d to 3d per quarter, but owing to the increased scarcity of grain room exporters were not able to do much business. The local market is steady, with a fair volume of business passing. Demand for bran and shorts is good. Cheese quiet, but the trade in butter and eggs is fairly active. Dressed hogs strong, at an advance of 25c per 100 pounds.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Dec. 18.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 91 cars—1013 cattle, 3117 hogs, 1174 sheep and lambs, 38 calves and 35 horses.

Exporters

E. L. Woodward bought 38 steers for export, 1170 lbs. each, at $6.10. There was one load of cattle, export weights, sold at $6.40, and one lot of three cattle, export weights and Christmas quality, sold at $6.75, bulls, $5 to $5.75.

Butchers.

Picked lots of butchers' cattle of butchers' weights, sold at $6.30 to $6.60, loads of good, $5.80 to $6.10; medium, $5.40 to $5.75; common, $4.50 to $5.25; cows, $3 to $5.25; bulls, $4 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

The market here to-day was dull and draggy, and we only heard of one lot of five being sold at $50 to $70 each. But there were some that were unsold at the close of the market.

Veal Calves.

The veal calves on sale to-day were not as a rule of good quality, and sold at from $4.50 to $7.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep sold at $3.50 to $4 per cwt. for ewes; rams and culls, $2.50 to $3; lambs were higher, selling at $6.25 to $6.40, and one lot of selected ewes and wethers at $5.50.

Hogs.

W. J. Johnston, buyer for Gunns (Ltd.), quoted $6.40 for selects, fed and watered, and $6.10 f.o.b. cars, country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 16 were 1600 cattle, 1200 sheep and lambs, 4175 hogs and 400 calves. The offerings on the market this morning for sale were 800 cattle, 675 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 250 calves.

The display of cattle for the Christmas market was, without a doubt, one of the poorest ever seen in Montreal, there being no extra choice stock on the market, and the supply of choice was very limited. In fact, some of our leading butchers could not fill their wants. A few choice bulls were offered, weighing from 1300 to 1800 pounds, which were bought up by Messrs. Belanger & Drolet of Quebec at $6 per 100 pounds, along with a number of other steers and heifers, at $5.50 to $6.

Choice milk-fed calves, suitable for the Christmas trade, were very scarce, and good prices would have been paid if they had been obtainable. A few good calves sold at $12 to $15 each, and the lower grades went as low as $5.

The market for hogs continues strong, and prices have scored a further advance of 10c to 25c per cwt., owing to the limited supply now coming forward and the good demand from packers for the same. Sales of selected lots were made at $6.50 to $7 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.25 to $6.75; do. medium, $4 to $5.50; do., common, $3.00 to $3.75; canners, $1.50 to $3; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; do., medium, $4.50 to $5; do., bulls, $4.00 to $5.50; milkers, choice, each, $75; do., common and medium, each, $50 to $60; springers, $50 to $60.

Sheep, ewes, $3.75 to $4; bucks and culls, $3.25 to $3.50; lambs, $6 to $6.25.

Hogs, f.o.b., $6.90 to $7.

Calves, $5 to $15.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Dec. 18.—Cattle—Receipts, 4000; slow; 10c to 25c lower; prime steers, $7.75 to $8; shipping, $6.50 to $7.25; butchers, $5 to $6.65; heifers, $3.75 to $6.25; cows, $3 to $5.25; bulls, $3.50 to $5.50; stockers and feeders, $3.50 to $5.25; stock heifers, $3.25 to $4.25; fresh cows and springers slow and $2 to $3 lower, $30 to $65.

"Perhaps."·Maillot spoke with sneering emphasis, his look frankly hostile, "perhaps you could have heard us; I'm ignorant of the degree of acuteness to which your hearing has been developed; but"—turning to me —"I want to say, Swift, that during the whole time Mr. Page and I were engaged in this room, our voices were not once raised so that a person beyond the closed door could have heard us intelligibly. I think, Burke, I see the imprint of a keyhole on your ear."

"Temper your language, Maillot," said the other, with a touch of asperity. Instantly Maillot was upon his feet.

"Shut up!" he thundered. "Don't you talk to me, you scamp!"

"Here, don't quarrel," I interposed pacifically, pressing the angry, glaring lawyer back into his chair with a persuasive hand upon his shoulder. I then said to him:

"You might appropriately relate what your business last night with Mr. Page was."

"I will"—bluntly—"to you."

The proposal being a reasonable one, I agreed to defer the matter.

"However," continued I, "while you two are together there are some points upon which I want enlightenment. Reserve your personalities for another time. Is it positive that there was no one else in the house besides yourselves and Mr. Page?"

Neither spoke, each waiting, as it seemed, for the other to reply. My glance travelled between the two, and finally settled upon the secretary, whose long, nervous fingers were beating a silent tattoo upon the table.

"How about it, Mr. Burke?" I pressed him. "Your familiarity with the house entitles you to answer."

"I can take oath there was not," he now said. Stodger had already assured me that when he arrived every door and window was fast on the inside. So I next asked:

"When you went to notify the police, did you depart by way of the front door?"

"I did," he replied in a subdued voice. And Maillot immediately added:

"It was fast, Swift—bolt and spring latch, both. I remember because the fact made me think there might be somebody else in the house. As soon as Burke left I went over the whole place, methodically and painstakingly, and I can now swear, if anybody was secreted in here anywhere, why, he's here yet. I inspected every door and window, upstairs and down; all were fast."

The unbroken, spotless mantle of snow outside limited the possibility of ingress or egress without leaving betraying footprints, to either the front or the rear door, where the paths had been kept clear.

Dismissing this nonplussing phase, I turned to the subject of the gem once more.

"Regarding the Ruby, Mr. Burke," said I, "do you know where Mr. Page kept it?"

Maillot fixed a scowling look—not at all relieved by his discolored eye—upon the secretary, while that young man thoughtfully shook his head.

"No," Burke said at length; "not certainly. I never heard Mr. Page mention it; but I have an idea that it is in a small concealed safe in his bed-room, because there is where he keeps those things which no eye but his own ever sees."

Was it possible that Felix Page had any hidden treasures of sentiment? If so, here, in all truth, was a surprising side-light thrown into an unsuspected recess of his character. I was to have a hint presently of what was tucked away there.

But Burke had something more to say. "Perhaps,"—slowly—"you would like to see that safe, Mr. Swift. I know where it is located, and can save you a needless search. It will have to be opened later on, I imagine."

"All right," I said, with much interest. "Lead the way."

Burke rose, with a queer glance at Maillot, and—turned toward the curtained alcove.

If he had any intention of moving in that direction, however, he quickly changed his mind; for Maillot and I followed him through the doorway, down the length of the roomy panelled hall, to another door on the same side of the house as the one we had just quitted. I could hear a murmur of voices across the hall, where Stodger was entertaining the reporters.

"The safe," said Burke, as we entered a large, handsome, but very disordered sleeping-chamber, "is what decided Mr. Page on selecting this room in preference to one on the second floor. It was placed here, I suppose, at the time the house was built; it is very artfully hidden."

The bed betrayed the fact that it had not been slept in recently, and the room that it was unused to a cleansing supervision. Some soiled clothing lay in a heap in one corner; a pair of trousers were collapsed over the back of a chair; the dresser-top held a lot of linen and cravats, both clean and soiled; half-closed drawers overflowed with garments that had been thrust in any way, and an over-turned ink bottle on a handsome mahogany stand had never been righted. Even a careless housewife would have been driven insane by such deliberate untidiness.

Our guide picked up a half-burned candle, lighted it, and then opened a closet door. Next instant he started back with a queer cry.

Maillot and I crowded forward and saw—nothing, at first, to explain Burke's conduct. But in a moment I comprehended.

A section of the closet floor was up, and now stood on edge leaning against a wall; beneath it was a shallow, cemented hollow, with four wooden steps leading down to the bottom, where, obviously, one might stand to get conveniently at the small safe thus disclosed.

It was also manifest that somebody had been doing that very thing. For the safe door stood open, as well as the inner door; and a flash of the candle, a single brief glimpse, assured me that—whatever it might have held—it was now as empty as on the day it left the maker's hands.

But, stay—there was something, though not in the safe. I took the candle from Burke, and went down the steps. On the cement floor, in the shadow of the open safe door, was a visiting card, yellowed by age. I thought it blank at first; but on turning it over I saw some writing, faint and faded but legible, which had been penned by a feminine hand:

"I pray that you be showered with all the blessings of the season. With love from— CLARA."

And in the lower left-hand corner, a date was written, an old, old date: "Xmas, 1857."

Next I satisfied myself that the doors had not been forced, and that every compartment was indeed empty. Then I looked back over my shoulder, to be puzzled by the baffling, indecipherable stare of Burke's tawny eyes. Was he looking at me, at the reaved safe, or at the pathetic little reminder, which I was holding in my hand, of that long-ago Christmas present? Though I could not be certain, I somehow felt that his interest was, at the moment, intense, and that I had been mistaken in thinking him a young man.

As I slipped the time-worn card into a pocket, Maillot's voice broke in harshly upon my meditations.

"So we have a thief to deal with as well as an assassin," he observed, his glance roving casually over the secretary. "Burke, how would you, now account for the safe being open?"

And for the first time I detected a sign of emotion in the yellow eyes: they darted a look toward Maillot, and away again; but it flickered with a spark of malice—gleamed for an instant with a light of malevolent contempt which made me feel that the fellow had all along been keeping something in reserve, something which must inevitably come to light presently, to Maillot's utter discomfiture and undoing. It suggested that Burke was patiently biding his time until some sudden turn of events should permit him to triumph over the other. Clearly, there was no goodwill lost between these two men.

At once the eyes were again the same blank windows whose scrutiny was so indeterminate. Burke let down the trap-door in the closet floor, and I paused awhile to admire how cunningly it had been designed. Although knowing it to be there, I could discern no trace of the aperture. We then re-entered the bedroom.

I observed a door in the wall nearest the front of the house, and, seized with a sudden fancy to ascertain upon what it opened, went and laid my hand upon the handle. Burke's steady progress toward the hall door seemed to be aimed at diverting my purpose; realizing that he had failed, he turned and called aloud, staying my hand while it was in the very act of turning the knob.

"That's only the conservatory," his voice rang out; "it's empty—save for dust and cobwebs; there's nothing in it."

"Nevertheless, I have a fancy to explore it," returned I; and I opened the door.

A narrow passage was disclosed, across which was another door. Both swung open noiselessly, a circumstance which struck me, in view of the fact that the conservatory was empty and unused, as being rather odd; and as I closed the second door behind me, I turned round as if to make sure the latch had caught.

The hinges had been freshly oiled.

A bay of glass, semi-opaque with dirt, occupied the space of the outer wall, and the glare from the dazzling snow outside brought out the whole interior with a sort of brutal vividness. A number of water-stained shelves; a few shallow boxes disintegrating and distributing their contents of earth over the floor; one or two crisp, brown, dessicated plant-stalks; such was the interior of this apartment set aside and dedicated to flowers and bright growing things.

And it had been used infrequently as a passage-way, too. In the dust on the floor were footprints; some of them old, where later dust had settled, without quite obliterating them; some fresh, as if made but an hour ago.

As I came up to the next door I observed that its hinges had also been freshly lubricated, and was not surprised when it opened without a sound. When I stepped through it, I was in the curtained alcove off the library. Truly, there had been some secret, surreptitious flittings in this old mansion.

At that moment, in my abstraction, I was humming a little tune. I heard Stodger jovially speeding the departing reporters; and after the outside door closed behind the last of them, I shouted for him to enter the library. Our eyes met, and I indicated the secretary by the faintest of signs.

"Mr. Burke," said I, quietly, "will you please wait with Mr. Stodger while I have a few words with Mr. Maillot?"

The blank, pale face was turned briefly toward me—or Maillot—then the man bowed without a word, and followed Stodger. He paused an instant at the door, and looked across his shoulder at Maillot; enigma that he was, I nevertheless again caught a triumphant gleam in the tawny eyes. Then he passed on.

The fire on the wide hearth had been replenished during our round of the rooms; it was now blazing cheerily and doing its best to drive out the chill and the damp from the library; and it was a relief to get back to the easy chairs once more. I rested my forearms upon the back of one; but the instant the door closed on Stodger and Burke, young Maillot sank with a groan into a chair by the table.

NERVOUSNESS AND DYSPEPSIA

CURED BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES" THE GREAT FRUIT MEDICINE

In Nervous Dyspepsia, the Dyspepsia does not come from the Nervousness—but the latter trouble does come from the Dyspepsia.

The stomach is a network of nerves. Now if all these nerves are irritated by improper food, hasty eating, or poisoned by gases from the constipated bowels, then they will make one nervous.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures both the Nervousness and the Dyspepsia because "Fruit-a-tives" cures all stomach troubles, keeps the stomach sweet and clean, and enables you to eat and sleep as you did when a child.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

HE HAS A NEW CHIEF

L. J. GABOURY IS A BI-LINGUAL POSTAL EXPERT.

Assistant Postmaster in Charge of Montreal Office, Where Hon. L. O. Taillon Has Been Appointed to the Chief Position—Entered the Civil Service After Trying Law and Business—Was Supt. of D. L. O

Montreal is the greatest bi-lingual postoffice in America, and its assistant-postmaster is a bi-linguist. Mr. L. J. Gaboury was born at St. Cesaire, in the County of Rouville. His father, a notary, educated him for the law, after he had taken his B.A. from Marieville Seminary. Two years of law were enough for him, and he switched to business and thence to the civil service. His first important post was superintendent of the D.L.O. —dead letter office—of the Montreal division, and this post requires a live man always. In 1906 he received the appointment as assistant-postmaster. Because of the illness of the late postmaster, he has been in almost entire charge of this important office, the largest and most difficult in Canada. He has shown a great zeal in the discharge of his duties and has won the good opinion of his superior officers.

MR. L. J. GABOURY.

Mr. Gaboury's new chief will be a man who has had considerable experience in the Postoffice Department, namely Hon. Louis Oliver Taillon, once Postmaster-General of Canada and a former Premier of Quebec. Hon. Mr. Taillon is now 71 years of age, and has been head of the firm of Taillon, Bonin and Morin of Montreal. After his defeat in the general elections of 1900 he retired from public life.

Patriot's Sporting Domain.

Lord and Lady Ardilaun, who have been spending some time at St. Anne's, Clontarf, are shortly expected at Ashford, County Galway, where there is wonderful shooting of various kinds to be obtained. Lord Ardilaun usually spends several weeks at his western place in the autumn, and during his stay there entertains a number of friends, who have generally very good sport.

A member of the famous Guinness family, Lord Ardilaun, Dublin's benefactor, is the elder brother of Lord Iveagh. The Guinnesses are descended from the family of Magennis, and the Viscount of Magennis of Iveagh is one of some fame. They have another claim to ancient lineage through Arthur Guinness, who married in 1793 the daughter of Benjamin Lee, a descendant through the houses of Stafford, Percy, and Mortimer from Edward the Third.

Lord Ardilaun's father, old Sir Benjamin Lee Guinness, restored the half-ruined cathedral of St. Patrick, and the son began his beneficent work by building a beautiful parish church for Rahney, hard by his great mansion at St. Annes. Then there came the Coombe Hospital in Dublin, and afterwards the transformation of St. Stephen's Green from a foul waste and wilderness to a beautiful garden.

Oldest and Largest University.

The oldest and largest university in the world is El-Azhar at Cairo, Egypt. It was founded in 975 and has been from the start a national institution, the Khedive being the rector. The minimum age of entrance is 15 and the applicant must know half the Koran by heart. The curriculum consists of virtually nothing but theology and canon law, the final examination 15 years after matriculation being upon these, together with traditions of the prophet, grammar etymology, rhetoric and logic. It is the same instruction which has prevailed for centuries.

Hurt Cotton Yield.

Prior to the opening of the Assuan dam the yield of cotton was 556 pounds per acre, whereas the same land to-day produces only 440 pounds. In the opinion of many growers this decreased yield is due in part to the silt of the Nile water sinking to the bottom of the dam instead of enriching the land.

Use of Radium.

Sir William Ramsay pointed out at the recent parliament of science in Portsmouth, England, that if radium could be turned to mechanical use a ton of it would suffice to propel a ship of 15,000 tons, with engines of 15,000 horsepower, at the rate of fifteen knots for thirty years.

HARRY ADAMS

H. O. FISKE IS NEW PRESIDENT OF LOCAL CENTRE OF THE R.A.S.

The annual meeting of the local centre of the Royal Astronomical Society was held in the Collegiate Institute last evening. The appointment of officers for the season took place, resulting as follows:

President—H. O. Fiske.
Vice-President—T. A. S. Hay.
Sec.-Treas.—Dr. Marsh.

The Council is as follows: J. A. Seager, Duncan Walker, B.A.; Thos. Elliott, Henry Carveth, S. J. Keyes, B.A.; A. J. Johnston and D. E. Eason.

Auditor—H. Adams.
Librarian—T. A. S. Hay.
Curator—H. O. Fiske.

The business of last year was reported to have been very encouraging, and excellent progress was made. The society is in a good, flourishing condition, and all accounts are paid up. Ten lectures were given during the past year on important and interesting astronomical subjects.

The feature of the meeting last night was a lecture on the planet Saturn, setting forth its location in space relative to the sun and other planets, its peculiarities, its days and years and everything of interest pertaining to the heavenly body. He also described and explained the origin of the mysterious rings surrounding it.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY CHRISTMAS TREE

During the Christmas season it has been decided to give all the English children of the city a Christmas treat. For this purpose, a committee of ladies held a very enthusiastic meeting at the house of Mrs. Jay, Aylmer street, when preliminary arrangements were made.

The treat will be held under the auspices of the St. George's Society, and all children of English parents under the age of fourteen are cordially invited to be present. Please note that this treat is intended for all English children of the city and not for poor children only.

A good sum of money has been provided for purchasing articles for Christmas tree and a tea will be provided. The committee will be grateful for gifts of cake, etc. These may be sent to any member of the committee, whose names are given below.

The date has not been definitely fixed, but will be announced shortly.

It is hoped that a generous response will be given to this appeal so that the children may be able to thoroughly enjoy the Christmas season.

Committee—Mrs. W. H. Pretty, 141 Hunter street east, Mrs. Jay, 381 Aylmer street; Mrs. John, 418 Rubidge street; Mrs. Pitchford, 573 [illegible]wood Ave.; Mrs. Huxley, 344 McDonnel street; Mrs. C. Green, 508 Bolivar street; Mrs. Smith, 83 Sophia street; Mrs. Shannon, 107 Aylmer street.

Announcement

Dr. Frank C. Neal wishes to announce that after December 20th, he will confine his practice to office, hospital and consultation work, giving special attention to diseases of the chest and stomach. 2d

YOUTH WAS ASKED HIS AGE BY BARTENDER

He Admits That He Lied to His Questioner

Says He Was Nineteen Years of Age Last November

The bar-tender of a local hotel was summoned to police court to-day to answer a charge of selling liquor to a boy under the age of twenty-one. The evidence was all taken, and the case stands over until to-morrow that definite evidence as to the boy's age may be ascertained.

G. N. Gordon, is conducting the case for the defendant.

The boy was drunk some weeks ago, was arrested and fined, but refused to state the source of his supply of liquor. Finally he admitted it, with the result that the bartender was summoned to-day.

The boy went into the box this morning and told a straightforward story. He gave his age as nineteen last November. Questioned by the Chief, he related the events of the night, and where he got the whiskey. He had between nine and ten drinks, with a little gin on the top of it all. He admitted that the bartender had asked him his age, and that he had lied to him by replying that he was twenty-two.

The bar-tender also went into the witness box, and told of asking the boy his age, having had a doubt in his mind as to whether the boy was twenty-one. The proprietor of the hotel had also on another occasion asked if the boy in question was twenty-one. Another witness who was behind the bar at the time stated that he had heard the bar-tender inquire the boy's age, when he replied that he was over twenty-one.

G. N. Gordon contended that the boy, by his appearance, was apparently over the age of twenty-one, in the meaning of the term "apparently" as used in the statute. The fact that the bar-tender had inquired the age of the lad and that he had deliberately lied should be considered by the Magistrate in giving judgment which will be done to-morrow.

HON. ADAM BECK TO ADDRESS CITIZENS AT OPERA HOUSE RE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER

Committee Is Appointed to Arrange for the Meeting in the Near Future.

OPPOSITION ?

Council Decides That the By-law be Published in Evening Papers.

A final meeting of the City Council for 1911, was held last evening, chiefly for discussing what arrangements shall be made for the visit of Hon. Adam Beck to the city, to address the citizens on the hydro-electric proposition, a by-law favoring the adoption of which is shortly to be submitted to the rate-payers.

City Clerk Armstrong endeavored to get in touch with Mr. Beck yesterday, but failed owing to his being in Ottawa.

Ald. Graham moved, seconded by Ald Edgar that the city clerk, the Mayor and Ald. Duncan be a committee to arrange for the date of the Hon. Adam Beck's visit to Peterboro and to secure the use of the Grand Opera House for an address to be delivered on the hydro-electric question, and make what arrangements they deem advisable. The motion met with the general approval of the council.

The advisability of having the meeting, came in for considerable discussion on the part of the aldermen.

Ald. Duncan thought it was a very important matter to the citizens generally, and that as Mr. Beck had expressed his willingness to speak on the subject in Peterboro, he most assuredly should be brought here.

STREET TALK

"The report current on the streets" he added, "is that once the vote has been taken and carried, the hydro-electric people can demand whatever price they like to ask of the city."

Ald. Metheral heartily endorsed Ald. Duncan's statements and views.

"It is one of the most important questions that the council has ever faced," said Ald. Anderson. His running mate Ald. Morgan also agreed with him on that point. He had also heard he said, that the Seymour Power Company were arranging for an opposition meeting in the Opera House and that they would try to block the hydro electric scheme.

A communication was read, recommending the publication of the by-laws on the hydro-electric vote, in all of the three local papers. The by-laws were published once in the Times newspaper, and after some debate, Ald. Kerneghan, seconded by Ald. Graham, moved that the request be complied with. Complete copies of the by-law will be published three times in the local papers, that the public may generally acquaint themselves with its contents.

Ald. Kerneghan said that he had people complain to him that they had never seen the by-law, or were aware of what it contained. Ald. Duncan favored publication.

Those present at the meeting were Mayor Morrow, and Aldermen, Morgan, Anderson, Kerneghan, Graham, Brown Edgar, Metheral and Duncan.

FINANCE REPORT

Ald. Anderson, chairman of the Finance presented the following report—

Council of the City of Peterborough;

Gentlemen,—Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows;

1. That the clerk notify the assessors that there are persons liable to pay poll tax as shown by the manhood suffrage registration, who have not been notified to pay such taxes and to serve such persons with the demand.

2. That no usual grant of $25 be made to the Peterborough Teacher's Institute.

3. That the application of the National Sanitarium Association for contribution towards the maintenance of a patient from Peterborough be referred to the Central Charity Board.

4. That the City Treasurer be instructed to pay the manhood suffrage registration in accordance with the opinion of the City Solicitor.

Chairman.

THE POLL TAX.

In regard to the poll tax clause referred to, Ald. Anderson explained that there were between 700 and 800 names on the registration list, of those liable for poll tax, who have not paid. Many of these of course, have left the city, but he recommended that the clerk instruct the assessors to bill those who remain. The finance chairman also moved that all unpaid, accounts sent in to the Finance Committee, for the remainder of the year, be paid by the City Treasurer when passed by the Finance Committee. The motion carried.

The matter of selecting a site for the erection of smallpox store-house building on the Hilliard property was left in the hands of the Property Committee.

Chairman Ald. Metheral read the Board of Works report, which was adopted, James McWilliams' name being substituted in the contract for snow-ploughing in place of John Doig.

MAYOR MORROW SAYS AU REVOIR

Just before the City Council of 1911 broke up last night, Mayor Morrow, the retiring municipal manager, thanked the council for their kindness and consideration to him during his tenure of office in the municipal chair.

The city's affairs he thought had been performed well by the council They had worked harmoniously, one with another, and all had been done that could be done for the ratepayers generally. It seemed sometimes that the ratepayers failed to recognize the painstaking efforts and time involved in the performance of municipal affairs, and that they owed a great debt to the council. He concluded by wishing the councillors a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Ald. Morgan in his jovial and free and easy manner, very appropriately conveyed to the retiring Mayor, the Council's warm approval of his two years administration of the civic affairs of the city. He believed that the Mayor had treated everybody fairly and that the public were thoroughly satisfied.

"You are the best Mayor that the city ever had," concluded Ald. Morgan.

Ald. Anderson very ably backed up Ald. Morgan's sentiments, and the council gathering dispersed on most friendly terms.

DURHAM CALF AT 655 POUNDS

Mr. D. Eastwood of Smith Raised it at His Farm

That Mr. D. Eastwood of the 1st line of Smith can raise A 1 cattle, is evidenced by a deal, in which Mr. Ben White, the well known cattle buyer, purchased from Mr. Eastwood a thoroughbred Durham calf, which tipped the scales at 655 lbs. Durhams are Mr. Eastwood's specialty. The calf was turned over by Mr. White to W. U. Edwards, the George street meat purveyor for his Christmas trade. The extraordinary weight is an increase by 200 lbs over any calf which came the way of Mr. White in his long experience.

WHO KNOWS OF WILLIAM ARNOTT

A correspondent at Edmonton, Alberta, has some money for Mr. Wm. Thackeray Arnott, who lived, so far as known, at Lakefield, Ont. He has left that village, but someone may know of his whereabouts.

He is a son, or probably a grandson of William Arnott, an esteemed baker, of Peterboro, in the early days, and for some time Chief—and only Constable—of the town, in the stirring times before the Fenian raid.

Whoever knows of him will please communicate with the Review.

POLICE COURT

"Benjamin Hobson, you are charged with being drunk yesterday; what have you to say foryourself," came from the police magistrate's judicial chair to-day.

"I guess I was your Worship, I made a fool of myself all right"

"This man is just out of the hospital," put in Chief Thompson. Hobson was discharged with some sound advice, but insisted on presenting his hospital certificate to the Chief before departing.

RAISED A RUMPUS

Another shame-faced individual pleaded guilty to the same charge. A telephone message was sent in to the police station about him last night, as he was creating a disturbance at the corner of Reid and McDonnel streets. The prisoner began to complain in court about his son staying out late at nights, as being responsible for the disturbance. His Worship grasped the opportunity to lecture the man on the folly of getting drunk, and of the evil example it was for his son.

"It is very often the case that the boy follows in the footsteps of the drunken father," said the Magistrate. He was allowed to go free.

BY-LAW IS ENFORCED

Two young men named Sherman Graham and Harry Zacks pleaded guilty of leaving horses untied on the main street. Each was assessed the $2 fine.

VE TEAMS ENTER IN THE MERCANTILE LEAGUE

five team Mercantile hockey e was organized last night at a ting held in the Y.M.C.A. parlors, that the league is organised, with promising prospects for a ssful season. It is up to the e who had representatives pre last night to get busy and make thing go, as the failure or suc of the venture will depend 'arge the teams themselves.

e organization meeting last t was very enthusiastic, and the wing were elected to office—trons and Patronesses—Mr. and E. G. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. A Cressman, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkinson, Mr. Mrs. C. Westbrooke.

esident—J. T. C. Laing.

-Pres.—C. O. Cameron.

-Treas.—T. G. M. Jamieson.

Executive Committee—W. H. Harris C.M. Shoebotham, N. Wettlaufer, V. Mahoney and C. Wolff.

The teams entered are, the Lock Works the C.G.E. Tool Room, the C. G.E. Machine Shop, the Bell Telephone and the Clerks. Two other teams sought to enter, the C.G.E. Brass Department, and the 57th Bugle Band, but the feeling was that to be most successful, a five team league was ample. Should any of the first five drop out however, these teams can then be taken in.

A committee was appointed to make arrangements for securing the Brock street rink for the games, on the same nights it is expected as last year.

A constitution was drawn up, and at another meeting called for a week from Thursday, a schedule of games will be compiled, and final arrangements made.

LGER AND CLARKE WON SIX DAY RACE

nning Team Was One Lap Ahead of Other Riders

York, Dec. 19.—Joe Folger, of lyn, and John Clarke, of Mel- Australia, won the six days' race, which ended at 12 o'clock way night in Madison Square The Folger-Clarke team d one lap ahead of six other which were bunched in a tie second place.

ger and Clarke won the race by ling 2,718 miles and 9 laps in 142 hours of the contest. To the teams immediately following 2,718 and 8 laps were credited. The ers were eighteen miles and 2 behind the record of 2,737 miles 1 lap made by McFarland and n in 1908.

ORILLIA Y.M.C.A. IS RE-OPENED

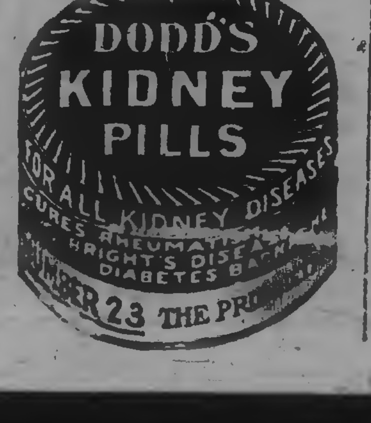
Orillia, Dec. 19—On Friday evening the formal reopening of the Young Men's Christian Association took place. During the year an addition 42 by 80 feet has been added and the building is now considered to be the most complete for association purposes possessed by any town on the continent. It contains a large gymnasium, bowling alleys, swimming pool, parlors, classrooms separate boys' department, and thirty six, dormitories on the third floor Over a thousand people attended the reception. A pleasing feature of the proceedings was the presentation of life memberships to Mr. W. H. Tudhope, President, and to Mr. F. Long Vice-President. To the efforts of these gentlemen the new building is largely due. The addition cost $23,000 and the whole is now valued at $60-000.

Home for Christmas

Montreal, Dec. 19—The last of the Christmas boats has now sailed from Canada and a record has been established as regards the number of passengers off to the Old Country to spend the Yuletide.

The C.P.R. has carried 15,000 persons to Atlantic tidewater for the Christmas traffic, and of course there are many who have gone by other routes.

A Tokio newspaper says that Japan and Great Britain have offered, or are about to offer, to mediate between the Chinese Government and the rebels, and will adopt further measures if this is refused.



A queer fish that does not swim is the "sargasso fish," known to sailors as the "frogfish." It lives in that vast mass of floating gulfweed called the Sargasso sea, in mid-Atlantic.

Its pectoral fins are so modified and developed as to resemble arms, and it uses them for clinging to the weed. Very gaudily colored, it changes its hues to match the aquatic vegetation by which it is surrounded, and when the latter decays and turns brown it assumes a corresponding shade.

The fish lays its eggs in a jelly-like mass, which, absorbing a great quantity of water, becomes three times as big as the mother fish herself, assuming the form of a narrow raft three or four feet long and two to four inches wide.—New York World.

Parnell.

I never saw a braver man than Parnell. The story of his downfall is one of the most pathetic in history. There is a rumor that Captain O'Shea said to Gambetta: "What are we going to do with Parnell? He is getting to be a great danger to the country." And Gambetta replied, "Set a woman on his track." And the woman, instead of betraying him, fell in love with this patriot, and that was his undoing.—"Recollections of Mrs. T. P. O'Connor."

To Discourage Him.

"George," said her husband's wife, "I don't believe you have smoked one of those cigars I gave you on your birthday."

"That's right, my dear," replied his wife's husband. "I'm going to keep them until our Willie wants to learn to smoke."—Chicago News.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER BY-LAW

Ratepayer Asks is the By-law Harmless to the City

To The Editor of The Review:

Sir—I notice that a by-law is to be submitted to the electors on the 1st. of the New Year, in the following terms—

"Are you in favor of obtaining from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario a supply of electric power."

This certainly is a very innocent and harmless looking question, and if it is as harmless as it looks, I think it should be carried unanimously — but is it so harmless?

If this question is answered in the affirmative, by the electors, are we not giving power to any succeeding council of our city, to enter into a contract with the said commission, regardless of cost, and without any further submission of the question to the ratepayers? I am in favor of the cheapest power we can secure, but I am not in favor of buying a pig in a poke, nor will I vote for this by-law, nor do I think many others will vote for it, unless we have the most positive assurance, That no contract can be entered into by any council, until after the details of such contract has been again submitted to the ratepayers. A letter from our City Solicitor would be timely.

If you can enlighten me on the above point, you will confer a great favor on many ratepayers, as well as myself.

Thanking you for the space,

RATEPAYER.

Peterboro, Ont., December 19th, 1911.

———

As will be seen in another column of the Review, the City Council, at a meeting last night, appointed a committee to arrange for a meeting at the Grand Opera House, before the by-law is submitted, the same to be addressed by the Hon. Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Commission.

At this meeting, it is thoroughly understood by the council, that everything will be made plain.

With the passage of the by-law, the Commission would be asked to proceed to estimate the cost of development, distribution and other incidentals. Then, should the council decide to take power, a by-law stating the expenditure to be made would have to be placed before the people If the by-law failed to pass, the council would certainly not have the money to expend

The Waste of the Wind.

Every one who wants a cheap motive has tried to harness the wind. Every child has made a paper propeller or a windmill. But can it be said that the possible uses of the wind have been as arduously investigated as such recently discovered forces as steam and electricity and gases? Is it not conceivable that the practical uses of the wind are underestimated just because they are so familiar?

We cannot help thinking that the wind will be more variously employed some day in the same way that probably the problem of laying under contribution the great physical fact of the tides will be solved. One would think that the wind could be used for electric lighting, yet there is no practical apparatus for the purpose. True, the wind is variable and occasionally absent, but as electricity can be stored one might suppose that this was the very case in which variability did not particularly matter.—London Spectator.

The Clever Shoe Clerk.

At the cost of considerable time and labor one high grade shoe house is bound to protect its goods. On a rainy day a woman wearing wet shoes went in to buy rubbers. The clerk measured the width and length of her shoes, removed them and brought a new pair of the same size to try on. Visions of a depleted pocketbook caused her to exclaim, "But I don't want new shoes, only rubbers!"

"I understand," said the clerk. "I am only slipping these shoes on to fit the rubbers over. It soils the inside of a rubber to slip it on over a wet shoe. Then if it doesn't fit and the customer doesn't take it it is spoiled for the next customer."

"And the outcome of that experience was," said the woman, "that I bought the shoes as well as the rubbers and had them sent home C. O. D. Maybe that was what he was working for all the time."—New York Sun.

Cemetery for Pets.

The picturesque village of Molesworth, Huntingdon, Eng., possesses an unusual cemetery. It has been established about seven years, and up to date there have been interred about 200 pets, mostly dogs, although there are a few birds, about fifty cats, a marmot, and four monkeys. The place is beautifully kept, the graves being planted with flowers, while the stones and curbs are principally of white marble with suitable inscriptions

Gifts for Men

Remembrances of the practical sort are appreciated most by those of the male persuasion. If you are going to spend some money on him, give him something that will add to his appearance and bodily comfort, because these are the two dominant features of a man's desire. NEW DREADNOUGHTS

The keels are being laid in Great Britain at the present time for five armoured ships, these to form part of the British naval program for 1911-12. The first dreadnought, a result of the experience of the Japanese-Russian war, was a long piece in advance of anything in the line of warships up to that time. As usual, the Britons were a year ahead of all other powers with the first complete ship of this type. The original dreadnought was the forerunner of the super-dreadnought of which the Orion and the the King George are types, but it will perhaps be necessary to describe the ships of the present British financial year by the somewhat clumsy name of hyper-super-dreadnoughts. They will certainly be, as their great predecessors were, the most powerful vessels in the world.

The description of these five ships as given out by the admiralty, (which are to be completed early in 1913) is as follows. They are to carry ten 13.5-inch guns in five turrets on the keel line, four of them firing right ahead, four right astern and the whole of them on either broadside. The dreadnought with her ten 12-inch guns, throws a total weight of metal of 8,500 pounds, but the King George ship, with the same number of 13.5 inch guns has a broadside fire of 12,500 pounds from the big guns alone. The armament in the new ships will be even more powerfully destructive. The weight of the shells will be increased from 1,250 pounds to 1400 pounds, giving a total weight of discharge of 14,000 pounds. The supplementary armament is also to be improved. The dreadnought carries twelve-pounders but all the later ships have four inch guns. Now the 6-inch type is coming. The guns will be so evenly balanced that the 6-inch will be handled almost as easily as the 12-pounder.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Get a hustle on if you haven't purchased that Christmas gift. Only four more days.

The best New Year's resolution is to vote for a strong administration at the city hall.

It will not be the fault of the yellow press on each side of the North Sea if there is not an early war between Great Britain and Germany.

Government bills and bank notes are said to be very dirty. We never can keep them long enough to notice it.

About time to start doping out a few New Year's resolutions. Nice to make them, and then to break them.

The hockey teams will have to hustle some to get into shape for the opening dates of the various schedules.

We believe that kind words and a sympathetic hand clasp have done more to reclaim lost souls than all the tracts ever published.

If the world valued us as we value ourselves the heavens would not be sufficiently large whereon to inscribe our greatness.

What people will "say" is the bugbear of small minds, and don't care a darn what they say if you are forging ahead in the battle of life.

Better to have for a friend the most thorough paced scamp, with a generous heart, than the most respectable, canting, whining Pharisee.

Coal merchants and hockey fans are beginning to wear "the smile that won't come off" again.

All those who are going to play Santa Claus around Peterborough this year are warned to secure a set of asbestos whiskers.

The Detroit police made another Salome dancer put on more clothes at the Garrick Theatre. The cops were afraid she would catch her death of cold. These are the "bare" facts of the case.

Whiskey is being shipped into mining camps concealed in loaves of bread. Just rye bread, we guess.

A Canadian woman is suing a Kingsville, Ont., man for $50,000 because he tried to kiss her. Wonder what the figure would have been if he had tasted the forbidden fruit.

The new ships will far outdistance those of any of the other powers. Britannia must rule the waves.

THE EXODUS TO CANADA

A western farmer at Dumbell, Wyoming, writes to the New York Tribune with reference to the exodus from the States to Canada as follows, in reply to the question, "Why are people leaving the States for Canada?"

"There is a better chance for a man of small means to get in on the "ground-floor" and make a home. Overeager land agents have led people to believe this Big Hornbasin is a paradise. The facts are these: The good agricultural land that could be watered by individuals was all gone long ago. No man of small means can take land under one of these big enterprises and pay $35 to $50 an acre for water and make anything. I have been here eighteen years this fall, working hard all the time, and I am just getting my ranch so I can make a living from it.

Machinery is much cheaper in Canada and there is a ready market for produce. Dry farming is out of the question here in Northwestern Wyoming. There is some of it done here, and the men who try it are hungry. This country has been boomed, faked, misrepresented, altogether too much.

INSPECTION OF LOCOMOTIVES

Ottawa, Dec. 19—After January 1, 1912, inspection and testing of locomotives on all railroads under the jurisdiction of the railway commission of Canada will be governed by new and rigid rules, which the board has issued to every road affected. The new rules, which follow much careful consideration and discussion of the subject, are designed for the safety and protection of the public, fixing as they do the responsibility for accidents caused by defective boilers on those directly responsible for the condition of the same. They provide that companies are to be responsible for the general design and construction of locomotive boilers under their control that a safe working pressure is to be fixed by the chief mechanic of the company or a competent mechanical engineer under his supervision that the mechanical officer in charge at each point where boiler work is done will be held responsible for inspection and repairs of all locomotive boilers.

In case of accident from the failure of a locomotive boiler or its appurtenances resulting in serious injury or death, the carrier owning or operating the locomotive is required immediately to wire the board's operating officer regarding the accident and the complete list of injured. A penalty of $100 is fixed for contravention of any clauses in the new order.

The Big Christmas Rush Continues

With the end of the holiday season in sight, and our store still crowded with special lines that must be cleared out even though the loss will be heavy, still greater selling must be induced somehow. Prices are the best inducement to economical buyers, we realize that, and customers will find every day this week that

PRICES HAVE BEEN CUT TO THE BONE

Early shopping is always advised because there is more time for selection, and the choice is more complete, but those who have left it to the last week will find there is a big saving for them here and a magnificent line of Holiday and other seasonable articles to select from. Perhaps the most ruthless cutting has been made in

MISS QUINN WRITES FROM FAR OFF CHINA

She Was in No Danger at the Time of Writing

Mr. A. J. Johnston has received a letter from Miss Quinn, missionary, in China, which is in part as follows:

My Dear Friends,—I keep planning to write you, but find it hard to get to it. I have a great many unexpected things confronting me these days, and I am not sure of any time. I am sure you are all anxious these days for us. It is a time when men's hearts are failing them, for fear, and when there are wars and rumors of wars, if there ever was, and we go on, wondering what may happen next. I am sure you are better posted than we are as to what is actually taking place. We live in the country and news is unreliable. We know there is fighting and people are fleeing, but so far praise God, it doesn't effect us more than this.

All our students are here from all the schools, the girls got back yesterday, but our family grows large. We are going on with our work as usual except that I do not leave home at all. If there is real need our Consul will write us. The only danger there is likely to be is that the people get [illegible] and lawless toughs rob and loot and we may be in need of money. I heard the banks were closing, so I sent and got all the money I could draw just in the nick of time, and have enough to live on for a month or so. When that is done, surely the Lord will provide for us. We are living as carefully as we can for we don't know what sort of a muddle we may find ourselves in, and money is a good thing to have when you get into a tight place.

We were so thankful to get the $80, which came just when the note was due, and was exactly enough to a dollar when exchanged. We were a little tempted after we got it ready to keep it back for a little in case we couldn't get more and should have to leave, but after prayer and conference we all felt clear that as the Lord had so signally prepared it, it was our duty to discharge the debt and let the consequences take their course, and we feel very happy about it. We have not yet had our deed stamped nor our alterations made, but it will all come in good time. I would be glad to have the deed stamped officially in case of future trouble. But the Lord knows about that too. I feel so sure that God has led us step by step in this thing and cannot praise Him enough.

We find the empty yard such a comfort with our large family. We were so congested with a small drying space and so many clothes to dry, and the children now have a place to play in.

So Grace is going to Africa, how I would like to help send her off. I know something of what it means to you. May the Lord give the grace to send her forth rejoicing. Nothing is too good to offer Him. He gave his all for us, but the heart suffers and it is right too, I believe as long as the spirit is yielded and willing. I have been proving the sincerity of my consecration since hearing of my beloved father's illness and death. It is very hard to be so far away, yet I know the bitter dregs we drunk the first time I came to China, indeed it was in Peterborough when I decided this was God's plan for me. It is only a little while and we will all be forever with the Lord. It has been growing more preciously real to me the thought that we are in Christ in His body, no matter how far separated or whether dead or alive we are in Him and therefor never separated, His body is one and when He returns those who went before come with Him. We go to Him because we are in Him. Oh what a comfort and what a hope! What can separate us from the love of Christ? Nothing, we are eternally happy and heaven is just as near us in China and Africa as in Canada.

May He keep you all rejoicing in Him.

Yours in His keeping,

M. QUINN.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH ASSOCIATION

The first literary evening of St. John's church association was held last night in the Sunday school room at 8 p.m. Mr. W. F. Johnston, church warden, who kindly acted as chairman, spoke a few fitting remarks, making all feel at home to enjoy the program, which was principally given by Mr. C. F. Jamieson, commercial master of the Collegiate Institute, in an evening with "Drummond," the great Canadian poet, who was, he said, ever true to the life and character of the French Canadian habitant, in his every relation, civic social, and religious. Drummond's point of view was rather sympathetic than critical, preferring always to discover goodness, even though it were flavored at times with human weakness. You would therefore look in vain in the three volumes of verse from his pen for a false note.

Mr. Harold Claxton, president of the association kindly recited one of Drummond's poems and also announced the arranging of a banquet to be held on Friday, January 10th, when one hundred men would be expected to attend.

The musical part of the program, consisting of an instrumental by R. J. Devey, and solo by Miss [illegible] Long, entitled the Nightingale, was very much appreciated.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. C. F. Jameson for the very pleasant and instructive evening and the meeting concluded with singing God Save the King.

SCHOOLS OF YESTERDAY, TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW

An American writer in describing the schools of yesterday, to-day, and to-morrow of the United States makes some statements that the people of Ontario might wisely consider.

The school of yesterday, the old-fashioned school of a generation ago. There father and son joined hands and cleared the forests, drained the swamps, bridged the streams, broke the virgin soil, opened sugar camps, dug ditches, erected cabins and barns, fenced their own farms, butchered their winter's meat, sheared their own sheep, wove their own homespun, manufactured in a small way their own boots, straw hats, butter, cheese, soap, candles, whips, carts, sleds, yokes, kegs, barrels, carpets, etc.

Children worked in the open, hardened their nerves in the sunshine, built up their muscles with the axe and the hoe, yielded to family discipline, and accepted the moral restraints of the community, toiled and saved for nine months in every year that they might go to the ungraded school the other three months and acquire the rudiments of an elementary education.

It all ended in splendid health, in sanity of vision, in capacity for work, and in a wholesome attitude towards life.

What of the school of to-day? A great change has come about. The social and industrial evolution of the last quarter of a century has left the home no longer the industrial unit that it formerly was, and its strongest influences in the training of its children are past and gone. Our young people are no longer being trained to work. The old wholesome tasks of the home, for the girls, have given place to the tortured piano, the entertainment hall, parties, and the novel. The boy has exchanged his rugged and useful occupation for the chasing of fire-engines, the building of bon-fires, the prowlings of city gangs, and other questionable occupations.

Young fellows reach the high school to-day who never did a full day's manual work in their lives, and who do not know what it means to earn their own schoolbooks, much less their board and clothing. They are not trained in labor. We educate away from labor, and boys look forward to the time when they can hold an office job, carry manicured hands, wear clean linen, take Saturdays off, and draw a salary instead of wages.

And yet easy-going parents complain that teachers overwork their children. Not these days. It is not the pupil that is overworked, it is the teacher. Teachers are hired these days to make it easy for pupils. Parents seem to think that knowledge is corked up and it is the teacher's duty to uncork things and let them flow.

Children come to school these days labeled "hands off," "handle with care," "don't break," and instead of the teacher teaching them with a switch he has to coax, flatter and cajole, so pampered are the children at home.

Such a state of things calls for a radical change in our schools.

What, then, of the school of to-morrow? It calls for an all-round education. The hours will be increased instead of being diminished. The tende- mic subjects will not be neglected but more attention will be given to physical culture and industrial training. The boy will work in turn in the class room, in the shop, and in the gymnasium. He will be given work courses and play courses as well as study courses, and the school will occupy more of his daylight hours.

The school of to-morrow calls for an all-round education—an education that will be attained by listening less and doing more.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

By J. W. BROWETT, Optometrist

Q.—Why is it that Glasses are worn so much more now than years ago?

A.—Years ago the science of optics or correcting errors of sight was not understood as it is to-day; only old persons or those near-sighted wore Glasses. Now we correct with lenses all errors of sight.

Q.—Why is it that cheap Glasses do not give satisfaction?

A.—Cheap Glasses are so faulty in construction and are of such poor quality, that they distort the vision and cause pain in the eyes. The optical glass used by us is brilliant, clear and perfect, insuring comfort and ease to the wearer.

Q.—Can my headache be relieved with Glasses?

A.—A personal visit will be necessary. LET US TALK IT OVER.
